Head.—Aching; beginning about 9 A.M., with confusion of head and difficulty of thought; in forenoon; all forenoon, especially in forehead and over eyes; after breakfast, with confusion; towards 10 P.M.; when reading; < towards evening; < towards evening, with throbbing at temples; > afternoon, returning in evening; intermittent, and in frontal region. Throbbing pain all day, < moving head. Aching on brushing hair, as if sore, especially on vertex. Constrictive aching. A. as from a tight cap (Gelsew.). Sensation as from an iron band. Compressible A., especially in root of nose and in temples, with stiffness of neck, coldness of neck, especially over posterior part, pain on turning head, vertigo, with the pain in neck.

Confusion; > noon, by sweat from constant walking, with pain, as in catarrho-rheumatic headaches; with stitches here and there in forehead and intermittent jerking pain in it; as from spirituous drinks. Heaviness. Vertigo; in afternoon while sitting; in attacks while sitting; with partial loss of consciousness; with loss of smell, vision affected so that objects appeared larger than they were. So that he could not stand.

Forehead.—Stitches here and there, sometimes with twitching pain. Tearing, extending to temples, > afternoon. Digging. Aching; in a spot, and between eyes; on waking; < evening, with vertigo and ringing in ears; < reading and stooping; with heat; in sineiput; in eminence, extending to l. temple, with tearings in that direction; soon extending to l. parietal bone; from root of nose round head to occipital protuberance. Intermittent, extending towards eyes; intermittent, < evening, with vertigo and ringing in ears; flitting, gradually extending to l. temple. Ulcerative pain; with burning in eyes. Confused aching; with nausea. Drawing pain, extending to temples, > open air and during rest, with tearing. Tensive pain at 10 P.M.; T. pain, with eructations. Pressure, with sleepiness, and in temples; P. extending to orbits and temples. Confusion; with constriction in cerebral hemisphere. Vertigo; in sineiput, even to falling forward (Petrol.).

Temples.—Stitches in l., extending to occiput. Tearing; in l.; in r. when stooping. Aching; < r. Drawing pain; in l. Reeling pain in afternoon, < shaking head or stepping hard. Pulsating pain (migraine) at 6 A.M. on waking, so that he could not lie quietly, > breakfast at 7.30 A.M. Compressing pain; and in occiput; from one to the other, with vertigo and agitation; through T., < walking, so that each step caused a painful shock in head. Pressure; at insertion of muscles; inward, afterwards extending to vertex.

Pain in vertex. Semilateral headache, returned when walking, with dulness and confusion of head; pain in r. side. Pain in r. parietal bone as if pressed by a hard body. Fulness in occiput in evening and night, with a humming noise there. Pimples on scalp, painful to touch. Itching of scalp.

Eyes.—Sunken, surrounded by gray rings. Congestion of optic. Inflammation of r. kerato-iritis. Fixed, without expression, pupils dilated, < l., but sluggish, could not see with the r. as with l., ophthalmoscope showed in r. eye slender retinal veins, extravasations of blood into vitreous, filaments and points floating in vitreous. Paleness of internal segment of optic nerves, with marked excavation of papillæ (Phos., Plumb.), which were less transparent than normal, and appearance of optic nerve like smoked glass. Progressive atrophy of papillæ of l. Neuritis, disc pale and hazy, the haze extending a disc's breadth into retina, veins engorged, arteries too small, central scotoma for red, not for white. Stitches in r.; when reading; jerking, in r., in region of superior rectus muscle. Pressure upon eyes; with inclination to close them; itching, with burning on upper lids and an itching pustule, and with whitish-yellow mucus in eye. Heat and pricking. Lachrymation; while reading.

Pressure on l. ball, with heat in it. Itching of ball. Pupils dilated; contracted. Cornea insensible (Gels.).

Lids.—Twitching. Heaviness. Burning in margin, with redness. Biting in r. lower. Itching. Bruised pain in r. lower, near outer angle, in afternoon, first observed on touch, then in upper, over region of lachrymal gland, and in upper and inner part of globe, all < by movement of eye or lid and by pressure, r. lids feel swollen but are not, redness of outer margin of lower lid, with sensation as if a sty would begin, next day r. lower lid hot, painful, sore, swollen, red near outer canthus, the following day sty on r. lower lid, hot and painful.

Paroxysmal jerking stitching alternately in various muscles of r. eye. Sore pain in l. orbicularis, towards external canthus, < moving lids. Pressure in orbits.

Photophobia. Vision misty; in r. eye; for everything beyond a certain distance. Double vision. Trembling of all objects (Plumb.); of letters when reading. Objects seemed confluent. Loss of vision; in r. eye. Obscuration of a part of the field, so that he did not see the concluding letters. Field restricted (Physos.), especially for colors; especially for white and blue. Loss of power of distinguishing objects and bluish-green appearance to everything, as if seen through a green veil, ability to distinguish only large objects quite close, inability to distinguish type of newspaper from the white margin, both alike appearing greenish (Osm.), glasses did not improve vision. Inability to read, all objects appeared yellow, ophthalmoscopic examination revealed nothing abnormal, usual field showed a central scotoma for red and green.

Ears.—Stitches; in r.; in r. in afternoon; in r. after dinner, at intervals of a quarter of an hour; in r., < towards evening; in l.; in l. in evening; in l., waking him at night, with gripping pain in it; in l. as from an insect at 9 P.M.; in external meatus auditorius; jerking, in l. Boring in r. Pain in l., with stopped sensation; intermittent P. in r. as if a dull instrument were thrust into tympanum. Feeling of deafness in l. as if obstructed by a thick substance, during and after dinner.

Deafness. Hearing lost in l. ear. Hearing impaired; as if something were stuffed into ears. Ringing; before ears. Tinkling. Humming in l.; < eating; in l. like a distant wind, obliging him to raise his voice. Buzzing and singing of wind in r., like an æolian harp, in morning when walking.

Nose.—Pain in nasal fossæ as from fumes of sulphuric acid. Prickling in tip like an irritation to sneeze. Burning in root, and in throat. Stoppage. Sneezing; with traces of blood in nasal mucus. Bleeding. Smell impaired; everything smelled of the vapors of the factory.

Face.—Pale; and covered with clammy sweat, lips blue and moist, with saliva and frothy mucus. Red, then pale; R. and puffy. Sudden congestion, with anxious, uncertain expression. Sad expression. Aspect of astonishment, with hesitancy of speech and loss of memory. Convulsive movements of lips; in corners. Dry lips. Burning of lips, tongue and throat. Stiff lips. Drawing pain in l. lower jaw. Compressive feeling in muscles of under jaw, especially alongside larynx.

Mouth.—Teeth. Stitches in r. lower molar extending from crown to root; in r. upper carious T.; jerking, in carious T. at 9 A.M.; drawing, in upper back carious at 6 A.M., and in lower one opposite to it, lasting in first till after rising. Tearing reappeared in afternoon, < cold, > after midnight, with drawing. Toothache from cleansing mouth, with cold water in morning; T. < night; in r. lower molar; with an ulcer about the tooth, extending towards palate, with itching, tension and impeded chewing; throbbing, in l. back teeth in evening and all night, with burning in it. Blunt feeling.

Tongue.—Coating. Pricking on tip. Coldness, changing to sticking-burning, then sensation as from an acid and astringent substance. Burning; in papillæ; at tip and in throat; at root; sticking; as from oil of peppermint, with garlicky taste. Stiffness. Paralysis (Plumb.). Speech difficult.

Burning in mouth; with pain, and in pharynx. Irritability in mouth and pharynx, with constriction in larynx provoking cough, which amounts to retching, with expectoration of mucus. Clamminess. Anæsthesia of mucus membrane of M. and throat. Salivation; with nausea. Constant spitting. Glutinous saliva. Sweetish saliva. Fetid breath. Hot breath.

Taste.—Metallic. Sulphur-like. Saltish-sourish all forenoon. Sweetish, offensive. Bitter; on waking, > after breakfast. Bitter sour in morning. Repulsive, acrid and scraping, with burning in throat and along œsophagus on swallowing. Pasty; and nauseous. Unusual, to beer between 5 and 6 P.M. Impaired. Blunted, frequently herby. Lost, except for salt and sugar.

Throat.—Hawking, with inclination to vomit; H. of salt mucus. Oniony taste and smell. Intermittent sticking constriction near beginning of œsophagus, as if a bone were sticking there. (Pains caused by cold wet weather, with burning and with catarrh.) Scraping; with burning, and in œsophagus. Rawness; scraping, (as from a foreign body) in l. side, extending on swallowing to l. ear. Scraping roughness; with stitches. Acridity. Sensation of a hair. Burning; extending to stomach; in soft palate. Burning pain. Dryness. Difficulty in swallowing.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; and digestion difficult, irregular, with colic, vomiting and congestion. Ravenous A. Desire for food, with salivation. Irregular appetite. Hunger, with aversion to eating; H., with aversion to the food set before him, but it had real relish. Little appetite; especially for meat. Loss of A.; for supper. Aversion to all food, it smelled and tasted of the drug. Thirst; especially for beer.

Eructions; in morning on waking, with emissions of flatus; with nausea. Insufficient. Loud; in afternoon, with fetid flatus. Empty; and of acrid smell and taste; as after eating radishes. Of milk that had been eaten, without nausea and vomiting. Of bitter fluid at 10 P.M. Of nauseating fluid. Sour; at 8 A.M. after drinking coffee; burning; burning, corrosive, in afternoon after eating; corrosive fluid.

Nausea; on stooping; < entering a room or going into open air; > eructions; > vomiting; with frontal headache; with pressure and coldness in stomach; in attacks, with movements in hypogastrium; intermittent, > after dinner, with salivation; faint-like. Vomiting; violent, on eating; vomiting of food and glairy mucus. Inability to retain water long. Vomiting of scanty, bitter water. Greenish vomiting; and bilious, with nausea, cold sweat and prostration.

Inflation. Stitching through to back when resting epigastrium on window-sill and inspiring deeply; S. in epigastric region; radiating from a single point in pit into cardiac region, > noisy eructions. Tearing. Pinching in region. Cramp. Pain; after breakfast, < deep breathing; in region; in epigastric region. Sensitiveness to pressure. Constriction, with good appetite. Pressure; beneath pit; after breakfast; after breakfast, > eructions of air; after dinner, with constriction and sticking in chest; after dinner, stretching into abdomen; from all food and drink, even from beer and sugar; after beer, with eructions of air; after stool, then headache and cramplike sticking in ears; and in abdomen, with pain in loins.

Heaviness; extending all over epigastric region. Fullness; extending all over epigastric region, with vertigo. Emptiness. Discomfort; in epigastric region, with nausea and eructations of air having the taste and smell of the drug. Indigestion. Heartburn all day, < forenoon and at every eructation; H. < after smoking. Burning, < pressure, and in region of liver; B. in forenoon, extending through œsophagus; spreading through hypogastrium, with increasing warmth in chest and in the perspiring face and palms; in pit. Warmth in pit spreading through chest to head and downward to umbilicus.

Abdomen.—Distention; after eating; with soreness. Rumbling. Movements. Emission of flatus; when walking, with eructations; with itching in rectum; noisy; fetid. Increase of peristaltic motion. Flatulence. Stitches here and there. Tearing; here and there. Cutting in evening after salad, then urgent, knotty stool. Gripping, > stool; G., with rumbling and rolling, as before diarrhœa; here and there, with emission of flatus. Flatulent twinges. Feeling as before diarrhœa; at 10 P.M.

Pain; at 4 A.M., with wandering swellings as from flatus, the pain increasing to sticking on inspiration, the pressure becoming seated in cœcal region, the pain < turning from one side to the other or doubling up; on pressure; after eating; after dinner; before soft stool; before insufficient liquid stool; > stool; while sitting and writing, > open air, seeming to cause attacks of nausea; with diarrhœa; intermittent jerking, in muscles in afternoon. Soreness of walls (Sulph.). Constriction, with discharge of flatus upward and downward. Tension. Discomfort after coffee; D., with nausea in it, then soft fecal stool; paroxysmal, also after stool.

Discomfort in upper, with salivation and paroxysms of nausea. Gripping in small intestines, with emission of flatus. Stitches in l. side; pinching S. in r. side.

Hypochondria.—Sticking after long sitting; jerking, at 9 A.M. in r., then in l.; paroxysmal, in region of small lobe of liver before stool. Stitchlike jerking in l. Paroxysmal cutting by r. false ribs at 6 A.M. Pain in region of l. lobe of liver.

Umbilical Region.—Stitches in r., extending into cœcal region, in morning in bed, with emission of flatus; itching S. on r. side below navel, before a semi-fluid stool. Tearings from r. side to bladder, returning till dinner. Cuttings after dinner, with nausea. Gripping, with urging to stool, then nausea and salivation. Pinching twinges in a spot to r. of navel.

Cœcal Region.—Jerking sticking; itching sticking; pinching sticking; pinching sticking in cœcum after stool.

Hypogastrium.—Sticking on pressure. Stitchlike twinges in l. Cutting; after drinking coffee, then partly softish, partly crumbly stool. Pain as before diarrhœa, at 10 A.M. Acute pain in groin. Discomfort, < stooping or motion, with paroxysms of nausea.

Rectum.—Stitches. Urging to stool; at 5.30 A.M. on waking, with copious, thin, yellowish stool, then burning at anus as from acridity (Sulph.); at 8 P.M., stool pappy, accompanied and followed by a feeling of weakness and tremulousness.

Anus—Burning, with itching; in anterior commissure in afternoon after stool, with soreness to touch (Sulph.).

Stool.—Diarrhœa; after breakfast; frequent, with smarting in anus; sudden, after dinner, repeated twice in afternoon, with colic; fetid; fetid, alternating with constipation (Sulph.); slimy, in afternoon; semi-fluid; watery; of yellow, frothy, sour-smelling fluid nights, with pain in abdomen, especially in umbilical region, with retraction of umbilicus and tenesmus; profuse. Pappy; with discharge of blood; and involuntary in afternoon during micturition; in part, crumbly in part, then soon a fluid one. Stool with mucus and discharge of cherry-red blood (with the headache).

Constipation; alternating with diarrhœa. Dry. Solid at first, then liquid, with burning in anus, then pasty, with burning in anus; S. at first, then soft, then rumbling as if another stool would occur. Scanty and pappy; S. and soft; and hard, with urging; in evening, small and even if fluid still difficult from inactivity of rectum. Frequent. No stool; for three days, then soft, with discharge of cherry-red blood.

Urinary Organs.—Sticking crampy pain in bladder and neck of bladder at midnight during micturition, after a glass of wine, extending into urethra, with similar pain in anus and rectum. Urging to urinate; with emission of two or three drops at a time, also with burning in urethra and tenesmus of neck of bladder. Sudden desire to urinate arising from fossa navicularis, without real urging or necessity to urinate. Inability to retain urine any length of time, passed with pain and difficulty; inability to retain urine above an hour, micturition often attended by scalding and followed by a discharge that stained the linen. Micturition involuntary (Ars.). Painful and slow micturition; P., with burning pain (Ars.); with tenesmus and frequent desire to urinate, and bloody urine (Ars.).

Urethra.—Cutting during micturition. Smarting during micturition. Burning during micturition (Ars.). Irritation of mucous membrane. Tickling in forepart, with sensation as if something would run out.

Urine.—Increased. Highly colored. Red, containing abundance of carbonate and phosphate of lime. Albuminous, red and turbid (Ars., Phos., Plumb., etc.). Turbid; and pale. Smelling of sulphur. Increase of carbonates and sulphates.

Sexual Organs.—Relaxed. Chilled. Stitches in l. spermatic cord in evening. Sticking-burning pain in spermatic cord, running deep into abdomen; evening in bed. Shrivelled penis. Erections, with nightly emissions; difficult erections; violent erections, with burning in urethra. Shrunken and painful scrotum. Itching on scrotum. Testicles small; with diminished sensation on pressure. Swelling of l. testicle and epididymis; of l. testicle, with hardness and pain. Jerking sticking in l. testicle. Uneasiness in tumor testiculi. Impotency; with atrophied testicles.

Excitement; with loss of power; with rare erections, coition too long, ejaculation short and incomplete; with constant fatiguing erections, speedily changing to impotency (Pic. ac.). Desire increased (in both sexes); increased, then diminished till lost, at times an incomplete erection resulted in indefinite coition without emission, or at times difficult but profuse ejaculation. Loss of desire; and of power (Phos.). Emission copious; at night (Phos.).

Miscarriage. Uterine catarrh. Ovaries almost obliterated. Menstruation too early; profuse M.; irregular M. Sexual sensation disappeared (in a woman).

Respiratory Organs.—Irritability of larynx. Heat of larynx. Hoarseness; at noon, as from catarrh; with irritation to hawk, especially on posterior wall of larynx, seldom provoking cough. Voice feeble. Voice altered in tone. Voice deep bass.

Cough; from scraping in throat; caused by heart-burn; tormenting, with irritation in bronchi. Dry C.; and hard, after lying down, from tickling in posterior part of palate; convulsive, at 10.30 P.M. on lying down, from tickling as if snuff had lodged upon uvula, straining chest and making it sore. Inclination to C.; arising from bifurcation of bronchi.

Respiration.—Rattling (after respiration). Difficult on ascending stairs. Oppressed after much exercise; O., with pressure on sternum (Phos.). Gets out of breath easily. Accelerated. Expiration prolonged; over posterior part of lungs. Inspiration deep and slow. Almost stertorous.

Chest.—Emphysema of lungs. Congestion of upper lobes of lungs (Ars., Iod.). Stitches, and below l. short ribs; near l. side of sternum after coffee; under middle of sternum, extending upward like lightning; periodical, in l. half; paroxysmal, in region of last r. ribs at 5 P.M.; jerking, in lower r. side; itching, in r. nipple. Aching in r. side; tense A. in chest, stomach and abdomen. Pressure under sternum. Oppression; < impure air and unventilated room, when it is associated with anxiety. Fulness and oppression of breathing seem to arise from anterior part of r. side of diaphragm. Constriction, as if expiration were impeded, > deep respirations in open air. Sensitiveness of anterior wall in evening, when sneezing. Wrath. Periodical burning in l. half beneath sternum. Symptoms, < ascending steps.

Heart.—Anæmic murmur. Murmur of first sound extended along the great vessels. With the first sound there was a prolonged murmur, which extended along vessels of neck. Accelerated action. Palpitation (Ars.).

Pulse.—Rapid; and hard; and weak. Slow. Feeble, compressible.

Neck.—Peculiar venous murmur in vessels. Intermittent bruit de souffle in vessels. Itching sticking in r. sterno-cleido-mastoid. Drawing pain in r. sterno-cleido-mastoid. Pain in nape, with tension, then anthrax, which was arrested by crucial incision, then profuse supuration, then cure of the paralysis and general condition. Stiffness; < turning to the left; > of nape.

Back.—Pain. Feeling at noon while walking as if a weight were lying across shoulders, weighing him down, so that his head sank forward.

Lumbar Region.—Jerking stitches in r. at 7 P.M. Tearing, with pressure. Pain; > morning; in morning on waking, and in sacrum; in kidneys; over base of sacrum; in r. tuber ischii in afternoon when riding, and in flexor side of foot; obliging him to lie down; hæmorrhoidal; dislocated, in r. at 10 P.M. Drawing in afternoon. Tension, < ascending steps, with occasional jerks extending towards hip-joints.

Extremities.—Emaciation; of extensors, with paralysis; < in legs and forearms, with weakness of tripeps of upper arm, extensors of lower limbs, toes and feet, abductors of leg, muscles on back of thigh, difficulty in standing erect, has to stand with feet wide apart or else he sways from side to side, has a high-stepping gait, cannot flex the foot on leg, hence in stepping has to raise the thigh on the trunk, the paralysis of lower extremities is very similar to that of pseudo-hypertrophic paralysis, the sole is directed backward and somewhat outward because the tibialis anticus is completely paralyzed, numbness and tingling in toes, feet and tips of fingers. Cramps; with sometimes involuntary contractions; in r. leg and arm. Trembling; < r. Intermittent sticking (sensitive twitching in single muscle-fibrillæ) in spots on inner side of upper arm and thigh.

Jerking sticking in several joints; on back of l. foot and in r. wrist. Prickling sticking in fingers, < l., at noon, and in feet. Lightning-like pains, < pressure, with cramps. Acute pains, especially in thick muscular parts, with cramps, especially in lower limbs and in feet. Pain; in muscles; in joints, with rigidity; deep-seated, apparently in bones and muscles; like chronic rheumatism, with fornication and general prickling. Peculiar prickling; prickling (fornicatio) through feet, as from electric currents, at 5.30 P.M., while sitting on a soft sofa, afterwards in arms.

Desire to stretch. Tremulous feeling. Weakness; < legs; with paralyzed feeling in l. leg, numbness and coldness of feet and legs, cramp in calves, dilated veins of r. leg. Walking difficult, standing upon r. leg impossible, while in bed movements of lower limbs slow but perfect, fingers in a state of semi-flexion, with contraction but stiffness on extending them, pain on attempting to grasp anything.

Stiffness; of tips of fingers and toes, with insensibility. Difficulty in holding hands extended, they, with feet and toes, dropped easily (Plumb.), great toes flexed on soles, but little toes were extended more than normal. Numbness; with pain in joints and along limbs, < by movement; in hands and feet, with tingling, legs heavy and feeble, wrists weak (Plumb.). Sensibility impaired, and in hands, forearms and arms, especially at insertion of deltoid (Plumb.).

Upper Extremities.—Trembling. Pain, < night; acute, especially in shoulder-joints. Weakness. Anæsthesia, extending into thorax. Stitches in shoulder-joints, extending to wrists; jerking, in r. shoulder-joint; paroxysmal itching, in l. deltoid.

Arm.—Itching sticking in spots on inside of r. Pain in r.; rheumatic, in r. in forenoon, and in shoulder; rheumatic, in l. to the bones, in evening; paralytic, in l. at 10 P.M., from holding a newspaper to read in bed. Prickling and tingling. Weakness of l. in morning. Diminished sensibility, and of hands. Anæsthesia; and of hands. Falling asleep of l., with pain and weariness in it. Jerking stitches in upper A. and shoulder-joint.

Elbow.—Jerking in region. Frequent stitches in r., along extensors to wrist. Tearing in l. elbow and shoulder. Rheumatic pain in l. in evening, > when quiet.

Forearm.—Trembling in l., with sticking, especially about wrist. Paroxysmal jerking sticking at tendinous insertion of biceps in afternoon and night. Pain; in l., < when touching it or leaning upon it.

Wrist.—Sticking in l. Pain in l.; jerking, now in l., now in r.

Hand.—Trembling; < by attempting to grasp anything. Semi-flexed while lying in bed and could not be fully extended. Pronated and hanging down, on account of greater weakness of extensors, though the flexors were enfeebled. Cramps or contractions of extensors, preventing bending of fingers, with the weakness. Piercing pains in l. metacarpal bones when in bed. Pain from washing in cold water, with pricking. Prickling with numbness. Weakness. Sensation on back very obtuse, hands feeling as if covered with gloves, < r. Diminished motility and sensibility of r. Insensibility. Rigidity; and contraction; with pain and awkwardness.

Fingers.—Swelling, insensibility and difficulty in bending. Atrophy of thenar eminence of thumb and interossei muscles. Sticking in metacarpal joint of l. index; through r. middle and ring, at noon; jerking, in various joints; jerking, in metacarpal joint of index; jerking, in joints of l. thumb; intermittent jerking, in third joint of l. fourth. Weakness. Rigidity and insensibility; and awkwardness, inability to take hold of small objects. Index partially paralyzed, with cramps.

Lower Extremities.—Gait hesitating; unsteady; insecure, < the dark or closing eyes; tottering from general weakness of extremities. Trembling. Pain; on going to bed, causing restlessness of legs. Prickling. Weakness; < l. Difficulty in walking. Heaviness. Difficulty in moving, especially l., > while lying. Rigidity. Insensibility.

Thigh.—Cramp; and in feet; and in soles. Jerking stitch in middle of r.; in middle like a pain in a nerve, repeated next forenoon, in afternoon the same pain between tibia and fibula after dinner. Muscular pain, especially in ankle, < walking. Pain in r. as if dislocated, in forenoon while walking, and in l. foot near tibia. Rheumatic pain in muscles after rising. Drawing pain in l. while walking. Drawing from l. hip to knee.

Knee.—Stitches from inner side of l. to great toe; itching S. on external tendon of l. popliteal space; itching S. in hollows at insertion of tendons of the gracilis and sartorius muscles and in r. ischium. Tearing in r. in afternoon, and in ankle. Pain in hollow; dislocated P. in forenoon when walking, and in sole; repeated dislocated, in r. Sprained sensation in l. Tensive pain in r. popliteal space when walking or stretching foot. Drawing pain. Rigidity.

Leg.—Cramp; at night; in calves; in calves and toes. Contractions of muscles of calves, < r., with pain. Rheumatoid pain in l. tibia. Insensible spot on upper part of l. leg, with impaired sensibility of whole limb.

Ankle.—Edema (Ars.). Frequent jerking pains. Pain as from long walking. Lassitude at 10 P.M.; and in soles.

Foot.—Cramp in r. sole, > stepping firmly. Sticking in metatarsal bones in forenoon when walking, extending into toes; jerking, in heel at insertion of l. tendo-achillis. Tearing in l., especially in tarsal bones. Pain in l. heel; in os calcis at insertion of tendo-achillis on ascending steps. Burning and digging pain in joints. Pain in joints as if dislocated in morning in bed, with trouble in walking at first, > walking. Pain in l. metatarsal bones when walking, as if they would be dislocated by a false step. Weakness; in soles after dinner. Insensibility, so that he did not know when they touched the ground.

Toes.—Jerking stitches, and in muscles of thighs; in balls of r. Tingling.

Skin.—Eruption on face after shaving in morning; on face, < after beer at noon, end of nose red, burning and sore, next day scales on cheeks; red, raised, on cheeks and across nose and on ala nasi at 2 P.M. after shaving, resembling acne potatorum or the soreness of nose accompanying catarrh, with burning of nose and lips, face as if bloated, afterwards scales on parts where eruption had been. Pimples on r. forearm, itching when touched; itching (like nettle-rash) on back of r. forearm. Boils; on l. thigh.

Stitching all over, hands and feet; itching, in various parts. Hyperæsthesia, except on fingers and toes. Fornication; of limbs; from l. elbow to tips of fingers (excepting thumb); over hands and feet, with prickling; along forearms alternating with stitches; all over r. arm, with sensation as if arm would go to sleep. Itching on various parts. Itching, with itching stitches. Itching over chest, thighs and especially on scrotum, with smarting; l. on hands, especially between fingers, with stinging, with vesicles filled with lymph between fingers; in a spot on r. forearm, then pimples; in morning after waking, < scratching, on chest, r. side of back as far up as region of kidneys and on r. forearm, with colorless pimples, becoming red after scratching, then pointed, at last itchlike, after scratching burning and easy bleeding.

Sleep.—Yawning. Sleepiness; all day; during the day, with sleeplessness during the night; in morning after 2 o'clock; after 3 P.M., with late falling asleep in evening; in afternoon, with late falling asleep in evening, then uneasy sleep, interrupted by vivid dreams; in evening; in evening after wine, but late falling asleep, with heaviness of upper lids, which would fall; alternating with wakefulness. Sleep heavy. Sleep prolonged and deep.

Sleeplessness; from heat. Difficult falling asleep. Sleep late in evening, restless and interrupted at night by stitches extending from inner side of l. knee to great toe. Restless night; except the first part; especially throwing the head about; with frequent waking alternating with dreams. Unrefreshing sleep. Interrupted sleep after midnight, and full of unpleasant dreams. Disturbed by startings; and constant waking, in morning he was difficult to rouse. Startings from sleep in fright, then prostration during the day. Sudden waking from bad dreams or nervous starting. Early waking, with many dreams.

Dreams; towards morning. Restless. Distressing. Sad; and fatiguing, with a hallucination that she was swollen. Unpleasant, with weeping; with loud shouting, starting up in terror and wild throwing about of arms. Horrid, that he was surrounded by cats and other animals. Of what he had read about in the evening.

Fever.—Horripilation. Chilliness; at 7 P.M.; at night, then heat and sweat; with coldness from within outward; then weariness as if beaten or as from a forced march. Sensitiveness to cold. Cold trembling all over. Shivering with the nightly restlessness, then heat and sweat. Felt a cold band around head from forehead to occipital protuberance. Coldness in cheeks during complaints in abdomen; C. of limbs, with numbness; of hands, forearms, feet and legs, with numbness or tingling; fingers, with rigidity of them, and little sensibility; lower limbs; feet; forepart of foot; skin, then burning pain; skin of legs from knee downward.

Heat towards 5 A.M., then prostration, then sleep; H. < night; with headache and full pulse; with dryness of skin, preventing sleep, then restless sleep, with heaviness of head. Orgasm of blood, with rapid pulse. Heat of skin, with burning like nettles in various parts; H. of upper part of body; head and face; forehead; on forehead, with aching and desire to rub forehead; cheeks; face; face in afternoon, especially of cheeks; hands, especially of palms; hands and face, which are red and hot to touch, on putting hands into cold water they became livid, numb and cold and looked as if they had been frost-bitten, face less affected by cold water.

Sweat; on waking from frightful dreams; cold; checked.

Carduus Marianus.

A tincture is prepared from the seeds of St. Mary's Thistle, Carduus Marianus, L.

General Action.—Its chief (and only prominent) action is on the liver, causing soreness, pain, jaundice, etc.

Allies.—Chel., Iod., Merc.

Generalities.—Discomfort, with drawing pain in r. scapula and l. side of chest. Weariness; in morning on waking, with sweat and erection; at 7 A.M., with yawning; at 4 P.M., with sleep for ten minutes; at 5 P.M., with sleep for some minutes; after dinner.

Clinical.—Diseases of miners associated with asthma, despondency, sallow skin, orange urine, yellow stools (disturbed function of liver). Numerous cases of varicose veins have been cured.

Mind.—Sadness, with inclination to weep. Forgetfulness.

Head.—Aching before dinner, > dinner, with empty feeling in stomach; A. like commencing catarrh. Heaviness. Dulness; all day; in forenoon, with disposition to anger; with tensive pain in suture of l. parietal bone. Frontal pain; above orbits; over l. eye; in sinciput; before dinner, > eating (Chel.), with pain in eyes and occiput and sweat on forehead and back; and pain in eyeballs; intermittent, and temporal. Contractive feeling above brows. Drawing pain in lambdoidal suture. Tensive pain in sagittal suture as if something contracted around skull. Pain in temples; r. temple; on inner surface of skull at coronal suture; in l. parietal bone; in occiput.

Eyes.—Pain in r.; as if balls would be pressed into orbits. Burning in balls; lids; edges of upper lids; pressive, in lids in morning, with swelling and weight of them, < l. eye, which is difficult to open. Lids heavy.

Ears and Nose.—Pain in r. concha around orifice. Ticking in l. nostril; then r.; in outer orifice of nostrils. Burning in l. nostril; with watery discharge; B. at 3.15 A.M. Fluid in nose towards external orifice; watery discharge in morning on waking.

Mouth.—Carious tooth aches on touch of tongue. Drawing pain in carious tooth. Tongue coated white in middle, red at tip and edges. Tongue feels rough. Dry feeling in lips and palate. Salivation (Iod., Merc.); after coffee and milk. Taste bitter; astringent, metallic, on palate and fauces, with smooth feeling as if greased; flat to moderately salt soup, good taste to well-salted soup, but repugnance to salted meat.

Throat.—Pain in region of os hyoides on l. side, when speaking and swallowing, with swollen feeling, < pressure. Roughness in fauces, but palate feels smooth and greasy; R. in palate and fauces, with dryness, causing dry cough. Scraping causing cough; S. in œsophagus. Burning pain; in pharynx.

Stomach.—Appetite small; lost; ravenous, with pressure in hepatic region (Iod.). Empty eructations, with burning in œsophagus like heartburn; E., with burning in mouth of stomach, as from acidity; tasting of food taken against the inclination. Nausea; with eructation; with flow of water into mouth; ending in an inflated feeling in stomach, a horseback ride in afternoon increased the inflated feeling in abdomen. Retching and vomiting of acid, green fluid. Shooting on l. side, < inspiration. Gripping, with pain in bowels, here and there. Pain; externally in pit; < by bread and milk; drawing, through pit and epigastrium from l. to r. Burning, as from acidity. Uneasiness in epigastric region. Empty feeling; at 3.15 A.M.

Abdomen.—Discharge of flatus. Feeling as if bowels moved on expiration. Inflated feeling, < r. side, with pain in hepatic region on pressure (Merc., Chel.). Shooting in hepatic region, with moist skin (Merc.). Pain in r. hypochondrium (Chel., Merc.); between r. ribs and hip when driving; in hepatic and gastric regions, < pressure; occasionally in liver and sacrum; tensive, in r. hypochondrium. Full feeling in hypochondrium, > after stool, still obliging me to draw a long breath. Tension in liver when lying on l. side, with pressure. Crawling, as if a body of the size of a pea moved in a narrow channel on posterior side of liver, from r. to l., in pit of stomach, at the level of edge of ribs, three times after a minute's pause, each time lasting three seconds. Shooting a hand's breadth from r. hip. Pinching on l. side. Pain in r. side; r. side, < pressure, lasting till sleep; r. side when body is stretched out, with hot feeling. Drawing in r. side when urinating. Drawing pain between navel and pit of stomach, in peritoneum, from r. to l., then burning pain, with hot feeling in a spot midway between navel and l. groin. Sensation for a hand's breadth around navel, as if bowels moved when breathing. Ilium, flatulent distention; rumbling; stitches > pressure; pressure in l.; pain near r. os ilii on waking and on walking in open air. Drawing pain through hypogastrium; through r. groin. Burning pain in hypogastrium.

Clinical.—Hyperæmia of the liver, with sluggish action of that organ, with jaundice, constipation, heavy, stupid head, foul tongue, fulness and soreness over the region of the liver, sometimes with cough (Chel., etc.); the tongue is usually furred, there are usually nausea and vomiting of green fluid.

Rectum and Anus.—Burning in A. at 3.15 A.M. Itching in A. Urging, as from diarrhœa, after a glass of small beer, stool normal; ineffectual U., with pressure on bladder, causing urine to dribble.

Stool.—Pappy, loamy, destitute of bilious coloring. Hard, unsatisfactory; and difficult, brown, knotty, after dinner; H. and lumpy; and difficult; and scanty at 10 A.M., at 11 a copious, pappy one, of chocolate color, preceded by rumbling and pain in abdomen. Delayed. Omitted; but inclination to one.

Clinical.—Constipation alternates with diarrhœa.

Urinary Organs.—Drawing pain in bladder and testicles when sitting; D. pain in bladder, with burning. Call to urinate, with burning in urethra and rectum, preventing her sitting. Burning in urethra; in orifice at 2 A.M., after micturition; with swollen feeling. Urine cloudy, without sediment, golden, acid. Urine wheyey, yellowish-brown, diminished in quantity, acid, also depositing a sediment consisting chiefly of salt and lime, and with traces of coloring matter of bile. Scanty, brownish, containing coloring matter of bile (Chel.). Copious, with drawing in sides of hypogastrium.

Sexual Organs.—Pressure in urethral part of glans. Contractive pain in vagina.

Respiratory Organs.—Dry feeling in larynx, with irritation to cough in back of larynx. Cough in morning on waking, from irritation in fauces, with burning in palate; C. from roughness in larynx; roughness in fauces and œsophagus; from raw feeling in pharynx. Short dry cough; from irritation in pit of throat. Frequent urging to deep breathing, then undefined pain in abdomen.

Chest.—Stitches behind l. short ribs; to r. of and downward from l. nipple; a hand's breadth above r. nipple on bending backward and on raising r. arm; anteriorly in lower borders of ribs at every inspiration; in r. sixth rib between linea mammalis and axillaris when inspiring; anteriorly in region of r. seventh rib on deep inspiration; in region of fifth rib during expiration after supper, with drawing; in a spot on sixth l. rib, in linea axillaris, with continual drawing pain in that line, afterwards the S. affected the breathing and gradually forged forward, later S. only during expiration and deep inspiration; in region of seventh r. rib when stooping, afterwards the pains spread all over front of chest and made movement of arms, walking and stooping almost impossible (Chel.). Pain in r. pectoralis muscle; in C. and abdomen on sudden and violent motion of body; as from flatulence under border of l. ribs, then on r. side spreading to the right and backward, when the pressure on l. side goes backward.

Drawing pain in l.; through l. pectoralis muscle, also in l. intercostal muscles below axilla; through r. pectoralis and on inner border of r. scapula; in borders of ribs, with stitches on breathing, < expiration; from l. side of C. to back, then towards l. pectoralis; in l. side up to axilla when driving. Tightness in l.; in l., < deep inspiration, with pain.

Heart and Pulse.—Stitches in cardiac region. Pressure in præcordium. Drawing pain in cardiac region at 2 A.M.; D. pain, with tightness on deep breathing. Pulse slow.

Neck.—Pressure in nape. Pain in nape at a level with mastoid process, l., soon afterwards in r.; rheumatic, extending to shoulders.

Back.—Burning pain. Drawing pain; through B. and hypogastrium; in morning on waking; on inside of l. scapula; in inner border of r. scapula; from r. scapula down back when driving; from r. scapula to loin, changing from one place to another after one minute, also on outer border of l. scapula and through muscles of r. or l. radius. Shooting in inner border of l. scapula. Tearing in l. scapula and upper arm. Burning sore pain in l. scapula when inspiring, < pressure and leaning. Pressure on back below scapula. Drawing pain in lumbar muscles.

Extremities.—Daily periodic cramp-pain in r. calf, r. sole and in extensor tendons of three middle fingers. Bruised feeling in arms and legs. Prostration in arms and legs in morning after rising.

Upper Extremities.—Pain in shoulders and wrists; in r. shoulder-joint on raising arm (Chel.). Drawing pain in r. deltoid; and muscles of r. radius; in r. upper arm at 2 A.M. Periodical pains in r. upper arm. Cramp-pain in muscles about radius and in l. fingers.

Drawing pain in muscles covering l. radius at 3.15 A.M. Burning pain in skin on inner side of lower half of l. forearm, also on outer aspect of l. index. Cramp-like drawing pain in inner side of r. hand extending to two first joints of fourth finger. Cramp in r. second, third and fourth fingers. Drawing pain on outer side of r. fourth finger. Rheumatic drawing in first joint of l. fourth finger; in first joint of r. index.

Lower Extremities.—Bruised pain in nates. Pain in hip-joints in morning, spreading through nates, making rising difficult, < stooping; in houghs when walking, < l. Drawing pain in l. knee; in skin on outer side of l. knee; from l. down leg; from outer side to external ankle. Stiff feeling in patellæ and tendons of houghs when walking, with paralyzed feeling in legs and staggering. Cramp-pain in calf. Drawing pain on inner side of r. leg to internal ankle. Paralytic pain in l. tibia, with drawing pain in cutaneous nerves on outer side below patella. Feeling of a band around calf a hand's breadth below knee when walking. Sudden cramp in muscles of r. sole flexing toes, then itching in sole in front of heel. Pain in r. instep; in lower part of r. heel, < treading; in sole in front of heel, < moving ankle.

Skin.—Itching after lying down in bed.

Sleep.—Yawning. Sleepiness. Waking at 11.30 P.M., with chilliness and urging to urinate, passed about two tablespoonfuls of urine; W. at midnight, with cough from irritation at back of larynx; at 2 A.M., with pressure in stomach and burning in eyelids and anus; at 3 A.M. from pain in r. loin and in urethra; at 3 A.M., with erection, rheumatic pain in r. deltoid and in muscles covering r. radius. Restless, dreamy night; R., frequent waking, and when lying on back nightmare.

Fever.—Rigor; with quick pulse; with pulsation in abdomen. Shivering. Cold feeling in knees; in soles; toes. Hot feeling in face.

Caulophyllum.

A tincture is prepared from the fresh root of Caulophyllum thalictroides, Mx. (the blue Cohosh).

General Action.—Two general effects are prominent: (1) on the uterus, causing labor-like pains; (2) on the small joints, causing pain, soreness and swelling.

Allies.—Cimicif., Puls.

Weakness and nervousness. Headache. Dulness of head. Frequent vertigo. Aching in forehead; with sensation as if needles were stuck into it; with contracted feeling in skin of forehead. Drawing pain over l. eye. Intermittent pain in temples as if crushed together. Aching in eyes, with feeling of something under lids. Lachrymation. Drawing pain in nose. All the teeth seem sore and elongated. Tongue coated white. Distress in fauces, causing frequent inclination to swallow. Canine hunger. Desire to drink a great deal of water. Eructations of sour, bitter fluid; empty E. Frequent pain in stomach and umbilicus. Distress in stomach; and in umbilicus; and in small intestines; and in bowels, with drawing pains in r. hypochondrium; burning.

Rumbling in abdomen, waking at 1 A.M., with urging to stool, copious, painless stool of water running in a stream. Drawing pains in r. side over liver. Pain in umbilicus, > emissions of flatus; when moving, > emissions of flatus; intermittent. Stool soft, very white. Stool dark. Stool hard, afterwards a soft one, followed by pain in umbilicus. Intermittent stinging in glans penis. Drawing pain in sternocleidomastoid, that draws the head to l. side. Pain in back; in lumbar region.

Pain in fingers, ankles, feet and toes, causing a restless night; flying P. in arms and legs, first in one part, then in another. Drawing pains in fingers, ankles, feet, especially in toes; in hips, knees, wrists; elbows; legs; in joints of arms and legs. Aching in wrists and joints of fingers; in elbows. Cutting in second joints of all fingers on closing hand, with stiffness. Pain in finger-joints, with redness and stiffness, and on closing hand pain in them. Stiffness of fingers. Cracking of joints of lower limbs when walking or turning. Drawing pain in inside of l. thigh; in thighs, knees, legs and ankles; in knees and toes, very sharp by spells. Sharp pain inside of l. knee. Weakness of knees when walking. Drawing pain in legs and more in feet. Pain in l. ankle and l. toes; in feet; in metatarsal bones, from walking. Drawing pain in toes. Restless night; after 3 A.M. Skin hot and dry.

Clinical.—Labor pains are weak, do not press downward, but pass off with a kind of shivering. Inefficient labor pains which do not press downward, but fly in all directions. Useful in false annoying pains a few weeks before the time for labor. Rigid on during labor, pains sharp, pricking. Threatening miscarriage, with uterine cramp, hæmorrhage. Prolapsus of uterus. Retroversion of uterus, with dysmenorrhœa, profuse leucorrhœa, etc. Subinvolution of uterus after child-birth, with general debility and loss of power in lower extremities. Aphthæ in vagina, with dysmenorrhœa. Dysmenorrhœa. Leucorrhœa in a child. Hysterical convulsions during dysmenorrhœa, with pain shooting to various parts of body, great debility. Whooping cough, with vomiting and nosebleed. Rheumatism in small joints, especially of the hands, with cutting pains on closing hands, especially in women with suppressed menses.

Causticum.

A clear liquid, distilled from a mixture of Caustic Lime and bisulphate of Potash (see Hahnemann's direction for preparing it), is mixed with an equal part of Alcohol. Chemically and pathogenetically it is doubtless a solution of Potassium hydrate.

General Effects.—The general key to the action of Causticum is the same as that to all the Potashes, namely, paralysis, slow pulse, low temperature, etc. Diuresis is a general concomitant.

Allies.—Kali in general, Rhus t., Zinc., Sulph., Sep., etc.

Generalities.—Spasm, when slumbering in evening he felt that he could not move the tongue well, rose, cried out, but fell back again, stretched arms and legs, then moved them, eyes were distorted, gnashed his teeth, saliva flowed from mouth, with icy coldness, consciousness returned after half an hour, with anxiety, transient thoughts, lolling tongue, all > a swallow of cold water. Spasm, in morning in bed heat, after rising cold sensation in the arm in which he had at first a jerk, with twitchings in upper part of body, in trunk and in arms, with full consciousness but with apprehension. Spasm in evening, vertigo as if turning involuntarily hither and thither, > open air, with apprehension, stupid expression of face and heat over whole body.

Falling suddenly without consciousness while walking in open air, but immediately rising again. Twitching here and there; T. in r. side of body and in various other parts of skin. Starting up frequently at night.

Trembling; in morning on waking; after supper, with apprehension; and anxious T. in morning and forenoon, with sleepy confusion of head, heavy pressure in occiput and forehead, with heaviness of limbs, pain in joints and muscles of fingers, arms, shoulders, knees and feet.

Sticking in nearly all parts; now here, now there (after menstruation), or contractive pain. Tearings, especially in joints, or from them through various bones, sometimes in several at once. Pinching here and there; and in various parts of skin. Drawing pain, especially above knees. Drawings in several parts, increasing to tearings. Soreness as if bruised or pressed in the side, hip and thigh on which he lay at night, with frequent necessity to turn over. Bruised pain in every part when touched (Arn.); general B. pain when sitting, > working and in open air, especially in arms; B. feeling in whole r. side. Sensation of internal trembling.

Inability to lie still a moment at night (Rhus t.). Uneasiness of body while sitting, with anxiety about heart; U. at night in bed, with anxious weeping and indistinct talking; when rising from a seat and when walking; in blood, with anxiety of mind and sudden sickness and weakness, so that she must lie down; especially of head, like a painless burrowing.

Weariness in morning on rising, and lack of cheerfulness; all forenoon, with feeling as if crushed; at noon, > walking in open air; in evening, with sleeplessness till 1 A.M. and with heavy pain in legs; after copious micturition; after slight effort; after walking in open air, with disinclination to work; < evening, with general sick feeling, as if a severe illness were imminent; with sweat on beginning to walk; with anxiety; with sleepiness; faintlike; in morning in bed, as if he would fall asleep again, > rising; after a short walk, so that he could not move his legs; tremulous, after a stool, with palpitation. Sensation as if he would fall, without vertigo. Attacks of faintness after going to bed. Stiffness of joints if she did not move for a quarter of an hour. Numbness and deadness of all soft parts on l. side, even in foot and head, as if there were no blood in the skin. Aggravation when walking in open air and in evening; A. in open air; A. from coffee. Amelioration in the room of the symptoms which originated in the open air, except of the pain in forehead. Sees only terrible visions and distorted human faces when she closes the eyes.

Clinical.—Children are slow in learning to walk. Cracking in joints. The pains, neuralgic or rheumatic, make the patient very restless, but are not > motion. Chorea, especially affecting the muscles of the r. side and eyeballs. Epileptiform spasms or chorea-like spasms, especially at the time of puberty. Patients requiring Caust. are always weak, anæmic, have no desire and scarcely the ability to make an effort. General tendency to paralytic affections (like all the Potashes). Paralysis resulting from rheumatism, after diphtheria, etc.

Mind.—Peevish; during menstruation, with weariness; and weeping mood; and self-absorbed; takes no pleasure in music. Morose silence; persistent silence. Taciturn in forenoon and indifferent. Sullen. Sensitiveness and inclination to anger, chilliness and on motion easily heated. Irritability, so that her knees sink under her at the slightest vexation. Sensitive, hot-headed and vehement. Furiouly opinionated and quarrelsome. Violent after midday sleep, with despondency. Melancholy; before menstruation; M., with prostration. Sad weeping mood, full of care. Inclination to scold; and make a disturbance, without being peevish. Discontented with herself, with gloomy looks. Whining at every trifle (in a child). Sympathetic, beside herself with weeping and sobbing, and cannot be contented when hearing of hardships.

Anxiety; in morning on waking; in evening, with unwillingness to go to bed; at night, with uneasiness, preventing sleep; after stool, also with heat in face and inclination to sweat; with uneasiness as if something unpleasant impended; with sweat; as if stupefied; as if he had done something bad or apprehended it, or as if he had been unfortunate. Apprehension whenever anything happens; A. of evil, with urging to stool. Frightful ideas in evening. Fear; at night; and anxiety, so that she did not wish to live; of a dog near by, so that she trembled, apprehension at every noise in the street and when she saw boys climbing. Thoughts of death, with uneasiness and solicitude. Disinclination to work. Mirth alternating with depression. Joy alternating with peevishness. Good humor in forenoon, with talkativeness.

Inattention and distraction. Absentminded, with loss of ideas. Cloudiness. Weakness of thought, slow succession of ideas. Mispronunciation of words and confusion of syllables and letters (e. g., "cluent forzya"). Weakness of memory. Coma.

Head.—Involuntary nodding while writing, as if pressed down. Stitches in morning on waking and almost all day; S., especially in orbits, all night, > during the day; S., with warmth in it. Tearing. Jerking-pinching through H. Screwings, > open air, with heaviness. Aching caused by hunger; A. in whole brain on shaking head; with nausea; from all sides, with pinching in ears and boring toothache; deep-seated, with heaviness at night as from an ulcer; compressive; throbbing, with painful throbbing in cerebral arteries. Jerkings and beatings. Painless digging in whole H.

Confusion in morning, with coryza; C., with heat in it; painful tensive, almost like a throbbing headache, > after eating; all day, as if in a damp room where clothes were washed and dried, < stooping, not > by walking in open air, but on returning to the room. Dulness all day after an emission; D., with a screwed-together feeling, also > in open air; with intoxicated feeling and with redness of face. Feeling of stupefaction and drunkenness. Rush of blood in evening; R. after short walk in open air, and to face, with dim vision; > open air, with sensation as if intoxicated; with heat in it. Sensation as if brain were loose and shaken when walking in open air.

Vertigo; in morning on rising; in morning on stooping, > rising; in morning on waking, with painful confusion of head; at night on rising in bed and lying down again; during menstruation, < stooping, > after-noon; on fixing vision; on looking up (to a high tower), so that he fell; while standing; while standing and sitting, with heaviness of head; while sitting, as if he would stagger; in open air, everything turned about with her and persons seemed larger than usual; > open air; with anxiety of whole body; with weakness of head; with falling down; forward and sideways; as from compression of head; as from spirituous drinks; almost like loss of consciousness, after walking, he nearly fell while sitting.

Forehead.—Tensive stitching from lower part of F. to upper part of head; shifting slow S. above I. eye.

Tearing in middle, during the day in a heated room and in tobacco-smoke, < night, when it prevented sleep, and in cervical vertebrae; sticking, extending to r. side through the whole head. Cutting in upper part of bone on violent motion of arms while stooping. Pain in r. eminence; sharp, in l. side; sharp, after large flow of urine; extending to eyes; twitching, in r. side of F. and head; burning, as if forepart of brain were inflamed, after entering the house; as if something were forced in between frontal bone and cerebrum, or as if the place behind frontal bone were hollow; constrictive, in open air, < fast walking, suddenly > stooping low; stupefying, when sitting and reading, not > walking or standing; tensive and drawing, between eyes. Drawing in l. side; between eyes, with pressure; painful, in forepart. Slow pressure above r. orbit. Tension and warmth in F. and nose, with intermittent drawing in eyes. Throbbing, < afternoon, with tension in neck; painful, in arteries above orbits; painful, as with a dull point. Sensation as if everything in head would come out in front on stooping.

Temples.—Stitches; in l. bone, spreading in a circle. Tearing in r.; in l. at 4 p.m. Pain in r.; on upper margin of bone; pressing-out, with nausea and vomiting; throbbing, in r. on motion, when quiet it is only a pressive pain; drawing, gradually increasing to its highest and then disappearing. Tension in r. as if paralyzed, and in eye.

Vertex.—Sticking-tearing on l. side. Pain as if brain were torn or shattered, < morning on waking. Pain on pressure or touch. Bruised pain in a spot on touch. Sudden pressure in region of coronal suture as from a sharp stone falling on it. Paroxysmal throbbing mingled with stitches; T. as if everything would be forced out, in morning after rising. Frequent drawing in l. side.

Sides.—Stitch in r.; in l. evenings. Tearing in l.; in l., especially in forehead and temple, beginning in evening and constantly increasing, with swelling of painful side. Pain in r., extending into eye; in r. parietal bone and in both temples. Tension in l.

Occiput.—Stitches. Sudden pain in bone while sitting, as if something in muscles had been displaced. Throbbing pain on r. side, which on rubbing extends towards vertex, where it pains as if beaten. Drawing pain; in r. side; beginning in open air, < rapid walking, and in muscles of r. side of neck. Sensation in bone as if numb, pithy and dead.

Scalp.—Hair falls out. Movements towards forehead. Tension. Pain when rubbed. Sensation of trembling or shaking in skin of r. temple till lying down. Creeping sensation on vertex. Itching; stinging, on various parts, in parietal bones, on forehead, r. cheek, behind l. zygoma, extending towards ear and upward to temporal bone; on r. side, transiently > scratching; on r. temple, > scratching.

Eyes.—Inflammation, with burning and pain; I., with pressure in them during the day and agglutination in morning. Tearing and pressure. Pain < touch. Pressure in morning before he can open them, > closing them again; as from sand (Nat. m.); in l. as if it would be pressed out; as if they were pressed inward and tried to come out; internal, as if it would be distended; in r. as from swelling of lids, which are really red, with lachrymation. Rubbing as of sand. Burning (Zn.); from 4 p.m. till evening, with dryness; from 6 to 8 P.M.; with stinging, dryness and photophobia. Dryness; in morning (Zn.), with stiffness, then lachrymation. Biting, with pressure and heaviness and with redness of lids; B. as from salt. Itching, especially of lids; in l., > rubbing; of r., > rubbing, then lachrymation. Weakness. Lachrymation; < open air.

Distending pain in r. ball. Itching of r. ball in morning. Pupils dilated; contracted, then dilated.

Lids.—Involuntary closure (Rhus t., Sep.). Agglutination in morning. Inflammation, with hard matter between lashes. Twitching, and of l. brow. Swollen sensation, < morning. Pressure in upper as if a sty would appear. Burning in l.; B. pain on margins, as from burning with gunpowder. Smarting in l. Biting. Itching on lower and on its inner surface, with burning as soon as he touches the eye or moves it. Heaviness of upper, as if he could not raise it easily (Rhus t.), or as if it were agglutinated to lower and could not be easily loosened. Sensation as if they would close from weakness (Rhus t., Gelsem.). Difficulty in opening, < morning, with swollen sensation.

Canthi.—Dry matter. Drawing in r. outer, extending into wing of nose. Burning in inner. Itching sore pain in r. inner in morning after waking, as from salt, < rubbing, so that lachrymation is produced. Itching in l. inner, > rubbing; in r. inner, with lachrymation; in l. inner like flea-bites; voluptuous, in r.

Twitching in l. brow. Drawing in arch of r. brow. Pressure in orbits and behind eyes; over r. eye as if upper lid would be pressed down.

Photophobia, with constant necessity to wink; P., with pain on motion. Far-sighted. Blackness before eyes. Some letters become invisible while reading. Dimness of vision; on blowing nose; < wiping and rubbing; < looking at a light; with sensation as if something came from head into l. eye, and the light looked as if there were many points of light in a black circle; when standing, as from a veil; as from a cloud in morning after waking, > washing; as if a membrane were drawn over eyes; as if a membrane were drawn from inner canthus over half the pupil, in morning when blowing nose. Vision flickering; and confused on looking long at an object, then pain in eyes; as from swarms of insects; like a veil. V. of sparks if he winks, even in daylight; V. of sparks in daylight. Small, round objects pass before his vision while lying.

Clinical.—Blepharitis, > open air. Paralysis of muscles of the eye, especially of upper lid. Weakness of the muscles of the eyeball, causing asthenopia, amounting even to paralysis, especially with feeling of sand in eyes. Has arrested cataract in some cases. Frequent sudden loss of sight as from a mist (muscular asthenopia). Double vision from paralysis of the ocular muscles; vision worse on turning eyes to the right. Ptosis after catching cold (Rhus).

Ears.—Swelling of external, with contractive pains; S. of meatus, with twinging earache and discharge of bloody matter. Suppuration and discharge from within, with offensive odor. Stitches on outer margin, < evening in bed, with burning pain; boring knifelike, externally behind l., with sudden general sweat; paroxysmal, in r.; intermittent, in r. mastoid process; tearing, with roaring, as from a storm of wind.

Tearings in l.; beneath l. at 4 P.M.; in drum, with tensive confusion of head. Sensation as if everything were dragging outward and as if they would burst, like a tearing mingled with itching. Twinging. Boring in r.; in fossa below r., then on pressure bruised pain; behind l. at one time, at another pulsating-throbbing. Pain in mastoid process; in r. meatus in evening; in meatus on cleaning, as if sore and ulcerated.

Sensation internally of jerking outward. Tension behind. Sensation of contraction in l. and in whole side of head in evening when lying, with inability to sleep upon that side, and when touched (but > pressure) sensation as if flesh had been separated from bone. Crawling in l., with itching-biting. Itching in l.; sticking, in front of r. meatus. Sensation as if cold wind were blowing into r. meatus. Air rushes in during eructations. Stopped sensation mornings; S. sensation in r.

Re-echoing of her own words and steps; of sounds, with difficult hearing; every morning. Roaring before E.; in r.; in each alternately in evening before sleep. Rushing sound as of a waterfall, with difficult hearing. Thundering tones in r. Ringing in l.; in front of r. in evening. Singing as of distant crickets, then throbbing, then singing again. Whistling in l.

Clinical.—Chronic inflammation of the middle ear. Buzing, roaring in ears, with re-echoing of sounds (in Meniere's disease), (compare with Nat. sul.). Burning heat of ears after a frost-bite and rheumatism. Unnatural accumulation of wax in ears.

Nose.—Hairs in nostrils fall out. Swelling in morning, > evening. Cutting tearing through r. wing. Soreness internally. Septum painful to touch. Sore pain in lower part, as in severe coryza. Burning in nostrils, as in coryza. Itching internally; as before coryza. Tickling in l. nostril, > external pressure. Frequent sneezing; in morning; ineffectual attempts at S.

Coryza, with inability to speak aloud; C., with cough and scraping in larynx; with cough, pains in chest, drawings in limbs, frequent waking at night and chilliness; stopped; stopped, when lying, with nightly dryness of throat; stopped and fluent, with rawness in throat and smarting in chest caused by cough; fluent, in morning, with agglutination of eyes; fluent, with painful cough at night and headache. Discharge of offensive mucus, with sneezing. Watery after drinking. Bleeding; from l. nostril; blows out blood every morning. Loss of smell, with stoppage.

Clinical.—Dry catarrh, with stoppage. Fluent coryza, with acute inflammation of larynx and trachea. Ulcers and crusts in tip of nose.

Face.—Pale, with suffering expression. Yellow; during menstruation. Discolored, yellowish about temples, pale bluish lips. Sickly look. Swelling of cheeks, with throbbing pain. Sticking in cheek, over lower jaw. Tearing in l. cheek-bone; T. in cheeks, with sticking. Drawing pain in r. cheek, then in ear. Burning pain in cheeks, in front of ears, as if an eruption would appear. Throbbing in cheeks, with twitching of their muscles.

Lips.—Swelling of lower, and papulous eruption, with sticking and crawling in it. Papules in l. corner, with crawling sticking. Tetter on lower. Ulcer on inside of upper, with burning pain. Vesicles in r. corner, painful when eating. Soreness of l. corner. Pain as if sore. Tearings. Spasmodic sensation.

Jaws.—Tension and pain, so that they were difficult to open, with difficulty in eating because a tooth seemed too long. Difficulty in opening, with sensation as if throat below jaw were swollen or tense. Tearing in r. lower. Prickling-digging in lower. Pain in r. joint (in "Hahnemann's Mat. Med. Pura" it is l.); rheumatic in lower; burning, in lower. Drawing first from r., then from l. ramus towards the chin and thence back again in direction of angle of mouth.

Chin.—Tearing in middle of bone; T. on lower part. Burning-cutting in r. side, as if a piece of glass were cutting outward. Tensive drawing pain in lower part.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia at every change of weather. Paralysis of face from taking cold, with hemiplegia. Acne rosacea. Rheumatism in the articulation of the lower jaw.

Mouth.—Teeth. Looseness of some; of incisors; painful L. of incisors. Stitches; on biting on them; on opening mouth; in upper back, extending upward; in lower back, extending downward. Tearing in diseased root of a l. lower; T. in last l. upper back, at 2 P.M., < open air; in both r. rows, extending into zygoma, with bruised pain in both r. jaws on pressure and on chewing; extending into head and l. eye; in all in forenoon, as if they would fall out; intermittent, in roots of lower in morning. Boring in a lower molar, extending to nose and eyes. Prickling-digging in lower back, extending to ear. Pain; with much spitting of saliva; in a r. back; in a sound one on drawing in cold air; consisting of pressing-tearing and sticking combined, with erysipelatous swelling of cheek and a swollen suppurating pimple on gum; jerking; throbbing, with painful gum, so that he could not chew; throbbing, in a diseased back T. Toothache as if ulcerating, at night and during the day when she moves the mouth. Pain as if sore, in morning, then throbbing, the pain > bleeding of gum. Drawing toothache; in l. lower, from articulation to chin, in afternoon; with itching between teeth; in r. second molar, more in external surface, and extending into temples. Burning pain in hollow T. while eating and drinking. Pressure from without in roots of both anterior upper molars. Sensitiveness to touch; S. of T. and gums in morning. Peculiar sensation in roots, so that he must gnash the teeth.

Gums.—Swelling; in front and behind, with pain; of l. side, with sensitiveness while eating and with spasmodic pain in evening; with exoriation of pudenda on urinating. Bleeding. Drawing pain in lower. Sensitiveness without pain in teeth.

Tongue.—Vesicles on margin; painful V.; painful on tip. T. and back part of mouth threw off a thick and tough membrane. Sore pain on and beneath T. and on palate. Pain on l. side as if bitten. Pain as if burnt on tip and margin. Scraping, then roughness of mouth as if covered with a skin; burning S. on tip, as if burnt, with salivation and burnt taste. Burning on tip. Dryness, with thirst.

Epidermal coating of mouth and fauces abraded; in morning, but partly hanging in large pieces, the mucous membrane itself swollen and loose, tongue scarlet, papillae swollen, arch of palate and uvula swollen and dark red, in mouth and fauces sensation of glowing coals, with constant pressure to swallow and hawk, which increased the pain, discharge of much saliva and mucus, voice hoarse and nasal, disposition bordering on desperation, with febrile symptoms, rapid pulse and unquenchable thirst.

Sore, painful spot on hard palate. Swelling of inside of cheek, which he bites when chewing. Mouth open at night, causing dryness. Stitches in l. side of palate. Pain in mouth, oesophagus and epigastric region; anteriorly on palate, as if suppurating, when touched with tongue. Burning scraping. Burning on palate, with soreness. Crawling posteriorly on palate, with burning prickling. Dryness at night; all forenoon, without thirst; and on lips, without thirst; with thirst; burning. Salivation; when walking after eating, with moisture in nose; rancid; watery, in forenoon, with nausea.

Taste of food remains long after eating; T. for food diminished. Fatty. Bitter. Offensive; afternoons, as from a disordered stomach. Viscid, glutinous.

Clinical.—Violent toothache from taking cold, even in sound teeth, from cold air. Painful looseness and elongation of teeth. Gums bleed easily, and are swollen. Dental fistula.

Throat.—Painful swelling of l. submaxillary gland. Distention of l. side, with suffocating sensation and necessity to loosen the neck-band. Audible cracking, deep-seated. Mucus after eating; clots of M.; after dinner which he cannot loosen by hawking, but he is obliged to swallow it. Hawking of mucus; in morning; from 5 P.M. till night, with soreness and burning in throat; every half hour of mucus, which immediately accumulates again; with pain in pit of throat.

Torn sensation, not on swallowing, but on making an exertion with head and on lifting or carrying anything. Pressure behind palate and on epiglottis; in pit on deep breathing; as if under sternum, as from swallowing too large a morsel; choking, in morning on waking, as from swallowing a large crust. Sensation after eating as if food stuck. Frequent contractive sensation. Tension in r. side of T. and chest, drawing the body towards r. side. Sensation as if swollen and too narrow; as if swollen and raw. Sensation of tightness and suffocation, obliging him to loosen the neck-band. Rawness, with tickling and with dry cough and expectoration only after long coughing; R., with heartburn; with hoarseness and sore pain; with oppression of chest and febrile coldness; and, when breathing, sensation as if he had inspired too little air. Scraping, < evening and swallowing; S., with clawing and with heartburn. Scraping-clawing, with sensation on swallowing as of a lump. Burning.

Soreness; behind palate; from morning till afternoon, > dinner, with stitches, so that he could scarcely swallow; as if attachments of tongue had grown fast; as from a lump, with sticking; burning-sticking, < swallowing, and on uvula. Dryness in morning; D. when swallowing, then scraping down throat; of back part; in forenoon, with dry hacking cough; without thirst; now D., now moisture. Coldness, rapidly passing over palate, with salivation. Nauseous sensation. Itching, extending along Eustachian tube into ear. Constant inclination to swallow. Dysphagia, with stricture five inches and a half from incisors.

Oesophagus.—Ejection of mucous membrane in a perfect cylinder. Pain.

Clinical.—Acute sore throat, with laryngitis. Paralysis of muscles of pharynx.

Stomach.—Eats with too much haste. Hunger early; ravenous H.; causing headache, > eating; but food is not relished. Appetite, but without having aversion to food it seemed as if she did not dare to eat. Little appetite, but food is relished; little A. but much thirst, < eating. Satiety, then hunger; speedy S. if she attempted to eat without being hungry. Appetite disappeared when beginning to eat; A., but when eating aversion to food. Aversion to food, even when beginning to eat; A. to sweets. Can eat only smoked meats, vomiting on eating fresh meat. Thirst; mornings; for beer; for something cold from forenoon till 3 P.M.

It seems as if lime were dissolving in stomach, causing a bubbling, with a continual rolling eruction of much air. Hot, in afternoon and evening. Of food five hours after eating; E. as when undigested food remains in stomach; E. tasting of the soup eaten at breakfast; E. having the odor of the food. With the odor of musk. Pleasant-tasting, almost like almonds. Gulping of water, with soreness of anus. Eructations of tasteless water, or rising of it into mouth, with nausea, which disappears after the eructations. Acid fluid rises into mouth. Cool waterbrash in evening on lying down, with constant spitting. Salt waterbrash in forenoon; slimy salt W. after the third stool that day. Hiicough.

Nausea; every morning; in afternoon; in afternoon, then hunger; on waking from evening sleep; in evening when beginning to eat; before eating, with hunger; while eating; after supper, which had been eaten with good appetite; after stool; with frequent gulping of water, which causes constant spitting; with emptiness in stomach and acid taste; with weakness of stomach and with alternations of chill and heat; with anxiety. Vomiting; sour, then sour eructations; of clotted blood at night. Movements extending to throat.

Stitches; in pit; in pit, seeming to contract heart. Cutting in pit after eating, extending to abdomen, with taste of food in mouth, eructations tasting of food, confusion of head, diarrhoea, chilliness and necessity to lie down. Cramp; like a pressure and contraction, in morning on waking from a frightful dream, with nausea and salivation. Claving in pit; pinching, in pit on deep breathing. Pressure in pit; in epigastric region; in region of S. and in diaphragm; in morning after rising, only when sitting; in morning after rising, < sudden motion, with heat in r. side of head and necessity to lie down, and the pain seemed now in stomach and now in chest; in morning fasting, then contractive sensation in abdomen; at night on waking; after breakfast; in office, < leaning against edge of table, reading aloud, talking much, lying upon back and when cold air strikes abdomen. Pressure, > lying down; > dinner, with uprising; in and above S. and below navel, with diarrhoea three times at night, with periodic stitches from back forward to r. side of abdomen, arresting breathing.

Bruised pain; on pressure. Rhythmical chilling pressure in pit, as from ice. Tensive pain in pit. Contractive sensation in epigastric region. The tightness of clothes about stomach and hips is very oppressive. Heartburn after supper; H. in mouth; burning rising from stomach, as if he had eaten pepper. Sensation as if disordered, with distention of abdomen. It seems as if she would constantly eructate, which does not happen, but all manner of trouble is caused thereby. Sensation of fasting. Emptiness at 4 P.M. Crawling in epigastric region. Pleasant warmth, and in abdomen. Weakness.

Clinical.—Acid dyspepsia, sour vomiting and sour eructations. Gastralgia, colic and distention of abdomen.

Abdomen.—Jerking at night, with uneasiness, preventing sleep until midnight. Twitching contraction at noon. Distention all afternoon, with frequent loud emissions of flatus, which relieved only for a short time; D. in evening, also with hardness; after eating; after eating and drinking, with uneasiness and drawing in it; < evening; with cramps; with internal pressure, < deep breathing. Rumbling after eating, with distention; then frequent emissions of flatus; and croaking, as of frogs; when sitting, as from emptiness. Moving about, > soft, brown stool, with cutting. Accumulation of flatus, with hard stool; A. of much F. after a slight meal, on account of which the hæmorrhoids protrude, are painful and moist. Emissions of flatus; after breakfast; upward and downward; loud, all the afternoon; offensive.

Sticking in whole A. at 4 P.M.; S. preventing sitting. Pain during menstruation, as if everything were torn apart, with bruised pain in sacrum and discharge of large clots. Cutting in morning, then three soft stools, and all day sensation in abdomen as of diarrhoea; C. on appearance of menses, < motion, with tearing in back and small of back; during menstruation, with diarrhoea; with emission of flatus on inspiration. Pinching, with paleness of face; P., with cutting and with yawning; with soft stool; cutting, even while eating, > emission of flatus. Pain in morning; in morning after rising, with shortness of breath; every afternoon; in evening, extending into throat; twisting, before stool; drawing back and forth just before menstruation, and on first day of it; when breathing, as if constricted by a string.

Tension at 7 P.M., with distention, causing difficult breathing, with frequent passage of flatus; contractive T., and in stomach. Emptiness, > pressure. Electric shocks, extending to fingers and bending the fingers. Pulsations. Crawling, with moving about, as after a purgative. Coldness internally, with cracking and crackling; becomes cold easily, if air touches it he has pressure in stomach and diarrhoea.

Upper.—Cutting in a streak, > dinner, with soft stool at 11 A.M. Frequent gripping. Burning pain about epigastric region, waking him. Contractive sensation. Tension, with pressure.

Hypochondria.—Distention of l. Stitches in l.; beneath last r. true ribs; below r. ribs in evening; in hepatic region in afternoon; in a spot in hepatic region when riding, and touch caused a stinging, with sleepiness and general weariness. Tearing in liver in evening. Tensive pain in liver when lying on back. Burning pain in l.

Umbilicus.—Swelling, with pain about it when touched. Gripping, in morning, > rising. Crawling, with sensation as before diarrhoea.

Sides.—Distention in l., extending into groin. Stitches in l.; in r. in evening; in r. when lying; in r., then bruised pain in l. lower ribs, also noticed upon pressure; in r., extending through and through bowels and out at small of back. Cutting in r.; with pinching, as in diarrhoea. Gripping in r., below navel, after eating. Bruised pain in r.; then sticking outward through pudenda. Sticking burning in r., with sensation as if something would be loosened. Tension in r.

Hypogastrium.—Twitchings in l. side when sitting bent. Stitches below last false ribs, above ilium; above l. hip, extending to l. false ribs; in r. groin, extending downward, as if a hernia would appear, after breakfast; as with an awl in r. groin, & rubbing. Deep-seated pain, at last with fever, heat, anxiety and restlessness, so that he could not sleep at night nor lie, and pain on touch, as in inflammation of abdomen; P. above l. hip as if it would burst there on coughing; as from a weight. Bruised pain in l. groin at 2 p.m. when walking; in r. groin, at first > then < pressure, with stitches. Dragging in inguinal regions, extending forward, while sitting, with ineffectual urging to urinate.

Rectum.—Frequent, sudden pressing-piercing pain. Sticking during stool. Cramp, obliging her to sit still. Sensation of something hard in it, like a kernel of fruit. Pressure all day; < after stool, and in anus. Dragging, as if feces should be expelled. Urging to stool, with rumbling in abdomen; U. after dinner, stool hard and difficult; but spasmodic contraction of anus, so that no stool passes; frequent, with emission of only flatus; frequent, ineffectual, with pain, anxiety and redness of face. Crawling. Itching, and in genitals; L. with sticking.

Anus.—Hæmorrhoids, with sore pain, unendurable on walking or reflecting; swollen II., with itching-sticking and much moisture; hard II., stinging-burning, painful when touched (Esc. h.), when walking, standing or sitting, > stool; impeding stool; painful. Sticking before a meal. Spasmodic drawing pain after coition. Sore pain, with moisture. Biting pain after stool. Burning during stool; after stool, with depressed pulse and palpitation; after stool, making him powerless. Itching (Esc. h., Sulph.); after dinner; crawling. Pain in perineum, with pulsation.

Clinical.—Hæmorrhoids, intolerably painful, < walking. Partial paralysis of rectum, stool passed better when standing. Pruritis of anus and fistula.

Stool.—Watery; with stomachache. Semi-fluid; at 5 a.m. Diarrhœa in evening; at night; from taking cold in abdomen; with tenesmus and burning in anus; with passage of blood; with passage of flatus. Constipation. Solid S.; with passage of a round worm. Nodular, with mucus and clear blood, without trace of hæmorrhoids; N., then contraction of rectum, then soft stool, then in form like a goose-quill. First hard, then soft, then dyspnoea, then distention of hypochondria, < r., with pinching on every step. Black, after the sweat. Bloody, with burning and soreness in rectum; painless passage of blood, with a soft stool. With white mucus. Passes better when standing. Passes with sensation as if only flatus passed.

Urinary Organs.—Pain in bladder, with inability to pass urine, but if a few drops pass he has pain in urinary passages, with constipation and cramp in rectum. Micturition so easy that he is not sensible of the stream, and can scarcely believe in the dark that he is urinating until he makes sure with the hand. Involuntary M. while coughing or blowing nose (Zn.); L. at night in sleep. Intermittent M. in evening. Delay of last drops of urine. Enuresis, with violent erections without desire. Frequent micturition; at night; at night, and copious, with diarrhœa, which was repeated in morning; and copious; and copious (K. c.), soon depositing a sediment like yeast; F. and scanty.

Urethra.—Discharge of blood, with the ejaculation of semen during coition. Cutting. Pain in evening after urinating, with aching in vertex. Burning; when urinating; after an emission; when urinating, or at root of urethra; in region of frænum when urinating; sudden, at night. Itching in orifice.

Urging to urinate after a walk; P., with necessity to wait long, then scanty urine, then renewed urging. Frequent urging; at night, waking her; with involuntary dribbling of urine; then shivering in open air. Frequent, ineffectual U., then while sitting involuntary micturition. Ineffectual attempts at micturition, after passing a few drops pain in bladder and (after much walking in order to relieve it) cramps in rectum.

Urine.—Copious; then scanty; and slightly acid. Scanty, with great thirst. Often dark brown. Turbid on standing. Reddish. Clear, like water. Containing much tenacious mucus.

Clinical.—Weakness of bladder. Paralysis of bladder, the urine is expelled very slowly and sometimes is even retained. Weakness of the sphincter of bladder, especially in children, the urine passes involuntarily, especially during the first sleep at night, also involuntarily from the slightest excitement during the day. Paralysis of bladder after labor, the urine is retained.

Sexual Organs.—Cutting in mons veneris, < walking. Increased smegma, much on corona glandis. Red spots on penis. Herpetic redness of penis, with oozing on frænum of glans. Vesicles under prepuce, becoming suppurating ulcers. Burning pain in penis. Itching scurf on inside of prepuce. Itching of frænum; on inner surface of prepuce, at one time tickling, at another biting; voluptuous, of penis, with incomplete erection. Erection in morning, with desire; E. all the forenoon; frequent, incomplete, in morning after coition. Impotence. Itching cutting in septum of scrotum. Itching of scrotum and on skin of penis; of scrotum and sweating. Stitches in r. testicle. Tearing in testicles. Pain in testicles at noon; in r. T. as if crushed. Desire; with disinclination to work; very little. Discharge of prostatic fluid after stool. Irritation to emission. Frequent emissions at night and next forenoon, with constant excessive erections; frequent E. in an old man; E. every night and during afternoon nap in one who was impotent.

Female.—Burning. Biting in pudenda as from salt during and after micturition. Leucorrhœa florid like menses and of same color (Zn.); L. at night (Nat. m.). Uterine spasm, & application of warm stones, pain now in hypogastrium, now in stomach, now in chest, now in small of back, obliging her to bend forward, with intolerance of clothing on epigastric region, pain in abdomen and stomach from even the most digestible food, fullness as if abdomen would burst and ineffectual desire to eructate. M. stræmâ dehyd; too soon; no discharge at night (Puls.); offensive and causing itching in pudenda; copious. Intermittent traces of bloody discharge for many days after menstruation had ceased.

Clinical.—Uterine inertia during labor (K. carb.). Post-partum hæmorrhage from inertia of uterus. Leucorrhœa especially < night, with great weakness.

Respiratory Organs.—Dryness; of larynx. Pain in larynx on blowing nose. Drugging in larynx. Frequent need to clear something out of L. Irritation in L. as in beginning of cold, with general febrile excitement. Muscles of L. do not perform their function and inability to speak a loud word. Hoarseness (Kali bi.); < morning and evening, with scraping in throat; in morning, with rawness in throat. Stoppage of voice every morning, as if there were a wedge in larynx which should be expectorated.

Cough in forenoon, with rawness in throat; C. in forenoon, with rattling on every inspiration as from mucus in r. side of chest; wakes her in evening and morning, > during the day; only at night; every night at 2 A.M., > during the day, with much expectoration; always caused by speaking; caused by crawling in larynx or by stooping to pick up anything; caused by incessant crawling; on becoming warm after being cold; < after eating, with expectoration of mucus. Tickling cough. Paroxysmal C., caused by tickling of mucus in throat. Violent C., even at night; at times dry, with pain in r. side of abdomen. Hollow C., < night and morning, with adherent mucus in chest, in which there is sticking, soreness and ulceration, with and without coughing, with stopped coryza. Dry hollow C., in paroxysms, with a sore streak down trachea, where it pains on every paroxysm of cough and almost prevents breathing. Dry cough at night, disturbing sleep; C., with scraping in throat, without expectoration; causing burning in chest; racking, in morning on waking and preventing him from sleeping again. Hacking C., with difficult breathing; dry H. cough and only seldom some expectoration of mucus. Hoarse C., < morning and evening, > night. Irritation to cough, even in morning in bed; I., with every expiration. Expectoration of tough mucus, at first difficult, then easy to loosen.

Suffocation in attacks during inspiration while sitting, as if some one grasped the trachea. Arrest of breath while speaking or walking rapidly, with necessity to suddenly catch for breath; sudden A. when hunting, with rapid palpitation, necessity to kneel, general sweat, shortness of breath, rush of blood to head, bluish-red color of face, as if he would have apoplexy. Want of breath, with weakness of thighs. Dyspnoea after lying down; < sitting; spasmodic. Inspiration difficult and deep. Short breath in morning, with pain in abdomen; S. when walking in open air; with oppression of chest; then paroxysms of cough.

Clinical.—Acute laryngitis, loss of voice and rawness and soreness in larynx and trachea (Bell. and Benzoïn.). Sudden aphonia after taking cold. Paralysis of vocal cords. Loss of voice in singers and speakers. Cough, < warmth of bed, > sips of cold water. Cough, with sensation as if he "could not get under the mucus" to raise it. Constant hacking cough, with involuntary micturition. Expectoration as a rule scanty, must be swallowed, excessive rawness in chest on coughing, especially under sternum.

Chest.—Rattling when coughing (Ant. t.). Stitches on walking in open air; S. beneath skin; in region of r. clavicle; in l. breast below nipple; in l. side opposite ensiform cartilage; in l. side, on a level with pit of stomach; in first l. false ribs; below l. female breast at 5 P.M., > rubbing; deep in C. in forenoon on deep respiration; beneath l. breast during menstruation; above heart on motion; in l. after eating; in l. when coughing; in r. side on inspiration; in sternum on deep breathing and on lifting; in sternum on physical exertion; below sternum on inspiration and expiration, then stitch in sternum, lasting all the forenoon, with alternating severity, < expiration, with stitches in l. shoulder-joint; on two last false ribs, > rubbing; below arms, extending to pit of stomach, with apprehensiveness, then rumbling in abdomen, and gripping extending into chest, > passage of flatus; deep in C., out to back; near nipple, extending suddenly towards navel, < inspiration; as with a nail; knife-like, anteriorly in l. side, piercing through to back, at night, with anxiety, restlessness and sleeplessness.

Tearing in forepart, < open air; sticking, in l. side. Cutting in morning, with burning. Pressure; above pit of stomach; by l. lowest rib; on r. side; on r. side in evening; with difficult or short breathing; in intercostal muscles, transversely across chest, on stooping; in upper part of ensiform cartilage, extending upward; sharp, after dinner, < walking. Pain in r. side as if lung were loosened from pleura, even when lying; rheumatic P., and in abdomen. Bruised pain in muscles, < pressure; B. pain below r. mamma, not affected by breathing. Sprained pain in l. lower muscles on moving l. arm. Burning pain, and sometimes stitches. Drawing pain internally in upper part after immoderate running or singing, with heaviness. Sore pain when coughing.

Scraping. Rawness in morning. Anxiety in evening after stool, with distention of abdomen. Tightness; with frequent necessity to take a deep breath. Sensation as if clothes were too tight. Painful compression from both sides towards sternum, with oppression of breath and weakness of voice. Constriction, with hoarseness and rawness of throat. Oppression in afternoon, > dancing; O. (bronchi) after eating; of both sides as if pressed together. Rushing in region of heart mornings, until rising, > motion, returning when lying. Heat internally; rising into throat.

Clinical.—Nipples sore and cracked.

Heart and Pulse.—Oppression of H., with melancholy. Palpitation in morning, with irregular pulse and pain in back; P. in evening, with anxiety, which made the breath short; with weariness; anxious, with rhythmical constriction of abdomen. Pulse small (almost thready) and slow.

Neck.—Jerking motion, near head. Stitches at night when lying. Pinching in r. side. Bruised pain. Tensive pain, extending to head. Tension of muscles on becoming suddenly erect or on turning head. Tensive sensation in nape as if drawn backward by both ears. Stiff pain in r. side. Stiffness, so that he could not move head (Zinc.); S. of N. and throat, with pain in occiput, and bound feeling in muscles, so that he could not move the head; of r. side, with tensive pain.

Back.—Stitches; when sitting; then pain. Sticking piercing-jerking, and in sacrum, arresting breath. Tearing in a spot. Pain during menstruation. Pain like a drawn and beaten sensation, then extending into small of B. and thence into abdomen, where there is flatulence, with pain, then discharge of flatus and leucorrhœa. Crawling. Pulsation in middle.

Scapulae.—Stitches in l.; near r. when swallowing and hawking and on exerting voice. Tearing in r.; between scapulae at 4 P.M.; in vertebræ between S. extending into r. scapula, then into l. Pain on border of r., extending to back, < bending r. upper arm and head backward, and at last on every motion of body, even if the part be only shaken, < turning head towards the l., with tearing. Stiff pain between. Tensive pain in upper part on motion. Drawing; in l.

Loins.—Stitches in l. by last false ribs; above r. ilium, like electric sparks, extending to ribs; itching. Tearings. Pinching in region of kidneys. Pain; on every motion; when sitting; after copious micturition; the two last days before menstruation, with anxious dreams; cramplike, while sitting; pinching cramplike, and in nates; so that he must bend over, with pain in hypogastrium. Sore pain, then pressing in hypogastrium, as if everything would come out of rectum and pudenda, like flatulent colic (from straining). Bruised pain towards evening, with passage of leucorrhoea; B. pain when walking, > sitting. Sprained pain on motion. Tensive pain. Pain as if squeezed. Stiffness of lumbo-sacral joint.

Coccyx.—Bruised pain. Drawing pain in region. Jerking pain.

Clinical.—Lumbago, painful stiffness of back and sacrum, < attempting to rise.

Extremities.—Twitchings in evening. Stitches in joints after taking cold. Tearing now in one, now in another, at one time severe, at another slight; T. < joints and extending thence into long bones. Pain in arms and thighs. Gouty pains. Drawing pain in r. index finger and in l. second toe. Drawings here and there; D. in fingers, soles and toes. Uneasiness in morning in bed; in evening. Sensation as after great exertion, after rising from a seat. Weakness and trembling; paralytic W.; so that he can scarcely walk and the hands must lie outstretched. Crawling in arms and legs, as if they would go to sleep. Heaviness at night, preventing sleep.

Clinical.—Rheumatic paralysis of arm, < r. Unsteadiness of the muscles of forearm and hand. Numbness, loss of sensation in hands. Contracted tendons in palms of hands. Scleritis; on r. side, < motion, especially < easterly storms. Rheumatoid arthritis, especially in persons who suffer from great weakness of the limbs, < east wind, limbs become distorted. The hamstrings under the knee seem too short, in chronic rheumatism. Weakness of ankles.

Upper Extremities.—Axilla. Glands swollen. Stitches near, extending towards breast.

Shoulder.—Stitches on top; in l.; tearing, in r., extending into hand. Tearing in joint of l.; in r. at 6 P.M. if she moves r. arm or turns head to r., with bruised pain on inner border of r. scapula, but if she turns to the l. the place feels tense. Pressure upon. Pain on moving r. arm; in l. as if dislocated, from morning till evening; in joint and in elbow as if asleep, at night, waking her frequently, < morning after waking; paralytic, in l. Goutlike drawings here and there, < motion, and in elbow and wrist. Stiffness.

Arm.—Spasmodic flexion of l. at times. Convulsions up and down l. (which is weaker) after exertion, then heaviness of arm, then rumbling down muscles, extending into bone, as from crawling of a mouse, with which the twitches disappear. Trembling of r. if he holds anything at arm's length. Inclination of r. to cramp, waking before midnight, with crawling as if asleep. Stitches, extending into l. side of chest. Tearing, and in hand; extending into back; in l., and in shoulder-joint. Pain in r. Drawing pain in muscles; in bones at night, preventing sleep. Drawing in r., with paralytic heaviness. Weakness of r., with crawling in front of both shoulders; W. of r., almost like paralysis, < writing, with stiffness. Heaviness, with weakness; H. of r., as from a blow upon thick part of forearm. Stiffness of l. when holding it upright for a long time, with sensation as if the blood flowed back into it, with pain in r. side of chest as from contraction of muscles; inclination of l. to become stiff, waking him at night.

Upper Arm.—Stitches in r. on raising arm; S. near l. shoulder; on inner margin of r.; in upper part of r., > rubbing; in r. at night in bed, preventing motion; in deltoids if she carries anything; outward in l. humerus, near its head. Tearing just below shoulder-joints; T. at night in warmth of bed, especially in shoulder-joint; in l. humerus, extending to elbow, in which it is most painful. Drawing cutting in r. deltoid. Pinching in deltoid, with coldness that ends in burning. Bruised pain in flesh. Drawing pain in l. humerus; now in one, now in other deltoid, extending to clavicle.

Elbow.—Quivering externally when leaning upon arm. Boring in tip of l. at 4 P.M., with sensation as if it would force him to bend the arm. Bruised pain; in bend, < pressure. Drawing pain, and in forearms. Pain in bend of l. on stretching arm, as if a tendon were too short.

Forearm.—Swelling, as if on periosteum, painful when pressed. Trembling of r. while writing, with twitching. Stitches along tendons on inner surface of r.; drawing, in muscles in lower part of r. Tearings; in tendons of r.; in l., from elbow downward; throbbing, in l. Boring in a spot below r. elbow as if in bone, at 4 P.M., with tearing. Drawing pain in muscles of lower part of l. Contractive pain in muscles of lower part of l. Paralytic pain in r. ulna. Paralysis, with difficulty in raising it on account of heaviness and stiffness.

Wrist.—Sticking in r. as if sprained, when at work; crawling sticking in r., and in second and third fingers. Tearing in r.; on back of r., extending into middle finger, with pinching. Pain in r. as if sprained or dislocated. Drawing pain; from r. into fingers; in bones, through metacarpal bones into little finger, where it is worse in tip, < stretching hand, when fingers are involuntarily drawn together, then the drawing extends from bones of wrist into the other fingers and they all become bent; drawing pain in l., from within outward.

Hand.—Swelling at night, with crawling in them. Trembling. Stitches in l. palm, with crawling in fingers; jerking, in muscles of l., transversely across dorsum, on moving arm. Tearings, and in fingers; on dorsum, now of one, now of other; in metacarpal bones of thumbs; in inner margin of r., extending towards little finger, as if in bone. Spasmodic sensation. Tensive pain transversely across l., as if sprained, on moving it. Fulness in inner part of l. when grasping anything. Weakness in a hot room; spasmodic W. in morning on waking. Heaviness of r. Paralytic sensation in r. Going to sleep, with crawling in it.

Fingers.—Twitchings when writing; drawing, in l. Stitches in little, then extending upward like knife-stitches, with apprehension and aching about heart. Tearing; in l. index; in joints of r. index, with pain on pressure; in l. middle, at 3 P.M., with pinching; in tips of all, with trembling of hands. Pain under nails when touched. Drawing pain in joints; l. Burning pain under nails, but when touched pain as if suppurating; shooting-burning pain in joints. Crushed pain in tip of r. little; in tips, as if they would burst, now of one hand, now of other. Throbbing pain as from an ulcer in proximal joint of r. thumb. Tension in knuckles of last joints on bending in forenoon. Numbness, with loss of sensation and with tension. Deadness, < morning; seem dead, icy-cold, white and without sensation.

Lower Extremities.—Tottering from side to side when walking, with sensation as if he staggered more than he really did, without vertigo. Stitches, first from hip-joint and then from patella downward, < rest. Weariness from afternoon till evening, especially in legs and knees. Numb or bruised pain in nates when sitting.

Hip.—Stitches in joint every two minutes, extending towards abdomen; in l. as if in bone. Tearing in joint; when sitting and walking, and down whole leg; in l. as if in bone, and on pressure bruised pain. Pinching in region; above joint, with twinging and with coldness that ends in burning. Pain above joint; paroxysmal, in l. joint, as if sprained or dislocated, causing lameness; drawing pain when sitting and walking; prickling-burning in region.

Thigh.—Twitchings above knee. Stitches in l.; in bend of r.; on outer surface of r., just above knee; in l. in evening when walking, extending into chest. Tearing in middle of l., > rising from a seat; scraping, in l.; paralytic T. on outer surface of r. Bruised pain in morning in bed, and in legs. Jerking pain from nates downward. Trembling or throbbing sensation in flesh, like a painful tingling. Tension in bend of r. in morning on rising, and on bending knee. Beatings in tendons above bend of l. knee. Weariness when walking, and in leg; W., with want of breath; in upper part, from without inward, < rest. Paralyzed feeling when sitting and walking.

Knee.—Cracking when walking; painful, when walking, as if it would be broken or sprained. Jerking in l. in afternoon. Stitching when at work. Tearing in r.; on outer side of l.; in patella at night, preventing sleep; in l., extending through toes; with stitches, so that he could not step and could not sleep at night; drawing, in evening, extending into ankles. Boring in r., with bruised pain on pressure. Pain externally, as from an ulcer, extending to thigh. Sore pain. Drawing pain, then jerking pain. Drawing and jerking pain in l. patella; D. pain, as if weary from walking, worse when extending knees than when bending them. Drawings. Tension in hollows when sitting or beginning to walk, > continued walking. Tensive pain in hollow when walking, with stiffness. Weariness after walking, with heaviness of foot; W. < ascending steps; so that they knock under. Stiffness of l. when walking (Led.); stiff pain in patella when rising. Tingling, gone-to-sleep sensation in morning, and in legs.

Leg.—Varices. Twitchings. Trembling on beginning to ascend (e. g., on a ladder), > standing still and working; as from a chill when walking or standing in open air. Tearing down outer side of l. from knee when sitting, the pain extends into hip-joint on rising from a seat, with bruised pain in hip when walking and on pressure, not > when sitting; burning, in tibia. Pain after copious micturition; P. at night, extending into groins; down tibia. Sprained or paralyzed pain in muscles in afternoon and evening. Pain as from a blow on r. tibia. Drawing pain; as if in bones. Drawing in r. in evening, with pain in throat; cramplike, down outer side of r. when sitting or standing. Uneasiness in evening; in l. at night.

Weariness in morning on waking, > after rising. Heaviness; at night in bed, and of feet. Falling asleep.

Calc.—Cramp in morning in bed; at night. Intermittent stitches in l. Tearing in tendons beneath r.; down l.; and on dorsum of foot; from outer part of r. to outer margin of foot, < moving foot or toes. Bruised pain in r. all the forenoon, extending into and above knee. Contraction of r. Tension as if some one forcibly contracted the skin, from 7 to 8 p.m. Drawing when rising from a seat and when walking, with sensation as if r. leg were too short. Crawling in l., with prickling, as if it would go to sleep.

Ankle.—Tearing stitch, extending to knee and thence to hip-joint, but not in the knee itself. Tearing in outer malleolus in evening. Pain when walking as if sprained or as if it would be broken; S. pain on a misstep or on bending it from side to side, with cracking in joint. Pain as if weary or crushed when sitting after walking, > walking again. Drawing pain when sitting, with sensation on sitting as if leg would bend under. Drawing. Stiffness.

Foot.—Swelling, especially of anterior part, in evening, with heat and internal itching, as if frozen, and on pressure pain as if suppurating. Cramp; on stretching it; in r. sole and tendo-achillis on stretching them. Tearing in dorsum of l.; in ball behind great toe; in inner margin of r.; in inner margin, even in morning in bed; in l. tendo-achillis when sitting; sudden, in r. heel. Boring and burning pain in a corn. Pressure on dorsum. Aching in soles like a nervous disease. Drawing in r. in evening; in tendons of r. in step, extending into great toe, where it is only felt on motion. Tension in heel and tendo-achillis. Weakness in morning so that he can hardly stand. Going to sleep when sitting or lying. Numbness of heel when sitting, with pithiness.

Toes.—Stitches in great; in ball of great; in a corn on little toe; burning in ball of great; burning, beneath nail of l. great. Tearing in great; in l. great towards tip; on outer margin of r. little; on margin of little, extending towards tip; burning in second little; burning, behind nails of first and second. Pain on posterior joint of great; in great as if suppurating; as from inflammation behind nail of great; in great as if burnt. Drawing during a storm, extending into thigh, with tearing. Crawling in l. great, with sticking, as if it would go to sleep; crawling falling asleep of r. big toe in afternoon.

Skin.—Spotted on thighs and legs, full of dark red veins. Red spot above upper lip, which seems cracked and causes a burning pain; painful red spot on tibia, extending along length of leg, with itching when healing. Inflammatory swelling beneath chin, as if an abscess would form, with burning pain. Old liver-spots become elevated, with corrosive itching. Eruption in face; more felt than seen. Nettle-rash, especially just above knees; on neck, between scapulae and on back. Itching tetter on dorsum of ring finger; on nates; on neck, with moisture. Eruption of the size of pin-heads, with hollow tip, without moisture, on forehead, neck, scapulae, arms, hypogastrum, especially on thighs and in hollows of knees, with itching, especially in warmth of bed, with burning after scratching, when not warm scarcely noticeable, whitish, prominent on scratching, after scratching a red spot with large areola.

Ulcer on tip of thumb; on heel; on leg, with red, hard, inflamed areola, discharging more blood than pus, of offensive odor, causing sleeplessness. Ulceration again of cutaneous wounds that had almost healed.

Formication. Crawling in thighs, legs and feet; in l. calf, extending to knee; in soles; in ball of great toe; on r. forearm, > rubbing; between first and second phalanges of l. ring finger, with twitching in inner side of upper arm; in r. heel, > scratching, with itching, as if it would go to sleep; tingling burning, in soles. Tickling in r. sole, so that she could not scratch it enough; in toes, as if they had been frozen.

Itching over whole body; in various parts; on head; forehead; above eyes; in face; tip and wings of nose; on nose, chin and throat, below ears; about mouth; about breasts; on back; on arms; in hands; of palms; on dorsum of l. hand; on last and middle joints of l. fingers; between fingers; on nates and back of thighs; on thighs; hips; in hollow of r. knee; of patella; legs; calves; dorsum of foot; on r. heel; over whole body at night, with dry heat; on thighs, perineum and scrotum, < night in bed and in morning. Itching, > scratching; behind r. ear; on eyebrows, l. malarbone, temples and ears; in middle of l. scapula; on back; upper sternum; r. shoulder; l. axilla; bend of l. elbow; l. forearm; behind l. ring and little fingers; in bend of r. knee, then on tibia; on r. tibia. Itching over whole body, not > scratching, with redness like scarlet-rash and many vesicles. I. on back, with sweat. Itching on lower part of forearms, burning after scratching, I. soon reappears, and new vesicles constantly appear; I. in palms and after scratching itching vesicles; I. in hollow of l. hand, and after scratching many itching vesicles containing water; I. between first and second phalanges of l. index, and after scratching burning itching pimples; I. on forearms (sometimes with burning after scratching), with itching pimples and vesicles; I. on outer margin of l. knee, then burning after scratching. Sticking itching over skin; on index; on r. nates; on thigh towards outer part; as from fleas, on back, shoulders, arms and thighs, especially on dorsum of fingers. Corrosive itching on face, with rush of blood to it, with heat and redness, then many red pimples. Burning itching near nose. Itching on lobule of ear as from a tetter. Voluptuous itching of last joint of great toe.

Clinical.—General tendency to soreness in folds of skin, back of ears, between thighs, etc. (Sul.). Small flat warts. Warts on fingers, especially on tips and about nails. Horny warts. Horny growth on tip of nose.

Sleep.—Yawning and stretching of limbs; < night; Y. in forenoon and afternoon; excessive, from 11 A.M. to 3 P.M., after intermittent hiccough; excessive, all the evening, without sleepiness. Sleepiness in morning; in afternoon; even when busy, with necessity to lie down; when walking, < when sitting; but sleep was unrefreshing. Sleep after dinner; and is sleepy early in evening. Falls asleep while conversing. Long sleep in morning. Difficult waking in morning.

Sleeplessness on account of dry heat; every night after midnight on account of general bruised pain; every night after 2 o'clock. Woke at 4 o'clock every night (in winter) and could hardly ever sleep again. Falls asleep late on account of heat. Frequent waking; with general sweat, which increased on waking. Frequent starting up in fright from sleep; starting up in fright on going to sleep. Motions of arms and legs in sleep. Uneasiness all night, after a short sleep she was awakened by anxiety and uneasiness, then necessity to sit up, with involuntary turning of head from one side to other, until, being exhausted, she fell asleep again (Rhus t., Sul.); U. at night, then sweat in morning; every night, with occasional crying in sleep. Whining, "come here, come here," after midnight in sleep. Loud laughing in sleep.

Dreams, many. Anxious. Frightful, waking her and causing anxiety so that she cannot sleep again. Fretful; and vivid. Full of strife, with uneasy sleep. Sad, of dead acquaintances. Confused. Merry at first, then confused, historical. Lewd; of beautiful girls, with emissions.

Fever.—Chilliness; at 4 P.M., with creeping in legs up into back and weariness, then sweat without heat or thirst; the first half of the night, then heat, and towards morning moist skin, after which the first rest and sleep; in sleep towards morning; after eating, also with hot face; in open air after dinner. Sensitiveness to free air; to cold air; to a draught, which causes pain. Takes cold easily, with general chilliness from a slight draught. Chilliness, with yawning. C., then heat in forehead. C., then rising of heat in head, with sweat in palms in a room. Internal C. every day; frequent internal C., with cold hands and feet; internal C. about midnight, especially in arms and legs, with cutting in back, then general sweat, with tingling and heaviness in head and necessity to lie until noon. C., alternating with sweat; C., alternating with heat in face.

Shivering chill; at 7 P.M. in open air, > in room.

Shivering always on waking at night; in a room; always on going into open air, with gooseflesh; general, as often as he lays down the l. hand after motion; during pain in stomach. Shivering chill, with gooseflesh; and with urging to stool, which is soft, accompanied by pinching in whole abdomen, then general chill, with external coldness, then in the room internal warmth in head.

Chilliness of various parts. Whole l. side of body cold; and gone to sleep. Coldness of r. forearm and fingers, with stiffness; C. of hands, extending up l. arm to elbow; of hands; of feet; of soles. In spine between scapulæ, as from a wind. Sensation as if cold water ran from r. clavicle across chest to toes. Shivering over whole r. side of body; S. from r. temple through forehead, where it becomes a throbbing; from face over back to knee; in neck in evening, extending into brain; along back; in back in attacks, extending nearly all over abdomen; now in arm, now in leg, now general; sudden from face over chest to knee.

Heat every day from 6 to 8 P.M.; H. causing late falling asleep in evening; after a short walk in open air, with excitement; general, without moisture and without thirst, then gradual coolness, with yawning and stretching of arms. H. in flushes after walking, with discomfort. Orgasm of blood. Burning wherever she takes hold of herself; B. in vertex; in r. temple and side of forehead; on r. malar-bone in evening; in middle of r. scapula; on outer surface of l. upper arm; transversely across forearm, close to wrist; in finger-tips; in soles; in a spot on r. side of neck, with redness. Heat in face after eating, and in eyes; in face after eating, with redness. Internal H. in head after dinner; I. heat in head without external heat; in forehead and back, as if sweat would break out; sudden, in l. thigh. Sticking-burning in axilla. Tearing burning in scalp in front of vertex in evening. Cool burning on malar-bone; frequently in front of vertex. Crawling B. in ball of great toe.

Sweat; in morning in bed; waking him at 4 A.M.; in afternoon when walking, with weariness; at night; every night; at night, with uneasy sleep; profuse, when walking in open air; in attacks; general sour, at night; on back and abdomen after walking.

Ceanothus.

A tincture is prepared from the fresh leaves of Ceanothus Americanus, Linn.

Clinical.—Enlarged spleen, with pain in the whole l. side. Chronic hypertrophy and inflammation of spleen, painful at times, with extreme dyspnoea, has to fight for her breath. Persistent pain in l. hypochondrium, profuse menses and yellow leucorrhœa. It has cured yellow leucorrhœa, with pain under l. ribs.

Cedron.

A tincture is prepared from the dry-powdered seeds of Simaba Cedron, Planchon.

General Action.—Too little is positively known to enable one to judge of its general sphere of action, but it seems to produce well-marked symptoms of intermittent neuralgia, and indeed of regularly recurring febrile attacks. It has proved curative in marsh malaria characterized by severe pains recurring periodically. It may be compared (remotely) with Arsenic.

Generalities.—Neuralgic pains, then general numbness, with smarting and burning in nose. Sharp pain in occiput, then in abdomen, then in lower limbs. Sharp flying pains in all parts on getting warm in bed, keeping him awake most of the night (Merc., Sulph.), in limbs the pains seemed to be in cartilages of joints, < first joint of great toe and straking up bones, in abdomen the pain was < in region of ascending colon, liver and spleen, the pains of head were dull, except in occiput and in facial and optic nerves. Contused feeling. Restlessness; and anguish; and nervousness. Malaise. Weakness; of body and mind after waking. Dulness of senses. Periodicity, often clocklike, is a characteristic of Cedron. Aggravation in provers of voluptuous disposition and of nervous temperament, < in women.

Clinical.—It is often found curative in acute malarial poisoning, with enlarged spleen and liver, general anæmia and dropsy. It has cured puerperal convulsions recurring at regular intervals, beginning with severe pains in l. temple, with albuminuria. Hysterical spasms recurring regularly night and morning. Recurring attacks of chorea in a woman after coition.

Mind.—Excitement. Weeping mood. Gloomy. Dread of friends, especially in women. Torpor, with uneasiness. Symptoms mostly repeated in morning and < night.

Head.—Bending backward, with pressure on occiput and parietal regions as if those parts would burst. Headache < open air; < deep in orbits, obliging him to shut his eyes, and extending to occiput. Dulness in morning, with heaviness. Distensive headache, < night. Swollen feeling; < r. side, and heavy. Vertigo at 11 A.M.; on rising from bed, could not see to light a candle, could not tell when it was lighted, did not know her acquaintances. Shooting over l. eye (Arum tr.). Pain above eyes as from a band.

Temples.—Arteries enlarged. Pain; from T. to T. across eyes; passing from one side to the other; throbbing, extending around forehead. Pressure at r., causing dull pain in whole r. side of head, > towards noon. Throbbing; 10 A.M.; increasing to pain, extending around and over eyes; increasing to pain and extending over ears. Pulsating sensation, with twisting pain behind r. ear, changing to dull pain and extending to temples.

Aching in vertex at 10 P.M.; 10 A.M.; on waking; on late waking after sound sleep. Pressure at vertex, < when the shivering begins. Sharp pain in occiput; sharp jerking pain at 10.30 A.M. Pain in occiput and forehead. Pressure in occiput in morning.

Eyes.—Redness, with itching of inner and outer surfaces of lids; R. and protrusion, with aching extending to forehead. Smarting during fever, < closing them; S. and burning, with lachrymation. Alternate dryness and smarting, with moisture. Swollen feeling. Itching. Lachrymation; acrid. Redness of white at 11 A.M., with dry feeling in eye when exposed to air. Pupils dilated; and fixed. Enlargement of Meibomian glands and conjunctiva. Redness of lid, with pain on pressure. Twitching of levator palpebræ superioris. L. lid seems dried to ball, conjunctiva is inflamed and dry. Burning of lids. Vision misty. Objects seem red; at night, yellowish during the day.

Clinical.—Ciliary neuralgia. Neuralgia of the supraorbital nerve and also in the whole r. side of the face, coming on every day, generally about 9 A.M., and lasting a few hours. Numerous cases of chills and fever characterized by the regular recurrence of supraorbital neuralgia are reported cured, also many cases of supraorbital neuralgia without malarial symptoms. Severe pain in eyeball, with radiating pains all around eye, shooting into nose, causing flow of scalding water from eyes and nose, the pain in head across forehead caused a crazy feeling, coming suddenly after working on black.

Ears.—Pain over. Hard hearing at night. Buzzing towards noon. Singing as of crickets.

Nose.—Discharge of much glassy mucus; of much clear, thin, acid mucus.

Face.—Puffy. Red; cheeks red and burning at night, pale and cold in morning. Pressing or tearing pain in one or both cheeks, with shooting under orbits. Lips dry.

Mouth.—Pain in a decayed tooth. Tongue coated yellow; in morning on rising; at back; pricking in morning; > after eating; P. at 5.30 P.M.; pricking-itching at 5 P.M. Smarting, and in fauces. Tingling as from shock of galvanic battery. Burning, and in throat and stomach; with scraping and profuse, thin saliva; as if raw, and in fauces, œsophagus and stomach. Dryness, with thick, viscid saliva; D., with viscid saliva when talking. Saliva sour at night; white and thick after talking; profuse, metallic tasting. Taste metallic; of iron, causing acid salivation; sour; sickish, bitter; slimy; bad.

Throat.—Prickling in fauces, extending down œsophagus, with tingling. Swallowing difficult.

Stomach.—Appetite lost. Thirst; at night and during febrile symptoms; for cold water at noon and for warm at night; for only warm drinks during fever; no T. during chill. Aversion to cold water in evening. Gulping up of bitter wind in morning on rising; in morning before rising, with pains in temples. Nausea. Distention and nausea, generally < rest, > walking and eating. Sensation of a stone on. Rolling pain. Heat and fulness.

Abdomen.—Distention; towards evening, and hardness. Flatulence in morning, with colic and fetid flatus. Pain during dinner; flatulent, in morning, with fetid flatus; P. in small intestines, also with cramps. Borborygmi in l. side. Sharp pain at noon, alternating in œcum, liver and spleen, running from one to other. Stitches in spleen and liver. Pain in hepatic region on rising; gripping-cutting in lower.

Stool.—Ineffectual urging. Loose, yellowish. Whitish, mixed with fragments like clotted milk. Copious; with tenesmus. Constipation.

Urinary Organs.—Frequent ineffectual urging. Frequent micturition of much pale urine. Discharge like gonorrhœa; thin, gleetly D., with fornication over body. Feeling as if a drop of urine were in urethra or a constant dropping from it. Pain in urethra when not urinating, with burning. Burning in urethra; and along ureters. Urine profuse; and light-colored; with numb, uneasy feeling in urethra; scanty; scanty and deep-colored; red; dark, with sediment; high-colored, with branlike sediment.

Sexual Organs.—Erections in morning; all night, with frequent waking from dreams of pleasant social interviews with female acquaintances; E., with desire. Excitement at daybreak, with discharge like leucorrhœa, and swollen mamma, with pain.

Respiratory Organs.—Larynx constricted and tender. Much clear, thin mucus in bronchi. Difficult respiration, with partial loss of voice.

Chest.—Darting-cutting under ribs. Pain under floating ribs and under r. scapula; in r. side; oppressive, extending now and then to back, with inclination to sigh and draw a deep breath. Oppression.

Heart.—Throbbing. Palpitation during fever, with hurried breathing and headache. Pulse rapid; in morning; increased, firm, full.

Back.—Pain in morning on rising, and in loins; P. under scapula and in pelvis. Pain in kidneys; with profuse urine, smarting and burning in urethra; then profuse micturition of clear urine; with burning, and along ureters, as if boiling water were poured through them. Uneasy feeling in lumbar region, with sensation as if a drop of urine were in penis.

Extremities.—Lancinations in joints, < r. elbow. Sharp flying pains in all joints at 10 P.M., < feet, < first great toe-joint. Rheumatic pains in all joints. Rheumatic flying pains, < night, < feet and hands, some in elbows, more in knees and hips, most troublesome in first joint of great toes, pains > motion and cold before soreness came on, when they were < by motion and cold. Pains (when not febrile concomitants) > friction. Numbness of hands, arms and legs.

Upper Extremities.—Weariness in shoulders. Cutting in elbows. Pain towards noon in elbows and forearms, with cold sensation, extending to hands. Bruised feeling in elbow and r. forearm. Numbness of r. hand and forearm, and dead feeling.

Clinical.—Sudden acute pain in ball of r. thumb, extending up arm to shoulder; 2d dil. cured like magic.

Lower Extremities.—Lancinations in knees. Twitching of tendons of legs, tendo-achillis and r. foot. Contracting pain in legs as from contusion in evening. Legs feel enlarged. Numbness of r. leg. Sharp lame pain in r. ankle. Swelling of feet, with pain in all joints. Pain in heel as if ulcerating in forenoon while walking.

Clinical.—Sudden acute pain in ball of r. foot caused her to drop to the floor, afterwards pain extended to above knee.

Skin.—Yellow.

Clinical.—In shingles the radiating pains have been relieved.

Sleep.—Yawning at 7 P.M., with stretching. Sleepiness. Profound sleep. Frequent waking. Sleeplessness; and restlessness. Restless sleep. Waking dreams; confused D.; D. of quarrelling with dead sister and other dead friends, cried about it, woke with nightmare, with sensation of stone in stomach.

Fever.—Chilliness towards 6 P.M., then frontal headache extending into parietal regions, red eyes, itching of lids internally and externally, rapid pulse, coldness of hands and tip of nose, even during fever when the rest of face was red and hot, similar attack next day at 5.30 P.M.; at 6 P.M., after dinner, with shivering in back, cold feet, burning hands, feeling in eyes as after much weeping; at 6 P.M., with heat of face, pale hands, feet and tip of nose cold; at 9 P.M.; all the evening; with congestion of head, coldness of hands, feet and nose. Shivering; at 3 o'clock, with malaise and inclination to lie down, the S. renewed by movement, coldness of hands, feet and nose, flushes of heat in face, towards 6 P.M. face constantly hot, lively expression, smarting in eyes, < closing them. Cold feet; forehead in morning, with empty feeling; back and legs at 6.30 P.M. after dinner, pale hands, red face, heavy head.

Heat; 11 A.M., rapid pulse; 6 P.M., with itching of eyes; in evening; with full, strong pulse; quotidian; tertian, towards 8 P.M., preceded by depressed spirits, dullness of senses and headache at noon, cramps, then contracting and tearing pains in limbs, cold sensations in hands and feet, mouth dry, desire for cold water, shivering, palpitation, hurried breathing, weak pulse, then sensation of dry heat, then profuse sweat, full and quick pulse, with animated, red face, cold and pale in the apyrexia, thirst for warm drinks. Flushes. Dry at night. Flying in face towards evening, alternating with chills, with bloated appearance.

Sweat.

Clinical.—Recurring chills, with left-sided headache, numbness of the limbs, etc. In chills and fever the whole body feels numb with the headache.

Cereum Oxalate.

Triturations with sugar of milk are used for low dilutions.

Clinical.—Vomiting of pregnancy. Whooping cough, with nosebleed and vomiting. Nervous reflex vomiting from intestinal or cerebral irritation, almost always spasmodic. Dysmenorrhœa in fleshy, robust women, with scanty discharge, > thorough establishment of the menses; 5 grains every hour.

Chamomilla.

A tincture is prepared from the whole fresh plant of Matricaria Chamomilla, Linn., when in flower.

General Action.—It belongs to the catarrhal group, affecting all mucous membranes. Its rheumatoid or neuralgic pains are noteworthy (compare its botanical relatives, Arnica and Gnaphalium). Its action on the emotional sphere is, however, most characteristic and serves to indicate the remedy in a greater number of complaints than its general symptomatology might suggest.

Alties.—Puls., Sulph., Acon., Nat. m.; also Arnica, Gnaphal. and Tanacet.

Generalities.—Sitting stiff like a statue, noticing nothing; the child becomes stiff, bends backward, stamps on the nurse's arm, screams and throws everything off. Convulsions in children, now one leg, now the other is moved up and down, grasping for something, mouth drawn back and forth, eyes staring (Tanacet.). Twitching of limbs and eyelids; of limbs and head in morning nap. Tossing about, with heat and redness of cheeks, confused talk and open eyes. Starting. Stretching. The child will neither stand nor walk, and cries piteously; will always lie, does not wish to be carried.

Stitches in various parts, < joints; jumping from place to place (Puls.), < knees and ankles, > motion; in joints, along bones and in muscles, in latter with jerking and tearing; or drawing pains, in r. then l. leg, extending into ankles and dorsa of feet, then again in r. shoulder, on hips or l. half of head. Tearing here and there; T. in attacks in evening. Pains seem intolerable. Pains < eructation; at night, > warm compresses; (at night, > sitting up in bed); < neck, throat and occiput, when standing long and keeping body in one position; composed of itching and sticking, in spots, now in one part, now in another, < scratching. Bruised pain in stormy weather. Drawing pain in all bones, even in occiput; in head, now in shoulder-joint and hip-joint, now in lower limbs; in scapula, chest and hands, as from taking cold.

Oppression; on moving; in morning, with irritability. Feeling of impending illness. Uneasiness; anxiety, agonizing tossing about, with tearing in abdomen (Acon.); cannot remain in bed.

Weakness; in morning; during rest; when the pain begins; > motion, with inability for earnest thought; in attacks, < limbs; sudden, while sitting and walking, < knees, with cracking of knees; faintlike; faintlike, after breakfast; paralytic, of painful parts, > walking, the pains < sitting or lying, < parts at rest or tensely drawn, for instance, in wrist when writing. Faintness; and sickness, sinking about heart, sudden paralyzed feeling in legs, pain in all limbs as if beaten (compare Tanac.). Paralyzed feeling in parts where pains had ceased; the paralytic feeling in any part is always accompanied by drawing or tearing pain, and the drawing or tearing pains rarely occur without the paralytic or numb sensation in the part (see Tanacet.). Stiffness. Aggravation on r. side; of all symptoms by walking. Amelioration when walking; during midday heat; by sweat.

Clinical.—Rheumatism and rheumatoid pains, the pains make the patient wild and walk about in distress. Convulsions in children brought on by excitement, especially with one cheek red and the other pale, and hot sweat.

Mind.—Whining restlessness, the child wants this and that, but when given it he will not have it or pushes it away. Piteous moaning of a child because he cannot have what he wants. The child can only be quiet when carried on the arm. Moans on account of trifling, even imaginary insults; moans with heat of face. Weeping and wailing. Talking strangely at night while awake and sitting up in bed. Peevishness (Puls., Ant. cr.); about everything, with dyspœa; about pains, especially those which involved joints and extended along bones, as paralytic and drawing pains; in morning on rising, with disinclination to mental labor; on appearance of menses, with obstinacy even to quarreling; after dinner; the hypochondriac whims and peevishness seem to him to depend upon stupidity and heaviness of head and constipation. Impatience (Ign.); everything goes too slowly. Intolerance of being spoken to or interrupted, < after rising from sleep, with sluggish pupils. Reserved. Taciturn; and earnest, reconciled to his fate, about which he is deeply affected (later action). Talks with aversion, in a short, abrupt way. Cannot stop talking about old vexations. Quarrelsome. Suspicious that he may have been insulted. Inclined to scold. Gloomy. Anxiety (Acon.); in bed, with rapidly changing pupils; while urinating, without mechanical hindrance; with ineffectual urging to urinate, without much urine in bladder; and dissatisfaction with everything that she undertakes, irresolution, with flushes of heat in face and cool sweat in palms; with uncleanliness; with trembling and palpitation; as if he must go to stool. Apprehension. Dread of wind; of work. (Conscientious scruples about everything.)

Excitement; and confusion. Joyless dullness of senses, with ineffectual desire to sleep. Waking stupefied slumber or inability to open eyes, quick expiration, tearing in forehead and nausea. Omission of words when writing or speaking. Stammering, mistakes in speaking. Vanishing of thought; in afternoon. Inattention. Ideas fixed (later action). Stupefaction, with vertigo; with compression of brain. Comprehends nothing aright, as if deaf or in a waking dream. Misunderstands questions, answers incorrectly, with a subdued voice, as if delirious. Exhaustion; in evening. Indolence; in morning. At night it seems as if he heard voices of absent persons. Mistakes a familiar person for a different (larger) one, while overpowered with sleep. Unconsciousness in a child, frequent changes in face, distortion of eyes, contraction of facial muscles, rattling in chest, cough, yawning and stretching.

Clinical.—The great indication for the use of Chamomilla is to be found in the mental condition of the patient; children are extremely restless and impatient, they want to be petted constantly and carried about, and they cry piteously if they cannot have everything they want; older people are peevish and impatient, extremely sensitive to pain, even the slightest twinge is intolerable, they are always complaining. It is not infrequently indicated in people who have been in the habit of taking opium, bromide of potash, etc. These mental symptoms will call for the drug in a great variety of neuralgias, painful diseases, hysterical symptoms, etc., even if indications other than the preceding are wanting; it, at least, changes the aspect of the case and makes it more amenable to treatment.

Head.—Wagging backward and forward. Inclination to bend backward. Inability to hold erect, necessity to bend far forward or far backward. Stitches; as if eyes would fall out. Tearing at night. Burrowing, < forehead and temples. Pressure increasing and decreasing, < half of forehead and in r. temple, where there are stitches, which sometimes extend to occiput like electric sparks.

Aching; in morning, > when fully awake; in evening; in afternoon, with heaviness and with stitches in temples, < r.; after eating; after sitting a long time after mental exertion, with vertigo; even in sleep; after waking, < mental effort, especially the pressure in vertex extending to forehead and temples, with sensation as if temples were pressed by thumbs; on waking, < motion, earnest thought, reading, < in forehead, with inability to fix attention; < evening, with weakness of head; with pressure as from a finger, sometimes in temples, sometimes in lower part of forehead and in frontal eminences, with inclination to bend head backward; with pain in eyeballs and sensation in r. half of head, < r. temple, as from an angle pressing into head; mostly one-sided frontal, > dinner and eructations, with warmth of head and vertigo; throbbing, as if it would burst, on waking; consisting of heaviness and bruised sensation; confused, when sitting and reflecting; paroxysmal, in morning; periodical, stupefying, in afternoon, beginning with pressure upon vertex, then extending to forehead and temples. Brain feels constricted by meninges; by dura mater, > appearance of heat in head and sweat.

Confusion; 5 A.M. on waking, and stupefaction; morning on waking; morning after waking; in morning, with sticking and boring, < r. temple; afternoon, with pressure on eyes; afternoon, with paroxysmal pressure; < lying; > nosebleed, with abnormal sensations in nose; with disinclination to mental labor, which aggravated the headache. Stupefaction; 7 P.M., with vertigo, < closing eyes. Fulness. Pulsation. Heaviness; morning on waking; 6 P.M., with pressure and burrowing in temples, < r. Congestion; 5 A.M.; < mental work, with pressure on vertex. Rush of blood; at noon during the heat, > in evening while walking in cool air, with pain; 3 P.M., > 7 P.M. by nosebleed, with stitches; and to nose, with full sensation; and to chest; and to chest, on earnest thinking, with stitches in r. chest. Vertigo (Tanac.); in morning; forenoon; after eating (Petrol.); after coffee; on rising after long sitting; while sitting erect; after long stooping and some cough; (on stooping); (after lying down, with dim vision and heat in face); < when talking; staggering, in morning on rising; in attacks, with tendency to faint; as if head were top-heavy, when walking after eating; in evening, as if unable to collect his senses; even to faintness.

Forehead.—Stitches; in r. eminence. (Tearing while sitting or turning in bed, with sensation as if a lump were falling forward); paroxysmal T.; sticking, extending into chest. Digging; and in r. temple, changing to sensation of a sharp corner pressing inward. Pressure; forenoon; above eyes; over r., eye towards noon, with pressure on r. ball; in protuberances, < sitting and studying, > walking; now r., now l. eminence, with digging; in sagittal suture, with aching and heaviness. Pain; < moving head; in bones; over r., with pressure upon eyes and stitches in r. temple; jerking, < eating. Constriction as with a broad band. Heaviness and dulness.

Temples.—Swelling of l., with pain on touch. Stitches in r.; l.; now r., now l.; > cooling rain, with pressure and rush of blood to head; boring, in r., with heaviness and digging in head. Tearing in one; extending outward, with sticking. Digging; < r., with pressure. Pressure as with a finger, also < mental work; and in vertex, with sticking, > midday heat, with stitches in l. temple. Pain; l.; l. then heat in forehead, with pain in it; wandering, always < at the beginning. Compression; forenoon. Painful pulsation in arteries towards noon, with compressive pain in r. temple.

Vertex.—Stitches extending to pharynx. Pressure; forenoon; < r. side, extending to forehead and temples; extending over forehead and temples, < directing attention to it, and sudden stooping and mental exertion; extending to temples and occiput, with sensation as if head were pressed from all sides; extending to neighboring parts, < forehead and temples, < r. side, with pressure often on r. eyeball in region of superior oblique muscle; extending over head, the head seems pressed from all sides, < r. temple; in upper part of brain, extending as a compression over skull. Pain; in r. side at noon; extending over forehead and temples. Biting.

Sides.—Stitches in r.; in r. bone; in region of parietal eminences; in one half of brain, < r.; in one half, as after taking cold. Pain, with warmth in head and vertigo. Throbbing in attacks in one half of brain. Drawing pain. Cracking in l. half of brain, with grating.

Occiput.—Stitches; jerking in l.; pain in l. Heaviness; and confusion. Fulness.

Scalp.—Stitches, < vertex, as if seated in bone.

Eyes.—Swollen in morning and agglutinated, with purulent mucus. Inflamed in morning and full of gum. Stitches. Pressure. Heat; with feeling as if their surfaces were dry and rough; then lachrymation, then heat about eyes. Lachrymation; of r. Sensation as if ball were drawn backward. Pupils contracted; and immovable; dilated. Lids swollen, bluish-red, l. then r., cannot open them; half-open in morning, eyes turned downward, pupils dilated, stupid drowsiness; trembling of r. lower; agglutination after sleep; inner surface and ball covered with yellowish, purulent mucus and bloody fluid, pressure on lids brings out blood or pus, oozing of blood on screaming and coughing; dried pus in canthi and on margins; canthi full of matter in morning; pain beneath upper on moving eyes and on shaking head; sore feeling in outer canthi, with denuded sore lips. Dryness of Meibomian glands. Congestion in white of r. inner canthus.

Conjunctiva swollen and dark red. Stitches in orbital region; r.; after waking, and in eyes, with pain as if pressed with fingers; in upper and inner part, through nasal canal into nose. Pressure in orbital region; pressure in orbital region, sensation as if ball were compressed from all sides and obscuration of vision (Nat. m.). Sensitiveness to light. Weakness in morning, by the light it seemed as if rays of light passed from the eyes to the flame. Blackness before eyes. Vision dim; with chilliness; obscured at side if vision is fixed upon a white object. Flickering.

Chical.—Various forms of inflammation, ophthalmia neonatorum (purulent ophthalmia), keratitis, especially of the pustular variety.

Ears.—Stitches, < stooping, with ill humor about trifles; from tragus into meatus; in region of r. tragus and spasmodic sensation, sometimes extending into auditory canal; above l.; in meatus; in r. meatus; from tragus into external meatus, with contraction; in r. mastoid process. Tearing; (in r. lobule). Pressure in middle on stooping, as from a blow. Sensation as if stopped, and as if a bird were rustling and scratching in them. Dulness before ears in evening. Intolerance of music. Ringing in r., with stitches in r. tragus, extending into meatus. Roaring; afternoon; in r., with ringing; as from rushing of water.

Chical.—Earache, with soreness, swelling and heat, driving the patient frantic.

Nose.—Ulceration of nostrils. Pressive stitches in bones. Dryness; in morning and stoppage, tension and heaviness; and pain on border of l. wing on touch, as if a pustule would form. Heat, > bleeding, with dryness. Fulness. Stoppage, with heat in it; stoppage, with mucous discharge; with rush of blood to it; with sensation as if he would have nosebleed. Crawling; with lachrymation; in r. nostril at 10 A.M., as before coryza; in forenoon, with fulness. Irritation to sneeze, with crawling, dry heat, stopped sensation, feeling as if coryza would appear, also with pressure in forehead. Sneezing; in evening. Coryza; thin, fluent. Bleeding; in afternoon; from r. nostril, with increase of inflammation of l. wing. Sensitiveness to all smells (Acon.). Offensive smell to beer.

Chical.—Nasal catarrh, with inability to sleep.

Face.—One cheek red (Acon.) in paroxysms. Puffy, and hands. Lips crack (Nat. m.) and peel (Puls.); crack in middle of lower (Nat. c.); scabby ulceration on borders; dry; dry at night and sticking together, without thirst. Stitches in jaw, extending into inner ear; in r. joint, extending into upper back teeth; pain on opening as if masseters were cramped, extending into teeth; heaviness, with burrowing in alveoli; heaviness of lower at 1 P.M. Weak feeling in muscles of mastication, with inclination to hold mouth open and with salivation.

Mouth.—Teeth. Covering of mucus. Looseness. Stitches in lower, in morning; in roots of l. upper molars; in r. lower back, with pressure and with heaviness of lower alveoli; intermittent, back and forth, extending to eye, < drinking cold water, with swelling of cheek and salivation; jerking through roots of hollow back, with digging, and with heaviness of upper alveoli. Tearing evenings, < tea, with restlessness and heat in face; towards ear, with swelling of cheek. Digging in back, < lower, with pressure; in roots of lower back. Boring in morning on waking, with digging; in roots of back, with digging; in roots, < hollow ones, momentarily > cold water, then <, with digging. Aching in second and third back in afternoon; A. after eating and drinking; while eating; after warm food; in l. upper after warm food (Puls.); in diseased l. upper back during breakfast; (in warm room); < after warm drink (Puls.), < coffee; < night, when they drive one to the borders of distraction, with thirst and redness of one cheek and hot sweat on head (Acon.); of l. lower canine and incisor next to it, < touch of tongue; in l. upper hollow back, > dinner, < supper; with swelling of cheek; as from exposure to cold air when sweating; as if something scratched the nerve, from 3 to 7 A.M., then jerklike stitches; pressing-asunder; throbbing, in second and third r. lower molars, < pressure, > cold water. Drawing pain; after eating and drinking; in indefinite teeth, > eating, < night, with feeling as if teeth were too long; in lower, towards the front; grumbling. Grumbling in upper, with crawling. Sensitiveness to touch; < hollow back; < hollow upper; in l. canine and first molar of both jaws. Throbbing in roots of back, < r. upper. Sensation in upper back as if they were heavy and dragged downward. Distended sensation in roots of upper back, in morning, with heaviness.

Gum.—Swelling; of second and third r. molar, with redness, easy bleeding and pain on pressure; sensation of swelling about some of the molars.

Alveoli.—Stitches. Burrowing in some molars, with heaviness, seeming intolerable and making him peevish. Fulness and heaviness of first and second molars, with burrowing and boring in their roots and sensation as if the alveoli formed hard, tense swelling. Pain in r. upper; of upper second and molar; intermittent, of second and third upper molars, < r., extending into malar-bone, with feeling as if distended by wind. Pressure; of second and third upper molars, extending to beneath eyes; at 6 P.M., < lower, where it seemed to start from anterior foramen (mental foramen); of upper back teeth. Tensive pressing-asunder in upper, < second and third molars. Throbbing and heat in A. and gum of upper back teeth at 9 A.M., then about lower jaw, with boring and digging in roots of teeth, momentarily > cold water. Heaviness; in upper, < r.; of lower, < in last molars.

Tongue coated; yellow; dirty white; with slime; blisters on and beneath it, with stinging; red; smarting on back and on palate; dry; with thirst for water, loss of appetite, flushes of heat, sweat of face and palpitation, then unnatural hunger. Jerking from posterior end of hard palate to scalp. Spasmodic drawing pain in palate towards fauces. Scraping-burning in back part towards noon. Tickling in hard palate. Dryness in morning, with bitter-tasting mucus; in morning, then distention of abdomen and imperfect stool. Stitches in salivary glands. Pressure in salivary glands. Salivation; of sweetish, metallic taste, also after supper; tough. Foul breath after dinner. Taste bitter; in morning; bitter, aromatic; fatty; like rancid fat, to everything; sour; sour to bread; slimy; (putrid at night).

Clinical.—Various toothaches and neuralgias of the face. Extremely valuable in the distress of teething children.

Throat.—Spasmodic contraction of external pterygoid muscle; l. Sticking in parotid; r., with pressure. Pressure in parotid, with tension and salivation. (Throbbing pain in submaxillary glands.) Tough mucus, causing hawking. Hawking of mucus and blood; offensive taste to what he hawks up. Stitches in tonsils; r.; with sensitiveness to touch. Pain; in l. side of fauces on swallowing, redness of velum and pain in fauces on pressure under angle of jaw; in back part, < moving throat and swallowing; burning pain in soft palate, with irritation to cough. Pressure in pharynx, obliging frequent swallowing; P. in soft palate, with stitches. Constriction of pharynx; in morning and towards noon; afternoon; with stitches extending to base of skull; with pressure on hard palate; spasmodic. Tension in soft palate, then spasmodic contraction in it; tension and pressure, with pressure upon uvula. Oppression.

Soreness, with swelling of parotid; on swallowing, as from a plug. Rawness. Throbbing in back part. Swollen sensation in tonsils; in morning, with difficult swallowing; with feeling of hardness and heaviness. Food at supper seems to remain in pit, with fullness, nausea and eructations. Uvula feels too long. Tickling in soft palate at noon. Feeling in œsophagus as if a ball filled with air were raised into throat by contraction of œsophagus, with anxiety.

Stomach.—Appetite diminished; with pressure and tension in stomach and nausea, which was > by eating; lost; but returned on eating. Disgust at food. Shuddering when food is set before him. Aversion to animal food; (to broth). Unnatural hunger in evening. (Desire for sauerkraut.) Thirst; in evening; with febrile heat and redness of cheeks; unquenchable (Acon). Eructations (Puls.); after breakfast; after supper, with pain in abdomen, near l. anterior superior spinous process of ilium; of gas smelling like bad eggs (Sulph.); sour; almost sour, after eating; as after radishes; of burnt-tasting, salt fluid, in afternoon; of food. Hiccough. Nausea; in morning; after morning coffee, with attacks of suffocation; 8 A.M.; after eating; after breakfast; with salivation; with tension in stomach; faintlike; faintlike in pit of stomach, > eating. Vomiting; bilious; sour (sour smell, from mouth); of food, caused at first by fullness of abdomen, then by nausea.

Rumbling. Stitches; in l. side near pit; in pit. Gripping in pit, inclined to extend to chest, in morning on getting out of bed, > pressure, warmth and bending double. Pain; on r. side near pit; in pit on pressure; and beneath short ribs, impeding breathing, < coffee. Pressure after eating a little; at cardiac orifice in afternoon, not seldom extending to œsophagus; < cardiac orifice, with spasmodic constriction; anxious erics about pain at pit as if it were pressed down, with sweat; as from a stone.

Constriction. Oppression; in pit, with pressure downward. Tension; and in œsophagus; and in umbilical region; spasmodic, and above navel; spasmodic, and about navel; spasmodic, extending along œsophagus to throat, with apprehension and nausea from profuse sweetish saliva. Drawing, with pain and heaviness as if distended by a hard body. Heaviness. Fullness; after eating; while eating, with nausea after eating; extending into pharynx, with heaviness and tension, and with heartburn. Heartburn. Burning; in epigastrium, with fullness. Coldness in epigastric region. Sinking at pit, he is beside himself with anxiety, moans and sweats. Indigestion.

Clinical.—Gastralgia.

Abdomen.—Distention; in evening on going to sleep, with hardness; after eating; with tension; with hardness. Tympanitis in afternoon. Rumbling; < below navel; with feeling as before diarrhoea; with cutting as before diarrhoea, > pressure and rubbing; with pain and sensation as before diarrhoea, > emission of flatus which has the odor of sulphuretted hydrogen. Emission of flatus.

Sticking; and in anus; on walking, > pressure; while walking or breathing deeply, < in hepatic region; after dinner, with urging to stool, and stool; with urging to stool and passage of flatus; transversely across; before midnight, extending into chest, with thirst; into chest after starting as in fright; as from flatulence, extending into middle of chest. Cutting rather than sticking, with salivation; C. before menses, with drawing in thighs; C. in afternoon, extending downward into bladder, > emission of flatus and rubbing; on waking, extending deep into pelvis. Pinching. Gripping; after a glass of water, with rumbling.

Pain; in morning in bed, > doubling up; with rumbling, urging to stool, which consisted of dissolved feces, with rushing wind, the pain causing nausea and sweat, < on face; intolerable at sunrise; intermittent, with flatulence in hypochondria and stitches through chest; flatulent; flatulent, with motions of flatus as if it would push through muscles, rumbling and grumbling, pushing especially on abdominal rings, then emission of flatus; compressive; drawing. Troubles as in constipation. Tension, < above navel, with nausea. Sensation as if hollow, with constant motion in it (with blue rings around eyes), when the attack occurs in the evening it is associated with anxiety. Coldness, < region of kidneys, extending over back, lasting between scapulae, with stitches in r. frontal eminence.

Upper painfully distended in morning. Nausea in upper in morning on rising, causing anxiety, restlessness and peevishness. Gripping-tearing in region of navel and lower down on sides, with pain in small of back as if broken; cutting above navel after dinner. Pain above navel. Gurgling in side extending into abdomen. Sticking in r. side; l. while walking. Tearing in side as if parts were rolled into a ball. Stitches in r. hypochondria; < walking and standing; in l. on walking, > pressure and retracting abdomen. Tensive pain in hypochondriac region, with tension around brain and dry catarrh in chest. Pressure in hypochondria and stomach after eating. Pushing outward of flatus in hypochondria. Sensation as if a hernia would protrude in hepatic region while walking; while sitting, > pressure and rubbing; below anterior margin of liver while walking at noon, > pressure and rubbing.

Stitches above pubis; in r. inguinal region, with sensation as if something would protrude; near r. ilium after violent running; near ilium, < l., when walking, < after eating, > pressure or bending far forward while walking. Cutting deep in pelvis, > emission of odorless flatus; spasmodic, in lowest part of abdomen in morning. Pain above pubis after dinner; near r. and l. anterior-superior spinous process after breakfast. Bruised pain in lower muscles. Dragging towards ring as if a hernia would appear. Uneasiness along crest of ilium on motion, with pain.

Clinical.—Flatulent colic. Colic, especially after anger, with red cheeks and hot perspiration. Indigestion produced by anger.

Rectum.—Sticking after stool. Urging to stool in morning on rising; after eating. Blind hemorrhoids; tendency to; bleeding (Puls.). Itching pain in anus.

Stool.—Diarrhœa; nightly, with colic so that she must bend double; hot, smelling like rotten eggs; green, watery (Puls., Grat., Mag.), painless, consisting of feces and mucus; white, slimy, with colic; watery, also with colic; painful at night, with nausea; with pain and passage of wind. Hard; and sluggish. Constipation; from inactivity of rectum. Diminished. Dark. Light-colored, with griping. Fœces coated with mucus, with mucus between the feces (Graph.). (Undigested.) Like those of a healthy baby, bile increased.

Clinical.—Diarrhœa, green, slimy, mucous; chopped, white and yellow mucus; often of a changeable color; often undigested; often like chopped eggs and spinach; nearly always of foul odor, especially in children during teething or after taking cold; associated with colic, often with soreness of the anus.

Urinary Organs.—Sticking in neck of bladder when not urinating. Burning in neck of bladder when urinating. Micturition in a weak stream; involuntary M. Biting pain in urethra when urinating. Urine increased.

Sexual Organs.—Stitches in "bulbo-cavernous" muscles; itching, on margin of prepuce. Itching of prepuce and glans. Soreness on margin of prepuce. Erections; in morning in bed; violent; violent in afternoon. Itching of scrotum. Desire (later action). Emissions nightly.

Female. — Smarting-burning in vagina. Acrid, watery discharge after dinner; yellow, biting leucorrhœa. Discharge of dark blood from a newly-born girl. Drawing from anterior part of small of back, griping and pinching in uterus, then discharge of large clots of blood. Dragging towards uterus like labor pains, with frequent urging to urinate. Profuse discharge of clotted blood, with labor pains in uterus and tearing in veins of legs. Metrorrhagia; even in old people. Suppression of menses, with swelling of pit of stomach and pain as if it would be pressed down, swollen abdomen, labor pains and anasarca.

Clinical.—A very valuable remedy for uterine hemorrhages, the flow is irregular, dark and clotted; sometimes there is constant oozing of dark, foul blood, with occasional bright gushes (Bell.). Membranous dysmenorrhœa. Menstrual colic, especially the result of anger. Severe pains following labor, especially if they extend down thighs, with great nervous excitement. Threatening miscarriage from fits of anger. During labor the patient is intolerant of the pain, the os is rigid and the pains extend into the thighs. Puerperal convulsions after anger, one cheek hot, the other pale. Suppression of milk from anger. Inflamed breasts.

Respiratory Organs.—Tickling in afternoon, with irritation to hacking cough. Larynx raw; and scraping; oppression in region, with constriction; tickling in morning, with hacking cough and expectoration of clear blood; irritation to cough, with sweetish mucus, which rises from trachea into larynx, but is involuntarily swallowed; feeling as if a fluid would rise out of it; burning. Hoarseness; on account of tough mucus in larynx, which is only detached by violent hawking; catarrhal, of trachea, with dryness of eyelids. Trachea, whistling, wheezing and rattling when breathing; mucus, with rattling respiration; rawness in upper part; pressure, with irritation to cough (Acon.).

Cough at night from irritation low in trachea; in a paroxysm at midnight, with which something seems to rise into throat, as if she would suffocate; on account of rattling mucus in upper part of trachea, with pain in place from which the mucus was detached (when the child is angry); dry; dry in sleep; dry on account of itching and tickling in trachea behind pit of throat. Expectoration of blood after tickling in larynx and trachea. Moaning and groaning. Short breath after a short, rapid walk, with palpitation and small, hard, rapid pulse; and croaking; and deep, with heaviness of chest. Rapid breathing.

Clinical.—Catarrhal laryngitis, with hoarseness and rawness in larynx. Catarrhal croup in children, with suffocative attacks. Bronchitis, with free expectoration of mucus, especially in children. Irritable dry cough from tickling in larynx. Expectoration only occasionally. (All cough symptoms to be compared with Puls.)

Chest.—Scirrhus hardness of mamma. Rattling in r. in night on waking, > hawking of clear blood. Jerking in l. pectoralis major. Stitches; in r.; in inner part of r.; r., about nipple; in r., near sternum; near r. side of ensiform process; in r. nipple; anteriorly in region of r. fifth rib, also in evening, < deep breathing; in cartilages of r. sixth and seventh ribs; in streaks along l. ribs, above nipple and around it, then above heart, and in anterior half of seventh and eighth ribs; above l. nipple; below l. nipple; in l. lower part; anteriorly on l. lower part; in cartilages of l. sixth rib; to l. of middle of sternum; beneath ensiform cartilage, somewhat to l.; above heart; deep above heart during the day, < morning; in r. half at 11 A.M.; r. half in forenoon; beneath ribs and scapula when breathing; through chest on every respiration; from middle towards r. side after every expiration; between l. nipple and sternum on inspiration.

Tearing in clavicle and neck. Pinching transversely across upper in evening. Pain beneath sternum; under l. clavicle after long sitting; on r. side after long stooping, then in l., then farther backward; beneath sternum, impeding breathing; drawing, in r. or feeling as if repeatedly drawn inward; tensive, across chest on inspiration; burning, from beneath sternum to mouth. Pressure above r. nipple; below r. clavicle, and sticking in small of back. Constriction; on level with nipples; in upper part, which hurts on coughing. Suffocative tightness, constriction of larynx, in region of pit of throat, irritation to cough (Puls., Sulph.). Oppression; in morning; at 11 A.M., while sitting, pain while walking; as from flatulency in upper abdomen, with pain, and with pain in stomach as in beginning of heartburn, then burning in spine. Contraction. Internal soreness, as if bruised. Irritation to cough beneath upper part of sternum, without cough. Burning, with dulness of head, as if he did not know where he was, with anxiety. Rush of blood.

Heart.—Stitches; above r. ventricle; during motion, arresting breathing; flying, in cardiac region and extending, now shooting, now drawing, now r., now l., down legs to dorsum of feet and ankles, then back to r. shoulder or hip or l. side of head. Nausea. Sinking about. Rush of blood. Palpitation.

Pulse.—Rapid; and irregular; and small and tense. Hard and full in morning on waking. At one time strong, at another small and weak, also irregular as to frequency. Small and soft; small in morning and easily compressible.

Neck.—Stitches near ear. Pain behind l. ear; rheumatic pain in muscles. (Tensive stiffness of muscles.)

Back.—Stitches; forenoon; towards evening; on inspiration; on l. side. Tearing; drawing. Pain; afternoon; 11 P.M.; on long sitting; drawing. Bruised sensation in muscles of back and loins; B. pain in morning on waking; on lying down to sleep, with drawing along nerves, extending into pelvis and parietes of abdomen; < stooping. Fulness after eating, with anxiety and tearing, afterwards extending to abdomen.

Contractive sensation in spine. Stitches in r. scapula; in region of r.; between r. and spine; in r. cucullaris muscle; jerking, in region of r. scapula in evening. Pain in r. scapula while stooping; in r. acromion. Bruised sensation in rhomboid muscles of scapula; B. pain between scapulae, < stooping, and in intercostal muscles.

Lumbar Region.—Stitches; r. Pain in afternoon after sitting; pain after stooping, with bruised feeling and stitches; in sacral region, < night; unbearable, at night if he lies on opposite side, and in hip-joint; (labor pain); drawing paralytic pain extending into thigh. Feeling in bed as if it would be broken, with dragging and drawing pains extending from hepatic region over abdomen deep into pelvis. Bruised feeling, also after stooping; on lying down to sleep, with drawing along nerves extending into pelvis and parietes of abdomen; with drawing and pressure extending into walls of abdomen; extending with drawing over walls of abdomen to inguinal region. Drawing pain when stretching on walking. Stiff pain after sitting. Weakness.

Extremities.—Cracking of joints, < lower, with bruised pain in joints. Jerking on falling asleep. Trembling of legs and hands. Stitches around joints, < shoulders and ankles; around joints, < r. knee; in joints, extending into bones; in ankles, knees and wrists, extending outward and downward into long bones; deep in joints, usually with paralytic feeling; in arms and legs, following the nerves, with weakness; paralytic, from joints along long bones, > rising; wandering, in joints, extending into long bones, with feeling as if pain in bones would appear. Tearing; > tossing about in bed; in joints, < of arms; wandering; < arms and legs, now in lower, now in upper half of fibula, then along tibia, now in metacarpal, now in metatarsal bones and < along outer side of radius, then pain in knees and elbows, along flexor surface, in tendons and in bellies of flexors, < stretching joints. Drawing-tearing jerks in shafts of bones or in tendons.

Pain; in knees and elbows; l. forearm and r. leg; in periosteum, with paralytic weakness; wandering, < at the beginning; in joints on motion, as if they were stiff and would break; rheumatic, in bends of knees and elbows. Drawing pain now in fibula, now in ulna, extending from joint above; the drawing pains and stitches about joint seem intolerable and make him peevish; paralytic D. pain in various joints, in elbows, wrists, knees, extending thence along bones, then weakness. Drawing in articular ends of long bones, with digging; D. in joints, jumping from one to another, in morning; D. and tearing, < along r. forearm into wrist, with feeling in forearm as from pressure on nerves. Soreness of all joints as if bruised and tired out (Arm.), no power in hands and feet, though without ordinary weariness. Bruised feeling; in joints at 7 P.M., < r. wrist; even in bones, with stitches in ulna and tibia, which seem to start from joints; preventing sleep. Paralytic pains in volar surface of metatarsus or dorsal surface of metacarpus or lower half of bones of forearm and leg, < on their dorsal surface.

Weakness; sudden; of joints; in forenoon; < rest, > motion and going into open air, with heaviness and with drawing pain in shoulders and ankles, and especially weakness and restlessness of arms. Heaviness; in forenoon, with wandering tearing in r. upper arm, l. leg, back, temporal muscles, finally seated in l. teeth; on waking, with general weakness; with yawning and sleepiness. Numbness of hands and feet as if they would freeze.

Upper Extremities.—Stitches beneath r. axilla; like electric sparks in l. shoulder, extending into muscles of nape. Pain in r. shoulder-joint in afternoon, and at times in its vicinity.

Arm.—Stitches through r. into shoulder; along bones, < in forearms and in metacarpal bones, < r. Tearing in muscles in morning after waking, < in flexors of forearm; along nerves; < cool evening air; crawling, in shafts of bones, as if numb and asleep, extending into fingers. Drawing or tearing in articular ligaments and periosteum, from shoulders to fingers, after midnight, < later in night, > lying on painful arm. Paralytic pain along nerves to finger-tips; in muscles, < flexors, and extending along nerves into hands, alternately in both arms, at one time in median, at another in ulnar or radial nerve. Stiffness as if it would go to sleep when grasping anything. Going to sleep of l.; going to sleep on grasping anything firmly. Pricking, numb feeling, waking at night.

Upper Arm.—Pain in r. and in shoulder-joint. Bruised pain in r. biceps and brachialis, < pressure.

Elbow.—Stitches in r.; l.; l. at noon; on outer side of l. in afternoon; in r. in forenoon, with jerking-biting, and along ulnar side of forearm. Pain in r.; below internal condyle, as if ulnar nerve were compressed; as after carrying arms bent, < extending arms. Drawing and paralytic pains and in hands. Paralytic feeling in region of head of radius and of tendon of biceps, extending into middle of upper arm; in r., as from pressure on ulnar nerve. Paralytic drawing extending along nerves, with sticking.

Forearm.—Stitches on outer side of upper half of r.; through middle of dorsal surface of r.; along ulna, with drawing. Pain in l. above wrist; drawing, internally from elbow to finger-tips late in evening; bruised, in muscles, < l. Paralytic pain along r. radial nerve, < lower half; in ulna, extending to tip of little finger; as from pressure upon radial nerves, also extending to middle of hands. Feeling as if too short, and on bending hand backward pain in arteries on flexor surface, < below styloid process. Arteries feel too short, < radial, with spasmodic pain; ulnar, with pain in arteries on bending hand backward. Spasmodic feeling in l. flexors as if asleep.

Wrist.—Stitches in vicinity; in l.; from r. to middle of forearm, with paralytic pain; drawing, extending in part along metacarpal bones into hands, in part along inner surface of radius. Pain; drawing.

Hand.—Swelling of veins on dorsum. Stitches in ball of l., also at 10 P.M.; on inner margin of l.; in dorsal surface of r.; on dorsal surface of l., then r.; on dorsal surface, between l. thumb and index; in metacarpal bone of thumb; in metacarpal bones, < r. and < dorsal surface of fourth and fifth, with paralytic feeling. Pain in l.; burning, in afternoon. Drawing in metacarpal bones, < interosseous surface, with stitching.

Fingers.—Stitches in r. index; in third joint of r. index; third phalanx of r. index; in little; on dorsal surface of l. little; in thumb; in first joint of r. thumb; about first joint of r. thumb in afternoon; in flexor surface of second phalanx of r. thumb; in first phalanx of r. thumb, extending forward from upper joint. Sticking-jerking in first joint of r. thumb. Pain in tip of l. ring; sprained, in thumb and index on motion. Going to sleep in morning.

Lower Extremities.—Drawing and tension in joints, < knees. Weakness; and heaviness.

Thigh.—Stitches above r. gluteus maximus; in r. nates; deep in l. nates; along l.; lower half of r.; in outer side below nates; on outer side of lower half of r., also on bending leg; on outer side of l. in evening, with difficulty in walking; in forepart of lower half of l.; upward in l. Tearing, and in legs. Pain; on posterior surface of r. when walking; on posterior part of r. while extending leg in walking, < inner side; in hips; indescribable, on rising from a seat and when lying if stretched out; in hip-joint as if dislocated, in evening on walking after sitting; bruised; bruised, on anterior surface on walking, with weakness; tense, in r. while bearing weight upon leg with knee bent; paralytic, on outer side of r. Paralytic stiffness, with weariness like a bruise. (Compare hip and thigh with Gnaphalium.)

Knee.—Creaking on motion, with cracking. Giving way at 7 P.M. on walking. Spasmodic contraction in muscles, as after a fatiguing walk. Stitches; r., then l.; r., and in hip; r., and in l. ankle; on inner side of r.; outer side of r.; outer side of l., and in neighboring parts of thigh; near patella; deep under patella; in l. patella; in inner side of patella and in several places in joints; now l., now r., now both, with pain in popliteal artery as if too short; on outer side of r. in morning; in anterior surface of r. on bending it. Feeling on inner side of patella as if a blunt plug had been forced under it, < r. side. Drawing tearing extending to ankle. Pain; tense, in hollow on stretching; drawing, extending through leg late in evening; spasmodic contracting, in r. popliteal artery, as after a fatiguing march. Feeling as if articular surfaces were separated; r., then l.; on walking. Tension. Feeling as if popliteal artery were too short while sitting. Sensation in hollow as if an artery were swollen and painful. Weakness.

Leg.—Cramp in calves; night in bed when stretching out feet, > bending knee. Stitches below head of fibula; r.; in middle of forepart of r. leg; on outer side below l. knee on walking; on outer side of r. calf, extending downward into leg. Pain below head of fibula at 5 P.M., as from pressure on ulnar nerve at elbow, extending downward, < lower half of r. leg; pain in peroneus tertius (?) as after ascending a mountain, with pain along extensors of l. foot, then pain along nerve peroneus extending to middle of thigh, < at lower part of interosseous ligament, with stitches in metatarsal bone of l. great toe, which feels asleep, and constriction above ankle. Pressure below head of fibula; as from pressure on a nerve; upon peroneal nerve below head of fibula; along peroneal nerve, with crawling. Bruised pain in muscles; peroneal. Feeling as of a broad bandage, < sitting, with heaviness. Tension in calves. Paralytic pain on anterior and inner side; in peroneal muscles, with bruised feeling; P. feeling beneath head of r. fibula, extending downward. Pain as after an exhausting climb; feeling as after a long march, > motion. Necessity to stretch to get rested. Weakness; in muscles of calves in morning; with inclination to stretch them. Crawling in calves, with heaviness; in l. calf, with weakness of it and of knees; C., gone-to-sleep feeling in l. calf. Prickling in calf, with stitches, weariness and heaviness in muscles. Heaviness in muscles of calves while sitting, with tingling-crawling. Falling asleep while sitting; feeling as if they would fall asleep.

Ankle.—Stitches in l. Tearing during rest. Sprained sensation. Constriction as of a band; of extensors above malleoli.

Foot.—Sudden swelling of one and of one sole. Spasmodic contraction of soles. Stitches on outer margin of l.; in soles along metatarsal bones; l. sole along first and second metatarsal bones. Tearing, with intolerance of bed-covers. Pain in middle of l. sole; in heel, as after long standing and as if os calcis would push through skin. Sprained pain in bones; in soles while lying. Itching pain internally in side of heel. Necessity to draw up on account of pain in calves and knees, on stretching out they fell asleep. Spasmodic sensation in muscles of soles. Drawing in l. sole. Weakness; nightly paralytic, with drawing pain in legs and ankles and pithy sensation in soles. Paralyzed sensation. Going to sleep; while sitting; l. while sitting.

Toes.—Spasmodic contraction, with tearing in limbs. Stitches in l. second. Bruised sensation in bellies of long flexors, as from a long walk. Sensation while sitting as if they would bend under and go to sleep, < great toe.

Skin.—Wrinkles in forehead above nose. Hard node beneath nipple, painful to touch, with at times drawing tearing. Eruption, slightly elevated, on nape, with biting, compelling scratching. Red spots covered with miliary pimples (Arnica). Red rash on cheeks; and on forehead. Edematous, unhealthy, injuries tend to suppurate. Pimples; red, on back; red, crowded into a red spot on lumbar vertebrae and on side of abdomen, they itch, < night, with smarting and with shuddering about the spot, < evening. Inflamed pustule on margin of ala nasi; pustules on face, itching on touch. Ulcer surrounded by red areola and itching; burning and biting pain in an ulcer at night, with crawling and hyperaesthesia to touch (Sulph.); jerking and sticking pain in an U.; (previously existing U. became painful); (on foot, with redness around it, swelling and bruised pain). Sticking, > scratching, with prickling. Biting on various parts. Itching of sweating parts; I. of forehead; nates; sole.

Sleep.—Yawning; in forenoon, with desire to stretch; without sleepiness, with gay activity; incomplete. On waking always found himself lying on r. side, with hand under head; on r. side, with legs drawn up or on r. half of back; on back or r. side. Sleepiness: during the day if he sits down, but inability to sleep if he lies down; while eating. Difficult and late waking; from an unpleasant and dreamy sleep. Late falling asleep on account of unpleasant thoughts. Sleeplessness and attacks of anxiety, with vivid fancies; S. till 2 A.M. on account of painful weakness in limbs, heat and restlessness. Frequent waking in sweat, which ceases on waking. Weeping and weailing. Starting up, crying out, tossing about and talking. Talking unintelligibly, directing that obstacles be removed. Moaning. Groaning, with hot, clammy sweat on forehead. Snoring inspirations; which are shorter than expirations, with open mouth and hot, clammy sweat on forehead. Restless, with frequent waking and difficult falling asleep again. Oppressive, his face looks fretful and sad. Unrefreshing. Dreams; towards morning, with emission; frightful; anxious; quarrelsome, vexatious; fantastic; vivid.

Clinical.—Sleeplessness in children.

Fever.—Chilliness; at 4 P.M., during which he said things which he would not have said, with nausea in abdomen lasting till 11 P.M., then throbbing-sticking in forehead, < lying; in evening on lying down, with which sounds seem to come from a distance, nausea, uneasiness, tossing about, stupefaction of head and dead feeling in skin when scratched; in evening, at night sweat and thirst; on uncovering; on going to sleep; (after eating, then heat in cheeks); over whole body, with heat of face, which comes out of eyes like fire; (with necessity to lie down, thirst during chill but not during heat, after heat sweat with sticking in l. half of brain, next morning bitter taste); alternating with heat; (internal, without external coldness, except cold feet, with thirst, then heat and sweat, but if she puts an arm out of bed chill, and if she covers it in bed sweat, with tearing in forehead).

Chill on anterior part of body. C. in various parts, alternating with heat, at one time hands cold at another warm, at one time forearm at another upper arm cold, at another warm, at one time forehead cold and cheeks hot, etc. (Acon.). Cold limbs, with heat of face and eyes and hot breath; cheeks, hand and feet, with heat on forehead, neck, chest, then heat and redness of r. cheek; in dorsal vertebrae, whence shivering extends over body; in region of kidneys, with attacks of shivering; creeping, in back at 11 A.M.; internal, in lumbar region, with general shivering; internal, in lumbar vertebrae, extending over abdomen, with shivering along spine. Hands, with cold sweat on palms; hands, with paralytic stiffness in them, confusion of head and sensitiveness to open air; fingers, and they are inclined to fall asleep; feet, evening on going to sleep.

Shaking chill in afternoon, with flow of saliva from mouth, bruised pain in back and side and pain in forehead, then heat at night, thirst and sleeplessness. Shivering in cold air; S. if he uncovers; with internal heat; with external heat; creeping over whole body, extending into limbs, with increased urine, weak and rapid pulse, then warmth in whole body, beginning in head, with shivering in body and external coldness, then sweat; on posterior part of body, of arms, of thighs and of back, in paroxysms, with external and internal dry heat, < forehead and face; in some parts, in face, then on arm, with and without external coldness; on single parts which are not cold, with sleepiness. In back; at 7 P.M., with bruised feeling in peroneal muscles; creeping over back and abdomen, alternating with heat; in thrills from back to abdomen; between scapulae; in morning on waking till 9 o'clock, < lumbar vertebrae.

Heat; in morning after coffee, with sweat, vomiting of bitter mucus, then bitter taste, weakness in head and nausea from 9 A.M. till noon; at night, with sleeplessness; at night, with restlessness; at night, with unquenchable thirst, dry tongue and stupefaction; before midnight when lying on back trying to sleep, with sweat; even in lightly covered parts, those not covered almost cold; dry; internal; sensation of external without external heat; external, with intolerance of bed-covers; flushes over whole body. In head; with confusion; with heaviness, < occiput; head and face; rushing over head and face; in head and face, with rush of blood and feeling as if sweat would break out while the skin remained very dry; flushes of dry, over head and trunk; burning in forehead. Of face; 6 P.M.; after eating and drinking, with sweat; with redness of cheeks; dry, with redness; in r. cheek; rising into cheeks; in cheeks in evening, with flying shivering. Of ears. Of hands. In l. foot, with sweat, then general sweat; burning in soles at night (Sulph.); burning and itching in feet as after freezing.

Sweat; in morning; (in morning, with biting in skin); at night from 10 to 3, without sleep, on slightest motion, with weariness; sour; on covered parts; < below temples; on face, neck and hands; on palms.

Chelidonium.

A tincture is prepared from the fresh plant of Chelidonium Majus, Linn.

General Action.—The most prominent action of Chelidonium is upon the liver. Symptoms of inflammation, of jaundice, of disturbed function of the bowels and kidneys and sympathetic affections of the right lung are numerous and well marked. See also the symptoms in joints, skin, etc.

Allies.—Caulophyll., Podophyll., Mercur., Bry., China, Mag. c., Bap., Phos., Lyc., Puls.

Generalities.—Emaciation. Reeling as if she would fall forward, without vertigo. Trembling of whole body. Stretching. Twiteling; now and then on various spots; in head, clavicle and limbs; of arms and legs, and in head on moving arm; on inner side of thigh, in feet and in back. Rising in anxiety and tearing clothing from neck and chest. Crying as soon as l. leg is moved or l. side is touched.

Stitches here and there; in afternoon; in pit of stomach, then in back, then in l. cheek-bone, then r., extending to temple; beneath r. scapula, then in perineum and testicles, and again in r. shoulder. Tearing and sticking here and there, extending downward, < in r. leg. Pain < afternoon, when it is spasmodic. Wandering pains in all parts: in upper limbs, in forehead, sides of nose and in upper jaw. Burning pain in spots on shoulders, trunk and arms. Bruised pain on moving about; B. as after a long march. Rheumatic or bruised pain in morning on waking, at nape and anterior part of neck, in shoulders and arms; R. pain now in r., now in l. upper part of body; drawing R. pain now here, now there, and in r. upper half of body, in shoulders, arms and wrists. Drawing pain from l. upper jaw to l. nostril, l. eye, l. meatus, l. temple, l. half of neck, l. scapula and l. ankle; in whole body, with fluent coriza. Drawing through whole body; towards noon; in head, teeth, jaws and shoulders.

General sick feeling. Affection as after a severe illness. General sensation as in influenza. Discomfort; without knowing what is the matter, necessity to lie down, inability to sleep and discontentment with everything. Excitement of whole body; from 10 to 11.30 P.M. Internal uneasiness; muscular U. in evening, alternating with pains in head and chest. Must be carried constantly.

Horror of movement. Inclination to lie down (China). Weakness (China), in morning; in morning after uneasy sleep; in morning on waking, also with sleepiness; in afternoon; at 2 P.M., with indolence and yawning; at night, with pain in kidneys; after dinner; when walking; when walking in open air; when sitting, with sleepiness; with inability to sleep. Indolence, > open air, with prostration and sleepiness; I, with sleepiness without yawning; of whole body, with uneasiness. Faintness; in evening on undressing, with anxiety in chest, trembling and short cough; on rising from bed. Heaviness; after eating, with disinclination for work and sleepiness. Numbness, with drowsiness; N. in muscles of hepatic region and in r. side of neck, face and head; (and insensibility, as from apoplexy, with trembling). Symptoms generally return at noon after eating (except the chill, instead of which there was internal heat, with internal burning between chest and shoulders). Amelioration from eructations; from a light-colored, pasty stool.

Clinical.—Great lethargy, debility, weariness and indisposition to make any effort (China).

Confusion of ideas, as when half asleep, > towards 3 o'clock, then pain in lumbar region till night. Unconsciousness at night on frequent waking, with heaviness of occiput, which seems fastened to pillow if she attempts to rise; > rubbing soles.

Clinical.—Low form of delirium, quiet in character, with the peculiar pneumonia of the drug. There have been some cures of melancholia associated with enlarged liver and jaundice. The mental condition is generally heavy, lethargic, disinclined to mental effort; convulsions associated with disturbances of digestion. Patients often feel as if they had committed a crime, or that they will go crazy, or they become very forgetful, etc.

Head.—Trembling. Inability to raise it in evening on lying down, and necessity to lift it with the hands. Sticking; when coughing. Tearing; sticking, here and there. Aching; on waking after 4 A.M.; on rising, also > breakfast; in forenoon on entering house; towards noon; in afternoon; towards evening, with chilliness; in evening; at night, with pain in l. temple; on rising; < afternoon, and extending to occiput; > evening by a nap; > closing eyes; > rubbing soles; with throbbing in temples; with throbbing in r. temple synchronous with pulse, as if over-distended with blood; with twitches here and there in it; as after intoxication; contractive; rheumatic. Pressure towards middle; P. in brain after breakfast; outward, < towards forehead, < open air, coughing, blowing nose or stooping, but not while eating. Feeling in morning as if surrounded by a band, with internal heaviness.

Dulness from 3 to 3.30 P.M., with rapid pulse. Confusion; in afternoon, with vertigo; on waking from nap after dinner, with heat in head; < towards evening, with sensation of a lump in brain; < l. side of forehead, extending to occipital protuberance; > after shivering, with heavy pain about forehead; as after alcoholic stimulants. Heaviness; in morning; on waking; in brain; in middle; extending to r. side of head, whence rheumatic drawing extends into r. side of neck, then through arm into wrist, affecting injured fingers, and rheumatic drawing in flesh of r. side of chest; as if tightly bound; confused, in morning.

Violent throbbing in arteries, with pain extending over head from one ear to other and photophobia. Rush of blood; and to throat and upper part of chest. Intoxication. Vertigo; in morning after rising, with confusion; at 6.30 P.M., after dinner; on sitting up in bed (Bry.); on rising, with nausea and salivation; before menses; with nausea; with faintness; even to falling forward on rising from bed; as if everything were turning in a circle on closing eyes; as if turning in a circle, with shivering in upper part of body and unconsciousness; as from drunkenness, from 6 to 9 P.M., with nausea, warm sweat on face and internal and external heat of throat and chest; as if it moved forward while the occiput remained lying held firmly by the neck, when raising head in night on waking. Waving sensation in brain: after drinking white beer, with heaviness in forehead and top of head extending to temples; < moving eyes.

Forehead.—Sticking; in middle; in r.; above l. eye; in bone above l. eye, then in l. side of occiput; above l. eye, with twitching of lids; under skin; itching, in middle; transversely across; between eyebrows, extending into r. eye and l. temple and above l. ear; tearing, in l. eminence. Tearing in afternoon; T. above r. eye; above l. eye; above l. eye, extending into eye and lid and root of nose; between brows, which tends to press lids together, > eating; suddenly over l. eyebrow, extending over r.; in middle, extending over vertex, at noon after dinner, > pressure. Neuralgic pain above eye (Nat. m.), < reading in evening by artificial light; N. pain over l. eyebrow. Aching; in morning, < root of nose; at 4 A.M., and in occiput; towards evening, and in occiput; towards evening, with sticking in l. side of forehead; in r. side; over r. eye (Cedron); over l. eye (Bry.); in l. side from afternoon till going to sleep in evening; in upper part of bone; in direction of parietal bone in evening; in sinciput; > walking in open air; extending to orbits, which on moving eyes are painful as if sore; extending into nasal bones; over r. eye, extending to occiput; in l. side extending to l. temple; extending towards both temples, then to occiput also; and in temples, extending to neck. Pain as from a hard stool. Pain in r. side as from a blow. Pain as if brain would fall out in afternoon on stooping. Sensation as if screwed together from both sides. Pain as from a band (Carbol. ac.); after rising till towards noon; > closing eyes; lasting till noon, returning at 7 P.M., and in temples; above eyes; about anterior lobes of cerebrum. Drawing pain over l. eye. Drawing beneath bones. Dragging in cerebrum as if there were not room enough for it in the skull and it would press out through the ear, in which there is a noise as of a distant waterfall. Confusion. Heaviness; about 4.30 P.M.; periodical; dizzy; as if brain would fall out there.

Temples.—Twitches in l. Sticking in r. in bed, > lying on affected side, reappearing when he turns on other side; S. in l., with jerking pain; in l. after a sensation as if blood suddenly stagnated; twitching. Tearing; in r., < touch; in r., then l.; in r. and in eye, then in l. eye extending to l. temple. Neuralgic pain in r. Pain; in evening; in bone behind ear (Caps.); in posterior part of r. bone; in squamous part of l.; in r., r. parietal bone, then over r. eye; < l.; in r., with stoppage of r. nostril; in r., extending into r. half of forehead; in r., extending to vertex; extending upward; throbbing; drawing, in l.; drawing, so that the whole head is confused. Drawing. Tension in r., extending into r. half of forehead. Compression. Throbbing; in arteries, with headache; synchronous with pulse at night in bed before sleep, with sensation as if blood were rushing to throat and top of chest.

Vertex.—Jerks in a spot, with sticking and pain on touch. Sticking, with boring and with twitching of lids; intermittent S. in l.; paroxysmal, < rapid walking. Tearing transversely across. Pain; anteriorly in bone after supper; extending back and forth to neck, whereby the shoulders are drawn upward; so severe that she could not think, and in l. temple. Drawing pain to r. temple; occasionally to nape, with involuntary shrugging of shoulders, closure of eyes and when walking necessity to tread softly. Bruised sensation, and in occiput. Confusion. Pressure upon; extending to r. side of forehead and to l. side of occiput. Dizzy heaviness in morning and sensation of a band around head; tensive H. in upper half of head, extending to occipital protuberance, with sensation as of a band about head. Vertigo in upper part of head, < vertex, < reflecting, with tension and with soreness to touch on vertex.

Parietal Bones.—Sticking in r.; in l.; in upper part of l. in afternoon; paralytic, in l. Drawing pressure in l.

Occiput.—Sticking in r. side; drawing, extending from

l. side to forehead; pinching, in r.; pinching, externally in l. Tearing in r., with stitches extending forward; close to l. ear, extending forward. Pain; from morning till noon; at 11 P.M.; at night; at night, waking her, with chilliness; at 6 P.M. extending around to forehead; in upper part; with sensation as if head would be drawn backward; with drawing pain in muscles of l. side of occiput, extending towards neck. Pain in evening on touch as if broken loose from skull. Drawing pain; with anxiety in chest, without appetite for dinner; on l. side and above l. mastoid process; in r. side. Drawing through l. Rheumatic symptoms when lying in bed with forehead raised. Tension in r. side. Heaviness; with drawings downward in nape (Bry.); at night, as if it could not be raised from pillow. Congestion of blood.

Scalp.—Hair falls out; on occiput. Hair matted and dry for four inches above r. ear. Pain in roots of hair; as if ulcerating, on combing. Sensitiveness; of vertex. Soreness of upper part, with heat on top. Sensation above forehead and on occiput as if hair stood up. Crawling on r. side; > rubbing; in upper part of l. at 2 P.M., not > scratching; > scratching. Itching on occiput; scratching, returning at 1 P.M.; on r. side of occiput at 5 P.M., > scratching.

Clinical.—The vertigo is very marked, associated with jaundice or with general hepatic and gastric disturbances. With the vertigo inclination to fall forward. Right-sided headaches extending down behind the ears and generally to the r. shoulder-blade, where it becomes seated. Violent neuralgia in r. side of head and especially over r. ear or r. cheek-bone, as a rule more or less associated with hepatic symptoms; with the neuralgia over the r. eye there is frequently profuse lachrymation; pains are cutting and extend upward and downward and may involve the r. ear, etc.

Eyes.—Swelling in morning on waking, with agglutination of lids. Sticking in r.; suddenly in l., with sensation as if eye were torn out. Tearing in l.; and above it; intermittent, in l. and in l. temple. Sensation of sand in them; in forenoon, with lachrymation; at 7 P.M.; > closing eyes. Pain < lamplight. Spasmodic pain in r. Burning pain in l. in morning on waking, > on rising. Pain as if lids were forced downward. Pressure; in l.; in r., then l.; < moving eyes, and in orbits, with sleepiness. Heaviness. Burning; in morning on waking, and in cheeks; on closing them; in r.; in l., with sticking in inner canthus. Itching; of r. at 5 P.M., > rubbing; in l., > rubbing; as after drinking liquor. Lachrymation; in open air.

Dirty yellow color of whites (China). Balls painful; on moving eyes (Eup. perp., Bap.), in middle of l., > evening on closing lids, with sensation as if so large that the upper lid could not cover it; in upper part, as they would be pressed inward, < l., > closing eyes; sore sensation on looking up; (tickling-itching). Pupils contracted.

Lids.—Redness; of margins; of conjunctiva of lower; of margin of lower, with swelling. Dry mucus on r. Agglutination; in morning, < l.; in morning, with foggy vision. Blinking. Trembling of r. upper. Twitching; of l. Clonic spasms, forcible closure on attempting to hold them open. Closing when writing. Sticking in l.; inner side of l. lower; in inner side of r.; sudden, in r. upper; in l. inner canthus, and burning, as from sand, with redness and inflammation, then weakness and lachrymation; itching, in l. inner canthus; jerking, in r. inner canthus, > rubbing. Pressure; on r. upper; in l. upper; in upper in morning; at night on waking. Rubbing against ball; of upper in morning on moving lid or ball. Swollen sensation. Difficulty in opening; as if upper were drawn downward, lasting till towards noon. Inclination to close; and to lie down, as after intoxicating drinks. Heaviness. Burning; in lower; in l. upper; in margin of l. upper; in morning after rising, < l., with pain in balls as if they would be pressed into head; after slight rubbing, and about eyes; in l., lasting till sleep; sticking, in l. outer canthus. Itching of margins; of l. inner canthus; of l. upper, > scratching; burning, in morning on waking.

Orbits painful just above l. lid; P. < moving eyes; pain above l. eye which seems to press down upper lid; stupefying pressure in r., extending inward.

Vision dim; in morning on waking, < r. eye; when writing; with illusions. Letters run together when writing; and can be seen more easily at a great distance; when reading. Flickering; before diarrhoea; with vertigo; in a bright point during anxiety. Glare before r. eye so that she can hardly read. Glittering points, then blackness. Blinding spot before eyes, and if he looks at it lachrymation. Blackness before eyes, with sensation as if she would faint.

Ears.—Whitish wax, like mush. Sticking; in r. external; in l.; in l. meatus; in r. meatus; in r. meatus and in upper part of forehead; in r. external meatus; in l., with noise in it; in l., with difficult hearing; in l., extending to throat; in r., extending to vertex, then into l. ear. Tearing in l.; behind r.; in r. meatus and in temporal bones; in r. inner meatus; below l. lobule; above r. in evening; down behind r.; in middle, then on boring in with finger ringing; from r. into r. teeth in afternoon; intermittent, in r. inner meatus. Boring in r.

Pain; behind r.; above, < r.; above and beneath r.; in l. meatus; in r. meatus; above l., extending through l. upper back teeth. Painful pressing out of r., with tickling in it. Bruised pain behind l.; in lobule of l., then burning in r. lobule. Drawing pain from l. into l. upper teeth; behind and above l. when in bed. Drawing in l. and in l. back teeth; in l. meatus; from l. meatus into l. temple. Hammering sensation. Feeling as if too full. Stopped sensation; l.; with ringing before them. Sensation as if a wind were streaming out of them, > putting finger into ear. Heat in r. meatus. Itching in l.; now in one, now in other meatus.

Hearing vanishes when coughing, as if a hand were held over r. ear. Noises. Ringing; in r.; before l.; in l.; in l. when walking; with burning in cheeks. Singing on closing eyes, with ringing. Whistling before ears. Buzzing. Humming. Sounds as of distant cannonading. Nose.—Tip swollen and red. Tip trembling and twitching. Sticking in tip. Tearing in nostrils, < l. Pain in bones; in tip; in cartilage; in root. Soreness in nose. Tension in r. side in afternoon. Beating near nose, as if a tooth would ulcerate (she formerly had an ulcerated tooth in this place). Stoppage; of l. nostril. Dryness; in l. nostril, with itching. Sensation as of a cold wind through it on inspiration. Burning in nostrils; in l.; in mucous membrane towards tip, as in catarrh. Crawling in tip. Itching of tip; l. in l. nostril; in l. side, > scratching; in r. nostril, > scratching, then in l. nostril and zygomatic arch and across l. temple, > scratching. Sensation of catarrh.

Sneezing. Stopped coryza; in morning on waking; in morning, < warmth. Fluent coryza; on rising from stooping, with cough; with much sneezing; with heat; with hawking up of mucus. Mucous discharge. Watery discharge; in drops, < l. nostril, with burning on outer margin of nostrils. Bleeding of l. nostril; black blood from nose in morning on waking, with nasal mucus. Illusions of smell; as of black soap.

Face.—Yellow (Fer., China, etc.), < nose and cheeks; the usual redness of the cheeks has a mixture of dark yellow; grayish-yellow. Redness, with flushes of heat; R. at 5 P.M., with distended veins of hands, without external heat; of l. cheek; of cheeks, with heat. Red spots on chin; on cheeks; on l. cheek; on r. cheek, gradually involving whole cheek; on l. cheek, gradually becoming larger from 2 to 6 P.M.; on r. cheek, gradually becoming larger from 2 to 5 P.M., with burning. Pallor. Suffering expression. Sunken. Sickly look; with sunken eyes surrounded by blue rings.

Sticking in cheek-bone; in l., with boring, alternating with pain in l. upper eye-tooth; pricking, in l. Jerking in l. malar-bone, as if it would be torn to pieces. Tearing from r. cheek-bone to ears and around ears, then to upper part of occiput along suture of parietal bone (Bry. to temple). Pain in r. cheek-bone and in upper part of occiput; in l. cheek-bone; in l. side in chilly, windy weather, < touch and from 6 to 8 P.M.; > magnetic passes, next day sensation as if swollen and ulcerated, but no perceptible swelling; in r. cheek-bone at 10 P.M., extending to r. ear. Painful spot in cheek as if swollen and suppurating. Swollen sensation in r. cheek-bone (Mag. c.). Drawing pain in r. malar-bone. Pain in l. cheek-bone as from a blow. Burning pain in cheek-bones, extending into eyelids. Pressive drawing in l. bones. Tension in cheeks between eyes and mouth; in l. malar-bone when lying, with drawing.

Lips.—Swollen in evening, with peeling of skin. Dry, hard and crusty; dry in morning. Papular exanthema with red base, on upper lip and on r. cheek. Vesicle filled with limpid serum, in mucous membrane of lower. Sticking in l. side of lower. Burning; of upper. Itching in r. corner of mouth, > scratching.

Jaws.—Sticking through l. upper. Burrowing tearing in antrum maxillare. Pain in upper; waking at night; in r. upper in bed; in l. side of both, extending to eye, near nose, and throbbing pain in temples. Burning pain in r. upper and lower, extending into cheek and r. half of both lips, < in evening in bed, with intermittent stitches back and forth. Drawing pain in l. upper and in cheek-bone, extending to eye, with heat in cheek. Drawing through upper jaw and upper teeth.

Mouth.—Teeth. Sticking in l. back; in r. hollow back; S., with boring; in r., with tearing, then in l. Tearing here and there; T. in l. in afternoon, extending into l. meatus; in l. lower, < chewing. Jerkings; in upper incisors. Aching; in r. upper; in l. lower; in r. upper eye-tooth; in r. upper in evening in bed; at night; in l. back at night; in l. back, waking at night; in all when speaking, and in both jaws; in l. lower on touch, with looseness; in three last l. upper when chewing or pressing on gum; < towards evening; in two last l. upper, < chewing; < every motion of mouth; in r., > in evening; in two last l. upper, with pain on touch; extending to r. temple; in upper, extending to eyes; at night, extending over l. cheek, then in r. side; in back and l. upper jaw, extending to l. meatus and l. eye, waking towards midnight; involving whole r. side of face, after going to sleep; involving whole r. side of face, jaws, lips and cheek, < warmth, momentarily > cold air or cold water; now l., now r., alternating with sticking in l. side of chest. Intermitting aching in l. Periodic aching; < at night, destroying appetite, extending to l. side of forehead, temple and ear, with heat in forehead; < warm food, < r., preventing sleep at night, with frequent tearing in l. ear and l. arm. Drawing pain; in upper; in upper incisors; in l. upper; in r., then l.; in l. back; in l. back and in cheek-bones; through r. upper back and through two middle lower incisors; through lower middle incisors in morning; extending into eyes; in l. upper incisors, extending into l. upper and lower teeth. Dragging. Elongated sensation; < chewing; in l. lower, with loose feeling. Heat.

Gum.—Boil, with thick yellow discharge; above l. eye-tooth, discharging blood. Redness and swelling of l. upper, and of l. half of hard palate. Bleeding in forenoon. Sensitiveness of l. upper to touch.

Tongue.—Coated; yellow, with red margin showing imprint of teeth (Merc.); yellow; white; gray, rough. White. Slimy. Sticking on l. side of tip. Sensitiveness. Inability to stretch it out or to open mouth as wide as usual. Dryness. Burning; on tip; as after vinegar. Difficulty in speaking.

Vesicles in mouth and lips. Mucus; full of stringy. Pain in palate, < motion of body, and in gum. Scratching, with burning, and in gullet and stomach. Burning; to throat. Dryness; in morning; at 4 p.m., with thirst. Watery sensation. Salivation (Merc.); collection of bitter water, obliging constant expectoration. Saliva tough and slimy; saliva sulphur-yellow. Hot breath, with dry mouth and lips.

Taste.—Bitter (Bry.); > when eating and drinking; spirituous; nauseating, sweetish-bitter; sourish or saltish, bitter. Sour; metallic. Sweetish; of blood in morning; offensive, of blood, with blood-streaked mucus in throat. Pasty (Bry.). Insipid; and nauseous, as after elder-flower tea. Bad to the dinner in evening.

Clinical.—With the disturbances of digestion and of the function of the liver, the tongue is yellow and shows the print of the teeth around the margin. There are frequently had taste, bad odor in the mouth and accumulation of tough mucus.

Throat.—Skin yellow. Stiffness in l. side. Twitching, and in region of larynx. Mucus; thin; hawking of lumps. Choking; and in region of larynx; as after suddenly swallowing too large a morsel; and in trachea, as after strong cigars or lager beer, < breathing. Sticking; on empty swallowing; in region of larynx; in tonsils on empty swallowing, as from a fishbone. Pain in night, < swallowing; in l. side when swallowing; > swallowing, < pressing tongue against l. side of palate while swallowing; in forepart, extending to temples. Soreness in morning on waking; in region of larynx on swallowing food and drink, < empty swallowing; as from a cold. Scraping. Rawness; > swallowing. Irritation in morning on waking; towards evening, with scraping in larynx exciting fits of cough; > swallowing.

Constriction; internally and externally, above larynx, only the gullet was contracted. Compression; below chin.

Sensation in pharynx of contractive cramp. Sensation as if a body rose, forced her to swallow and went down again. Sensation as if uvula had fallen into it in morning, with involuntary snoring when awake. Throbbing at night, and in top of chest, then gripping in hypogastrium. Bubbling or trembling motion above larynx without pain. Sensation of dust in pit and in upper part of sternum; not > coughing. Dryness; on waking from midday nap, < empty swallowing; on swallowing; of back part and of palate; with sensation of dust in it; with constriction, obliging swallowing. Sensation on inspiration as if cold air were streaming through nose into fauces. Burning; in morning; in gullet; itching, below pit before sleep. Swallowing difficult. Oesophagus feels swollen and contracted, with bubbling, choking and scraping.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; morning and noon; for milk; longing for acids in morning; longing for vinegar and other sour things, and vinegar tastes less sour than usual. Diminished; for breakfast. Lost; for supper. Aversion to cheese; to cooked food.

Thirst; in evening; for cold water; longing for wine. Diminished. Aversion to coffee; to cold things at dinner, so that she would not drink though thirsty.

Eruptions; in afternoon, at one time with heartburn; till evening; empty; tasting of juniper berries; tasting of breakfast; tasting of food, at 1 p.m.; sourish or saltish-bitter or bitter; bitter in night, causing shivering, then bitter taste. Hiccough. Nausea; on attempting to eat broth; > eructations; > lying down; > eating bread, with emptiness in stomach; with salivation (Merc.); with heat of whole body; rising from stomach, with gripping and warmth in epigastric region; as if she would faint. Vomiting; of mucus; of tough mucus; of curdled milk during cough; of potatoes eaten yesterday, with a sharp, sour taste and scraping in throat.

Distention of epigastric region. Gurgling as if air bubbles burst and afforded relief. Sticking in pit at 5.30 p.m., extending through body to back (Bism.); S. in pit; in epigastric region; in r. side; in l. side near pit in afternoon when writing, during inspiration and on making body erect. Cutting; at 1 p.m. when yawning; in epigastric and umbilical regions, < pressure. Pinching in and below pit, < touch. Twinging now in r., now in l. epigastric region after dinner, then tension in it. Gnawing, > eating. Digging; in epigastric region, > eating. Pain; in epigastric region; in pit; in pit and opposite in back; < external pressure; > eructations; > emissions of flatus; > lying on l. side with legs drawn up, together with eructations; in pit towards evening, with oppression of chest and difficult breathing; with gas in it; paroxysmal; spasmodic, in pit; spasmodic, in r. side of pit; alternating with pain extending from nape to forehead and temples; as from a dull body, < external pressure.

Anxiety. Contraction; below epigastric region; in pit in bed. Oppression; on front of; in upper part of pit; > eructations; extending to clavicle. Distended sensation in pit. Tension; in pit; in pit on deep inspiration. Spasmodic pressure on. Heaviness from drinking water, with pressure. Cramplike throbbing in pit, causing anxious respiration. Ineffectual desire to eructate. Hollow sensation; with exhaustion when walking. Coldness (Colch.); in pit; with distention, as if cramp of stomach would follow. Heartburn.

Burning; in pit (Merc.); in epigastric region (Colch.); on l. side below ribs, on level with pit.

Clinical.—Generally the gastric disturbances are relieved temporarily by eating (Puls.); prefers hot drinks and hot food; sometimes very hot water relieves the vomiting temporarily. Gastric catarrh, with nausea, thickly-coated tongue (Bry., Ant. c.), etc. Violent pain in region of stomach goes through to back and r. shoulder-blade or over towards the liver.

Abdomen.—Distention (Mag. c., Merc., Lyc.); by gas. Tension and hardness. Rumbling; with colic; moving downward across umbilicus. Gurgling. Movings at 1.30 P.M., with twinging here and there; M. after stool, with sensation of a foul stomach. Emission of flatus; in evening; at night; with stool. Contraction of muscles, with pain about umbilicus. Increased peristaltic motion. Trembling, with diarrhoea.

Sticking through. Intestines feel as if torn out of body, on which account she lost her senses. Cutting; after eating (Coloc.); jerklike, not > soft stool; in evening so that she was doubled together; sudden, before diarrhoea. Gripping; in morning, then three thin stools; at night, with emission of much flatus; as before stool. Digging, with nausea. Twinging and moving about whole, the pain in l. side extending into præcordial region, where it became sticking. Pain; in afternoon, with coldness; with urging to stool; with distended sensation; extending to chest; drawing through; contractive, with every cough. Fulness. Tension. Discomfort, > wine, with colic; as after a purge, then a stool. Coldness; in afternoon on drinking water; on drinking water. Heaviness.

Cutting through upper. Tension across upper. Pain in r., then l.; in l. walls in evening, < retracting abdomen. Drawing pain in walls at night.

Hypochondria.—Sticking in l.; in liver; in liver at 10 P.M. (Lyc.). Pain through, and in r. scapula; in region of liver and spleen; in liver (Lyc.), about an inch from stomach; between l. ribs and hip; between pit of stomach and umbilicus, and in sternum, with burning; in hepatic region (Bap., Merc., etc.), in margins of ribs, in afternoon, < pressure of clothes; in hepatic region on pressure (Phos.); in hepatic region, extending downward and across umbilical region, as if constricted by a string; cramplike pain in hepatic region on lying down; spasmodic pain between pit of stomach and navel; burning pain below l. short ribs. Sense of distention in r. (Phos.).

Umbilical Region.—Spasmodic retraction, with nausea. Rumbling above navel, passing downward, before and after diarrhoea. Painful collection of wind, > slimy diarrhoea. Sticking above navel; below navel, so that he must bend double, recurring when standing. Cutting; above navel. Gripping (Sulph.), then cutting in abdomen and across r. lumbar region, extending to back; G. above navel. Pinching, then discharge of flatus. Twinging, with tension or contraction about stomach; T. below navel at 5.30 P.M., with coldness of body. Twisting above navel. Pain; in l.; above navel; to l. above navel; from 3 to 4 P.M.; above navel, extending to l. chest; spasmodic; burning; drawing, above navel. Constriction transversely across as by a string (Coloc.), in afternoon till 6; above navel, then gripping in abdomen and six watery stools; C. transversely above navel; spasmodic C. Burning in intestines; below navel; B. in l. region and in l. hypochondria.

Hypogastrium.—Gripping. Pinching in l. inguinal region. Aching deep in; above pubis; in l. iliac region; above pubis in evening; in inguinal region preventing walking, also at 4 P.M.; in r. wall, < inspiration; cramplike, above pubis in afternoon, with frequent urging to urinate. Drawing pain; tensive spasmodic, in inguinal regions, extending from upper and outer part downward and inward; spasmodic drawing pain downward in iliac and inguinal regions, extending into pelvic region; drawing spasmodic pain in inguinal region, preventing walking and causing difficulty in raising r. leg. Spasmodic drawing in inguinal region. Drawing dragging in inguinal region. Constriction before passage of turbid urine. Pressure on crest of ilium, < l. Tension in ilium, with pressure; T. in iliac fossæ.

Clinical.—Enlargement of the liver, pain under angle of r. shoulder-blade, or with jaundice, yellow tongue, bitter taste, etc. In jaundice, sometimes with clear urine, tongue white, stools dark, urine offensive. Distention of abdomen, enlarged liver. In all the hepatic and intestinal affections the pains are worse on r. side and generally are seated under the angle of r. scapula.

Rectum.—Burning (Sulph.) and cutting, with constriction of anus, alternating with itching in anus. Itching; and crawling (Sulph.). Sensation as if protruding, with spasmodic constriction of anus and rectum. Drawing towards. Urging; on rising; then three watery stools in quick succession, then relief of colic in evening; frequent, then hard stool, with pressure. Ineffectual urging; periodic, in afternoon; every half hour in forenoon, with gripping in abdomen and constriction in rectum.

Anus.—External pimples. Mucous discharge. Sticking. Pain, and in perineum; pain caused by stool; > standing bent over; sore, also < lying on back or sitting. Drawing in evening. Contracted feeling during stool. Spasmodic constriction after stool. Swollen feeling during stool and soreness after stool. Crawling. Itching. Itching in perineum. Tension in perineum, with pressure. Crawling in perineum.

Stool.—Diarrhoea; with urging, then cutting in anus; slimy; frequent, in afternoon; frequent, in night; frequent, yellow, mucous, with blood at close; and insufficient; greenish, with cutting in rectum and higher up. Watery; on rising, bright yellow, copious, with much mucus (Pod.); and brown; and dark yellow; and frequent; frequent, copious, whitish, with nausea at night. Pasty; and bright yellow (Aloe, Pod.); and light gray; and dark brown; and frequent; with mucus; with pain in intestines; then pinching in abdomen extending to back and chest, > emission of offensive flatus.

Constipation. Hard; with pain; and dark brown; whitish-red; at first then easier to pass; and delayed. Nodular, difficult, with smarting in anus; N., difficult, with cutting in anus and rectum. Like sheep-dung. Dark; dark yellow. Light-colored; and ribbon-shaped. Whitish-red. Light red, painful. Mixed with blood; followed by blood. Slenderly-formed (Phos.), preceded by gripping. Increased. Diminished; with itching in anus. Difficult, with pain in rectum. Frequent; the second after dinner. At unusual time. Delayed; and difficult; and whiter than usual. Omitted.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea, thin, bright yellow or white, pasty stools, or alternations of diarrhoea and constipation; in general, either with jaundice, pain over the region of the liver, especially under the r. scapula, or with symptoms of general intestinal catarrh.

Urinary Organs.—Sticking in region of bladder, with frequent urging to urinate. Dragging in bladder; with spasmodic trembling pains in inguinal region. Pressure on bladder; with frequent and scanty micturition. Urging to urinate; with cramplike pain in urethra; with groaning and pressing to urinate; all day, with scanty passage; sudden; continual; frequent; frequent, ineffectual. Micturition in a vigorous stream; dribbling; delayed. Frequent micturition; but scanty each time; and copious, pale urine.

Urethra.—Discharge of a drop of fluid. Sticking when urinating and on motion of body, with cutting; S. in tip; in meatus. Cutting when urinating and afterwards. Pain when urinating, then pain in urethra and drawings in l. testicle. Burning; before micturition; during micturition; in orifice; near glans penis. Itching at orifice, with smarting as from urging to urinate, which, however, does not exist.

Urine copious; and whitish, foamy; and pale, at 6 P.M. then twinging; at another time scanty. Urine dark yellow; and clear; turbid when passed, dark brownish-red, like brown beer (Benz. ac.), frothing at edge of vessel, in afternoon; stains diaper reddish-brown; red and turbid as soon as passed; lemon-yellow, turbid; reddish; dark; foamy; of resinous odor; of acrid, sour odor. Urine pale; and scanty. Sediment in urine reddish, flocculent; grayish-yellow, flocculent, the vessel covered with reddish-yellow crystals of uric acid.

Sexual Organs.—Pain. Penis, sticking; pinching in a spot on r. side; pain; pain and anxiety as after a violent erection; pressure in lower part and at orifice of urethra; dragging towards root; itching; frequent erections. Scrotum covered with dry, red, cracked, thin scurf; red, hot and swollen; red, hot, with yellowish, fluid-like, flat blisters, painful to touch; vesicles flattened towards evening and raw, with raw, red, swollen and moist skin; itching; itching and crawling, with frequent desire to urinate. Testicles, sticking; pain; pain in r.; drawing pain; drawing pain in r.; drawing tensive pain, and in spermatic cord; drawing; D. in r.; D. from l. to hip; D. in l., with pain. Spermatic cord, drawing pain along; drawing.

Itching of vulva. Burning in vagina. Leucorrhœa; slimy, staining linen yellow; tenacious, slimy, whitish, staining linen yellow, after menses. Menses profuse; and too early; and too late, continually increasing for three days, with pain.

Respiratory Organs.—Larynx. Spasmodic movements of glottis before sleep, without cough. Sticking; through, extending outward and inward into throat. Pain; in region towards evening; on coughing; in cartilage, with sensation as if throat were swollen externally in region of larynx; burning. Constriction. Sensation as if pressed from without against œsophagus, impeding swallowing but not breathing. Swollen feeling; < r. side; at night, and in trachea, with tickling in larynx and short dry cough after waking; with oppression in larynx and trachea; and feeling as if the swelling hindered breathing; and choking gurgling in it.

Hoarseness; in morning; with dry cough and expectoration of lumps of mucus. Bronchial catarrh returned in evening. Heat in bronchi.

Cough; after waking and on rising, with sensation of dust under sternum; from tickling in larynx; from irritation in larynx. Paroxysmal; towards evening; from scraping in larynx, < night, with pain behind sternum (Sang.); < open air, with spasm of glottis during expiration; without expectoration and without previous irritation; as in incipient whooping cough; and short. Racking, as in consumption, < morning, with much expectoration from deep in lungs, difficult to loosen, the rattling in chest < changing position after waking. Hollow. Dry; in paroxysm at 4 P.M., and short; and short, from irritation in larynx. Short; at night waking her, also with pain in back and itching on occiput. With expectoration of mucus. Irritation to cough in evening, causing lachrymation; with dry cough, which relieved the spasmodic attacks; in short paroxysms. Expectoration of mucus.

Asthmatic attack at 11 P.M. when urinating, then nausea, > empty eructations, with difficult breathing even in bed. Dyspœa; at 2 o'clock; at 6.30 P.M., with full pulse. Breath short; and difficult, with oppression and anxiety of chest (Phos.); with constriction of chest; during fever, and rapid. Heavy. Difficult; after dinner, with sticking in l. pectoral region extending backward; < walking. Rapid, > eructations. Obstructed as by a foreign body in bronchi. Necessity to breathe deeply. Longing for fresh air in order to breathe more easily. Inability to breathe deeply on account of stitches.

Clinical.—Cough loose and rattling, the expectoration raised with difficulty (Tartar emetic). Frequently useful in the bronchitis of children, with dusky red face, oppressed breathing, etc. Cough, with pain in r. side of thorax, either with severe bronchitis or with pneumonia. Numerous cases of pneumonia in r. lung have been cured when associated with symptoms of hepatic derangement, distressing pain under r. scapula. (R.-sided pneumonia, also Lye., Sang., Iod.)

Chest.—Yellow color of skin. Stitches; here and there; beneath r. ribs; in r. ribs; in r. side behind ribs; along margins of l. ribs; in borders of ribs about præcordial region; below heart; in l.; l., then r.; r.; l. nipple; upper part; in l. clavicle; below clavicle; in upper part of sternum; in lower part of l. lung; in l. at 4 A.M.; in side at 4 A.M., preventing deep breathing; in r. lower side at 2 P.M. on inspiration, < motion and cough; in r. from 2 to 6 P.M. < inspiration, obliging her to speak softly; in r. ribs on inspiration; in region of r. nipple when sitting, not < breathing, then in l. side; in l. when sitting; in r., < deep breathing; with stoppage of breath; in r. side beneath breast, then extending into præcordial region; anteriorly in lower part extending into intestines below umbilicus: l. extending to back, with burning; in l., extending towards scapula; externally from l. to r. side, on inspiration; jerking, in l. clavicle.

Sticking jerking pain to r. of lower part of sternum, extending straight through to back. < motion and inspiration, the pain in back < bending backward, in chest < bending forward and > eructations, with restlessness. Jerking in sternum; in l. clavicle.

Pain; and in back; in l.; in l. ribs: r.: r., then l.; forepart: in upper part; in sternum, just above pit of stomach; between ribs and l. hypochondrium; in morning, < till 9 A.M.; in morning, obliging her to sit upright, < motion; in morning, > short and rapid breathing, and in back; in forepart in morning, preventing deep inspiration; in afternoon on inspiration, < motion; between r. sixth and seventh ribs on bending to l.; in sternum on every inspiration; on inspiration, < short, dry cough; in ribs of r. and l. sides on bending to that side; when walking, but not < thereby; in r. side, in region of seventh and eighth ribs after sudden cessation of headache, < inspiration and motion, then pressure in brain again; behind sternum, < inspiration; deep-seated in r. and in r. shoulder, < at axilla and beneath scapula, not much < by moving arms, preventing deep breathing, at times with throbbing in chest; > eructations; in ribs, > supper; in lower part of r. wall, extending into side, < inspiration; and in back, extending to between shoulders; in l., extending to back, < motion; sudden, in r.; wandering, and in limbs; wavelike, in l.; intermittent, beneath l. ribs, then below r.

Pain as from an abscess deep-seated in r. at 1.30 P.M.; P. as if ulcerated in ribs, preventing deep breathing. Bruised pain in l., < motion, and in l. hypochondrium. Burning pain in sternal region, then a red spot, as of herpes. Drawing pain in afternoon; D. pain, and in pit of stomach; in muscles of C. and back; in forepart, waking at midnight, with dyspnoea; in sides, extending into abdomen; in forepart, extending to umbilicus; in lower part of sternum, extending towards r. side of spine; through muscles, extending to umbilical region, now more, now less severe; intermittent, in l. and in back. Drawing; in lower part, with difficult breathing and compression of chest; downward in r.

Soreness in r. lowest ribs; in l. lung; behind sternum; behind upper part of sternum on coughing; r. ribs on touch; seventh and eighth ribs on touch, < r., with injured feeling on inspiration; ribs on touch, < afternoon, when the cold sensation, pressure in stomach and difficult breathing return; r. lower half, < touch of clothes; l. lung, < coughing and sneezing. Anxiety. Uneasiness, making breathing difficult.

Oppression; of l. (Phos.); 4 A.M.; 6 P.M., with cough and expectoration; evening in bed; waking after midnight, with dyspnoea; on expiration; when walking; as if clothes were too tight. Constriction, as from a coat of mail; C. below arms. Compression in region of bodies of vertebræ, < stooping, not affecting respiration, afterwards felt after rapid walking, violent blowing of nose, sneezing or when stooping, and is more externally along spinous processes of dorsal vertebræ. Pressure upon l.; on sternum; over forepart in morning, with difficult breathing; P. in morning on waking, cannot get air enough on inspiration, > several deep inspirations; upon sternum on waking at 4 A.M., > sweat; on inspiration after dinner; beneath l. clavicle, extending into throat; spasmodic, in a spot behind sternum, waking at night, extending into bronchi, with constriction in them. Tension; in sides; on forepart; about base of inner side on deep breathing; intermittent, in evening; in muscles from upper part of l. towards throat. Burning in lower part; heat rising into larynx. Rush of blood; sensation of. Pulsation at base of r. lung and in liver; under top of sternum at 1.30 P.M., isochronous with pulse. Numbness in r.

Heart.—Sticking in præcordial region, with dry cough; in præcordial region, with palpitation, anxiety and uneasiness; in region of heart, obliging short and quick inspirations. Action imperceptible, also pulse. Beats loud and strong. Palpitation; afternoon, with anxiety; towards evening after sitting, during fatigue from unusual exertion; when walking in street and in evening in bed; periodic, at 11 P.M.

Pulse.—Feverish. Rapid; in evening; and full; and small, compressible. Large, full. Hard. Slow; and irregular.

Neck.—Swelling of l. side and of l. cheek, painful on touch. Cracking in vertebræ on motion, with pain in muscles of nape. Sticking in nape. Sensation as if bones of N. and scapulæ would be torn from their places. Broken feeling on motion. Pain; in r. muscles and in region of r. clavicle; in l. muscles; in nape; in muscles of nape; in upper vertebræ in afternoon on turning head; in r. muscles on moving head; in nape, < afternoon, and in l. shoulder and l. arm; in first cervical vertebra, < motion of head and pressure; < turning head to one side or bending it backward; at night in upper vertebræ, < motion, extending to vertex in a spot in which are jerks and sticking. Throbbing pain extending to forehead and occiput.

Drawing pain in nape; intermittent, in neck, over shoulder into wrist, < using arm, especially in writing; rheumatic, in nape, < turning head to r. or l. Drawing in muscles; D. in l. side and in l. meatus auditorius; in nape; in nape down back; paralytic; paralytic, in nape. Tension in r. side, as if in tendons, extending towards shoulder, in afternoon when sitting. Constriction of muscles as by a band; C. in muscles as if head were drawn backward. Heaviness in nape; in muscles of nape; with tension, and in occiput. Stiffness; of nape; of l. side; of r. muscles on waking; on moving head, with pain on deep breathing; with cracking of vertebræ on moving neck; with paralyzed pain. Paralyzed feeling in sides.

Chenopodium Anthelminticum.

A tincture is prepared from the fresh herb, in flower.

General Action.—Attention is called to the cerebral symptoms, especially in connection with those of the ear. Comparison is to be made with Santonine.

Convulsions, with insensibility and foaming at mouth, on recovery no remembrance of taking the poison. Convulsive movements of r. half of body, breathing heavy, stertorous, with a peculiar rattle, as if a ball were rolling loose in the trachea, pulse small, weak, frequent, eyes insensible to light or external objects, extremities cold, any attempt at deglutition threatened instant suffocation.

Disagreeable eructations, nausea, staggering, progressive deafness to the voice but great sensitiveness to the sounds of passing vehicles, each one of which sounded like the roaring of immense cannon right into his ear, the same sensitiveness to other sounds, for example, the tea-bell, also buzzing in ears, he would scarcely light a cigar before he would lay it down, so that the mantel-piece was strewn with cigars only slightly used, no disposition to engage in conversation, aphasia, at which he laughed heartily, whatever he did he repeated many times, he sat down at the wrong place at the tea-table, while grasping a piece of bread there was a spasm of r. forearm and hand, fingers were firmly clenched and hand firmly flexed on forearm, he was assisted to his room, his walk being natural, when being placed in bed he showed resistance by striking at me, he began to groan, draw himself up and toss from side to side, soon became unconscious, paralyzed in r. arm, next day impaired motion and sensation in r. side, r. eyeball insensible to touch, during the third day twitchings and stiffness of r. limbs, on fourth day unilateral convulsion, copious involuntary micturition, the heavy breathing, with flopping of cheeks, of apoplexy, yellow, frothy regurgitation from mouth, which, like the evacuation from his skin, smelled of wormseed, at times so profuse that it embarrassed respiration, during an attack of dyspnoea and while in a drenching sweat he was gently turned in bed, when there was a general opisthotonic convulsion, icterus, on the fifth day death in coma, with high temperature in axilla. (These symptoms retained though turpentine was mixed with the Chenopodium, T. F. A.)

Neuralgia in head and eyes. Pains through breast, under r. scapula and in r. shoulder. Slight dull pain a little lower than inferior angle of r. scapula, but nearer the spine.

Clinical.—Intense pain below lower angle of r. shoulder-blade, through to chest. Aurists have found in this drug a valuable remedy for torpor of the auditory nerve, as well as for inflammatory states of the middle and internal ear with the peculiar disturbances of hearing above noted.

Chimaphila.

A tincture is prepared from the entire fresh plant of Chimaphila umbellata, Nutt.

General Action.—The clinical record of this drug seems to point to its special action on the bladder, and, perhaps, kidneys and liver also.

Alies.—Uva ursi, Apocyn, Spirea, Equiset, etc.

Pain in all bones. Weakness. Faint feeling. Melancholy. Nervous, cannot bear anything, hot, irritable, restless, thinks diseased state of blood irritates the skin, as before eruption of erysipelas, scarlet fever or measles, with itching. Weight on joints in morning in bed, > rising; on joints when sitting. Aversion to mental or physical exertion. Weakness (Ars., Fer., Nat. m.); in morning; on waking; after dinner; after eating (Ars.), with sleepiness; after supper, with sleepiness; on rising from a seat; < walking; in open air, with faintness about stomach and chest, but he has abundance of strength for walking; with loss of senses; of joints, alternating with extreme vigor. Inclination to rest, with mirth. Inclination to lie down. Faintness. Stiffness on remaining erect, with pallor and loss of consciousness; of joints on rising from midday nap. Internal sensation of impending disease. Complaints from a slight draught of air. Aggravation after mental exertion (Ign., Nux v., Nat. m.). Comfort in evening. Amelioration from hot tea.

Clinical.—Anæmia, with extreme debility from nursing or from loss of blood. Rapid emaciation, with indigestion, voracious appetite, undigested stools, copious night-sweats. Purpura hæmorrhagica after nursing, with roaring in ears, cold, clammy skin, painless diarrhœa, which may be bloody. Leucocythemia.

Mind.—Sudden screaming and tossing about during cheerful mood. Piteous, subdued whining and crying out. Weeping mood (Nat. m.). Excitability (Nux v.); with pusillanimity and intolerance of noise. Despair; with tossing about the bed. No desire to live. Solitude about trifles. Discouragement. Discontented; and thinks he is hindered and tormented by every one. Absence of the usual lively mood, with desire to be alone. Anxiety; in morning on waking (Nux v.); about 8 P.M. and 2 A.M., he springs out of bed and wishes to take his own life, but is afraid to go near the open window or take a knife, with heat of body; on waking from frightful dreams. Ill-humored; and easily angered; when excited (Nux v.); at other times stupid, perplexed, embarrassed; < carcases; with sighing. What formerly seemed joyous now seems unworthy and shallow (Nat. m.). Despondency (Nat. m.). Inconsolable. Taciturn. Earnest mood. Wrath so that he could have stabbed one. Quarrelsome (Nux v.). Disobedience. Want of docility. Despising everything. Irresolute and disobliging. Absorbed in himself. Indifferent to external impressions and disinclined to talk. Liveliness

all the evening, with staring eyes. Cheerfulness alternating with gloom. Many plans for the future; in evening; grand.

Disinclination for mental labor (Nux v.); with sleepiness. Inability to arrange his thoughts, mistakes when writing or speaking, reverses words, disturbed by the talking of others; inability to collect his senses if he wakes at night. Slow flow of ideas. Slow perception, with aversion to motion. Periodic stoppage of thought.

Clinical.—Sometimes it has been found useful in confused delirium in anæmic persons or as a result of great loss of fluids. Rarely in nymphomania. Occasionally in melancholia during pregnancy or in chronic malaria. There is generally disinclination to any mental effort; general apathetic condition and indifference to what goes on about him; low-spirited and gloomy; or extreme irritability, with weakness.

Head.—Sticking, < l. frontal eminence. Tearing in many places, < walking or motion of head; sticking, in many places, < moving head; jerking, in places, < motion and walk, > lying. Aching; at night, alternating with frightful dreams; after dinner, lasting till bedtime; < in open air; with weariness, then coldness; now in one part of brain, now in another; deep in brain, < walking, with constriction, < r. side of forehead and in occiput; as if skull would burst, brain beats in waves against skull (Aeon.); pulsating, with heat, coldness of hands and feet and repugnance to food (Fer.); as if brain were pressing together from both sides and out at forehead, < walking in open air; pressure towards forehead as if everything would be pressed out, > strong pressure with hand (Nat. m.); like a jerking towards forehead, < till evening, when it disappeared; as if brain were kneaded together, with excitement, uneasiness, too rapid attention and overstrained fantasies; as if brain were sore, < touch, fixed attention, deep thought or talking; bruised, on walking in open air; burning, with hot sweat on forehead; stupefying, in morning on waking.

Confusion; with tensile pain in forehead and orbits; with emptiness of head and indolence of body, as from night-watching; in morning as after intoxication, with dry mouth; like dizziness from dancing; like catarrh. Stupefaction, with pressure in forehead. Oppression, with sweat on forehead. Heaviness; in morning on waking, with weariness in limbs; < turning eyes, with heat in it and jerking pain in temples. Rising of blood, with hot forehead and cold limbs (Ferr.). Brain seems pressed by much blood. Intoxication; with inclination to be jolly. Vertigo; rising into head at noon; at night on waking, so that he is afraid to sit upright; with inclination of head to sink backward, < motion and walking, > lying, with faintness and staggering; with nausea, then heat.

Forehead.—Sticking when sitting; S. and in one temple; between F. and l. temple, > touch, when he feels severe throbbing in temporal arteries; between F. and r. temple, with violent pulsation in temporal artery; above nose and on cheeks; in r. eminence, < touch; externally on l. eminence, with vertigo and nausea in throat; burning, between F. and vertex. Jerking tearing in eminences. Digging in l. side when sitting unoccupied or occupied with something for which he has no inclination. Aching; in r. side; over l. orbit; above orbits in forenoon, < walking, > dinner; in middle in afternoon; when sitting, changing to temples on bending backward; when walking, then in temples; extending over head; moving back and forth on touch; drawing; tensive, and in orbits; itching, above orbits. Confusion. Fulness above eyes. Weight in morning, > noon.

Temples.—Sticking in r.; l. Tearing in l.; jerking, in r.; as if bones would be pressed out. Cutting, and in occiput, extending to orbits, < stooping and motion. Hammering, extending towards T. Aching, in evening; like dry coryza; jerking, extending to upper jaw. Pressure on l.; pressing together.

Spasmodic pain in vertex, then bruised sensation in side of head, < motion. Contractive pain in a circle in middle of vertex. Digging in l. side of head when sitting. Headache in side to which he inclines himself. Throbbing pain in l. parietal bone. Jerking from parietal bones along neck.

Occiput.—Tearing from r. bone to r. frontal eminence. Aching; as if cerebellum would be pressed out. Drawing pain when sitting; painful drawing on r. side; upon bone; drawing pain in l., > bending head backward; in articulation of O. and atlas, obliging him to bend head backward; to forehead, as if whole forehead were drawn together, ending in temples as a throbbing, > walking, returning when sitting or standing, > pressure. Dulness in lower part, as when waking. Vertigo while sitting.

Scalp.—Stitches in l. side. Contractive pain on l. side of occiput; as if drawn to one point. Contraction on forehead as if it would be drawn together in centre. Pain on upper part of head as if grasped. Sensitiveness to touch, < at roots of hair. Sticking itching.

Clinical.—The headache is generally intense, throbbing pain, with great sensitiveness of the head, it seems as if the skull would burst; this throbbing headache is usually worse in the temples, or it may be only in the temples; this temporal pulsation is often noticed as a precursor of malarial paroxysms; with the headaches the external head is usually extremely sensitive to the slightest touch. Violent anæmic headaches as a result of sexual excesses or after loss of blood, pulsating, even hammering, with flickering before eyes, > hard pressure, < slightest touch; sometimes a feeling as if the brain were moving back and forth and hitting against the sides of the skull.

Eyes.—Redness in afternoon, with burning pain and heat. Pain on motion, with sensation of mechanical hindrance. Biting in one, then other, with lachrymation; B. as from salt, with necessity to rub them. Sensation in night on waking as if swimming in water. Painless pressure as from weakness and loss of sleep. Sensation as in general weakness, as if sunken. Lachrymation, with crawling pain in eyes and on inner surface of lids. Pupils dilated; and almost immovable, with myopia; contracted.

Lids.—Gum in external canthi after sleep. Twitching of r. upper; l. upper; twitching, blinking, trembling. Closure from weakness and sleepiness. Tearing in l. external canthus. Pain; in external canthi. Dry sensation between lids and ball, with rubbing pain on moving lids. Tickling. Itching on l.

Pressure on brows, more externally, < motion of frontal muscles. Photophobia. Darkness before eyes. Vision of black floating points. Room lighted by a candle appeared in a blinding sulphur-yellow light, then all surroundings were of a shimmering rosy-red (this appeared as the headache suddenly disappeared during a sluggish stool, with tenesmus).

Clinical.—Retinal atropia, with transient blindness or with flickering before the eyes (after sexual excesses). Hemeralopia. Neuralgia about the eyes; ciliary neuralgia, supraorbital neuralgia (Ced.); the neuralgia < slightest touch. The weakness of vision and the neuralgia about the eyes are frequently associated with spinal irritation and great soreness of the spine, extending into the occiput and even into the eyes; the pains frequently < at night when lying down, but not always.

Ears.—Sticking from middle upward through brain; here and there in parotids. Tearing in lobules; in cartilage and external meatus. (Pain in middle); in l. on touch; drawing, behind ear, extending to mastoid process. Tickling. Throbbing, then ringing. Hearing difficult. Deafness as if something were before the ear internally. Ringing (Cannab. ind.); with pain in temples; in r., with tickling crawling as of an insect. Roaring. Ticking as of a distant watch.

Clinical.—Ringing and roaring in the ears, loss of hearing. Frequent neuralgic pains in ears, < touch. Hearing extremely sensitive to noises. External ear very sensitive to touch, sometimes inflamed.

Nose.—Redness and heat. Stitches in cartilage of septum. Tearing in back. Pain in root (Ign.) (after heat of cheek had disappeared), extending to side. Pressure across root, extending upward, and on eyebrow, > touch, with tension of skin of l. wing of nose. Sudden biting deep in l. nostril in evening, < compression of nose, sticking on every inspiration, then itching externally on back of nose. Sneezing; at beginning of fever; with coryza. Catarrh, with sensitiveness of nose and pimples on margin of nostrils and septum, which are painful to touch; fluent C., with sneezing and lachrymation; trickling from nose; watery discharge, with stoppage; attacks of stopped C. Bleeding; between 6 and 7 A.M., after rising; after violent blowing.

Clinical.—Smell very acute. Nosebleed in anæmic persons, with ringing in ears, or relieving headache.

Face.—Red; and swollen; cheeks and lobules of ears. Pale; and sunken, pinched, sickly. Hippocratic (pointed nose, hollow eyes with blue rings), with indifference, insensibility. Earthy. Changing color frequently. Sticking in l. side; in r. cheek, > pressure. Pain in r. side; picking, in zygoma and r. back tooth. Pressure across, < near nose and cheek, with contraction of lids as if upper and lower lids were drawn towards each other. Lip (cracked); in middle of lower when sneezing; (shrivelled); inner surface of lower sore and excoriated; dry, without thirst; lower painful near l. corner as from a corroding ulcer; sore sensation in r. upper, near corner, as after much wiping in coryza. Jaw, jerking, sticking in r. side of lower; tearing in l. side of lower; T. in r. before midnight; cutting-burning pain in upper when standing.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia. Occasionally useful in erysipelas of the face, of the vesicular variety, with low delirium. Facial erysipelas in an infant, with hot, swollen extremities (Acou).

Mouth.—Teeth. Looseness (Merc.); and pain on chewing. Sticking extending outward in incisors; S. in r. upper back on inhaling cold air, with tearing. Jerking tearing in l. upper back; drawing tearing upward and backward in upper, then faintness. Digging in upper back, > for a moment by biting teeth together and pressing upon them. Pain; in crowns of r. back when biting teeth together; throbbing; picking, in upper back; in lower incisors as if they had been knocked against something. Drawing pain in l. lower; D. pain in incisors in morning; in upper back in morning, with numbness; in open air and in draft; in l. upper back, with feeling as if gum or inner part of cheek were swollen. Gum and lip swollen.

Tongue coated, < afternoon; on waking; white in morning; yellow; dirty white crust; (yellowish, not coated); whitish; painful swelling posteriorly on side; vesicle beneath, painful when tongue is moved; burning stitches; sticking in tip; biting in middle as if sore or burnt; biting on tip as from pepper, then accumulation of saliva at this place; sensation as if dry and covered with mucus. Swelling of velum palati and uvula. Bright blood suddenly came into mouth after an agreeable surprise. Mucus in mouth; in morning after waking and after exertion, and he believes there is an offensive odor from his throat. Scraping on palate. Sensation as if he had smelled too strong vinegar, causing coagulation of mucus. Sensation as of an offensive exhalation. Dryness (Ars.); of palate in evening after fever, with thirst. Contractive sensation in salivary glands. Salivation (Merc.); with nausea. Offensive breath towards morning, > eating.

Taste bitter (Chel., Bry.), even to tobacco-smoke; B. in morning (Nat. m.); when drinking coffee; to everything, > after eating; to bread on swallowing, although it tasted good while chewing; to food, < wheat cakes; to beer and the beer mounts to the head; in throat, obliging him to swallow saliva constantly. Slimy (Merc.), which disgusts him with butter; bitter slimy. Sweetish; to tobacco-smoke; S., then sour. Sour; to coffee; to black bread; as if stomach had been disordered by fruit. Salt; to food, then bitter; sweetish salt; bitter, salt to bread and butter. Watery and flat. Flat, qualmish after drinking. Nauseous, at times bitter, < morning, with unpleasant taste to food; N. as after cheese. Aeric in posterior part of palate from tobacco-smoking, with biting. Little to supper. Lost when smoking tobacco; after smoking tobacco.

Clinical.—Neuralgic toothache > clenching teeth tightly, yet < slightly touching teeth, in anemic persons. Chronic salivation, the effect of mercurial poisoning.

Throat.—Submaxillary glands painful, < touch and motion of neck. Choking in r. submaxillary gland, < touch and motion of neck, with pinching. Choking and contraction in gullet. Sticking in evening when breathing after lying down, > swallowing; in r. side on swallowing; from a draught of air. Scraping, < on margin of larynx, as after rancid eructations or heartburn. Roughness. Contractive sensation. Swollen sensation internally and when swallowing sticking on l. side of tongue, with pain in that spot on talking or breathing. Sensation as if food remained in upper part. Sensation in pit as if it would become sore, sensation when swallowing like a sore throat although swallowing does not hurt it. Tension in gullet on bending head backward. Empty feeling in pharynx and œsophagus. Dryness, with cool breath. Swallowing painful, with swollen submaxillary glands and pain in them on swallowing; difficult on account of narrow feeling. Contraction of muscles of œsophagus.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; at 8 A.M. without knowing what he wishes to eat; in afternoon; for various things but does not know exactly what; for sour cherries; ravenous, with nausea; ravenous, with insipid taste; hunger but want of appetite, food tastes natural yet is disagreeable in mouth; relishes supper, but is immediately satiated (Lyc.); indifference to eating and drinking, only while eating appetite and natural taste to food return; little appetite at noon; dinner is eaten without relish; does not relish tobacco-smoking.

Anorexia; before and after noon, with ineffectual desire to vomit.

Thirst; in evening after fever, with hunger, then after eating coldness and rumbling in abdomen; after shivering through skin; after chill; (during chill); during sweat on back and forehead after fever; < morning; then heat over body, with throbbing in all bloodvessels, burning in ears and forehead, internal sensation in cheeks, hands and feet as if too hot; for cold water, with chill and heat, < morning after waking; for wine; little; none when eating. Aversion to coffee (Nux v.); to beer (Nux v.); to water, with longing for beer (Nux v.).

Eructations; after eating; empty; as from nausea, also with colic; bitter, also after eating; bitter, sourish, after bread and butter; tasting of food; of badly tasting mucus; hot, then taste of China beginning at root of tongue and spreading through mouth; incomplete, sourish, after milk; something half way between E. and sobbing. Nausea; when he hears not unpleasant things spoken of, with aversion to labor, sleepiness by day and yellow color of eyeballs; > eating, with flushes of heat and orgasm of blood; in region of pit of throat after eating. Vomiting; at 11.15 a.m., principally of water, of sour taste, of penetrating odor, like the bark.

Spasm in cardiac region. Sticking here and there, and in abdomen; S. in pit; in pit during inspiration; in pit extending to sternum; jerking. Clawing. Soreness in pit mornings, with pain as from pressure on a sore place. Pressure; after eating a little; after eating vegetables, then flatulence, then vomiting, then burning extending half way up chest; > while eating; in region, > rising from a seat; below pit as if everything were excoriated, then violent diarrhoea. Constriction in morning when lying on side, > lying on back. Compression in pit, impeding respiration. Oppression. Fulness; after eating; as full for a long time after a meal as when he had just eaten, the food seems to stick high up (Lyc.). Sensation as if he had eaten, drunk and smoked to satiety (Lyc.). Weight. Emptiness, with nausea. Nauseous anxiety when sitting after a moderate meal followed by a walk, together with hunger. Coldness. Agreeable warmth from region to navel, with tasteless eructation. (Indigestion); of supper. Disordered by milk (Nit. ac., Nux v., Sulph.); by too much food.

Clinical.—Dyspepsia, constant satiety, with coldness in stomach, craving for pungent spices and sour things and stimulants; digestion extremely slow; after eating he feels full, drowsy, taste of the food rises, with dyspœa, etc. Dyspepsia, with painful pressure and distention in region of stomach after eating and drinking a little. Appetite entirely lost, and after eating a little loud belching and inability to work. Acid dyspepsia, heartburn even after milk, constant satiety, no relief from belching gas. After hæmorrhage from the stomach, with great sensitiveness of the stomach and great prostration, etc. the abdomen sensitive over the region of the liver, which is sometimes swollen (compare gastric symptoms with Lyc.).

Abdomen.—Distention; after eating; after a moderate supper (Lyc.), with gripping and here and there sharp pain; in morning without flatulence; until eructations; with colic and diarrhoea; as from stultent food and much drink. Fermentation from fruit (Ars., Bry., Puls.) (cherries). Flatulenc. Rumbling; between 6 and 10 p.m., with movement of flatus and aching, then emission of flatus, Rattling, Commotion. Emission of flatus; offensive (compare Carbo veg.)

Sticking when sitting, extending downward on inspiration; griping S. Cutting at noon; during and after passage of whitish, turbid urine, with pressure; shooting in all directions before passage of flatus. Griping; towards evening when walking; after drinking, as after a purge; > rising from a seat; with pain on passage of flatus; with hunger and weariness. Pain like a pinching and drawing, < sitting. Cold, colicky cramp, then diarrhoea. Sharp pain. Colic before stool; before passage of flatus; during digestion; with thirst; flatulent; pain in evening when sitting, as before diarrhoea; spasmodic, composed of pressure and constriction; bruised, in muscles; contractive, in evening when sitting. Contracted sensation, with rumbling in lower. Drawing, with emission of flatus and hard, difficult stool. Heaviness. Warmth.

Sides.—Crackling downward and backward in l., as if in ascending colon. Drawing-jerking pain when eating. Drawing pain in r. on walking. Pressure in both sides as if stool should follow but could not. Beating in r.

Upper.—Rumbling. Swelling of liver (Chel., Merc., Lyc.). Sticking in several parts in morning in bed; in spleen (Cebtron), on walking; in hepatic region, beneath ribs; in hepatic region on expiration, extending outward; below l. ribs, extending outward, < inspiration; pinching, in l. hypochondrium; pinching, below region of stomach in evening, as before diarrhoea. Cutting as if spleen were hardened. Pinching, > bending double, alternating with nausea, urging to stool and shaking chill all over, then pressure in upper abdomen. Intermittent pressure in hepatic region while standing, > bending forward, with pain on touch as if suppurating. Fullness after eating, the food remains long. Constriction. Internal coldness after every swallow of drink, renewed on every inspiration (compare Ars.).

Umbilical Region.—Sticking on l. side below umbilicus on walking rapidly and afterwards; in r. side above umbilicus, < touch; in l. side and at same time below r. nipple, extending inward. Tearing; below umbilicus, with rumbling; on r. side, extending into hypogastrium, > bending backward. Cutting, with cold sweat on forehead; attacks of C. Griping externally below r. side of umbilicus in evening when sitting. Pinching in evening in bed; above umbilicus, noon and evening after moderate eating, < motion, > rest; above umbilicus on rising after stooping, with constriction. Colicky spasms. Colic, with shivering. Pain on sides below umbilicus after eating. Pressure. Contraction in r. side below umbilicus when sitting, as from an induration. Heat.

Lower.—Painful distention. Gurgling. Increased peristaltic motion, with pressure. Sticking in l., in region of kidney; in bend of groin, on mons veneris, < walking. Tearing on l. side near mons veneris. Griping drawing back and forth above mons veneris as before diarrhoea, when sitting, with short passages of flatus. Pressure in l. Pain during chill; in region of caecum when sitting; paroxysmal cramplike, in groin when standing; flatulent, with constriction and tension, the flatus endeavored in vain to expel itself, with tension under short ribs and anxiety; sore, in ring, with sensation as if a hernia would protrude through the ring. Drawing in bend of groin when sitting, < tendon (of psoric muscle).

Clinical.—Gastro-duodenal catarrh, especially with yellow tongue, oppressive headache at night, loathing of food and yet canine hunger. Enlarged spleen, which is painful (especially in chronic malarial poisoning) (compare Ceanothus, Cedron); the pains in the spleen are acute and sticking. General distention of abdomen, with desire to eructate gas, which affords no relief. The fermentation which results from the acid dyspepsia involves the whole abdomen and there are a great deal of rumbling and pains of different sorts. Gall-stone colic (Dr. Thayer declares that China 6th will permanently cure a tendency to gall-stone colic, with all the attendant symptoms). Jaundice in nursing children, abdomen tympanitic, spleen and liver enlarged.

Rectum.—Sticking in lower part, < in sphincter; during stool, then sticking drawing. Tearing when in bed, with tearing jerks. Pressure. Contractive pain, < sitting; spasmodic, extending through urethra to glans penis and through testicles, in evening. Burning pain after midday nap. Crawling as from ascarides and discharge of many of them; C. as from ascarides after stool. Urging to stool; in morning soon after rising; to thin stool; (ineffectual, with emission of flatus).

Anus.—Hæmorrhoids, painful; H. bleeding. Sticking during a stool, mixed with blood; when not at stool, and in rectum. Sensation of an acrid substance during stool. Burning, with burning-itching. Crawling. Crawling-creeping, and in urethra, with burning in glans. Sticking in perineum, < sitting.

Stool.—After eating. Diarrhoea; with urging; with burning pain in anus; of undigested fæces (Ferr.), also passed in several pieces, then ineffectual urging; and nodular, yellow; (frequent, blackish); and frequent, with biting-burning pain in anus, and colic before and after every stool. Pappy; but difficult, then ineffectual urging with pain. Hard. Difficult, painful, after long urging. Constipation; with accumulation of hard fæces in rectum; with accumulation of fæces in intestines, heat in head, and dizziness. White, with dark urine. Bilious. Two in morning. Intermitted for two days.

Clinical.—Painless diarrhoea, with bloated abdomen, stools containing undigested food, < at night, with great fermentation in bowels, general desire for acids and relishes of various sorts. Stools, sometimes involuntary, of cadaverous odor. Diarrhoea from eating fruit. Diarrhoea, recurring after meals (Crot. tig.). Diarrhoea occurring in the course of debilitating diseases. Dysentery, rarely.

Urinary Organs.—Pressure in bladder after frequent and almost ineffectual efforts to urinate. Micturition frequent; two calls at night; involuntary; in a feeble, slow stream. Urethra, sticking when urinating; sensitiveness also when sitting and rising up, with stiffness of penis; burning in orifice; burning pain in orifice during and after micturition; burning-biting in forepart in evening, when urinating; bubbling sensation in region of bulb. Urine dark; with brick-red sediment (Lyc.); copious; increased, with burning in orifice of urethra; whitish, turbid, with white sediment; pale, depositing a cloud; pale, depositing a dirty yellow, flocculent sediment; scanty and dark; scanty, with brick-red sediment.

Sexual Organs.—Swelling of spermatic cord, painful to touch, and of scrotum, < epididymis. Sticking in frænum of glans, < touch, with tension. Pain in glans before urinating; jerking pain between glans and prepuce when walking; itching of glans in evening, in bed. Sore sensation on margin of prepuce, < rubbing of clothes. Frequent erections; at night. Scrotum hangs down; sticking itching of scrotum; itching crawling on scrotum in evening in bed. Tearing in l. testicle and in l. side of prepuce in evening in bed; drawing pain in testicles. Desire increased. Emissions nightly; at 3 A.M.

Metrorrhagia, with black clots. Suppression of menses.

Clinical.—Impotency resulting from sexual excesses; nocturnal emissions, very debilitating; in general, frequently useful for symptoms resulting from sexual excesses. Uterine hemorrhages, especially after labor, with atony of uterus, discharge of large quantities of blood, cold skin, fainting, convulsive jerks, etc. Menstruation too early and profuse, with dark clots, distention of abdomen, etc. Leucorrhœa that comes on instead of the menses; bloody, fetid, purulent, great weakness, etc. Metritis. Ovaritis from sexual excesses or following hemorrhages, all the parts are very sensitive to the slightest touch. General anemia resulting from prolonged nursing. Hemorrhage from the lungs while nursing.

Respiratory Organs.—Tickling in evening provoking cough, which, however, he can suppress. Whistling and wheezing in trachea on breathing. Collection of mucus in larynx; which he constantly loosens and which causes hoarseness; something is adherent to larynx, so that the voice is deep and rough. Stitches in larynx, with roughness. Pain in trachea and sternum on coughing. Drawing in trachea below larynx, then cough in one impulse. Hoarseness.

Cough caused by laughing (Phos., Stan.); C. after eating (Nux v., Ars.); waking after midnight, with sticking in both sides of chest at every paroxysm of cough; irritation to hacking, as from sulphur fumes, whereby nothing could be loosened, mornings; suffocative (a kind of whooping cough), at 2 and 4 A.M., with screaming on account of it after coughing a few times; (coughing up bloody mucus). Suffocative attack as if larynx were full of mucus, & towards evening and at night on waking. Inspiration difficult and painful, expiration quick. Dyspnoea, < walking, with difficult, at times rattling expiration and with roughness of chest. Inclination before dinner to breathe deeply.

Clinical.—Asthmatic attacks. Nervous cough, dry and hacking, with pain in spleen, palpitation, intolerance of tight clothing, dyspnoea, etc. Bronchorrhœa, with great prostration, simulating the last stage of phthisis, intolerance of the slightest pressure over chest, which is extremely sensitive; loud râles through the chest, and extreme debility. Hæmoptysis, with anemia, œdema of the extremities. Phthisis from excessive loss of fluids and vitality, night-sweats (compare Acet. ac.).

Chest.—Twitching here and there in muscles. Sticking in l.; in forepart beneath last ribs, without relation to respiration; between l. seventh and eighth ribs; in cartilages of l. third and fourth false ribs; in morning; in side at night, but during the day only on motion and touch; in side when sitting and reading; in a spot below last r. ribs on pressure and on walking; above præcordial region when at rest, < reading; in l. on expiration when sitting; on l. side near ensiform cartilage on expiration, and in pit of stomach; in side when eating and drinking, and in back, with nausea; when walking rapidly; in sides, with heat, hard pulse and staring eyes; from sternum through to back, after drinking; below r. arm, in region of fourth rib, as if in pleura, > pressure and stooping; beneath last ribs on inspiration, arresting breathing; compelling inspiration; outward near r. nipple; outward in region of sixth and seventh true ribs, without affecting respiration; rhythmical, outward; inward in sternum at attachment of ribs, without affecting respiration; tickling, in l., extending towards præcordial region. Tearing below last true ribs, on l. side of ensiform cartilage. Tearing drawing beneath last rib when standing. Intermittent cutting across when sitting bent.

Pain; in region of r. fourth and fifth ribs; when coughing, with soreness in larynx; in side, impeding breathing; in side as if beaten; drawing across lower when sitting, causing anxiety, > standing and walking; drawing, behind sternum; in joints of ribs as if bruised, on inspiration; contractive, in middle of r. side, so that he must expel the breath suddenly; contractive, beneath last ribs when walking, and a bruised sensation; tensive, in morning, < external muscles. Pressure upon chest; on l. side near ensiform cartilage; over anterior part at night when lying upon back; in sternum after eating, < sitting bent and raising arm; externally upon middle of sternum when upper part of body is bent and when standing, > pressure; externally upon sternum when sitting bent, causing anxiety and insufficient inspiration; (sharp, with crawling in one side); outward in region of last ribs; burning, inward; drawing, on r. when sitting. Oppression; in evening, > sighing, with uneasiness, weak pulse and anxious, impatient mood; at night, with whistling and rattling, and with wheezing and râles in trachea; in region of pit of stomach as if something were burrowing there. Agreeable fullness as from satiety, with sweetish saliva. Burning; extending from upper part to stomach, then agreeable warmth. (Throbbing in sternum in morning and evening.) (Crawling in one breast.)

Heart.—Dilatation of r. side. Sticking in præcordial region after drinking. Palpitation; waking at 3 A.M., < lying on l. side, returning at 9 A.M., < motion; after dinner, < movement, > quiet; after slight exercise, with oppressed breathing; with rush of blood to face, which was hot and red, and with cold hands; with intermitting pulse, intermission of every ninth beat, then three or four rapid beats; with depressed pulse and cold skin; with anxiety; then chill.

Pulse.—Rapid; and irregular; and hard, with flushes of heat alternating with chilliness of back, which is covered with cold sweat and cold sweat on forehead. Full and hard. Slow and weak. Thin and irregular.

Neck.—Sticking, then stiffness; slow drawing sticking in anterior muscles when at rest. Pain on motion; pain in nape as if glands were swollen, on turning head, extending after a walk to throat, < touch, when it is a bruised sensation. Drawing pain; on r. lower part of nape when standing, > stooping.

Back.—Sticking in l. side when sitting; throbbing sticking. Bruised pain on motion. Sticking in middle of spine; across r. scapula and in l. chest. Tearing in region of l. scapula on inspiration; drawing tearing in l. scapula. Pain in scapula as from dislocation. Contractive pain between S. when standing. Jerking across sacrum; painful. Sticking in lumbar region; in region of r. kidney, < bending. Jerking tearing in l. side of small of back. Aching in sacral region, extending down thighs, with languor, distention of abdomen and ineffectual desire for stool; sticking drawing, in middle of sacrum, extending towards lumbar vertebrae; tensive, in sacrum, as from a heavy load or after long stooping; in small of back as from cramp or as if bruised and crushed, with sudden crying out on motion.

Clinical.—Spinal irritation; the spine is extremely sensitive to touch, pain shooting into head, etc. Many symptoms of tabes have been relieved (see under Extremities).

Extremities.—Cracking in joints. Trembling from a chill and creeping shivering over thighs in open, not cold air. Twitching. Jerking tearing, < touch, < hands and soles. Sensible, but invisible trembling, with a cooling sensation. Laxity of all and trembling of hands; trembling weakness. Heaviness, as if lead were hanging to them (Phos.), < thighs. Numbness and stiffness. Paralytic stiffness in all joints on rising from sleep in morning and from midday nap, causing mental depression. Falling asleep of those upon which he lies.

Upper Extremities.—Paralytic jerking-tearing in long bones, < touch; paralytic tearing, extending into all parts, < more by touch than by motion. Tearing in l. axilla and on anterior and inner border of scapula. Intermittent drawing pain on margin of r. axilla, near forepart. Paralytic jerking-tearing on top of shoulder, with sensitiveness to touch, the pain renewed by touch, even of coat.

Arm.—Tearing if she stands by the window, with drawing. Tension, and in hands. Weakness noticed when clenching hands. Sticking in upper, > motion. Tearing in l. upper, then in r.; jerking tearing in humerus, towards upper and inner part; paralytic jerking-T, extending from head of humerus along muscles and bones to phalanges, where it is painless, the pain < touch, with weakness of whole arm. Paralytic pain in head of humerus, losing itself in hand as a tearing, with general warmth, < forehead.

Elbow.—Tearing through l.; in l., < motion. Sticking in l. Painful drawing in bend of l., on crocod process of ulna, < touch; drawing pains in bones to fingers in evening.

Forearm.—Tearing, > rubbing, with drawing back and forth, now r., now l.; T. in shafts of ulnae, < touch. Drawing pain, as if periosteum were scraped with a dull knife. Falling asleep on bending, for example, on writing, with sticking in tips of fingers. Drawing sticking across wrist in evening. Jerking tearing in wrist and metacarpal bones.

Hand.—Swelling of l., with pain across dorsum on motion. Trembling when writing. Sticking in l.; in metacarpal bone of r. index. Tearing where metacarpal bones unite with bones of wrist; jerking T. in metacarpal bones and fingers, < touch; jerking T. in metacarpal bone of r. little finger. Cramplike drawing pain on taking hold of anything; drawing pain in palm across roots of fingers. Swelling of knuckle of middle finger, with stiffness and pain on motion. Tearing in bones of r. distal phalanges, < joints; jerking T. in distal joint of r. thumb; jerking T. in phalanges. Jerking pain in l. little finger. Drawing in thumb, middle and index fingers of l. hand, extending upward.

Lower Extremities.—Tottering. Pain like a sticking and burning on several places. Painful drawing in long bones. Weakness when walking. Falling asleep when sitting.

Thigh.—Hard swelling, at times extending to beginning of feet, becoming thinner in lower part, reddish and painful to touch. Jerking in middle of l. Sticking on posterior part of r. when standing, extending upward. Jerking-tearing; on anterior part of l.; on anterior and outer parts on touch. Paroxysmal tearing downward in femora. Pressure in upper part of flesh of r. nates, on pelvic bone, when sitting, increasing in a pulsatile manner. Bruised pain in posterior muscles when sitting. Cramplike paralytic pain in r. on rising after sitting some time and on walking, and in knee.

Drawing pain in bones as if periosteum had been scraped with a dull knife. Drawing in nates and knees when standing; painful D. in skin on inner side of l.; painful D. downward in shaft of femora in afternoon, < sitting; tearing, in l. nates when sitting; cramplike (sticking), and in legs. Sensation in l. when standing, as of a hard pimple in flesh, with drawing pain in it. Tension in anterior muscles when walking. Burning and crawling on rising from a seat, as if asleep, < in hollow of knee, < standing. Weakness; as from heaviness and paralysis; of hip-joint and knee in morning, with unsteadiness, changing on motion to a bruised pain in thigh, then < legs.

Knee.—Hot swelling of r., with drawing-tearing, walking at midnight. Trembling on rising from a seat, > walking. Giving way; when walking; < ascending steps. Sticking in l. Tearing to thigh, with weakness; paralytic T. in r., extending now to thigh, now to leg, < more by touch than by motion, with weakness; jerking T. on inner side of patella. Pain on bending, preventing sleep, with nodes in its skin; pain on side of patella when touched; jerking P.; bruised, on motion; drawing, in r. in afternoon on rising from a seat and on walking > sitting. Drawing when sitting, and in inguinal joint; jerklike, synchronous with pulse, in tendons of flexors of hollows; spasmodic, in hollow of r. in evening when sitting, > standing and walking, extending into thigh (with pressure), as if leg would be drawn up.

Leg.—Painful cramp in l. calf at night on stretching and bending up foot. Sticking in tibiae when walking; sudden, in upper part of calf when walking in open air. Tearing in calf. Bruised pain in bones on stepping, < touch, and if she feels of it shivering of foot and chilliness of it as if she put it into cold water; pain in lower half as if periosteum were bruised and swollen, on standing, but on touch sore pain as if excoriated. Drawing pain on tibia in evening when sitting, > standing and walking; in r. tibia near heel when sitting, then in foot; on inner part of l. tibia, below patella, when stretching leg while sitting, > bending leg. Sensation as if garters were too tight and leg would go to sleep and be numb (compare Coccul. and Cedron). Burning tension above tendo-achillis. Restlessness, obliging him to extend and draw them up. Weakness.

Foot.—Hard swelling, spotted red; soft swelling of soles. Sticking in l.; (in scar on l.); tearing, in sole when sitting and walking. Jerking tearing in metatarsal bones and toes; in metatarsal bones and phalanges of toes, < touch, < joints; in tarsal and metatarsal bones; at union of metatarsal and ankle bones. Sticking tearing in sole, in region of heel, when sitting and walking. Contractive pinching on outer side of r. sole. Drawing pain in r. metatarsal bones. Drawing on dorsum when standing, with sore pain, > sitting; sticking, in heels; cramplike, on inner side of l. when sitting. Sticking burning in upper part, close to tibia when sitting. Weakness as if bruised. Boring sticking in tips of toes. Sticking crawling as after freezing, from great toe to dorsum of foot in evening when sitting, > standing and walking.

Clinical.—Occasionally useful in hip disease, the effects of prolonged suppuration, with sweats, diarrhoea, etc. Chronic synovitis of knee. Sensation as if cords were tied about the leg. Anasarca of lower extremities, always < towards night, with general anæmia and general sensitiveness of the surface of the body to the slightest touch.

Skin.—Turgor of veins. Eruption in concha; (red miliary, on forepart of throat). Boil on cheek; on pectoral muscles. Urticaria of face, forearms and hands, afterwards with vesicles like varicella. Watery vesicles behind ears. (Ulcer discharges offensive ichor, with burning and aching in it, he cannot let the foot hang down and the foot is painful when standing); boring in U.; throbbing pain on moving part; (sticking throbbing pain, even during rest); sensitiveness; sticking-itching pain.

Sticking in various places. Digging in a wound. Tugging as if a hair were pulled, < on abdomen. Sensitiveness (Ars.), even of palms; on thighs, to rubbing of clothes, as if rough and covered with pimples. Sensation on elbow as if infiltrated with blood. (Creeping on forehead.) Itching at night; L, with oozing of blood on scratching; followed after scratching by vesicles as from burning nettles; on arms, loins and chest, < evening, and after scratching pimples; on r. sole when walking and sitting, > scratching; crawling, on coccyx, > for a short time by rubbing; burning, under knees and on inside of arms when warm and at night in bed, with watery blisters, which disappear in cold air; biting, almost only on those parts on which he lies, > scratching and lying on other side; biting, during midday nap, almost only on those parts upon which he does not lie and which are turned upward.

Sleep.—Yawning; with stretching of limbs; with chilliness; without sleepiness. Sleepiness during the day; at 8.30 P.M.; after eating; after dinner; with palpitation; then wakefulness. Sleep during the day; S. when sitting; as soon as she sits down during the day, with nodding, but if she lies down she is wide awake at the slightest noise; with one eye open, the other half-closed, with balls turned upward as in a dying person; on his back, head thrown backward, arms stretched above head, with slow expiration and strong, rapid pulse; sound, as of a drunken person, then in morning confusion of head as if he had not slept enough, with pressure in temples on shaking head.

Sleeplessness all night; with vivid disagreeable thoughts crowding upon each other; till midnight, with headache; after midnight, though sleepy, with activity of thought and frequent changes in his position; till 2 A.M.; except from 3 to 5 A.M.; on account of thoughts crowding upon him, also with warmth towards morning, but inability to have less covering; with restlessness. Falling asleep late, then unsound sleep and exhaustion in morning on rising. Frequent waking; with sweat on scalp and forehead and chilliness over back. Early waking. Snoring inspiration (through nose); inspiration and expiration; inspiration at one time, at another a puffing expiration; S. in a child, with moaning. Starting out of sleep; with inability to collect himself; starting on falling asleep. Uneasy sleep; interrupted by four or five erections; with general sweat after waking in night; full of dreams and crying out; with uncovering, worrying dreams of former occurrences, and in the morning he cannot get awake on account of confusion and stupidity in head, in morning out of sorts and unrefreshed.

Dreams.—Heavy, making him anxious after waking. Anxious, whereupon he woke half conscious and remained frightened; that he is descending a precipice, waking him and remaining vivid before his fancy, < closing eyes, and he cannot quiet himself. Frightful; just as he is falling asleep, waking him; waking him without his being able to come to his senses; of falling from a height, with waking full of uneasiness and inability to collect himself. Confused, on falling asleep, on account of which he woke; C. and senseless; C. and senseless after midnight, with half conscious waking. Of nasty things on closing her eyes to sleep. Voluptuous, with emissions.

Fever.—Chilliness; at 5 A.M., with weakness of feet; after dinner, then heat; < drinking; with pressure in abdomen. Alternating with heat all the forenoon; in afternoon, together with weakness of lower limbs, all < walking in open air; with some thirst for cold water during the heat; C. and sweat all day, A. with heat and redness of face, with thirst. Intermittent all day, < forehead, where there is cold sweat, thirst after the first chill; L, with weakness of knees and tibiae when walking and standing, > sitting. Internal; without external; without external, then cutting in head extending into orbits; periodically, with shivering; and external, < at times in marrow of bones of feet, which are colder than hands. As from a cold wind, < walking, seldom with shivering, it only comes when sitting, over arms, loins and thighs.

Shivering in morning; in morning and forenoon, with cold hands, nausea and rapid pulse; at 5 P.M. when walking in open air, > in room, with coldness, then heat, < face, < motion and walking, then thirst; (in evening on lying down); after every swallow of drink, or chilliness, with gooseflesh (Caps.); on entering warm room from open air; in open, not cold air, > in room; in open air, with gooseflesh; with gooseflesh; with cold hands and dulness of mind; general; general, without thirst (Ars., Phos.); also with internal chill (Ars.); general, less on limbs.

Coldness, except of face, which was red, with sometimes internal coldness on the warm forehead; C., except of face, which is warm, then coldness of forehead with internal warmth in rest of body. Cold cheeks and feet, with cold sweat on forehead, internal heat of face, trunk and thighs. Cold nose. Back; when walking in open air, then heat in back with sweat, then again chill. Limbs internally and externally, with general internal and external heat and slight thirst for cold water. Arms and abdomen, with redness and heat of cheeks and lobules of ears; arms, with nausea, then cold limbs, with shivering and recurrent nausea. Hands, < r.; < l.; in morning, and feet, with shivering over thighs, < walking; in evening, with hot cheeks; in open air, with external chilliness as if dashed with cold water, and chattering of teeth, > in room except the coldness of hands; alternately, with warm; internally, and in arms; internally in l, though not externally colder than r. Lower limbs. Knees; from l. knee to sole. Feet; in evening; < l.; with general internal heat and distended veins; with redness and internal heat of cheeks.

Shivering above elbows and knees; over chest and arms when walking in open air.

Heat in forenoon before a meal, then when walking in open air cold sensation on ankles and coldness of rest of body; in afternoon, with redness and heat of face, great hunger, burning of lips if they touch each other and burning sticking in skin about lips; towards evening, with rapid pulse; after midnight, with dry lips but no thirst; with distended veins and easily dilating pupils, without thirst; almost with inability to uncover hands without difficulty. General, with sticking in skin (Merc. cor.), < on neck, with thirst for cold water; with swelling of veins of arms and hands, without sweat or thirst; from 5 to 7 P.M., < walking in open air, which caused sweat on forehead, with hunger preceding and lasting into beginning of heat and returning after the fever, and on walking sensation of hot water running down (a creeping of heat over abdomen and down thighs), with red cheeks, without thirst. Dry, all day. In flashes, with thirst for cold water. Internal, with red cheeks, heat of trunk and arms and moisture of forehead. Internal and external, with sticking in several places in skin and thirst for cold water; I. and E., as from wine, with redness of face.

Burning in various parts during the day, with crawling and itching. Heat of head towards morning, with oppression of chest; of head, with swollen veins of hands; of head and face, with congestion, swelling of veins. External ear. Face; at 3 P.M., with red cheeks and dry sticky lips, without thirst; on coming from open air into a room that was not warm; and chest; then shivering and chilliness and general coldness; one or other cheek and lobule of ear, with redness, and before this disappears chill over body, then over lower limbs. (Anteriorly on upper part of thigh.) Skin not sensitive to air in morning after night-sweat.

Sweat; in morning sleep; at night; in sleep (Ferr.); general, as soon as he is covered, with such sleepiness that he cannot get up; general, when walking in open air. Cold. Oily in morning. Of body after waking at 3 A.M., with thirst, without sweat on feet or head, except where he lies upon cheek. In hair of head; when walking in open air. On face and hands; on face in morning on rising; cold, on face, with thirst. On nape and back on slightest motion.

Clinical.—Intermittent fever, without constitutional cachexia, except general weakness and anemia; the paroxysm is fully developed, the three stages of chill, fever and sweat are fully marked; preceding the chill there is violent thirst, often violent temporal headache; there is an interval between the chill and fever, but rarely any gastric disturbance; during the fever there is generally thirst, sometimes unnatural hunger; an interval between the fever and sweat; the sweat is profuse, debilitating, with thirst; during the apyrexia great debility, tingling in the ears, feeling of emptiness in stomach, soreness over the spleen and liver, with many symptoms characteristic of the drug.

Chininum Arsenicum.

The arsenate of "Quinia" is triturated for use.

General Action and Allies.—See Chininum sulph. and Arsenic.

Tired feeling. Head feels too full or as if it would burst. Painful pressure in forehead and temples. Confused pain in forehead and occipital protuberance. Dull, heavy aching in forehead and occiput; in cerebellum on motion. Sudden throbbings in temporal arteries after 1 P.M. Taste metallic, bitter. Throat dry. Loss of appetite, with weak feeling. Hiccough. Belching, then urging to stool. Nausea; during stool, with retching. Burning in stomach. Pressure behind stomach, not > dinner, which was relished; in solar plexus extending towards back, where it changed to pinching, spine sensitive to touch at this point. Emission of flatus. Colic; below umbilicus, with urging to stool. Intermittent sore pain in a spot below and to right of umbilicus. Sudden violent urging to stool. Diarrhea four times; urgent D., containing jellylike lumps; watery, blackish, immediately after dinner; watery, brown, painless; fecal stool, with mucus and blood, tenesmus before and after the stool.

Respiration very free, as if chest were hollow, in afternoon. Stitching in front of r. lower part of chest, < inspiration. Pain below and to left of l. nipple, not affected by breathing; coming and going quickly in lower part of l. lung, with pressure as from flatulence. Palpitation on leaning against back. Sensation as if heart stopped after 1 P.M., beating imperceptible. Trembling of heart, with a rumbling noise, I was unable to distinguish the pulsations, this lasted an hour, then beating of heart and pulse (the latter imperceptible on l. side) became irregular and numbered 200. Pulse 200.

Momentary pain in joint of l. great toe, in l. little finger and in region of l. olecranon. Weariness in shoulder and elbow-joints. Tired pain in biceps of l. arm. Sore aching in l. forearm, in muscular mass composed of supinator longus and brevis and flexor longus pollicis; in flexors of l. forearm, < radial side near elbow, same pain below l. knee; in first phalanx of l., then r. thumb. Pain in first joint of l. ring finger. Palms dry and hot. Weariness of lower limbs. Pain along front of lower two-thirds of l. tibia; intermittent sore, in r. biceps midway between hip and knee and in calf; feeting sore, in sole at root of l. little toe. Sleep interrupted.

Clinical.—It has been prescribed in malignant sore throat (diphtheria), with great prostration, especially in the latter stages or when the disease is very prolonged and shows no tendency towards convalescence. Angina pectoris, with burning pain and great prostration, occurring in periodical paroxysms. Asthmatic attacks or suffocative attacks, recurring every day at the same hour, during phthisis, with icy-cold skin and great anxiety, wants the open air. In marsh malaria it has been used when after the paroxysms there are cold sweat, prostration, great irritability, brown diarrhoea, etc.

Chininum Sulfuricum.

Pure sulphate of "Quinia" is triturated for use.

General Action.—Quinine is, above all, a proto-plasmic poison, devitalizing the blood and tissues; it particularly retards the elimination of nitrogenous waste (urea and uric acid), and causes the retention and accumulation of effete products in the system (though, for a time the diminished waste gives a sense of "tone" to the system, the ultimate result is deplorable). It causes congestion of the brain, and, in large doses, abolishes the cerebral functions. It is an irritant to serous membranes and to the skin; it causes deafness and serous inflammation of the internal ear; blindness, ischæmia of the retina and optic neuritis; it produces stupor, delirium and even convulsions. (Epilepsy is intensely aggravated by it.) Quinine, however, arrests the development of low forms of vegetable life, and especially of the poison of marsh malaria, but it rarely antidotes the effects of the poison on the system.

Allies.—(See China).

Generalities.—Emaciation. Pandiculation, with frequent yawning. Falling suddenly in the street; falling to the ground senseless. Convulsions. Twitchings in evening. Trembling. Wandering symptoms.

Neuralgia, > warmth; wandering N. Shocks or pricks like neuralgia or rheumatism in divers places, as l. supraorbital nerve, r. ear, r. elbow, r. knuckle, etc. Twinges in various places in afternoon; in lower half of r. scapula in afternoon, then in r. lower jaw, then in upper, in malar region, frequently recurring in some places. Catching or sprained pains on sudden motion, e. g., in outer fibres of deltoid tendon on raising arms, in tendons in front of l. ankle when flexing joint suddenly.

Quivering sensation internally through body at the middle, in afternoon, then eruptions. General sensitiveness. Restlessness; in forenoon, after writing a letter; at 5 P.M., with coldness; at night; and discomfort. Excitement of arterial system, as from strong wine. Increase of physical powers. Weakness; in morning; in morning, on waking, with dullness of head; on waking from afternoon nap, with dullness; with sleepiness and desire for solitude in some dark corner. Old and "wooden" feelings, with deliberate motions and speech. Faintness. Heaviness; in forenoon, with drowsiness. Amelioration from sleep; from sweat, after walking in open air.

Mind.—Disturbance, or rather emptiness. Insanity. Excitement. Feeling of impending evil in afternoon; > specific trust in the Almighty. Despondency. Anxiety; at night, with little sleep; at night, obliging him to leave the bed; as if he had committed a crime. Fretfulness. Anger after sleep, even about a draught on legs. Resolute in evening, but shrinking from taking much trouble about matters. Positive in insisting on professional orders in forenoon, but self-restrained and deliberate. Buoyancy; in evening. Lively mood returned at 9 P.M., after a walk in open air, with activity. Quietness. Apathy. Indolence. Disinclination for mental labor. Thought difficult when writing. Memory "muddled." Mistakes in writing, "left" for "right," and vice versa. Loss of power to name substances, mistakes in adding figures, perception of quantities impaired. Vacancy of ideas.

Head.—Swelling in morning, with difficulty in opening mouth. Chronic disturbance of brain. Aching; in morning on rising, < stooping or moving; at 3 A.M., > rising, with pain in occiput; in forenoon, < l. side, with pulsations in temples and excitement in whole body; in afternoon, after a long walk in the sun; in afternoon, extending to temples, > evening; with vertigo and loss of memory; < towards evening, with pulsation in head, as if it would be torn to pieces, heat of face, vertigo, at times ringing and roaring in ears; > sweat on walking in open air, with fever.

Fulness in forenoon when writing, with coldness of feet and inner calves, < l.; sudden, in forenoon after writing, when leaning it to the left, < l. side and top. Heaviness; in forenoon, > putting cold hand on top, with fulness and dry heat, and with coldness of fingers and feet; in evening, < top. Confusion. Emptiness; in morning. Stupefaction. Throbbing on rising and bending over table, and in shoulders. Rush of blood; towards evening. Intoxicated sensation, though his mental powers were perfect; l. sensation, preventing walking; changing to heaviness of head. Whirling in head like a mill-wheel. Vertigo; at night, < sitting up in bed or getting up on his feet; on stooping; with palpitation; increasing to faintness.

Forehead.—Sticking; boring, in l. centre in evening. Pricking, with confusion of head. Tearing and drawing. Neuralgia from r. supraorbital foramen in a narrow line to vertex, at night when bent forward reading, > sitting upright. Pain; in morning on rising, < l. side, then confusion of head, then frontal pain, < at 5 P.M.; at 9 A.M., < l. side, with vertigo, ringing in ears and weakness; towards noon, < till evening, and in temples, with visible pulsation in temporal arteries, heat in head and ringing in ears; in afternoon; from 1 to 4 P.M.; 4 P.M.; between 5 and 6 P.M.; 7 P.M., at last extending to occiput; on waking; after dinner; < towards evening; < moving eyes or head, and in orbits. Pulsation in arteries at 4 P.M., with heat of face and redness, < about eyes.

Temples.—Twitching of muscles above l. zygoma in afternoon. Neuralgia shooting up l. anterior when sitting at the table, leaning to r. Tearing in l., with drawing. Pain; towards evening; in l.; in afternoon, extending to middle of forehead; in l., extending to eyebrow, obliging him to seek a cool place on the sofa to relieve the pain; drawing, to middle of forehead; in l. T. and supraorbital region in morning on rising, > by a walk, returned on following days, sleep poor on account of toothache on l. side next night toothache on both sides, < by bringing teeth together and biting, with anxiety and sharp pain in l. temporal and supraorbital regions, < under l. ear, where it extended deeply inward, sometimes cutting in l. external auditory meatus, face puffed and red, pain in both temples > walking, with tense drawing in skin which made work impossible, the toothache was transiently > by pricking gums and rinsing mouth with cold water, later this neuralgia appeared every night at 3 A.M., and lasted till 6 A.M. Fulness of arteries in evening; bounding in artery in afternoon.

Parietals.—Stitch in l. upper on rising suddenly; in l. upper, when standing holding head down, extending to l. side of root of nose. Neuralgia in l. in evening, then in r. vertex; in and behind l. protuberance in afternoon on going out, with the head down; in r. side of head in evening on walking in open air, lasting some time in r. upper temple. Pain in r. side of head when writing, extending as neuralgia to r. outer brow, then to mastoid process, returning to brow and r. temporal ridge, again in r. ear, then back to brow, later a catch in middle of r. sterno-mastoid muscle on turning head that way after midnight. Pain in l. side of head in morning on writing with head inclined to l., extending to l. side of neck and throat, r. mastoid process, then to vertex, then to occiput, then shifting to brows (varying with the position of head), now in temples, extending over coronal suture.

Occiput.—Shock across lower in evening on holding head suddenly to r. Pain, waking at 3 A.M., > rising; threatening of pain in l. in evening. Dull twinges in l. protuberance in afternoon, becoming a steady ache.

Scalp.—Dandruff, and in beard on chin, < l. side. Itching, intermittent in evening; itching on l. side of vertex and occiput; above edge of frontal hair, r. and l. sides, when writing, then below r. zygoma, then on r. side of vertex, then l. vertex, r. side of chin, l. post-mastoid surface, l. inner eyebrow, etc.

Clinical.—Intermittent neuralgia in head and face, with intense pulsation, vertigo, etc. Vertigo, twitching of eyelids.

Eyes.—Surrounded by gray rings. Red, with swelling of lids and appearance of pimples. Lustreless. Restless. Dry; > walking in wind in evening, when there was lachrymation of r. eye. Easily tired when reading. Sleepy feeling in afternoon when sitting.

Heaviness in forenoon, and in forehead. Retrobulbar optic-neritis, with sudden loss of vision. Lachrymation at 5 P.M. in the full light; L. in open air. Disc and retina anæmic, disc looked dry, with the vessels running over it smaller than usual. Disc papery white. Ball pale. Dirty color to the white of the eye. Pupils dilated. R. upper lid red and swollen. Twitching of l. lids; in afternoon; in afternoon, < lower; in evening; of l. outer canthus. Closure of lids from weakness when writing. Feeling as if something pressed lids down, making vision indistinct.

Brow.—Sticking in l. in evening; at l. inner in evening when writing. Neuralgia in r. inner; deep in r. outer; in r. inner in morning on bending forward; in r. outer in morning on raising brows, extending up side of head, then twinge in outer end of l.; in l. supra-orbital nerve in forenoon; in r. supra-orbital nerve in evening in street-car, then in l.; in l. supra-orbital nerve, near foramen, in evening when writing; from r. to lamboidal suture in evening when sitting; in r. outer at 11.30 P.M.; in outer half of r. after midnight; alternately in each at night; in r. supra-orbital nerve, near foramen, when sitting in church; from r. outer to lamboidal suture when standing. Twinges about r. outer in afternoon. Flashings in branches of l. infra-orbital nerve in afternoon. Pain in r. outer supra-orbital region in morning; in l. infra-orbital nerve at 1.30 A.M.; in outer half of l. orbit, above it, below it, in evening when sitting, and in eyeball.

Vision lost; with pain in forehead as if head would burst; dim. Photophobia, with lachrymation in full glare. Bright lights and sparks.

Clinical.—Intermittent strabismus.

Ears.—Sticking in l. in forenoon; r. at noon; r. in evening; l. on retracting chin, involving throat; in l. meatus in afternoon after going down-stairs. Pain above r. ear and mastoid process in evening; in r. between 1 and 2 A.M.; suddenly in l. when walking; in open air. Tension in parotids, with flow of saliva; in afternoon; in r. when walking after supper, after a jar; in r. at 11.30 P.M., also in r. submaxillary, then in l. glands. Tingling. Feeling as if stuffed with cotton.

Ring. < l.; with sensation as if plugged up; intermittent; sudden, in r. like a bell in E., when walking in open air; causing deafness. Hissing. Buzzing; in r. extending over head, after coffee; intermittent. Resonance in r. in morning. Roaring; causing deafness. Sensation as if a horse railroad had its course through the brain, < on alternate days. Deafness; in l. Hearing lost. Hearing difficult. Intolerance of noise.

Nose.—Sore pimple on r. side, at end of nasal bone. Twitching in afternoon. Neuralgia at end of l. bone in evening (head held obliquely down in writing). Tingling anteriorly in nostrils in evening when sitting; in l. side after supper on going from one room to another, with sneezing and flow from r. side. Titillation in r. upper nostril in afternoon, then sneezing, then snuffling and flow of water. Sensation of coryza, with sneezing. Stoppage when in a greenhouse after riding in wind. Moisture in evening, < r. side. Fluent coryza in r. side.

Sneezing in morning when dressing, with discharge of mucus; at noon when waiting on doorsteps; afternoon on entering house; at 2 P.M. when standing in a cool shady alley, then blowing of mucus from r.

nostril; in evening when sitting in shirt-sleeves; at night when resting back against cool wall; on walking in open air; < getting feet cold. Hæmorrhage.

Face.—Pale; and suffering. Red. Earthy color. Sickly expression; and hollow-eyed. Oedema; and of limbs, with erythematous rash, and feeling as if arms would burst. Twitching of l. zygomatic muscles. Pain below l. zygoma between 1 and 2 A.M.; about l. malar-bone in evening; in l. infra-orbital and superior maxillary nerves, < cold air, with boring, at times involving eye, swelling adjacent to upper molars; suddenly above l. zygoma when writing, with head bent to l., also at temporal ridge; varying from l. supra-zygomatic region to ear, throat, upper molars, in evening when riding in street-car, with head inclined reading, > holding head up. Rheumatic (or neuralgic) pain in zygoma, malar and nasal bones, extending to side of head, in afternoon, from cool wind on r. side of face, with tingling in nose, as before sneezing. Dull twinge above root of r. zygoma in afternoon.

Cracking in joints of jaw; every time mouth is opened. Cutting in l. lower jaw in night. Neuralgia in r. joint of jaw in morning; in l. lower jaw in a cool room. Lips livid; and cool. Eruption on lower lip, l., then r. side.

Mouth.—Teeth. Clenched after midnight. Tartar increased; soft T. on upper front, after removal of which soreness of gum on touch of lip; the secretion about upper molars seems to putresce and irritate. Sticking in incisors in afternoon, < l.; in l. upper second and third molars in evening. Cutting downward and outward from l. lower amalgam-filled molar. Neuralgia in last l. upper molars in afternoon, extending to zygoma; in molars in afternoon, extending into l. jaw, < in lower and in ear; in l. molars filled with amalgam, extending to jaws; in l. upper molars filled with amalgam, in afternoon, then in middle upper and lower molars. Aching; between amalgam-filled molars, < cold air, > application of warm hand. Pressure as from a knife-blade, in first l. lower molar, downward and forward into l. jaw, in afternoon. Rough feeling in morning. Soreness of sockets, with inflammation of gums.

Tongue.—Coated yellow; and dry; at root; except tip, which is red; with slimy yellowish froth; with slimy fur, yellow posteriorly; yellowish white; coated with white mucus. White; in centre, pale on margins; with yellow coat at root. Pale, covered with tenacious mucus. Flabby in morning, and whitish. Twitching of middle of r. lingualis muscle in afternoon; of end of l. lingualis in afternoon when writing. Articulation impaired. Speech difficult; lost.

Mouth.—Cavity pale. Full of mucus at night, with hunger; tenacious coat of mucus on back part of palate in afternoon, causing efforts to swallow it. Dry. Salivation. Offensive breath. Expired air cool. Taste bitter; to bread; bad on rising, with bad breath; pasty; brassy after breakfast; acrid, > motion of tongue.

Throat.—Swelling, impeding respiration and causing hoarseness. Sudden starting from sleep at 2 A.M., throat swollen, inspiration difficult, necessity to rise, difficult coughing up of mucus, respiration > coughing, with sweat, < back and legs, general heat, respiration became rattling and gasping. Catarrhal clogging of upper pharynx in morning; of upper part in afternoon, the mucus detached by repeated swallowing. Tough mucus; at night, waking and obliging him to cough it up. Pain < swallowing; < moving neck; > evening; till night, with rough voice; in both sides, afterwards extending into larynx, > towards evening, with sensitiveness to pressure. Constriction. Sensation as if something had lodged. Scraping in afternoon, with irritation to cough and slimy expectoration difficult to loosen. Dryness. Irritation to cough. Tickling. Itching of r. side of velum palati in afternoon.

Stomach.—Appetite great; at 9 A.M. after eating; in afternoon; at 2 P.M., with eructations; at 2 P.M., with drowsiness when in street-car; in evening; after supper, then nausea; for acid food; ravenous at night; ravenous after eating, changing to nausea; canine, satiated by a small quantity of food, which took away all appetite for the next meal. Diminished. More frequent desire to eat though the appetite was not increased. Lost; with sensation of fasting; lost for breakfast, with increased hunger; lost, but drawing in stomach as from need of food; lost, but sensation indicating that one has some loss to make up, < retracting stomach. Aversion to food; to beer and tobacco, which act as if used for the first time. Thirst; in afternoon; in evening; < morning; < night.

Eructations; bitter; tasting of food; tasting of breakfast; tasting of tea taken at supper; tasting of supper; at midnight when sitting, tasting of supper; at 1.30 A.M. when crouching, tasting of supper, with flatus and yawning; tasting of supper, with fulness and uneasiness in stomach; E. of ingesta in evening when sitting bent; of half-digested matters at 1 A.M. when sitting, causing me to loosen the clothes, pyrosis; like hiccup, at 1 A.M. on starting out of the room, with sticking in r. lumbar region. Hiccough and retching.

Nausea; in morning, > eructation; during a meal, with vomiting; with weakness and shivering; sudden, forcing her to bed; sudden, after moderate eating of pork and vegetables, with vomiting, heartburn, constriction of stomach and distention of abdomen; threatening, when walking after eating, > loosening waistband. Vomiting; of insipid taste in afternoon.

Pain; in epigastric region, extending towards umbilicus, < pressure. Pressure after eating, then cutting in upper and middle abdomen; P. from the slightest food, with return of the usual symptoms. Fulness; in afternoon; > eructations; in epigastrum. Oppression when sitting, > evening by loosening waist-bands and eructations; in epigastrum, waking towards morning, > turning over; in epigastrum and hypochondrium, < l. side, with emissions of offensive flatus. Pulling, and in oesophagus. All the symptoms of a continued fast. Empitness, > drinking cold water and eating, with drowsiness.

Sudden gnawing at 10.30 P.M., before supper, on ascending stairs, then crampy gastralgia, > standing up straight, then shuddering of head, > eructations. Cardialgia. Pyrosis in evening. Heat; starting from cardiac orifice and extending to abdomen and sometimes to chest. Heartburn; at midnight when standing bent over table, after eating dry bread. Coldness after ice-cream, > loosening clothes, with uneasiness. Indigestion from eating two apples late at night. Acidity, with distress in epigastrum. Trembling. Gastric catarrh.

Abdomen.—Distention; in afternoon; before diarrhœa. Tense. Rumbling; with tension, sensitiveness to pressure and discharge of flatus. Commotion as before diarrhœa, then emission of flatus. Emission of flatus; on rising, then irritability around anus; offensive; offensive, in evening; offensive, on moving about after midnight; offensive, after micturition. Flatus goes into rectum with a shock, when leaning back in chair, then presses on anus and escapes, then similar movements in l. colon and intermittent twinges of colic, the colic > emission of flatus. Tearing. Pain during the day; on rising, > stool of eadaverous odor, at first mushy; at noon, < sudden standing up, > emission of offensive flatus; with diarrhœa; sudden, at 2 P.M., with emission of flatus.

Hypochondrium.—Sticking in l. side below short ribs; from region of gall-bladder to r. rectus muscle; moving from edge of liver to outside of and below r. nipple, in evening on entering house; subcutaneous cutting S. in l. hypochondrium in afternoon. Suppurative sensation in region of liver. Pain in region of spleen; > pressure; in liver region before going to bed; in liver region in morning, > pressure of hand. Crampy feeling in l. rectus; in l. border of l. upper rectus at 1 A.M. when walking, < sitting; in l. border of upper l. rectus in evening.

Cutting in upper; < pressure of hand; transversely across upper and umbilical regions, with twisting. Discomfort in upper after 2 P.M., with tension and distention of abdomen towards evening, with pain on pressure, and oppression of chest. Pain to l. of and above umbilicus in afternoon when sitting, extending to sigmoid flexure and rectum. Cramp to l. of and above umbilicus when sitting in street-car. Rasping pain from umbilicus up to chest before copious menstruation, with dragging towards genitals. Pain in l. side in evening when sitting bent to l. Wandering pain in small intestines, with cutting, then diarrhœa. Warmth in duodenum.

Hypogastrum.—Subcutaneous cutting stitch in l. outer groin in afternoon when sitting. Cramp in l. inguinal region in morning when standing. Dragging towards genitals.

Colon.—Commotion in l. in evening, including l. lumbar region. Sticking in transverse, in evening. Pinching in transverse and l. in afternoon when walking in the house and when in street-car. Pain in transverse and l.; in afternoon; in transverse in afternoon, going to rectum as if for stool; in r. superior angle in evening when writing; in transverse and sigmoid in evening, > emission of flatus; in transverse when sitting. Grumbling; colicky, in l. at noon when sitting after motion.

Rectum.—Commotion in evening; when sitting. Itching. Tenesmus; with gripping in abdomen; with a difficult, small, soft stool; ineffectual.

Anus.—Hæmorrhoidal trouble increased. Discharge of bright blood. Sticking in l. side of inner sphincter in afternoon; to r. of anus in evening when walking, with itching; sudden crampy or cutting stitch in inner sphincter when standing. Uneasiness > by gently forcing down rectum. Itching in perineum.

Stool.—Liquid, frequent. Dissolved, dark brown. Pappy, frothy, frequent, with much wind. First half jelly-like, with much wind. Diarrhœa; with pain across abdomen; with drawing and cutting in abdomen; light-colored; slow in coming away, with much wind. Soft, but impeded by painful contraction of inner sphincter, which feels like a firm rim. Mushy at first, then like diarrhoea, preceded by offensive flatus. With yellow, clear mucus. Constipation. Hard; and crumbling; at first, then liquid; at first, then thin. Profuse; rather hard. Scanty after postponement. Sluggish and scanty. Difficult; and painful; but not hard, with a peculiar sensation from r. hand to shoulder. Omitted; and abdomen distended.

Urinary Organs.—Hæmorrhage. Catarrhal inflammation of bladder. Flow of residue of urine after replacement of clothing. Micturition slow, with turbid urine. Urging to urinate; early in morning; in afternoon when walking about the room, with colic in transverse colon; frequent, without increased secretion. Constrictive biting in orifice of urethra at 9 p.m. after urinating.

Urine.—Copious; preceded by distention of upper and lower abdomen and by oppressed respiration; and pale; and bloody; and bright-colored; and high-colored, turbid. Scanty, cloudy, contained urates. Jumentous. Frothy. Dark; of strong odor and acid; and scanty, with sediment; with sediment of yellowish-red crystals; with powdery yellowish-white sediment. Of strong odor. Watery, does not redden litmus-paper. As clear as water, containing four-sided prisms, with four-sided pointed ends, the crystals enveloped in tough mucus. Turbid; with chocolate-colored sediment. Uric acid decreased. Phosphoric acid increased.

Sediment.—Light-colored, mealy. Yellowish-white, adherent, of strong odor. Red. Gravelly. Brick-dust. Patty, with slimy flakes in urine. Straw-yellow, granular, with glittering transparent colorless crystals. Like candied sugar, consisting of urate and purpurate of ammonia, with phosphates. Of brown granules; kidney-shaped, one of which showed bright concentric layers. Of crystals; orange-colored; orange-colored, right-angled prisms, with rhomboidal fragments; brown, starlike; rhomboidal and pillar-like; prisms and fragments of three-sided pointed pyramids; sediment rose-red, of rhomboidal flat crystals, with here and there double pyramids, with only traces of uric acid, consisting almost wholly of phosphates.

Sexual Organs.—Eruption. Itching on l. side of scrotum in afternoon. Aching in r. spermatic cord in afternoon, with relaxation of scrotum. Relaxation of r. testis in evening, with aching. Function decreased; lost. Emission in morning without sensation; at night without waking. Uterine hæmorrhage. Abortion. Labor pains.

Respiratory Organs.—Contractive feeling in a weak spot on l. side of laryngeal space in morning. Scraping soreness in larynx and trachea when swallowing in morning on rising, > coughing up mucus, which caused rawness in l. bronchus and l. lung, afterwards the cough caused rending in fauces. Tickling in larynx; in evening, with cough and expectoration of mucus; after midnight; at bifurcation of trachea in evening, with cough and raising and swallowing of mucus. Hoarseness at 4 p.m.; H. > swallowing mucus. Loss of voice.

Cough towards morning, caused by a painful spot in throat; at 12.30 a.m., with tickling in windpipe; in evening when dressing, with sticking in l. upper lung (?) and rheumatic pain in l. trapezius, near posterior edge of scapula; when in open air without overcoat; when sitting in street-car, < towards morning, with anginous condition. Cough, with expectoration of mucus; in morning, once the mucus struck the roof of the mouth; in forenoon; in afternoon when walking in open air; in evening when standing in open air, with threatened irritability in l. bronchi; at night, with necessity to sit up in bed to get his breath; after midnight, with swallowing of mucus; when walking in open air; cough > expectoration from very low down; cough, with gelatinous expectoration from lowest part of bronchi. Loose cough. Short cough in afternoon, with swallowing of mucus.

Expectoration of mucus from r. side of glottis in morning, afterwards from posterior part; E. in forenoon of opaque, white globose mass of mucus, another of exfoliated epithelium, these surrounded by three times their quantity of transparent secretion stretching out between fingers to more than an inch; of lumps of thick sea-green mucus, which sank in water, in morning on rising, then soreness of chest.

Respiration increased. Oppressed in steam-cars; O. as from a hoop about chest. Short. Superficial and irregular. Slow; and irregular. Sighing. Long weary inspiration in evening when eating, then loud sighing, heaving, groaning expiration. Arrested by contraction of throat on rising suddenly from a seat and attempting to swallow at the same time.

Chest.—Hæmorrhage from lungs (probably). Sticking in l.; in r.; in r. half in afternoon, extending to shoulder, impeding respiration, > bending forward; in l., preventing deep respiration. Pain below sternum, almost sticking, < deep breathing or sudden motion. Pain in r.; in morning on rising, > noon; in l. half at 7 p.m., extending to back, < deep inspiration and forcibly throwing l. arm backward, > leaning upon l. forearm with body bent forward (as when writing); on rising; in l. clavicle; transversely through chest at night, from racking cough. Crampy feeling at ends of r. false ribs in morning on bending forward to urinate; at angles of r. true ribs in afternoon; outside of and below r. nipple when in street-car. Oppression. Feeling behind middle of sternum (œsophagus?) as if food stuck; feeling as of something indigestible behind lower sternum in evening, > eructations; feeling to l. of sternum in morning as of spasmodic condition of œsophagus from indigestion. Tickling in l. in evening.

Clinical.—Pneumonia, with great oppression, weakness, deafness and whizzing in ears, or rushing like a storm in ears, or ringing of bells, must lie on the back (Sang).

Heart.—Sticking in region of apex. Pressure in precordial region, with passage of flatus. Tension in precordial region, < l. side below short ribs, with necessity to loosen bands of clothing. Precordial anxiety. Precordial uneasiness. Palpitation; in morning on waking, lying on l. side, > lying on heart; in morning caused by indignation, > lying on heart; in afternoon; when roused suddenly, had to lie on heart and support it with the hand; when lying on r. side, > lying on abdomen. Action accelerated in forenoon. Strong beating at 10 a.m., after excitement. Action subjectly perceptible in forenoon when sitting partially doubled up; in l. chest and abdomen in forenoon after straining at stool; in l. chest in afternoon after going up-stairs; through much of chest on being awakened from a nap, > lying still; in forenoon when sitting after an incomplete stool, extending to head; after breakfast, sitting at stool with elbows on knees, felt through chest, down back to sacrum and through abdomen. Feeble movements.

Pulse.—Rapid; and full; and irregular and intermittent; and small and irritable. Slow; in morning and afternoon; and strong, afterwards rapid and weak; and scarcely perceptible. Scarcely perceptible. Small, almost imperceptible.

Neck.—Swelling along r. sterno-cleido-mastoid muscle. Sprained feeling in upper r. sterno-mastoid muscle in afternoon in street-car on suddenly turning head to r., with sticking in r. ear. Crampy feeling in l. sterno-mastoid muscle in morning, then in l. levator anguli scapulae. Rheumatic feeling from cool wind, extending to l. ear.

Back.—Pain. Sensitiveness of last cervical and first dorsal vertebrae to pressure; of dorsal vertebrae; first and second dorsal vertebrae; third dorsal vertebra pain on touch, with oppression of chest (Phos.); pain in second and < first, on pressure in afternoon; dorsal vertebrae more painful to pressure during the chill than the cervical or lumbar vertebrae. Sticking around lower angle of r. scapula. Rheumatic feeling at inner border of l. scapula; in l. upper and inner scapular muscles in afternoon after sitting in a draught; at l. inner scapular border at midnight when writing, > supporting arm. Crampy feeling at inner border of r. scapula in afternoon.

Lumbar Region.—Pleurosthotonic cramp in l. on exertion. Subcutaneous sticking in r. when walking, later when straightening himself, running up l. side. Pain; in middle of l. costo-pelvic muscular region in afternoon; in afternoon when walking, after raw, conditioned oysters; in l. in afternoon when walking, then in r., then when sitting in l. again; in l. kidney region in afternoon when sitting bent to r. side; in l. in evening; in l. lower in evening when writing; in l. about lower end of kidney after dinner when sitting bent forward in street-car, then indications of pain on r. side; when sitting bent up in street-car; in l. kidney on bending over table; in l. when walking; in l. kidney, < by positions, etc., which cause compression. Crampy pain in l. renal region in evening. Crampy lumbago when standing in street without overcoat, > external support and adjusting position. Uneasiness in l. Feeling in forenoon, not having defecated, as if a firm mass pressed against sacrum, hips and lower lumbar region.

Clinical.—In spinal irritation, with great sensitiveness of the spine in the region of the first dorsal vertebra, the pain extending towards the head and apt to recur periodically.

Extremities.—Livid and cool. Trembling; and control over them much hampered; even on slight exertion, with numbness; with coldness. Tearings and drawings in hands and feet. Neuralgic twinges in r. index and r. little toe in afternoon on using them. Bruised feeling. Weakness; of arms and legs.

Upper Extremities.—Sticking in r. axillary folds. (Rheumatico-neuralgic ache in r. posterior axillary fold in afternoon when pressing scapulae against chair.)

Shoulder.—Cracking of joints on raising arms. Cramp in anterior half of l. deltoid after 1 A.M., before going to bed, on some motions of arm. Sticking above r. external condyle of humerus in evening. Pain. Rheumatism in r. acromion in cool wind, with false position; in l. deltoid region, near acromion, in cool, humid, windy day, > warmth. Rheumatic feeling in r. deltoid at 2.20 A.M. (after sleeping); > change of position; in tendons of both deltoids and of l. biceps in afternoon, from muscular effort; in one or other deltoid when arm was in malposition, extending half way down outer arm. Rheumatic pain in l. at noon.

Arm.—Swollen and covered with pustules, also hands. Neuralgia in tendon of l. biceps at noon on holding forearm flexed and pronated, hand on edge of table. Rheumatic pain in r. (outer origin of brachialis anticus); rheumatic threatening in r. arm when sitting with arm in malposition in afternoon, then in course of musculo-spiral nerve to back of forearm and hand when resting palm on car-seat, and in ulnar nerve adjoining pisiform bone. Pain in middle third of ulnar nerve from below l. axilla to below elbow, in afternoon when writing. Bruised feeling. Lack of control over muscles in afternoon.

Upper Arm.—Twinge in superficial nerves, in inner and outer aspects in evening when writing. Pain in r. outer in evening.

Elbow.—Pain in front of, in afternoon when pulling a door. Sprained feeling at biceps tendon on forcibly flexing r. forearm.

Forearm.—Twitching of l. ulnar flexor; of tendons in front of r. ulna. Cramp in flexors of l. in morning on feeling for levator anguli scapulae. Sticking in dorsum of r. lower, in nerves; in dorsum of r. at noon on putting hand behind me; in dorsum of r. in afternoon when holding a weight; in dorsum of r. in evening when sitting. Neuralgia in dorsum of r., over belly of supinator longus, in forenoon; in r. ulna in morning when writing; in afternoon in dorsal branches of radial nerves, then suddenly in digital nerves of adjacent sides of middle phalanges of first and second l. fingers. Neuralgico-rheumatic sensations in dorsum of r. in afternoon when walking, extending as a hard ache to middle of ulna. Rheumatic pain in r. ulna in morning on waking, the arm being uncovered, > warm sponge-bath; in extensor tendons of r. in afternoon when riding in cool wind, > motion. Carrying medicine-case in r. hand in afternoon, compression of ulnar nerve against body, pain to termini of nerve in little finger; pain in lower end of l. ulna in evening when holding paper to write on; pain on inner edge of r. ulna when writing, then in its upper dorsum, then anteriorly in same. < when ulnar nerve is on the stretch, > relaxing it or removing compression.

Wrist.—Sticking in dorsum of r. in forenoon when writing. Rheumatic pain around r. carpus in afternoon after writing.

Hand.—Fulness of veins in evening. Seem puffy when closing them. Sticking in l. between bases of first and second metacarpal bones in forenoon after vigorous use of hands; in r. palm between first and second metacarpus in evening. Neuralgia in space between first and second r. metacarpus after midnight, extending along digital nerve, inner aspect of first phalanx of first finger. Crampy, then rheumatic pain in r. third knuckle and above it, in afternoon when writing. Sensation in r. during every stool as if drops of fluid passed thence to the shoulder. Refused their service, also the arms.

Fingers.—Livid. Nails unusually tough. After morning sponge-bath, inflammation of l. index (on which there is a slight cut). Neuralgia in inner digital nerve of l. second; in ball of r. thumb in evening; in l. index when holding papers in l. hand and writing on them. Pain in r. finger and thumb. Soreness of last joint of r. little to pressure, with swelling and redness; proximal palmar portion of last phalanx of r. thumb sensitive to pressure, as in incipient felon.

Lower Extremities.—When walking the tendons seem to catch and pain. "Wooden feeling" in evening when walking. Inability to walk. Disposition to aid walking by gravitation in afternoon, walking bent forward to supplement muscular inertia, especially in calves.

Thigh.—Sticking behind l. trochanter in afternoon on walking; in r. gluteus medius on walking. Stitch-like catching in anterior superior part of l. gluteus maximus in afternoon on walking. Cutting across lower half of l. rectus femoris at every step in afternoon after jumping from car; transversely in inner and lower part of r. rectus femoris in forenoon when at stool; crampy, across, in afternoon on entering house and in lower half of rectus muscle, then on walking out in l. thigh on same level. Crampy pain in lower border of r. gluteus maximus in evening. Neuralgic twinge behind r. trochanter, afterwards felt when walking. Rheumatic twinge behind r. trochanter in evening when walking. Rheumatic pain in exterior of l. thigh and upper fibula in afternoon when sitting with limb suddenly doubled up, by leaning far forward; along inner border of l. rectus femoris when walking. Rheumatic feeling behind r. trochanter in afternoon when walking; in lower half of r. vastus externus in afternoon when walking; in part of l. gluteus maximus on standing bent over. Myalgia along exterior aspect of r. rectus femoris, on standing bent forward with r. foot advanced. Tension in rectus muscles in evening on walking, > standing still. Rigid feeling in rectus muscles on walking, then similar sensation posteriorly. Hips feel old, inert and stiff in morning on walking. Tired feeling in upper front, in afternoon on walking; in l. rectus femoris in evening when sitting; when walking, and knees are ready to give way; in hips before going to bed, < l., almost a stiff feeling. Loss of power.

Knee.—Trembling. Sticking in upper part of l. in evening. Feeling as if bones at inner half of r. did not fit when walking, increasing to a drawing at inner part of popliteal space and up inner hamstring muscles, with awkward gait, he shook the limb to relieve the tension. Contractive sensation down inner side of r. in afternoon. Weakness; in afternoon on walking.

Leg.—The disease at first confined to neck, face and arms, afterwards covered the legs, one of which was swollen and covered with a scaly eruption, like a kind of elephantiasis. Neuralgia in lower half of l., in course of anterior tibial nerve, in morning; in front of lower end of r. fibula in evening. Twinges in middle of r. tibial nerve, anteriorly, in evening. Rheumatic feeling about lower head of r. fibula in afternoon on rising from a seat. Aching over lower inner part of r. tibia in evening. Pricking in r. inner calf in afternoon when resting l. knee on r.

Ankle.—Sticking in l. posterior tibial artery, near malleolus, in forenoon; below r. inner malleolus in morning on rising; below r. inner malleolus when walking. Feeling as if injured. Sprained feeling about l.; in front of l. in afternoon during forced flexion when sitting, then in both sides of astragulus down to attachments of internal lateral ligament when walking, then under inside of l. instep; of flexor tendons under l. inner, when standing, the same in front of malleolus when walking; intermittent, under and about l. inner malleolus when walking, and in tendo-achillis.

Foot.—Trembling, with aching in malleoli. Vertical stitch back of r. heel. Cramp in outer part of hollow of r. Crampy feeling in hollow of l., inside. Crampy aching in hollow of l., in inner muscles, < sitting, > standing; in outer muscles of r. sole in morning when sitting; in muscles of outer part of r. sole in evening when resting it on its inner side. Pain at l. inner calcaneal spaces in afternoon when walking, then in r. when standing. Strained pain in hollow of r. in afternoon; in inner part of hollow of r. in afternoon, in street-car. Dull twinge at inner side of l. instep. Soreness like a "stone-bruise" anteriorly in ball of l., causing limping. Insteps hurt by boots at 10 P.M. Swollen feeling in r. in evening when putting on boots. Weakness; on walking, with numbness.

Toes.—Sprained feeling in l. middle on rising from bed and standing. Gouty (?) pain in r. great joint on pressing foot to floor. Rending pain in joint of r. great, when walking indoors, on pressing foot to floor. Twinge in corn on l. little in evening from pressure of slipper, > changing its position.

Skin.—Soft. Retains the folds when pinched. Eruptions; purpuric. Wheals, with local redness over neck, chest and arms. Erythema of face and limbs, with swelling of r. arm. Rash, with oedema, then desquamation; R. as vivid as scarlatina, with itching, then exfoliation. Urticaria over whole body U., with puffiness of eyelids, face and sometimes of limbs, which does not appear to be dropsical. Flat, lymphic, itching papules in patches on dorsal of hands, < radial side. Sore pimple to l. of bridge of nose; in beard on r. upper part of chin, with watery discharge. Pimples over whole body, with a discharge thicker than serum, but thinner than pus, with itching, then squamous scabs. Pustules resembling an itchlike crust. Offensive suppuration. Furuncle on r. upper lid.

Vesicular exanthema, with itching, redness and swelling of skin, first on genitals and thighs, then on face, hands and arms, moist but usually drying with a fine crust, sometimes causing cracks and ending in desquamation of thick scales, with febrile symptoms and gastric disturbances.

Pricking at night, then sweat, < of face; sudden pricking on back, chest and thighs in evening when walking in open air, then sweat on chest and back. Itching on chest, back and arms; in sides of chin and on head, etc., in morning; of r. alar crease of nose in afternoon; of anterior wall of concha of l. ear in evening, > scratching, which yields whitish scales; in external meatus of each ear, with crawling; on r. side of back about midnight, voluntary friction by clothing caused chilly creeping round from back to sides and front of chest.

Sleep.—Yawning; towards evening; in evening in the street. Sleepiness; during the day; in forenoon when standing; at noon when sitting, with downward pressure in forehead extending to upper eyelids; in afternoon when conversing, the lids seem to contract spasmodically, < glare on white wall; in afternoon in car and church; in evening in close railroad car; in street-car, and after getting out laggy gait; in warm rooms when conversing; during conversation before and after dinner; like a warmth about eyes and down to throat in afternoon when sitting. Dozing in chair before dinner. Sleep profound but unrefreshing. Difficult waking.

Sleeplessness; from heat and thirst; except for a few hours in the morning. Frequent waking; towards daylight, sleep almost semi-conscious. Early waking from an uneasy sleep. Restless sleep; with much cough; full of dreams; interrupted by wonderful dreams. Crying in sleep at midnight, waking him, with necessity to get out of bed.

Dreams; frightful, with restless sleep; indistinct, in morning; vivid towards morning.

Fever.—Chill; in forenoon; at 11 A.M., with pallor of face, pain in forehead and temples and ringing in ears; in afternoon; in afternoon when at work; towards evening, with rapid pulse, dry mouth and thirst; with accelerated pulse. Shaking; then fever; at 3 P.M., then heat of face from 6.30 to 9 P.M., chill with trembling of limbs, then in bed heat with yawning and sneezing, then sweat. Alternating with effervescence of blood causing pulsation.

Chill from occiput over trapezius muscle and to upper arms in afternoon in open air; creeping, in r., side of occiput in afternoon, then in l. Creeping over trapezius in forenoon, then from spines of scapulae to shoulders, then on taking off hat in the house from trapezius over occiput to vertex and behind ears; creeping over trapezius in afternoon, with soreness in r. lower bicipid. In back, with pain in one of the middle dorsal vertebrae; in scapular and mammary regions; in sacrum on lying down before breakfast, and in l. leg. In limbs; in afternoon, and in hands, feet, chin, nose and ears. Creeping over l. shoulder, scapula and l. side of neck on moving arms, then after sitting down in a warm room warmth about face, shoulders and downward and backward, becoming general, with throbbing of heart and of arteries to feet and hands. Of l. arm in evening when writing in shirt-sleeves, with sneezing, tingling of nose and snuffling, stoppage alternating with sneezing. Of l. hand in afternoon when writing; of backs of hands and fingers in afternoon. Of fingers in morning, and of toes and soles. Of knees; in forenoon if uncovered by wrapper, < l. Of feet in forenoon in a draught of air, with sneezing; l. in forenoon when sitting; l. at noon; at noon when sitting, < l.; l. in afternoon, with flushing; in afternoon, and of hands, < l. foot and tendo-achillis; in afternoon when writing; in afternoon, then of knees and above boots, < l. Of soles, < l., with sneezing, then of anterior half of foot.

Heat; in afternoon, < forehead, then in face; towards evening when quiet, then sweat; when walking, with tingling or stinging on front of thighs. Dry. During a sleepless night. Of skin; towards evening. Intermittent fever in the cycle of an ordinary tertian. Symptoms resembling scarlet fever, chill, with precordial anxiety, nausea, vomiting, headache, fever, then erythema on face, spreading over body, with burning, itching and with oedema of face, injection of conjunctiva, the color > for a moment by pressure, angina in posterior wall of pharynx, prostration, then desquamation.

Heat in head; then sweat; with a strong rapid pulse, then sweat; of forehead, with pain in it. Of face; down l. side of face in afternoon; towards evening; towards evening when writing; at 4 P.M. in flushes, with thirst; as after coffee; dry H. of face and hands at 1.30 A.M. when writing. Extending down to external chest, subjectively, in afternoon. Feeling as if sweat would break out about neck and face in evening; from r. scapula to l. face and hand, forehead and nape and down back in evening, with general sweat. Of hands in forenoon when sitting writing.

Sweat; in morning sleep; in evening when in a crowd; in evening on parts pressed by the clothing, as dorsal, axillary and perineal regions; in sleep.

Clinical.—Intermittent fever, the paroxysms recurring with great regularity at the same hour, especially indicated by the extreme sensitiveness of the dorsal vertebrae, with pain on pressure, in other respects very much like China. Intermittent fever is sometimes certainly cured completely and permanently by this drug, but only a small proportion of the cases are thus cured. Quinine possesses the curious property of preventing in a measure the development of marsh-malarial poisoning in the system in a way similar to that in which mercury prevents the development of syphilis, but when once developed China will only occasionally cure the disease.

Chloralum.

For homœopathic use I part of Chloral hydrate is dissolved in 9 parts of Alcohol.

General Action.—Chloral is a powerful hypnotic, as well as a depressant of the heart; it also causes vasomotor paralysis, feeble and slow respiration and muscular weakness. It produces a decided erythema, particularly aggravated by alcoholic stimulants; ecchymoses, and destruction of tissue in consequence.

Affinities.—Op., Bell., Nux v., the Carbonis, Plumb.

Generalities.—Uncertainty of movement, with tendency to fall forward. Almost jumping and springing, he changed from one bed to another. Agility. Appearance as if intoxicated; by brandy. Resemblance to a living skeleton, a maudlin, semi-narcotized condition, when aroused by loud and repeated questionings her answers were incoherent, her manner wild and uncertain, evincing a state bordering on idiocy. The blood contained garnet-colored amorphous particles, a number of dark red globules (double the diameter of white corpuscles, and many smaller), some of these dark red. Epileptiform convulsions. Ataxic symptoms, with numbness and burning. Muscular pains, < upper limbs. Pains as sometimes from chronic alcoholism, < about joints, encircling the limb, finger, etc., just above or below the joint, < moist and cold weather. Restlessness. Weakness; and limbs extended, head low, and at times aspect of impending dissolution. Lipothymia. Inaptitude for exertion. Anæsthesia.

Mind.—Delirium; hurried a hot-water bottle at an imaginary figure which stood at the foot of the bed menacing her; wandering about in the upper stories of the building. Delirium tremens. Muttering and talking about dead friends; M. of a religious character; unable to resist uttering what he knew to be nonsense, though conscious of everything going on around him (Stran.). Pleasant excitation, with rapid pulse. Excitability as from champagne, with pleasant feeling, smiling and dancing. Lively mood, with loud laughter and witty remarks. Talkative. Listless, peevish, childish, begging for chloral. Perversion of moral sense. Morose, deceitful and imbecile in intellect.

memory and will. Terror, with weakness. Melancholia; and irresolution.

Stupefaction. Inability to concentrate thought. Confusion; feeling now as if in one county, now as if in another, with anxiety to get home. Almost idiotic. Memory impaired. Insensibility; with quiet but incoherent talking; with screams now and then, restlessness, retching, foaming at the mouth, pallor, dilated pupils, l. leg spasmodically stretched, r. relaxed.

Head.—Bent upon chest. Aching; on waking; in morning on waking, lasting all day; < sudden motion. Discomfort. Dulness. Fulness at 8 A.M., and constriction. Veins filled to bursting, and in neck. Heaviness. Intoxication; on waking; feeling as if he had been intoxicated by wine (Glon., Nux v., Valer.). Vertigo.

Pain in forehead; extending to occiput; over r. supraorbital ridge, < movement; over eyes, running down in eyes, < l. side, with constriction of eyes. Heavy pain over eyes, < l., during supper. Fulness over eyes, < over l. eye, with nausea and sour eructations of liquid, supposed to be what had been eaten for breakfast. Feeling as if a hot band were drawn from temple to temple, directly over eyes, with sensation of a burning ring around each eye. Pain about cerebellum after any alcoholic stimulant, with red face and suffused eyes (Nux v.). Weight and soreness in occiput and over eyes, inside skull, < moving about and lying down, slightly > in open air. Hair woolly, with a dry and fluffy feel.

Clinical.—Has cured morning frontal headaches, with great sensitiveness to motion, laughing, etc., and better in open air.

Eyes.—Bloodshot and watering; B. and as if starting from sockets. Staring wildly. Glistening. Inflammation and photophobia; l., with weakness and burning lachrymation. Lachrymation. Capillary congestion of l. disc. Disc transparent, like white wax, retina pale, the central artery and vein and their branches dark and prominent. Haziness of fundus. Throbbing pain in l. ball at 11.20 A.M., < leaning forward.

Pupils dilated; with sensitiveness to light. Pupils contracted; and insensible to light; C., < r., then dilated, then alternations of myosis and mydriasis. Pupils elliptical, then almost angular contraction of l., at first directed downward and outward, afterwards outward and upward, and at the same time dull notches in an outward direction in middle of r. Pupils more sensitive to light. Conjunctiva congested; or yellow; and lids red and swollen. Ptosis. Lids closed and difficult to open. Vision dim; lost. Diplopia, then muscæ volitantes. Colored objects look white.

Clinical.—Retinal asthenopia, with circles of light, black spots, etc. (Coca?).

Ears.—Tinnitus aurium.

Face.—Pale; and anxious; and hippocratic, veins sunken. Purple. Dusky. Red; and anxious. Cheeks and lips livid. Wisful and haggard. Swollen; < below eyes. Rush of blood, with heat. Jaws firmly closed. Lips and mucous membrane of mouth excoriated, afterwards lips covered with crusts.

Mouth.—Gums spongy. Tongue coated; white. Tongue blistered and ulcerated. T. dry, brown. Tongue thick, speech indistinct. Speech broken as if partially drunk. Mucous membrane livid. Frothy mucus flowed from mouth, and it seemed filled with a membranous substance, not unlike membranous croup. Fetid breath.

Throat.—Pharyngeal congestion, with rash resembling that of scarlet fever. Spasm involving epiglottis and almost strangling him. Catarrhal soreness, with pain in fauces. Sensation of a cold in head on waking at 7 A.M., with sensitiveness, rawness and burning in throat and posterior nares. Burning in fauces and stomach. Swallowing difficult, the act not beginning till he struggled and coughed. Partial paralysis of œsophagus (Op.), with nervous disinclination to eat or drink, and interfering with nutrition; partial paralysis, not spasmodic stricture (Plumb.).

Stomach and Abdomen.—Longing for food. Little appetite for dinner. Appetite lost; capricious. Thirst; in morning on waking, with dryness of tongue and fauces, headache, vertigo, nausea and nervous sensibility. Eructations, > eating; sour E. of food. Nausea; > supper, but returning in evening, with oppression of stomach, without inclination to vomit. Retching. Vomiting (Nux v.). Pain in pit of stomach; in epigastrium on waking; in stomach and abdomen, with difficult breathing; sharp, in epigastric region. Epigastric tenderness. Burning in stomach. Sinking at stomach-pit, with oppression. Colic.

Clinical.—Seasickness.

Stool.—Diarrhœa; twice in afternoon; containing gelatinous matter. Soft, with pain in rectum; soft, light-yellowish; with sharp pain in rectum. Constipation. Pale and hard. Frequent.

Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Copious micturition in bed without knowing it (Op.). Frequent and profuse micturition; frequent in afternoon and night. Urine albuminous. Seminal emissions at night; copious. Menses reappeared in seven or eight days.

Respiratory Organs.—Redness and swelling of epiglottis and of false vocal cords. Suffocating sensation and oppression of chest in front and at its base. Dyspnoea; increasing to asphyxia, with swelling of face, paralysis of facial muscles and all the signs of cerebral effusion. Respiration stertorous; and slow (Op.). Panting. Gasping. Respiration rapid; and shallow and stertorous. Respiration intermittent (Plumb.). R. deep, at times imperceptible.

Clinical.—Asthmatic attacks, with sleeplessness, delirium, etc.

Chest.—Oppression after eating, < ascending stairs, interfering with speech. Pain.

Heart and Pulse.—Heart's sounds indistinct. Cardiac debility. Action increased and arterial tension. Heart's action rapid but feeble. Failure of l. ventricle. Strong pulsation in arteries after a glass of beer, with swollen red face. Pulse rapid; and bounding; and hard, tense; and weak and wavy; and weak, irregular in force and rhythm and frequently intermittent (Dig.). Pulse weak; and slow and intermittent; could hardly be felt in carotids. Pulse of r. arm (she had lain on that side) not perceptible, that of l. small and thready.

Neck.—Veins full. A "singing sensation" comes from nape or medulla oblongata.

Extremities.—Jactitation. Tingling, and weight as if asleep. Blood settles under finger-nails and purple spots appear on side on which she had lain. Staggering. Lower limbs, acute wandering pains, < in calves; crampy pains, < through knees and ankles; weakness.

Leg.—Cramp; and inability to co-ordinate movements of lower limbs. Giving away suddenly in morning on rising, inability to stand or walk, then nervous depression, general weakness, vacuity of mind and inability to concentrate the attention. Pain in calves, at times running down into feet, with sense of fullness in skin and throbbing, then steady legache. Feeling "as if in a mash," "as if he could not clearly distinguish between one part and another," in morning on putting feet to the ground. Feeling as if asleep. Weakness and want of co-ordinative power. Paralysis from knees downward on waking at 10 A.M.; P. of motion and sensation.

Skin.—Red blotches on arms, legs and face, then over whole body, gradually coalescing, till they resembled measles. Red spots becoming confluent, with fever and rapid pulse, then swelling of face, cheeks, lids and ears, with now impetiginous, now moist, now scaly eczema and ichthyoses, desquamation in great sheaths, then falling of hair and nails of all fingers and toes, with this skin disease watery diarrhoea and then similar affection of conjunctiva and bronchi, abscesses on arms, over shoulders and arm-pits. Redness on chest and shoulders, next day extending over whole trunk and limbs, livid spots and red patches alternating, afterwards the spots on chest and abdomen were yellowish, with white patches between them, then general desquamation, and fissures over sacrum and near joints. Scarlet color of face from roots of hair down to ramus of jaw, < over cheek-bones, and shading in different directions, ears of same color and red blotches over neck and chest down to centre of sternum, all > paroxysm of sneezing, with contraction of pupils, injection of conjunctiva and excitement of circulation. Redness of face, forehead and whole head to neck. Smooth scarlet eruption over whole body.

Diffuse inflammatory redness. Erythematous redness over head and neck, with twitching of facial muscles. Scarlatinal rash over whole body, with fever and tenderness of skin, then desquamation. Erythema of head and neck, with dark areola, < wine, beer or spirits, with palpitation, the hyperæmia disappearing last from forehead. Erythema of head in spots, then more diffuse, the vessels being dilated, in pronounced forms extending to trunk and becoming general, following by preference the larger trunk nerves. Petechial and purpuric eruptions, which may run into a species of pyæmic condition, with ulceration of gums and prostration, as in scurvy, with abscesses and deep ulcers. Erysipelatous inflammation of fingers, with desquamation of skin and ulceration around borders of nails. Erysipelatous eruption on face, face so swollen that she could not see. Papular rash on arms, with red bases. Nettle-rash; on arms and legs. Anæsthesia. Itching preventing sleep at night.

Clinical.—Has been prescribed for erythema and urticaria.

Sleep.—Gaping. Sleepiness; in evening, retired early, unrefreshed on waking in morning; S. but remained awake till 1 A.M. Prolonged sleep. Deep sleep; from 1 to 5 P.M., with loud snoring; with red face, fullness of veins of neck, deep respiration and rapid pulse. Snoring. Woke with a scream, jumped out of bed, sat on the edge of it, semi-conscious (Bell).

Fever.—Coldness. Cool skin. Cold limbs. Fever. Sweated; in beads on forehead; cold. Singular dryness of skin.

Chlorum.

A solution, freshly prepared, of Chlorine Gas in cold water, is diluted for internal use.

General Action.—From the few observations hitherto made, it would seem that spasm of the glottis is the marked feature of the action of the drug on the organs of respiration. Compare Bromine; other symptoms may be compared with Iodine.

Generalities.—Old appearance. Loss of fat. Quantity of chlorides in blood increased, while the carbonates and other salts were lessened. Consumption. Sensation at 3 A.M., as before severe sickness. Inclination to lie down; during the headache. Disinclination to rise in morning, and ill humor. Restlessness. Nervous sensibility. Sensibility diminished. Exercise in open air: agreed with him.

Mind.—Anxiety; he could not speak. Fear of becoming insane, with loss of memory, everything seems confused. Irritability; in morning. The difficulty in recalling names is worse, and of recollecting persons when he sees their names.

Head.—Aching during coryza; A., < after dinner; threatened; in l. side before the shuddering, < after dinner, at 2 P.M., with necessity to lie down, > walking back and forth, a lighter attack next day at the same hour. Crawling shuddering at 11 A.M., < at the back, < sitting with the back to the sun, then fever. Disagreeable sensation when shuddering. Vertigo and stupefaction. Painful wearing sensation in vertex and down l. side, with inclination to lie down. Pressure in occipital protuberance, with burning.

Eyes.—Protruding. Lachrymation; on waking; during coryza. Dim during fever. Fantastic images suddenly floated before the eyes and disappeared with lightning-like rapidity.

Ears.—Ringing in r. (and dulness in l., which had been deaf for forty years).

Nose.—Sticking. Burning pain, with tension and dryness, and in eyes. Eroded sensation in corners. Dryness; with irritation in windpipe to cough, and pressure on chest. Sneezing. Stoppage of l. nostril. Coryza in evening, next morning violent sneezing; C. in evening, < lying, sudden dropping of corrosive water, with lachrymation and dryness of tongue, palate and fauces, without thirst, but cold water is agreeable, with stoppage of nose while it flows; C., with headache and fever; with copious yellow discharge. Discharge of mucus; of corroding water; dropping of water from l. nostril; flow from r. nostril, his l. is always stopp'd. Smell lost.

Face.—Pale, often greenish. Heightened color. Bloated.

Mouth.—Sensation of fullness in teeth. Tongue dry and red. Articulation difficult. Increased vascularity and minute ulcerations in mouth and throat. Mouth, fauces and œsophagus sore, as if the tongue had been burnt, as if he had eaten vegetable acids, or as if his teeth had been injured by acids. Much mucus. Dryness. Salivation. Saliva altered in quantity and character; acid. Taste febrile in morning, > rinsing mouth; not good to tobacco, smoking bites the tongue and causes dryness in mouth.

Throat.—Choking sensation. Soreness from uvula to bronchi; S, and in chest, with hoarseness. Inability to swallow.

Stomach.—Appetite less evenings. Desire for wine increased. Nausea. Vomiting. Acidity. Inflammation. Warmth. Sensitiveness of epigastrium to pressure.

Abdomen and Stool.—Bile altered; increased. Colic. Weakness of abdomen mornings. Diarrhoea; in morning; twice in forenoon.

Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Frequent desire to urinate, but the urine is passed only in moderate quantities. Urine increased. Urine possesses bleaching properties; loses the power to redden litmus-paper. Sudden impotence, even sexual aversion.

Respiratory Organs.—Spasms of glottis; of vocal cords. Irritation of epiglottis; of larynx and bronchi. Constriction, with suffocation. Inflammation, and of lungs; of bronchial mucous membrane. Bronchial catarrh. Warmth. Loss of voice; from damp air.

Clinical.—Some brilliant cures of laryngismus stridulus have been cured by the internal administration of a dilute solution of Chlorine Gas.

Cough; irritation to. Violent. Spasmodic. Paroxysms evenings as if he would have a cough, as if the pharynx were raw or becoming so. Whistling-wheezing. Dry, with at each cough soreness in a spot in region of r. bronchus. In exhausting fits, with expectoration. With spitting of blood. With expectoration of thick, white, frothy mucus. Constant, with sensation as if bronchi were filled with thick, tenacious mucus, no relief from expectoration, with sweat on forehead, it seemed as if the effort to raise the mucus would empty the stomach, yet no nausea is felt. Expectoration; of mucus.

Sudden dyspnoea from spasm of vocal cords, with staring eyes, blue face, cold sweat covering body, pulse small and soft, temperature sinking; D., with sensation of a band around lower third of chest. Suffocation; in paroxysms, often followed by catarrh; with violent cough, sensation of cramp in muscular fibres of bronchi, increased mucus, often with spitting of blood. Inspiration comparatively free but crowing, with obstructed expiration, livid face, convulsions of limbs and partial coma; inspiration unimpeded, but expiration impossible from closure of rima glottidis, inspiration crowing, the lungs becoming inflated to a painful degree, it seemed as if air might pass through walls of chest more readily than by larynx, face turgid and livid, partial coma; inspiration easy but insufficient, with short, rattling-crackling râle, expiration difficult, prolonged, insufficient, with prolonged, loud, whistling râles (a combination of many sounds), and each pulsation of heart gives a crescendo diminuendo effect to them; inspiration difficult and attended with râles. Whistling râles, which are quite loud on forced expiration. Anxious respiration. Respiration and heart's action increased.

Chest.—Hæmoptysis; and consumption. Pain. Contraction. Oppression, not > in open air; O. of lungs, < l. Affection of lungs, < r. Inflammation of lungs and air-passages. Sensation in lower and inner third of r. lung as if ruptured, a feeling as if the air escaped into the pleural cavity at each inspiration, at each inspiration a râle at the quasi-ruptured place. Soreness internally, > cough.

Pulse.—Frequent. Diminished.

Neck and Spine.—Jerking of muscles, drawing head backward.

Extremities.—Stiffness. Weakness of lower.

Skin.—Cutis anserina; and dry, yellow and shrivelled. Red and painful, becoming swollen and thickened as in facial erysipelas; with bruised sensation, then itching and desquamation. Accumulation of blood in capillaries, with heat. Determination of blood, with papillæ close together, which suppurate and vesicate or desquamate, < on back, loins, breast, abdomen and arms. Tetter. Inflammation and ulceration. Desquamation. Urticaria fibrilis. Nettle-rash, white wheals in clusters, surrounded by diffuse redness. Minute vesicles all over skin, on the shoulders their bases nearly touch, then red and livid spots. Sensitiveness. Smarting. Sticking. Stinging, then symptoms as from cantharides, then soreness and bruised sensation, then itching and cuticle coming off in thick scales, as in psoriasis. Stinging as of nettles. Stinging as of insects, with sweat, rush of blood to skin, sometimes pimples or vesicles; intermittent S. as of insects here and there, on arm, back, abdomen and lower limbs. Itching; with increased sensibility.

Sleep.—Late falling asleep after every excitement, the following days early sleepiness.

Fever.—Shivering; in evening in a warm room. Cold shudders over anterior surface of arms from 10 or 11 A.M. to 2 P.M., and over back and thighs, with dimness before eyes, then fever. Heat; when eating and afterwards, with irritability while drinking wine and coffee; of skin. Sweat; in sleep at night; critical.

Clinical.—In typhus the diluted Chlorine water has been given, especially when the tongue was extremely dry; it seems to relieve the profound prostration, the subsultus tendinum and extreme dryness of the tongue.

Chromicum Acidum.

A solution of pure Chromic Acid in distilled water (1 to 9) may be diluted for use.

Generalities.—Pain, < draught of air; < l. side; < cold water. Amelioration from quick walking. Heaviness, dullness, stupidity. Weakness.

Mind.—Confusion. Memory affected so that when writing he was at a loss to make several letters.

Head.—Pain over l. eye. Heavy pain along coronal suture from 10 A.M. till 4 P.M., extending backward over parietal region. Throbbing in forehead, with fulness, with emptiness in chest, soreness on pressure and cold feet. Fulness; at night, with lightness at heart and vertigo on descending stairs; in vertex and frontal region at 5 A.M., on waking. Lightness like vertigo at 10 P.M., with heat in face. Vertigo at 10 A.M. when walking, inclining him to the right.

Eyes.—Sore and feeling heavy, as if inflamed. Pain at noon from r. ball into interior of brain, with soreness of orb to touch. Vision diminished.

Ears, Nose and Face.—Sudden intermittent feeling of water in r. ear, disappearing instantly. Sensation when eating as if expired air smelt putrid, almost causing nausea. Features contracted, face leaden, eyes sunken. Lips dry and disposed to crack.

Mouth.—Toothache in l. lower jaw in morning after the usual rinsing with cold water; repeated, < r. lower, with violent beating of corresponding artery; sudden, in l. sound teeth in night, < lower, with violent beating of corresponding arteries; intermittent, in r. at 10 P.M. in bed, extending into forehead, with uneasiness, teeth seemed too long, with relief of pain between head, l. scapula and shoulder, then uneasiness in limbs, next morning r. teeth felt too long and cold water caused pain.

Throat.—Tough mucus, with inclination to swallow it, as it could not be easily hawked up; white mucus, < morning, causing heaving.

Stomach.—No appetite for breakfast. Nausea from 2 till 4 P.M., after dinner; after a simple supper, with sensation as if stool would follow; < when stomach is empty. Vomiting profuse, first of contents of stomach, then of much bile, then of blood; frequent V. of food, then of bile, with sweat, much retching, the nausea which precedes each vomiting > quick walking, between the attacks of vomiting pressure and fullness in stomach so that he must loosen the clothes, after the last vomiting sleep, then pressure or heaviness in stomach. Burning pain.

Abdomen.—Cutting in hypogastrium and ascending colon at 6 P.M., > profuse diarrhoea. Pain in l. hypochondrium; in colon in morning on waking, > rising, with rumbling. Uneasiness in morning in bed, as before diarrhoea, > rising; in lower, waking at 4 A.M., with soreness to touch, < along colon, with nausea, eructations and retching, throwing off white mucus.

Anus and Stool.—Hæmorrhoids internal and bleeding; painful, externally on l. side of anus. Hamorrhoidal discharge during stool; with weakness in small of back. Diarrhoea; watery, with nausea and vertigo. Frequent copious stools. Small stool of mucus and knotty feces.

Urinary Organs.—Strangury in morning on waking after a dream of it.

Chest, Heart and Pulse.—Pain in l. lung, with throbbing. Rawness or soreness in chest, with hacking cough. Pulsation through chest at noon. Weakness of chest. Sudden stitch in region of heart. Stricture in region of heart at 10 A.M. Throbbing from region of heart to l. eye and l. side of head at 10 A.M., with fullness in frontal region. Pulse rapid; and full; slow; irregular in frequency.

Neck and Back.—Stiffness of muscles on l. side of neck at 10 A.M. Pain deep-seated in l. shoulder, scapula and l. side of nape up to occiput, with stiffness, < rising from lying or turning head to l. or backward, and draught of air, > standing and walking, at times the pain extended into l. olecranon, to muscles on chest below l. shoulder and spine, all muscles connected with scapula painful to touch, use of l. arm impeded, on drawing a long breath a stitch in chest near l. shoulder, on coughing pain over whole l. upper chest, deep coughing was impossible, pressure on chest, the pain moved from l. scapula to pelvis, lumbar region sensitive. Shooting from small of back into l. hip-bone at 3 P.M.; from lumbar vertebrae to crest of r. ilium at 6 P.M. when sitting. Pain in lumbar region at 9 A.M.; at 4 P.M., and weakness.

Extremities.—Pain on top of l. shoulder as from fatigue from 10 A.M. till noon. Growing pain anteriorly in middle of l. brachium, and lameness as from a blow. Arms easily fall asleep. Pain in elbows. Drawing pain anteriorly in upper half of l. femur, extending to hip-joint. Rheumatic feeling in r. knee in afternoon and evening. Itching in l. knee on walking. Weakness of l. knee at 8 P.M. when walking, with knocking. Paralyzed sensation in r. leg at 10 A.M.

Skin.—Prickling and itching here and there, > evening, with uneasiness in limbs.

Sleep.—Sleepiness in evening; in the daytime, but if he lies down inability to sleep. Late falling asleep, restlessness during the night and anxious dreams. Waking at 5 A.M., and restlessness; waking at early dawn and inability to sleep again though sleepy and not excited. Night restless, with swollen sensation in eyeballs, which continued after waking. Dreams unpleasant, unremembered; distressing, that he is about to be put to death by poison and at the same time is innocent of crime; of crossing a stream on horseback, the stream and the water on him freeze.

Fever.—Coldness; in nape at 10 A.M.; of feet; of feet at noon, even when walking.

Clinical.—Diphtheritic sore throat. Post-nasal tumors. Epithelioma of tongue. Watery diarrhoea, with vertigo. Foul-smelling lochia, bloody.

Cicuta Virosa.

A tincture is prepared of the fresh root of Cicuta Virosa, L.

General Action.—The Cicutæ are most prominently convulsants, producing the most terrific convulsions, with loss of consciousness.

Allies.—Ethanthe, Conium, Absinth., Hydrocy. ac., Cupr.

Generalities.—Veins very prominent. Lying as if dead, with clenched jaws. Falling to the ground; unconscious; and rolling about; on stooping it seems as if he would fall forward. Catalepsy, limbs hung down relaxed as if dead, without breathing. Tetanus. Convulsions, with wonderful distortions of limbs, head turned backward, back bent as in opisthotonos; frightful distortions, with unconsciousness; spasms of all the muscles; spasms, with dark redness of face, blue lips and bloody froth from mouth. Epilepsy; with swelling of stomach, as from spasm of diaphragm. Hiccough, screaming, redness of face, trismus, unconsciousness and distortion of limbs; with wonderful convulsions of limbs, head and upper part of body, and clenched jaws; with wonderful distortions of limbs, upper part of body and head, blue face, interrupted breath and froth from mouth, afterwards unconsciousness; frequent E. at night. Restlessness, tossing about, the pallor of face changed to cyanosis, twitching of face, of muscles of eyes and neck, a peculiar scream, finally tetanus of whole body, head bored into pillow, the spine forming a concave arc backward, froth before mouth, teeth clenched, limbs drawn up towards abdomen, unconsciousness, insensibility, micturition in a full stream, breath stopped at the height of the convulsions, no action of heart during the spasm. Fell to the ground, urinated with great force, violent convulsions, mouth could not be opened, gnashed the teeth, distorted his eyes, blood spurted from the ears and much swelling was felt in præcordial region. Tonic spasms so that the fingers could not be straightened, neither could the limbs be bent or straightened. Twitchings: on back, forehead and l. toes. Cramplike stiffness of whole body, with coldness. Rigidity in a child, and sleeplessness. (Symptoms of spasms, compare Ethanthe, Cupr., Absinth., etc.) Swollen sensation in whole body when in bed and frequent starting as if he would fall out of bed. Weakness; after standing a short time, < in knees and in muscles of back; on rising. Faintness.

Clinical.—Convulsions from various causes, injuries, after opium, chorea-like, epileptiform, tetanic, puerperal, from worms, from indigestion, with insensibility, staring eyes, with jerking of eyeball, muscles of the face and whole body, face red, hot, sweaty; or with the convulsions violent opisthotonos, tetanic rigidity of the whole body, eyes fixed at one point, and frothing at the mouth, with spasmodic breathing; spasms brought on by the slightest jar, etc.

Mind.—Delirium; singing, dancing grotesquely, shouting (Hyosc.); after an unusual sleep heat of body, she sprang out of bed, laughed, did foolish things, drank much wine, jumped about, clapped her hands and grew red in the face. Constantly screaming the name of his sister. It seemed as if he were a child and objects were as attractive to him as toys to a child. Belief that he was not living under ordinary relations, everything seemed strange and almost fearful, it seemed as if he had awakened from a fever and saw all kinds of visions, without physical sick feeling. Weeping, moaning and howling. Laughing and biting.

Excitement and apprehension about the future. Anxiety, much affected by sad stories; (A. at noon, and sweat on face, trembling of hands and faintness at heart). Fear, with stitches in l. side of head from fright at every opening of the door and at every word. Belief that he would die. Sadness. Occupied with tormenting ideas of human conditions. Misanthropy; he went into solitude and reflected upon people's errors and about himself. Likes to be alone, is disinclined to speak and is irresolute. Suspicious. Disinclined to work and morose. Indifferent and doubtful if he really were in the condition in which he found himself. Stupefaction. Loss of ideas. Mental torpor. Unconsciousness. Confusion of ideas and rapid change of thoughts, often of a depressing nature; confusion of the present with the past.

Clinical.—Delirium, with funny gestures, red face, confounds the present with the past. Melancholia, with indifference. Sadness and concussion of brain. Great apprehension; very mistrustful. Hallucinations, with convulsions after typhoid fever.

Head.—Jerking. Sinking gradually when sitting quietly, while her eyes stare at the same point, then a kind of internal jerk with sudden return to consciousness, then similar insensibility, wherefrom she was aroused from time to time by internal shivering. Sticking. Pain; > passage of flatus; > sitting upright; in places deep in brain; in morning on waking, as if brain were loose, and shaking on walking; compressive, from both sides. Anxiety. Heaviness; when sitting; and stupefaction. Fulness. Confusion in morning after rising. Dulness, with shaking chill, stiffness of neck and sensation as if muscles were too short. Strange feeling. Intoxication; intoxicated feeling when sitting, standing and walking. Vertigo; and reeling; and falling to the ground; on walking, as if he would fall forward to the left.

Forehead.—Sticking in bone. Tearing in upper part, beneath bones, extending to vertex. Pain; beneath l. eminence; in l. bone; in sinciput; in places in sinciput, beneath bones; with fulness, and in r. temple, then in l.; stupefying pain externally, < rest; hammering, in afternoon. Pulsation in sinciput, with heat and violent action of heart. Confusion; in sinciput. Heaviness; in sinciput; in sinciput, and heat; with pressure deep in brain.

Tearing in l. temple. Pain in r. temple, between skin and bone. Strong pulsation in temporal arteries. Tearing beneath bones on r. side of head; in bones of l. side, with internal pulsation and confusion deep in brain; backward through l. side, < towards top of skull. Pressure beneath l. bones; one-sided P., rather external. Tearing in bones of r. side of occiput. Pain in O. like a pressure and as with coryza. Sensation in O. when sitting as on lying down after a fatiguing walk, extending through back and along posterior surface of legs. Heaviness in O.; deep in O. Distention of skin of sinciput. Eruption, and on face.

Clinical.—Vertigo, with gastralgia, vomiting, with muscular spasms and tendency to convulsions. Sudden violent shocks through head and whole body, with jerking, premonitory of spasms. Suppurating eruptions and pustules larger than the head of a pin, which became confluent, with infiltration, etc. Basilar meningitis. Cerebro-spinal meningitis, with convulsions, many cases. Effects of concussion of the brain, especially convulsions.

Eyes.—Protruding. Staring; whereby everything looked like black cloth; with a gray fog before eyes; without ability to help it and without entire control of senses, she must be much excited to answer correctly, on attempting to turn her head loss of consciousness and blackness before eyes. Pressure on reading; P., with sensitiveness to light, at times gray spots before eyes. Pupils dilated and insensible (Bell, Hyosc., etc.); contracted; contracted, then dilated; sometimes contracted, sometimes dilated. Sticking in lids; in l. Tearing in r. lids. Pressure upon lids. Pressure in r. inner canthus, > pressing lids together. Twitching of orbicularis beneath lower lid. Stitches along brows. Pain in bone beneath l. brow, extending towards temple and zygoma.

Sensitiveness to light. Everything seems very distinct and brighter than usual. Everything seems shining. When attempting to stand objects seem now to approach, now to recede. Objects seem to move, everything blinds her; objects seem to move from side to side; seem to move in a circle, < sitting. Everything runs together on fixing vision. Objects seem double at one time (Con., Gels.), and black, at another time she hears with difficulty. Vision obscured; by black points when reading and afterwards. Vision of bright spots; and stripes; bright point floating before r. eye, mingled with dark streaks and specks. Blinded by the white snow, and on looking at a dark wall a gray curtain seems to cover the l. part of vision.

Clinical.—Commencing strabismus, periodic, spasmodic, or after convulsions.

Ears.—Flow of blood. Sore pain behind l.; as from a bruise; bruised pain behind r. Bursting in r. on swallowing. Difficult hearing (Con.); Ringing; in l. Roaring; before ears, < in the house.

Clinical.—Hæmorrhage from the ears in cerebral troubles. Deafness of old people, with sudden deteriorations in ears, especially on swallowing (compare Con.).

Nose.—Bruised pain in r. wing. Dryness as if stopped. Stopped; with much mucus in it. Yellow discharge. Sneezing without coryza. Bright blood from r. nostril; bleeding from r. on touch.

Face.—Red. Pale; and drawn; cadaverous paleness; pale, < around lips. Swollen. Anxious expression. Muscular movements. Pressure beneath r. malar-bone. Lockjaw; with froth from mouth. Burning-itching vesicle on vermilion border of l. side of upper lip.

Mouth.—Gnashing of teeth. Pain in lower teeth. Whitish sore on margin of tongue, with pain on touch. Tongue immovable. Dumbness. Five or six words articulated without hesitation, then jerking backward of head and jerking of arms so that he draws backward and swallows a syllable and articulates almost as in hiccough. Dryness. Froth. Flow of water tinged with blood. Salivation.

Clinical.—Eruptions about corners of the mouth, beginning like honey-colored crusts, with burning and itching, the crusts extended to the chin, became thick and "fatty," sometimes with swollen glands.

Throat.—Sticking. Scraping; burning, extending into epigastric region. Feeling as if grown together, with bruised pain externally, < moving or taking hold of it, with eructations in afternoon. Sensation in throat and chest as if something as large as a fist lodged and were pressing throat asunder, impeding respiration, worse when sitting than when walking. Dryness. Irritation. Inability to swallow.

Clinical.—Spasm of œsophagus from worms, the child cannot swallow, strangling on attempting to swallow.

Stomach.—Appetite great; less evenings; lost; at noon, at first mouthful; lost on account of dryness in mouth, with incomplete taste to food. Longing for coal, he swallowed it. Thirst; for cold water in afternoon. Desire for wine increased. Did not relish his breakfast, it filled up his abdomen as if he had eaten too much. Waterbrash, with nausea and general heat. Eructations of bitter yellow fluid in afternoon, while stooping in open air, causing burning in throat. Hiccough; loud. Nausea; in morning, with sticking-tearing headache; when eating; with sticking in forehead. Vomiting; copious; difficult, then relief; of blood.

Gastritis. Sticking in pit, and burning. Sudden tearing in epigastric region. Scraping. Shock in region of pit as with a finger, causing staring, then return to his senses. Pressure in pit after eating, compelling deep breathing, with inclination to eructate. Burning. Burning pressure. Sensation as if hot water were in it. Anxiety in pit; with tightness and constant desire to go out and cool himself. Throbbing in pit; which was raised up to the size of a fist.

Clinical.—Desire for unnatural things, like coal. Violent hiccough, with loud sound and with spasms of the chest.

Abdomen.—Distention. Flatulence. Rumbling and roaring. Emission of flatus. Tearing deep in A., < pressure. Pain; on pressure; after eating, with sleepiness. Sick feeling in morning, > afternoon, then sticking in r. side of head extending from r. eye and nose to occiput, then running from nose and discharge of yellow mucus. Chilliness. Heat. Sudden stiches from navel to neck of bladder. Hypogastrium distended and painful. Cutting in H. after eating. Sensation in r. groin when sitting as if an ulcer would break through. Sore pain in r. pelvic region, in margin of ilium, a pulsating drawing sensation.

Rectum.—Protrusion, with thin stool. Sensation as of a liquid stool. Sudden urging, with bruised pain in small of back and general loss of strength, sudden stool, then urging, with frequent desire to urinate. Itching just above anus, after walking, when standing still and during stool, and after rubbing pain as if burnt, the pain causing shuddering.

Anus.—Sensation on r. side as from hæmorrhoids, whereby the orifice is contracted, with annoyance during stool. Burning, with soft stool.

Stool.—Diarrhœa; at 2 and 5 A.M., with irresistible urging to urinate; brown; slimy, frequent, with urging and copious urine. Frequent, of black asafœtida-like mucus, in small portions, with urging at 2 P.M. Constipation. In single hard lumps.

Urinary Organs.—Sticking in urethra; in navicular fossa. Tickling in navicular fossa and frequent erections. Urging to urinate; frequent. Involuntary micturition (Cupr.). Frequent M. Sputting of urine. Retention of urine (Nux v.). Difficult micturition at night. Urine copious; scanty; and dark.

Sexual Organs.—Sore drawing pain beneath penis, extending to glans, compelling him to urinate. Erection without desire. Testicles drawn up against abdomen. Sudden pressure in skin of r. testicle. Emission without voluptuous dreams; in morning; three E. in the night. Menstruation delayed.

Respiratory Organs.—Pressure below larynx when sitting. Hoarseness. Cough, < during the day, and much expectoration. Want of breath. Oppressed respiration. Respiration stertorous; and frequent; and uneven, interrupted by hiccough. Respiration deep; when sitting; deep and difficult. Slow, difficult R. Feeble and rattling R. Scarcely perceptible R.

Chest.—Sticking beneath last l. false ribs on inspiration and expiration, > standing and walking. Tugging about pit of stomach. Pain in r. pectoral muscles; in r. pectoralis major when walking slowly, then in l. pectoral and intercostal muscles, not affecting respiration. Pressure on lower end of sternum as after a blow, when walking, with a sore sensation. Tightness so that she could scarcely breathe. Heaviness. Heat.

Clinical.—Spasms of pectoral muscles, sometimes with violent hiccough or with great difficulty in breathing.

Heart and Pulse.—Sticking in præcordial region and burning pain. Pain in præcordial region. Sudden sensation when walking as if heart stopped. Heart's action intermittent. Pulse rapid; slow and full; slow and small; small and soft; imperceptible at radius.

Clinical.—Palpitation, sometimes the heart felt as if it stopped beating.

Neck.—Swollen. A kind of cramp in muscles, if he looks around he cannot bring the head back again, the muscles do not yield, and when he attempts to force them it hurts very much. Tearing in muscles of r. side. Drawing pain in l. side. Tension in muscles; sore, in l. on bending head backward.

Clinical.—Spasms and cramps in muscles of the nape of neck and spasmodic drawing backward of head.

Back.—Bent backward like an arch (Emanth., Cupr., Abs., Nux v., etc.). Painful stiffness on stooping. Sticking in muscles on r. scapula; in muscles in region of eleventh and twelfth dorsal vertebra, < deep inspiration. Shock in dorsal vertebra. Sensation as if there were an ulcer on r. scapula. Pain on inner surface of scapulae; in dorsal muscles. Painful tension above r. scapula. Pain in lumbar muscles. Tearing-jerking in coccyx.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the coccyx during menstruation.

Extremities.—Spasmodic distortion (Hydrocyanic ac., etc.), throwing himself to the distance of two feet. Trembling. Tossing about. Tearing in extensor of l. forearm and at base of three last r. toes. Pain in l. knee, l. external malleolus, r. forearm, radial side of r. wrist and dorsal surface of hand at base of r. fingers. Alternating painful pressure in various muscles, < legs, with prickling in toes. Bruised sensation in forearms and legs; alternately in arms and legs, with heat streaming through them and difficult motion. Weakness of arms and legs after slight exertion; of legs when sitting and standing, less in arms, > walking; now in r. shoulder, now in one or other knee or in ankle. Paralysis; sensation numbened but not lost, incomplete paralysis of arms.

Upper Extremities.—Shoulder. Twitching in l. Tearing in muscles of l. Cracking sensation in joint. Sore pain in r. joint as from a blow.

Arm.—Jerking and sticking, and in fingers (lower limbs and head); J. in l., so that the whole body is jerked. Tearing in l. as far as fingers. Pain in muscles of r.; beneath r. Drawings in l. Tension. Heaviness on raising it, with sticking in shoulder, so that she cannot raise the arm to the head without crying aloud, and cannot move the fingers. Weakness, and of fingers; of l. arm, with sticking tearing. Numb feeling and weak motions.

Tearing in inner side of lower part of r. upper arm. Pressure in muscles of l. upper arm. Painful weakness in muscles of lower part of l. upper arm; suddenly in muscles of r. upper arm when writing. Pain in l. elbow, with heaviness. Sticking tearing in muscles of r. forearm when writing, > rest. Sore pain in l. forearm, as from a bruise. Pain in ulnar side of l. wrist. Sensation of cracking in wrist. Veins of hands distended. Drawing on dorsal surface of l. hand, at base of fingers. Pulsation on hand when supporting oneself on a chair. Nails blue (Nux v.). Twitching together of r. thumb and fingers. Drawing in tendons of dorsal surface of l. fingers. Deadness of fingers (going to sleep, numbness, coldness).

Lower Extremities.—Jerking. Reeling. Tottering when walking. Pressure in various muscles. Painful stiffness. Numbness and paralysis. Trembling of one thigh. Burning sticking in l. hip-bone. Tearing in thighs when walking, with heaviness; T. in thighs after rising from a seat, with aching in knees as if beaten, the pain in thighs < when walking, like a deep-seated stiffness. Pressure on r. trochanter major. Drawing in muscles on inner surface of r. thigh. Tension in fascia of anterior upper and outer part of l. thigh when walking, and in hollow of r. knee and to its side. Painful pressure in r. knee. Bruised sensation in knees. Feeling in knees when sitting as after a long walk.

Leg.—Trembling of l. Tearing in r. peroneal muscles; in lower part of extensor of l.; suddenly in lower part of r. calf, extending to tendo-achillis. Pressure; in calves; in l. calf. Bruised sensation and heaviness alternately through each, becoming seated in knee. Jerklike drawing on posterior and lower part of r., extending into heel. Compression in all muscles of l. when walking, as if the whole leg were contracted. Tension in calves; in lower part; in l. on walking. Prickling in muscles. Prickling pulsation in r. calf. Refusal to carry him and staggering. Weakness; sudden, in l. on rising; painful, streaming through both when sitting, also in knees. Stiffness in r. calf.

Tearing about l. malleoli. Soles turned inward when walking. Sticking in r. sole; in l. sole, with tingling; in heels when sitting. Tearing in sides of r. tendo-achillis; in l. sole; deep in inner margin of l. sole; in tendon on back of l. foot; in tendon on back of l. foot when standing and walking. Sudden pulling in r. sole. Drawing on back of r. foot, rather towards inner side; in tendons on back of l. foot; in tendons on back of r. foot and in l. sole. Stiffness of tendo-achillis when walking slowly, with painful pressure in muscles of posterior part of l. thigh. Twitches in l. toes. Sticking in corns when sitting. Tearing in l. toes; on inner side of r. great toe. Drawing-jerking pains in toes. Prickling in l. great toe.

Skin.—Elevations over face (and on hands), with burning pain on touch, afterwards confluent, dark red, then desquamation; E. on hands, even on balls of fingers, in which there is burning pain on touch, afterwards confluent, dark red, moist; (swelling on inside of l. elbow as if an ulcer would form, and on motion pain as from pressure on an ulcer). Red spot on back of l. hand, more in the direction of metacarpal bone of thumb; cluster of red spots on back of l. hand, smooth, > pressure. Black spots. Most of chest darker than the rest of the body. Eruption on ears. Painful pustules below and in front of ears. Red vesicle on r. scapula, painful to touch; V., with red areola on back of l. hand, between first and second fingers; itching V. on back of r. hand.

Drawing beneath skin on outer side of r. thigh; beneath skin just above l. tendo-achillis. Formication on forehead; beneath skin on back of r. foot; beneath skin of l. upper arm; beneath skin of thighs and legs when sitting, and < soles, as if the leg would go to sleep; in soles, with pressure in various places in legs; in l. toes. Itching over whole body; on r. side of chest, with heat; burning; burning, on r. thigh, > scratching.

Sleep.—Yawning. Sleepiness; in morning; so that the eyes closed; if she looks long at one place, with feeling as if the head were pressed down, she does not recognize letters, with staring eyes. Sleeplessness. Frequent waking, with general sweat every time, from which he, however, feels refreshed; frequent W. at night, with sensation as if he had slept enough; W. every quarter of an hour, with painful heaviness in head. Dreams vivid but unremembered; vivid, of the events of the previous day; confused, full of disquietude; voluptuous, with emissions and drawing pain in navicular fossa.

Fever.—Coldness. Shivering; through back; through back from 2 to 3.30 p.m. Coldness of surface. Coldness of ears; of limbs; of arms and feet, with stiffness; streaming through legs, < r., with tearing in toes; creeping down thighs, then coldness in arms (the coldness seems to come more from the chest), then greater inclination to stare at one point; creeping through legs and arms, with alternations of heaviness and lightness in those parts.

Heat; < by the accustomed smoking, with special heat in chest. In head, with heaviness; in sinciput, with heaviness; in forehead, with heaviness, puffy skin and throbbing in temporal arteries; from low down in occiput to crown; deep in occiput to vertex and to one side of head (always deep in head). About eyes. Internally and externally in ears. In face, with redness; in flushes, < towards upper part.

About nipple. Over back in flushes; creeping over back into head and feet, when sitting, as from hot water, and in upper arm and sensation of hot water in chest, then pain in muscles on posterior part of r. thigh. In legs. Of skin, with dryness. Sweat on abdomen at night.

Cimicifuga.

A tincture is prepared from the fresh root of the black-snake root, Cimicifuga racemosa, Ell. (Actæa racem., L.).

General Action.—It seems to exert a marked action on the spinal nerves especially at the upper part, symptoms of meningeal irritation and inflammation, neuritis, neuralgia, muscular spasms and tremors, etc. Clinically it has been found to control a large variety of troubles of the uterus and ovaries, neuralgias and even inflammations.

Allies.—Aconite, Ranunculus, Pæonia, Clematis, China, Gels., Silicea.

Generalities.—Tremors over whole body (Arg. n., Gels., Stram.). Nervous shuddering through upper and back part of body. Jerking after going to bed, obliging change of position, beginning in side on which he was lying as a perceptible twitching in l. foot. Continual stretching and yawning. Bruised feeling (Arn., Sil.). Soreness of whole body, with stiffness, as after hard labor. Lameness in morning, with many unenviable feelings. Feeling as after a "spree." General feeling of intoxication. Peculiar tingling in muscles, then aching in limbs, from above downward. Feeling of illness; > by supper; with weakness and trembling, believes the condition to be but one remove from mania-à-potu.

Restlessness; in forenoon; in afternoon; at night; latter part of the night; nervous, in afternoon, with indisposition to fix the attention on any subject; in all parts, hardly amounting to pain, < r. side. Nervous all day, full of work and doing it fast. Sensation as from severe muscular exertion, < small of back. Desire to lie down and close the eyes. Weakness; in morning, with trembling; caused by great discharge of clear urine; with trembling, sinking feeling and nausea; nervous, in afternoon. Aggravation on l. side; A. by motion.

Clinical.—Reflex neuralgias in various parts of the body, especially in women, dependent on ovarian and uterine troubles. Muscular rheumatism affecting the fleshy parts of the muscles, < motion, but great restlessness. Chorea, especially in muscles of l. side.

Mind.—A sort of delirium, with inclination to run over the subject on which he was reading. Symptoms as in delirium tremens. Grieved, troubled and sighing, next day tremulous joy, playfulness and clear intellect. Miserable, dejected feeling; in afternoon, and dullness. Anxiety.

Clinical.—Delirium, with excessive restlessness, twitching of tendons, starting up suddenly. Delirium, wild imaginings of rats, etc. (Stram.), with crazy feeling about head, talking continually, changing the subject and moving about. Puerperal mania, she is very suspicious, talking of a great variety of things, constantly changing the subject, sometimes sees vermin, speech is often disconnected. Insanity in the form of melancholia, is very apprehensive, talks of becoming crazy, she is suspicious or talks incessantly, constantly changing the subject. Delirium tremens, is frightened, trembles, cannot remain in one place. Puerperal melancholia, with sleeplessness, sighing and moaning all the while. The two marked characteristics of the delirium or insanity of this drug are the mental and physical restlessness, the patient cannot remain in one place, and when talking constantly changes the subject.

Head.—Pain; in morning on getting up; in forenoon and part of the afternoon, especially in occiput (Gels., Sil.), extending to vertex; at 10 A.M., < forehead, extending over vertex to occiput; in evening; on waking, with vertigo, flushed face, dilated pupils and rapid pulse; indoors, especially in occiput, < afternoon and evening, > 9 P.M. after walking in open air; always > in open air; partly > by throwing head backward; with heat in head and face; with sleepiness and coldness, then warmth; paroxysmal, in forehead, occiput, vertex, etc., > open air; heavy, at 9 A.M., < l. temple. Heaviness. Dullness; as after a "spree;" and of eyelids, with heaviness, as from a cold. Fullness; in brain. Feeling as if too large; brain feels too large for the cranium. Vertigo; with fulness and aching in vertex and impaired vision; with half-intoxicated feeling.

Forehead.—Pressure outward and upward in upper part of cerebrum as if there were not room enough. Shooting over l. eye. Boring over l. superciliary ridge. Pain; over eyes; over r. eye; over l. eye, > open air; deep in; before breakfast; in afternoon; waking at 2 A.M., extending to temples, with coldness of forehead; at 6 A.M. extending over vertex to occiput, with heaviness; at 10 P.M., and between eyeball and orbital plate of frontal bone, with dryness in pharynx; in front part of head and in eyes; with heat in face and sweat; occasional, over r. eye; intermittent, in l. side after a hearty dinner, also after sleep, < when walking in open air; over l. eye, extending along base of brain to occiput.

Temple.—Cutting in r. Pain in l.; pain as if head would burst; pain in r., extending in burning lines to forehead, afterwards with fulness, drowsiness and heat. Occasional compression.

Vertex.—Tearing in centre. Pain in afternoon and evening; paroxysmal, < morning, and in occiput; and soreness, finally passing to forehead, lasting all night and preventing sleep. Fulness in evening; F. in upper part of brain, and dullness.

Shooting about sides of head. Pain in l. side. Fulness in l. side. Soreness in occiput caused by the pain through the whole brain, < motion. Pain in occiput.

Clinical.—In general the headaches affect the base of the occiput or the headaches begin at that point, frequently they are extremely violent and shoot up to vertex or down spine, and bending the head forward seems to pull upon the spine; sometimes it seems as if a bolt would be driven from the neck to the vertex with every beat of the heart; sometimes the whole neck is very lame from distress on moving the head. These headaches of Cimicifuga may be neuralgic, associated in women with uterine disturbances, or they may be associated with symptoms of inflammation of the meninges of the brain and spine. Neuralgic headaches, feeling as if the top of the head would fly off.

Eyes.—Congestion during the headache. Aching; at 10 A.M.; extending to vertex, as if nerves were excited to too much action. Swollen feeling. Heaviness as from a cold. Pupils dilated. Pain in balls (Ran. b., r.); in forenoon; in evening on going up-stairs; in r. at night in bed; in centre and between ball and orbital plate of frontal bone, < morning; occasional; at night, extending from r. through to r. side of occiput, slightly affecting ear. Lids inflamed; and stinging, Swelling of r. lid, and heat in it. Pain in r. lid in afternoon on closing it. Vision dim; distorted; V. of black specks. Increase of myopia.

Clinical.—Ciliary neuralgia, eyeballs feel enlarged and the pain shoots into the head, sometimes associated with photophobia and extreme asthenopia.

Ears and Nose.—Pain in ears. Stitch to outside of r. wing of nose. Stinging in nose in evening. Sneezing. Dry, stuffed condition of nose, then open, moist condition and sensitiveness to cold air as if the base of the brain were bare and every inhalation brought cold air in contact with it. Roaring in ears. Coryza, with sore throat and gradual extension of the disease to the bronchial mucous membrane, and hacking cough; fluent C., with tickling in nares, and exciting sneezing; profuse, greenish, sanguineous C.

Face.—Redness; and of eyes. Pain; more in lower jaw, articulation of jaw and in lower teeth. Feeling of lateral expansion and pressure outward in malar-bones and forehead at 10 A.M. Upper lip swollen and inflamed, skin cracked and came off. Ulcer on inner surface of lower lip. Lips dry; and sore. Pain in l. jaw; in r. upper jaw and in teeth.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia, either of rheumatic origin or associated with uterine disturbances, pain > at night, reappears next day.

Mouth.—Thick mucus on teeth. Uneasiness in teeth in afternoon, a desire to chew or pick at them. Swelling of back part of tongue; and of fauces. Redness and inflammation of palate and uvula. Dryness; in morning. Salivation. Thick saliva, sticking to mouth and throat. Offensive breath. Taste unpleasant; bitter.

Throat.—Thick, viscid mucus. Roughness and scraping; R., with dryness and thirst. Rawness; with difficulty in swallowing, hoarseness, which is < towards night. Soreness; on swallowing; on swallowing and on pressure, < on l. side, with dryness; in evening on swallowing, with full sensation high up in throat. Fulness of pharynx; with inclination to swallow; of throat and vertex, with stiffness of neck. Sensation as far as top of sternum as if partly filled. Constriction of pharynx, with increased mucus. Dryness of pharynx; at 4 P.M.; at night and inclination to swallow. Empty aching along œsophagus in afternoon.

Stomach.—Appetite lost. Repugnance to food at supper. Desire for tobacco lessened. Thirst, but no desire to drink. Eructations; violent. Nausea; in women, with vomiting and much gastric irritation; with general tremors; with weak, trembling feeling; then freer expectoration, relaxation of surface, nervous tremors and vertigo. Violent retching. Vomiting.

Distention, and of upper abdomen. Darting pain in epigastrium after a light supper. Pain and heat, the pain > eructations, with warmth and dryness in the whole alimentary canal; pain in epigastrium before breakfast, extending to l. hypochondrium, with emptiness. Faintness; in epigastrium before breakfast, then repletion after eating; in epigastrium in forenoon; in epigastrium, with repugnance to food. Feeling as if too much had been eaten; in forenoon. Uneasiness; in epigastrium, with oppression. Oppression. Tremor; after breakfast. Burning.

Clinical.—Nausea and efforts to vomit, in uterine affections or with spinal irritation. Nausea and vomiting caused by pressure on the spine and cervical region, with palpitation, suppression of menses.

Abdomen.—Flatulence. Nausea through A., then loose stool, with sharp pain in abdomen and downward pressure in rectum. Pain, in morning, with thin, light brown diarrhœa; wandering; heavy; periodic, > stool, with inclination to bend forward. Fulness; full sensation at 10 P.M., caused by flatulence. Soreness of muscles on full inspiration. Pain in hepatic region; in l. hypochondrium, < motion and deep inspiration; sickening P. in duodenum. Rumbling below umbilicus at 10 P.M. Cutting in umbilical region; in afternoon. Gripping from U. down. Gripping-twisting in U. region, < towards l. Pain below U., with weight and pain in lumbar and sacral regions.

Hypogastrium.—Rumbling; at 10 A.M. Fulness. Cutting, waking at 3 A.M., with uneasiness in it and urging to stool, stool thin, partly undigested, uneasiness in abdomen all the forenoon, with desire for stool, next morning waking at 3, with thin, undigested stool, pain low down in bowels, diarrhœa once in four or five hours. Pain in evening, with fulness in abdomen and sensation as before diarrhœa; P. in l. iliac region.

Rectum and Stool.—Urging to stool, inclined to diarrhœa. Disposition to diarrhœa; after rising; in evening. Scanty diarrhœa, with tenesmus. Copious papaceous stool; with general indisposition; two, in morning. Constipation; alternating with disposition to diarrhœa. Hard and dry stool.

Urethra Organs.—Sticking in urethra in morning. Frequent micturition; with increased urine; after retention of urine. Increased urine; and pale. Scanty and high-colored urine. Copious urea. Specific gravity decreased at first, afterwards it rose, after standing the urine was acid, cloudy, contained fibrinous casts of uniferous tubes (?), with minute lozenge-shaped crystals of uric acid adhering to their sides. Sediment of uric acid like yellow sand, in the nucleated form of crystals, with the obtuse angles rounded so as to make an elliptical figure, while above this floated a cloud of mucus and urate of ammonia, and above this floated yellowish sand, which seemed to be gradually settling to the bottom, the urine appearing like a mixture of ginger and water.

Sexual Organs.—Pain in testicles, with tenderness. Pain in r. spermatic cord, and retraction; drawing pain along r. spermatic cord. Bruised feeling in vagina. Bearing down pain during menstruation. Menorrhagia. Suppression of menses.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the ovaries and uterus, with great tenderness and bearing down, the pains shooting up the sides and across the lower part of the abdomen. Menstruation painful, irregular or suppressed, with hysterical symptoms or epileptiform spasms at the period. Menorrhagia, menses too profuse and early, dark, clotted, with severe pain in back extending through hips and down thighs. Endocervicitis, with general nervous hysterical symptoms, uterus engorged, cervix hypertrophied, all the organs very sensitive, especially the ovaries. During parturition the pains do not force downward but extend across the abdomen and upward into the sides (false pains). Threatening miscarriage, the pains fly about, with fainting spells. After-pains, with great sensitiveness, the patient feels that she cannot tolerate the pain (Cham.). During parturition the os is rigid. Ovarian neuralgia, especially of l. ovary, pains extend up and down l. side, with great tenderness.

Respiratory Organs.—Tickling in larynx causing dry cough; in evening, causing short dry cough; T. < speaking, causing inclination to cough. Hoarseness; after rising; < towards night. Contraction of bronchial tubes after full inspiration, impeding expiration. Hacking cough. Respiration quick on waking. R. difficult after slight exertion, with general ill feeling.

Clinical.—Nervous cough excited by every attempt to speak.

Chest.—Lancinations along cartilages of false ribs, < inspiration; < long inspiration, occurring after waking at 3 A.M. and in bed between 10 and 11 P.M. Pain; in l.; in r. lung, from apex to base, to r. of sternum, < inspiration. Soreness. Prickling in mammæ (female) during the day, with cold chills.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the diaphragm. Pleurodynia on either side; in women with uterine trouble, in the l. inframammary region.

Heart and Pulse.—Stitches at heart; with slight twitching or pulsation of external muscles in that region. Catching pain on bending forward, and when sitting still at dinner and after dinner. Pain in region of H., then palpitation. Palpitation and faintness. Pulse quick; and weak; and small; and full, hard, irregular. Irregular. Feeble pulse; in morning, with weakness and trembling; with general lassitude, with heat and smarting of face. Slow pulse; and intermittent at every third or fourth beat.

Clinical.—Angina pectoris, numbness of l. arm, irregular trembling pulse, tremulous motions of the heart. In women catching pain about the heart preventing respiration, with palpitation and faintness.

Neck.—Rheumatic pains in muscles of N. and back, with stiffness and contraction (China, Dulc., Clem.); heavy rheumatic pains in upper posterior part. Cramping in muscles of l. then r. side, on moving head. Stiffness; in evening.

Back.—Trembling and weakness. Pain; > pressure; wandering, during menstruation, and around through hips, inside; as of boils, and in small of back and in limbs. Stitches below r. scapula and spine. Drawing-tensive pain at points of spinous processes of three upper dorsal vertebræ (China, Sulph.), in morning on bending neck forward. Drawing pain in a single muscle between r. scapula and spine. Pain below l. scapula; behind r.; in region of lower dorsal and upper lumbar vertebræ; occasionally in scapula and shoulders.

Small of Back.—Aching both sides of spine in morning; heavy A. extending towards sacrum; heavy, in region of r. kidney, < motion; weak, trembling A. Weight; in lumbar and sacral region, and pain, sometimes extending all around the body, somewhat below crest of ilium. Lame, tired feeling extending from region of kidneys to sacrum, > rest, < motion.

Clinical.—Spinal irritation, the cervical and upper dorsal vertebræ particularly sensitive to pressure.

Extremities.—Twitching of fingers and toes (China). Trembling, scarcely able to walk. Pain; in l. external malleolus and l. forearm; in r. arm, elbow, wrist, and in knee, extending to ankle; in shoulder passing down arm, with numbness as if a nerve had been compressed, then in forearm, sometimes causing a cramping sensation, similar pains in legs, < in upper part of thigh, about hip-joint and inguinal region. Rheumatic pains all day. Drawing rheumatic pains in muscles of arms and legs. Pains as of boils. Uneasiness, almost an ache; restless, drawing sensations. Tired. Feeling in joints in morning on motion as after hard labor, stiffness.

Upper Extremities.—Pain deep in muscles of r. shoulder, extending to wrist; in muscles from shoulders to wrists. Laming pain in l. elbow anteriorly. Lameness of l. wrist. Weakness and trembling of hands and forearms, inability to grasp anything firmly.

Trembling of fingers when writing. Second l. finger lame, and cannot be flexed.

Lower Extremities.—Pain in muscles, < in anterior part of thighs, on walking out into open air, as from great fatigue. Weakness. Jerking in muscles of l. thigh, < in region of inferior third. Constriction of l. sartorius muscle. Rheumatic pain in r. knee; in l. leg. Lameness in r. leg, < bending forward, soreness and stiffness, moving forward to inside of ankle. Sharp, wandering pains in l. ankle and scapula. Pain in l. tendo-achillis when walking in open air, and a shortening sensation. Soreness in region of tendo-achillis towards evening, < walking, with aching and stiffness. Feeling in foot as if it had been compressed. Stinging in l. great toe in afternoon, on lower surface, then on upper. Pain in r. great toe. Burning pain in second joint of r. great toe; extending up limb, from 8 to 9 P.M., same the next evening, but not extending up the limb.

Skin.—Red papillæ, becoming a diffused redness. Eruption like mosquito-bites; < hands and wrists. Pustules on back of hand; back of l. Inflamed and bleeding ulcer near centre of each cheek. Itching on back of hand and wrist; on back of hand, with redness, also in afternoon, < evening; I. on back of l. hand and wrist in evening, < back of thumb, then red papullæ, becoming, after slight irritation, a diffused redness, the redness could be reproduced by slight irritation.

Sleep.—Yawning. Sleepiness; in afternoon; after dinner; in forepart of the evening, but restless sleep after 3 A.M.; in evening, with creeping chills upon back, then frequent waking in night and desire to throw off the bed-clothes, although the thermometer was below zero. Falling asleep on attempting to read. Sleeplessness. Restless sleep; after sleeping well for three or four hours, and dreams of being in trouble; from 3 to 5 A.M., and unrefreshing, with disposition to fold the arms over the head. Imperfect sleep, waking at midnight. Frequent waking at night. Troublesome dreams. Dreams of accidents, seeing limbs broken, great suffering, etc.

Fever.—Chill; in bed before rising; in forenoon; afternoon; with prickling in female mammæ; with pricklings in breasts. Occasional. Sensitiveness to cold air. General internal nervous chilliness feeling, less over back. Cold arms and feet; hands and feet; back, in afternoon; l. thigh and leg, as from a cold breeze; surface in morning after waking; whole surface at 3 A.M., with cold sweat and lancinations along cartilages of l. false ribs, < long inspirations; surface of body and of face and hands cold and dry.

Symptoms of catarrhal fever. Heat in front part of head; hot and dry forehead. H. in cheeks in flashes; H. in l. side of face, with general lassitude; of face, with slight inclination to sweat, and full, rapid pulse; in region of kidneys, with pain and weariness; of feet, then weakness of knees. Hot and dry skin. Burning in skin in morning after rising, with itching.

Disposition to sweat at night; at 3 A.M., beginning while asleep, > soon after waking, the first week with coldness of surface, afterwards with heat. Sweat, with headache similar to morning sickness during pregnancy. Cold S.; on hands and feet.

Cina.

A tincture is prepared from the dried flowers of Artemisia Cina Berg. (wormseed).

General Action.—From our present knowledge this drug acts similarly to Absinth. and other allied plants, producing increased reflex irritability and spasms. Its symptoms particularly simulate worm affections or peculiar forms of indigestion.

Allies.—Absinth., Chenopod., Cham., Arn., China, Nux v., Ign., Calc. c., Ferrum.

Generalities.—The child raises herself suddenly before coughing, looks wildly about, becomes stiff, loses consciousness, as if she would have epilepsy, then coughs. Convulsions; epileptic-like, with consciousness; with distortions of limbs in all directions, except that fingers and toes were unaffected, head and trunk were drawn now backward, now forward, now to one side, while arms and legs were thrown about, then shocks through whole body, with motion downward, like stamping of feet, jerking of head upward and backward, the shocks were felt by the hand, < lower part of chest and upper abdomen, face pale, then livid, at last blue, eyeballs turned convulsively upward, then directed staringly forward, pupil insensible, tongue at times contracted to a cylinder and spasmodically protruded. Paralytic jerking in various parts, < in limbs. Spasmodic stretching at 4 P.M., then trembling, with blue lips and weeping complaints about pain in chest, neck and limbs. Trembling, with shivering when yawning. Tossing about even when awake (in a child). (Convulsive symptoms to be compared with Absinth., Chenopod., etc.).

Sticking here and there in body; here and there on trunk when sitting, < on abdomen; S. sometimes like a squeezing, sometimes like a pressure, sometimes like a blow or jerk, sometimes like an itching, now here, now there, in body, now in limbs, arms, feet, toes, now in side or back, now in nasal bones, < on posterior part of crest of ilium, on hip, the places pain on pressure as if bruised; cramplike contractive S. in muscles, now of r., now of l. thigh, now in muscles of r., now of l. upper arm, now down small of back, when sitting, > walking in open air. Tearing, in part cutting, in limbs, head and jaws; teusive T. in scapule, after eating, < touch, and in upper arm, head and nape. Uneasiness; at night, tossing about on account of discomfort. Weak; and pale; in morning on rising, and nauseated. Aggravation morning and evening; A. after eating.

Mind.—Delirium and crying out. Talking nonsense. Cannot be quieted by any persuasions; proof against all caresses (Nux v.). Piteous cries if one attempted to touch or lead him. Lachrymose and complaining (in a child). Earnest and sensitive, offended at the slightest joke (Nux v.). Refuses everything, even the things of which he is usually fond. Indifferent. Grunting, croaking and groaning in afternoon. Anxiety and anguish about heart when walking in open air, as if he had committed a crime. Unconscious and frothing at the mouth.

Clinical.—Great mental excitement, children wake in fright and scream and tremble. Children become very fretful, cannot be pleased, and though very weak when sick they are very cross and obstinate and strike everybody (Nux v., Sulph.).

Head.—Leaning to one side (in a child). Sticking in brain, < l. side of vertex. Tearing, extending into malar-bone. Aching; in morning, with affection of eyes;

< reading and reflecting; with general discomfort; internal stupefying, on walking in open air, < in sinicupit, then also in occiput; as if screwed in, with numbness; drawing, after eating, < reading and mental labor. Vertigo; on rising from bed, > lying down, with blackness before eyes, faintness and tottering.

Forehead.—Sticking above orbital margin extending deep into brain; in bone above r. temple, extending deep into head and threatening to stupefy him. Paralytic tearing in l, then r. eminence, with stupefaction of head. Pain in evening; pressing downward externally; as if upper bones were pressed together from both sides; stupefying, externally, when sitting, and in temples, at last involving whole head. Pressure in bone, with internal beating as of waves; drawing P. in l. side of sinicupit. Drawing from l. eminence to root of nose, causing confusion of head.

Tearing in l. temporal region, > moving head; tensive T. in r. temple. Pressing-out pain in temples after sneezing. Cramplike drawing in temples, < pressure. Intermittent weight in middle of vertex, as if brain were pressed down (Calc. ph.), > pressure. Drawing tearing in whole l. side of head. Pressing-out pain in r. parietal bone on waking, and in r. side of forehead. A spot on r. parietal bone feels numb and asleep.

Clinical.—Cerebral symptoms of meningeal irritability, especially in those suffering from worms, particularly with swollen, hot abdomen.

Eyes.—Sickly look about, with pallor of face. Pain during reading and mental labor. Pressure internally. Dryness when reading, with drawing pain on exerting them. Weakness in morning, upper lids so weak all the forenoon that he could scarcely open them. Pupils dilated; contracted. (Inner canthi agglutinated in morning after rising.) Burning pain in outer canthus, with itching on margin of upper lid. (Burning in lids in evening by the light, < inner canthus.) Dryness of lids in evening by the light, with sensation of sand in them. Crawling in lids. Tickling itching in r. inner canthus; in l. outer canthus. Pulsation of superciliary muscles, a kind of convulsion. Pressure on lower margin of orbit, < pressure. Vision dim when reading, > rubbing eyes; in evening. Blue seems green, carmine-red fawn-colored, madder-red bronze, and white seems yellow (Santonine).

Clinical.—Astenopia, vision becomes blurred on attempting to read. Strabismus from worms.

Ears and Nose.—Sticking below mastoid process, like a pinching, and on pressure a bruised feeling. Cramplike jerking in external ear. The child bores into the nose until the blood comes (compare Arum tri.). Violent sneezing. Burning deep in l. nostril as if blood would come or as after snuffing up brandy. Burning aching on septum of l. nostril, as if one had picked off a scab, < external touch. Fluent coryza; in forenoon, then stoppage of nose in evening. Nose constantly full of loose mucus in morning, necessity to blow it frequently. Purulent discharge from nose.

Clinical.—The child constantly picks its nose, is very restless, cries and wets the bed.

Face.—Pale and cold. White and bluish about the mouth. Red. Bluish, puffy. Pain in malar-bones as if seized by pincers and pressed together, < pressure (Verbas.). Periodic, wandering tensive-tearing in malar-bone, < pressure. Cramplike jerking in malar-bone, renewed by strong pressure, then cramplike or paralytic pain. Sticking in l. lower jaw, < pressure; in r. ramus, < pressure. Jerking pain in l. lower jaw.

Clinical.—Twitching of muscles of the face and about the eyes, especially with disordered stomach and bowels. Pallor around nose and mouth particularly marked, with worms, sometimes one cheek is hot and the other pale, sometimes the whole face is burning hot; the symptoms vary rapidly (Cham.). Neuralgia of the malar-bone as if pinched with pincers, < pressure (Verbasz).

Mouth and Throat.—(Round worms come through the child's mouth.) Toothache from cold drinks and inspiration of air; T. as from soreness. Dryness of mouth, and rawness, < palate, with uneasy qualmsiveness. Pain in submaxillary glands. Mucus in back of throat and in larynx in morning, causing hawking and hacking. Inability to swallow.

Stomach.—Great hunger soon after a meal (China, Calc. c., Nux v.). Desires many and different things. No appetite. Thirst. Empty eructations in morning fasting. Eructations tasting of food after eating. E. of a bitter, acrid fluid after eating. Frequent hicough. Nausea, with emptiness in head; N. in pit of stomach, with creeping shivers. Vomiting of mucus only; of food, then general chill, then heat, with great thirst; violent; repeated, violent, of yellow water. Sticking in l. side beneath pit, < pressure, > deep inspiration. Twisting, digging in epigastric region, as from a bruise. Pain in pit, impeding respiration. (Pressure at night.)

Clinical.—Unnatural hunger, the child wants a great variety of things, refuses ordinary food. Vomiting of mucus.

Abdomen.—Crackling of flatus and inaudible motions. Gripping; cutting, > stool. Pain; alternating with headache; labor-like, as before menstruation. Emptiness, with silent passage of flatus. Heat becoming a gripping. Pinching or cramplike pressure transversely across, in region of pit of stomach, after eating. Intermittent sticking in l. side when sitting; suddenly in l. side near navel towards evening, < inspiration and always associated with stitches on inner side of scapula. Twisting about navel and pain on pressure upon navel. Boring above navel, > pressure. Pain at navel after eating and on pressure; pain in region as from pressure inward of navel or as from a blow, afterwards < inspiration. Cutting in ilium in morning. Pulsation internally above mons veneris.

Clinical.—Distended, hard, sore. Abdomen swollen, hot, very sore above the navel, where there is a great deal of colic, sometimes > pressure (Pod.).

Rectum and Stool.—Single stitches in lower part on passage of flatus. Watery diarrhoea.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea of white mucus in little pieces like popcorn. Passes worms, both round and thread-worms.

Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Frequent urging to urinate and much urine. Turbid urine. Saffron-yellow urine, containing flakes of mucus. Hæmorrhage from uterus (in a girl of ten years).

Clinical.—Involuntary micturition (Ferr.). Frequent desire to urinate all day.

Respiratory Organs.—Mucus hangs in larynx in morning after rising, soon collecting again after expectoration. Loud whistling whooping on inspiration, not on expiration. Tickling irritation to cough in trachea beneath sternum, with whitish mucous expectoration. Dryness of trachea in morning, a catarrhal sensation.

Cough, then the child cries out! au! A gurgling going downward is heard, she is anxious, catches her breath, and is pale. Hoarse, hacking C. in morning after rising, the irritation thereto (as from dust) removed by inspiration; hoarse, hacking, in shocks in evening; violent, paroxysmal; in morning, so violent in order to loosen the mucus that tears came into his eyes; hollow, in morning after rising, in violent shocks against upper part of air-passages, with difficult loosening of mucus. Disposition to cough caused by deep breathing. Expectoration of mucus from larynx.

Respiration short, with omission of some inspirations. Short, rattling; on walking in open air, as from much mucus in chest. Dyspnoea when standing, with anxiety and sweat on chest. Difficult, loud R.

Clinical.—Capillary bronchitis in children, screams when approached (Arn.), swallows after coughing, screams and talks in sleep. Whooping cough.

Chest.—Stitches; beneath l. clavicle, near sternum, on deep inspiration, with pain on pressure; on one of the cartilages of the ribs, near sternum, < pressure, > inspiration; jerking, in r. side, between sixth and eighth ribs, not affected by respiration; sudden jerking, in l., between fifth and sixth ribs; boring, in middle of r. side below ribs, > pressure; intermittent prickling, burning, in side, on one of the true ribs; pinching, in l. Pinching in l., between second and third ribs; in l., < inspiration; on sternum when running; on clavicle, like the pressure of a dull point.

Digging beneath upper part of sternum; cramplike, beneath sternum, as if chest would be pressed asunder. Feeling as if it would burst out at both sides when sneezing, then pain, < r. side. Pressing-out pain alternately in l. chest and in small of back, the latter seems as from much stooping, < expiration. Aching anteriorly under sternum; beneath upper part of sternum during morning cough, then, after difficult loosening of something, soreness and burning; sudden oppressive, in l. Sternum seems to press on lungs. Cramplike contraction in l. half. Tightness on inspiration.

Heart and Pulse.—Trembling of heart. Pulse small, contracted.

Neck and Back.—Boring sticking in r. cervical muscles, rhythmical with beat of pulse, > moving neck. Paralytic sensation in nape. Sticking in middle of spine, > motion. Tearing sticking in middle of spine; in upper part of spine, extending to r. scapula. Drawing tearing down spine. Spine feels as if broken when lying on back; in evening when lying on side. Sticking on outer margin of r. scapula. Aching in scapulae if he moves them. Bruised pain in small of back. Pain in loins as if he had stood long (Arn.). Pain in loins and spine as if weary, on bending backward or to one side. Pain in lumbar region after eating, as from a band just above hip. Paralytic drawing in loins.

Extremities.—Twitching. Convulsions. Cramplike tearing in muscles now of r., now of l. leg, now of r., now of l. forearm. > walking in open air. Paralytic pain in arms and legs. Sensitiveness on motion and touch.

Upper Extremities.—Sticking in front of l. shoulder; on top of l. Pinching on top of shoulder. Tensive tearing in arms, with paralytic pain, and on taking hold of them bruised pain. Paralytic pain in arm, so that it must hang down; P. drawing pain through r. arm, < hanging down or resting on anything, < on anything hard. Paralytic sensation in r. arm, like a stiffness of the joints, so that he cannot move it.

Upper Arm.—Drawing tearing in r., > pressure. Pinching in r., > motion; boring, in l. Paralytic drawing from upper part down to middle, < motion, and bruised pain on pressure. Bruised pain above elbow.

Elbow.—Tearing in r. when at rest. Intermittent paralytic pain externally in bend, like a jerking.

Forearm.—Paralytic jerking downward on lower surface, < at the point where it begins. Drawing tearing in r. Contractive tearing like a cramp in muscles of l. close to wrist, > motion. Drawing digging in l. Cramplike pain in muscles on bending; C. pain on violent stretching of arm in morning after rising, < from elbow downward, and in wrists on bending hands back and forth when arms are outstretched.

Wrist.—Pinching boring in r. Feeling as if dislocated. Drawing pain.

Hand.—Intermittent cramplike contraction. Jerking sticking, now l., now r. Sticking in l., extending to little finger; in upper end of metacarpal bone of ring finger, and on pressure bruised pain. Jerking tearing in hollow of l., < stretching out hand.

Fingers.—Cramplike jerking; sudden jerking inward of r. Spasmodic contraction inward of r. middle, with cramplike pain. Cramplike pain in muscles of outer side of l. little, < motion. Bruised pain in ball of thumb on pressure and on moving metacarpus of thumb towards hollow of hand. Drawings; paralytic, in ring. Burning pain in proximal joint of middle. Crawling in tip of thumb as if asleep; C. in last joint of thumb almost as after being asleep.

Lower Extremities.—Thigh. Tearing in l. hip and nates; drawing, in anterior side of r. thigh, > violent motion. Boring outward below gluteals when sitting, > pressure and motion. Pain in great trochanter when walking as if he had fallen upon it. Pain in nates when sitting, as if wearied by long sitting. Cramplike pain in anterior muscles of l. when standing. Paralytic pain in l. not far from knee.

Knee.—Intermittent sticking; single stitches in patella.

Leg.—Spasmodic stretching (in a child). Paralytic twitching in forepart, between tibia and fibula. Intermittent sticking as with a fork in l. tibia, just below knee. Tearing in middle of l. calf when sitting. Digging in l. tibia below knee. Cramplike pain in muscles, now of r., now of l., on walking in open air, > standing and sitting.

Foot.—Spasmodic motion of l., at last immobility, abduction far from body (in a child). Twitching-tearing in interior of l. Sticking in ball of r. Tearing sticking in l. heel when sitting.

Toes.—Cutting in l. as if loosened from the feet.

Skin.—Miliary rash. Red itching pimples. Boil surrounded by an induration, on cheek. Burning sticking here and there, > scratching. Prickling, itching crawling, > scratching. Itching tickling on border of r. hand near thumb and index. Itching here and there at night; I. on back of l. hand, > scratching; voluptuous, in front of anus.

Sleep.—Yawning. Sleepiness all day; in afternoon; overpowering, in evening; when sitting, he must lie down. Sleeps when erect with head leaned backward or to right. Tossing about in sleep, with lamentations and cries about colic. Sleepless. Waking with weeping complaints, groaning, hiccough and restless motions. Frequent waking from unpleasant or busy dreams. Dreams anxious; tiresome; absurd.

Fever.—Chill; daily at the same hour, then heat, without thirst (Ign.). Shivering over whole body; with hot cheeks, without thirst (Ign.); S. creeping over trunk, so that it trembled; over upper part of body, extending to head, as if the hair would stand up; creeping over thigh. Cold cheeks. Cold face, with warm hands. Cold hands in morning and creeping chills. Cool skin.

Heat; in evening and night; every afternoon, then increased sweat and deep sleep; daily at the same hour, with short breath; daily in afternoon, from 1 P.M. onward, then several attacks of chill with thirst, coldness in hands and feet, then heat of the pale face, < heat of hands and feet, with cutting colic; with vomiting and diarrhoea; (with redness of face, then sweat, without thirst). H. mostly in head during fever, with yellow color of face and blue rings around eyes. Rising H. and redness of cheeks after sleep, without thirst (Ign., Cham.); H. over face, with redness of cheeks and thirst for cold drinks. H. creeping over knees, with sensation as if a glowing coal were near the knee. Internal H., with heat and redness of face.

Sweat; cold on forehead, nose and hands. Dry skin.

Cinnabaris.

The pure Mercuric sulphide (Cinnabar) is triturated for use.

General Action and Allies.—See Mercurius.

Generalities.—Nervous thrill through the whole frame, < in joints. Excitement of nervous system. Sensation as before typhoid fever. Sensation of having taken cold. Discomfort after eating as if the body were distended, oppression across chest and abdomen. Restlessness. Weakness; in morning; in morning after restless sleep and many dreams; on going to bed, with confusion of mind; on any extraordinary mental or physical exertion, so that he must lie down, with palpitation, which was < lying on l. side or with head low, pain in head from front to back and down spinal cord to below scapulæ, if the exertion was continued there followed nausea, vomiting, diarrhoea and pain in r. hypochondrium. Heaviness, with sleepiness during the day. Aggravation in forenoon; evening; of pains and fever in evening and cold; at night in bed, of all symptoms except sweat. Amelioration in afternoon and evening; in open air and after dinner; after eating and sleep; of pains generally by continuous rest, warm bathing, galvanism and heat.

Mind.—Illusion, he considers himself well. Sense of elevation on walking in open air. Exhilaration, with fullness extending from all sides of chest towards stomach and heart, with or followed by similar sensations in all joints. Cross and sullen in afternoon. Dissatisfied with himself; and every one else. Irritable; about noon, and nervous. Troubled by every noise. Nervous, uneasy, desirous of improving spiritually, but disconsolate. Melancholy, cynical. Indisposed to mental labor. Difficult to fix the attention, > in open air.

Head.—Occasional darting inwardly through; from out in front and front to back. Aching; < sleep, in eyes; > external pressure; deep in centre; stupefying, < thinking, reading and pressure. Fulness; in forenoon; > open air, with pressure as after taking cold, and pain in region of benevolence; with heaviness and with strong pulsations in temporal arteries. Heaviness; and dulness, can scarcely lift it from the pillow. Dulness in evening, < in forehead just over eyes. Weariness as from long mental application. Congested sensation, < in forehead. Sensation as of rush of blood; < morning, with vertigo and weakness. Vertigo, with lightness of head; V., with weakness in head and staggering when walking; V. on rising at 7 A.M., > breakfast, with pain in forehead and soreness in eyeballs.

Forehead.—Shooting, with heaviness. Sharp pain < r. orbital region; in supraorbital region, shooting to ear and side of neck, < warm room and moving eyes and scalp. Aching; in sinciput; in organ of tune; region of causality; in morning after waking, < lying on l. side and back, > lying on r. side and pressing head into pillow, also > rising and washing, and in crown; in r. in afternoon, < evening; over eyes in afternoon, < evening and on motion; all night; with coldness of it, > warm hand; heavy; throbbing, on waking, > pressing head on pillow. Fulness and pressure.

Temples.—Shooting in upper part of l., along ridge, in evening; flashes of pain backward in r. (organ of mirthfulness). Pain in r. Fulness and weight across, < motion, with sometimes throbbing over r. temple. Beating burning. Throbbing.

Vertex.—Sore pain at 9 A.M., lasting all day, extending to organ of veneration, with sensitiveness to touch and sometimes throbbing. Drawing pain extending to occiput, inclining to r., before going to bed.

Parietals.—Sticking over secretive region, becoming a numb pain, extending to r. temple (time and locality), with warmth on r. side, pain extending from r. temple to l., across os frontis, mild in forehead, but violent in organs of time and locality, night and day and on rising in morning. Darting through sides and temples, near outer edge of r. orbit, more frequent on r. side, the pain going from temples to occiput. Pain in r. side; in l. side at 11.40 o'clock and in temple and supraorbital ridge. Throbbing pain in organ of conscientiousness in morning on waking, extending to forehead over eye.

Occiput.—Shooting from l. side to forehead. Pain; in l. (organ of amativeness). Fulness after rising, > at noon, with pressure, and in nape. Rush of blood, with itching and heat extending to ears, and behind l. ear three hard lumps.

Scalp.—Protrusion only during the day. Sore to touch. Skull sensitive to touch, even the hairs pain.

Eyes.—Surrounded by livid circles. Red, painful, feeling as of sand in them, conjunctiva of lower lid injected and covered with small granulations. (Inflammation of r., itching, pressure and sticking in inner canthus and in lower lid, lachrymation on looking at anything, with fluent coryza.) Sensation as if something were in them. Numb pressing pain. Aching soreness, < evening. Sensitiveness to cold open air. Sensation of a cold breeze in afternoon when sitting in the house. Weak about noon and sleepy; weak sensation in l. Watery sensation in l. Lachrymation; and dulness, with sticking in l. inner canthus as from a sharp stick in lower lid.

Lids.—Sticking about punctum lacrymale, next day a transparent vesicle, sore to touch, on inner edge of lid near where the pain had been. Shooting in r. inner canthus, with burning itching. Pain from r. lacrymal duct around eye to temple; from l. inner canthus across brows. Drawing from r. inner canthus across malar-bone to ear. Puffed feeling on looking up to the wall, as if muscles were too short. Itching; of inner canthus; outer canthus from 9 to 12 o'clock, with stiffness of upper lids; inner and outer canthi, with sticking.

Clinical.—Inflammatory affections of the eyes, blepharitis, kerato-iritis, ulcers of the cornea, etc., inflammations mostly superficial or characterized by severe pain in the bones of the orbit, especially by a pain running from the inner to the outer canthus, in the bone.

Ears.—Aching; in l. meatus, with fulness. Soreness from r. into middle of posterior cervical region, as if glands were affected, < evening. Sensation as of a foreign body; of water in l. Noises after eating. Roaring after dinner and in evening before sleep, causing vertigo. Rushing sound and deafness.

Nose.—Itching pimples at r. nostril and dark blood from nose after blowing. Sensation on bridge as if touched with a metal. Uneasy creeping and pressive sensation about ossa nasi, as from heavy spectacles (compare Kali bi.). Epistaxis. Coryza. Discharge of much mucus (Merc.); flow of mucus from r. nostril. Symptoms of a cold, with much mucus in dirty yellow lumps from posterior nares and lameness in thighs.

Clinical.—Nasal catarrh, subacute and chronic, with pain about the root of the nose, extending into the bones on each side.

Face.—Flushing of l. cheek. Pain in l. side and in teeth, sores on inside of lower lip; towards the l.

Mouth.—Aching soreness of teeth. Pain in r. molar. Tongue white; white fur; white fur in morning; sore spot on tip; sore on r. side of tip, and one on each lip; soreness on l. side of root on swallowing, with roughness and stiffness through the night; itching spot on l. side. Pricking in mouth and fauces. Mouth and throat dry, must rinse the mouth every time he wakes; with heat in them and sticking posteriorly under tongue. Peculiar drawing in M. after rising till breakfast. Contractive burning in palate. Sore; on roof; soreness of roof. Salivation. Great fetor. Taste metallic after tea; M. from 8 A.M. till 2 P.M., modified by continual tendency to hawk and spit, with salivation and much mucus; bitter M.; T. as of tobacco, coffee; T. bad, with mucus in mouth and ptialism.

Throat.—Sore. Contractive pain on swallowing saliva. Dry at 8 A.M., on waking.

Clinical.—Angina faucium, with accumulation of stringy mucus passing through posterior nares into throat (Nit. ac., etc.).

Stomach.—Appetite great; capricious; impaired in morning; lost; aversion to food. Thirst; on waking at 8 A.M. Empty eructation. Nausea; with uneasiness in stomach; with occasional throbbing in l. hypochondrium; with bitter and sour vomiting. The mucus thrown up tastes like old tallow mixed with coffee. Soreness, with tightness in temples. Tenderness of epigastric region. Emptiness two hours after a hearty breakfast. Heat rising into throat and head at night in bed, > sitting up. Sensation as if secretions were flowing from S. and from all mucous surfaces, as well as from salivary glands.

Abdomen.—Distention; with desire to have everything loose about it. Rumbling, with pain passing from epigastric to pubic region. Intermittent shooting. Gripping; > two soft stools. Pain; before stool. Soreness. Uneasy, indescribable feeling. Sensation in evening as before diarrhoea. Flashes of heat, with flatulence.

Hypochondrium.—Swelling of r., with heat in it. Pain; in r.; sharp P. in front of l., < moving and in open air, soon extending round lower border of ribs behind, and to l. kidney, where it is dull and oppressive, soon afterwards in front of r. H., extending round to back and r. kidney, where it is dull, then the dull pain is felt alternately in each kidney, the pain in hypochondria > bending forward. Burning pain in liver and soreness, with at times suppression of bile; B. pain in r. lobe of liver, with soreness and heaviness there. Throbbing; in region of spleen.

Rumbling below transverse colon. Hot feeling below transverse colon. Constriction in umbilical region at 11 A.M. Soreness in U. region, obliging him to turn. Pain in hypogastrium after eating boiled cabbage, with diarrhoea and flatulence.

Rectum, Anus and Stool.—Weight in lower part of rectum after dinner, with aching. Bleeding piles. Itching in anus, < night in bed. Two stools daily; two in afternoon, the last with straining. Diarrhoea at night. Constipation. Stools hard and too large; hard and copious, or sudden diarrhoea, consisting of white or dark passages.

Urinary Organs.—Soreness of urethra on urinating. Sensation of a raw spot in centre of urethra, waking at night. Urging to urinate. Urine increased; and frequent micturition, with sediment at first whitish, later reddish. Turbid urine.

Sexual Organs.—Red spots on penis; as if pimples would form; on each side of glans, secreting much lardaceous matter. Redness of prepuce, with swelling and itching pain. (Warts on prepuce, bleeding on touch.) Penis swollen. Jerking in penis. Tearing stitches in glans. Itching pain in fossa behind penis, and pus of a nauseous sweetish odor oozes. Itching of corona glandis, > by rubbing, then <, with much pus; burning sticking-itching in evening, > by rubbing, then returning more violent. Violent erection in evening; in bed. Excitement on least provocation. Loss of desire. Leucorrhœa, the discharge of which caused pressure in vagina.

Clinical.—Indurated buboes, condylomata on prepuce, which bleed easily. Enlarged testicle resulting from gonorrhœa; chronic gonorrhœa.

Respiratory Organs.—Edema of epiglottis. Irritation of larynx. Hoarseness; in morning; and loss of voice; (in evening, with crouplike cough). Cough; < night, expectoration at first clear, then opaque, afterwards gray, puslike, occasionally blood-streaked sputa, smelling very offensive in morning; (C. in single dry shocks on lying down, > sitting up). Suffocation on swallowing.

Chest.—Sticking beneath sternum. Pain beneath sternum; on l. chest; in middle of l. breast, in front; in upper part of lungs; in a spot on seventh rib of each side, < l.; occasionally in l. side between cartilages of fifth and sixth ribs; from seventh rib on r. side running near ensiform cartilage diagonally through to chest; from cartilage of seventh rib at its junction with the sternum, to r. hypochondrium under inferior border of tenth rib, from 4 to 5 P.M.; under lower end of sternum, extending to l. side under short ribs; extending from region of short ribs to r. kidney and l. hypochondrium; in upper part of r. lung and in cardiac region, extending into l. arm, which often feels numb; wandering pain in forenoon.

Soreness under r. breast, near last true rib, < drawing breath; in a spot on r., on one rib, when touched, with occasionally sore pain in and around it; internally over heart, extending along l. arm on taking a long breath. Pulselike throbbing here and there beneath short ribs, < walking, > sitting and lying, with sticking. Warmth under sternum.

Heart and Pulse.—Cutting at H., impeding breathing. Pain at H., < lying on l. side. Palpitation during frightful dreams. Pulse rapid; in evening; and intermittent, strong, then tremulously weak; slow, then rapid; lowered in forenoon and irregular.

Neck.—Muscles of nape seem contracted. Pain on r. side below sterno-cleido-mastoid muscle on turning head; in nape when head is thrown back, extending to occiput; in vertebræ as if dislocated.

Back.—Tearing in side, < night on motion in bed, > warmth of stove, with sensation as if everything would separate. Pain down to loins, < drawing a long breath; P. in lower dorsal spine. Sticking in region of l. side of fifth and sixth dorsal vertebræ in evening, next day the same pain occasionally on r. side of same vertebræ.

Lumbar Region.—Sticking in region of l. kidney, waking at 4 A.M., then tossing about and sleeplessness. Sharp pain in region of kidneys as if a nail had been driven in on each side of vertebræ. Pain, and in legs; P. in morning, and in limbs; in kidneys; l. kidney. Aching and drawing pain from kidneys to sacrum and in thighs and legs, > drawing up legs. Bruised pain. Beating over eyes. Pressing asunder deep in l. side on coughing or on pressing at stool. Sensation as if a band were stretched from one temple to the other. Fulness; although sitting near an open window, < towards 9 P.M., with pain; with swimming of letters on reading and heaviness of eyes.

Temples.—Shooting in r.; in a straight line to vertex, sharp on rising and all day on looking up, leaving a sore feeling, pain through this place on coughing. Pain in r. as if a nail were driven into it. Pain over l.; in l.; headache in afternoon when walking in rain, now in r. temple, now in forehead, > standing still; (at 12.50 P.M. on quick walking in hot sun, > standing still, after entering the house pain in crown, then on shaking head from side to side, pain in r. temple, then when lying down in anterior part of crown and other parts); sudden in l., the same at 10.45 A.M. and 9.30 P.M.

Sides.—Constriction. Sudden pain over anterior part of r. at 9.50 P.M. on blowing nose.

Occiput.—Pain; (at 6.10 P.M. at every step on running, from hot weather, then when walking); headache in fresh air changed to occiput, as if it were held from ear to ear in a vise; in lowest part on yawning. Drawings extending to temples, on attempting to read after midday nap. Vertigo at 7.30 P.M. when head was bent forward in writing, extending forward on l. side.

Clinical.—Peculiar shocks, which come from the occiput, with vertigo, so that he staggers about the street. Nervous sick headaches.

Eyes.—Brilliant. Dull; and hollow, surrounded by violet-brown rings. Staring, fixed upon the ground, with automatic motions of hands and groaning. Discharge of mucus. Pain. Lachrymation of r. in morning, with redness of conjunctiva and lids at inner canthus. Pupils dilated. Widens pupils and lessens sensitiveness to light. Lids heavy; upper lids disposed to fall without sleepiness. Vision disturbed. Photophobia; with dilated pupils. Blackness on ascending stairs. Flickering. Letters swim. Flickering black points at 4 P.M. when reading. White spots on reading so that the book seemed mottled white; white spots on going out after eating, with glittering, tortuous lines and with great weakness. Vision of colors and floating of sparks from before downward. Fiery points flit before eyes; downward. Flames similar to distant heat-lightning; in evening. It seems as if he were writing with two pens.

Ears.—Excess of wax in r. Aching in r. middle at 1 P.M. in-doors; at 7.20 P.M.; in church; and in r. mastoid process. Sensation as if something in them caused deafness, but everything is heard as usual. During loud reading in the room sensation as if the tympana were pressed outward by the tones or as if the tones first entered the ears through a thicker medium. Pulsation in forenoon, and dull roaring; audible P. Hearing painfully acute in evening. Singing in l. Cracking on empty swallowing. Ringing; distant, repeated in evening; of a middle-toned bell; does not hear a knocking at the door, and when one speaks it seems as if the voice came from a great distance. Roaring.

Clinical.—Chronic deafness, with noises in the head.

Nose.—Sensation at midnight on going to bed as if swollen and stuffed, as in incipient catarrh. Heat internally in nostrils in evening in-doors, as from catching cold. Heat and irritation, as from catarrh in r. nostril in morning in bed; before and after rising, < l. nostril. Irritation, as from taking cold in evening, awakened at 9 P.M. by running from nose. Sneezing; after rising and in evening; in-doors. Mucus increased; in morning; in-doors in morning, with heat in nose. Flow of clear water and occasional sneezing, without red coryza; F. of clear water from 6 A.M. till 5 P.M., when in a draught, with occasional sneezing and sore feeling in l. nostril; of clear water, with specks of blood on blowing nose.

Face.—Pallor. Burning redness of l. cheek, then of r., with white spots in centre of latter. Yellow tinge about corners of mouth. A kind of chlorosis, the bilious color first noticed gives way to a leaden hue. Animated expression. Pain in r. malar-bone. Soreness of l. lower jaw, just above submaxillary gland, < talking and chewing solid food on that side. Black spots in corners of mouth. Lips pale; and gums, with green, blunted teeth. Swelling inside r. lower lip, then one inside l. cheek, nearly opposite first upper molar, painful on eating, then flattened on two sides with a thin border, red, with whitish tip. Burning on l. upper lip where the moustache grows, at 10.45 A.M.

Mouth.—Teeth stained bright yellow; greenish and stumpy. Pain in a hollow tooth. Tongue coated. Appearance towards r. side of tip of tongue of a vesicle that had broken, with a red circle around it, the place feels sore, as scalded by tea, when eating, touching it, and at other times, then sore as from a sore place. Offensive blackish froth around corners of mouth. Swollen sensation in arches of palate, impeding swallowing, at times with tickling, causing cough. Dryness; on waking; and of lips, > breakfast. Burning; night and morning, and of palate; and in throat, with thirst; with fulness, and in stomach. Coolness in mucous membrane of M. and throat, verging on numbness. Salivation; bitterish, then aromatic. Disgusting breath.

Taste bad; in morning, and not the usual appetite; > drinking cold water. Slimy. Bitter in morning; on waking, then unusual flow of water from nose. Salt at tip of tongue. Salt, anteriorly on r. side of tongue in morning; at 9 P.M.; — supper; > gingerbread. Herring-like to butter. Burnt to water.

Throat.—Hacking up transparent lumps of mucus, morning. Uvula long and red. Uvula swollen and swallowing difficult; in morning on waking. Pain. Scraping, with swollen uvula, causing hawking and expectoration of mucus. Soreness from cough; at back on rising; in morning at back, with obstruction, not > hawking and coughing, with hoarseness; on r. side of uvula on swallowing, with a swollen sensation. Swollen sensation in morning on swallowing. Feeling as if mucus were at back of pharynx, not < by coughing or hawking. Irritation to cough. Tickling at l. side of pharynx at 8.45 A.M., on talking; in pharynx on talking, or soreness; at back of pharynx, towards l. side, on talking; at back on rising. Dryness; and heat.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; sudden voracious, especially for animal food; great, dinner was eaten at 11 A.M. with appetite, but less was eaten than on the preceding day when he had no special hunger; longing for food though the epigastric region was distended. Morbid hunger, even to swallowing human excrements. Irregular appetite, the aversion to all food is often suddenly followed by insatiable craving, especially animal food. Little need of nourishment, even during heavy work, with remarkable vigor. Great satiety for a long time. Little appetite, especially for meat. No appetite; with weak digestion, nervous irritation and headache; for dinner, in spite of which much is eaten with relish. Aversion to food. Thirst; at 8 P.M.; for brandy.

Eructions; after his usual coffee; after dinner; with heaviness in stomach and constant desire to eructate; empty, every quarter of an hour; loud; slimy; of the dinner. Hiccough after sandwiches at noon; after a tepid shower-bath taken after supper, > lying down in bed. Nausea; after breakfast; sick feeling before supper, > by it; with disorders of stomach which may be compared to seasickness. Violent vomiting of slimy water at 6 P.M.

Distention returning after dinner and lasting till evening, with gulping and constant desire to eructate. Pricking about cardiac end at 7 P.M. when sitting in-doors. Gnawing, hungry sensation at pit. Pain about cardiac end on walking, would have amounted to a cutting, > standing at 4 P.M., returning during a walk. Painful contracted sensation, with pain in l. side like a splenic stitch. Dyspepsia. Increase of digestive powers. Emptiness; in morning before rising; 8.30 A.M., renewed by breakfast; after rising, > before breakfast; after rising, > breakfast, for which he had not much appetite; after breakfast; after a long walk. Fulness; and heaviness; in epigastric and mesogastric regions. Uneasiness of digestive organs. Comfort in epigastrium, somewhat as from a glass of wine, radiating over whole body, an agreeable heat.

Abdomen.—Distention; in evening: tense, tympanitic. Rumbling; with emission of flatus. Gurgling, with emptiness. Constant urging of flatus without emission. Emission of flatus, with urging to stool; E. of flatus, with the smell of burnt gunpowder at > A.M. Pain renewed after a cup of chocolate; P. < coffee. > 5 P.M., after cold beer; > emission of flatus, with rumbling. Emptiness. Pain in region of liver, with gallstones. Cutting-drawing digging in small intestines in morning, < 9 A.M., lasting till 11 o'clock. > rapid walking and eating something, but returning, excessive in jejunum and ilium, > pressure in gastric region. Gurgling in ilium, extending to ascending and descending colon.

Clinical.—Violent palpitation caused by incarcerated flatus, which rises with violence and great noise, as if it would split the oesophagus (Thea.).

Rectum.—Urging to stool; all day, with sulphuretted hydrogen flatus; waking at night, stool copious, solid; then diarrhoea; then evacuation of scanty, clear, watery mucus, with small brownish flocks swimming in it; then hard scanty stool, with sensation as if sphincter were paralyzed; ineffectual, waking at midnight. No desire for stool at usual time in morning, no stool all day, but awakened at 11 P.M. by urging, then abundant firm stool.

Stool.—Thin; then continued urging; and copious, having more smell; with urging, more smell than usual and soreness in anus during its passage; and difficult, smelling more, with sensation of looseness in bowels as before diarrhoea and with griping; copious diarrhoea, with frequent copious micturition, urinating three times at night. A teaspoonful of mushy diarrhoea. Constipation. Hard, delayed, knotty. Last part like walnuts. Irregular, dryer than usual, partly in lumps and inodorous. Dark. Gradually lost their stercoral odor but had the odor of Coca. With urging. Scanty; and dark and in small pieces; and dark, and after dinner another scanty one; and difficult, at first in small pieces, with straining in r. spermatic cord or testis. Frequent. Delayed; and difficult, though soft enough and well formed, rectum seemed dry during evacuation.

Clinical.—Chronic atonic constipation, with dyspnoea, palpitation, eructations of gas, which are offensive.

Urinary Organs.—Sticking in female urethra before urinating. Frequent desire, with increased urine. Micturition at night, < after midnight, towards morning or early in morning. Urine scanty; and dark brown. Urine dark. Thin. Acid, smelling like sweat. Film on its surface, iridescent in certain lights, with fissures mapping it out, and a pale flocculent sediment floating at the bottom. Turbid when passed, with dusky red, adherent sediment, and after standing an oily-looking film on surface. Yellowish-red, adherent sediment and flocculent precipitate. Urine passed at night soon formed a cloud, which by morning gathered into bits like crumbs of bread, swimming at the bottom of the vessel. Urine passed at night has a pale orange, flocculent sediment, chiefly collected in one spot. Increase of phosphoric acid. Abundance of octahedral crystals of oxalate of lime, of all sizes. Decrease of urea, of chloride of sodium, of sulphuric acid and of free acid.

Sexual Organs.—Weakness beginning as an indefinite sick feeling. Emission at night, with voluptuous dreams, sleep restless and broken. Menses delayed, profuse at night, in gushes, waking from sound sleep, with pain in lower abdomen.

Respiratory Organs.—Irritation in larynx in afternoon when sitting quietly in the room, exciting cough. Tickling in larynx when smoking, causing short dry cough. Tickling in larynx and trachea at 2 P.M. and irritation to cough. Hoarse; in morning; in evening; with tickling in upper part of trachea and cough.

Cough in morning; C. in-doors; from tickling at back of throat; tickling, causing tingling; paroxysmal, at 4 P.M. when walking in hot sun; paroxysmal, in evening, in cool wind, then frequent cough, usually preceded by tickling at back of pharynx, sometimes followed by soreness there and loosening of mucus, with fluent coryza in r. nostril; dry, in evening in bed, as from catarrh of air-passages; in morning, with expectoration of tenacious thick, whitish-yellow mucus, as in chronic catarrh, with dryness of mouth and throat and thirst; at 11 P.M., with expectoration, which was swallowed; at 8.20 P.M., loosening mucus from back of pharynx, which was swallowed; coughing up green mucus.

Groaning (in a child) in evening when writing, with irregular and difficult breathing. Dyspnoea, a pressure on whole chest and constant desire to take a deep breath. Difficult breathing continuing even in bed, with palpitation and not unpleasant weariness. Short breath on ascending a height, with oppression. No want of breath on climbing a hill.

Clinical.—Nervous dyspnoea, with weak heart. Asthma, with nervous exhaustion, restlessness and sleeplessness. Weakness of vocal cords, with hoarse voice, < after talking.

Chest.—Stitches near sternum, about r. fourth rib; S. under l. clavicle at noon; under r. clavicle at 4 P.M.; in l. lung, between third and sixth ribs, < deep inspiration. Pain below clavicles; beneath first and second false ribs of l. side when walking. Compression in region of short ribs. Oppression. Fulness in afternoon, and of stomach and abdomen. Soreness of upper lobes of lungs. Heaviness in forenoon when walking, with dyspnoea, sometimes painful pressure on chest; H. in evening when walking slowly, with short breath; continuing when sitting still after walking, with constant need to take a deep breath and sensation as if lungs were too much distended; on walking or ascending steps, obliging him to take a deep breath frequently. Heat in r. about middle of sternum in-doors at 1 P.M. and afterwards.

Heart and Pulse.—Palpitation. Heart's beats nearly quadrupled. Pulse rapid; and strong; till night, and weak; with peculiar noise in ears. Pulse slow; and small, with increased tension.

Neck and Back.—Pain at upper part of nape on bending neck down forward. Sprained pain in muscles of l. side of nape at 10 P.M. on bending head backward or forward. Sudden sharp pain in r. lumbar region in morning, during forcible expiration when standing.

Extremities.—Pain, > outbreak of boils. Warm indistinct pain in l. shoulder-joint at 12.30 P.M. Pain about insertion of deltoid in morning on moving r. arm by that muscle; in arm about insertion of r. deltoid at 4 P.M. on raising or lowering arm after having raised it; occasionally in l. deltoid. Sprained pain in l. deltoid at 10 P.M. on raising or lowering arm and during the night when lying on r. side; suddenly in lower part of r. deltoid in morning on lowering arms, often on holding arms clasped above head and afterwards on raising or lowering arm by that muscle; suddenly in r. deltoid at 9 A.M. on using it.

Pain in bones of l. forearm as if broken, < raising or stretching out the arm, so that he could scarcely use it or take hold of anything with l. hand. Pain in muscles of forearm and along border of radius as from a blow, on moving it and on pressing on it. Lame pain on borders of hand.

Fingers.—Painful lameness of r. fourth and fifth, < stretching fingers or grasping anything, without external pain, next day this lameness was more in abductor of little finger and consisted of pressure with pain deep in flesh, as after a blow or great exertion. Deafness of r. little, in morning and on waking from siesta; of l. little, on waking, with enlarged sensation.

Lower Extremities.—Staggering; to l. Sudden pain in r. buttock at 5 p.m. on walking in open air, preventing movement. Sticking on r. hip, with weakness in walking; S. on r. hip, running towards bowels; occasionally in muscles at back of l. inner side, above knee, at 5 p.m. Pain in l. thigh from hip-joint to knee. Bruised pain in region of r. hip-joint when walking. Aching anteriorly in r. knee, shutting down tibia to foot, after getting warm in bed, lasting till sleep.

Cramp in r. calf in night, with pain on pressure and on walking during the day, afterwards at 4 p.m. or while lying on back with leg extended, suddenly in l., afterwards in evening when sitting with knees bent, next morning when stepping with l. foot on descending stairs. Occasional pain in l. calf as after cramp, on walking, descending stairs or using muscles of calf. Weak, trembling sensation in legs.

Sudden painless feeling in r. ankle as if it had given way or become loose, at 1.45 p.m., on lifting r. leg when running gently. Sudden weakness of l. ankle as if it had given way, at 4 p.m. on running gently in open air. Pain in l. instep on walking as if dislocated. Strained sensation in l. instep in morning on rising in warm weather, and later on walking or sitting. Feet heavy. Feet fatigued.

Skin.—Yellow; and tense. Leaden. Hæmorrhage from people with thin skin and fair complexion. Echyloses on contiguous sides of first phalanges of r. ring and little fingers, on r. palm and on ulnar side of palmar aspect of first phalanx of l. little finger, near the base, and on radial side of first phalanx of r. little finger, some of them > washing. Lump tender on pressure and sometimes when walking, in loose skin between l. thigh and scrotum posteriorly. Pimples in hollows of knees; red, on inner surface of thighs, itching at night. Circumscribed erythema. Exanthema resembling herpes, around eyelids. Swelling on r. cheek, close to ala nasi, hard, resembling one he had on perineum, movable in the integuments, afterwards on pressure discharge of pus and blood from a hole just below it. Nettle-rash on several parts or limited to lips, causing scabs, bleeding and insupportable pains.

Soreness in l. groin and region of abdominal ring (where he had a glandular suppuration several years ago, from cold and fever), at 8 or 9 p.m., when writing, with smarting and tenderness to touch. Tingling in hands in evening and morning during expiration after deep inspiration, when very warm, > when cooler, < in l. palm, once in palm and back of r. hand and once down r. palm towards fingers. Itching at junction of r. thigh muscles with gluteus maximus at 2.20 p.m., renewed after scratching; on front of throat at 8 and 10 p.m., not > scratching, with feeling as if rash were coming out; fearful, on scratched spots.

Sleep.—Yawning; all the forenoon without weariness; after supper; when sitting, with sleepiness. Sleepiness; at 4 p.m.; at 5.30 p.m., > coffee; after dinner; early in evening but wide awake in bed, with heat and throbbing of temporal arteries till midnight; when sitting reading or studying; then wakefulness till 4 a.m.; but can do with only four hours sleep in the twenty-four without overfatigue. Slept later than usual in morning. Slept after dinner; at 1 p.m., and sleepy till 4 p.m. Long in recovering herself when awakened in the night, and staring with widely-dilated pupils.

Sleeplessness; in evening; till 2 a.m., with pressive pain in eyes when working, then quiet sleep; till 2 a.m., with shivering, vertigo, fever, rush of ideas and anxiety, then sweat and quiet sleep; with flow of ideas; passed the night in reading and writing and felt no fatigue nor hunger in the morning. Sudden jerking in the usual afternoon nap, and waking. Sleep disturbed; with frequent waking, unpleasant dreams and constant sweat. Restless sleep, with dreams of being hurried; R., with frequent waking. Waking on back; after many dreams; in the midst of a dream; or inclined to l. side. Rose more than an hour before the usual time, then read, then slept in the chair.

Dreams, many; heavy, with sweat; active, troubled; incoherent, unremembered. That something was adherent to fauces at posterior nares, which he was trying to detach, woke at 8 a.m. in the effort, and there was mucus to detach, then smarting soreness; at 3 a.m. that he was trying to remove mucus from pharynx by hawking, on waking found himself trying to do so, but could not succeed by coughing or hawking, with hoarseness. Vivid, partly suggested by what he had lately read; V., of fighting, suggested by reading the "Fire Worshipers" a few days ago; V., that the medicine had loosened the teeth and a piece of the jaw; V., that he held a large beetle by the upper part of the body in the agony of death, firmly grasped between index and thumb, and wondered at the power it exercised to get loose and bite him. That he saw a recently-deceased friend hanging dead by his legs for hours. Of fighting with six or seven black generals who garrotted him, binding him with ropes, causing great agony of mind.

Clinical.—Insomnia, inclined to sleep, but cannot.

Fever.—Chilliness; at 10 p.m. when sitting with a window behind my back open, then shivering, the S. continuing in open air, > quick motion in open air; at night; with headache on r. side and in occiput and less on r. side of forehead, and vertigo; in head: of limbs. Fever, with heat of skin; fever in afternoon, > wine, with prostration; heat up back in flashes and burning across abdomen in flashes. Sweat; in evening; unpleasant. Secretion of skin diminished.

Cocaine.

An alkaloid ($C_{17}H_{21}NO_4$) obtained from the leaves of Erythroxylon Coca, Lam. Solutions in Alcohol may be diluted for internal administration.

Allics.—Theine.

Generalities.—The body has a pendulum-like motion laterally, with closed eyes and toes together. Body inclined to one side, at angle of forty-five degrees, resting on his elbow, head on his breast, lids tightly closed, mouth half open, pupils not larger than a pin's head, breathing slow, pulse feeble, fluttering, not to be counted, face congested and whitish-gray, lips and hands blue, body bathed in cold sweat, could not be aroused by shaking and pinching. Movements diminished from want of co-ordination.

Pleasant tremors shooting through body. Twitching of various muscles; T. of face (after having a tooth pulled), then faintness, everything turned black, the voice of the dentist sounded as if in the distance, lips and face so numb that she tried some time before she could speak, icy coldness, general numbness, with weight on chest, gasping, sensation as if every breath would be the last, inability to swallow, then feeling as if sailing around the room a little way from the floor (gum did not bleed until then), feet and limbs cold and numb as far as knees and feeling as if asleep, gait like a drunken man's, feet remained cold all day, with headache, remained weak several days. Convulsive movements. Convulsions, with difficult breathing, unconsciousness and livid face; then rising in frenzy and striking about violently, the gasping suggestive of obstruction about larynx, after the paroxysm of pain in l. arm; tetanic C.

Muscular power enhanced. Tottering gait, difficult speech, confusion of mind and restlessness. Nervousness. Malaise. Sinking sensation. Weakness. Faint, asked repeatedly for drinks and was covered with cold sweat. Hyperæsthesia. Anæsthesia (local); and anæmia, afterwards swelling and hyperæsthesia. Amelioration from the vomiting of clear mucus.

Mind.—Talkative, repeats the same idea over and over, because words fail to express the delightful sensation, afterwards is sober, but feels foolish. Every breath seems stimulating. Constant desire to undertake vast feats of strength, feels like haranguing, gesticulations and strides around the room are irresistible, feels as if nothing he could see or hear would depress him. Feeling "very good, similar to that after a big drink of whisky," on walking about the room feels light, face flushed, after walking the feeling of exhilaration passes off, after half a grain more he feels "glorious all over the body, with stimulating waves running through the limbs," says he is intoxicated. Cerebral activity, mounting at intervals into the region of delirium, the latter tendency subservient to a powerful effort of the will, the reflective faculties seemed stimulated. Apathy. Semi-comatose condition, from which she could be aroused easily, but answered questions with difficulty.

Head.—Aching; throbbing. Hemicrania. Throbbing and bursting sensation. Heaviness; and fullness. Agreeable lightness, ideas flowed with facility and fantastic images followed each rapidly, then drowsiness, in resisting which there were oppression of head and confusion of thought. Vertigo on waking; V., with dark vision, sinking sensation and weakness, then semi-comatose condition, from which she was easily aroused, and when so aroused her mind was clear, heat, skin hot and dry, radial pulse rapid and scarcely perceptible, pupils dilated, deglutition difficult, dyspnoea, dryness of fauces, bitter taste, cold shivers though the temperature was above the normal, chattering of teeth, then drowsiness, eyes closed, muscles of face affected, weakness, inability to support the head, and nausea.

Eyes.—Sunken. Panophthalmitis from local use during operation, the superior part of the conjunctiva being as much swollen as the inferior. Burning from local application, cornea and conjunctiva soon became anæsthetic, feeling of tension in lids, eye seemed protruded, as in Graves' disease, conjunctiva pale, these symptoms lasted about ten minutes and gradually disappeared, in ten to fifteen minutes pupil began to dilate and there was slight paresis of accommodation, mydriasis lasted some hours after anaesthesia disappeared.

Pupils dilated; < r.; at intervals; contracted. If the drug reaches the upper lid Græfe's symptom is often marked, the lid halting on looking down. Pallor of inner surface of lid on which the Cocaine had been dropped. Peculiar stiffness of lids (from application to ball) and diminished sensibility of eye increasing to insensibility, pupil widely dilated, Jæger No. 1 could not be read inside of five and a half inches with this eye, while with the other No. 1 print could be easily read at four inches, and on looking steadily with both eyes at an object a few feet off there was an indistinct second image to the left but in close contact, and the dot-and-line test with vertical displacement by prisms proved negative, and the ball looked rather paler. The range of accommodation is shortened by the moving of the near point from the eye, the far point not being influenced (from application to eye). Astigmatism, the letters appearing to slant from l. to r. (the l. eye being "cocainized,"), in one case the slanting was more perceptible in near vision, in the other case in distant vision. Amaurosis.

Ears and Face.—Ringing in ears. Deafness. Pallor. Cyanosis; and puffiness of face. Flushes in face; coming and going; and clammy skin. Facial muscles affected.

Mouth and Throat.—Tongue dry and anæmic; T. numb. Speech incoherent. Dryness; dry, leathery feeling in mouth. Burning pain in palate. Taste bitter; lost. Fauces dry. Warmth in pharynx. Deglutition and articulation difficult.

Stomach.—Loss of appetite. Nausea. Retching. Vomiting. Cramps; on eating. Gripings. Pressure in epigastrium. Warmth. Vacant feeling.

Stool and Ufinary Organs.—Constipation. Secretion of urine ceased, also sexual function. Burning on micturition (from injection into urethra).

Respiratory Organs.—Dyspnoea. Respiration rapid. Breathing very easy; and principally thoracic, very superficial; with frequent inclination to sigh. Disposed to sigh and unable to draw a deep breath.

Heart and Pulse.—Suffocative feeling in cardiac region. Heart's action retarded; slightly increased; the beat was felt and blood rushed to head, then dullness and roaring in head and noises in ears, confusion of thought, impairment of volition, general uneasiness, twitching in fingers and toes, with numbness, nausea and pressure in epigastrium, after the acme of the paroxysm face pale and covered with cold sweat. Pulse rapid; and stronger, while the breath was slower, but deeper and fuller; and weak. Pulse intermittent every fifth beat. Pulse feeble.

Extremities.—Fleshy parts of arms and legs insensible to pinching, etc. Heaviness. Tingling in hands, with numbness; T. in fingers, < r., with numbness. Hands and lips blue. Tremors of fingers when outstretched. Prickings in finger-tips. Cramps in legs and feet, < dorsal aspect of r. foot. Legs weak. Lost the use of legs. Queer feeling, extending from toes over whole body.

Sleep.—Sleepiness; giving way to a feeling of great energy. Wakeful feeling, with weakness of legs in walking. Sleep for thirteen hours.

Fever.—Coldness. Hands cold and clammy. Subjective heat. Rise of temperature; with cold shivers and chattering of teeth. Skin hot and dry. Sweat; then prostration, shivering, feeling of impending death; cold; on face or neck; clammy, on forehead.

Coccinella.

A tincture is prepared by digesting the live insects, Coccinella Septempunctata (L.), (the common "lady-bug"), in Alcohol.

Tensive pressure in head. Vertigo. Tearing sticking in one side of forepart of head. Aching in temples and occiput as if brain would become enlarged or distended. Redness of cheeks, < r., with heat. Rushes of blood to face like flushes of heat. Tearing rhythmical with pulse, extending from r. upper jaw to lobule of ear. Jerking and tearing in one and tearing in the other teeth, with stitches extending towards occiput and warmth through the whole head. Pulselike jerking in molars. Throbbing pain in upper molars. Knitting pain in molars. Pain in molars as if hollow and as if air were forced into them. Drawing in upper molars, extending towards r. ear, when sitting; rhythmical D. in teeth when eating. Paroxysmal drawing or tearing, as if a tooth would be torn out; in teeth, with hacking in them. Cold sensation in all teeth; pleasant, in one tooth on touch of finger. Gum swollen. Tobacco bites the tongue severely. Coldness in mouth.

Clinical.—Neuralgic headaches, beginning in forehead over r. eye, which is very sensitive to touch (red); neuralgia of teeth, etc. Effects of cold in the region of the kidneys, pain in loins. Hiccough and burning in stomach, but particularly pain in region of kidneys (compare with Doryphora and Canth.).

Cocculus.

A tincture is made from the dried fruit of Anamirta Cocculus, W. and A.

General Action.—It produces violent convulsions and loss of control over muscles; excessive vertigo and nausea. Paralysis of muscles.

Allies.—Rhus tox., Zinc, Nux v., Plumb., Phos., Arg. nit.

Generalities.—Starts easily. Inclination to tremble. Fell to the ground, trembled, vomited and became senseless. Convulsions; tetanic; clonic, in upper limbs, then general, with frothing at the mouth; tonic and clonic, with severe contortions and shocks of limbs and danger of suffocation, trismus, biting of the protruding tongue, bloody foam from mouth and nose at every expiration, tetanic stiffness of whole body alternating with convulsive shocks, with cold sweat, dilated pupils, fixed look, unconsciousness, convulsive shocks when the skin was pinched.

Epileptic attack, intoxicated feeling on sitting down, then staring without answering questions, then fell unconscious, bent himself together with unintelligible cries, passed urine involuntarily, general convulsions, the outstretched hands clenched, with paroxysmal choking in throat, mouth half open as if he would vomit, bubbling foam at the mouth, hands cold, face covered with cold sweat and spasmodically distorted, eyes glassy, protruding, then he stood up, but did not answer questions, showed his teeth and bellowed at those who spoke, endeavored to strike the bystanders, face expressed rage, then groaning and grunting, after recovery aversion to all nourishment. Twitching of various parts of muscles (Zinc.), < lower limbs, as after a long walk. Hemorrhages. (Compare convulsions with Cicuta and Nux v.)

Sticking in cold swollen glands, at least on touch, with heat; S. in parts previously inflamed, (if touched with fingers; burning S. here and there. (Tearing in hard swollen glands.) Drawing pain in limbs and abdominal muscles, as from taking cold. Paralytic drawing in side of neck and in other places, at times almost like an intermittent paralytic pressure. Alternation of diarrhoea, vomiting, sopor and delirium.

Indolence; with taciturnity, also in morning after waking. Inclination to lie down. Avoids the open air. Restless. Want of vital energy. Weakness; general, several days at 9 A.M., with heaviness of limbs, so that she must sleep; from slightest exertion, with exhausting sweat; from slightest loss of sleep; when walking; < sitting; attacks of paralytic, with pain in back (Rhus t.); so that it is difficult to stand firmly (Rhus t.). Painfulness; on motion, with distortions of facial muscles. Hemiplegia on l. side. Immobility. Aggravation from cold air (Rhus t.); from coffee (Nux v.); smoking tobacco (Nux v.); drinking, eating, sleeping and speaking aggravate head symptoms.

Clinical.—General tendency to paralysis, heaviness and sluggishness of the whole body, numbness; sometimes trembling and jerking of various groups of muscles; at times unconquerable drowsiness. Spasmodic affections; epilepsy characterized by cold extremities and numbness; chorea, the patient is exhausted; hysteria, especially menstrual, complaints of numbness and weakness of the extremities; particularly useful in complaints resulting from loss of sleep. General hyperesthesia of all senses, intolerance of the least excitement. Symptoms of emptiness and hollowiness in thoracic or abdominal cavities are frequently associated with the symptoms of weakness of paralysis. General bad effects of prolonged insomnia. Nervous exhaustion, with profound weakness of extremities, aching in thighs, falling asleep of limbs, weak, empty feeling in chest or abdomen.

Mind.—Mania, irresistible inclination to sing and tra-la. Weeping. Despair. Sad; as if he had suffered an insult. Sensitive; everything offends him (Nux v.). Offended at trifles, often to weeping, with contraction of pupils, after weeping loss of appetite. Angry; and peevish, after a few hours lively and jocose. Dissatisfied with himself. Earnest, then breaking into complaints; earnest, little concerned as to his own health, anxious about others' sickness. Thoughts directed to an unpleasant object, absorbed in herself. Dread of every surprise. Fear. Hypochondriac, < afternoon. Anxiety; sudden; as if she had committed a crime; in morning, about the incurability of a slight complaint; like a dream, preventing sleep. Discouraged. Intolerance of interruption or noise. No desire to do anything and pleasure in nothing. Time passes too rapidly. Memory lost (Anac.). Sits in deep thought. Stupidly dumb. Stupefied; when awake, as from sleep. Unconscious.

Clinical.—It is especially adapted to cases which present a mental condition of stupidity, slow of comprehension or cannot think of words with which to express themselves, the mind feels benumbed, especially with vertigo, nausea, etc. Mental derangements resulting from suppression of menses. Melancholy, is wrapped in profound sadness, with apprehension, desire to escape, etc.

Head.—Convulsive trembling (Cicuta v.). Aching, with nausea; A. < cold air; as if bound up; as if brain were bound together by a band; brain feels as if rolled up or compressed into a smaller bulk (Rhus t.). Pressure through whole, < forehead, in forenoon, < reading and reflecting, until there is loss of ideas; P. downward in whole, < forehead, < walking. Aching composed of constriction, burning, tearing, digging and boring. Much affected by thinking. Confusion, < eating and drinking; C. and stupefaction; C. in morning, with humming in it as after a debauch. Dulness; and confusion, < reading, so that he must read a passage several times in order to understand it; with cold sweat on forehead and hands and aversion to food. Heaviness; with confusion, as after intoxication; sensation as if something heavy were lying on it. (Painful shaking of brain when walking, moving head or speaking.) Vertigo; on rising up in bed (Bry., Phos.), with nausea, compelling him to lie down; as from intoxication, with dulness in forehead as if a board were across forehead; when sitting, as from intoxication.

Forehead.—Sticking above r. eye; intermittent boring S. in r. side. Headache as if the eyes would be torn out; aching as if something forcibly closed the eyes. Tearing throbbing pain from 7 to 9 P.M. Intermittent pain in l. eminence consisting of raging, throbbing, sticking, afterwards extending as a crawling to r. frontal eminence. Aching in sinciput. Compression in r. half; wavelike, in l. half.

Stitches in l. temple; crawling S. in temples. Cramplike pain in l. temporal muscle. Pain in temples as if head were screwed in. Inward-pressure in l. temple; in r., as if a dull instrument slowly pressed deep into brain. Pain in vertex. Stitches in r. side of brain. Shuddering in l. side of occiput as if hair would stand on end.

Clinical.—Vertigo as if intoxicated is an almost constant concomitant of Cocculus symptoms, generally associated with a feeling of stupefaction of head and numbness and unsteadiness of extremities. Sick headaches, pain, especially seated in occiput, extending down spine, extremely sensitive to external impressions, with constant nausea and vertigo (Petrol.). Sick headaches, especially brought on by reading in cars and carriages (Petrol., seasickness).

Eyes.—Turned upward. Surrounded by blue rings. (Swelling of one and of half of nose in morning after headache through the night.) Stitches from within outward. Bruised pain at night, with inability to open lids (Rhus t.). Pain, with inability to open lids at night; P. as from dust. Pupils contracted; to their smallest diameter, then as the spasm abated dilated to their fullest extent, and again contracted as the spasm returned, the spasm produced by touching lids. Lids dry. Pressure in outer margin of orbit. Dim vision. Dark spots and objects like flies float before the eyes. Vision of a black object that receded from her, turning with her, but she saw everything clearly.

Ears.—Sensation alternately in ears as if closed and deaf. (Heat in r. outer and middle, in morning in bed.) Sound of rushing water, with difficult hearing. Rushing as when listening at a tube. Cracking on forcible yawning. Hard hearing in r.

Nose.—Swelling of r. half. Pain in anterior angle of nostril, < touch; in l. nostril as from an ulcer. Sneezing. Inability to sneeze when walking in open air. Coryza. (Blows bloody mucus from nose.)

Face.—Earthy, and painful expression. Red checks in a cold room, with heat in face. Cyanosis. Expression rigid and irritable. Cramp in malar-bone, in masseter muscles. Cramplike pain in masseter muscles, < opening jaws. Pressive sensation in l. malar-bone, rather benumbing than painful. Tearing digging in lower jaw.

Clinical.—Paralysis of facial nerve, involving the lids of one eye and side of face (Caust., Rhus t.).

Mouth.—Incisors seemed raised up and heavy as if they would fall out. A decayed, loose tooth feels elongated and the gum about it is swollen. Pain in hollow tooth only on chewing, as if loose, no pain on biting teeth together when not eating. Biting in back teeth as after using much salt, causing a pleasant sensation on biting together. (Gum sensitive and sore.) Tongue coated white, and dry at edges. Tongue dry, with a yellowish coat, without thirst. Pain posteriorly in tongue as if beaten if he protrudes it far. Tongue rough in morning.

Filled with aphthæ, becoming gangrenous, so that the soft parts of mouth were destroyed and the teeth fell out. (Contraction when speaking, and she must speak slowly.) Sensation as if there were a smell from it. Burning in palate. Dryness in night, without thirst; D. sensation, with frothy saliva and thirst. Sensation as if water collected in it. Salivation. Metallic taste, with loss of appetite (Nux v.); M. at root of tongue. Bitter taste; at root of tongue; to tobacco when smoking. Coppery T. Salt T. anteriorly on r. side of tongue, > gingerbread. Sour T. after eating; S. on coughing. Slimy T. though food has a natural taste. Nauseous T. T. as if he had fasted long. Food tasteless and seems unsalted.

Throat.—Swollen glands beneath chin; beneath lower jaw, and hard, with nodes on forearm, which are painful on passing hand over them; S. of parotid gland. Violent beating of carotids. Sticking in outer parts. Choking contraction in upper part of pharynx, impeding breathing and causing cough. Sensation in pit as if something arrested the breathing, constriction of glottis. Scraping, > swallowing. Sensitiveness, food seems as sharp as if excessively salted and peppered. Pain in tonsils worse on swallowing saliva than on swallowing food; P. in upper part of pharynx, with sensation of swelling at root of tongue, which makes swallowing painful. Heat, and in stomach; afterwards extending over abdomen; H. in evening, extending into palate, with shivering about head. Dryness; in upper and back part, as if it and the tongue were rough; in fauces and œsophagus, < swallowing, with roughness, without thirst. Paralysis (Rhus t.).

Stomach.—Aversion to food (Nux v., Rhus t.), even the smell of food causes it (Colch.), but hunger; averse to eating and drinking; to sour things, bread tastes sour. Appetite lost, food has no taste; A. lost for breakfast, he feels full. Hunger in pit of stomach, little > eating. Thirst, < eating; T. for cold drinks, especially beer; unquenchable. Eructations; bitter (Nux v.); putrid (Nux v.), in forenoon; empty; empty, leaving bitter taste in mouth and throat; of musty air; tasting of food; sharp scraping, < evening; incomplete, ineffectual, instead of which there is hiccough. Hiccough (Nux v.); inclination to. Nausea; in morning so that she can scarcely rise (Nux v.); in afternoon after every drink, mostly in mouth; when riding in a wagon (compare Sepia); if he became cold or took cold, causing salvation; on eating; with headache and bruised sensation in abdomen; as from overloading stomach. Vomiting; during the accustomed smoking; frequent; frequent; of greenish fluid; (of food and mucus towards midnight, with bitter and sour taste in throat, and attacks of suffocation).

Gurgling beneath pit. Pricking beneath pit, with gnawing. Gripping. Pinching. Constrictive pain, preventing sleep. Squeezing in pit when walking, and tension. Pain in pit; beneath S., after eating; in S. after eating; several hours after a meal, or at night in bed, and in pit and hypochondria; on attempting to eructate; almost a stitching in pit on eructation; on touch; in pit, impeding breathing. Bruised pain in pit on eructation. Sensation as if a worm were moving in it. Sensation as if he had not eaten for a long time and the hunger had passed away. Burning, and in abdomen, < about navel.

Clinical.—Nausea and even vomiting are almost constant concomitants of a Cocculus condition. Nausea and vomiting from riding in the cars. Extreme aversion to food, with persistent, slightly qualmish, bitter taste, metallic taste, putrid taste. Nausea associated with vertigo, < taking anything into the stomach, with faintness, etc. Nausea and vomiting of pregnancy.

Abdomen.—Distention; by flatulence, waking about midnight, causing oppressive pain here and there, some flatus passed without remarkable relief, new flatus collected for hours, > lying on one side and the other; with heat and pain. Emission of hot flatus before diarrhoea. Flatus presses upward; moves here and there after supper, and is passed with difficulty. Stitches through to lower part of back, morning in bed; S. in several parts on stooping. Tearing. Cutting when walking after dinner, with chilly sensation and vertigo. Pinching. Drawing pain. Constrictive pain, with pressure towards female genitals, nausea in pit of stomach and inclination to waterbrash. Empty feeling, as if she had no intestines. Burning. (Compare flatulence with Nux v., Carbo v., Cham., Lyc. and Plumb.)

Gripping in upper (epigastrium), taking away the breath. Pinching constriction in upper, after eating, extending to l. side of abdomen and chest. Pain in upper; beneath last true ribs of r. side, < bending forward, coughing or inspiration. Bruised pain in hypochondria. Stitches in r. side; l. side; intermittent, in l. side near navel. Twinges in r. side above navel. Pinching in l. muscles. Drawing pain from r. to l. side. Nausea extending from r. side towards navel, without inclination to vomit.

Hypogastrium.—Rumbling. Stitches in r. inguinal region. Cutting, extending to upper, > standing. Painful inclination to inguinal hernia, > rising from a seat. R. ring dilated, a hernia inclines to protrude, and sore pain. Internal feeling in groins as if stuffed, < stepping forward, when it seems as if the thickness pushed forward and everything would fall out. Paralytic pain in r. ring as if something would force its way through (Nux v.), when sitting, > rising. Drawing pain in groins as before menstruation.

Clinical.—Flatulent colic only slightly > evacuating gas, attacks come at night, associated with feeling of emptiness, nausea, vertigo, etc. Gastralgia from suppression of menses. Excessive flatulent distention of abdomen and dysmenorrhœa. A valuable remedy in hernias, both umbilical and inguinal; is particularly indicated when the abdominal muscles are weak and it seems as if a hernia would easily take place. Flatulent colic in pregnancy, etc.

Rectum and Anus.—Urging to stool, with offensive diarrhoea; U. to stool and to pass flatus at the same time, then frequent, sudden diarrhoea, in small portions, with emission of flatus; U. after stool, causing faintness; desire for stool, but the stool is delayed by want of peristaltic motion in upper abdomen; ineffectual U., with constipation for three days, then hard, difficult stool (Plumb.). Crawling and itching in rectum, as from ascariæ. Contractive pain in anus (Plumb.) in afternoon, preventing sitting. Burning itching in anus.

Stool.—Thin. Fluid, frequent, whitish-yellow. Soft. (Slimy). Constipation. Hard, difficult, only every other day. Putrid. Frequent, small; (frequent and pale).

Clinical.—Diarrhoea brought on by riding in cars or carriage, < drinking cold water, with flatulent distention, colic, feeling as of sharp stones rubbing together in abdomen, numbness of legs, vertigo, nausea, etc.

Urinary Organs.—Sticking in urethra. Pain in urethra on urging to urinate. Tensive pain in orifice of urethra when not urinating. Sticking-itching in forepart of urethra. Frequent urging to urinate, with scanty discharge; (constant U., with frequent copious discharge of watery urine). (Retention of urine for ten minutes.) Urine watery. Urine red, without sediment.

Sexual Organs.—Relaxation in night, with retraction of prepuce behind glans. Sensitiveness. Sticking in end of prepuce; in one testicle. Itching of scrotum. Itching-burning of scrotum. Bruised pain in testicles, < touch. Drawing pain in testicles. Excitement, with desire. Emissions at night.

Menstruation too early, with distention of abdomen and cutting-contracting pain in abdomen on every motion and every breath (Cham., Nux v.), with contraction of rectum (Nux v.); M. too early, with distention of abdomen and pain in upper abdomen on every motion and when sitting, as from sharp pressure of a stone, with pain on touch as from an internal ulcer. (Metrorrhagia.) Leucorrhœa.

Clinical.—Menses too profuse, gushing, very exhausting, with menstrual colic as from sharp stones rubbing together, flatulent distention and dysmenorrhœa and suppressed menstruation, with numbness, remote symptoms, vertigo, nausea, flatulent colic, numbness of extremities, etc. Suppression of menses, with purulent gushing leucorrhœa and flatulent abdomen.

Respiratory Organs.—Tough mucus hangs in larynx and obliges hacking and hawking. Irritation to cough high up in larynx; I. to cough posteriorly in larynx in evening in bed, the cough always in two paroxysms. Cough every fourth night, waking at 12 and 2 o'clock, with dryness of mouth, and on coughing sensation as if the glottis were not wide enough; C., with great exertion on account of oppression of chest, which only appears on coughing. Suffocative sensation provoking cough. Dyspnoea. Whistling-snoring, threatening suffocation, < inspiration, slow breathing alternates with suppressed breathing, with face distended as in apoplexy. Breathing quick; and difficult. Short breath.

Clinical.—Dyspnoea as from constriction of stomach and hysteria.

Chest.—Rumbling in l. side as from emptiness, < walking. Sticking in r.; in l.; in nipples; in l., near pit of stomach, in evening; through l. into back when walking; in sternum when walking; internally when sitting, rhythmical with pulse; paroxysmal, in l. on inspiration; intermittent, in r. false ribs, in front.

Pain in middle of sternum, with anxiety, then sticking in sternum; in middle of sternum as from pressure with a blunt instrument. Pressure on chest on eructating; sudden P. against sternum as with a fist. Drawing pain in r. side on bending body to r. while sitting or standing; in side towards back when talking, walking or stooping, < for a few minutes when lying, then >. Tensive constriction in r., impeding breathing. Oppression, < upper part of sternum, impeding breathing. Affected by reading aloud. (Raw and sore.)

Heart and Pulse.—Palpitation. Pulse rapid. Pulse small; and hard.

Neck.—Painful cracking of vertebrae on moving head. Sticking in nape on moving head forward or backward; S. externally in r. side; pulsating, externally in l. Stiff pain in muscles on moving neck and on yawning (Zinc., Cimic.). Weakness of muscles, with heaviness of head, necessity to lay head now here, now there, else the muscles are painful, > leaning backward.

Back.—Trembling. Tearing. Boring. Pain in spine as if it would break. Piercing pain in all joints of vertebrae as if sprained or spasmodically drawn together, < motion. Pain on standing as if fatigued or strained. Pain when sitting, < l. side. Drawing pain. Stiffness on moving shoulders, with pain.

Sticking in scapulae, extending from r. to l. Tearing between scapulae in evening before lying down, and in spine. Pressure in scapulae and nape. Intermittent paralytic pain beneath l. scapula during rest. Drawing pain below l. scapula when standing and lying, < morning. Sharp pressure in loins and region of kidneys in morning in bed, > rising. Paralytic pain in small of back; with spasmodic drawing across hips, preventing walking, with anxiety and fear. Bruised pain in bones of small of back.

Clinical.—Great weakness of cervical and dorsal muscles, then severe paralysis; in spinal irritation, with great hyperaesthesia of all senses.

Extremities.—Trembling; < evening, with chilliness. Cracking in joints; when walking. Burrowing in bones. A slight noise shoots through all limbs. Pain on motion as if they would be crushed or broken. Pain in muscles on touch; P. internally, < touch and pressure. Drawing pain in l. Seem paralyzed. Paralytic drawing, constant and paroxysmal, here and there in bones. Paralytic feeling in arms and legs, she could scarcely rise from her seat (Arg. n., Phos.), with loss of appetite. Paralytic and stiff, with drawing pains in bones and back. Paralytic immobility, with drawing pains in bones. Painful stiffness of all joints; now in hands and fingers, now in knees and ankles. Feet and hands alternately asleep.

Clinical.—Paralysis of extremities, with numbness, symptoms preceded by convulsive movements of groups of muscles.

Upper Extremities.—Sticking in shoulder-joint and muscles of upper arm during rest. Pain in shoulder-joint, consisting of a broken, tearing and sticking sensation, > motion, with heaviness and dread of moving arm, and in elbow, shafts of bones and between them. Drawing pain in shoulder-joint and shafts of bones on raising arm after eating, with bruised pain on touch.

Arm.—Convulsions, with closing of thumb in fist. Pain as if beaten in the one on which he lies. Paroxysmal burning pain in l. Pain when eating, and on attempting to raise it heaviness and tired feeling. Paralytic pain on violent motion, as if bones were broken. Asleep and a crawling sensation (Rhus t.); feel asleep and paralyzed during and after a meal. Paralysis when writing, can scarcely hold his pen.

Upper Arm.—Jerking in muscles of l.; pulsative, visible J. just above elbows. Sticking in r.; like shocks on outer side, below its head. Digging (wave-like drawing) in shaft of l. humerus, bruised pain. Pain as if broken on raising it. Drawing in upper part of humerus, with bruised pain. Humeri above elbow seem beaten and paralyzed on motion.

Sticking in l. elbow. Sudden paralytic pain in bend of r. elbow. Sticking in outer side of l. forearm, extending into little finger. Pain in r. forearm. Pain in radius as if dislocated. Intermittent, almost tearing, paralytic pressure in anterior muscles of forearm, < rest. Forearm asleep and sensation as if the hand were swollen (Rhus t.), constrictive pain in muscles and cold fingers. Trembling of hands when eating, < the higher it is raised. Redness of l. hand, with drawing in little finger. Cramp-like pain on outer side of r. hand and in the four fingers, with heat of hand. Now one hand, now the other insensible and asleep. Cramp-like contraction of finger. Painful paralytic jerking through fingers. Cramp-like sticking from behind forward in r. index. Cramp-like pain in r. little finger when writing. Tearing, boring, drawing pain in fingers.

Lower Extremities.—Paralytic immobility. Jerking in muscles about r. hip-joint. Cracking in l. hip-joint on turning thigh, < walking, with pain. (Trembling of thighs when kneeling.) Twinging in r. nates when sitting, then shocks. Sticking on outer part of l. hip-joint; in l. hip-joint on walking; in r. femur when walking; pulsating, on outer side of l. thigh when sitting, causing involuntary motion. Pain in thighs on raising them, as if broken. Bruised pain in thighs if he raises the leg while sitting; on beginning to walk after sitting; in inner side of l. if he walks in a circle to the left; intermittent, in middle of l.; with a paralyzed feeling. Painless constriction of thigh, descending into muscle below hollow of knee, with sensation as if thigh would become stiff. Intermittent paralytic pain in l. hip-joint. Paralytic drawing in thighs, with weakness of knees as if they would bend under him. Paralytic feeling in l. thigh, < rest. Intermittent paralytic stiff sensation piercing l. leg from middle of thigh downward. Numbness of thigh extending over knee.

Knees crack on motion. Sticking in knee; l.; outer part when walking. Drawing tearing in patella. Drawing pain in knee on rising after sitting. Knees threaten to sink from weakness, he totters when walking and threatens to fall to one side. Cramp of calves at night when bending knees. Tensive pain in calves on motion. Constriction on outer side of l. leg, more numb than painful. Sensation below l. knee as if too tightly bound with the garter. Wavelike paralytic pain down outer side of l. leg. Sprained pain in ankle on motion.

Foot.—Swelling in evening. Boring. Tearing. Tearing jerks in a corn in evening during rest, with tearings. Bruised pain in bone of heel; on dorsum of foot on bending up foot and on touch. Drawing pain. Falling asleep when sitting (Secale c.); of l. when walking after sitting, and sticking as from pins.

Tearing in great toe even during rest. Corrosive pain in toes. Pain in metatarsal joint of great toe as if a chilblain or boil would form, with pain on touch. Drawing pain in r. toes.

Skin.—Red spots on chest, sides of neck, behind ears. Eruption resembling scarlatina on body and arms. Pimple beneath shoulder, itching under bed-clothes; red miliary P. on face, back and chest, itching when warm; hard, on limbs, wrists and backs of fingers, with itching burning pain, itching, and red areola. Pustules above nose, on temples and chest and between scapulae; below r. corner of mouth, with red areola, painful, tense to touch. Boil on inner side of thigh. Vesicle at night on side of hand where little finger ends, discharging next day.

Sticking externally in skin and muscles of face; S. in l. side of epigastric region, > rubbing; on l. knee when sitting, so that he must move the leg at every stitch; itching, in l. axilla, as from a flea; burning itching, here and there, as from fleas. Crawling below r. shoulder, extending to fingers, with throbbing and burning. Itching of ankles; on back in evening on undressing, with red pimples; in various parts at night, then pain after scratching; at night, sometimes from pit of stomach to throat, sometimes on tibia and beneath shoulders, and after scratching oozing of serum; < in evening on undressing; under the feather-bed, changing to tickling after scratching; in hollow of l. knee when walking, > standing still, and on calf and ankle; here and there, < inner part of thighs, with burning, as from nettles, and pimples, with stinging on touch; biting, as after profuse sweat, on undressing; piercing tickling, in ball of thumb, not > scratching.

Clinical.—Abscesses at root of the toe-nail, as from a hot iron, with Cocculus symptoms.

Sleep.—Yawning constantly in bed, with stretching; Y. towards evening; forcible; interrupted, with inability to take a full breath. Sleepiness; in morning, and constant yawning; but must open his eyes as soon as he closes them on account of a frightful sensation in his brain like that produced by the most dreadful dreams. Sleeps late in morning. Sleeps with one arm under the head; (upon the stomach). Sopor.

Sleepiness from thoughts of the business of the day for an hour and sleepless after 1 A.M. Waking as if he feared ghosts. Frequent waking; and starting up; with heat; as in fright. Night restless, with sticking and biting here and there. Cried out anxiously in sleep, called her mother and sisters, anxious rapid breathing, clutched about the bed, struck out with the hands, with open distorted eyes, without being awake, constant motion of head, < towards the left.

Dreams vivid, frightful; vivid, unremembered. That he had done something wrong. That his knees were swollen and painful. Of dying and death.

Fever.—Coldness; in evening; in open air; with colic; general, with bluish hands; of whole body, with glowing of cheeks; (gradually increasing, with little or no thirst, with warm forehead, cold cheeks, cold nose and hands, then heat with anxiety as if he could not breathe, nausea and thirst, then cold sweat, < on head and hands, with continued anxiety). Internal, so that he trembled, but not external, in evening, with longing for stimulating nourishment. Shaking, at 8 A.M.; in afternoon. Creeping shivering; frequent shivering, then flushes of heat in head; S. over lower parts; recurrent S., < through lower limbs; S. across breasts; in back in evening. Chills alternating with heat; now in one hand, now in the other; the heat rising from feet through whole body, with sensation as if blood rushed into face, but she was pale, then coldness creeping from head to feet. Internal coldness in shoulders. C. of back; here and there as if touched with ice; creeping over back. Hands seem cold when held to the face, but seem warm to each other. Cold feet, but hot cheeks. Intolerance of both cold and warm air; of open air, with heat and redness of cheeks.

Heat; in flashes; internal, with rapid pulse; (external, without internal, and without thirst). H. in forehead; and sticky sweat on it. H. of face, with redness of it and thirst; of cheeks, with redness of them, but intolerance of open air; in cheeks, in flushes; in face, in flushes after drinking. Of hands at 6 P.M., with sensation of general dry heat and sleeplessness till 4 A.M., then shivering and cold hands all day. Of feet, with swelling and corrosive itching. Frequent thrill as when one warms himself by a fire in cold weather, then heat and weakness so that he must lie down, all without thirst or sweat.

Sweat; on body from evening till morning, with cold sweat on face; in morning, < on chest and affected parts; on hands. Cold, on forehead and hands; now on one hand, now on the other; on feet. Dry skin.

Clinical.—Intermittent fever, chill associated with flatulent colic, nausea, disgust at the smell of food, vertigo, etc.; chill, frequently partial, with coldness of lower extremities and heat of head, the chill mingles with the heat and the febrile stage seems to be imperfectly developed; the sweat is general, cold only on the face; the attack followed by extreme debility and by numerous Cocculus symptoms. Low types of malarial fevers, typhoid, rheumatic, relapsing, etc, with intense headache at base of occiput, vertigo, nausea, extreme faintness, numbness, great difficulty in collecting ideas.

Coccus Cacti.

A tincture is made of the dried insects, Coccinella Indica (Coccus Cacti, L.); Cochineal.

General Action.—The most marked (verified) action of this substance is on the fauces and larynx, great irritability, with profuse secretion of ropy mucus, and on the urinary organs.

Allies.—Iodine, Kali bi., Kali iod., Canth.

Generalities.—Sticking alternately in finger-tips, temples and soles. Tearing or drawing sticking, < warm bed, in evening and night at rest, sometimes from slight exercise of certain muscles, for example, holding a book caused them in upper arm. Sticking tearing here and there in muscles, < r. hip-joint, < rising or sudden motion. Drawings and tearings here and there, < neck, between shoulders and in forearms. Drawing spasmodic pain in r. calf, shoulder, foot, etc.

Fulness of whole body, with heaviness, as if stuffed. Swollen sensation in whole body when half awake at night, sensation as if the body were adherent to a woolen sack, everything he touched seemed thicker than natural. Sudden sensation as if something were distending within me, with sticking in rectum (?), after the distended feeling increased warmth extended over the whole abdomen. Uneasiness, > open air. General excitement in morning on waking, the pulses beating so violently that it seemed as if he heard them; mental and physical E., then half-stupid condition. Indolence. Disinclination to rise and after rising weariness. Weakness; in morning, with sleepiness; in afternoon; in evening, with yawning; after a nap after dinner, with irritability; after a moderate walk; with yawning. Aggravation in afternoon. Amelioration of head and chest symptoms in forenoon after lying down; A. of headache, symptoms of chest and cough after a drive.

Mind.—Joyous. Lively in evening; L. and clear in mind. Talkative. Excitement after beer, > walking, with heat and sensation as if pulses beat violently. Apprehensive; in evening. Anxious and uneasy. Irritable; morning and evening; then in evening lively. Gloomy. Less active than usual.

Head.—Stitches through brain. Aching; in morning on waking, frequently returning; in forenoon, < violent motion of it; in evening; from his accustomed beer; < stepping hard; in brain, < at bridge of nose; with such weakness that she must sit down frequently during a hurried walk; in morning after waking, as from drinking too much, > rising; as from a disordered stomach; consisting of fulness, with heat and stupefaction. Painful fulness. Swollen sensation. Confusion; in morning, with vertigo; in evening; in evening when walking, < in vertex; in evening and lasting into the night, with pain in vertex and burning in skin of forehead; after breakfast; as after drinking too much; as before violent coryza, > in open air; dizzy C.; dizzy C. in morning on waking. Intoxicated obscurity; in morning on waking. Rush of blood; in forenoon on entering warm room after a walk. Vertigo; after eating, as after intoxication.

Forehead.—Tearing in bones. Burrowing. Pain; at breakfast, which was eaten without remarkable appetite; above r. eye in morning on waking; above arch of nose and in frontal sinuses; in r. side, sometimes extending to occiput; indefinite, after supper, < shaking or turning head or moving hands. Confusion in morning on rising, with heaviness and dullness; C., with pain extending across l. eminence, involving a small part of l. half of forehead, parietal bone and temple, extending to zygomatic part of r. jaw, leaving in all those parts tearing or cutting.

Temples.—Sticking; in l., > during pressure. Pain; in r.; in l. after rising, lasting all day, frequently extending to l. eye; extending towards vertex, > washing with cold water; throbbing and pressive, often alternating with heat and redness of face. Sensation as if too narrow.

Pressure in vertex in morning on waking, with burning pain. Confusion of vertex. Sensitiveness of vertex. Sticking near r. coronal suture. Paroxysmal burrowing in posterior part of r. parietal bone in morning in bed.

Occiput.—Stitches as from the bite of a leech, waking and causing scratching. Boring in l. towards ear. Pressing pain extending to l. cheek and side of nose, with sensation as if scalp were swollen. Pressure in it at 6 p.m. in a warm room, with warmth in it. Sensation as if a hot constricting band extended from one mastoid process to the other, at last affecting the whole scalp, and it seemed as if the bones were drawn closer and closer together. Indefinite drawing and pressing, and in temples and r. eye.

Scalp.—Painful elevation on vertex. Feeling as if drawn tightly over skull. Crawling pain in morning on waking, oblique scratching. Creeping at roots of hair and bristling of hair.

Eyes.—Inclination to stare. Tearing from l. into forehead in evening after lying down. Raging pain in r., extending along squamous bone, on its inner side to the occiput, it seems as if a fluid were injected par-oxysmally into a small bloodvessel. Pressure upon l., < inner canthus. Sensation of a foreign body between lids and balls. Smarting as if a hair were between ball and lid; morning on waking. Burning in evening. Consistent tears, < open air. Pressure in l. ball. Agglutination of lids. Jerking of l. lower lid. Margins of lids feel swollen. Burning in margins of lids. Pain in orbital regions; in superciliary ridges. Vision weak.

Ears.—Sticking in l.; in r.; then aching in r. upper back teeth; deep in front of l., between antitragus and zygoma; above and behind l., increasing to burrowing congestion that seldom remitted, and when worst extended to l. side of neck and clavicular region, last l. lower molar and l. side of occiput. Biting sticking in l. antitragus; in r. meatus and r. temple. Drawing tearing above and behind l. then roaring in it. Drawing twinging in l. Pain in region of r. parotid, then in submaxillary glands and salivation; suddenly in r. Eustachian tube before dinner, < turning head to right and on swallowing, suddenly > warm soup. Tensive pain in mastoid process; in bones above and behind l. ear, < mastoid process, with salivation. Drawing pain in r.; at times becoming sticking, with roaring in l.; on convex surface of l. concha, < touch; cramplike, in r. Drawings; in r. meatus in evening. Throbbing pain in l.; in l. mastoid process, at times increasing to a burrowing outward, before midnight in bed, when most severe it extends into l. ear, l. occipital region and nape, last l. lower molar and along sterno-cleido-mastoid muscle to l. claviculo-pectoral region, and on touch pain in the parts as if suppurating. Rhythmical throbbing in ear upon which he was lying.

Stoppage, with pressure in meatus; stopped feeling in l. so that hearing is indistinct; S. feeling in external passages on snapping fingers in front of r.; internal S. feeling in l., < lying upon ear, with sensation as if fluid wax were pushing outward, tensive pain in l. mastoid process, extending to l. clavicle and last lower molar. Tickling from external canal through inner ear to mouth, with voluptuous itching; in l. meatus, with itching, afterwards becoming a pressure in concha. Itching in l.; with roaring; in l. external meatus; in r. external meatus; in r. external concha and external meatus; < going from cold air into a warm room.

Ringling in l., with bruised sensation about l. external ear, < mastoid process, the pain extending down l. side of neck to clavicular and pectoral regions. Cracking in l. on empty swallowing; in l. on spitting, and sensation as if wax would flow from it. Roaring in l.; periodical; seething, in l.; as of a storm in a forest. Impaired hearing; as if ears were stopped with cotton.

Nose.—Redness of nostrils, with soreness in them. Crusts on outer margin of nostrils. Yellowish pulverulent substance on margin of nostrils. Dryness; and of throat, > water; of posterior nares, so that he drew water through nostrils, then blew out hard masses of mucus. Stopped; sensation, but watery discharge. Itching internally, then violent sneezing. Sneezing; in evening; with cough and expectoration; violent; violent, in morning, with discharge of mucus; in violent paroxysms, with burning in mucous membrane of nose and on margins of wings. Coryza, with sticking in temples and rawness and soreness of throat. Much mucus; thin, white.

Face.—Crawling in malar-bones; in l., extending across back of nose to r. cheek; extending across back of nose to l. cheek in evening; in l. side of face and nose, corresponding to plexus anserinus, with drawing, resembling prosopalgia. Pain in l. articulation of jaw on chewing, with cracking in it on empty swallowing. Longish bluish-red spot on upper lip. Cracks in lips, which seem covered with meal. Dry lips. Skin of lower lip feels contracted. Sensation in lower lip as if drawn from both sides towards the middle, often alternating with pulsating beats of heart.

Mouth.—Teeth. Tearing in a r. hollow molar interrupting the morning sleep. Burrowing in r. upper posterior molars in morning on waking. Pain in last l. lower; in hollow roots of third l. upper molar (which was broken a year before), with sensitiveness to touch. Jerking pain in l. lower canine after smoking; J. tooth-ache in morning after waking, < l. upper incisors and canine, with sensation of a cold wind on teeth, increasing next day, < inspiration or holding a pipe between teeth, next day teeth very painful on biting them firmly together. Drawing in l.; in r. back; in r. lower incisors; in l. back, in forenoon; sudden; sudden, in incisors and in r. meatus auditorius. Sensation as if a lateral incisor were grasped by a cold finger and forcibly drawn upward. Sore pain in l. teeth and gum waking him when lying on l. side, > changing the position, with sensitiveness to touch. Sensitiveness of lower, with sensation as if too long; S. to cold things; to cold air; to cold water; to cold water in morning.

Gums bleed longer than usual after removing old roots, and the cavities ache for some time. Biting sticking in gum of r. anterior incisor, with dryness of mouth and frequent itching in l. external meatus auditorius. Soreness in toothless places in lower jaw. Heaviness in l. upper jaw as if teeth were pressed out of their sockets.

Tongue.—White coat. Vesicles. Biting anteriorly as from pepper. Biting sticking in l. side of tip, with salivation. Dryness; in morning on waking, with a brown coat; with roughness.

Redness of arches of palate; of velum palati and fauces, with pustules on r. arch of palate. Sticking and burning in palate and tongue. Scraping in arches of palate. Pain in soft palate, < talking or swallowing. Tensive pain in arches of palate on swallowing, > water. Tension in arches of palate. Rawness. Sensitiveness of mouth and fauces, so that rinsing mouth caused cough and vomiting of thick masses of mucus. Irritability of arches of palate, so that loud talking and brushing of the teeth caused cough and vomiting. Tickling irritation in palate to vomit in morning, increasing to vomiting of mucus on rinsing mouth with cold water. Burning. Dryness; of palate; behind arches of palate; of M. and throat in morning on waking, > cold water, with heat in them and stiffness of tongue. M. and fauces feel as if covered with velvet. Constant desire to spit, and metallic taste (Iod.). Salivation. Hot breath. Odor as from a disordered stomach. Sourish odor.

Taste.—Metallic, with salivation (Iod.); sweetish metallic (Iod.); M., < smoking; M. at tip of tongue. Sweetish; and bitter, aromatic; and offensive, resinous, < at root of tongue, after a glass of water. Bitter; and nauseous; offensive, bitter, sour, at root of tongue and entrance to fauces in forenoon; sharp, bitter, sour, towards root of tongue, provoking vomiting. Pasty; in morning. Nauseous, flat. Unpleasant to coffee and water. Food at dinner distasteful.

Throat.—Redness; of pharynx, with difficult swallowing; of r. tonsil, with swelling. Swelling of r. tonsil. Tonsils pale and distended. Hawking of mucus; in afternoon; with tickling of larynx, then paroxysms of cough. Scraping sticking and constriction. Sensation as if a hair stuck in it, causing hawking of various-colored mucus. Sensation as if a crumb stuck behind larynx; the sensation of crumbs frequently descends towards stomach and then rises again. Scraping; from morning till noon, > after dinner; with expectoration of mucus; causing paroxysms of cough, with expectoration of mucus; causing nausea. Rawness, > at night in warmth of bed, with roughness and hoarseness; with scraping, as after highly-seasoned food; causing violent cough; causing frequent hawking of mucus. Roughness; in morning. Constriction. Choking, with constriction beginning in stomach and extending to throat. Sensation as if a thread were hanging down, and constant hawking of mucus. Sensation as if uvula were elongated, causing constant hawking.

Pressive sensation; in pharynx, < empty swallowing. Almost a burning pain from smoking. Soreness; without difficulty in swallowing. Feeling of beginning inflammation. Burning; on soft palate; in œsophagus; in fauces every morning; on soft palate in morning on waking; when smoking, and on lips; somewhat > cold water; like heartburn, and on palate. Sensation as if a piece of ice had slipped down. Peculiar coolness extending up œsophagus to mouth. Dryness; of posterior wall of pharynx; with much mucus on uvula; with painful tension on r. side on swallowing; < palate, with scraping, disturbing sleep; waking him, > cold water; of pharynx, causing cough; as if full of dust, < till evening, when it was accompanied by burning in arch of palate.

Tickling; on uvula extending over velum palati. < cold water, when there was irritation to cough; < uvula, soft palate and posterior wall of pharynx, in morning, preventing lying, causing violent paroxysms of dry cough, only after warm drinks the mucus was expectorated in large loose masses, then through the forenoon hawking and expectorating of loose mucus; in fauces as with a feather; T. irritation to vomit. Frequent swallowing, with sensation as if a ball were sticking in the throat. Inability to drink water. Swallowing difficult in evening, with swollen sensation in larynx and difficult speech. Sensation on swallowing liquids as if they were forced down by a spasm. Aggravation of symptoms in warmth, especially in bed (Iod., Merc.).

Clinical.—Coryza, inflammation of fauces, with accumulation of thick viscid mucus, which is expectorated with the greatest difficulty, even with retching and vomiting (Kali bi.).

Stomach.—Appetite at 6 p.m., an unusual time; even after eating. Ravenous; for supper; soon passing away. Great for dinner, which was eaten without relish and with speedy satiety, the food though light caused discomfort and pressure in stomach and eructations, stomach somewhat > by uprisings of food. Variable. Little at noon. Satiety soon after dinner; S. from water, with aversion to drinking. Lost, with increased thirst; at breakfast, but afterwards ravenous hunger; at noon. Aversion to food and drink. No relish for smoking.

Thirst; in evening; in evening, with longing for beer, after a glass of which there were headache and weakness so that he could not sleep until midnight; after eating, then chilliness from much cold water; < morning; < eating. Aversion to coffee and water.

Eructations; tasteless; loud, spasmodic, empty, in evening. Nausea; in morning; in morning on waking; from constant rising towards stomach; < after a violent paroxysm of cough, which brings tears to the eyes; > weak wine; with empty eructations; with cramp in stomach, and hunger; in paroxysms, with rabid hunger. Retching; in morning on waking, with nausea and salivation.

Distention; after rising, with retching rising to throat; flatulent, after eating; with pressure upward and choking as far as fauces; and sensation as if vomiting would relieve it. Sticking in afternoon on lying down, obliging sitting up; S. in fundus, then in caecal region; in pit at every inspiration, > expiration; and gripping. Intermittent gripping extending to caecal region. Pinching. Gnawing after drinking. Cramp. Pain; in epigastric region; in pit and l. hypochondrium; with sensation of a ball in it; in attacks, with beginning nausea. Pressure as from indigestion; P. as if overloaded, after a light dinner, extending to fauces, lasting till sleep; as after mineral water, with nausea, then heat of stomach, repeated for hours, then sensation as from drinking too much water, which lasted all the forenoon.

Heaviness; as if a stone were in it. Sensitiveness to pressure; in pit; to touch in epigastric region. Burning. Heartburn in afternoon, with tensive pain in throat; H. at night; two hours after eating; when walking after smoking; after wine, with pressure in stomach; with eructations of almost corrosive fluid. Sensation as if region of stomach and ilium were bathed in warm water. Sensation as if a cold air blew into it. Coldness and discomfort. Discomfort, < breakfast, with inflated feeling in abdomen. Emptiness. Weakness.

Abdomen.—Distention; in morning; after dinner; as if he had eaten too much; flatulent. Flatulence; after dinner; after dinner, with discomfort in whole body. Gurgling. Rumbling; after eating; preventing midday nap, > when walking about the room by short passages of flatus; < lying on l. side; with pain in loins. Noises and movements of flatus, > short passages of flatus. Emission of flatus; odorless. Sticking here and there, extending more towards hypochondriac region (apparently to bladder). Cutting. Pinching after dinner. Gripping in morning on waking, then diarrhoea; G. in morning, then liquid stools repeated three times during the day; on waking, > stool; after eating; after dinner, then liquid stool; with pasty stool; with ineffectual urging to stool; with headache. Pain, then pasty stool, with shivering; P., as if many spots were ulcerating. Sensitiveness to pressure. Warmth.

Hypochondria.—Rumbling beneath r. short ribs.

Sticking in region of spleen; in l. H., extending to l. side of chest in forenoon, when walking; periodically in spleen, gradually changing to fulness and numbness aching in l. hypochondrium. Pain in l. as from incarcerated flatus, extending to l. side of back and lumbar vertebrae. Burning drawing in region of spleen, extending into l. side of chest, with jerking stitches; burning, drawing in l., waking at night, > application of warm hand. Burrowing, tensive, dragging and drawing pain, and in pubic and inguinal regions. Dragging, and in pubic region, with discharge from vagina. Fulness in region of bladder.

Umbilicus.—Cutting, < motion. Gripping in region; then soft stool. Digging about. Pain, and deep in caecal region; in region, at times extending towards ilium.

Hypogastrium.—Audible movement towards genitals, then sticking from bladder along urethra to glans when sitting. Sticking in l. groin; in r. flank extending from border of false ribs to r. side of back, < pressure, > passage of flatus; drawing S. extending from l. flank along l. hip. Cutting, with passage of much odorless flatus. Gripping above pelvic region as from incarcerated flatus, > emission. Sticking drawing and dragging pain in inguinal, hypochondriac and pubic regions. Dragging downward, as during menstruation, with frequent micturition. Sensitiveness of tuber ischii when sitting long or on pressure.

Rectum.—Sticking; with every stool; < walking, with exertion to stool; jerking and boring S., constantly jumping to neck of bladder and along ureters to kidneys. Burning pain after stool. Urging to stool, then hard faeces; U. as if to diarrhoea, then pasty stool, with much flatulence. Ineffectual urging; frequently, then three stools relieving the pain in lumbar and sacral regions.

Anus.—Much moisture in fissure between A. and nates. Sticking extending through urethra. Twinges after moderate exercise. Burning. Crawling. Itching.

Stool.—Diarrhoea. Soft and frequent; and copious; soft, mingled with hard lumps. Constipation, then after eating profuse pasty stool, with much flatulence. Hard; and scanty. Faeces enveloped in mucus, with straining, with burning and protrusion of haemorrhoids. Delayed, difficult and clayey. Like kneaded clay, with straining, then spasmodic pain in rectum just at lower end of sacrum. Irregular. Copious, pasty; C. after walking. Omitted.

Urinary Organs.—Bladder. Cutting in region, with heat in face. Twisting pain in neck. Constant alternation of cramp, heat and coldness in region. Pain in region; waking him at night, with ineffectual urging to urinate. Pressure on; and constant urging, > after micturition. Heaviness, < in forepart, towards urethra, with constant urging to urinate and frequent discharge of normal color, acid in forenoon. Tension and fulness without leading to micturition, the tension remaining after micturition. Painful drawing in region of l. ureter.

Urging to urinate; in morning; but necessity to wait long before the urine passed, also waking twice at night. Frequent urging; suddenly; with urine as clear as water. Frequent ineffectual urging at night. Strangury in evening. Spurting micturition. Strong stream of pale urine. Frequent micturition; in afternoon; < at midnight and 4 P.M.; of copious urine; of saturated urine; of pale, odorless urine; of urine as clear as water, but it seems heavy and as thick as oil. Infrequent micturition. Waits long for the stream of urine. Retention of urine until there is great urging, when a little is passed slowly and painfully, sometimes sticking jerking on urinating extending into the sore pudenda.

Urethra.—Sticking in forepart of glans at 11 p.m.; in orifice, with tickling; in region of navicular fossa, with pain; in forepart, < in glans, with jerking. Pain on urinating as from obstruction. Burning pain on urinating, with sensation of a stone in urethra. Burning during micturition; B., > micturition, with at times prickling at its orifice, the latter during the day before much micturition. Tickling in forepart before micturition, as if dull needles were suddenly forced into it. Itching in orifice; in evening; in evening, with biting.

Urine.—Copious; and as clear as water, then in afternoon dark urine with sticking along urethra, < near glans. Scanty; at night, and red; and dark, very ammoniacal and concentrated. Dark, turbid, of putrid odor. At first straw-yellow, afterwards lemon-yellow, afterwards light brown, then reddish-brown and finally red. Acid, burning. Thick and hot. Acid. Began to decompose in half an hour. Turbid. Contained mucus forming in part flakes, clouds and threads, mixed largely with the sediment. Brick-red sand after standing long; brick-red sediment easily mixing with the fluid on shaking the vessel.

Clinical.—Urinary calculi, with violent colic, hæmaturia, large deposit of uric acid and of urates, pains lancinating, extending from kidneys into bladder.

Sexual Organs.—Pustule in middle of penis. Throbbing in glans, with tickling in urethra. Heat in glans and l. testicle. Itching of glans; and of prepuce, with biting. Biting stitches in prepuce. Erections towards morning greater than usual, and emission; frequent erections. Itching of scrotum in morning on rising. Drawing sticking in r. testicle, extending into inguinal region. Desire; in morning, with erections; in morning, with lascivious actions, without erections; at night, and voluptuous dreams; on waking. Emission in morning; at 5 a.m.; at night, without dreams; at night, with diminished desire.

Pudenda swollen. < towards the front, and sensitiveness, with cramp, which contracts the orifice of the urethra so that the urine flows slowly over the sore parts, often with burning, with frequent painful thin discharge, which does not seem to be leucorrhœa, next day the swelling was hard and hot. Shooting in pudenda like electric shocks. Sudden burning in pudenda, with throbbing and sensitiveness. Swollen sensation in pudenda. Discharge of mucus from vagina preceded by drawing-dragging in inguinal and pubic regions and region of bladder. Menses too early, profuse, black and thick; too early and too long, with towards the close tension, then constriction in abdomen rising towards stomach, as if she would vomit water (which sensation usually occurred at the beginning).

Clinical.—Menorrhagia; discharge of large dark clots, with dysuria. Intermittent menstruation, flows only in evening or night when lying down.

Respiratory Organs.—Mucus. Catarrh of larynx and trachea. Sticking in larynx; with hoarseness.

Seraping and irritation to cough; S. in larynx and trachea; in larynx, causing paroxysms of cough and expectoration of balls of mucus. Rawness in trachea, obliging coughing. Pain in larynx after speaking a short time, and rawness. Roughness during and after speaking. Sensation as if crumb stuck behind larynx, obliging constant swallowing. Choking. Tickling in larynx, waking at 11.30 P.M., causing cough, with expectoration of much tenacious mucus (Calc. acet.^o); T., then hacking cough. Burning after cough; B. behind larynx as from a corrosive fluid. Irritation in larynx to cough in evening and disturbing sleep at night. Fatigue of vocal organs, even after speaking, without exertion, with hoarseness and labored breathing (Phos.). Hoarseness; in morning; in morning, with violent hawking of tenacious mucus; in morning, > rinsing mouth with tepid water or taking warm fluids, with paroxysms of cough and hawking of mucus; in afternoon; evening; at first, after not speaking for some time. Voice husky and deep on going into open air.

Cough; waking at 1 a.m., then sleeplessness, partly from the cough, partly from a burning soreness in lungs, partly from headache, then uneasy sleep from 6 to 7 a.m., the headache > waking; after dinner from the ordinary smoking; in hot room, preventing speaking; from irritation in bronchi and larynx, which made the soft palate so painful that swallowing was difficult; < 10 to 11 a.m.; < evening, with soreness and subsequent burning in chest; > evening and night. Violent, from brushing teeth, then coming of slimy fluid. Paroxysmal; in forenoon; frequent P. in warmth of bed, lasting from 2 to 2.30, leaving aching in throat as if fatigued, with heat and sore burning; short; frequent, as from tickling in larynx and pharynx. Painful, fatiguing, on waking, from irritation in larynx and trachea.

Dry cough; in morning; in morning, causing vomiting of mucus; waking at night; from the accustomed smoking; at night from tickling in air-passages, in morning looser, with easy expectoration; with pain, < apices of lungs; D. and violent in morning after waking; D., racking and painful; short and D.; short and D. in forenoon from irritation in trachea; D., rarely loosening yellow mucus of nauseating sweetish taste; at times D., at times expectoration of thick mucus. Barking, clear, dry, waking at 6 a.m., afterwards with expectoration of mucus, the hawking of which provoked vomiting (K. bi.), with sore throat and frontal headache, the cough and heat in throat > by rinsing mouth with cold water and drinking a few swallows, the heat in throat returned after a cup of warm milk, the cough returned on entering a hot room.

Cough, with expectoration; towards evening; at night; of much viscid albuminous mucus (K. bi.); tenacious E. at 6 a.m., through the day and at 3 p.m. (an hour after eating), > vomiting; E. of lumpy mucus; mucous E.; easy, slimy E., mingled with tenacious threads; yellow E.; difficult E. of greenish-yellow sweet mucus. Paroxysmal cough before going to bed, with easy expectoration of globules of mucus; P. cough, with expectoration of greenish lumps (K. iod.); P. cough, with expectoration of round masses of grayish mucus; P. cough, with grayish, gelatinous, lumpy mucus; paroxysm of tickling cough, ending with expectoration of mucus. Cough, with tickling about bifurcation of bronchi, caused by a feeling as if a plug of mucus were moving in chest, in spite of profuse expectoration of mucus. Fatiguing cough, then expectoration of mucus.

Expectoration alternating with dry hacking. Expectoration of mucus; easy; lumpy; yellow, sour; yellow, lumpy after slight hawking; greenish-yellow, and sweat; of white lumps of the size of peas from larynx, with dry sensation in mouth, extending into fauces; of whitish-gray masses; tough and sweet, next day lumpy and grayish-blue and looser; yellow, with a tinge of red, tasting sourish-sweet; thick; thick and nauseous.

Breathing difficult; in afternoon, < towards evening by periodical sticking in l. upper chest; when walking. Dyspnea, with oppression of lower part of chest. Short and oppressed breathing after rising. Inspiration deep when walking, > by yawning.

Clinical.—Laryngitis with most violent cough, difficult expectoration of very tenacious mucus. Suffocative catarrh of the bronchi, with tough white mucus which strangles, cough < first waking. Whooping cough, with vomiting ofropy albuminous mucus, < morning, the attacks ending with vomiting of this ropy mucus.

Chest.—Sticking in upper part; in lower part; in r., along sternum; near l. nipple; in region of bend of fifth and sixth ribs; between sixth and seventh ribs, l. then r.; now l., now r.; lungs feel as if affected by S. behind sternum; in lower part of r. lung in morning after rising, < deep inspiration; in l. lower chest in forenoon when walking in the street, and in the evening; r. lower lung at 4 P.M. on deep inspiration; in a spot in middle of first l. false rib in the street, > when quiet in the room; in walls on uncovering abdomen, < epigastric region; in greatest curvature of last l. true ribs, also when sewing, < walking and ascending steps but not by deep breathing, > rest; in a spot in l., < walking, not by breathing; in l., < rapid walking; in region of l. nipple, > paying attention to it; between l. fifth and seventh ribs, > deep inspiration, returning on expiration; in a spot in ribs and præcordial region, with pain in the spot as if suppurating; in l. extending forward towards sternum, with pain on chest; deeply piercing, near l. clavicle, then ulcerative pains, similar to commencing tuberculosis; biting, on margin of l. false ribs between stomach and flank (deeply-seated).

Pinching in middle. Pain; in lungs on sneezing. Bruised pain in region of l. clavicle in morning on waking; in region of l. clavicle on moving head or l. arm or lying on l. shoulder, with sprained pain; in region of l. clavicle, < moving arm and changing when lying to sprained pain in l. shoulder. Drawing pain in region of l. clavicle, < lying upon l. shoulder. Tensive pain in region of clavicle; l., < day and moving l. arm; in l. upper chest. Pressure in evening, then ulcerative pain in præcordial region; P. beneath sternum, < towards stomach, with burning; P. upon chest, with hoarseness; with weakness and bruised sensation; in middle of sternum extending to scapulæ; painful, in middle of sternum in forenoon when walking, extending backward, with a similar pain between scapulæ extending forward. Suffocative sensation, as if too narrow, < drinking beer. Oppression; in forenoon when speaking; on ascending a hill, with soreness of apices of lungs, a feeling as if he had run too violently; > warm breakfast; paroxysmal, with external soreness.

Soreness beneath sternum, with pressure; S. in apices of lungs when walking in warm weather, with chilliness; after the heat, with pressure and tension and with throbbing, < in apices of lungs; beneath clavicles, with much affection of air-passages; in apex of l. lung, with at times pulsation that constantly alternated with contraction of lower lip (like a cramp in skin); in lungs, becoming at times sticking or boring and sometimes seated in pleura and pericardium, at another time deep in lungs and heart, with stronger beats of heart; becoming burning, frequently changing its seat, but affecting most the heart and apices of lungs, with irritation to breathe deeply and to cough. Sensitiveness about l. nipple.

Pulsations in lungs; now in heart, now in middle of chest, now in apices of lungs, consisting of several beats in rapid succession, then after five to ten minutes appearing in another place. Heat beneath sternum; in lungs when walking; < præcordial region and r. lower chest; deep, < præcordial region; between fifth and seventh ribs, l. then r., with sticking; in lungs, with feeling as if the expired air were warmer than usual. Increased vigor of organs.

Heart.—Sticking through it in morning, with throbbing, which seemed to be audible but was not perceptible to hand. Burrowing on rising and when driving, > leaving the carriage. Soreness from morning till noon. Pressure in præcordial region. Pain in præcordial region at night, with palpitation; indefinite P. at heart interrupted by beating of the pulse; throbbing, towards evening, with at times pulsations on its upper surface. Sensation when walking as if an artery were pulsating rapidly on its upper surface. Sensation as if something were forced towards it. Rapid, irregular beating after dinner, causing anxiety. Tumultuous action when lying after dinner. Palpitation waking at night; sudden P. as from a fright, waking at midnight, and shaking of whole body, recurring with constantly decreasing severity; causing anxiety.

Pulse.—Rapid; and tremulous.

Neck.—Sticking in nape; in l. cervical muscles on turning head. Pain between second and third vertebra. Tension in l. muscles in morning on waking, > rising.

Back.—Pain; with sensation as if several places were hard. Drawing. Sticking in scapulæ; between S. extending in rays; in region of l. scapula, extending into l. elbow, < moving arm, with sticking in l. side. Tearing from r. scapula across outer surface of r. upper arm. Pressure between S., after a while extending to small of back and becoming seated in region of kidneys.

Lumbar Region.—Sticking ending in cœcal region; from kidney along ureters to bladder; digging, in r., in region of kidney, in evening in bed, then sticking making him jump. Dragging pain; in sacral region, extending downward and forward towards bladder. Twisting pain in l. side of spine, whether in kidneys or uterus (?). Pain; in sacrum; in region of kidneys; region of r. kidney; in afternoon; in evening and < night; in kidneys in evening; when eating; in kidneys, < r., < pressure or motion of upper part of body, > towards evening, next day alternating with drawing pain from kidneys to bladder, > frequent emission of flatus. Bruised pain in l.; and in sacral and hip regions; in l. sacro-iliac region in morning on waking. Oppressive pain in region of kidneys. Drawing pain; in r. kidney, extending along ureter to bladder, waking at 5 A.M.; spasmodic, in region of kidneys, streaming out from both sides, in afternoon when sitting, to be compared to the cramplike pain after an injury to the testicles, > emission of flatus. Drawing, with dragging, and in joints and hips. Tension in muscles; T. extending towards rectum, with drawing. Soreness in region of kidneys, gradually extending to bladder, < into sphincter, with frequent urging to urinate and increased dark urine. Sensitiveness of tuber ischii on long sitting and on pressure.

Extremities.—Sticking now beneath nail of l. great toe, now in tips of fingers and beneath nails of thumbs and of r. index. Tearing; here and there in long bones; in knees and elbow; along anterior inner surface of r. thigh, then in outer side of r. upper arm, then painful drawing in metacarpal bone of r. thumb and sticking in r. inner malleolus. Tensive pain, now in l. shoulder, now in l. fingers and in r. hip, > evening. Weakness; in morning after rising. Paralytic sensation in legs and l. shoulder, waking at night.

Upper Extremities.—Shoulder. Tearing, and in small of back, extending in evening to forearm. Pain at night, > lying on it and pressing firmly against the bed. Drawing in r. extending to forearm and index, with tearing; D. in l., gradually changing to heaviness and in evening changing to painful paralysis, as from taking cold in a draught when heated. Tension in r., with drawing and tearing. Heaviness like a pressure on r., extending down back to region of kidneys; tensive H., and in lower part of nape.

Sticking in middle of r. upper arm at night. Sticking tearing in fleshy part of l. upper arm, in anterior and inner surface; drawing tearing in anterior surface of muscles of r. upper arm during rest. Drawing in r. deltoid, making motion of upper arm difficult, < raising it. Sticking in tip of l. elbow; in muscles of bend of r. elbow during rest; as from a leech in bend of l. elbow. Scraping in elbows. Pain near l. elbow. Burning drawing in condyles and joint of l. elbow, waking at night.

Tearing in tendinous expansion of forearms. Drawing pain in muscles of r. forearm. Paralytic pain in r. wrist. Biting sticking on back of r. hand. Tearing in r. little finger, < motion. Sudden drawing in l. thumb. Swelling of l. thumb, with pain when moved or pressed.

Lower Extremities.—Bruised pain, < calves. Weariness; < calves. Tearing sticking in anterior inner muscles of thigh; in l. sciatic nerve, extending from gluteal muscle to outer and posterior side during rest; throbbing sticking in thighs in forenoon. Bruised pain behind r. trochanter, > walking. Aching in thighs as after a long walk. Drawing pain on upper and outer side of l. thigh during rest. Drawing down thighs and calves, with weariness in calves; sudden D. anteriorly above r. knee.

Knee.—Sticking in r. patella; in evening, as from an electric spark; in margin of l., as from an electric spark; deeply piercing S. in hollow of knee, extending along l. tendo-achillis and in back of r. foot; in knee, with tearing. Sudden sticking tensive pain in bend of r. in afternoon when walking, < stretching foot. Pain in side of l. patella; in r. patella, < on its inner margin, < motion and pressure, so that in the evening walking was impossible, in the night knees and toes were swollen and hot to touch, the pain was pressive and prevented motion.

Leg.—Sticking near r. ankle after eating; throbbing S. in legs; tearing, along muscles of r. calf. Sticking tearing on inner side of r. tibia. Scraping in tibiae. Pain; in r.; along large vessels and nerves; in lower half of l. tibia in forenoon when sitting, extending upward and downward; in tendo-achillis on walking, < in street, obliged to turn the foot outward and stop, < next day, < ascending steps, the tendon sensitive to pressure, afterwards cracking in tendon on moving foot up and down and inability to stretch foot completely. Burning pain in r. Drawing pain in l. tendo-achillis when stretching foot while walking. Spasmodic drawing in r. calf. Sore sensation on r. tibia. Weakness in evening and night.

Sticking in l. inner malleolus. Bruised pain in malleoli on bending foot, and on inner surface of heel. Sticking in l. sole near toes. Pain in forepart of l. foot on walking, it seemed as if the mobility of the joints were impeded by swelling of articular surfaces. Pain in soles, mostly burning, < forepart, even after a moderate walk, becoming after sitting a hot sensation. Weariness of feet in evening after a short walk; of feet, < sitting quietly in the house, > going out.

Toes.—Cramp of r.; three last r. on lying down at night. Sticking on lower surface of l. great and in its tip; beneath nail of l. great, at 4 A.M. Tearing in l. great. Pain in l. great, < evening, so that he could not step upon that foot, then chilliness, which lasted after going to bed; in great, with swelling and redness, preventing walking, almost like gouty inflammation; in a corn on r. little, so that he limped. Sudden drawing in r. great.

Skin.—Redness of face and hands, with distention and throbbing of vessels; red spots here and there, and itching pimples. Pimples on r. side of forehead; on tip of nose and to right of sternum; on malleoli; on back, with discharge on pressure. Boils on l. wing of nose.

Biting sticking on r. pectoral muscles and r. groin; in various places, scalp, concha, r. side of neck and throat, on margin of rami of jaws, near nipples, in back, pit of stomach, axillae, inguinal regions, all > by leaving the warm bed. Pricking on anterior surface of thigh when walking, sensation as if warmth were streaming through skin; P. on internal surface of thigh, as on taking sparks from an electrical machine, alternating with heat in chest, with palpitation. Biting in various places before sleep; above malleoli, extending in afternoon to knee, then returning to other places. Sticking biting on various parts; in region of r. clavicle; in spots on abdominal walls, with sensation as if leeches were drawing at these spots, afterwards similar sensation at r. nipple and on prepuce. Itching biting now in r., now l. antitragus. Itching biting-drawing in inguinal and pubic region, on prepuce and penis, back, feet and toes; on and between toes. Itching; l. upper arm; extensor surface of limbs, abdomen and back; lower limbs; legs; fold beneath l. great toe; r. leg, with burning; legs and l. fingers, in afternoon.

Sleep.—Inclination to yawn and stretch, with tensive pain in small of back. Sleepiness; in morning after a good night's sleep; in afternoon; evening; after eating, then general prostration. Sleeplessness; from internal heat; for an hour and a half after midnight; with restlessness; sleep only after midnight, restless and light, waking at slightest noise and palpitation as from fright. Restless sleep on account of previous vexations; disturbed by pains; interrupted by cough, throbbing headache and throbbing of heart; with sexual desire without complete erections. Disturbed by noises in abdomen, < lying on r. side. Groaning in sleep. Frequent waking; with excitement as from coffee. Early waking; with inclination to yawn and stretch.

Dreams.—Many; of many people and full of care. Of many men, large palaces, churches and frolicking with girls. Vivid; and fretful; of syphilitic formations. Unremembered. Affectionate, with reminiscences of his youthful loves.

Fever.—Chill; all day; when lying at 10 A.M., then headache and cough from rawness in air-passages; in afternoon; in afternoon, with thirst; in evening; in evening, with dull throbbing in heart and soreness in chest; > open air. Creeping over whole body. Shivering; between 3 and 5 P.M.; 9 P.M., with rapid pulse; after dinner; on going to bed, < back, with thirst, then dry heat of head and redness of face, with chilliness of rest of body, then the dry heat became general and lasted till midnight, then sweat on upper part of body till 5 A.M.; before sleep, with heat in head, then general dry heat, > sweat; in attacks; across scapula extending down arm, after dinner, > moving in open air, with sensation as if the skin would be loosened from the flesh. Coldness of occiput as if in a draught; C. of limbs; of back; creeping along spine; frequently in skin on r. shoulder and across r. side of back; of feet in morning, with sweat on upper part of body.

Heat; towards evening; in evening in bed; in evening in bed, as if there were a tumult in the whole body; on entering room, with confusion of head, which increased till evening to a moderate headache, > open air; at night, then sweat. Dry, at 3 A.M., with uneasiness. Hot and dry skin, the heat > in morning by cold water. Heat on vertex; in l. ear, with ringing; in cheeks in morning on waking; in cheeks at 5 P.M.; pricking, in cheeks in evening without redness; in chest, abdomen and thighs, with pricking in thighs on walking. Burning in legs; in r., with itching; in soles.

Sweat; in morning; on rapid walking, with weakness; at night on back, sacrum and coccyx; on r. leg; in morning on legs and feet.

Codeinum.

Pure Codeia (one of the alkaloids of Opium) is prepared for use by trituration.

General Action.—This alkaloid, similar in a general way to Morphia, seems to possess convulsant properties in a higher degree than the other alkaloids of Opium.

Generalities.—Trembling of whole body. Convulsive motions; of different parts; of muscles of chest, neck, arms and legs, then (in one case) soreness of the parts and weakness. Inflammation if placed in contact with the cellular tissues. Circulation and respiration rapid, then depressed. Prickling in various parts, with numbness. Restlessness. Constant inclination to sit and close eyes. Weakness. Nervous sensibility increased, then depressed. Heaviness. Sensation and power of motion impaired. Paralysis, < lower limbs; state of mixed P. and spasm, both tonic and clonic.

Mind.—Delirious at night. Bewildered. Excited as after spirituous drinks. Gay. Exhilarated. Depressed spirits and headache; D., with sleepiness, frightful dreams, and on waking in morning dull headache. Tranquil. Listless. Increased capacity. Stupor; in afternoon and evening, with disinclination for exertion. Sluggish association of ideas. Inability to concentrate mind; or to remain quiet in the house.

Head.—Aching in morning after rising, < l. side; in morning, > noon; with dry lips. Confusion; and heat. Strong pulsations, and in carotids. Vertigo; in afternoon; on blowing nose; on blowing nose, with sparks before eyes wherever he looks; as if the room went round with him; objects appear to turn around on closing eyes. Pressure in temporal and frontal regions. Pulsating pain in r. temple in afternoon. Neuralgic pain in occiput extending to nape. Itching of head extending over whole body.

Eyes and Ears.—Eyes injected; sclerotic injected. Eyes glassy and immovable. Burning in eyes, < l. Pupils dilated; contracted. Vision weak; did not see the letters distinctly on beginning to write; failed suddenly. V. of floating sparks on stooping. Stoppage of ears. Ringing in ears.

Clinical.—Twitching of eyelids (Agar, Croc.).

Nose and Face.—Nasal discharge, with irritation of Schneiderian membrane. Loss of smell. Face animated, rosy and gay, or dull and stupid. Terrified look. Pallor. Lips dry.

Mouth and Throat.—Dryness of anterior part of tongue and hard palate; of mouth, with thirst for beer. Inability to speak. Salivation. Tickling in throat in afternoon and evening.

Stomach.—Loss of appetite. Thirst; with désire for bitter substances. Eructations. Nausea. Violent retching on attempting to move. Vomiting. Pain; paroxysms of neuralgic, and in abdomen; acute, and in chest, extending through to back, between shoulders, < r. side of spine. Tenderness, with violent pulsations of heart and arteries.

Abdomen and Stool.—A. distended with flatus. Peristaltic action diminished. Pain in transverse colon, > gentle pressure; P. in A., with pulsations and rapid circulation and respiration. Tenderness of A. in morning extending to epigastrium and lungs; of hypogastrium in morning. Uncommon sense of tonicity in A. Purgine. Constipation, tenderness of bowels, < transverse and descending colon, and flatulence.

Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Diminished power of retention of urine and semi-paralysis of neck of bladder. Urine increased and light-colored, then scanty. Lascivious thoughts, causing frequent erections, day and night; excitement at night, with pollutions. Sexual power increased, then diminished.

Clinical.—Diabetes.

Respiratory Organs and Chest.—Tickling in larynx causing cough. Voice reduced to a whisper. Cough in morning, with soreness and sticking; short and irritating C., < night; C., with copious mucous and sometimes purulent expectoration. Sticking in l. lung on breathing. Sharp pain in r. lung on inspiration. Pain in chest and shoulder on motion. Sore feeling in sternal region. Fulness and oppression of chest. Drooping sensation below l. clavicle.

Clinical.—Dry, teasing cough, with phthisis.

Heart and Pulse.—Drawing pain around H., with loud and full beats of it, causing uneasiness. Uneasiness about H. Painful pulsations of H. on attempting to study or write. Fluttering of H. and oppression in its region, with great desire to walk in the open air. Pulse rapid; and full and strong; slow; small; small and weak; scarcely perceptible at wrist.

Neck and Back.—Convulsions of muscles of neck; of nape. Painful twitchings of muscles of neck. Painful pulsations in l. side of neck. Sharp pain below l. scapula on inspiration. Drawing pain below scapula on inspiration. Acute pain in kidney region. Heaviness and fatigue of lumbar muscles.

Extremities.—Paralytic weakness of arms and legs. Numbness of hands and feet; of hands and arms. Twitching of arms. Pain in deltoids; r.; l. in morning on dressing, > rest. Pulsating pain in l. upper arm. Feeling in upper arm as after a blow. Jerking pain in arm on attempting to remove the handkerchief from breast pocket. Twitching of lower. Weakness of lower. Paralytic sensations of lower. Knees give way when walking. Sudden pain in l. knee preventing walking and ceasing suddenly. Sprained pain in morning; s. feeling compelling him to stop abruptly when walking. Painful pulsations in soles, < resting them against a hard object.

Skin.—Eczema. Soreness after neuralgia. Sensitiveness to touch. Sensation as if a fly were crawling on chest, not > rubbing or scratching. Itching; over whole body; on face and head, gradually extending over body, with heat.

Sleep.—Sleepiness; with heaviness and gaping; with inability to sleep. Sleeplessness. Frequent waking, with the covers thrown off. Sleep unrefreshing. Dreams; unpleasant, of dead persons, etc.; pleasant; ridiculous.

Fever.—Cold skin; and moist; and clammy. Cold limbs. Agreeable warmth. General warmth, with itching, < between shoulders. Heat in head. Sweat in large beads on forehead.

Coffea Cruda.

A tincture is prepared (in a special manner) from the unroasted beans of Coffea Arabica, L.

General Action.—A general stimulant of cerebral activity.

Alles.—Opium, Nux v., Hyosc., Plat., Zinc.

Generalities.—Excitement, with lightness of all movements. Lightness of head and of all movements, increased sense of health and vigor. Pain in whole body so that he had little rest. Affected by walking in open air, it forces water from his eyes and he becomes weary. Aversion to open air. Disinclination for business (Nux v.). Inclination to lie down and close the eyes without ability or desire to sleep. Mental and physical exhaustion (Op.). Weariness on ascending steps. Dulness of internal sensibility on account of supernatural speculations. Aggravation when walking in open air.

Clinical.—Neuralgias of various parts of the body, face, abdomen, extremities, etc., always with great nervous excitability, intolerance of pain. Bad effects of stimulants, alcohol, tea, etc.

Mind.—Irrational talking during the heat, with open eyes, wishing this or that brought to her.

Lively; in evening; lively fancies, full of plans for the future, charmed with the beauties of nature of which he reads. Ill humor; > open air, with sadness and crying aloud; and disinclination to speak; he could throw everything away from him; full of care, lachrymose mood. Sad on walking in open air, lachrymose, disinclined to all business. Anxiety and unsteadiness; A., with trembling and inability to hold the pen still. Vivid flow of ideas. Unusual activity of mind and body till midnight (Op. in part), then sleep. Disappearance of thoughts for a moment. Inattention and loss of memory. Inability to think clearly. Does not know what he is reading or has read, without being conscious of foreign thoughts, when he does not read he is beset by a thousand thoughts and remembers the most remote events.

Clinical.—Delirium tremens, with trembling of hands, fears, thinks that he is not at home, restlessness, etc. Extreme activity of mind, the patient is sleepless, great flow of thought, with great acuteness of all senses. Mental excitability resulting from pleasurable emotions. Recurring attacks of weeping, with hysterical excitability, tremulousness, etc.

Head.—Feeling as if the brain were torn or crushed when walking in open air, > in room. Aching, < eating, > open air, soon returning in the room; A. as if brain were too full and crushed, after midday nap, < occiput; drawing, caused by reflection, with pressure in upper part of forehead. Tension in brain in morning on waking, he avoided opening eyes, it seems on stooping as if the brain fell forward and pressed against temples and forehead. Confusion; dizzy. Heaviness, with heat in face; H. and dizziness, with general anxiety, she believes she will fall. Rush of blood, < talking; rush of blood, with anxious heat and redness of face. Vertigo on stooping, with blackness before eyes.

On reading, brain feels torn and crushed at frontal eminence, then behind frontal bone. Compressive pain in forehead in evening. Confusion in forehead, < walking in open air, changing in r. temple into sticking-drawing pain. Pain in temples when walking in cold air, extending to occiput, > sitting in the house, again first <, then > going into open air. Pain in upper part of vertex. Crackling heard and felt in vertex when sitting still. Crackling in region of ear, rhythmical with pulse. Pain as if a nail were driven into one of the parietal bones (Ign. nearly). Rheumatic drawing in l. side of occiput. Itching of scalp.

Clinical.—Extremely violent neuralgic headaches, it seems as if the brain were being torn to pieces, the patient is unable to bear the pain; it seems as if a nail were being driven into the head, etc.

Eyes and Ears.—Boring in r. eye, with dim vision. Hardened mucus in canthi in forenoon. In the open air he sees more clearly than before. Music sounds too loud and shrill, he can bear only the lowest tones of the instrument.

Nose and Face.—Pain in anterior angle of l. nostril; almost burning sore P. in l. nostril. Warmth in l. nostril like a coryza, < hawking. Sneezing; in evening in bed and on waking. Stoppage of nose. Stopped coryza, with scanty discharge. Fluent coryza evenings, with sneezing. Frequent, sudden, watery discharge from nose. Nosebleed; in morning on rising and at 6 p.m. with heaviness of head and ill humor. Cheeks red and hot (in an infant), with uneasy sleep. Drawing in l. malar-bone, alternating with tearing in a tooth.

Mouth.—Sticking jerking from above downward into nerves of roots of teeth. Pain in a back tooth when biting on it; in front teeth on touch and on chewing, as if loose. Drawing in a hollow l. upper back tooth as after taking cold; (D. pain across l. upper back teeth, > biting jaws together). Tongue dry in forepart and burning, without thirst. Mouth dry in morning in bed, without thirst. Pain at margin of arches of palate, < by swallowing. Salivation. Taste bitter; in morning; in mouth all day, but food does not taste bitter; to water; excessively B. to bitter things. T. as after hazel-nuts. T. as after sweet almonds. T. especially pleasant to tobacco. Good, but too strong T. to food and tobacco, so that he cannot eat much or smoke much.

Clinical.—Neuralgic toothache with intolerance of the pain, > only by holding ice-water in the mouth (Pul.).

Throat.—Soreness, swelling of arches of palate, which seems like an accumulation of tough mucus. Sensation of catarrh in back part in morning after rising, flow of mucus from nose without sensation of catarrh in nose or frontal sinuses. Heat rises into throat.

Stomach.—Great hunger before dinner and hasty eating. Appetite diminished, the supper tasted good, but he was not hungry. Aversion to food, drink and tobacco, with nausea and salt taste in mouth, although food has no unusual taste. Aversion to coffee. Thirst, without dryness of tongue or heat; T. at night, frequent waking to drink. Short eructations of air; E. tasting of food from noon till evening. Hiccough. Nausea; in morning; at 5 P.M., with weakness; from 8 to 9 P.M., like a faintness and vertigo, with necessity to sit and lie down, weariness of limbs and chilliness; while eating palatable food; in upper part of throat. Vomiting. Easy contraction of gastric and abdominal muscles. Sticking in pit, with pressure, then painless distention of pit. Pressure in pit, she was obliged to loosen the clothes; P. in epigastric region when eating bread after a moderate meal, and afterwards. Tension, and in hypochondria. Unpleasant sensation beneath stomach, then distention and pain.

Abdomen.—Fulness after supper, with griping; F. after walking in open air. Fermentation and passage of much flatus; fermentation, then repeated vomiting, then waterbrash. Movings, as if necessitating a stool. Frequent and easy passage of flatus, then difficult, scanty, short, interrupted emission of flatus and constant urging to pass it; frequent, profuse, almost odorless F. Pain and diarrhoea; P. as if it would burst; P. as from incarcerated flatus; (cramplike pain, and in abdomen, with outward manifestation of labor pains, complaints as if intestines would be cut to pieces, with convulsions, body bent up, feet drawn up towards her head, frightful cries, grinding of teeth, became cold and stiff, piteous cries, holding her breath). Sticking extending out at ring, as in inguinal hernia; jerking S. in sides with every expiration. Painful pressure in sides in morning, temporarily > emission of flatus, extending into rings, as if a hernia would protrude.

Stool.—Urging to stool, stool soft, but difficult. Two, the first consistent, the second liquid. Frequent, hard.

Urinary Organs.—Pressure upon bladder, obliging him to urinate. Frequent urging in morning, but micturition scanty and in drops. Frequent micturition. Burning tearing in forepart of urethra. Urine copious; about midnight, with relaxation of genitals. Urine scanty. Urine blood-red.

Sexual Organs.—Relaxed, and desire diminished. Erections and emissions. Itching in forepart of penis; voluptuous l. on tip of penis in morning; l. on r. side of scrotum. Sore pain on scrotum on slightest rubbing of clothes. Relaxation of scrotum, with excitement of inner genitals, yet with cold fantasies. Digging-smarting in one testicle. Nightly emissions. Desire, then general dry heat without emission. Impotency and sluggish desire.

Clinical.—Uterine hemorrhage, extreme sensitiveness of genitals, flow dark, clotted (Plat.). Useful in after-pains, which are extremely difficult to tolerate.

Respiratory Organs.—Roughness in larynx in morning on waking, with hoarseness (Nux v.). Irritation to cough about midnight. He must restrain the cough, eyes obscured, faint and feeling as if he were whirling around. Cough in evening in bed and on waking; short, frequent, scraping C. Dry cough (in a child) in evening after falling asleep. Hacking cough frequently, as from irritation of throat; H. cough in sudden paroxysms, as from spasmodic constriction in larynx, which seemed covered with dry mucus.

Clinical.—Nervous cough, with anxiety, sleeplessness.

Chest.—Pain in side on coughing, almost like sticking. Oppression; (after disappearance of heat of face), with necessity to take short breaths, the chest raised visibly by respiration. Warmth, and in abdomen.

Heart.—Clinical.—Palpitation caused by excitement, surprise, etc.

Back.—Trembling, with warmth in back and between shoulders. Pain in small of; when walking; paralytic, in small of, when sitting and standing.

Extremities.—Lightness. Sticking-jerking through one or another. Bruised pain in all joints in morning in bed, > rising, < those that had been bent. Weakness after 4 P.M., the knees knock together, warmth internally and externally, with chilliness. Tearing in l. arm, < motion. Spasmodic drawing up arms after holding them bent, almost twitches. Weakness of arms and of whole body. Rheumatic bruised pain in l. upper arm. Trembling of hands if he tries to hold anything (Zinc). Cramplike contraction of one or another finger, in the morning he cannot straighten the little finger. Drawing in soft parts of fingers or tearing downward. Pain in a burnt finger that had been painless before the drug was taken. Numbness of fingers.

Lower Extremities.—Bruised pain in nates, from ischium to thigh, when sitting and walking, obliging him to limp. Sore feeling on inner side of thigh from slightest rubbing of woollen clothes. Knees tremble when descending steps. Cramp of calf on drawing up knee. Jerking on r. tibia, with corroding and smarting and with bruised sensation and heat of femur. Pain in legs after every walk, obliging her to lie down. Drawing pain beneath r. knee. Jerking-sticking beneath r. inner malleolus on stepping upon heel or bending foot backward or touching part. Feet tremble. Cramp of sole on putting on the foot.

Weariness of feet after walking in open air, extending half way up thighs. Sticking in balls of great toes at 4 P.M.

Skin.—Eruption and itching over the whole body. The itching of the eruption changed into burning.

Sleep.—Yawning. Wary with sleep. Overpowered with sleep, he dreaded apoplexy. Sound sleep. Sleepless on account of mental and physical excitement (Hyosc.). Sleep till 3 A.M., then only dozing and on waking he did not come to his senses (Nux v.). Sleepless from 2 to 7 A.M., with colic-like incarceration of flatus under ribs, which causes anxiety and heat over whole body and sweat under nose. Little sleep. Uneasy; so that he was lying turned about in bed. Talking immediately on falling asleep. Waking with a start. Frequent waking towards morning; frequent W. as from fright. Dreams long, vivid. Light D. His fancy is occupied with one thought when slumbering, from which he cannot free himself and which prevents sound sleep.

Clinical.—A most valuable remedy for sleeplessness with nervous excitability, extreme sensitiveness to external impressions and flow of ideas, the patient cannot sleep on account of mental activity.

Fever.—Chilliness; in bed at 5 A.M. and at 1 P.M.; < motion; < moving body, with warm skin, and on rising from the chair creeping chill with pale face; over whole body, cold creepings down back, then redness and heat of face, with cold hands, which are hot on inner surface while externally they are cold; then heat. Sensitiveness to cold. Open air seemed very cutting. Shivering, with redness and heat of one cheek; internal S., even in chest, with chilliness and with heat in head and sweat in face, without thirst. Chill, with heat, on both cheeks. C. in back, with shivering, but usual warmth of rest of body; C. in back with sensation of heat, especially warmth in middle of back and across lower abdomen, as if sweat would break out. Cold hands, then C. feet; C. feet after 4 P.M., with headache and rush of blood to head, > in open air.

Heat in morning in bed, but dislike to being uncovered; general H. at 3 P.M., with redness of face and thirst, then general sweat, thirst during the first hours of the sweat; general, at 8 P.M., externally perceptible, with dryness of mouth, shivering in back and down posterior part of body, then hands and feet cold, then in bed at one time heat, then coldness till after midnight, in morning headache as if beaten, so that every step is painful; H. in evening after lying down, everything seems too close, and at night sweat, < back; H. with red face. General dry heat waking at night and obliging her to turn around, with hot breath, but without thirst or dryness of mouth. H. in face, with red cheeks; after eating; dry H. of face. Hot feet.

Sweat towards morning; S. of hands when writing; of feet, with soreness of toes.

Coffea Tosta.

The effects of a hot infusion of roasted coffee having been observed, a fluid extract should be used as the basis of the pharmaceutical preparations.

Generalities.—Increase of solid constituents of blood; of fat in serum and of fibrin in blood. Hæmorrhages from nose, lungs, uterus and rectum. She walks uneasily up and down the room, with an anxious expression. Trembling; and muscular shiverings. Jerking (secondary effect). Reflex contractions in nearly every part alternately. Painful cramps in thighs, legs, feet, walls of chest and muscles of hyoid region at night. Restless. Feels strong enough to do anything. Weak. Peculiar sensation, somewhat like faintness. Aversion to open air, which aggravates symptoms (secondary effect). Left side generally affected. Amelioration from moderate outdoor exercise.

Mind.—Delirium tremens; (after a rheumatic attack, with great weakness). Excitement; agreeable, with sweat; agreeable, causing wakefulness. Loquacity. Fear. Timidity and fear of sudden death, causing trembling. Anxiety. Love for family. Veneration for Supreme Being. Desire to perform good deeds intensified.

Imagination and memory stimulated. Power of judgment increased. Attention more alive. Impelled to push things, wants to keep going ahead and doing something. Brain clear and very active. Creative activity, vivacity of thought, versatility and ardor of desire, more favorable to the exaggerated expression of ideas previously formed than to the quiet examination of new conceptions. Mental energy taken away by sudden symptoms. Sensorium not clear, and next day obscure recollection of what had occurred, plain or connected answers were not obtainable, it was difficult to engage her attention, she repeated incessantly the same phrases in the most dolorous tone. Somewhat unconscionable.

Head.—Aching; < noon and evening; twice a week, usually lasting two days, commencing with neck beginning to grow stiff always on l. side, spreading over l. side of head and down over outside of humerus, across biceps, diagonally to elbow, > quiet, rubbing with ice or cold compresses and transiently by lying down, < jar in moving, with tight feeling in head and pressure outward in occiput behind l. ear, throbbing up and down in l. occipital region, when headache is severe l. side of breast is red and mottled in fine points, white and red, skin on l. side red-hot, moist and swollen, irritable mood, intolerance of noise, must have perfect rest, after the headache weak feeling in head and inability for mental labor. Rush of blood. Vertigo; < thinking, partially > change of position, with burning in stomach and faint feeling (secondary effects). Sensation as if everything in head were going in slow circles, now in one direction, now in another, with noises in ears.

Neuralgia in supraorbital nerve, extending through eye into malar-bone, first r., then extending to l. < r. > mental distraction and by sleep, pain at first dull, becoming sharp. Heaviness over eyes (secondary effect). Sensation as if a piece of lead were nailed to parietal bones, < motion of head. Stinging in locality of amativeness on l. side. Numbness in occiput, with aching and throbbing.

Eyes.—Surrounded by blue rings. Conjunctiva of lids slightly red, < towards margin, and C. of bulb slightly red in canthi and corners. Pupils enlarged; but sensitive. Sensation of a fog. Intolerance of candle-light, it seems surrounded by a dim broad halo, causing pressure in brows. Musce volitantes. Aggravation of myopia.

Ears.—Every step and every loud word is painfully felt in ears. Ringing. Sounds of pounding or ringing in the distance. Roaring, buzzing and singing. Incessant noises.

Face.—Pale; and anxious; waxy. Puffy, as if dropsical, waxy, pale yellow. Flushed. Lips and tongue pale and dry.

Mouth and Throat.—Pain in r. lower teeth (sawd), driving him nearly crazy, > cold water in mouth, returning as soon as the water became warm. Tongue dry. Spasmodic contraction of throat.

Stomach.—Loss of appetite. Aversion to food, she can take only small quantities of water. Nausea, with faintness; N., with ineffectual retching. Vomiting with difficulty. Fulness in epigastrium and partial loss of appetite (secondary effects). Tympanic distention of epigastric region, very sensitive to touch, less so to pressure. Cramp, with nausea. Anxiety in epigastrium. Tension so that she must loosen her clothes. Distress in epigastrium and l. chest, < cold water and cold food (secondary effect). Heaviness in cardiac region (secondary effect). Sinking and emptiness.

Abdomen.—Painful tympanic distention. Swollen and hard, < region of bladder, which was sensitive to touch. Rumbling; causing warmth, painful, forcing her to bend up and press with hands. Sticking. Warmth and coldness moving about alternately. Pain in hypochondria; just below spleen. Hepatic region sensitive. Ebullition in hypochondria.

Anus and Stool.—Hæmorrhoids. Discharge of bright blood every morning with the regular stool. Pruritus ani. Frequent diarrhoea. Copious stools, later constipation. Frequent stools; with tenesmus. Stool omitted.

Urinary Organs.—Ineffectual urging. Micturition frequent, copious, sp. gr. 1.014; frequent, of scanty pale urine. Ischuria, with burning and pressure in region of bladder. Milky discharge (probably prostatic) at close of micturition, with smarting or burning at orifice of urethra, then cutting in sphincter vesicæ or region of prostate (secondary effect). Tickling in urethra. Urine increased and colorless; increased, with diminished sp. gr.; U. increased, but urea, phosphoric acid and sodium chloride diminished; and urea and phosphoric acid diminished, sodium chloride increased. Solid constituents of urine, except earthy phosphates, diminished. Urea diminished, it was not a diuretic though there was frequent micturition.

Genital Organs.—Power lost; weakened in men. Spasmodic sensation deep in uterine region, it seemed as if something tried to press outward and could not because it caused spasms. Menstruation increased and prolonged. Pruritus vulvæ.

Respiration.—Asthma, with oppression of chest. Dyspnoea, with quick breathing. Rattling. Painful, short, rapid. Complained of want of air, and compression of chest and clung convulsively to the furniture or persons, but sank down powerless. Diminution of expired water; of expired carbonic acid.

Chest.—Constriction.

Heart.—Præcordial symptoms. Increased, vigor of action. Palpitation; and the impulse seems almost to raise chest. Diminished action. Fluttering.

Pulse.—Rapid; and tense; and full; and together with heart losing one beat to every four. Slow. Variable, often almost imperceptible, sometimes intermittent (secondary effect). Decreases according to the tracings, with diminished extent of oscillation and consequent increase of arterial tension, but when the tracings are taken a few moments after an infusion of black coffee, especially when well roasted and of a strong aromatic odor, the peculiarities are directly the opposite.

Extremities.—Trembling; of arms and legs. Chorealike movements; < hands. Gait tottering.

Skin.—Itching.

Sleep.—Restless on account of unpleasant and confused dreams. On going to sleep starting up in fright, with groans and fear of falling or of impending danger (secondary effect). Sleeplessness; from rush of all kinds of thoughts; with ecstatic excitement, intermittent, with dreams. Vivid dreams of magnificence. Dream that the sky is spanned with rainbows from horizon to zenith, visions of enchantment, beautiful landscapes, view of Paradise, later dreams of the death of friends, which do not abate the exhilaration, but he looks at all with supernatural indifference.

Fever.—Cold feeling. Shaking chills ascending from fingers and toes to nape and thence to vertex, with general shaking and chattering of teeth. Cayenne pepper taken internally produces warmth and makes him fearless (secondary effect). Shivering (on account of easy sweat) from least exposure to cold air (secondary effect). Shivering in lumbar region. Cold forehead; C. skin and limbs; feet and hands (secondary effect). Orgasm of blood. Heat; in flushes alternating with cold currents down back; in cheeks, with hot flushes in face, with scarcely noticeable redness. Sweat; cool; cold, clammy, < palms (secondary effect).

Coffeinum.

An alkaloid found in coffee, Thea, Guarana, etc., but usually prepared from tea leaves. There is some reason to believe that the alkaloids of coffee and tea, though chemically similar, are physiologically different.

Trembling. Uneasiness; and inability to keep erect. Faintness. Collapse; and pulse hardly perceptible, irregular, 120, skin cold and clammy. Numbness. Delirium. Excitement; so that he was unable to fix his mind; of nervous and vascular systems. Confusion of ideas. Visions. Head, aching; heavy and confused; marked pulsation in arteries of H. and temples. Peculiar intoxicated condition. Vertigo. Vision of sparks. Roaring in ears. Features expressive of anxiety. Grating of teeth. Tongue dry. Burning in throat and gullet. Constriction of throat and neck every fifteen minutes.

Thirst. Nausea. Vomiting, with relief of all symptoms; V. of digested matters and violent purging, on leaving the closet he could hardly walk. Pain and tenderness in stomach and abdomen. Abdominal pulsation. Constant urging to urinate, with scanty discharge. Increase of urine; with decrease of urea, phosphoric acid and sodium chloride; with decrease of urea and phosphoric acid and increase of sodium chloride. Urea increased; decreased. Erections. Oppression of chest. Præcordial anxiety. Palpitation. Pulse rapid; and full, hard; and irregular, often intermittent. Trembling of limbs. Sleep very sound at last. Sleepless.

Colchicum.

A tincture is prepared from the fresh bulbs of Colchicum autumnale, L.

General Action.—It produces violent inflammation of the gastro-intestinal canal, with profound depression of the heart and of the temperature. It produces also acute inflammation of the kidneys. It is specially interesting to note that it produces symptoms of the acute manifestations of gout, quite apart from any direct modifications of the excretion of urea or uric acid. Its relief of acute gout seems to be purely a homœopathic action.

Allies.—Verat. alb., Merc. cor., Arnica, Rhus t., China.

Generalities.—Solid constituents of defibrinated blood diminished, also the absolute amount of blood-corpuscles and of plasma. Appearance of being in the advanced stage of typhoid fever. Stretching. Trembling. Convulsions; of l. side and muscles of face; involving neck and face, jaws clenched, froth from mouth, eyes distorted; limbs spasmodically flexed, fingers and toes flexed, eyes convulsively rotated, l. hand, which kept hold of penis, trembled, C. became more frequent, extended to muscles of neck, jaws clenched, frothing at the mouth; r. arm could not be extended, the l. could not be flexed, feet were drawn upward, soles formed a half circle and toes were spasmodically drawn inward. Tearing jerks, < l. side; suddenly through one half of body.

Stitches above eyes, in shoulders, elbows and wrists. Tearings here and there. Cutting or pinching in spots, now in r. anterior and lower part of chest, now deep in hepatic region, now in region of spleen. Pinching and crawling in some toes, in ball of r. foot, in fingers, ears and in spots of skin of face, in evening, as after freezing or change of weather. Drawing, jerking and tearing in incisors, facial muscles and other muscles here and there. Tearing tension here and there, for example, below pit of stomach, in ribs of l. side, below axilla, in r. popliteal space. "Aching all over." Sufferings seem intolerable; in evening. Anguish and agitation. Symptoms similar to rheumatic fever; rheumatic pain in whole body in evening, < in back, upper arms and shoulders. Tremulous sensation in whole body as from fasting, in afternoon, < after dinner. Sensitiveness to slightest touch (Arn., China, Bell., etc.).

Confused sensations. Malaise, with fornication. Much affected by work, < reading or writing. Discomfort; prickling. Restlessness (Rhus t.); in morning, constantly turning head from l. to r.; could not lie on l. side. Disinclination to work. No inclination to leave the bed. Exhaustion (China, Rhus t., Verat., etc.). Weakness; all day, > in evening; in morning; in morning on waking; in morning on rising; in evening; on ascending steps; after stool, with indolence, sleepiness, prostration of limbs; when sitting quietly, > moving (Rhus t.), especially in open air, returning on sitting down, with nausea in throat and confusion in head; with restlessness (Rhus t.) with paralyzed feeling, < in arms; sudden W. Faintness; after a copious stool. Muscles seem paralyzed, < limbs; paralysis of r. side, with only slight sensation, the toes on slightest touch drawn towards sole. Aggravation from mental exertion; from coffee; of all pains at beginning of night and at daybreak. Amelioration from rubbing; A. for a short time after every attack of vomiting; after stools, except pains in pelvic organs, which become worse.

Clinical.—There are always extreme prostration and tendency to collapse, with internal coldness (Verat.).

Mind.—Delirium; at night; in evening. Muttering and raving at times. Beside himself at external impressions, for example, a bright light, strong odors, contact, rudeness of others. Complained there was something in the bed, generally a piece of soap. Carphologia. Excitement, with disinclination to mental activity. Exhilaration. Sadness; with weariness, painfulness and sensitiveness of whole body, so that he could scarcely refrain from weeping. Apprehension. Anxiety; causing sighing. Irritability. Indifference. Great flow of thoughts at night disturbing sleep. Absent-minded. Inability to write connectedly; to think connectedly; to fix thoughts, with tension of forehead. Weakness. Consciousness of logical connection destroyed, and perception impaired by slightest interruption. Memory weak; so that he forgets the word he was about to speak. Unconsciousness.

Head.—Falls backward. Moved from side to side. Sticking in brain. Tearing, < in forehead. Pinching here and there. Burrowing, < on r. side and vertex. Aching; in evening; night; on entering room after walking in open air, > sleep; feeling in morning after rising as if the previous pain would return, < shaking head, after washing pain in outer posterior part, < towards evening; deep, extending across through head, between ears and posteriorly. Feeling as if tightly bound. Confusion; in morning; in morning, like vertigo. Emptiness. Seems thick. Congestion. Perceptible pulsation. Vertigo; on rising; even to falling, when sitting after walking; with stupefaction of head; with confusion in middle of forehead; on looking fixedly at an object, objects appear to whirl and change color, they generally appear yellow and sometimes with iridescent borders.

Forehead.—Sticking above r. eye; in brain beneath coronal suture; deeply piercing, above l. brow, with occasional feeling as if drawn upward. Pinching above eyes. Boring, < over r. eye. Neuralgic pain in r. eminence, > pressure and cold, with dull pain in r. occipital protuberance. Aching; r. then l.; above eyes; above r. eye; near coronal suture; and in eye; in a spot on r. side in morning on waking; on washing; above l. eye after eating, > open air, < in the room; in bone over l. eye on every motion, < afternoon and by noise, in the same place next day, < motion of head, next day in r. side of occiput, < bending head backward or raising eyes, next day pain at 6 p.m. above l. eye extending over l. side of head, > supper, next day in l. side of occiput extending to l. eye and into face; < above brows and extending into dorsum of nose; in middle, with hyperæsthesia of cranial nerves; extending towards occiput towards evening, becoming a drawing pain. Oppressive pain above eyes in afternoon. Pressure as if everything would be pressed outward. Tearing tension in a spot on l., as if an abscess would form. Constriction above eyes. Confusion; < walking in the wind, > in the room.

Sticking in r. temple, < evening. Tearing in r. temple; jerking T. in temples. Painful drawing in l. temple. Pain in r. temple in evening, > when quiet in bed. Boring in skull of vertex, moving along sagittal suture. Pain in vertex. Oppression of vertex.

Tearing in l. half of head, extending to vertex; crawling boring T. in a spot on r. upper part of head, then in l. side; drawing T. in l. half of head, mostly beginning in l. eyeball and extending towards occiput. Pain in r. parietal eminence; in a spot on upper

r. side of head. Drawing in upper part of l. side extending into nose.

Tearing in a spot on r. side of occiput; in spot on l. side of O. Pain in occiput; in r.; then in upper part of sinicupit, > warmth and rest in bed; deep in cerebellum from slightest literary occupation. Confusion in head posteriorly and superiorly. Heaviness in O., < motion or bending forward. Hair falls out. Tearings in scalp. Feeling as if scalp were drawn forward to top of skull. Crawling in forehead.

Clinical.—Intense neuralgic headaches, with frequent ineffectual efforts to sneeze, the pains are usually throbbing and shooting, < waking in morning.

Eyes.—Red and watery, pupils dilated. Conjunctiva inflamed and congested. Sunken. Surrounded by dark rings. Dim. Staring. Distorted. Rolling convulsively. Tearing in and around r. Pain; in r. Biting in r., < external canthus, with lachrymation and feeling as if lids were agglutinated. Heaviness as if he had not slept enough, with injected vessels. Dryness. Lachrymation in open air. Pupils contracted; l.; dilated; uneasy. Drawing digging deep in balls. Pain in l. ball. Compression in r. ball. Ulceration of Meibomian glands of l. lower lid, with swelling of lid and irritability of nerves generally. Lids in constant motion. Twitching of r. upper lid. Redness and burning of margins of lids, as in blepharitis. Drawing (similar to twitching) in l. lower lid, towards inner canthus. Pressure in brows. Vision very acute. Flickering before eyes. Blackness before eyes on attempting to stand. Hallucinations, fatiguing.

Clinical.—Kerato-iritis, with pus in anterior chamber of eye. Occasional attacks of rheumatic inflammation of iris (see Clematis); ulcerations of cornea and opacities of cornea. (The symptoms of destructive inflammation within the eyeball observed but once, in a boy, have been omitted.)

Ears.—Sticking; in l.; twinging S. in l. Tearing in r. meatus; behind r., in region of articulation of jaw, with pain on touch. Pinching. Digging in r. Pain, then sticking deep in them; P. behind r. as if a gland were swollen. Waving sensation in r. Stopped feeling in r.; S. feeling if he takes a few steps, with roaring in them. Itching deep in them, with dryness, boring does not reach the itching painful spot. Roaring; in r. Tinnitus aurium. Distressing noises. Noises cause disagreeable sensations, with starting. Hearing acute; difficult.

Clinical.—It has been used for discharges from ears after measles.

Nose.—Pinching in upper part. Sore pain in r. nostril, in septum, < touch and on moving nose. Pressure in bones; and facial bones; in nostrils, with tearing. Weight in bones. Sensation in mucous membrane as in beginning coryza. Nostrils dry and blackish. Crawling; in tip; with sneezing; with warmth, as in nosebleed. Sneezing. Bleeding in evening. Coryza; fluent; with discharge of much tough mucus. Catarrh, and in fauces. Smell very acute; the odor of a freshly-poached egg makes him almost faint. Smell as of smoked ham.

Clinical.—Extremely acute smell, especially for the odors of cooking, the smell of food being prepared causes nausea and disgust for food, indeed all strong odors are oppressive; this symptom occurs in the course of many diseases, gout, dysentery, etc.

Face.—Red. Cheeks red; and hot. Cheeks, lips and eyelids purple; cheeks, lips, r. eyelids purple.

Bluish. Hippocratic. Bluish-white. Pale; and sunken; cheeks and chin alternately pale and red. Sunken; about mouth and in front of ears. Drawn; and pinched, the lips, nose and lobes of ears blue. Anxious; and haggard. Suffering expression. Sticking in l. cheek. Tearing in l. side, extending to ear and head, with tension. Pain near r. temple; near r. articulation of jaw, or twinges in ear. Bruised pain in l. cheek. Jerking-drawing pain in muscles extending into bones. Sensation in cheeks as if drawn asunder; sensation in bones as if widely drawn asunder, with drawing jerking in them.

Lips cracked. Lips appeared as if they had been seared with a hot iron. Round ulcer on vermilion margin of lips. Hydroa on upper lip. Lips pale; and tender, and cracking of lower on motion of mouth. Lips bluish; and dry, also tongue. Cutting tearing in vermilion border of l. upper lip. Sudden sticking in l. lower jaw; sticking pressure beneath l. lower jaw. Tearing in r. jaws, with sensation as if teeth were too long. Pinching in r. articulation of jaw. Drawing in r. upper jaw, extending to margin of orbit, alternating with irritation in throat. Tension in articulation of jaw, so that he must lay aside the cigar. Masseter muscles seem increased in breadth, allowing him to open the mouth only a little, and pain.

Mouth.—Teeth. Sordes. Grinding. Sticking in r. Tearing in roots of l. lower. Pain in l. lower back; (in decayed T. when chewing). Drawing pain on taking anything cold after something warm; D. in lower incisors, with cold sensation in them. Soreness from pain; S. so that he could not bite on them. Grumbling in upper back. Seem too long. Blunt feeling, with pain, especially drawing extending from tips of upper teeth into jaw-bone. Follicular inflammation of gum about a r. incisor. Follicular ulcer in commissure of upper lip and gum, with burning pain. Tearing in r. lower gum; in gum of l. lower incisors; in r.; in the gap of a r. upper tooth. Pain in gums.

Tongue.—White. Pale blue and cold. Yellow. Red, covered with mucus; bright red, coated only at root. Coated; in morning; white; white patches on under part; white, with velvety sensation; yellow; brown. Dry; on dorsum, and brownish; and brown in centre, red along edges. Sticking in middle; S. and burning. Tearing posteriorly in l. side. Sharp pain about root on moving it and on swallowing. Burning; pricking, on margin. Enlarged feeling, as if stretched out across teeth. Biting, and in throat. Cold; and breath. Heavy; then stiff, then insensible; and difficult to find the right word and to articulate it when found. Speech difficult.

Working her mouth and spitting, as if trying to spit out a hair. Mucous membranes secrete a viscid substance. Greenish mucus involuntarily thrown out when sneezing. Scraping in mouth, with pasty taste and great hunger. Scraping crawling in posterior part of palate as in coryza. Agreeable pricking as after champagne, with salivation. Dryness. Heat. Blunted sensibility, especially of root of tongue. Salivation; of agreeable taste; watery; watery, with nausea, fullness and discomfort in abdomen; watery, with dryness in throat; bad-tasting; flat-tasting, causing nausea. Saliva salt, piquant-tasting. Taste bitter; and flat; pasty; pasty in morning; like vinegar; improper to water. Strongly-tasting food causes a sensation as if chewing old linen.

Throat.—Perceptible pulsation in carotids. Drawing in external half of r. side. Much greenish mucus. Frequent hawking of scanty mucus. Inflammation. Tearing far back, < l. side. Pinching posteriorly as in beginning angina, with dryness in throat and impeded swallowing. Uvula painful and red. Scraping. Rawness in morning and hoarseness. Constriction; of pharynx. Crawling provoking cough and hawking of mucus; C. with loosening of thin mucus, which must be frequently expectorated; biting C. in back. Fulness at night disturbing sleep. Burning in pharynx; and along œsophagus; in uvula, then profuse pale urine. Dryness; with redness of uvula and arches of palate; posteriorly, very painful on swallowing, as in beginning of quinsy; scraping; with tickling cough. Swallowing difficult; with pain along œsophagus; S. painful. Sensation at beginning of œsophagus on swallowing as of a round swelling.

Stomach.—Great appetite (China); at noon; in afternoon; evening; for dinner; gnawing, almost a throbbing in stomach; A. for different things, but as soon as he sees them, or still more smells them (Nux v.), he shudders from nausea and cannot eat. A. diminished; for breakfast, but great at noon. A. lost; lost for breakfast; lost at noon. Aversion to food and drink. Thirst; in afternoon; unquenchable; for cold drinks; with pain in stomach and bowels.

Eruations; with burning in stomach; empty; empty in forenoon; of water. Hiccough. Nausea; in morning on waking, with rumbling in abdomen, painful contractions, gripings and urging and sensation of loose bowels; at times during dinner; after dinner, at which he could eat but little; after eating; if he swallows the saliva; on becoming erect; on motion of head, with faintness; < raising oneself in bed, and vomiting of bitter bilious fluid; > small swallows of cold water, which she desires constantly; in throat caused by pressure below; in throat as after vomiting. Retching; long, then violent vomiting of a large mass of yellowish, bitter mucus, leaving a bitter bilious taste in throat.

Vomiting; with watery diarrhoea (Verat. a.); symptoms of cholera morbus; attack similar to cholera, with constant rice-water vomiting and similar stools, which were forcible and accompanied by tenesmus. Violent, unless he bent himself up and lay still; violent, with trembling and cramps; with diarrhoea; violent, of all food eaten three hours before; violent, of a brown substance; violent, of greenish water, then of contents of stomach; of yellowish-green fluid, so violent that he could not retain the slightest food or drink. Frightful on motion, > lying on r. side; F. of food mingled with a bitter brown powder, then of water, partly bitter, partly flat-tasting mucus. Constant. Frequent, but scanty; F. of colorless and inodorous fluid; F. of bile, with griping in abdomen, then bitterness in mouth and throat. Copious and easy, then appetite. Of food immediately; of the breakfast; of food and pale greenish mucus; of undigested food and a yellow liquid, then diarrhoea; of food eaten the night before, then of much thick, yellow bile, then thinner and less yellow, at last of pale straw color containing many white shreds. Of drinks tinged with bile. Of bile; then like rice-water; of tenacious bile. Of everything taken into stomach. Thin and slimy. Of profuse yellow fluid. Of much yellowish-green water. Of green fluid. Of whitish-gray fluid. Of a quart of thick whitish substance in morning, of tenacious greenish matter at 11 A.M., soon repeated, V. of brandy and water at 3 P.M. Of viscid, tasteless fluid. Of mucus.

Spasmodic contraction on touch. Rumbling and moving. Gastritis. Gastralgia. Tearing on beginning to vomit and purge. Cramp; and in abdomen and legs. Pinching in epigastrium. Pain; in morning; in evening when walking; after a light meal; in epigastrium; in epigastric region, with swollen feeling in stomach without real swelling, with intolerance of pressure; extending into l. side of abdomen; in region, extending over abdomen, with tenderness; in region, gradually extending over abdomen, with nausea and vomiting; and in abdomen, causing her to bend double. Soreness. Sensitiveness of epigastric region to pressure. Constriction; in epigastric region. Oppression in pit; with pressure; in epigastric region. Fulness; in epigastric region, < when walking, with pressure and oppression; as if sensitive to pressure of clothes. Desire to hiccough. Disordered feeling, with eructations tasting of undigested food. Tension. Burning in epigastrium; with drawing; in stomach, with pain; before stool; in epigastric region, with fulness; in S., with heaviness; warmth in S. at night; B. extending upward along sternum. Heartburn. Coldness (Verat.). Uneasiness. Discomfort; extending to spine; in epigastric region. Crawling; on becoming erect, as in vomiting. Weakness in pit, with oppression. Faintness, even after breakfast.

Clinical.—One of the most characteristic indications for Colchicum is craving for various things, but when they are brought to him, especially if he smells them, he is seized with extreme aversion and becomes nauseated, and may even vomit. It is indicated in the most violent attacks of gastralgia, with retching and vomiting of food and bile, from the repression of gout.

Abdomen.—Bile increased. Sunken. Doughy and painful on slightest pressure. Distention; after supper; after eating, > copious thin stool; and tension and hardness; and in rectum; as if she had eaten too much, < light food. Tympanitis. Rumbling; then soft stool; after stool; then hunger; with urging to stool. Movings as before diarrhoea. Emission of flatus; offensive, forcible; much offensive; offensive, in evening; of odorless. Painful flatulence. Cramps in muscles and in flexors of limbs.

Sticking transversely through; S., < r. side, beneath liver, inguinal region and in pit of stomach. Cutting. Enteritis. Pinching, then soft stool. Tomina. Griping; with unsatisfactory stool; then pasty stool. Gnawing. Pain; at night, and frequent vomiting; after rising, with diarrhoea; before thin stool; > rubbing, then tasteless eructations and passage of flatus; temporarily > watery stools; < colon, with lumbar pain and pressure about pelvis, stools at first of usual appearance, then soft, yellowish, of pitchlike stickiness, fetid, causing heat of anus, then pain, then tenesmus, later they diminish in frequency, become watery and colorless; with vomiting and diarrhoea; extending to chest, with anxiety and heat, < head; as from incarcerated flatus. Spasmodic constriction before vomiting. Tenderness, with intermittent pain, as in peritonitis. Soreness and discomfort. Drawing as before colic. Uneasiness: with movings and urging to stool. Burning here and there becoming griping.

Chilliness, < stomach, with pain and weakness. Pulsation in morning, and in chest, like a great rush of blood to chest. Weak sensation becoming hunger. Paralysis of intestines and change of inflammation to gangrene.

Upper.—Sticking in r. hypochondrium; in spleen in evening. Tearing in l. hypochondrium; cutting, in hepatic region; cutting, in r. upper. Cutting cramplike pain in evening, extending to navel. Pinching in l., extending to region of hip, > eructations. Pain in morning on waking; on pressure; as from incarcerated flatus anteriorly beneath r. short ribs; in spleen on pressure, as from the pressure of a fold, preventing sleep on account of inability to lie on l. side according to custom. Pressing-out pain beneath pit of stomach, > eructations. Tension, extending to r. hypochondrium; T. transversely across hypochondria. Warmth in middle, and fulness; when walking.

Sticking in umbilical region; here and there below U. region. Pinching in l. side of A. and near r. hip. Sharp pressing-outward pain above and to l. of navel. Pressure in thin intestines, on l. side of navel; in l. side of navel as from incarcerated flatus, with sensitiveness to pressure. Pain in umbilical region before and at beginning of noon meal, with flatulence. Internal soreness between l. hip and ribs, even on touch. Burning below umbilicus, with dragging towards small of back.

Lower.—Rumbling in transverse colon. Sticking in l. part of transverse colon. Tearing to l. of r. hip. Cutting in r., then in upper l. side, but not in intestines. Sudden pain, with slimy, watery, almost involuntary stools. Pressure in ilium to l. of navel; in region of transverse colon, with discomfort. Dragging in descending colon, with moving. Irritation of pelvic organs; I. as from diarrhoea, and in anus, and urging to stool, with aching in abdomen. Warmth just above anus, with sensation of a live worm there, itching and burning on the corresponding spot on skin, sensitiveness to slight touch, but not to hard touch, > scratching, with redness.

Clinical.—In typhlitis; in extreme distention of abdomen, with icy coldness in stomach, colic, occasional attacks of nausea and vomiting. Ascites with the characteristic gastric symptoms.

Rectum.—Prolapsus. Throbbing. Throbbing smarting. Sensation of diarrhoea, preceded by cutting, without thin stool. Tenesmus; with only a little feces at first, then transparent, bilious, membranous mucus, with relief of colic; > frequent passage of flatus; urging to stool, which is unsatisfactory; after stool; with passage of flatus; with scanty feces; urging, then painful stool, as if sphincter would be torn asunder; then difficult, soft stool, then pain in small of back; sudden urging, with copious stool and gripping, afterwards much motion in colon, then six copious, watery, yellow stools; frequent urging, with hard stool or none, with pain in anus. Ineffectual urging; though the feces were felt in rectum; frequent, preceded by colic.

Anus.—Spasms of sphincter, with chilliness running up back, then urging to stool, and insufficient stool. Sticking, and anteriorly in urethra and in l. hip. Sticking tearing. Pain; in sphincter, as if it would be torn, with hard stool. Sensation as in diarrhoea, copious, not thin stools, then in rectum sensation of diarrhoea and sore biting in anus. Crawling and jerking. Sudden itching. Burning; intermittent; with pricking.

Stool.—Contained many white shreds. Dysentery, stools slimy and bloody, with tenesmus. Watery; and frequent; and frequent, without sensation; and frequent, with gripping; and frequent and large, with gripping at each discharge; and frequent, copious, colored with bile; and painless; and copious, yellowish; and offensive, containing pieces of white membrane; and frequent, offensive, orange-yellow, slimy, with bright yellow flakes, without feces; like rice-water, copious, frothy, slimy, compared to clean soapsuds; and frothy, painless; and slimy, brownish-black, of a turpentine look, putrid, as if mixed with fresh bile or blood; and slimy, greenish-black, smelling like fresh bile or fresh blood that has stood some minutes in a water-bath. Thin, profuse, dark brown; T., yellow and bloody; T., yellow, copious, preceded and followed by pain, rumbling and motions in abdomen, then ineffectual tenesmus; T., yellow; T., yellow, forcible, with discomfort, almost pain in abdomen during and after stool. Soft, difficult, partly returning into anus. Pasty; and profuse; after dinner, with flatulence, then emission of offensive flatus. Slimy, with tenesmus.

Constipation; with full sensation in rectum; then scanty stool. Hard stool; scanty and sluggish. Copious; and offensive. Scanty, difficult, not hard. Difficult, but not hard. Easy. Involuntary; at night; and black, offensive; and involuntary micturition. Bloody. Frequent; at night; alternating with vomiting. Offensive, containing lumps looking like sponge.

Clinical.—Dysentery, great tenesmus, discharges jelly-like or bloody, mucous or changeable in character, but with great tenesmus, with or without stool, with tympanitis, colic, inability to stretch out the legs; at times the dysenteric discharges are reddish, mucous, like scrapings of intestines, sometimes there is even protrusion of the lower bowels (Pod.). Especially indicated in autumnal dysentery (compare Aloe and Mercurius).

Urinary Organs.—Strangury. Urging to urinate. Symptoms as from Cantharides, often muddy sediment, consisting of epithelium of vesical mucous membrane. Frequent micturition; day and night; every half hour, of diabetic urine; of deep yellow, copious urine. Retention of urine. Cutting in urethra on micturition; C. in forepart. Drawing pain in urethra. Drawing in urethra; posteriorly; with tearing. Tickling in navicular fossa after urinating. Burning in urethra; then profuse discharge of pale urine; B. on urinating, with contraction of neck of bladder; B. as if sore, on urinating; crawling B. in morning after urinating, with sensation as if more urine would pass, and burning when passing a few drops.

Urine.—Copious; with urging; and hot; and pale; and dark; and golden, clear, then with white floating clouds, and turbid. Scanty; and red and burning. Dark; dark brown. Bloody, with strangury. Turbid, then clear and yellow; T., mucous. Like lime-water, the turbidity caused by urate of ammonia.

Clinical.—Nephritis with extreme pain in the region of the kidneys, in some cases < stretching out legs, as from pressure on the kidneys, in the abdominal cavity, urine bloody or dark albuminous; in some cases there are symptoms of inflammation of the neck of bladder, with terrible pain after urinating (Canth.). Inflamed kidneys, with pain in back and sacrum, hot, burning urine, constant chilliness and cold extremities, with coldness in stomach.

Sexual Organs.—Tearing in glans; in l. spermatic cord. Erections and exhausting emissions. Pain in l. testicle as if crushed, when stepping on l. foot. Great desire; at night; after eating. Meneses too early; M. that had just appeared disappeared.

Respiratory Organs.—Pain in larynx, with croupous expectoration from it; in muscles somewhat to l., internally and externally above larynx. Scraping in larynx. Tickling in larynx. Crawling in trachea and chest, with cough. Hoarse; and husky voice, with pain in speaking. Voice hollow and deep. Voice lost, as in cholera. Cough and deep respiration; severe C. at regular intervals; almost voluntary coughing up of starchlike lumps of mucus; (C. alternating with coryza.) Bloody sputa. Difficult breathing; and short; and anxiety. Dyspnoea; and contraction of chest. Rapid breathing; and heavy, almost stertorous. Desire to take frequent deep inspirations. Respiration irregular; intermittent. Moaning and clutching at heart.

Clinical.—Dyspnoea, with œdema of extremities, chronic troubles with the kidneys and heart.

Chest.—Twitching of r. pectoral muscles. Increase of carbonic acid from lungs. Sticking in r.; near r. arm; in r. lower side, in lung; beneath l. clavicle; in l. upper part; in l., near eighth rib; in l. in morning in bed on and after exertion; in l. on coughing and on inspiration; in muscles on moving chest; deep in l. side on complete expiration, not on inspiration, afterwards only on inspiration; here and there, not affecting respiration; < breathing, with cutting; from anterior wall to posterior wall; S. outward in r.; burning, externally on r. Sticking, rheumatic pain in r. wall.

Tearing near r. axilla, becoming soreness, even on touch and motion; sticking, deep in r., where it is difficult to say whether it is more in the back, whence it extends, or more in chest; cutting, across. Cutting in l., not affecting respiration; C. in l. lower forepart, on blowing nose; in r., almost taking away the breath, then in chest, not deep and not affecting the less sensitive parts; pinching, here and there, in l. anterior and lower part. Pinching. Boring in l., < 10 P.M., with difficult breathing and anxiety; drawing B. from middle of sternum to l. nipple, > deep inspiration, the pain less severe in r. side of chest, it afterwards extended over whole chest and caused constriction as from a weight.

Pain; around r. side, preventing writing; on sitting a long time, extending to scapulae. Intermittent pressure in r., now upper, now lower. Sore pain deep in a spot in region of l. nipple, < inspiration, > rising from bed. Anxiety, < l. Sternum and spine feel as if sewed together, the pressure beginning on sternum. Oppression; when walking; alternating; anxious. Constriction; with necessity to breathe deeply; with sticking and boring through chest, < beneath l. nipple; sudden C. in r., causing starting. Spasmodic compression of l., with difficult respiration. Tension. Fulness; with pulsations in abdomen. Orgasm, < evening after eating, with sensation as if something alive were working in it.

Heart.—Trembling in præcordial region, with sticking. Sticking, in præcordial region. Tearing in P. region. Pressure in P. region; in afternoon; after coffee, > walking, with oppression and sensation as if he would have apoplexy. Anxiety in P. region, provoking sighing, Oppression; extending into l. side of chest, obliging deep inspiration; in P. region; in P. region, with trembling of heart. Fulness at night when lying on l. side, with oppression, as from stagnation of blood. Sensitiveness of P. region to pressure. Palpitation; in afternoon; at night; on waking; on going to sleep; periodic, with oppression of heart. Dull, irregular, suppressed beats, with indescribable sensation in chest. Scarcely perceptible beat, with perceptible pulsation in abdomen. Impulse not felt, and even heard with difficulty, a blowing sound, like a heart heard at a great distance, or through a stone wall, both sounds lapsing into one.

Clinical.—Chronic or subacute pericarditis, with exudation of water in pericardium, with severe pain about heart, oppression and dyspnoea as if the chest were squeezed with a tight band (Cact.); in these cases the heart's action is weak and indistinct, the pulse may even be threadlike; in many cases there is chronic feeling of icy coldness at pit of stomach.

Pulse.—Rapid; and small; and weak; weak; and irregular; and weak, thready; and contracted, spasmodic; and large, hard, full; and strong. Slow; during the nausea, and weak; and thready; and weak, afterwards rapid. Weak, irritable, at times rapid, at times slow. Weak, small and irregular. Intermittent; scarcely perceptible. Small; and tense. Imperceptible, then thready and tremulous.

Neck.—Visible throbbing of arteries, < sitting still. Pain in nape; beneath ear, near joint of jaw, with soreness to touch; in neck and occiput, and stiffness; drawing P. from nape across occiput to ears; tense P. in r. muscles externally and on swallowing. Rheumatism in nape; < r. trapezius, < wrong movement of neck. Stiffness of nape and occiput, and pain, < moving head. Paralysis of muscles, so that when the child was raised the head fell backward, with the mouth wide open.

Back.—Sticking in dorsal muscles; S. between and beneath scapulae; on superior l. angle of r. scapula. Tearing to l. of spine; behind r. axilla. Pain; acute, along back and to heels; between shoulders; tense, in tip of l. scapula, towards spine, < motion of arm. Rheumatic pain in l. scapula and in nape, mostly tense and pressive, < turning neck to l. or far backward; periodic R. pain, more in scapula than in nape.

Lumbar Region.—Sticking; and in coccyx; burning, in sacrum. Sticking tearing. Pinching and in urinary passages, with constant desire to urinate. Pain; on both side of vertebrae; deep in sacrum in afternoon; in sacrum, waking frequently at night; in a spot in sacrum, as if suppurating, < touch; bruised, in morning. Drawing pain; when lying quietly, > by moving. Drawing on waking; D., < motion. Tension in region of kidneys. Heaviness, with sensation as if rectum were stuffed.

Extremities.—L. elbow and knee swollen, hot, painful, while r. side was partially paralyzed and almost insensible. Twitching. Toes and fingers painfully flexed. Trembling increasing to convulsive movements, a similar attack afterwards ending in two attacks of vomiting; T., becoming convulsive, with flow of whitish froth from mouth, becoming similar to opisthotonos, repeated after a quiet sleep from 11 to 2 at night. Drawing, now sticking, now jerking, < morning, now in muscles of shoulder, now in r. hip. Pain; in joints of fingers, toes, wrists and ankles; in shoulder-joints and knees during rest, with uneasiness; rheumatic, in hands and feet, so that she could not bear to have her finger-joints pressed or extended from their semi-flexed condition. Uneasiness at night. Weariness; of arms and legs; in morning. Numbness of hands and feet, then prickling as if they had been asleep. Paralysis of r. foot and l. arm. Joints stiff and feverish.

Clinical.—Gouty diathesis, soreness of the flesh, of the joints, extreme irritability, intolerance of touch, with gastric symptoms. Articular rheumatism, with tearing jerking pains, cardiac complications, gastric symptoms. Shifting rheumatism, pains < towards night, the patient is very irritable, etc. It is generally indicated when the smaller joints are affected; the pains are violent, often paralytic, so that the patient can hold nothing in the hands, or when the feet are affected they become swollen, oedematous, it is difficult to lift the feet. Rheumatism or gout in heel, which is extremely sore, with tearing pains. Inflammation of the joint of great toe, with acute pain as from sharp sticking, cannot bear to have it touched or to have any one come near him (Arn.).

Upper Extremities.—Tearing, now in r. axilla, now in l. Pain as after a blow in a spot beneath and almost in r. axilla. Bubbling sensation in l. axilla, even perceptible externally. Sticking in r. shoulder. Tearing in r. shoulder and forearm; in r. shoulder-joint; anteriorly in l. shoulder-joint. Pinching on l. shoulder. Pain in shoulder-joint; in l. shoulder, < lying on l. side.

Arm.—Tearing, with paralyzed sensation; cutting T. in l. Pain. Paralytic pain so that he cannot hold the lightest thing firmly. Weakness of r. at noon. L. felt lame and weak. Heaviness. Numbness; with pain and at times sensation as if she had no hands, hands and feet warm, legs and arms cold. Paralyzed feeling in l. Paralysis of r. arm and hand, with thumb drawn inward and the fingers spasmodically closed over it. Pressure above l. elbow, < moving and raising it, preventing his putting on his coat alone, > rest and at night. Burning pain on inner side, near l. axilla. Bubbling sensation on outer side of l. upper arm.

Forearm.—Tearing near wrist; in r. forearm, < on outer side of muscles; on outer side of l., as if in fascia; in flexor surface of l., extending to elbow; in extensor surface of l., extending into some of the fingers; on extensor surface, extending into fingers, as from electric shocks; intermittent, on extensor surface, as if some nerves were torn. Pain; with sensitiveness to touch. Numbness.

Elbow and Wrist.—Sticking at night; S. in l. elbow; in l. elbow, then sensitiveness to touch. Tearing on inner side of elbows, extending to upper arms; jerk-like, from r. elbow into wrist, then from wrist into fingers. Sticking on volar side of wrist, with heat, l. then r. Tearing in r. wrist. Pain in r. wrist.

Hand.—Spasmodic contraction so that the fingers were stretched out and the ball of thumb turned into palm. Trembling; of r., almost preventing writing. Tearing in metacarpal bones of r. middle and ring fingers; on back of r. hand; in r. and beneath last phalanx of little finger; sticking, in lower part of r. Pain in l. metacarpus, < between third and fourth fingers, on motion, < flexion of hand. Drawing extending into fingers. Weakness.

Fingers.—Nails blue; and tips. Spasmodically flexed, but in constant motion. Third and fourth drawn inward. Cramps; < second. Sticking on volar surface of tips; in l. thumb; in metacarpal joint of r. thumb. Tearing in l. little; in joints of r. fingers; beneath nail of l. index; in middle phalanges of l. little and ring; sticking T. in ligaments of joints of r. little. Drawings from l. thumb up radial surface of forearm; in posterior part and ball of r. thumb; rheumatic, in metacarpal joint of l. thumb. Numbness under thumb-nails.

Lower Extremities.—Tottering gait, partly on account of weakness and partly on account of sudden sticking-tearing jerks through periosteum, with sensation of paralysis and actual paralysis. They seem to have lost their power on attempting to walk.

Thigh.—Abducted. Snapping in l. hip. Sticking in hips, < l.; tearing, from l. hip-joint to leg. Tearing in upper part of l.; high up on inner side of r.; in region of hip; in middle of l. in evening in bed; above l. knee in evening in bed; deep in nates towards anus; extending towards hip; in r. hip-joint, extending to knee; drawing, in ligaments of l. hip, < night; jerking, in upper part of r. Pinching in l. like cramp, as if asleep; P. on and above r. hip. Pain in hips and loins. Pressure upon femora, < in middle. Drawing pain in hip-bone on moving about at night; in hip when sitting, > motion; in l. femur, at times worse, as from fatigue or like growing pain; sudden sticking, beneath l. nates, extending into perineum. Drawing deep in muscles; in r. hip-joint; paralytic, in r. in evening in bed. Sensation as of something living in l. hip. Stiffness of l., making walking difficult.

Knee.—Snapping on l. surface of r. Sticking; in l.; and in ankles. Tearing in l. Pain; in l.; in inner side of r.; in r. in evening in bed, with lame sensation; in bend of r. during a long walk, extending down calf. Broken feeling (weariness) on ascending stairs. Weakness so that they give way, < by raising leg to step over a high object.

Leg.—Cramp; of calves. Tearing below patella; posteriorly beneath patella; in l. side of l. calf; in lower part of r. calf; pinching, at insertion of r. tendo-achillis; tense, on l. lower half of l. tibia. Pain; in calves and feet; in forepart, as from chilliness, < tibia, with coldness of legs, even in bed; in forepart of tibia, like a chilliness in bones, not > warmth; in forepart of tibia, as if the bone were chilled or like growing pain. Drawing in lower part of r. calf; in both calves and in r. metatarsus. Heaviness extending into feet.

Tearing in l. tarsal joints. Pressure in r. external malleolus at 8 p.m., as from fatigue. Cramp of feet; painful, < l.; painful, in soles. Tearing through l. foot; on back of l.; in r. heel, near sole; in a spot in forepart of r. foot, near sole; in l. sole, in a spot in metatarsus; in l. sole, not far from toes; on inner curvature of r. foot, between ball of great toe and heel; in feet as if lame; drawing, in l. sole; drawing, on r. instep. Weariness of feet.

Toes.—Jerking in metatarsal joints. Sticking in l. big. Boring sticking across top of r. great. Tearing on inner side of metatarsal joints; sticking, in ball of r. great, near its lower side. Sticking drawing in r. great. Drawing pain in l. great, then also in r., then in l. middle toes, < lower surfaces of toes. Pain in l. great as if the nail would enter the flesh.

Skin.—Pale. Scarlet. Livid, dry and hot. Eruption. (Wartlike pimples on nape.) Pityriasis on inner surface of l. thigh and on corresponding part of scrotum. Pustules on face and lower limbs, resembling poisoned wounds. Sticking, so that it jerks through the whole body; jerking S. as from flea-bites, > scratching. Crawling on inner surface of r. great, second and third toes, as if asleep. Itching over whole body; in various parts; on hands; on face, with eruption; on ulnar side of forearm, with redness; over whole body, as from nettles; sticking, here and there; burning, here and there, after scratching redness, and the itching changes to another place; burning-sticking, here and there, driven to another part by scratching.

Clinical.—Generally indicated in sequelæ of eruptive diseases, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, etc., suppression of urine, accumulation of water in thorax, abdomen and extremities.

Sleep.—Yawning; after dinner, with rumbling in abdomen, then copious stool. Sleepiness; during the day; in afternoon; in evening; after supper; till midnight, then waking with oppression in stomach, then wide awake for two hours; with disinclination to work and confusion of head; soporous condition in a child, lying on its back, with half-open eyes and loud, rapid respiration. Deep sleep, with vivid dreams and grinding of teeth.

Sleeplessness; from sticking jerks, sometimes only in skin, sometimes deep in soft parts of head and face. Late falling asleep. Restless sleep; in afternoon, on the sofa, only slightly refreshing; and exhausting; with anxious dreams; with heavy dreams. Unrefreshing S. in afternoon. Frequent waking in fright, with the idea that there were mice in the bed. Many dreams; D. in a half-waking condition. Confused, always of the same objects. Heavy, full of solicitude. Of snakes. Anxious, and erections at night. Lascivious, towards morning, with erections.

Fever.—General coldness (Verat. a.); all day, > at 7 P.M.; in afternoon; in afternoon, after dinner; in afternoon, in open air; in evening, with chattering of teeth on going to bed, > by lying still, but threatened to return on motion; at night, with heat of head; in the room; in the room, then vertigo; and pulseless at wrist, respiration slight, nose, feet and hands cold, stiff and blue, blue under eyes and about mouth, then unconsciousness. Alternating with heat. Progressive. Shivering; in back; down back; through limbs. Creeping chill in scalp. Cold forehead; nose, cheeks and soles; limbs; fingers; fingers, and numb; hands and feet; knees; feet, in afternoon; feet, limbs, hands and arms, while the rest of the body had a clammy feel, but was below the normal temperature; skin; skin of hands and legs, even in bed; whole body cold and clammy.

Heat at night; H., with gastric disturbances and soporous condition. Passing into headache. In flushes* in afternoon. Orgasm of blood. Dry; at night. Hot skin; and dry; dry and lead-colored. H. in bed like rush of blood through skin of chest and head. In anterior part of head; in face; externally on r. side of nape; externally on r. side, near pit of stomach; in small of back, extending into rectum; on side, in small of back, when sitting, with throbbing; in palms. In flushes in head; in face; in hands and feet; up spine, in a warm room.

Sweat; at night; towards morning; on waking after midnight. Easy on walking; E. and profuse. Sour; at night. Clammy, with blue spots on skin, < along spine; C. and cold, as in cholera. On face; on neck. Cold on forehead; on arms and legs, with heat over abdomen. Clammy on forehead. Suppressed.

Clinical.—Occasionally indicated in typhoid fever, tympanitis, coldness in stomach, cold breath, nausea and vomiting, cold sweat, albuminous urine. Effects of sudden suppression of perspiration in gastralgia, etc.

Collinsonia.

A tincture is prepared from the fresh root of Collinsonia Canadensis, L.

General Action.—From our scanty information it seems to act upon the " hæmorrhoidal sphere" similarly to Aloes, Sulphur, etc.

Generalities.—Warmth spreading along internal mucous surfaces of lips, deepening into a feeling of largeness, with sensation of needles darting back and forth, the same numbness or needle-like darting to and fro in face, cheeks, forehead, hairy parts under chin, from ear to ear, while inner surface of lips and whole buccal cavity were excited, the face seemed to grow broader and broader, with exhilaration of mind, then r. forearm to finger-tips felt numb, a weary heaviness, then l. arm and fingers, balls of thumbs more numb than fingers, nausea, lips seemed growing larger and mouth seemed to stand open like a huge catfish's, lips dry, mouth tingling and burning, face flushing and pricking, whole head "growing," forearms to finger-tips asleep, hands feel broad and heavy, desire to lie with head high to get more air, uneasiness, head seemed growing bigger while straining to get boots on, staggering, faintness, symptoms < swallowing hot things, in the cool open air feet and limbs felt strangely light, loss of personal identity in lower limbs, then a glow from umbilicus to toes, sense of increasing largeness and numbness from hip to hip, while r. thigh was thus affected the l. was skipped, calves seemed elephantine and asleep. Weakness; in morning, with faintness; with sleepiness.

Head.—Aching on waking; tense, at point of emergence of l. supraorbital nerve. Forehead, aching while sitting, with tearing in knees, passing down inside of legs to feet; A., with frequent tlying pains in legs; with frequent rheumatic pains in arms, hands and legs; over eyes and in r. temple.

Nose, Face and Tongue.—Dryness of nostrils, with frequent sharp pains in r. temple and aching distress in stomach and bowels. Face yellow around eyes in morning. Neuralgia in superior maxillary bone in open air. Tongue coated yellow along centre and base in morning, with rough, bitter taste.

Stomach.—Nausea; while sitting, with intermittent cutting in hypogastrium; with distress in stomach and bowels; with cutting in hypogastrium and emissions of flatus. Cutting while sitting.

Abdomen.—Pain at umbilicus at 10 P.M. Distress at umbilicus, with eructations of air. Pain in hypogastrium in morning, with desire for stool. Cutting in hypogastrium twice on waking in the night, and with urging to stool at 4 A.M., first part of stool hard and lumpy, last part running out as thin as milk, with pain in hypogastrium, straining, nausea and faintness, pain continued fifteen minutes, then copious watery stool, after sleeping an hour woke with pain in hypogastrium and desire for stool, stool of bile, mucus and yellow matter, with tensus, then cutting in bowels, then intermittent cutting in hypogastrium, compelling him to sit down and causing faintness, stool of yellow faecal matter, mucus and blood, with tensus, then cutting in hypogastrium, at 10 A.M. small stool of mucus and blood, preceded and followed by cutting in hypogastrium, at 12 M. stool of bilious matter, mucus and blood, with same symptoms as last, then dull distress in hypochondrium, then at 2 P.M. cutting in hypogastrium, with stool of bilious matter, mucus streaked with blood, and tensemus, then intermittent cutting in hypogastrium all afternoon and evening.

Clinical.—It has been prescribed in ascites, both from cardiac trouble and especially from hepatic disease.

Rectum.—Clinical. Hemorrhoid, sharp sticking in rectum, constipation, etc. Hemorrhoids, bleeding almost incessantly, especially with sensation of sharp sticks in rectum; general aggravation late at night.

Stool.—Light-colored, lumpy, with straining, then aching in anus and hypogastrium. Papescent at 7 P.M., preceded by pain in small intestines. Mushy at 8 A.M., then no stool for three days. Constipation for two days, with languor. Omitted. In form of balls.

Clinical.—Most obstinate constipation, with protruding hemorrhoids.

Urine.—High-colored and scanty. Urinated several times.

Genital Organs.—Clinical. Dysmenorrhœa, with hæmorrhoidal troubles; membranous dysmenorrhœa. Pruritus of vulva and prolapsus uteri, hemorrhoids, constipation, etc. In all these pelvic troubles Collinsonia reminds us of Aloe, though obstinate constipation is the rule with Coll., looseness of the bowels with Aloe. Pruritus during pregnancy, swelling and dark redness of genitals, cannot even sit down.

Lung.—Gurgling suddenly low down in l. while lying, then desire to cough, which was restrained as he had had hæmoptysis from that side, the breathing and pulse varying while lying on l. side, the pulse under the finger would withdraw and then return with increased volume.

Colocynthis.

A tincture is made of the dried fruit (deprived of its rind and seed) of Cucumis colocynthis, L. (Citrullus colo. Shrader).

General Action.—A violent hydragogue cathartic, producing also terrible colic. It also causes violent pains in nearly all the nerves of the body, almost always relieved by pressure.

Allies.—Bry., Magnesia, Cupr., Diosc., Berb., Puls.

Generalities.—Increased secretion of mucus. Inclination to painful cramp in muscles of all parts (Cupr.). Spasms. Sticking in various parts; with drawings, itching, burning, biting; tearing S. lengthwise in whole body, head, back, abdomen and limbs. Pressure in different parts, < posterior joint of r. middle finger and r. great toe. Anguish. Pains frequently repeated at 5 P.M. Pains jump from one part to another (Puls.) and change quickly from one kind to another; wandering P. < sitting. Paroxysmal pressure and drawing in posterior joint of r. great toe, in ankles, knees and bones of l. pelvis, < walking. Drawing pain on outside of r. thigh, with pain in l. upper molars. Drawing in posterior joint of l. thumb, r. great toe, in r. knee and on l. side of neck, < turning head; in l. trochanter in forenoon, then drawing pressing in l. metatarsus, then drawing in teeth; after rising, quickly changing its location, in legs, ankles, shoulders, forehead, muscles of thighs, in wrists and knees; sticking, now here, now there, in morning after waking. Sensation of general contusion, < walking, with tired feeling. Internal oppression towards evening.

Sensitiveness to damp weather. Pulsation in whole body, < in back and l. side of chest; in whole body when lying still. Discomfort in evening, < in lower limbs, with weakness; D., he demands much. Uneasiness in afternoon, < digestive organs. Lazy, gloomy, listless, almost pusillanimous. Weakness; in afternoon; at 5 P.M., with shivering, thirst and rapid pulse; in evening; in evening before sleep and waking next morning, > moving about; in evening when walking; on going out; when at rest; from slight exertion in walking, with sweat which made his limbs weak, but if he stood still the air, though not raw, struck through him like a cold creeping; from watery diarrhœa, with pallor; general W., with bruised sensation in small of back. Faintness; > holding hands before eyes; with external coldness.

Some pains appear only when walking, for example, the painful drawing in muscles of calves and thighs, preventing motion. Symptoms appear in groups, < evening and rest. Aggravation when sitting; symptoms more severe in evening than in morning. Amelioration when sitting; when walking, but symptoms are always felt in evening after considerable exertion and are connected with weariness in lower limbs; A. from black coffee after dinner.

Clinical.—It is a valuable neuralgic remedy, not simply for colic but for neuralgic pains in various parts of the body; the pains are usually sharp cutting or boring, nearly always > pressure (Bry.).

Mind.—He could not find his way about the room and it was difficult to get rid of the idea that he was not in his own room. Anxiety. Disinclination to talk. Morose, offended at everything. Irritable; he asks for many things. Impatient. Despondent. Absent-minded. Confused by the beer drunk in the evening. Could not pursue any train of thought. Not inclined to search after and grasp objects of interest. Indolent in morning, woke late and disliked to get up. Memory weak.

Head.—Tearing digging through brain, < moving upper lid. Tearing in brain, < moving lids, becoming a pressure outward in forehead. Aching; in morning in bed; daily from 8 A.M. till afternoon, with pains in knees and foot, then soft stool; in evening; < bending forward, with pain in eyes (Bry.); < stooping or turning head, < forehead, with incapacity for mental exertion; < after beer; as from a draught of air, > walking in open air; paroxysmal, here and there; as from pressure in region of middle of lineæ semi-circularis. Tearing drawing-pressing in different parts, especially boring behind r. ear and on r. side of head. Drawing when walking, with boring. Sensitiveness as if compressed, < bending forward, > open air, < sin-ciput and temples, with pain in eyeballs.

Heaviness. Dulness in morning, < in frontal region, returning in forenoon when walking; D., with vertigo and colic. Stupefied feeling after dinner. Confusion; in afternoon, with pressure in orbits; after eating; < dinner, > towards evening; with dulness, as after a debauch; with heaviness and feeling as if catarth were coming on. Intoxicated feeling after a bottle of Bavarian beer. Vertigo; in evening; when walking rapidly after breakfast; suddenly in evening on sitting down, with darkness before eyes; intimations of V. and nausea; almost giddy after dinner.

Forehead.—Sudden sticking towards nose; sticking externally in morning after rising; S. above r. eye, with itching of scalp. Tearing; r. side; l. side; in evening; in different parts in morning. Boring; r. side; r. side, with drawing; l. side; above nose; in day and evening, with tearing; tearing, during a walk; B., and above eyes, with pressure. Boring-burning pain on r. side. Pain; in l. side; in nervus frontalis sinister; and in eyeballs; in forenoon when walking; < stooping and lying on back; along sagittal suture, < moving or shaking head and on stooping; at 1 P.M. in the arch which defines the lateral and superior boundaries of l. sinus, sometimes vibrating; and at root of nose, as before catarrh; throbbing P., > sitting up and moving head, but confusion of head all the forenoon. Drawing pain; in l. side. Drawing; in r. Heaviness in sinicput, with stupefaction; H. in forehead towards evening, with pressure; in l. side on waking after midnight, while lying on r. side. Confusion; r. side; in sinicput.

Temples.—Boring sticking in r., > touch. Tearing; in r.; in r. and above it; in r., with pressure. Boring; in r.; in l. at 2 P.M.; in l. as from a plug, in evening. Digging in l. Screwing. Pain; early; in l. in afternoon, > sitting, < standing and walking, but especially when urinating; in r., < stepping, with gloomy mood; first <, then > open air; tensive, in r. Pressing and drawing pain in r. Pressing in l., with throbbing, becoming cutting, with similar sensation about l. shoulder-joint; P. towards nose, with dryness of latter. Vertigo on suddenly turning head, as if arising in l. temple, it seems as if he would fall, with tottering of knees.

Pinching in upper part of brain. Tearing in r. side of vertex. Pain in vertex and l. eye, as of a nervous pressure. Tearing in l. side of head; towards forehead. Boring in different parts of r. side. One-sided drawing pain. Confusion of l. side, with pressing burning pain in l. orbit, temple, nose, dorsum of nose and upper teeth, it seems as if eye and nose were swelling; C. in r. side, < temple. Boring in r. side of occiput. Pressure in lateral occipital protuberances; in occiput, < inferior lateral protuberances, with tension. Boring in skull, < r. side. Roots of hair painful. Burning pain in skin above eyes. Drawing in scalp. Vertex sore as if the hair were pulled upward, > towards evening; with drawing pain in occiput. Itching; on l. side, with crawling. Biting burning on l. side of scalp.

Clinical.—Violent neuralgic headaches, cutting or boring, > firm pressure.

Eyes.—Smarting, with pain in balls. Dryness in evening. Sticking as with knives in r. ball, extending to root of nose. Cutting in r. ball. Pain in balls, < stooping; P. in ball, extending upward and outward, in evening, < rubbing, with hardness; as from a pressure downward upon balls. Burning pain in r. ball. Itching of r. ball. Sticking in l. conjunctiva palpebrarum, then inflammation, then ulceration. Twitching of r. upper. Stye on l. Burning cutting in r. lower lid during rest. Smarting of lids. Pressing in r. lid. Burning of r. upper lid; sticking, on edge of l. upper lid; biting, beneath upper lid; prickling, in r. inner canthus. L. lid lay thick and heavy upon ball, which felt squeezed anteriorly and superiorly. Heaviness of lids without sleepiness. Sticking in l. orbit, with drawing and aching. Pressing in orbits towards root of nose. Vision obscured; of r. eye in morning. Flickering before r. eye in the shape of a circle, with rays, at 10 A.M., after writing. A bright white light at side of and below r. eye, > turning eyes rapidly sideways.

Clinical.—It has been found useful as a palliative of the pain of glaucoma and iritis, the pain extending into head, > pressure.

Ears.—Itching sticking extending from Eustachian tube to tympanum, > boring in with finger. Cutting sticking in lower fossa of r. external, > boring in with finger. Boring in r.; behind r. Twinges in r. Pressure behind l. Drawing above r.; behind l.; painful behind l. Crawling within, > boring in with the finger. Obstruction before l. Ringing; in r. Roaring, < l., with throbbing; R., with every sound; rhythmical, in l., with obstruction, the R. changing to ringing.

Nose.—Throbbing burrowing from l. side to root. Feeling as in incipient catarrh. Itching in l. nostril in evening, with irritation as in coryza. Sneezing; with dryness of nose. Fluent coryza; in morning; with frequent sneezing; (constant dropping from nose, < in open air).

Face.—Twitching of muscles of chin during rest of the parts. Muscles relaxed and pale, and eyes sunken. Tearing in cheeks. Constriction in l. malar-bone, extending into l. eye, with pressing. Pain in l. cheek; r. malar-bone and eye. Burrowing burning pain in cheek, < rest. Painful drawing. Tension in l. side, extending to ear and into head, with tearing. Prickling as if an eruption would appear in region of r. cheek-bone. Sticking in upper jaw. Boring in r. lower jaw; in lower at 10 A.M.; in r. joint in evening. Drawing in lower jaw. Pustule on l. corner of mouth. (Bleeding of a liver-spot on upper lip). Burning of lower lip; with swollen feeling. Burning pain in r. corner of mouth.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia about eye, < l. side, great soreness and yet relief from pressure (Magnesia m.).

Mouth.—Painful looseness of a lower incisor. Toothache in r. teeth; l.; all upper; a hollow tooth; upper hollow; in lower teeth as if nerves were torn or stretched; twitching from l. lower molars to l. elbow; sticking throbbing, in r. lower back teeth, as from beating with a wire. Drawing toothache in lower incisors; in all teeth in afternoon; D., with tearing; in r. upper teeth, with swollen feeling in upper lip. Incisors sensitive. Teeth feel as if on edge in evening and next day. Heat in roots of r. lower teeth, with swollen feeling.

Tongue red; coated white, with rawness as from too much smoking; rough as if sandy; sticking in tip when sitting; scalded sensation. Burning on anterior surface of tongue; on tip of T.; on apex at the beginning of every exacerbation of symptoms. Biting in middle of tip as if sore. Border of tongue sensitive when eating. Scraping in palate. Biting in r. cheek and on side of tongue. Burning, < hard palate. Salivation. Taste bitter; after drinking beer; to beer at noon; and disgusting; T. metallic, astringent, on upper part of tip of tongue; insipid T. after dinner; nauseous T., more in throat than in mouth.

Throat.—Constant hawking; H. up of salt mucus; of bitter mucus. Angina. Sticking as from a bristle on upper part of arch of palate; biting S. in fauces. > swallowing. Scraping; and on hard palate, with burning; in region of uvula, with redness of whole throat and difficult swallowing. Pain. Rawness. Roughness; in pharynx and soft palate, > afternoon.

with burning. Sensation of a foreign body, as if he had to swallow over a lump. Sensation of a ball as large as a fist rising in pharynx, with oppressed sensation. Dryness; and of hard palate, as if the parts stuck together.

Stomach.—Canine hunger; especially for bread and beer; then heartburn in throat; at noon. Appetite diminished; at noon; for dinner. Appetite lost; in evening. Aversion to food towards evening before eating, with nausea. Thirst; unquenchable. Desire to drink without thirst, the mouth is watery, drink is relished, but there is a flat taste after every drink.

Eructations; on rising from stool, mostly empty; violent; violent after eating; sobbing; sour; bitter; of the breakfast; of bilious substances; of a bitter, white, frothy liquid after breakfast. Empty eructations; in morning; on rising up; with burning in pharynx; causing palpitation and spasm in throat, with desire to retch and vomit. Hiccough. Nausea; towards noon; after eating, with malaise, as from indigestion; till sleep at night, returning in morning on waking; with scraping in throat, the N. > a glass of water; rising from stomach. Vomiting of a yellow, bitter, serous fluid; V. of food without nausea; profuse V.

Rumbling. Gripping in epigastric region after every meal, < towards evening; G. in E. region, with movements, then soft stool; paroxysmal G. in stomach from beer (after 11 A.M.), > dinner. Pinching in pit, preventing sleep, with constriction of stomach, and sensitiveness of S. so that it could bear no covering; P. in epigastric region. Intermittent compression in epigastrium, changing to pinching, with confusion of sinapit. Cramp at night, > eructations; C. at night, rising along œsophagus into throat.

Pain; in pit; I. epigastrium; after dinner; in epigastric region, < eating, with hunger, which was not > repeated eating; with flatulence and headache; with headache and diarrhœa; always with pains in face and teeth; in pit, with constriction in larynx, obliging frequent swallowing; in pit, with sticking, obliging rapid breathing, it seems as if the lungs could not be sufficiently inflated; burning, even when eating; spasmodic, rising into throat, in morning; contractive, in pit at 10 P.M., during a walk after supper. Pressure as from a stone. Sore feeling in pit. Full feeling in epigastric region in forenoon. Sensation of a ball in S. and pharynx. Emptiness. Heat; in epigastrium. Coldness. Dyspepsia.

Abdomen.—Distention and pain (Magnes. c.); towards noon, when walking; after supper, with heaviness; with tension and sensitiveness to touch, the pain > by two watery stools; D., with tension. Collapsed. Croaking as of frogs. Rumbling; early in bed; towards 9 A.M.; in forenoon, with gripping; after dinner; with deep-seated pulsations; with excitement as before diarrhœa, but discharge of only fetid flatus; as from bursting of bubbles. Gurgling; then light-yellow, fluid stool. Movements; towards noon, then two brown, almost watery, painless stools; in evening, then pappy stool; after dinner, then copious soft stool, then gripping, < vesical region, > thin stool; in afternoon, as if he had fasted; in various parts, as from the breaking of bubbles. Discharge of flatus; offensive; offensive after dinner, > after stool, with movements in hypogastrium; noisy, in morning; noisy, when walking, causing rectum to vibrate; long, rapid and smooth discharges of bubbles of inodorous gas; ineffectual desire to pass flatus, then profuse discharge. Incarcerated flatus (Diosc.). Flatulence, with tension.

Sticking deep into abdomen. Drawing tearing in whole A. Pinching; as if bowels were pressed inward, > by pressure and bending inward, with cutting extending towards pubic region, so severe below navel that facial muscles were distorted and eyes drawn together; as if squeezed between stones, and threatened to burst outward, at times with rush of blood to head and face and sweat on them, which on relief of pain seemed blown upon by a cool wind; threatening of P., < forenoon, with insipidity. Gripping; < below navel, obliging him to bend over, > pappy stool; < walking; > thin stool, with discharge of flatus upward and downward; so that he could not lie nor sit, and could only walk bent over, > violent motion and rolling about; waking in morning, with tenesmus, then normal stool, the G. > black coffee, but returning in forenoon with rumbling and movement; ending above mons veneris. Gnawing after moving about in forenoon, > towards noon; G. < after dinner, with boring, obliging him to sit down or lie and bend forward, tenesmus, copious, pappy, offensive stools, then watery, scanty and almost inodorous stools, the colic > black coffee at 4 P.M., < supper, then with confusion of head and aching in sinapit, < bending forward. Cutting; in afternoon, > evening in warmth of bed, with tenesmus; after eating; after dinner and supper; from flatus which cannot be passed, with sticking, waking him; like an electric shock through whole A. to anus, towards noon. Cramplike pain, preventing sitting quietly, lying or walking, with empty urging after eating. Pain as from taking cold or from improper food.

Pain; in morning on waking, with tenesmus; at noon and evening after eating; in evening, with heat in stomach, the pain > 9 P.M. by diarrhœa; at night; at night, with discharge of flatus; when walking a few steps; when walking at noon, > standing still; after eating a potato, with sudden stool; when lying, with rumbling, urging to stool and general shivering; before and during a light-yellow, fluid stool; in integuments, < walking; > diarrhœa; > diarrhœa, with uneasiness; > a cup of coffee, but then he must go to stool; > by smoking, which left a sensation in abdomen as if he had taken cold; with urging to stool, which was subject to control; with feeling of gnawing diarrhœa; with general uneasiness, and shivering in cheeks, which seems to rise from abdomen; paroxysmal, obliging him to bend forward, > soft stool.

Flatulent pain after midnight from sudden incarcerated flatus here and there. Bruised pain combined with pressure. Tensive pain, > pressure; T. pain as if intestines were gathered into a ball, had fallen down and were lying like a heavy weight in hypogastrium, it seems as if the anterior parietes of A. were wanting and the intestines were in danger of falling out. Pressure outward in r. side. Sensitiveness; in afternoon, with gripping and commotion; with constipation. Constriction of viscera, > pressure (Magnes. m.). Feeling of looseness. Coldness. Heat; rising towards chest; pleasant warmth ending in gripping, > walking, with sweat on chest and abdomen. Emptiness; < eating, stooping forward when sitting and in evening; as after copious diarrhœa.

Upper Abdomen.—Flatulent distention, > emission of flatus, with pulsation in small of back. Rumbling in l. hypochondriac and umbilical regions, with cutting. Sticking in hepatic region; after dinner, and in sacrum; in hepatic region, causing a restless night; beneath last ribs. Cutting; on inspiration, as from flatulence. Gripping; with two pappy stools. Pinching after taking anything, < towards evening. Sudden thrust forward through hepatic region and then in a straight line through head. Pain towards noon after violent exercise; P. rose towards chest and became constrictive, < a shock, hawking or the like; in r. hypochondrium, at arch of diaphragm, oppressing respiration. Throbbing in l. hypochondrium, at arch of diaphragm. Drawing in l. hypochondrium.

Umbilical Region.—Swelling, with confusion in forehead and temples. Sticking in a spot obliging him to bend up, < lifting; S. on r. side beneath navel, then on l. side of navel, only when walking on a level, > standing still and even on violent agitation (as in descending stairs); twitching S. extending towards loins and spine. Burrowing tearing, < expiration or loud laughter. Cutting after eating, with tenesmus. Gripping; < eating fruit; < stool, with cutting and general chill; < dinner; < pressure, with sensitiveness of abdominal integuments; with discharge of flatus; below navel; (drawing hither and thither), changing into cutting as if a chisel were thrust deep into upper abdomen, passing in a curve backward into pelvis, then cutting upward again, at 4 P.M., at 4.30 the cutting in the hypogastrum was forward and upward, < forcible discharge of flatus and by straining and consequent expulsion of a long train of slippery bubbles of wind, with scanty bland mucus, returning at intervals, finally after 5 P.M. a painful expulsive pressure, then involuntary thin bland stool of feces and much mucus, then relief of all pain in abdomen. Pinching; with cutting. Gnawing, < morning fasting. Repeated sensation below navel when walking as after taking cold, with urging to stool as if the sphincter had no resisting power, stools thin, orange-colored and pappy, afterwards drawing-cutting darting repeatedly from behind forward and upward in a curve to navel, < urging to stool, which ran out in a watery stream and contained undigested soup, the sphincter seemed paralyzed, then ineffectual urging, which when repressed by voluntary muscles caused tension in lowest abdominal parietes and pressure at inferior angle of r. scapula, with tense pain extending thence forward, then free protracted stool, the sphincter standing wide open. Acute pain, < walking. Pain emanating from navel (Diosc.), > by frequent discharge of flatus, preventing sleep; P. in evening; at night; after rising, with eructations; > night-sweat and flesh-colored urine, with the difficulties in the head; in spot below navel, extending after the night-sweat through whole abdomen. Bruised pain in a spot, < walking, > eructations. Constriction; waking at 3 A.M.; in evening; after dinner. Compression at times, < towards morning, with sensation of a ball, increasing to a twisting or cutting pain. Sensitiveness. Sense of inflation, after dinner (Mag. c.), with compression in throat and naresca. Bubbling in a spot below navel.

Lower Abdomen.—Gurgling in groin. Movements after dinner, > a soft stool. Sticking in pubic region; in r. flank; in l. groin; deep in l. groin; in flank, interrupting respiration; single S., now in r., now in l. groin, apparently connected with ovaries. Cutting; so that he must walk bent over, with general weakness, which makes walking difficult, with dread of work; after dinner, forcing him to a fluid stool; smarting, when walking, < every step. Gripping, with rumbling and inflated sensation, going off with a stich towards l. pubic region; G. in l. groin. Boring in l. groin close to pelvic bones. Pain after dinner, > discharge of fetid flatus and a stool; P. in pubic region; in groin as if a hernia would protrude and on pressure pain as if a hernia were going inward, in afternoon. Bruised pain, < walking and sitting bent over. Constriction about pubic region. Dragging from both sides to middle of hypogastrum, as from flatus which will not pass, but provokes emission of serum. Drawing pain in both groins, going all around pelvis. Tensive pain in r. groin, < pressure. Tension in region of l. anterior superior spine of ilium in evening, changing next day into drawing, extending from spine of ilium to inguinal region and upper third of inner surface of thigh.

Clinical.—Colic of the most violent character, < hard pressure, sometimes with nausea and vomiting, sometimes with diarrhoea, sometimes with discharge of great quantities of gas; pains often extend into chest and pelvis, and may be caused by suppressed perspiration, as from drinking ice-water when heated, or it may be brought on by fits of anger; the patient always doubles up with the colic (compare Diosc. Magnesia, etc.).

Rectum.—Stitches. Pain in lower part; as from swollen hæmorrhoids, when sitting, walking and at stool. Ticking after a pappy stool. Urging to stool; with sensation in anus and lower part of rectum as if weakened by diarrhoea; U. to a copious, yellowish-brown, partly thin, sourish, offensive stool, then transient relief of colic; then two abundant stools in quick succession, first pappy, then fluid, with ulcerative pain in bowels, > by bending forward, < upright position; sudden, then copious, pappy stool, then gripping, coldness in abdomen, sleepiness and disinclination to study; frequent; which was under control. Ineffectual urging; frequent; then stool in single stony pieces.

Anus.—Hæmorrhoids; painful; blind. Discharge of blood; daily, with sticking and burning in small of back and in anus. Moisture, and at perineum. Oozing of moisture in afternoon instead of the expected flatus. Twitching in anus and rectum in afternoon, with burning. Itching sticking; and in rectum. Pressing as before stool, but escape of only dissolving mucus; P., > escape of slightest quantity of wind or mucus. Sensitiveness around A., with frequent urging to an unsatisfactory diarrhoeic, but painless stool. Sensation as if successive slippery bubbles were escaping. Prickling and oozing. Itching; and in orifice of urethra. Burning; after stool; during insufficient stool, with sticking; as after diarrhoea, with excoriating pain and moisture; B. and jerking in anus and rectum.

Stool.—Fluid; after eating, with discharge of flatus, with colic all the afternoon, > warmth of bed; with tenesmus; with gripping, then tenesmus; and frequent; frequent, mucous, painless; and slimy, then bilious, at last bloody; and feculent at first, later almost of pure blood, with tenesmus and passage of pieces of mucous membrane; and light yellow in morning. F. and dark green at 6 P.M.; and rapidly discharged after gentle pressure and passage of slippery flatus at noon; almost F., frequent, yellowish; semi-fluid, with a storm of flatus, then considerable flatus; half watery, half solid. Dysentery; with passage of blood, with burning pain in sacral region. Thin, frothy, saffron-yellow, musty, smelling almost like burnt blotting-paper. Diarrhoea; after dinner; with tenesmus; with nausea without ability to vomit; then flatulence and weakness; copious, with discharge of much mucus; frequent; yellow, after dinner; greenish-yellow, with feeling as if he had taken cold. Soft, frequent, brown; soft, frequent, mixed with lumpy feces and flatulency; soft, light-colored, mixed with hard knots; soft, dark green; soft, slippery, with tensive pressure over forehead, at 11 A.M., and again in afternoon, then pressure alternately upon bladder and anus; soft, scanty, viscid, every three days. Pappy after dinner; with shivering over head and back; P. after eating, then burning at anus; with burning at anus; then intermittent griping and feeling of having taken cold in umbilical region, and rumbling in bowels; and frequent; and frequent, with discharge of flatus; frequent, yellow, painless; with much mucus, then burning in anus.

Constipation. Hard, only occurring once in two or three days; H. as if he were passing stones; and dark, small (Bry.); dark green; and unsatisfactory in morning and after dinner; hard, lumpy, with much flatus. Partly dry and knotty, partly diarrhoeic. Consistent, brown, often blackish-brown. Bloody. Scanty, mixed with mucus; S., slimy, tenacious. A second stool after dinner. Several small stools. Sluggish, occurring every other day. Delayed, and either diarrhoeic or hard and unsatisfactory.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea as the result of anger, or from fruit, with colic, the evacuation preceded by the characteristic colic of Coloc. as an important indication. Dysentery, bloody and mucous, stools always after eating or drinking, preceded by colic.

Urinary Organs.—Sticking in bladder; alternating with sticking in rectum, > discharge of flatus. Sudden pressure upon bladder, which was full, suddenly > rapid expulsion of flatus, which drove before it some mucus, these flatulent attacks often alternated with other symptoms. Frequent urging to urinate, with scanty emission; with copious, clear, watery urine, in forenoon; urging, with pressure in pubic region; ineffectual U. Frequent micturition; and copious; of clear, watery urine. Urine retained, with painful retraction of testes and priapism.

Sticking along urethra. Sticklike tearing through urethra. Pain in tip, as if crushed, after urinating. Prickling in orifice in urethra after urinating. Burning in urethra after urinating; on passage of last drops. Urine like brown beer (Bry.), becoming turbid as soon as cold, with copious sediment. Urine of faint flesh-color, depositing a light brown, flocky, unequal, translucent sediment, with hard, solid, reddish crystals, adherent to the vessel, the urine passed during the day lighter-colored than towards evening, night and morning. Copious; in evening and night, and yellow. Scanty; and clear, dark orange-colored, sp. gr. increased, reaction acid, "urophain" and uric acid increased, chlorides diminished, epithelium increased. Dark. Deep wine-colored, with transparent cloud.

Clinical.—Pains from kidney calculus (comp. Berberis).

Sexual Organs.—Prepuce always drawn back and constricted behind glans at night. Impotence, the foreskin drawn behind glans, without aversion. Tearing in glans. Prickling sticking like an electric spark from tip of glans towards l. flank. Prickling in end of glans. Frequent erections. Painful twinges in r. testicle. Drawing pain in l. testicle. Desire increased; diminished. Pollution two nights in succession. Swelling of labiæ during pregnancy, with dragging and warmth in vagina.

Clinical.—Suppressed menses with the characteristic colic. Dysmenorrhœa, with violent pain, > hard pressure. Ovarian tumor. Cysts in the broad ligament. Many cases of cystic tumors in the ovaries or broad ligament have been cured by Coloc., especially if the tumors are round and small, associated with pain or with general discomfort, > pressure; the patient always wants the abdomen supported by a bandage, or has periodical attacks of severe pain. Inflammation of ovaries, with great serosities, ovarian colic, etc. Chyluria, urine is white like milk, coagulates in cold.

Respiratory Organs.—Scraping in a spot in larynx provoking cough. Constriction of larynx, > open air. Sensitiveness of larynx towards evening, with hoarseness. Tickling in larynx, with dry cough; T. in larynx, < night, waking him, with short, dry cough. Dryness of air-passages, then fatigue. Cough; less frequent during the day and as the articular pains increase; frequent teasing, day and night; hacking, in evening on smoking. Tickling cough at night; and during the day; in evening and night without expectoration; during the day, with choking and vomituration; sudden dry, during the day, with nausea and retching. Dyspnoea at night, with slow breath, provoking cough. Breathing rapid.

Chest.—Whistling in morning on inspiration. Twitching in region of l. fifth and sixth ribs; in r. intercostal muscles, > becoming erect. Sticking in l.; under l. pectoralis; here and there and under ribs; in r. in forenoon; in l. towards evening, cutting short the breath; S. on inspiration and pressure on expiration; backward in r. in afternoon. Gripping in r. intercostal muscles. Pain in places towards evening, and in hepatic region and over heart, impeding respiration. Tensive and pressing pain in both sides where diaphragm is attached. Frequent pressure in afternoon, with oppression and with sticking in chest and sides. Pressure in middle of sternum as if something were lying upon lungs. Oppression; in evening; before midnight, preventing sleep; after eating; on inspiration, with sticking; of r. side on breathing, with sticking; of r. ribs, on arch of diaphragm, arresting breath. Constriction, < walking, with sticking; C., then sticking in l. upper part, < walking. Compression on sides, < stooping forward, when sitting and in evening. Tension in chest and forehead before a soft and smoothly-passed stool. Bruised pain in spots anteriorly. Burning in a spot on r. side towards 11 o'clock.

Heart and Pulse.—Sticking in cardiac region on going to bed. Oppression towards 8 P.M. Palpitation; when sitting. Pulse rapid and small; slow and full.

Neck.—Tearing in l. side of nape. Drawing pain in l. muscles, < motion; D. pain in nape even during rest, then painful stiffness of neck, < on moving head; in l. large muscles, on motion it extends backward and disappears; as if nerves were torn and stretched, or as if bruised, extending from r. side across scapulae. Drawing in nape; D. and boring in all muscles of neck, on different parts of occiput and of r. side of head, < evening. Pressure in l. side of nape as in rheumatism, < turning. Weight, extending towards occipital protuberance. Stiffness of nape on moving head (Bry.); S. on l. side, painful on motion.

Back.—Sticking. Drawing in dorsal muscles. Sticking beneath r. scapula on inspiration; tensive, between scapulae, < walking, so that he must walk bent over.

Drawing pain in region of r. scapula as if nerves and vessels were tense. Drawings in scapulae. Sore pain in l. scapula during rest. Stitches in sacrum; tensive, in r. loin on inspiration, < lying on back. Periodic cutting from region of l. kidney to abdomen, spasmodically drawing thigh up to abdomen so that he must bend over. Pain in small of back; as after a forced march, and in lower limbs; in region of l. sacro-iliac articulation, with crawling in whole l. side as if asleep; in sacrum, movement; above hips, with nausea and chilliness. Pressing inward in r. loin when sitting, with throbbing. Bruised pain in small of B. and in lower limbs in evening; B. pain in sacrum; in lower part of back, with pressure in pit of stomach. Weariness in small of B. Heaviness in small of B.

Extremities.—Contraction of all so that he resembled a hedgehog. Twitching of different parts of muscles. Drawing sticking in joints of feet all day, < wine and coffee, with boring in lower limbs, in afternoon upper limbs similarly affected. Tearing in joints of arms and legs, < rest, > night. Boring in joints of toes, then in shoulders; in joints of toes and fingers at 9 p.m., with pressing; in muscles of limbs and buttocks, with burning pain; in finger-joints, shoulders, knees, shin-bones and ankles, with drawing; drawing B. in wrist, fingers, knees and muscles of thighs, in morning after rising and in evening. Pain in joints; P. in l. little finger about 6 p.m., < towards middle, then in all r. toe-joints except those of great toe; when sitting, in knees, wrists and thighs; in joints of hands and feet after rising; in joints of fingers and toes, < during rest; migrating, in joints of fingers and feet.

Rheumatic pains, and in joints; sometimes in joints, sometimes in bones of limbs. Drawing towards evening; D. in external condyle of r. femur, in elbow, fingers and toes, on motion, < knees; in different parts when walking; in joints, > motion, < fingers and toes; in all joints < sitting, with pressing; tearing, in thighs, and in l. arm down to finger-joints; tearing drawing-pressing in different joints. Pressing drawing pain, a tired sensation, < towards evening when sitting, ~ knees, feet and shoulder-joints. Bruised feeling; in knees, arms and shoulder-joints when sitting. Some of the joints feel as if compressed by rings. Constriction in dorsum and ankle of l. foot and in r. upper arm. Disagreeable feeling in all on mental exertion. Weakness of joints; W. in limbs on walking in open air, with heaviness and trembling of legs, < r. so that sweat broke out over the whole body; from diffusion of a genial warmth.

Upper Extremities.—Drawing and pressing pain in joints of hands, fingers and shoulders. Axillary glands swollen and painful. Drawing in l. axillary muscles extending down arm, with burning, then in r. shoulder. Tearing in shoulders. Boring in shoulder; in r. Pressing in shoulders when sitting. Drawing pain in shoulders in afternoon. Drawing in r. shoulder; at night in bed; in r. joint, with tearing all day; in shoulders and joints of hands, with boring. Tension in r. shoulder on waking, < using arms.

Arm.—Intermittent sticking now here, now there. Pain in l. Sprained pain behind r. scapula. Drawing pain in long bones during rest, < below head of humerus and across wrist, where it seems as if in periosteum on raising arm. Intermittent paralytic bruised pain. Paralytic pressing in l. Swollen sensation. Pulsation in l. Weakness.

Upper Arm.—Sticking in humeri in evening. Tearing in l. Pressing in joints. Throbbing, finally twitching pain in periosteum, in region of insertion of r. deltoid, extending through shoulder to upper teeth and to temples and vertex, then sore pain in muscular parts of arm on pressure. Prickling burning pain in r. on motion. Drawing in r.; < dinner, > walking in open air.

Elbow.—Sticking in r., and in forearm; itching S. in bend of r. during rest. Tearing in r. with burning pain. Boring. Pressure. Drawing in r.; l. Weakness.

Forearm.—Drawing sticking in periosteum. Boring and pressing, and in wrists. Crampy pain in l. Occasional pains in r. in morning. Drawing pain in l., persisting at elbow. Tensive pain in r. Pressing drawing. Stiffness of r., with pain in extensors. Falling asleep of r.

Wrist.—Boring. Drawing pain when sitting. Pressing; and in forearm.

Hand.—Sticking in r. metacarpus at 7 p.m. when writing, hindering opening of the hand and stretching of fingers, repeated at 8 p.m. when reading and afterwards at different times. Tearing in joints of l. Pain in joints; in palmar joints; cramplike, in palms, so that the fingers were difficult to open, < during rest; contractive pain in r. hand, < until a similar pain occurred in malar-bone, the pain in hand then spread over forearm as the facial pain decreased and grew milder, when the facial pain and colic occurred. Drawing in hands and fingers; with pinching; in r. hand and wrist, then in r. elbow. Stiff feeling.

Fingers.—Sticking in joints. Drawing tearing in joints of l. Drawing pain in ball of r. thumb, as if in a tendon, disappearing at the tip. Drawing; in ball of thumb. Pressure in r. Tensive pain in thumb, impeding its motion. Bruised pain in r. middle, at noon. Burning pain in one point in r. middle.

Lower Extremities.—Pain ~ till noon and when walking; P. > drinking beer. Boring in joints, > towards evening and when sitting. Heaviness.

Thigh.—Cramp on middle of l. Drawing twitching in region of l. hip, with throbbing, and in r. loin over crest of ilium, towards buttock. Sticking in muscles above knees; on inner side of l., from ischiatic tuberosity towards knee, in forenoon when walking; in flesh, with drawing; in region of r. hip, suddenly appearing and disappearing when walking, > sitting, but instead of S. there was weight in lumbal-dorsal region, > lying on l. side, with heat and sensibility of the part, > on rising and walking, when the sticking returned, the pain > night in warmth of bed, but it woke him at 4 A.M., when it was throbbing and boring, the trouble lay in the sacral region, corresponding to the position of the plexus ischiadicus, extended through the incisura ischiadica major towards the hip-joint, down posterior part of thigh into fossa poplitea (compare Guaphalium). Sticking tearing when sitting and standing. Boring in muscles; in spots in muscles of l. when sitting; in r. hip-joint. Pressure in middle of l.; P. in muscles; above knees when walking; in muscles when sitting. Pain in r. upper when walking, as if spine is too short. Bruised and weary pain in hips and knees in morning. Burning pain in muscles of r., making walking difficult. Drawing pain in r. is just as soon;

D. pain in muscles. Drawing in inner side of l. as far as flank; in l. side of l. all the afternoon; in T. and calf; in muscles of T. and calves when walking, so that flexure of lower limbs was painful; in muscles, with burning; cramplike, along inside of r. at 7 P.M. when walking. Drawing tension in r. Clucking in l. buttock. Stiffness of hip-joint. Weariness, < ascending stairs.

Knee.—Sticking; in l.; in r. patella when walking, > continuing to walk; in hollow on motion, at last itching S. Boring in l., then r.; in r. at 6 P.M.; when sitting, with pressing; with drawing. Cramp pain, and in calves. Pain, and in ankles; frequent P. in r. in evening; in l., impeding walking. Bruised sensation when sitting; and when walking. Paralytic pain when walking, as if bound. Drawing pain; when sitting; when sitting, with bruised sensation and general malaise. Drawing and pressing, and in shins; in l. knee as if pinched; intermittent D. in inner part of r. towards noon when walking, with tension and empty feeling; D. in l. popliteal space on getting out of bed, as if tendons were too short; in r. in forenoon, then in r. thigh; D. and stiffness alternately in r. and l. Tension in l. on rising from bed, with stiffness; T. in l. patella in evening, < next day, so that walking was painful, with heat and swelling and pulsation in the swelling. Pulsation in l. popliteal space. Weariness; < sitting; when sitting at 9 A.M., extending into legs and ankles. Stiffness in l. when sitting, > walking. Heaviness of both in evening, > walking, with tearing in l.

Leg.—Cramp; in muscles near tibia towards morning, < by bending knee. Sticking in l.; drawing, on outside when sitting; itching, in r., even on motion; itching, in r. tibia, < during rest. Tearing in sides of tendo-achillis; in l. tibia and ankle, on waking at midnight. Boring above ankles when sitting; B. on tendo-achillis. Pain in the hitherto painless varices. Throbbing pain in upper inner part of r. when sitting and walking, extending to posterior side of thigh towards ischium. Bruised sensation. Pressing together in r. when sitting. Cramplike squeezing around middle of l., as from a narrow ribbon. Tensive pain in tibiae when sitting. Drawing, and in ankles; in tibia; in tendo-achillis; in tendo-achillis when sitting; in legs when walking and sitting; in r. when sitting; on tibia, < l., < sitting, and in calves; sticking D. along l. tibia into ankle-bones, in evening, with burning pressure in l. eye. Weakness. Asleep.

Calf.—Twitching in r., > motion. Cramp in l.; C., < coition. Sticking; itching, in r. Tearing in l. as far as heel; T. at times when sitting and standing. Cutting on inner side of l. during rest. Boring pinching in muscles. Pressing. Drawing when standing, with pressing; cramplike D. in r. Feeling as if asleep longitudinally along outer side of r., as if in tract of a nerve, then increased in extent, as if the nerve were swollen in its periphery, gradually passing into constriction, and then the same feeling on dorsum of first joint of r. great toe, then under nail of l. great toe.

Ankle.—Sticking; and in dorsum of r. foot and in l. great toe; tearing, about r. inner malleolus. Boring when walking and sitting; when walking, with drawing, and in dorsum of foot; in malleoli. Pressing in l.; in r., with drawing; when sitting, with tearing. Pain when walking in the street as from a misstep, > rest. Drawing in r.; towards inner malleolus.

Foot.—Increased in size, so that the boots were too small in the instep. Trembling; as from fright, with shaking chill. Sticking along external border of l. sole; itching-boring, in dorsum of r., < during rest. Tearing on dorsa; on dorsum of l.; in periosteum of heel; in r. metatarsus, towards great toe-joint in evening; in r. sole, < during rest. Sticking cutting in r. as if a nail were driven through it. Boring in l. sole. Gnawing in inner ball of l. in evening. Cramplike pain on dorsum of r., in scaphoid and internal cuneiform bones, as if in periosteum, with soft, pale, painless, circumscribed swelling like a lymphatic tumor, on r. edge of tarsus, lasting six months, the same pain in l. foot and sometimes in second joint of great toe, without swelling. Painful pressure on dorsum of r., < l. side towards great toe, > walking, with falling asleep of r. leg. Twitching pain in dorsa towards tibiae when walking in street. Drawing aching in l. Drawing in soles. Heaviness in morning in bed, > rising and walking. Falling asleep of l., then r.; of l., even during rest; when stooping in evening, and knees; of l., with swelling and heat, gradually extending to whole leg, with itching and tickling; sensation as if l. would go to sleep in evening when sitting.

Toes.—Sticking in tips and below nails of l.; in tips of r., with boring. Tearing under nail of l. great. Boring in r.; in ball of great; in joints of r. great. Cramp pain in r. second, extending towards sole; sudden C. pain in r. great in evening, extending towards sole, then swelling of whole r. foot, < sole, in night and next day, with pain when stepping on it or making strong pressure; threatening of cramp pain and stiffness alternately in r. second toe and both knees. Sprained pain in l. in evening on ascending steps. Pressure in posterior joint of r. great, in evening when moving about; P. on r. great, < during rest; in some, in afternoon, and in calves; in posterior joint of l. great, as if the boot were too tight, > walking, with throbbing and with heaviness of feet, < forenoon, and sensation in feet when sitting, < l., as if falling asleep. Intermittent pain in r. second, and in knees. Drawing extending to dorsum of foot and to ankles; D. in r. Stiffness of l. great.

Clinical.—Sciatica, pain extremely violent, tearing, shooting, boring, < heat, pressure and by flexing leg on abdomen.

Skin.—Desquamation over whole body. Pimple on l. cheek, with biting on touch, and after scratching watery oozing; white pimples on face, < between eye and ear, on forehead and chin, with twinging, and when touched biting. Boil on face, then one on back; on l. side of neck, with burning pain, and one on lower angle of l. scapula; on ulnar side of both hands. Ulcers, with itching and burning. Vesicle filled with pus on l. upper arm, with red-hot border, with pain on motion, then with drawing in whole arm, the pain sometimes extending to axilla and fingers, preventing sleep at night, then discharge of pus.

Sticking on calves; on dorsum of hand. Prickling on different parts, with crawling. Crawling on l. side of chest and abdomen. Itching on various parts; causing restlessness; on various spots, < l. side of body, which smart like burning points; I. of face; in umbilical region in evening; in hollow of l. knee, then biting after scratching; biting I. here and there in evening in bed, only transiently > scratching, then uneasiness so that the limbs must be moved constantly, and sleeplessness; (I. of whole body, < chest and abdomen in morning, as after profuse sweat). Tickling itching in l. gluteal muscles when sitting; tickling I. on r. arm, > scratching; on thigh, face, shoulders, flanks and on tip of glans penis, with urging to urinate.

Sleep.—Yawning; spasmodic. Sleepiness at noon; early when reading an interesting work; with disinclination to mental labor; with inclination to lie down and during sleep uneasiness of limbs, < legs. Sleeps on his back, with one hand under the occiput and the other arm over the head. Sleeplessness; all night, thoughts and plans about his occupation keep him quiet and dispassionate. Restless at night. Restless sleep; before midnight, with voluptuous dream and a pollution, during which he awoke; after midnight, with vivid, troublesome dreams; with horrible, exciting dreams; with vivid, senseless dreams; with vivid dreams, frequent waking from pain in umbilical region; interrupted by vivid dreams, sweat every time on waking. Frequent waking. Interrupted by vivid dreams and frequent calls to urinate. Heavy, full of dreams. Many and various dreams. Dreams full of difficult thought. Vivid, anxious D.; vivid, with frequent waking, always on his back. Voluptuous dreams; when lying on back, with emissions without erections; with intractable erections without emissions; with emissions.

Fever.—Chilliness; in whole body; in whole body, then heat. Shivering through whole body in morning after rising, with cold hands, heat of face and rest of body, without thirst; S. after eating, < upper arms. Cold limbs; knees; hands and tips of fingers in morning after rising, with warm face; hands in evening, with warm feet; upper arms in evening. Internal coldness, but not external, in knees; in soles. C. alternating with heat and intermittent sweat.

Heat; < upper part of body; on waking in night, < lower limbs. Internal and external. In flushes, without thirst; F. < in face, with sweat on forehead. In head; in r. ear; nape; in l. foot and along tibia when walking; in skin of calves, < r.; in pin-scratches on fingers, also in face and head.

Sweat over whole body towards morning; S. at night; general S. on walking, with weakness; over face; on legs in morning on waking; greasy, on forehead and chest; of urinous odor on head, hands, legs and feet, at night.

Comocladia.

A tincture is made of the fresh bark of Comocladia dentata, Jacq.

General Action.—Almost exactly similar to Rhus tox., Anacardium, Ailanthus and other botanical allies.

Generalities.—Swelling of whole body; then redness all over like scarlet fever (Rhus t.), afterwards color of skin like a mulatto's. Aching in both sides and upper arms, in forenoon, < r. side. General malaise, fever and headache. Weakness in afternoon, with heat and perspiration on face and neck. Symptoms < l. side. Symptoms disappear when moving in open air (Rhus t.).

Mind.—Cheerfulness in morning; in forenoon. Combative, vindictive disposition, with contempt for opponents. (Self-complacent thoughts and contempt for others?)

Head.—Aching, stupefying, throbbing; indescribable

A. Confusion. Heaviness in morning; H., with enlarged feeling. Catarrhal symptoms, with soreness of eyes from 4 or 5 P.M. through the evening, and lachrymation. Symptoms worse near stove and when stooping, > open air. Aching in os frontis and in orbital bones; deep in brain over r. eye; deep in anterior part of brain on sitting down; above l. eyebrow at 4.12 P.M.; in forehead in afternoon, and on moving head sense of fullness, rigidity and lameness of muscles of neck. Heaviness in forehead and eyes.

Temples.—Pain; in r.; in r. at 1 P.M.; in r. at 6 P.M., and in r. orbital bones; in r. at 11.30 P.M. while lying on r. side, then pain and sense of fullness in r. side of face; in r. bone, beginning in temporal ridge at 4 P.M. and extending to occiput, with pain in whole base of brain on moving head and in mastoideus and trapezius muscles; sharp, at 2.35 P.M. passing down r. temporal ridge and external angular process, then sharp pain in r. supraorbital ridge, close to supraorbital notch.

Intermittent pain in r. side. Constriction in sides. Sharp pain in occiput, extending down neck. Itching of scalp; mostly in superior l. parietal region.

Eyes.—Look dull and glassy, vessels congested, lids red, swollen and inflamed. Pain in r. at 3 or 4 P.M., with feeling as if larger and more protruded than l.; P., < near a stove, with lachrymation when stooping, and with soreness of eyeballs, < r.; from posterior part of r. through head to occipital protuberance, with soreness of eyeball, lachrymation and feeling as if the eye were as large as two eyes, next morning sore feeling in eye. Feeling heavy, larger, painful, pressing out of head, as from a pressure on top of eyeballs moving them downward and outward (Rhus t.). Symptoms < l. towards and during evening; S. < r. during the day; < moving head, reading, looking at a lighted candle and bright objects. Symptoms > sitting quietly before a wood fire on the hearth. Lachrymation from looking at a lighted candle, with increase of pain in eyes; L. < in open air.

Balls.—Intermittent pain from posterior part of both through head to below occipital protuberance, with pressure on superior surface of balls, seeming to move eyes downward and outward. Soreness in evening; of r. at 6 A.M., < moving eye; aching, from 4 or 5 P.M. till 10, < evening, by candle-light and by motion, sometimes causing vertigo, and stooping or motion caused flow of tears. Feeling worse on moving them.

Lids.—Inflammation of Meibomian glands of r. upper. Stitches upward in l. external canthus about 8.30 P.M. Itching at r. external canthus, then at lower border of l. eye.

Clinical.—Ciliary neuralgia from asthenopia and pain from other causes, especially if the eye feels large and protruding.

Ears.—Pain extending to lower jaw. Heat internally in r. at 1 P.M., with fullness. Ringing, with vertigo.

Nose.—Itching internally and externally over all that part inferior to bridge, until going to sleep at night, momentarily > by rubbing.

Face.—Swollen, with eyes projecting from their sockets and ability to see only a faint glimmer of light with the l. (Rhus t.); S. around eyes at 6 A.M., much puffed below superior tarsal cartilage in afternoon. Aching at base of r. antrum of highmore at 10.30 P.M., then at base of l. Sensation as if skin were drawn up from face and about nose, causing vertigo.

Jaw.—Aching in ramus of r. at 9 A.M.; in l. articulation at 5.10 P.M. after light exercise in open air, leaving a sense of fullness, then aching in r. articulation ending in sharp pain; in r. articulation, involving whole r. side of head, at 5.22 P.M. on entering a warm room after a walk in open air.

Lips.—Dry and chapped; and often bleeding. Sensation as of a scabby eruption on median line of lower, close to vermilion border. Corrosive burning on l. side of lower at 10 A.M. while at rest.

Mouth.—Molar. Aching in body of last r. lower, at 1 P.M., after dinner; in r. upper, at 5.30 P.M., < cold air, and in gum; sore pulsating, in body of r. upper middle, at 6.30 P.M., > holding r. side of face to the stove; in a r. upper middle (the molar below it is carious), < at 12 M. and becoming twitching, that is, a sensation as if the tooth were drawn out of the socket, putting the nerve on the stretch, and suddenly pressed into the socket again, the pain shooting into temple, lasting till 3 P.M., < holding cold water in mouth, > pressure of hand and holding affected side close to hot stove, with elongated sensation. Loose sensation in r. at 4.30 P.M.

Aching in lower incisors at 3 P.M. while reading, passing to r. cuspid and bicuspid teeth; A. in lower incisors at 4.30 P.M., leaving them sensitive to pressure of upper teeth. Intermittent aching in bodies of all teeth. Swelling of the gum of a carious tooth. Cutting in gum of first l. lower molar at 1 P.M. Aching in gum and root of r. middle lower molar (which is hollow and loose) till going to sleep at 9.30 P.M., > holding r. side of face to the fire; sore, in gum of r. upper molars at 5.30 P.M., while at rest in a warm room.

Tongue.—Dryness at night, and of mouth; like a chip, with burning and swelling of lower lip, which remains chapped. Burning; in forenoon, with redness and dryness, especially of anterior part. Burnt feeling; and smoother and redder at tip than usual.

Throat.—Attacks of inflammation. Hawking up of mucus. Roughness, with scraping. Difficulty in empty deglutition. Sense of expansion in œsophagus at 3.30 P.M. while at rest, as of air slowly ascending from stomach.

Stomach.—Appetite for dinner less than usual; no A. for dinner. Eructations; with relief; frequent, at 9 A.M.; of air at 11 A.M.; of air at 4.30 P.M.; of air tasting of the drug at 10.15 A.M., while at rest; of sour acrid water at 2.5 P.M.; acrid, producing momentary strangulation, at 10.10 A.M., after walking in open air. Hiccough at 3 P.M., then gaping. Nausea. Stitches in every direction in pit while lying on l. side at night < inspiration. Pain in epigastrium at 10 P.M., as from flatus. Expansive distress in epigastric region, like heartburn, extending through posterior border of l. scapula, about 11 P.M., while lying on l. side, > lying on r. side. Acrid, rancid sensation at 3.30 P.M., while walking in open air.

Abdomen.—Flatulence, with noisy eructations and discharge of flatus. Discharge of flatus, with desire for stool; of odorless flatus while walking in open air after breakfast. Full feeling, with pain. Pain in evening; P. < eating; with distention, rumbling and discharge of flatus; in various parts, sometimes mounting to axilla; in attacks, < r. side, and < sitting in-doors. Tensive feeling, as from flatus. Uneasiness; with pain.

Stinging in hypochondrium at 11 A.M. Aching in l.

side at floating ribs at 7.15 A.M.; in l. side and rumbling of flatus, extending over abdomen; in r. side, extending down course of rectus muscle, at 3.40 P.M.; wandering, in r. side at 10 P.M. Pains around umbilicus at 8.30 P.M., extending to epigastrium. Sore pain extending across umbilicus at 9.30 P.M., affecting respiration, with bubbling in abdomen as of wind, and with emission of hot flatus. Pain in r. ilio-cœcal region, coming on like a thrust.

Hypogastrium.—Bubbling at 6.25 A.M., while sitting after a walk in open air. Pain at night, with gurgling, uneasiness and emission of odorless flatus. Flatulent pain; at 4.30 P.M., with emission of flatus, then pain in abdomen, at 6 P.M. flatulent pain in abdomen, preceding and during diarrhœa, then weakness and perspiration on face and neck. Shifting pains at 9 P.M. in bed. Throbbing in l. posterior side of abdomen, between spleen and kidneys, from twitching of tendons.

Stool and Urine.—Stool loose; and urgent, with aching at anus. Stool omitted. Urine covered with a pellicle and containing a cloud of mucus suspended in it, next day urine scanty.

Scrotum.—Numb tensive pain at 10 P.M., extending to inner condyle of thigh. Itching; when sitting and standing; about noon, and on lower part of penis, extending to prostate gland, and on inner surface of prepuce; tingling I. at night.

Respiratory Organs.—Itching in r. side of trachea at 7.15 P.M., after walking in open air, producing a dry, hacking cough, then itching in l. side of trachea, causing dry, hacking cough. Cough at night in bed, from irritation.

Chest.—Stitches just below apex of heart; beneath sternum, < towards r. side; inward in cartilages of sixth and seventh ribs, at 10.50 A.M., while walking in open air. Prickling in costal cartilages of eighth, ninth and tenth r. ribs. Aching in anterior wall during the day; in r. anterior wall, near axilla, at 3.40 P.M.; in r. anterior wall at 5 P.M., extending through to scapula; at posterior aspect of middle of sternum at 3.15 P.M.; in lower third of sternum at 11 P.M., while lying on l. side; in l. mamma, above nipple, at 3.30 P.M., while sitting in-doors, sometimes like a throbbing sore pain, sometimes as from pressure of the edge of a knife, > walking and deep inspiration, < expiration, with bruised feeling in ribs beneath when pressed by the hand, a return of the pain at 5 P.M., after supper, after leaving the mamma it passes down the side as low as the spleen, at 6.30 a return of the pain in the mamma, after leaving mamma lancinating pain passing down r. side of chest and inner side of r. upper arm, then to elbow, down forearm and along dorsal surfaces of second and third fingers, then pain in l. carpus, the pain returning at 7.25 and 9.20.

Sharp pain in upper part, apparently in pleura, at night in bed, on deep inspiration. Pulsating raw pain near sternal border of l. mamma, seemingly in cartilage of fifth rib, at 5 P.M. Sore aching in anterior wall while in bed. Sore spot below l. ribs at 7.30 P.M., then worse below r. ribs. Soreness in l. lung, as during convalescence from pneumonia, at 5.30 P.M. while at rest.

Drawing in r. anterior wall soon after 3.50 P.M.; at 1.30 P.M. while writing, and in r. arm, passing down arm to elbow. Drawing crampy sensation at outer border of r. mamma, extending to axilla and arm, at 2.30 P.M.; in r. anterior wall of chest and axilla at 3.25 P.M., extending to fingers and ending in jerking of little finger. Feeling of fullness and tightness across lower part of chest and upper part of abdomen, as if nothing could move, with swelling, and with difficulty of breathing, the last < morning in bed, > moving about and in open air.

Heart and Pulse.—Palpitation in morning on slight exercise. Pulse accelerated every day at 9 A.M. Arterial excitement at night.

Back.—Scapula. Pain under lower part of l. at 3.50 P.M.; crampy, below r. at 9.45 P.M.; sore, at r. at 9.50 P.M.; sharp broad, from lower angle of r. to locality of serrations of serratus magnus muscles, at 2.35 P.M., then pulsating pain at posterior aspect of coccyx. Aching in dorsal region at 10 P.M.; in coccyx while in bed. Pulsating pain in periosteum of l. pubic bone at 3.40 P.M., generally > walking, sometimes felt when walking, with sensitiveness to pressure. Pulsating pain in l. sacro-iliac articulation at 2.18 P.M.; in r. at 3.05 P.M., leaving a lameness, which is felt when walking. Intermittent pressing-outward pain at l. sacro-iliac articulation at 3.20 P.M., > walking, with sensitiveness to pressure, then lameness and soreness.

Extremities.—Aching in r. ankle at 11.30 P.M., then in r. forearm, then deep pulsating pain in r. gluteal region near tuber ischii. Drawing in muscles of r. upper arm at 6 P.M., in dorsum of r. foot, then in plantar region of r. foot, shifting rapidly from place to place.

Drawing in upper part of r. forearm at 11 P.M., while lying on l. side, with aching, then pulsating deep pain in r. gluteal region, just above tuber ischii, seemingly in periosteum, then sharp pain above crest of r. ilium, then return of the pain in r. gluteal region, then sharp pain above crest of l. ilium, then drawing and aching in r. foot, then in anterior muscles of r. forearm, then pulsating, deep pain in r. gluteal region, sensitiveness to pressure, then drawing and aching in anterior muscles of l. forearm, drawing in outer side of l. foot, extending to plantar aspect, as if the foot would cramp, then drawing and aching in l. leg, lame aching and drawing in r. forearm, near elbow, then return of the pain near r. tuber ischii, then aching in r. leg, then pulsating deep pain in r. thigh, at inner border of sartorius muscle.

Upper Extremities.—Axilla. Drawing or cramplike pain in r. Heavy drawing pain in l., extending towards shoulder, with sensation as if shoulder would be drawn towards neck. Sudden drawing at 4.15 P.M., while at rest, moving down inner side of arm to elbow, with aching.

Sharp pain through r. shoulder to scapula, at 3.08 P.M. while at rest. Trembling of l. arm and l. shoulder when reclining and supporting body with l. hand. Aching in muscles of r. arm while in bed. R. arm more painful, but in l. more tremulous sensation (and loss of power?). Pain at internal condyle of r. arm at 4.30 P.M., while standing in open air, at the same time and while arm is resting on a support drawing at inner side of l. upper arm.

Upper Arm.—Pain extending from a little above elbow down posterior part of arm, dorsum of hand, to ends of fingers, > exercising arm, with numbness of arm while holding anything with hand. Lame pain in r. at 2.30 P.M., while at rest. Drawing in r. at 7.15 P.M.; in muscles of r. at 7 P.M. while riding on horseback. Drawing crampy sensation in muscles of r. at 3.45 P.M., then in r. elbow.

Sticking in r. elbow at 2.45 P.M. Aching in l. forearm at 9.30 P.M.; in r. at 3.40 P.M., beginning in belly of flexor carpi radialis, extending through arm, with sensitiveness of arm to pressure. Pulsating pain in interosseous tissue of palmar aspect of l. forearm, near wrist, at 4.30 P.M., extending to little finger, where it becomes a drawing, crampy pain, then a drawing sensation, extending up forearm from wrist.

Numb tensive pain in forearm at 6 P.M., with rheumatic stiffness of shoulders and elbows. Drawing in r. forearm at 3.45 P.M., extending to metacarpus. Numbness of forearm, especially along ulnar nerve to end of last two fingers, and prickling when resting on elbow.

Carpus.—Pain suddenly piercing palmar surface of l. at 9.25 P.M., after a walk in open air, traversing dorsum of first and second fingers, becoming a drawing pain in its progress to metacarpophalangeal joints of those fingers, then involving all the r. metacarpophalangeal joints, drawing the fingers closer together and the thumb towards the palm, and the whole hand is numb, looks and feels swollen, with heat in it, the drawing > continued motion. Drawing pain through r. at 10 A.M., leaving lameness. Drawing, crampy sensation in l. at 6 P.M., then in anterior muscles of r. upper arm. Crampy aching in r. wrist at 9.45 P.M.

Hand.—Trembling of l. and of forearm. Sudden dancing pain in r. metacarpus at 1.30 P.M. while writing, ending in lame aching and drawing in metacarpal region of thumb and index. Drawing pain in dorsal aspect of metacarpal region of r. thumb at 3.30 P.M. Drawing crampy pain in middle of r. palm, extending to tips of fingers (not thumb), as if fingers would be drawn towards palm. Painful weakness of r., especially the two last fingers are inclined to numbness when writing. Numbness of l. at 9.30 P.M., with pain in dorsum of first phalanx of r. index, shooting to joint of first and second phalanges of index.

Fingers.—Stinging on dorsum of first phalanx of r. second, at 4.15 P.M. Pain in palmar surface of last phalanx of third, at 3 and 7 P.M.; in r. little while reading. Crampy sensation in first phalanges of r., at 3.47 P.M., increasing to aching, > motion of fingers; drawing C. sensation in first phalanx of r. ring, and sensation as if the finger would be flexed on palm, this drawing seemed to move towards metacarpophalangeal joint, appearing next day in first phalanx of r. ring finger, then in first phalanx of r. index.

Lower Extremities.—Twitching of tendons of r. buttock at 8.30 P.M. Aching in outer hamstring of r. leg in afternoon, with drawing; A. in upper and posterior part of l. thigh at 2.35 P.M. while writing; along outer side of r. thigh at 3.27 P.M., while at rest; near r. tuber ischii at 10 A.M. while standing before a stove.

Pulsating pain in neck of r. femur; in capsular ligament, at 4.10 P.M., > walking, returning during rest; pulsating P. in gluteal region, near r. tuber ischii, at 5 P.M., with sensitiveness to pressure. Pulsating, deep pain in posterior and upper part of thigh at 4.50 P.M.; at inner border of r. ilio-femoral ligament, at 1 P.M., > walking. Lame aching at inner side, just above r. knee, at 9.50 P.M., then wiry or threadlike pain in r. instep. (Tensive pain in anterior and lower part of thighs at 8 P.M., < r., with bruised feeling in periosteum on pressure.)

Knee.—Stitches in every direction in l. popliteal space, then smarting as if burnt. Intermittent pressing-outward pain in r. at 12.30 A.M., in bed, > motion. Lame pain in r. at 3 P.M. Crampy aching in l. at 9.20 P.M., while sitting in a warm room, not > motion. Drawing pain in r. at 3.50 P.M., extending into anterior muscles of thigh.

Leg.—Aching in r. at 12 M.; above r. ankle at 9 P.M., while sitting, > walking, returning on sitting down; intermittent, in r. tibia at 9 P.M. Pulsating pain in head of r. tibia at 3.20 P.M., > motion; in head of r. tibia at 5.30 P.M., while at rest, with sensitiveness of tibia to pressure; pulsating, near upper and outer side of r. fibula at 6.30 P.M., then in r. thigh. Numb aching passing down outer side of r. to foot at 2.50 P.M., then aching and drawing in outer hamstring. Crampy lameness in r. leg, just above instep, at 3.30 P.M., while the leg is resting on a table, > walking, then while at rest drawing crampy sensation in hollow of r. foot, passing up outer ankle and along outer border of gastrocnemius muscle to knee, > walking, returning while sitting with feet resting on floor, passing slowly from outer ankle to knee, then in tibia, where it becomes a numb aching, then in tarsus, where it causes drawing aching, as if foot would cramp, > continued motion.

Ankle.—Pain passing upward over l. inner, at 4.30 P.M., while at rest in a warm room. Sudden lameness in l. at 8.50 A.M., while walking in open air, with loss of strength.

Foot.—Threadlike pain below r. outer ankle at 4.30 P.M., ending in aching. Drawing crampy sensation at dorsum of r., in region of external cuneiform bone, at 5.45 P.M. (while at rest in a warm room, the air being moist), spreading outward and over cuboid bone and over metatarsal bone of little toe, then moving to region of anterior ligament, where it becomes a bruised aching, extending to external malleolus, sometimes up tibia and fibula, causing a full feeling in those bones, with lameness when walking, next day at 3 P.M., while at rest, return of the aching in r. ankle.

Instep.—Pain in r.; crampy, in r. at 12.30 A.M., > motion. Numb drawing in l., extending to knee, while at rest, then sensation as of warm air, like an aura, ascending half way to knee, the numbness and drawing then concentrated at instep, and again the aura ascended slowly to knee, at same time aching in tibia and fibula, with heat and fullness in leg, then the numb drawing moved over dorsum of foot to toes, where it ended in prickling, > motion, returning when motion ceased.

Toes.—Sticking in metatarsal joint of great, at plantar aspect. Drawing in r. great, at 6 P.M., as if it would cramp.

Skin.—Pale redness on lower part of r. hypochondrium, down to crest of r. ilium, and extending two-thirds across abdomen, with papillae, next morning similar appearance (though less marked) on l. side. Red and white streaks (the former broader) on back and r. half of abdomen, outer part of r. thigh, and as high as scapula, at 9 P.M., the redness > pressure, but returning immediately. Burning eruptions occasionally.

Pimples (some of them white at apex) on back part of neck, shoulders, scapulae and lower down on back; red, hard, on l. side of sacrum, with pain on touch; round, dull, red, on r. scapula, anterior and upper half of l. forearm, in same region of r. arm, but more numerous on l., and on outer and upper part of l. calf, those on l. half and l. arm looking dry and scaly. Inflammation of the part, with deep, hard-edged ulcers, which discharge a thick, fetid, purulent, greenish-yellow matter, the parts becoming in appearance similar to raw, decayed meat, while the surrounding skin is covered with shining scales.

Itching on various parts; in afternoon; in evening; at r. eyebrow; on face; on face, most about mouth; on abdomen; on scrotum; on extremities; on dorsum of l. hand, on l. scapula and inner side of thighs; on upper part of calves; on various parts of lower extremities in forepart of day, and in evening; below r. elbow at 7.30 P.M., > rubbing, with sensation as if it would return if I ceased rubbing; of palm, > getting up and moving around, with warmth in it; on inner side of l. thigh at 10 A.M., then above r. eye, then on scalp, at 10.15 at inner border of l. gastrocnemius, > rubbing, then tingling l. on r. side of upper lip, then crawling itching on r. malar region, then l. moving downward from r. commissure of mouth, then l. on palmar aspect of r. carpus, moving towards palm, then on r. angle of jaw.

Stinging itching on r. scapula at 2.45 P.M.; between metacarpal bones of r. thumb and index at 3.30 P.M., and itching on lower part of l. scapula, with sensation as if there were pimples there, then on r. scapula. Biting-corrosive itching on r. forearm, over belly of palmaris longus muscle at 11.40 A.M., then itching near r. angle of jaw, then itching on posterior aspect of r. forearm, then on dorsal aspect of first phalanx of r. index. Burning itching on whole body; on r. ear and surrounding tissue, extending into whiskers. Itching of nose, burning in open air, < in warm room. Burning tingling itching on lower extremities.

Tingling itching on lower part of sternum, then on whole chest; on ankle; along lower extremities, changing its position, > scratching; on various parts, mostly extremities, < the longer it lasts, > rubbing, scratching, in open air and on motion, < warmth and rest, in forepart of the day worse on upper extremities, in the after part worse on lower extremities; on l. side of scrotum at 8 P.M., while sitting, shifting to inner side and lower half of l. thigh; then on inner side below knee, then on upper extremities, the l. first, then on r. lower extremity, the itching changing places rapidly, > rubbing or scratching, < warmth and rest, for the most part proceeding from above downward, especially on lower limbs, and generally of a tingling character.

Clinical.—In erysipelas of face.

Sleep.—Night restless till 2 A.M., no sleep, with heat of hands and head, full, heavy and accelerated pulse, cold feet and hands. Dreamy and refreshing, seeming more like a clairvoyant state, after midnight dream of birds singing, which woke me and caused me to listen. Light, dreamy and refreshing, after midnight dream of entering a beautiful garden, from which I passed into a low woodland, in the eastern border of which was a sluggish, broad, shallow stream of water, and to cross dryshod required some exercise of mind.

Fever.—Heat; over superior maxillary bone at 10 A.M., while at rest, with sense of fullness, and with sensation as of a pimple over r. antrum. Burning on face and arms, especially about eyes, warmth with painful weakness, extending from shoulders to hands, and remaining there, more in palm and wrist, afterwards pain in r. hand grows severe and extends to elbow, > getting up and moving around. Burning in fingertips, < r., with aching.

Conium.

A tincture is made of the entire fresh plant of Conium maculatum, L.

General Action.—It produces paralysis of voluntary motion, then of respiration. The brain is benumbed, vertigo, dilated pupils, and even convulsions follow.

Allies.—Phos., Gels., Lyc., Hyosc., Curare, Arg. nit.

Generalities.—Concealed caries, especially in middle of long bones, with burning gnawing. Haste in all his actions. Clumsy movements. Walking about as if half asleep. Lay as one intoxicated, could not speak nor raise himself. Trembling (Gels.); < of arms, with throbbing motion of whole body. Starting at every sound; jerklike S., as in fright. Constant tossing about and violent screams. Subsultus tendinum (Hyosc.). Convulsions; with danger of suffocation; with uneasiness and wild fancies; of upper part of body, with paralysis of lower limbs; of facial muscles, so that there was a frightful expression, with frequent contractions of other muscles, < extensors of back and flexors of limbs, with motion of thumb and index as if unwinding a skein of thread. Epilepsy, distortion of eyes, flow of blood from ears, jaws could not be opened, ineffectual retching, singultus. Epileptiform attack, with contraction of all muscles. Hysterical attack, with spasmodic motions.

Sticking in whole body; in swollen glands; now in cardiac region, now in hands, head and legs, with tearings; smarting S. about swollen glands; tearing now here, now there, as if to the bones. Tearings through various parts; wandering, in arms, legs and teeth. Cutting around glands. Paroxysm, < after eating, beginning with yawning, sticking in sternum and pressure in pit of stomach, even on touch, whence it extended to the back and became a sticking in region of kidneys. Cramplike pain in various parts, chest, jaws, etc. Pain in affected parts became intolerable. Pain in a place injured several years previously. Bruised sensation. Contractive sensation in inner parts, with salivation. Fulness in chest, head and hypochondria, mornings on waking. Easily overstrained. Liability to take cold; even in the room when sitting after a walk, during which he had perspired. Uneasiness; of blood in the whole body. Pulsation in whole body. Feeling as if the whole body were inclined to the right.

Disinclination to work. Standing is very irksome. Every step was irksome on returning from a walk, with ill humor and impatience for the time when he could rest in solitude. Nervous prostration. Relaxation of muscles and limbs, then difficulty in walking and inability to control movements, necessity to lie down. Weakness; morning and evening; morning on waking, > rising; morning after waking, as after a fever; morning fasting, with aversion to food; morning in bed, and sickness, with ill humor, sleepiness and pain in stomach; on waking from midday nap; after eating; on walking (Ars., Phos.), with tendency to fall forward on knees, heaviness over eyes and giddiness; after a walk, with paralyzed feeling and fretful, hypochondriac mood; from walking in open air, and affected by the air; with desire to lie down; with chilliness, palpitation and headache; with chilliness, so that he must lie down, next day occiput felt as if pierced by a knife at every beat of the pulse, and palpitation, heart throbbing violently at times, at times beating rapidly, at times wavering; of head and whole body, with loss of appetite; tremulous weakness after stool (Arg. n., Ars.), > open air. Faintness. Heaviness; in afternoon, with unsteadiness. Dulness of all senses. Stiffness, movement of limbs, neck, etc., caused unpleasant sensation. Paralysis; of all muscles (Gels.), those of deglutition being the first, and those of respiration the last to fail. Aggravation at night, waking him; A. during rest; when sitting; in the house. Amelioration at night.

Clinical.—Indurated glands (occasionally hard), usually with sharp knife-like pains, but not always painful. Useful for weakness following exhaustive diseases. Paralytic affections (after diphtheria). General physical and mental debility, tremulous weakness, sudden attacks of faintness, especially with vertigo.

Mind.—Delirium; running wildly about the house, knocking against the walls; during which he at first took to walking about; with stupidity, they threw themselves into the water, thinking they were geese, and partly paralytic, with much pain; violent, interrupted by crying out from pain; mirthful, going out of the house; intermittent; in a man who had been somewhat addicted to the use of liquors, he saw all sorts of animals dancing upon the bed and "picked straws;" partly delirious and partly foolish. Fantasies in morning. Illusion at night that some one had come in at the door. Vision of her brother and child who had died, she saw persons in the room, she knew that it was an illusion and tried to get it out of her mind, but saw them coming in at the door.

Superstitious. Aversion to being near people and to the talk of those passing him, inclination to seize hold of and abuse them. Dread of the approach of men, yet dread of being alone. Everything makes an unpleasant sensation upon him. Fretfulness; in morning after eating, with confusion in forehead and anxiety; every day from 5 to 6 P.M., as if a great guilt weighed upon him, with paralyzed feeling in all limbs and indifference; time passes too slowly. Discontent. Easily aroused to anger. Anxiety; with palpitation and nosebleed; impelling them from place to place; waking at night, then long wakefulness. Fear; at night after waking; after midnight when half awake; of thieves. Sadness; without speaking. Hypochondriac and indifferent mood when walking in open air. Lachrymose mood; when alone in the house, on giving way to it it changed to hiccough, then flickering before eyes and indistinct vision, so that she must steady herself in walking, then exhaustion of limbs and headache; and faint-hearted; and smiling. Frequent thoughts of death. Hurried mood. Lively excitement. Constant mirth. Tendency to laugh, with loss of energy; tendency to laugh as if coming from r. hypochondrium and stomach, during exhaustion. Without sympathy. Apathy. Disinclination for business.

Inability to sustain mental effort (Phos., Op.). Stupefaction, difficulty in understanding what he is reading. Mistakes in speaking. Sunk in deep thought, apprehension and desire to be alone. Loss of memory (Anac., Hyosc.); after waking from midnight sleep. Coma; at beginning of general paralysis, or collapse, or a condition between coma and collapse, with foam from mouth; with unconsciousness and difficult breathing. Unconsciousness; eyelids firmly closed, pupils dilated, respiration weak, pulse small, rapid, skin cold, spasmodic movements of upper limbs and facial muscles.

Clinical.—Melancholy, quiet, sad, picks his fingers, makes short answers, or this condition alternates with excessive gaiety. Hypochondriasis, especially resulting from excessive venery. Averse to people, yet dislikes to be alone. Melancholia resulting from suppression of menses, aversion to members of her own family. General mental weakness, inability to get the mind fixed on his business or to stand any prolonged mental effort.

Head.—Inability to keep it erect (Tabac.). Sticking; on coughing. Aching in morning on waking, as if brain were too full and would burst; A. in morning as if head were beaten or as if it would be pressed asunder. Aching in morning on waking, as in epidemic fever, as if brain were torn, < towards occiput. Aching; at night in bed, with nausea; on waking, with weakness from broken rest, and diarrhoea during the early morning; from scanty but frequent stools, with urging; on walking in open air, even in morning, lasting till breakfast; on entering house after a walk, with pressure in r. eye; on going into open air, he must rub the forehead; on stepping, she felt every step in the head; with diminished appetite; with nausea and vomiting of mucus; with muscæ volitantes, diplopia, languor and sleepiness; extending to jaws and thence to l. side of chest, with sticking.

Drawing on going into open air, > closing eyes; D. > after eating, with going to sleep of brain. Tension after every meal, with compression from temples, necessity to rest forehead on table. Cerebral oppression. Fulness; at breakfast, from a ligature around neck, with vertigo. Stupefaction, with sleepiness. Dulness after drinking. Confusion; on waking from sound sleep, with heaviness. Heaviness; of brain, and pressure deep in it. Intoxication; from the slightest spirituous drink. Vertigo; in morning on rising (Lyc., Phos.); on walking; on descending stairs; < lying, as if the bed turned in a circle; with weight at orbits; tendency to, with sensation as if eyes were swollen and protruding; so that everything turns in a circle; as if turning in a circle, on rising from a seat; as if head would burst, on rising after stooping; sudden, with such weakness of legs that he must lie down. Apoplexy.

Forehead.—Sticking; outward, at noon; extending out of, in morning after rising; extending out of, in forenoon, with inclination to lie down; jerklie, < in the house. Digging and gripping, as if from the stomach, with such sensitiveness of brain that it was painfully shattered by noises and by speaking. Pain; in various places; externally; in sinciput; r. side and in l. side of occiput and in l. parietal eminence; and in eyes, with burning lachrymation as from salt water in eyes; above eyes, extending into eyes; externally, causing stupefaction; alternately severe and slight, in sinciput, then heaviness, then the same sensation in occiput. Pain on shaking head as if something were loose, extending to occiput. Pain in upper part as from external contraction, > stooping or leaning it on hand, with chilliness, vertigo and fretful loss of memory. Pressive aching outward over eyes. Pain as from a stone on upper part of bone. Pressure as from a band, then in occiput; above eyes, then in occiput, with heat in occiput, then in forehead and cheeks. Drawing pain above brows; in brain just behind forehead; wandering, and in r. temple. Throbbing. Confusion in region of brows and root of nose. Heaviness; in sinciput.

Temples.—Tearing in r., and in r. ear; through temples in morning; when eating; after eating, with pressure in forehead. Pressure. Pain from one to the other. Drawing pain in bones; D. pain on touch. Drawing in r. muscles, < walking.

Vertex.—Pain and heaviness, and in occiput. Squeezing pain, then it went to sides of jaws, then to below l. breast, with choking feeling and inability to draw a breath. Pressure deep in; P. on, then around forehead; P. on, with feeling as if one would fall. Nipping at every step, without pain.

Parietals.—Sticking in bones, in forehead and cervical muscles, with vertigo; tearing S. from l. bone to frontal region. Sensation in r. half of brain as of a large foreign body. Pain in r. half of brain, extending backward. Bruised pain in side of head, < by moving eyes towards affected side, with sensation of something heavy pressing downward. Pulsation in r. side of head in evening in bed. Confusion in l. half of head as from coldness or as if the brain did not fill the skull. One side of head numb and cold.

Occiput.—Tearing in l. on walking; T. and in nape and especially in orbits, with nausea so that she must lie in bed. Pain as if pierced with a knife at every beat of the pulse. Pressure on l. side; as with a plug in r. side. Fulness and confusion. Intermittent heaviness on sitting bent.

Boring tearing in various parts of skull, with pressure. Falling of hair. Sharp pressure in a spot on scalp. Itching.

Clinical.—Vertigo is a common accompaniment of the Conium condition, especially < motion, as turning over in bed or rising up; this vertigo is sometimes accompanied by partial paralysis of the muscles of the eye, or objects seem to be unsteady; especially indicated in vertigo of old people; vertigo resulting from excessive use of tobacco. With the head symptoms the brain is frequently extremely sensitive, with feeling of a hard lump in the brain, or with feeling of numbness or coldness in head or one side of the head.

Eyes.—Red. Staring. Protruding. Weak look. Wild and piercing look. Trembling look, as if eyes trembled. Movements as if pressed outward. Mucus in morning. Drawing pain, with redness. Pressure, < reading; P. if she closes them to sleep in evening; as from a grain of sand, < in forenoon, with inflammation and redness of white and biting lachrymation. Burning; towards evening, with pressure in orbits; heat shooting through them in afternoon and evening. Irritability. Discomfort so that he brushed them frequently to clear apparent obstructions from lids.

Lachrymation. Pupils dilated; alternately D. and contracted. Yellow whites. Pressure and sticking in r. conjunctiva bulbi, in inner canthus, with fine vessels closely aggregated at inner margin of cornea. Inflamed lids and styes and frequent blinking. Lids drooping, almost ptosis (Gels.), with difficulty in walking. Lids drawn together in morning. Twitching of upper lid; l. lid. Inability to open lids; difficulty in opening (Gels.). Sticking in margins of lids and in canthi; in inner canthus, with agglutination of lids in morning; itching, in inner canthus, not > by rubbing. Lids seem pressed down, and sleepiness. Pressure as from sand in external canthi. Burning on inner surface of lids. Biting in inner canthus, with lachrymation. Itching of margins of lids. Contractive power of muscle orbicularis weakened. Pain across eyebrows and misty vision. Pain in orbits, < with the headache; P. in bones above r. eye late in evening, and in nose and malar-bone.

Vision.—Weak; with dazling, vertigo and general debility, < arms and legs, so that he staggered. Fatigue from reading. Sensitiveness to light. Sluggishness of adaptation, dim vision when an uneven object was put in motion, causing vertigo. Double; with sensation as if squinting; and the images slowly receding from each other to the apparent distance of six inches, here they generally became stationary, but at times alternately approached and receded from each other; and triple, with rings before eyes. On looking at near print the lines moved up and down. Flickering on moving eyes, with sudden vertigo, nausea and staggering, all > closing eyes, then general paresis, and even when eyes were shut any motion involving the balance of the body was attended with uncertainty and falling short of the desired effect and fresh rush of the seasickness, all > shutting eyes and sitting still with every muscle relaxed. Confused on raising eyes from the object on which they had been fixed to a distant one, with vertigo, then heaviness of lids. Imperfect, > sleep. Greater short-sightedness than usual. Dim; on walking in open air; < rising from breakfast-table, with vertigo; and flickering; with bright points quickly moving in the distance and light feeling in head. Lost; after sleeping in heat of sun; or objects tinged with all colors. Of black points and stripes. Of a large dark spot with white margins. Of sparks; on walking in open air. Clouds and light spots. Bright spots on walking in open air. White spots, with glittering stars, on looking at different things in the room. Fiery zigzags moving through each other, on closing eyes at night. Of a thread swimming before r. eye. Of a transparent vapor floating before eyes.

Clinical.—Valuable for partial or complete paralysis of the ocular muscles, especially of the internal rectus; the attempt to fix the eyes upon any object becomes painful and may even cause vertigo, hence many symptoms, of letters running together, vanishing of vision, etc. This drug is very valuable in numerous forms of scrofulous ophthalmia, in a general way indicated by extreme photophobia, greater than the apparent inflammation would warrant. There is general aggravation at night on lying down, especially of ulcers of the cornea. Appearing adapted to old people, it has proved beneficial in cataract when the above symptoms were present.

Ears.—Blood-red wax. Sticking; behind, < mastoid process, then dull pain at this place; pinching, on drinking. Sharp shocks shooting out of, < swallowing. Sudden sharp pressure, almost like twinges. Pain as if middle would be torn asunder. Pain in external, partly drawing, partly tearing. Drawings within l. Throbbing of blood. Itching in outer. Stopped feeling before ears on blowing nose. Intolerance of noise. Sensitive hearing, so that noise frightened him. Bubbling and humming; in r. Ringing; in r., with dull hearing. Roaring in r.; in l., < eating, with difficult hearing; like a wind, < dinner, lasting till sleep, and on exerting head when sitting, < in bed, even at night on waking. Noise in r. as of a waterfall. Noises as if blood were rushing through brain.

Buzzing. Surring at noon when walking in the street, with darkness before the eyes, nearly unconscious, with some strong beats of heart, passing off quickly.

Clinical.—Much wax accumulates and hardens in the ear, with greater or less loss of hearing, or the hearing may be extremely sensitive with the head symptoms.

Nose.—Tip, thick, red, hot, painful, < l. side, painful swelling in l. nostril, afterwards at l. tip a yellow blister, full of pus. Twitching; at root. Sticking in skin of lower part of septum. Sticking sore pain in septum on pressure, as if a pimple were there. Tearing in bones. Stuffed. Itching in nose; sticking, in r. side, as from a foreign body. Itching crawling in nose. Burning on nostrils. Frequent sneezing; without coryza. Bleeding; at night, then vertigo in morning on rising; when sneezing. Dropping of water. Blowing out of watery fluid. Frequent discharge of mucus. Acute smell. Tarry smell at back of nose, which he also tastes.

Clinical.—The patient is inclined to pick at his nose, which bleeds easily and becomes sore (in melancholia). It has been prescribed for polypus of the nose.

Face.—Blue; and turgid with blood. Livid. Red, looking like erysipelas. Pale; in morning; and sickly. Swelling on malar-bone and upper gum, with tensive pain. Risus sardonius. Twitching of l. cheek. Expression calm, but like a figure of wax. Sticking through r. side about malar-bone; through r. cheek, extending to corner of mouth; in chin, extending upward through jaw; tearing, in front of ear in evening. Pain at night. Feeling of a cobweb on r. cheek. Drawing on zygoma, with tearing; D. on r. zygoma; painless, through chin towards ears and to head after drinking. Pressure in masseter muscles. Falling of jaw. Stiffness of r. masseter muscles. Trismus; and next day aching soreness in jaws. Lips cyanotic; eruption on lips after slight fever; vesicles on vermilion border of upper, with smarting; sticking in lips and tongue; drawing pain in an old wart on upper; dry lips and tongue; itching of upper; burning of lips and tongue; burning on inner surface of lower; burning and redness of upper, l. then r. side.

Mouth.—Teeth. Looseness of back. Boring sticking between l. on moving jaw. Drawing boring in l. back. Jerking and gnawing. Aching; on chewing, as if loose (tearing?); on eating, extending to ear, eye and cheek-bone. Sensation as if lower incisors were pushed up. Drawings in hollow T. from cold food (not cold drinks), extending through temples; D. through r. lower T. into malar-bone. Bleeding of gum; of back. Swollen, bluish-red gum. Painful burning of gum.

Tongue red, mottled; T. covered on upper surface, and large part of lower surface with dirty mucus, and dry; sticking on tip; S. on tip, with biting; S. in l. side of tip, with burning; boring at night; pain; stiff, swollen, painful; feeling as if sticking to roof of mouth, and inability to move it; dry; dry and reddish; burning on, and in hands; burning at tip. Speech difficult. Inability to articulate. Burning on inner surface of l. cheek; with biting. Dry mouth; with sour sensation. Salivation; sour after eating. Taste bitter in throat; and mouth; bitter-sour T. after breakfast; sour; sour after eating; salt, < hawking up mucus; metallic on tip of tongue; coppery, with sensation as if tip of tongue had just been touched with copper; bad when eating and on swallowing; peculiar to food; of coryza from posterior nares to mouth.

Throat.—Spasm. Drawing in muscles of T. and chest. Frequent hawking of mucus. Sticking, < empty swallowing. Shooting drawing pain in tonsils. Pain. Soreness on swallowing. Scraping; with cough at night. Constriction; on bowing, with choking, a sensation as if neck-band were too tight, so that she must grasp the throat, with blackness before the eyes and dark redness of face. Fulness. Catarrhal obstruction in T. and head in morning on waking. Feeling as if something were coming up to choke her. Sensation as if a large body were in it. Constant desire to hawk. Dryness; in fauces, with constriction on larynx; alternating with salivation, with the latter dry sensation in fauces. Itching, with irritation to hacking cough. Tickling when sitting, with provocation to dry cough. Obligated to swallow much if she goes out the wind. Inability to swallow; water. Difficulty in swallowing (Op.). Heat in gullet.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; with nausea as if she had eaten to satiety. Longing for salt and salt things; for acids. Appetite diminished; for food and tobacco-smoking. Appetite lost; with weakness in stomach. Thirst; every afternoon; unquenchable; for coffee. Eructations; < towards evening. Empty E.; < in morning. Sour E. after eating; sour in evening; S., with burning in stomach. Offensive E. E. tasting of food. Incomplete E. after breakfast; I., then pain in stomach. Hiccough; on beginning supper. Nausea; in morning, > stool; in evening, with weakness, so that speaking is disagreeable; on trying to rise; after every meal; after eating, then hiccough, with the usual taste and good appetite; after dinner, with pain in nape, vertex and forehead; with vertigo; with satiety after eating. Retching; ineffectual. Vomiting; violent; profuse; of mucus in afternoon, with headache, nausea and then eructations.

Flatulent distention. Sticking in pit; in epigastric region towards evening. Intermittent sore tearing from epigastric region into sides of abdomen, as if everything were torn out of abdomen, mornings. Sudden thrusts deep in pit. Sudden cutting on eating a light meal. Cramplike pain. Spasmodic pinching. Gripping between 1 and 2 A.M., with constriction; G. which contracts chest, with gripping in back and eructations, waking her; G., then becoming dull in intestines. Contractive pain, with coldness in it and in back, waking her in morning. Gastralgia in evening. Drawing pain in pit in morning after rising and after stool, extending to throat, with short, difficult respiration. Pain in pit as if suppurating mornings when lying and turning in bed. Pressure, then heat; P. in epigastric region, gradually extending to l. side of abdomen, with nausea; in pit, extending to throat, as if a ball rose (Ign.); in pit, as if something moved about, even in morning, then sticking in side of chest. Fulness in pit, < inspiration and motion, with sticking. Tightness in pit on leaning backward, with choking of respiration and speech. Soreness and rawness. Uneasiness in pit, with haste in all his actions and difficult breathing. Cardialgia. Heartburn; in evening; rancid. Heat; in region; in epigastrium; after eating, extending through arms to fingers, whereupon the fingers became pale and dead. Acidity, with flat and bad taste. Indigestion at the least excess.

Clinical.—Gastralgia, especially with spasmodic cough (stomach cough). Sometimes spasmodic constriction of stomach and œsophagus, as if a round body ascended from the stomach (globus hystericus). The symptoms of pain, of vomiting, etc., have led to the use of Conium in cancer of the stomach and liver.

Abdomen.—Swelling; of mesenteric glands; in afternoon; after midday nap; in evening, after eating, with hardness of abdomen and protrusion of navel, which made sleep uneasy; flatulent, after milk; like flatulent colic in evening, with coldness of one foot. Rumbling; which passed into griping or pressure in epigastrium. Gurgling; l. side. Flatus passed easily; F. emitted with stool, with dragging and cutting in rectum; violent emissions of much; emission of cold; offensive. Flatulence after eating, which then passed with noise and relief. Trembling. Pulselike jerks, and in small of back.

Sticking; in l.; and through glans; deep in l., waking at night, then deep in r. side of chest when lying on l. side, impeding respiration, then boring in ball of l. great toe, which continued on waking in morning. Sticking digging in l. Cutting in morning after chilliness, with headache and nausea; C. before emission of flatus; before stool, < r. side; with diarrhoea; deep; in l. side as if a bunch would protrude. Gripping; before discharge of leucorrhœa; as in diarrhoea. Shocks against muscles, as from a child in pregnancy. Pain; in morning after eating, with fulness of stomach and chest all day; when laughing; when coughing; in sides when coughing. Drawing bruised pain. Drawing pain when walking. Drawing after drinking. Tension in r. side on deep breathing; T. in abdomen, with jerking contraction, extending towards chest, with gripping. Oppression. Burning pressure. Weariness of muscles after breakfast.

Upper.—Venous vessels of liver and sinuses of dura mater gorged. Distention after eating, with pressure in stomach, which causes anxious respiration. Sharp drawing jerking under r. ribs. Sticking in hepatic region (Lyc.); in l. hypochondrium; beneath margins of ribs on r. side; in morning on waking, < motion; in l. hypochondrium in morning in bed, > rising, with oppressed breathing; beneath border of l. ribs when sitting; in hepatic region before menstruation, < night when lying, and especially on inspiration; intermittent, in hepatic region; in hepatic region, impeding respiration. Tearing in hepatic region. Pain in liver when walking; tensive, in l. hypochondrium, extending to side of lower abdomen. Constriction of hypochondria as from a band (Lyc.). Sharp drawing in anterior lobe of liver. Feeling as from fright, caused by the noise of opening a door, a feeling as before diarrhoea. Pulsation on l. side, between eighth and ninth ribs, then sticking.

Umbilical Region.—Sticking upward in muscles on l. side below navel. Tearing in a spot below navel. Deep cutting; C. to l. of navel. Pinching in muscles above navel on bending forward. Bruised pain after supper. Drawing pain in morning after rising; D. pain after eating.

Lower.—Cramp. Sticking; in groin on rising from a chair; in r. groin when walking. Tearing above pubis, extending to ring. Deep gripping after every meal. Pain, then fermentation; F., < by pressure; above hips when walking; in r. groin as if swollen, and on touch pain as if suppurating. Contractive pain after appearance of menses, > walking in open air; C. pain like after-pains, with urging to stool. Distending pain in a place where there is a hernia. Constricted spot in colon. Dragging towards the place of a previous inguinal hernia, without protrusion of a hernia; D. outward in the place of a hernia; D. outward in r. groin. Drawing pain when sitting after dinner. Drawing pressing towards upper, in morning when sitting. Heaviness when not eating.

Clinical.—Hard swellings of the liver have been cured (note the sticking, tearing pains in the hepatic region). Enlarged mesenteric glands and tumors in the abdomen have been treated successfully (note the great sensitiveness of the abdomen, the swelling and the character of the pain, knifelike).

Rectum.—Sticking. Heat, and in anus; in lower part of R.; in R. during stool. Itching after itching in chest and abdomen. Urging, with diarrhoea three times; frequent U., with scanty soft fæces, then still more distended abdomen; frequent, with scanty stools; constant, with two thin stools; ineffectual; constant, ineffectual. Straining at stool.

Anus.—Sticking when not at stool. Dragging towards A. and abdomen; towards A. and sacrum. Heat. Itching; and on nates, perineum and near scrotum, so that he must frequently rise.

Stool.—Diarrhoea. Watery, frequent, with many empty eructations and copious urine; W., mixed with hard parts, with colic and loud emissions of flatus; and frequent, with undigested portions, with gripping in stomach, extending through abdomen; and urgent, then sweat. Soft. Pasty, twice daily, with burning in rectum. Constipation. Solid, every second day, with pressure; every second day, the first part with pressure. Involuntary in sleep (Phos., Hyosc.). Undigested. Passage of offensive mucus. Passage of blood with the morning stool. Scanty. Frequent.

Clinical.—Chronic diarrhoea of old people, with tremulous weakness, discharges sometimes involuntary; specially indicated by the symptom that the flow of urine is intermittent. In obstinate constipation, especially if it sometimes alternates with diarrhoea, the stool followed by tremulous weakness.

Urinary Organs.—Lancinations in neck of bladder. Pressure upon bladder; cramplike, in neck after urinating, < walking, with sticking. Frequent urging; with scanty urine every time; constant U. like labor pains, with burning pain at neck of bladder and along urethra, and frequent, scanty micturition. Frequent micturition at night; frequent M. without ability to retain urine. Painful M. Strangury; biting, after micturition. Ischuria. Discharge of a few drops after micturition, they cannot be retained nor forcibly expelled. Involuntary micturition. Dribbling after micturition. Necessity to urinate at 2 A.M. several nights. Could not urinate.

Urethra.—Discharge of pus preceded by itching; of mucus from male U., even after urinating. Sticking; in orifice; extending to orifice; at times increasing with every beat of the heart; jerking, in posterior part. Cutting during micturition; in orifice. Burning; in morning after urinating; when urinating; with tickling. Pain on passing urine, which is mixed with tenacious turbid mucus.

Urine.—Frequent hæmaturia, with dyspnoea. A few drops of bright red blood with first part of urine. Red. Turbid, with red sediment; and frothy. Copious. Scanty, dark, frothy, depositing a red sediment.

Clinical.—Partial paralysis of bladder, the urine flows by fits and starts, though urinating better when standing.

Sexual Organs.—Increased sweat. Inflammation of prepuce. Sticking in glans. Cutting in glans. Tearing through penis when not urinating. Compression at root of penis. Itching of penis, prepuce and glans, not > by rubbing. Painful stiffness of penis in evening before sleep. Many erections at night. Drawings in spermatic cord; I. Scrotum seems swollen. Cutting through middle of scrotum, between testicles, backward to above root of penis. Sticking on outer side of l. testicle, then burning. Gripping in testicles in evening, with tearing. Pain in l. testicle; in testicles, < after erections; drawing, in l. Testes heavy and sore. Desire; desire without erections (Phos.); at night, coitus attended by spasmodic respirations and musk-like odor from axilla, then exhaustion; no D. Emission even when frolicking with a woman (Phos.); E. without dreams at night (Phos.); E. at night; three nights in succession, then awakening of desire. Discharge of prostatic fluid at every excitement, without voluptuous thoughts, with itching of prepuce; D. on pressing at stool.

Female.—Cutting between labiae during micturition. Sticking in pudenda. Itching in pudenda, < after menstruation, and in vagina, and on rubbing it pressing downward in uterus. Itching deep in vagina (Kreo.). Leucorrhœa; ten days after menstruation, with colic before discharge; with weakness and paralyzed sensation in small of back before the discharge, then weakness; of white, acid, burning mucus (Phos., Kreo.); thick, milky, with contractive, laborlike colic coming from both sides; profuse; profuse, then hoarseness, with cough and expectoration; bloody mucus instead of L. False pains for several days before delivery, preventing sleep and exhausting her. Pressure upon uterus during micturition, with cutting. Menses suppressed; which had scarcely appeared, then drawing pain down back into sacrum; M. delayed; M. on seventeenth day; discharge of brownish blood instead of menstruation. Tearing in mons veneris when sitting. Papules on mons veneris, painful on touch.

Clinical.—Useful in the bad effects following excessive venery, sexual weakness or impotence, flow of prostatic fluid with constipated stool or on the slightest motion. Enlarged testicles, which are very hard, especially following injuries. It also has been found useful for the sexual nervousness of strong, healthy men who are unable to have an erection. In both sexes useful for the effects of suppressed sexual appetite, for instance, collapse, hysteria, melancholia, etc. Uterine polyp. Uterine hæmorrhages, with pain in the uterine region running down thighs, etc. Dysmenorrhœa, menstruation too scanty and too early. Numerous accompaniments of the menses, gastric or mental symptoms. Cancer of uterus. Pruritus of the vagina and pudenda following the menses, excessive hyperæsthesia of the genital organs, especially in suppression of menses (compare with Flat.). Useful in various indurations and tumors in sexual organs, especially in the cervix, particularly with burning, stinging or knifelike pains. Leucorrhœa following the menses, excoerating and burning; sometimes bland in children. Mammary glands indurated, with sharp, knifelike pain. (It certainly has core l tumors said to be scirrhus; it is well followed by Silicea.) Numerous symptoms of the mammary glands preceding the menses, viz., swelling, sharp pain; aggravation of the tumors at the menstrual period.

Respiratory Organs.—Dry spot in larynx, where there is crawling with almost constant irritation to dry cough. Scraping in larynx, with irritation to cough, and dry cough in evening; S. in larynx during the day, with tickling and dry cough. Tickling in larynx, with dry cough. Hoarse. Cough at night; C. almost only on first lying down, during the day or evening, he must sit up and cough it out, after which he has rest (Hyosc.); < lying, shocks in the beginning as if he would vomit; constraint, before going to bed; forcible whooping, with dyspnoea; whooping, every night; whooping, with expectoration of bloody mucus; short, racking, caused by deep inspiration; dry; dry, in morning; dry, from acid and salt things; as from tickling in middle of sternum, with and without expectoration; whereby something is loosened, but cannot be expectorated until afterwards, when it comes up with an easy cough, with coryza; loose, without ability to loosen anything. Yellowish expectoration tasting like bad eggs.

Suffocative attack as if mucus collected in throat; S. attack as if something collected in upper part of larynx. Dyspnoea. Difficult respiration; on stooping; in evening in bed, and slow; with pain in chest; as if chest could not be sufficiently distended; as if something rose in larynx and threatened to suffocate her, and noisy. Groaning. Short respiration. Slow respiration; with pain in chest. Subdued respiration.

Clinical.—Very valuable for tormenting night cough of old people; it is usually dry, they can expectorate a little only after coughing a long time; the cough is caused by a hard spot in the larynx, < lying down at night, is accompanied by suffocative attacks; the usual indication is that the patient is unable to expectorate the little mucus which seems to be loosened, it must be swallowed. Asthma in old people. Stomach cough; it seems as if the cough came from the abdomen, he must hold the body tight. Occasionally whooping cough.

Chest.—Hardness of r. breast, with pain on touch and nightly sticking in it. (Inflammation of mammary scirrhous.) Atrophy of mammæ. Caries of sternum. Rattling in evening on lying down, then much cough on sitting up. Tremor at base of clavicle and in muscles across chest, just above sternum. Sticking in l. mamma (compare Sil., which follows well?); beneath ribs; beneath l. axilla; behind cartilages of eighth and ninth ribs; between cartilages of l. ninth and tenth ribs; in side; about r. nipple on every inspiration when walking, > hard pressure; above heart on deep inspiration, then on every motion; beneath ribs of l. side when sitting, obliging him to press on them; in r. side on walking in open air; in nipples and vicinity in bed, and on inner surface of l. cheek; in both sides, < lying on front of chest; < inspiration and when sitting; behind sternum, extending to axillæ; in l. side on coughing, waking her and then causing uneasy sleep; sudden, between r. nipple and sternum when sitting, < slight inspiration; throbbing, in l. upper part, more towards middle.

Sharp thrusts through sternum to spine when sitting. Tearing; through whole in evening when lying on one side, with drawing and with oppressed breathing and pressure upon upper part of sternum, which on inspiration takes away the breath; cramplike, in r. Cutting on both sides, < inspiration. Scraping, with crawling and irritation to dry, almost constant cough. Pain; in female breasts; under l. breast; in ribs; in r. side of C. and abdomen, < inspiration; in various parts, not < by respiration; behind sternum and desire to breathe deeply; behind sternum when sitting, not < inspiration, and in l. side of chest; on sternum, now with tearing, now with sticking about breasts and nipples, with frequent oppression and shortness of breath; upon sternum, with difficult breathing when standing; with cough; as if sternum were pressed inward; sudden, when sitting, in C. and to l. of sternum. Bruised pain in forepart and in back; on inner surface of sternum. Oppression on sternum after eating, with external pressure; O. of r. upper part, with sensation of incarcerated flatul. Tension across on inspiration, with pressure. Fulness, on coughing nothing will loosen, then sticking in sternum. Clothes lie like a weight on C. and shoulders. Stiffness of sternum on physical exertion. Itching interiorly.

Heart.—Frequent shocks. Anxiety; with rapid action. Pressure in præcordial region at times, as if H. would be pressed down, with oppressed breathing. Palpitation; after drinking; after stool, with intermittent beats of heart; on rising; anxious, on being awakened by a loud noise. Weak impulse.

Pulse.—Rapid; from excitement; and tense; and weak. Slow; and weak; and small, hard; and small, soft; and large and between these, but without regularity, several small rapid beats. Small and hard; small and weak. Soft and feeble. Lowered, and the temperature. Lost; sometimes losing a beat.

Neck.—Apparent thickening. Sticking in muscles of nape, with pressure; S. in muscles of r. side of nape. Tensive pain in nape during rest, with dryness in throat. Drawings in nape on walking in open air; in r. side of neck during rest, extending to shoulder-joint; throbbing, on nape, extending to r. shoulder.

Back.—Cramp, with drawing and aching. Sprained pain in l. side. Crawling in spine as if asleep. Sticking between scapulae; and in lumbar region, region of short ribs and in hypochondria. Pain between scapulae and in lumbar region; beneath r. scapula on every motion of arms. Painful tension in muscles beneath scapulae during rest, < raising arms. Drawing pain in r. scapula. Drawings beneath r. scapula. Sticking in small of B. when standing, with drawings through lumbar vertebrae; S. in lumbar muscles, with painful stiffness on moving back when sitting. Pain in small of B.; r.; l. and beneath margin of l. ribs; on bending backward; on walking, then nausea and exhaustion; in ischia on rising from a seat. Drawing through lumbar vertebrae when standing. Lumbar region feels disjointed on exercising.

Extremities.—Swelling of knees and elbows. Trembling. Tearing in one or another in evening in bed; T. in all, almost as from a sprain. Cutting in flesh below l. thumb-nail and on r. great toe, with burning. Pressure in joints of arms, legs, fingers and toes, with tearing. Pain in joints of hands, feet, fingers and toes in humerus and femur in morning, compelling him to sleep; in joints after exposure to cold and wet, with swelling and numbness; weary, in joints. Bruised sensation in all; in arms and legs; in joints during rest, > motion. Dragging sensation. Drawings; in l. elbow and r. heel; r. fingers, r. great toe, and in evening anteriorly on r. lower leg, and in l. toes in evening in bed. Sensation of grasping in joints of arms and legs.

Gritty sensation in joints when moved, with partial loss of power, inability to raise her hands to head or extend her legs. Buzzing, with tingling. All affected before menstruation, with weeping mood, restlessness and anxious solicitude about trifles. Heaviness in lower and feeling as if she could not move them, the same in arms, with weakness in limbs distinct from the sensation of paralysis, the latter affecting the whole body. Difficulty in using, so that he cannot walk. Inability to move arms or legs. Dropped an instand and could not walk. Numbness of fingers and toes, with coldness; N. of lower, with inability to move them, then similar state of upper, and with the numb feeling, stiffness in limbs, the numb, powerless sensation extending over whole body. Asleep. Paralysis, with unconsciousness; P. of lower, then of upper, or the reverse; temporary, once or twice loss of sensation.

Upper Extremities.—Sticking in r. axilla; l.; in l. along inner side of upper arm. Tickling in axilla excites no motion of arms. Arms when lifted fall like inert masses and are immovable. Drawing pain up and down arm, < on moving it. Pain in r. arm as if bound. Weakness of arms; r.

Upper Arm.—Sticking on inner side and in axillæ. Tearing through them in evening in bed; T. during rest, alternating with sticking, transiently > motion. Drawing on inner side of r.; in posterior surface of l. Paralytic drawing pain during rest. Pain as from fatigue in soft parts of outer and upper parts of r., so that it is difficult to raise it. Weariness in lower part of biceps brachii, with disposition to flex and extend forearm.

Elbow.—Cracking, < evening. Sticking in l.; S., with heaviness. Tearing on walking in open air. Cutting outward in bend of l. during rest. Pressure. Bruised pain in r.; l.

Forearm.—Sticking on dorsal surface of r., with sensitiveness to touch. Cramplike pain in muscles, < resting arm. Pressing in flexor tendon above l. wrist; P. deep in l., extending to fingers. Bruised pain in extensor muscles of r.; on outer side of l., < touch. Drawing in l.; on lower part of r.; in extensors of r.; in muscles on outer and inner side of l.; < during rest; with pressing.

Cracking in wrist, < evening. Sticking in wrist; at articulation of metacarpal joint of l. thumb with wrist, as if sprained, < bending it inward. Paralytic drawing pain in wrist during rest. Boring in palm at the point where the line around ball of l. thumb meets that of the third finger. Deadness of l. hand, < of palm.

Fingers.—Nails yellow. Twitching in ball of l. little; in ball of l. thumb, which draws the thumb and metacarpal bone back and forth, visible under the skin when the thumb is forcibly kept straight. Cramp in r. third prevents writing easily. Spasmodically stiff and cramped on cutting with shears. Sticking in tips; beneath nails; < beneath r. nails; in metacarpal joints during rest. Cutting shocks in metacarpal joint of thumb. Pain under nail of r. index as if it were torn and nail pushed up. Pain in r. fourth, with stiff feeling, then pressure on upper and outer part of l. upper arm. Burning pain on flexor surface of index, then a hard lump. Drawings; in l. thumb; in first phalanx of l. little, with stiff feeling; sharp, in one or other. Numbness. Numb prickling, gradually extending to elbows, causing stiffness of muscles and making it difficult to move forearm and hand.

Lower Extremities.—Reeling (Gels.); when standing; and dragging his legs after him; with tendency of knees to fall forward. Sensation when walking as if his steps were impeded, but he walked very rapidly. Weakness. Sticking near trochanter; deep at superior attachment of gluteus maximus; in muscles of l. thigh when sitting; in hamstring on walking in open air. Tearing in forepart of thigh when walking. Cramplike pain in anterior muscles of r. thigh on walking in open air. Pinching over l. hip. Sprained pain in r. hip in evening on walking. Drawing in r. gluteal muscles, < on walking; D. in r. thigh during rest, > motion. Weakness of r. thigh on walking, even to trembling. Hip-joints almost immovable. Paralysis of hamstring.

Knee.—Cracking (in patella?) on becoming erect. Sticking; in outer tendon of flexor muscle of hollow when walking in open air. Tearing about; about patella when sitting. Pain on stepping; l.; rheumatic P.; sprained, in r.; bruised or broken feeling in l. patella when walking and standing in open air, with general anxious heat on exertion in walking; paralytic, in hollow, as in dropsy of knee. Drawing beneath r. patella. Weakness; on ascending stairs; after ascending stairs. Stiffness in tendons under l., on beginning to walk, with pain.

Leg.—Occasional movements of l. Jerking at night, with uneasiness, then shivering. Sticking in l. calf. Tearing on tibiae in evening in bed; cramplike, in tibiae on walking in open air. Bruised pain in tibiae. A place that had been bruised and remained painful became blue and mottled, with cutting on motion and bruised feeling on walking or on touch. Pressure in r. calf. Tensive stiff pain in calves. Oppression in anterior surface of r. in bed, extending to foot, with weakness, then the same in l. lower, > by walking. Tingling pressure on tibiae on stretching out limbs when sitting. Drawing on outer side of r.; in r. tibia; in muscles of r. as far as toes; in l., with tearing and uneasiness; in r. calf; on inner side of l. calf and on back of r. foot; in l. calf and in back of foot; in lower part of l. calf and in sole. Weakness; < of knees, with heaviness and trembling. Going to sleep when sitting.

Ankle.—Sticking in r. malleoli day and night, waking him, at last extending into calves, > sitting, < walking. Tearing from noon till evening, < sitting and walking; T. in external malleolus in open air, extending along leg. Pain; bruised, in l., with tension and stiff feeling on moving it.

Foot.—Swelling, with burning pain; painful S. Trembling in morning on rising. Sticking in r. heel on walking and standing; burning and throbbing S. in bend of foot. Tearing on dorsum in evening in bed; T. in inner side extending up leg, in open air; in soles on walking. Burning pain beneath heel on stepping, with redness and swelling. Crawling pain in soles when stepping upon them, but stitches when walking. Sharp drawing beneath heel. Heavy clogging sensation in heels. Numbness; of heels when sitting, with prickling. Numb prickling creeping to upper part of thigh.

Toes.—Sticking under nail of l. great, when sitting; in tip of l. great, with burning; pulsating, in little, with pain on walking. Tearing in ball of great in morning when standing and sitting; burning, in metacarpal joint of great, on waking. Cutting at tips of l. Pain in tips as if suppurating. Burning pain beneath, when sitting. Pressure in ball of r. great. Drawing; in l.; in lower surface of l. great. Prickling.

Skin.—Whole body blue; and covered with cold sweat. Yellow spots on fingers. Inflammation of whole body, with pain and burning. Fine eruption on face, back and rest of body, with itching like creep-

Fever without thirst; towards night; F. from 8.15 until 11 A.M., with heavy aching in forehead, aching in lumbar region as if back had been pounded, I went to bed but could not sleep, aching in legs, difficulty in hearing, ears seemed stopped, could feel the heart beating throughout chest, general chilliness on moving any part, the headache < motion, but > after moving around and talking, at 11 A.M. sweat, fever returned at 4.30 P.M., with headache, < jarring or moving head, thirst during the first part of the fever, trembling of hands or legs during the fever, < draught of air, coppery taste, rapid pulse, heat in chest and hypochondria, weak, empty feeling in pharynx extending to stomach, dyspnoea, with desire to breathe deeply, backache, tired after walking, with aching in legs and back and aggravation of headache, urine scanty, dark and smelling like cows' urine, appetite poor, sleepiness, at 7 P.M. chills running down spine from a draught of air or drink of cold water, water felt cold all the way down œsophagus, sensation as of bubbles of air passing through water from symphysis pubis to r. side of hypogastrium, pain across umbilical region.

Warm sweat all over body.

Copaiva.

A tincture is prepared by dissolving 1 part of the balsam, from Copaifera Langsdorffii, Desf., in 99 parts of alcohol.

General Action.—It is an irritant to all mucous membranes, particularly to the urinary tract, for which it has special affinity; it is also diuretic and laxative. It produces an urticaria-like eruption on the skin, or, at times, an eruption like pemphigus.

Allies.—Canth., Apis.

Generalities.—Spasmodic paroxysms and other hysterical symptoms. Uneasiness, then chill, then heat and circumscribed lenticular patches, with itching and pricking like measles, but without catarrhal symptoms, then mottled appearance, no desquamation. Pulling in all muscles, < evening and night. Pulsations here and there. Weakness; with anxious sadness. Sensitiveness to coldness and dampness; S. so that noise makes him tremble and angers him. Sensibility diminished.

Mind.—Disgust with life, but fear of death. Dislike for his usual employment. Sadness in morning after waking, > during a walk, returning in evening; S. in morning during menstruation, with pain in loins and nervous excitement; periodical, in afternoon, with weeping, coldness of limbs and hot flushes in face. Bursting into tears at the sound of a piano. Anxiety about his health. Peevishness, with ebullition of blood, heat of head and trembling of limbs from least contradiction. Absurd recriminations about long-past trifles. Misanthropy. Unfit for study, head empty, ideas confused, and pain in forehead when striving against it. Defective memory, which vexed, then discouraged him.

Head.—Aching; in forenoon; with nausea. Heaviness, < occiput, > pressing it against coat-collar. Rush of blood to head and face during and after eating. Vertigo, with aching; V. in forenoon when riding on horseback; in attacks when sitting, working, walking, < standing and when motionless. Pressure at forehead. Sticking in temples and behind ears; sudden S. in temples in morning on washing face with cool water. Tearing in temples, < l., > gentle pressure. Bruised pain in r. temple in evening and night, > pressing against pillow. Pulsating sticking in vertex. Boring in l. side, with coldness of the part, weeping and moaning (in a man disposed to hypochondriasis). Sticking in r. occipital protuberance; in l. O. protuberance in morning, with occasional shocks in head; deep-seated pulsating S. in occiput. Pain in occiput. Falling of hair. Sensitiveness of scalp, and even of hair.

Eyes.—Redness of l. Pupils contracted. Lids agglutinated in morning. Involuntary contraction of orbicularis muscle in morning. Spasm of r. upper lid, with pain in eye. Fornication in canthi. Sensitiveness to light. Vision obscured. Objects look paler when seen with l. than with r. eye. Black points hover before eyes.

Ears.—Sticking in l. at night, then purulent discharge. Fornication. Hearing sensitive, < to sharp sounds, so that the report of a pistol caused pain, not from the detonation of the powder, but from the impact of the ball against a metallic disk. Painful reverberation of every sound, > walking. Humming. Roaring.

Nose and Face.—Frequent sneezing. Stoppage of nose mornings. Coryza, with headache, pain at root of nose and itching in eyes. Face bloated. Face pale and sickly. Tearing in l. cheek. Red, humid tetter on upper lip, with swelling and pain on touch. Lips and tongue red.

Mouth.—Teeth loose; unpleasant smell from T.; gnawing in carious, < cold air or cold drinks, with throbbing pain; elongated feeling; on edge; sense of coldness. Excoriating pain in gums, palate and pharynx. Tongue coated white, green at base; T. at sides and tip red and smarting. Tenacious phlegm, which is constantly reproduced in M. and throat. Dryness; < night and in morning. Salivation; evening, night and morning; sudden, intermittent, sweetish. Foul breath in morning. Taste bitter; T. too salt to all food.

Throat.—Parotid glands sensitive, submaxillary glands swollen, with bruised pain in latter. Swelling of tonsils, < r. Pain; in pharynx. Constriction. Sensation of a foreign body in pharynx. Heat, with stinging.

Stomach.—Hunger in evening on going to bed; excessive H., then loss of appetite. Appetite lost. Loathing of food all day. Thirst, with diminished appetite. Eructations; after eating; bitter; sour; foul; tasting of ingesta. Hiccough after eating. Nausea; in morning; with diarrhoea. Vomiting and weakness of stomach; V. and cardialgia. Spasm. Epigastric region tense and painful to touch. Gastro-enteritis. Paroxysmal sticking. Pain during menstruation. Burning pain. Pressure at pit, even before breakfast. Beating at pit after eating, then palpitation and obnubilation on leaving the table. Faintness, without real appetite. Digestion retarded and painfully increased by sensitiveness and pains in epigastrium. Heat.

Abdomen.—Rumbling; with flatulence and threatening of colic. Emission of fetid flatus in morning in bed and after rising. Gripping. Pinching. Cutting, after a cup of café au lait (as usual), then diarrhoea. Colic; and looseness. Coldness. Sticking in hypochondria. Pressive, at times pulsating pain in hepatic region. Swelling of lower. Swelling of inguinal glands; with sensitiveness. Inguinal glands painful to touch. Pressure in lower as from a stone. Beatings in lower.

Rectum and Anus.—Spasms of R. Sticking in R. Urging to stool; frequent ineffectual. Bleeding piles. Oozing of serous or purulent fluid. Burning itching in anus.

Stool.—Two liquid. Thin, frequent, without pain or urging, with increased mucus. Diarrhoea; in morning; with exudation from skin; frightful; involuntary; frequent at night, with spasms of stomach, coldness of limbs and cramp in calves; whitish, < morning, with coldness and drawing tearing in abdomen, obliging him to bend double, before and after the stool; alternating with constipation. Soft, frequent, then prostration, < morning. Constipation. Dry and formed at first, ending in diarrhoea. Like sheep-dung. Whitish, sour, with discharge of ascariides. Insufficient. Copious. Frequent, at first shaped, then pasty, at last mucous and mixed with blood (Canth.).

Clinical.—Catarrh of the intestines, mucus comes away in masses or the stools are coated with mucus, especially in morning, with colic and chilliness (compare Canth.). Dysentery, with intolerable burning at anus, tenesmus and blood (Canth., Caps.).

Urinary Organs.—Pain in bladder. Burning in neck of bladder and in urethra (Canth.). Pressure on bladder; with frequent ineffectual urging and micturition by drops. Constant urging; frequent urging after urinating. Micturition frequent and copious; at night, and urine light; frequent, mostly in small quantities. Micturition by drops (Canth.). Micturition painful; with milky, acrid discharge (Canth.). Retention of urine.

Urethra.—Inflammation and swelling, with pains along penis; I., with retention of urine, phlegmasia of bladder, of prostate, anus and rectum; I. of urinary passages and adjacent parts. Discharge was inversely as that of skin; D. of mucus; purulent blennorrhagia; profuse milky D. Pain at orifice as if wounded; pulsating pain in U. when not urinating, the orifice gaping, tumid, inflated. Drawings. Burning on urinating; B. and itching in U. and vagina. Itching before and after micturition, with biting. Tickling in orifice (compare "urethra" with Cantharis).

Urine.—Bloody; with strangury and ischuria (Canth.). Copious; and smelling of the balsam; and acid, smelling of violets. Had a strong odor of Copaiba, frothed much, dark yellow, acid. Bitter-tasting. Albuminuria (Canth.).

Clinical.—Catarrh of the bladder, with great dysuria, especially if it follows gonorrhoea, has to make a great effort to pass a little water. Inflammation of urethra, with great burning far back on urinating, swelling of the orifice of the urethra. Constant desire to urinate. Hematuria. Urine smells of violets, especially in gonorrhoea, discharge yellow and purulent.

Sexual Organs.—Excoriation of glans and prepuce. Tickling of glans. Itching at tip of glans. Excessive erections, with lascivious thoughts and desires; violent E. night and morning, with or without lascivious thoughts; no E. Redness and oozing between scrotum and thigh. Burning in skin of scrotum. Swelling of l. testicle, with sensitiveness to touch. Heavy pain in testicles. Pressive drawing in testicles. Desire; without erections.

Female.—Itching of vulva. Burning of vulva and red spots. Sticking in vagina and neck of uterus. Leucorrhoea after menstruation; acrid L.; milky L. Spasms of uterus. Pulling pains in suspensory ligaments of uterus; dragging on uterus and bladder; pressure on U. as if prolapsus would set in; drawings in uterus, orifice of urethra and vagina. Throbbing in ovarian region with pain; T. in r. ovarian region when standing. Menses too early; menses reappear after they had ceased for several days. Menses pale and scanty. Metrorrhagia.

Clinical.—Swelling and induration of testicles from suppressed gonorrhoea. Gonorrhoea in women, with throbbing in region of r. ovary.

Respiratory Organs.—Excoriating pain in larynx. Dryness and roughness of larynx. Tightness of larynx during menses, with hoarseness in morning and dry cough morning and evening. Hoarseness, < morning, with excoriating pain in larynx on talking. Voice loses its compass, the higher notes cause excoriating pain, which finally makes their rendering impossible. Bronchial mucous membrane excited. Cough from tickling in larynx, trachea and bronchi; dry C. morning and evening; rough C., with difficult expectoration of greenish mucus; C., with profuse whitish expectoration, sometimes saltish, sometimes flat and nauseous. Respiration slow.

Clinical.—Bronchial catarrh, with profuse purulent expectoration. Catarrh of larynx, dryness, painful cough, hoarseness in morning.

Chest.—Sticking in r. Pressure on sternum. Burning. Fulness, obliging sighing. Distress when working in a stooping position, as when digging, with labored breathing.

Heart and Pulse.—Frequent and feeble pulsations of heart. Palpitation; during work. Pulse frequent; slow.

Neck and Back.—Rheumatic pain in nape and l. side of neck. Stiffness of back, > walking. Burning pain in dorsal spine. Sticking in l. scapula; between scapulae, cutting short the respiration. Pulling in scapulae. Lumbar pains; spasmodic.

Extremities.—Trembling; during rest. Sticking in l. axilla, extending into chest. Axillary glands sensitive to touch. Pain in l. shoulder at night, next evening in r. elbow; acute, in l. shoulder-joint; P. of dislocation in r. shoulder. Numbness of arm on which he lies at night. Pullings in forearms. Pain in l. wrist. Trembling of hands. Stiffness of fingers.

Lower Extremities.—Uneasiness. Cramplike pain in hips, < r. Bruised pain in r. hip when lying on it; in r. hip on walking and on touch. Rheumatic pains (as from fatigue) in l. hip and knee during menstruation, with spasms of uterus. Constrictive pain in hollow of femur before the gripping. Cracking of knees on stretching legs. Pain in knees; l., when walking. Numbness of legs when sitting. Pain anteriorly in r. ankle; P. in r. ankle when walking; in l. when walking. Swelling of feet; of l. foot. Pain on dorsum of foot during the cold stage. Sprained pain in feet on beginning to walk, > walking.

Skin.—Irregular, itching, yellow spots on r. cheek in morning and evening. Hæmorrhage and red spots on whole body, < on face. Erythema (Vespa); rosy "pumiceous," as if bitten by insects. Confluent scarlet elevations on hands and feet. Red blotches over whole body, < on face; larger red blotches, with constipation and fever (Apis). Red itching spots on l. elbow; at sternal region and r. axilla. Red miliary eruption, sometimes confluent, preceded by headache, vertigo and loathing. Red miliary E., preceded by cardialgia, vertigo and nausea, the E. may be slow in developing and locate upon wrists, hands, knees, ankles and feet, at other times it develops rapidly and covers the whole skin and is accompanied by febrile phenomena, it is characterized by red spots, disappearing under pressure, the spots round or with uneven edges and separated by healthy skin, or they unite and form large red spots, with itching, if the medicine is continued the spots become papules, in rare cases the region becomes tumefied, painful and impeded in its movements.

Eruption resembling roseola, but the spots are larger and more elevated, confluent on parts of chest and arms, and look like petechiæ. Redness and swelling of face, with thirst, nausea, vomiting, anorexia and restlessness, then arms and legs, and finally whole body, red and swollen, face dusky yellowish-red, œdema, < about eyelids, which could not be opened, sticky discharge at margins of lids, elevations on face and neck like measles, < next the hair and at lower parts of neck, over whole body dark red smooth eruption studded with points of a deeper color, hands and feet somewhat resembling face. throat inflamed and dusky red, with œdema of uvula, no difficulty in swallowing, sleeplessness, tossing about all night, thick, yellowish-white fur on tongue, no stool for two days, heat, pulse rapid, small, thready, vertigo, sore throat, ineffectual retching after food. Elevations as from wasp-stings, confluent on ears and backs of hands becoming after a few days brownish-yellow like liver spots, with mealy desquamation on ears, even after four weeks burning spots could be seen. Furfuraceous tetter on l. concha, with burning pain on touch.

Nettle-rash; or like scarlet fever, first on face, < on forehead, then on backs of hands, finally in other parts, with burning of skin, also with sore throat (without swelling), then sweat, no fever or thirst, elevations like bug-bites, confluent on ears and backs of hands, then the spots become brown without desquamation, except on ears. Red itching pimples on upper part of forehead, on hairy scalp, above ears and on occiput. Boils on pubis. Pustules like the itch between fingers and on forearms. Eruptive fever, with heat and headache, purple eruption like variola, in twelve hours it spreads, sinks down and each pustule becomes depressed, soon forms a petechial blotch, which becomes confluent with adjacent blotches. Modified pemphigus over whole body, beginning at flexure of joints, the bullæ aborted where the skin was thin, the discharge excessive, offensive, viscid, then general desquamation. White miliary vesicles on a red base on l. wing and tip of nose. Itching of cheeks, here and there, in nostrils and on chin. (Compare skin symptoms with Apis and Vespa.)

Clinical.—Urticaria, dry, hot, biting, with violent itching.

Sleep.—Drowsiness in daytime (Apis). Restless sleep. Sleeplessness and restlessness all night after an embrace. Frequent waking. Early waking and inability to sleep again. Dreams frightful or lascivious.

Fever.—Shivering in morning; and in afternoon heat and thirst. Cold hands; feet from morning till noon; feet, knees and thighs at night; feet and knees during menses. Heat; in face in morning on waking; in flushes in face and head after eating, with sweat in hollow of hands, anxiety and indigestion. Sweat; in morning; sour at night; with the odor of Copaiba. Sensation as if sweat would break out, which afterwards took place in bed.

Corallium Rubrum.

A trituration is made of the red coral, Corallium rubrum, Lam.

Allies.—Coccus cacti, Dros., Merc.

Mind and Head.—Full of pains, he uses bad language and curses. Peevish. Head feels very large. H. feels empty. Immediate stupefaction from wine.

Confusion of H. as after intoxication. All the blood seems to rise to H. and face on stooping. Dizziness after eating, as if intoxicated. Pressing-out pain at forehead, obliging him to move the head from side to side, but it is not > thereby nor by sitting, but transiently > almost complete uncovering of the hot body. Pain in forehead so that she cannot keep the eyes open, > walking and moving about in open air. Pressure at F. sinuses, > open air, with increased secretion of nasal mucus; P. in forehead and temples, whereby the sinciput seems flattened. Pain in temporal muscles on swallowing. Pain in parietal bones as if forced asunder, < by stooping. Sensation as of a wind through skull on rapid motion or on shaking head.

Eyes.—Redness in evening, with pressure as from sand. Pain in l. as if hot and dry. Sore pain on moving balls or lids. Pain as if pressed into orbits. Burning in candle-light; heat on closing lids, with sensation as if swimming in tears. Drawing pain in external wall of l. orbit, extending along nervus malaris to beneath cheek-bone (compare Cinnab.).

Ears and Nose.—Hearing less distinct than usual. Painful swelling in r. nostril and on inner side of wing of nose, with pain in nasal bones as if pressed asunder, the pain extending partly into frontal sinuses, partly towards eyes and to temples, with thirst, r. side of nose swollen, hot and pulsating, disturbing night's rest. Dryness of nose and throat. Frequent sneezing, preceded by tickling in nose. Epistaxis at night; E. now from r., now from l. nostril. Stopped coryza, could get no air through l. nostril; stopped C., then dropping of mucus like melted tallow. (Profuse secretion of mucus through posterior nares, obliging constant hawking.)

Clinical.—Painful ulcer in r. nostril, sensation as if nose were pressed asunder. Profuse nasal catarrh, the inspired air feels cold.

Face, Mouth and Throat.—Bruised pain in l. zygoma, < by touch. Sprained pain in l. joint of jaw on drawing jaw far downward and on biting and yawning. Lips cracked, painful. On pressing on fossa canina ulcerative pain in corresponding teeth. L. teeth feel blunted and as if too near each other, or as if a tough substance were sticking between them. Taste of food like sawdust; like straw to farinaceous food; sweet to beer. L. submaxillary glands swollen and painful, < on swallowing or bending head forward (Merc.). Throat dry, sore on swallowing.

Clinical.—Hawking of profuse mucus, throat very sensitive, especially to air (Merc.).

Stomach, Abdomen, Stool and Urine.—Longing for acids; for salted meat. Appetite lost. Thirst; during chill, with normal temperature of skin and pain in forehead. Nausea, with dry tongue; N., < sitting up, with headache. Pressure in pit of stomach, < coughing, swallowing and deep inspiration. Rumbling in abdomen. Constipation for six days, then a large, pasty stool. Burning micturition. Urine clay-colored, with similar sediment.

Sexual Organs.—Sweat. Red flat ulcer on glans and inner surface of prepuce, with yellowish discharge. Glans and inner surface of prepuce secrete a yellowish-green offensive matter, with sensitiveness, redness and swelling (compare Merc.). Swelling of prepuce, with sore pain in its border where it rubs against the clothing. Pain in frenum preputii as from needles. Emission at night and another next afternoon during a nap, the latter with relaxed penis and without dreams.

Clinical.—Ulcerations on glans penis and prepuce, with sensitiveness and exudation of thin offensive moisture. Venereal ulcers, very sensitive, bleeding easily.

Respiratory Organs.—Feeling as if cold air were streaming through air-passages in morning on deep inspiration, with provocation to cough and with difficult hawking of bronchial mucus. Expectoration of yellow purulent mucus. During cough pain in cavities of pleura as from a stone pressing downward and causing pain beneath sternum, extending thence to scapula.

Clinical.—Most violent spasmodic cough (whooping cough), often preceded by sensation of smothering, followed by exhaustion; the attacks are extremely violent, the patient becomes purple in the face, followed by exhaustion or vomiting of quantities of tough mucus. Indicated in whooping cough by the extreme violence of the paroxysms, even with expectoration of blood.

Neck, Back and Extremities.—Stiffness of cervical muscles. Pain in scapulae, < coughing. Bruised pain in small of back. Pain in sacral region, as from pressure with a dull instrument. Weariness of extremities in evening after exercise in open air. Pain as if head of the humerus would be forced out of the joint, l., then r., then both together. Pain at insertion of deltoid and in middle of r. forearm, as if pressed with the ends of the fingers. Pain in wrists as after much rapid writing. Sudden shooting through r. tibia. Tearing in r. tibia when walking, with tickling in hollow of knee so that knees crack. Pain in knee, tibia and ankle as after a fatiguing walk.

Skin, Sleep and Fever.—Flat spots, coral-red, then dark red, then copper-red, on palms and some fingers. Painful pimple on lip close to orifice of r. nostril. Frequent excessive yawning, with pain in joints of jaws. Sleepiness so that she fell asleep when standing. Sleeplessness till midnight; with tossing about and coldness if uncovered, but heat if covered. Tossing about and uncovering in sleep. Uneasy, dreamy sleep. Starting up from anxious dreams as soon as she falls asleep. Chilliness in hot parts on uncovering. Cold feet after eating, with hot forehead and cheeks. Internal and external heat, with full, hard pulse. Dry heat, without thirst. Heat of face, < bending forward; dry H. of face in morning, with cold shuddering creeping over her on putting her hand to her face. Symptoms of heat and cold, > artificial heat.

Cornus Circinata.

A tincture is made of the fresh bark of Cornus circinata, L'Her.

General Action.—Not sufficiently known, but seems to exert a marked action on the liver and intestinal secretions.

Allies.—Cinchona, Alstonia, Chel.

Generalities and Mind.—Weakness; in morning on waking; in morning on rising, with apathy. Indolence and loss of physical energy. Disinclination to read, think or work. Depression of spirits. Peevishness. Indifference. Inability to concentrate thoughts. Confusion of ideas; towards night, with increase of stupid, sleepy sensation. Forgetful of little things.

Intermittent shooting, rather burning pain from l. side of uterus, passing to region of transverse colon and there shooting or cutting across, as if from both sides towards centre, thence passing up l. side of trunk to face and temple as a cutting, intermittent, neuralgic pain. Menstruation too soon, free, preceded by weight in head and ears, accompanied by pains in abdomen and back and cold feet, lasting longer than usual and going off after two days, with frontal headache, which lasts from 10 P.M. till 1 A.M.

Clinical.—Dysmenorrhœa preceded by pain in uterine region extending down thighs, which continued for two days during the flow; during the flow aching in region of heart, extending through l. arm, cold feet, etc.

Respiratory Organs.—Pain in larynx extending into teeth. Larynx painful to touch. Paroxysmal bruised pain in larynx, shooting into chin and at times into lower teeth, sharper in larynx than in chin. Voice weak; and hoarse. Tickling in trachea provoking dry cough, afterwards tickling without cough. Cough, with sticking in side and bloody expectoration; dry C. at night, with tickling in throat; C., with expectoration of bloody mucus. Spitting of blood (Phos.). Expectoration of florid color. Every appearance of suffocation. Said his blood was suffocating him. Dyspnoea, with symptoms of inflammation of lungs and intestines. Difficult respiration (Phos.); in evening in bed, with tightness of chest. Easily out of breath on ascending a hill. Respiration labored; and rapid; and slow. Singultus. Stertor.

Clinical.—Whooping cough, with great debility, cardiac weakness, blueness of face, after the attack gets its color slowly, or when the face is puffy, nosebleed, etc.

Chest.—The milk of the mother became deadly poison to her 5-months' child. Sticking in r. side, near sternum; in r. side on sneezing; in forepart, extending into bones of l. shoulder. Pleurisy, with remittent fever. Pain; l. then r. side; below r., then l. arm; beneath l. arm, extending into l. side of chest, with great pain on deep inspiration; with vomiting of green fluid; in lower part or at pit of stomach, with stricture; sudden P. above l. nipple, as from a blow. Soreness, with cough in morning; along cartilages of ribs in epigastrium; sore pain in bones, in the middle, somewhat to r. side, < touch but not on deep inspiration, with sticking. Oppression; with evident inflammation of lungs and bowels; when sitting, almost amounting to faintness.

Heart.—Sudden digging. Pain. Soreness as if in pericardium. Tenderness in morning when lying on l. side. Weak sensation about; and on exertion rapid beats. Rapid beating on slight exertion, with deep-seated aching at point of l. scapula. Irregular action; and trembling and scarcely perceptible. Feeble action. Palpitation, with sensation as if the heart tumbled about.

Pulse.—Rapid, weak; and intermittent; R. in evening, and small; R., then slow, small, compressible; R. and hard, then weak and slow. Slow and small. Strong and full after formation of an abscess. Hard, then weak. Irregular. Low. Weak alternating with rapid. Tremulous; and scarcely perceptible. Almost imperceptible and thread-like next morning. Imperceptible; at wrist; at wrist, but action of heart rapid and feeble, with remarkable shortness of systolic interval.

Neck and Back.—Gouty drawing on l. side of nape, extending to shoulder. Visible twitching of lumbar muscles. Inflammation of r. side towards lumbar region, with pain and extravasation of blood. Pain in kidneys.

Clinical.—Softening of the spinal cord has been arrested (Phos.).

Extremities.—Swelling and pain. Convulsive movements. Tearing yearly or at times. Rheumatic pain in wrists, elbows and ankles. Numb pain in toes and anterior part of fingers, as after cramp. Heaviness of arms and legs, as if the bones were made of heavy wood. Painful paralytic sensation in bones of fingers, arms and legs when sitting in evening. Paralysis, < upper, particularly below elbows, ineffectual attempts to stand, as soon as he got on his elbows and knees or into a kneeling position he fell back helplessly on his side.

Upper Extremities.—Glands in axilla swollen and tender. Paroxysmal bruised pain in bones of shoulder, extending backward, < bending arm backward. Tensive pain in shoulder, extending to neck, < on moving arm; drawing tensile pain in r. shoulder, extending up neck, as if some one were pulling on a tendon extending from shoulder to neck and drawn tense under skin, < moving arm, especially backward, and by pressure.

Arm.—Swelling and heaviness; S., with discoloration; with inflammation and gangrene. Pain in morning when moved; drawing pain in bones of r., extending into thumb and little finger. Numbness in morning. R. could not be used with freedom (from bite on l. hand). Bruised, cramplike sensation in both upper. Pain above r. elbow; in r. elbow, < by touch and moving arm up and down, with throbbing, bruised pain in ribs beneath r. arm. Swelling and pain of forearm and hands; S. of forearms, of l., extending up arm, of r. only to elbow, with pain, < l. Drawing pain in r. wrist, waking in morning.

Hand.—Swelling (of the bitten H.), and of the fingers, fingers semi-flexed on palm and rigid, the hand flexed on forearm and forearm on arm, all livid, black and blue and cold. Cold swelling of H. and arm, with pain on pressure. Contraction of some flexors. Trembling (Phos.); during rest. Pain in l. palm as from a bee-sting, but more spasmodic, < moving middle finger, in the last joint of which the pain is first felt. Paralytic weakness of r. and of fingers.

Fingers.—Swollen and insensible. Shooting into l. ring, with pulsation. Bruised pain through metatarsal joints of r.; in two last phalanges of l. little, with pulsation in tip. Pain in l. ring, and in last phalanges of r. little and of l. middle, as when a very cold hand is suddenly brought near the fire. Paralytic pain at times in bones, < r. index. Drawing pains in bones of l. thumb.

Clinical.—Symptoms of paralysis of l. hand, it feels dead when sewing, also l. leg.

Lower Extremities.—Tottering. Feeling in r. as if a tendon were drawn from sole through femur and the foot were thereby drawn up. Insensibility. Sticking backward across r. hip-bone, < motion. Sudden pain in head of femur, with throbbing perceptible to the hand. Pain in thighs, < l., as if deep-seated muscles were tender, afterwards as if suppurating, < resting thigh on edge of chair and on walking. Bruised pain in thighs as after skating too much, < walking and touch. Sore pain in thighs, < touch and walking. Tensive drawing bone pain from l. hip to foot, with bubbling sensation in calf. Weary and cramplike pain in femora, extending to abdomen and backward, as after much skating, it seemed as if the flesh would be drawn up, which aggravated the pain. Sudden drawing in l. hip, in evening on walking, extending to foot.

Knee.—Drawing pain as if through marrow of bone from l. to sole. Goutlike drawings through r. and down leg, < standing on r. foot; in r. patella and tibia on walking, then pain in hand and jaw; sudden, in r. when walking and sitting still. Rheumatic drawing in hollow of r., between tendons.

Leg.—(Bitten) became the color of the snake, the flesh decayed and fell off in pieces. Dropsical. Distended and threatened mortification, the skin shining, black on outside, with black and yellow spots on inside. Lower part and foot so swollen as to rupture skin from toe to ankle, and black. Cramp; in calf; disposition to, in morning. Pain in r. tibia; sore, in l. calf, < touch; burning (in bitten leg), with swelling and heat. Bubbling in calves, with pains in bones. Weariness; aching. Feeling as if the whole r. were only half alive, and, on stretching the muscles, which he is involuntarily inclined to do, shivering through upper part of body, with shaking of head and tension of forehead and muscles of nape. Going to sleep after riding one over the other; going to sleep when sitting, and tingling.

Bruised pain in malleoli on walking; B. pain in tendon behind l. malleolus, < moving foot and touch. Swelling of feet; every evening; and ugly ulcers. Shooting from the bitten foot up inside of leg to knee. Sticking in r. sole, with burning and with heaviness of foot. Pain in l. foot; in foot on stepping; sore, in sole; in sole, in front of heel, as from stepping on something sharp with the bare foot; pinching drawing P. in heels, < bones, extending to malleoli. Cramp-like sensation beneath l. little toe, as if some one turned it around. Weariness of toes.

Skin.—Yellow color of whole body; in spots; Y. and dark spots reappearing, with swelling of hands and feet the next year at the same time. Blue and yellow spots next year, with swelling; yearly with fever and pain; green, yellow and bluish spots after the swelling had ceased. Whole arm livid as if putrefaction had begun. Black spots. Jet black elevation on r. hip (after bite on l. ring finger), with soreness, afterwards the discoloration extended to level of umbilicus, around body and down to limbs, gradually disappearing from above downward, leaving toes last. R. side of neck and body down to loins inflamed, painful and mottled.

Swelling of hand, forearm, arm and shoulder, with a dark echymosed line from root of finger almost to shoulder-joint, the inside of the bitten finger, as far as the second joint, covered with blisters filled with dark fluid blood. Swollen, hot, tense, painful, with cold arm and hand, then an abscess forms, which becomes gangrenous.

Glands of axilla sore and painful (after a bite on l. index), with restlessness and sleeplessness, next morning a line of inflammation along arm to axilla, on attempting to walk nausea and vomiting, the pain > resting arm on an inclined plane, then soreness of back, then the swelling extended down side of hip, on removal of the blistered skin of the finger discharge of watery sanguineous fluid, without smell, the nail loose, the red line following the lymphatics was filled with yellow serum, then palmar surface of the first and second joints of the finger was gangrenous, the granulations rough and appearing as if sprinkled with ochre, then the nail was removed, a slough formed and on coming away left the bone exposed, this afterwards exfoliated and had to be removed, the finger was left deformed and its circulation imperfect, the finger susceptible to cold.

Eruptions of various kinds. Soft lumps under skin in forepart of shoulder-joint, above axilla, with sticking, < bending arm backward. Pimples; red, small, with large ones on and between scapulae. Hard itching tubercles in the skin of calves, < l., gradually coming to the surface and scaling with the scratching. Pustule near l. wing of nose, with tensive pains extending into cheek, then redness and hardness in this place. Boils on arm as far as the swelling had extended, in all about eighty at one time.

Vesicles; on the swollen arm; passing into ulcers; with a red spot under each vesicle; with red areola, on inner side of arm, beneath shoulder and near elbow; (at the place of the bite), on being opened the water that filled it scalded the parts it passed over; over metacarpal bone of r. thumb every three months, with contraction of flexors and inability to extend the hand, the first time with beating pain; filled with dark, bloody serum. Abscess on outer side of elbow, with discharge of reddish-brown matter and membranous parts of cellular tissue, with diarrhoea and chills, then extension of the ulceration, then gangrene near shoulder. Gangrene of bitten part, extending over body. Ulcers; on r. thigh. Old scars break out again.

Oozing of blood in the form of sweat. Tension. Itching; whole body in morning on waking; about bend of arm; on middle joints of all fingers; sticking, alternately in all parts, < on scapulae.

Clinical.—Chilblains, especially when threatened with gangrene, in patients with very low vitality. Felons. Pustular eruptions about the wrists. A little tubercle, resulting from the sting of an insect many years since, was cured by the daily local application of the 6th. Petechiae and varicose ulcers on the lower extremities, and very languid circulation. Petechial spots over the whole body, especially the lower extremities, with faintness, irregular action of heart, dizziness. Erysipelas after vaccination, the pustule filled with dark lymph, the whole extremity became inflamed, this extended even to the trunk, eruption even on the lower extremities. After vaccination, pustular eruptions on back of arm, across shoulders, over the breasts. Lymphangitis and septicaemia from dissecting wounds. Gangrenous inflammation of skin and cellular tissues. Abscesses, pustules, boils, carbuncles, etc., the parts look bluish and unhealthy, with great prostration, etc. Erysipelatous inflammations following bites of insects.

Sleep.—Yawning. Sleepiness; at noon; early in evening; in evening, with heaviness; with cold skin. Coma. Lethargic state, requiring to be spoken to in a loud tone. Starting in sleep. Sleeplessness. Dreams, many, not unpleasant; D. that he was traveling in all parts of the world; anxious; of strife and anger, that he had fallen out with his father, who would not recognize his son because he had embraced homeopathy; of horrid places on earth only, often of rolling amongst rocks, sometimes that he was a white hawk cut into pieces, and frequently his feet would grow into two hickories.

Fever.—Coldness; with rapid pulse and nausea. Shivering; with diarrhoea; in head; creeping over scalp, so that the hair stands up. Cold skin; with rapid, weak pulse; with nausea; with hot swelling of arm. Coldness of limbs; in morning; with insensibility; of hands and feet; of fingers.

Heat; even in cases where the pulse sank; with thirst, hiccough, vomiting of bile, palpitation, weak, rapid pulse and exhaustion. Dry; and exhausting, with dry tongue and thirst. Fever resembling yellow-fever in its initiatory stage, nothing was wanting, expression of countenance, pain in loins, headache, symptoms of gums. Burning in the wound, extending over body, even to top of head. Heat of ears; in r.; with sensation as if wax were running down throat. Heat of feet; in l. anterior foot, and gnawing, with drawing in bones of r. arm, extending into thumb and little finger; of palms, with itching and general flushes of heat.

Sweat, cold; and viscous. S. in axilla stained a reddish-orange. Dry skin; in palms, with stiffness and heat.

Clinical.—Extremely valuable in fevers of a malignant type, especially malignant scarlatina, and in all fevers which present a hemorrhagic or putrescent character. Malignant scarlet fever, great weakness, tremulousness, torpor, unconsciousness, efforts to vomit anything taken into the stomach, when vomiting blood oozed from the gangrenous fauces, respiration sighing, intermittent. Malignant scarlatina with epistaxis, extreme prostration, tonsils dark red, tumid. Hemorrhagic measles, dark confluent eruption, oedema of face, etc. Malignant remittent fevers of the South. Bilious remittent, eyes sunken, tongue dry, nausea, black pasty stools, drowsiness, extreme prostration. Bilious fever, with yellow color of face, gnawing aching pain in liver, bloody evacuation, r. lung hepatized. Low type of bilious fever, tongue dry, cracked, brown in centre, edges deep red, cold, clammy perspiration, skin yellow, unconsciousness, urine dark. It is the most homeopathic remedy for yellow fever with symptoms of blood-poisoning, vertigo, pain all over the body and tenderness of liver, or with swollen parotids, nosebleed, face dusky, hands nearly black, dry tongue, vertigo as if falling over a precipice, or with yellow face, nearly black urine. Yellow fever, stools dark, bloody, generally offensive, sometimes involuntary, with great debility, tendency to collapse, suppression of urine, etc.

Croton Tiglium.

One part of Croton Oil (expressed from the seeds of Croton tiglium, L.) is dissolved in 99 parts of alcohol, and diluted for use. (Much of the commercial "croton oil" is obtained from the seeds of Jatropha curcas.)

General Action.—A powerful drastic purge. When applied to the skin it produces an eruption of small pustules with inflamed areole.

Allics.—Jatropha, Gamboge.

Generalities.—Sudden emaciation. Generally lying quietly on belly, but occasionally tossing about. Tossing about convulsively. Trembling of whole body. Sticking, with sweat on forehead. Nauseating pain, < lying. Malaise; < bread and butter, she must lie down. Discomfort after dinner. Dulness of whole body. Uneasiness. Lay in a lethargic state, sometimes drawing himself up as if in pain. Collapse. Faintness; during and after vomiting. Disinclination for every exertion. Weakness; in morning on waking, with weakness of limbs; in morning on rising, with trembling of hands and feet; after stool, with pain in abdomen; with nausea; with ill humor.

Mind.—Sadness. Anxiety. Dissatisfaction. Disinclination to speak. Disinclination to work, would rather play than attend to his business. Fretfulness. Thought difficult. Memory lost.

Head.—Jerkings; sticking. Sticking extending to vertex. Aching; when walking, > taking off his hat; < the middle of the day and a few hours after dinner; as from a disordered stomach; burning. Confusion; on rising; in morning on waking, with heaviness and dulness; all night; on going into open air; till supper, with vertigo; < bread and beer, with pain, throbbing, tension and pressure outward in sinicupit; < r. side, with pressure downward from vertex, so that sometimes sticking extends below ear, with impaired hearing in r. ear; with dulness and pressure in forehead; with heaviness of head and crawling in eyes; with pain, then general heat and sweat; with pressure towards forehead and nausea; with vomiting and loss of appetite. Fulness. Heaviness. Feeling as after intoxicants. Vertigo; in the room, with vanishing of vision; < open air, with nausea, pallor and weakness; < r. side, with pressure in r. eye; and falling down insensible; with roaring in ears and inability to stand from fear of falling; so that she could scarcely remain sitting, < looking up; threatened, when walking in open air.

Forehead.—Sticking in brain above r. eye; in sinicupit, on walking. Pain; r. side and temple; l. half of sinicupit; > keeping quiet; with tearing extending to r. temple, where it remains as a sticking; confusing P. in anterior and upper part of head. Tensive pain in sinicupit, with pressure and sticking; T. pain above r. orbit, with pressure in r. side of occiput. Dragging in sinicupit. Fulness and pressure. Confusion; in sinicupit; with pressure and heaviness. Vertigo in sinicupit.

Sticking in l. temple. Pain in temples; twinging; in l., as if burnt. Tearing towards vertex. Pain in occiput. Confusion of l. half of occiput, as if held tight. Confusion in occiput. Crawling on occiput. Prickling in scalp of vertex.

Eyes.—Brilliant. Inflammation (local effects); of one and side of face. Sticking in middle of l., then indications of it in r.; S. in l. ball. Pain, then swelling of eye and side of face (local effect). Heaviness and weakness. Lachrymation; with running of water from nose. Pupils dilated. Redness of l. conjunctiva. Red swelling of a gland in r. lower lid. Twitching of lids. Jerking sticking in r. external canthus, with contraction and twitching of whole eye. Cramplike pain in r. lids, < towards external canthus. Itching of r. lower lid; of l. upper. Fog before r. eye, then weakness of it. Vision dim; as from smoke in the room. Vision impaired, with staring, glittering eyes. Vision easily vanishes.

Clinical.—Pustules and vesicles on the eyeball. Ciliary neuralgia, and feeling as if a string were pulling the eyeballs back into the head. The pustules and ulcers in the eye are characterized by excessive photophobia, superciliary pain, and often by eruption about the eyes, on the lids and face.

Ears.—Sticking beneath l. Twinging in l.; spasmodic deep within l. Dragging towards orifices of both; with twisting. Roaring.

Nose.—Red eruption on r. side of septum, with pain in morning when washing, then an elevated crust, which desquamated, the epidermis continued red and tender and again desquamated. Drawing pain extending through to root and thence into brain. Dryness, and of throat. Burning, and in mouth; in r. nostril, obliging him to rub it. Irritation, and of conjunctiva. Respiration through nose stopped. Mucus. Coryza, with slight discharge. Smell in the room as after an offensive stool.

Face.—Pale and sunken; P. and cold. Jaundice-colored. Cyanotic. Swollen; and red and covered with vesicles, also eyelids. Expression of distress; of debility; of confusion, with brilliant staring eyes. Lips swollen and sore (local effects); vesicles (local effects); burning in angle, with swelling on outward border; dry and cracked; dry in evening, and tense; tension in corner.

Mouth.—Tearing in r. lower eye-tooth. Sore pain in last l. lower molar on chewing. Swelling on l. inner alveolar margin of gum; painful, on inner side of r. upper gum. Easy bleeding of gum in morning on washing. Tongue swollen and numb; T. white, showing impress of teeth; coated white; furred and dry; red, smooth, glistening and dry in centre; eruption on root and on soft palate and posterior wall of pharynx; burning and contraction, and in throat; tickling pain at tip; feeling at tip as if electrically sensitive, with sweetish bitter taste; feeling as if too large and numb, without change in its appearance.

Pustules, with burning in mouth and throat. Vesicles on hard palate. Swelling of palate. Inflammation of M., lips and pharynx. Burning scraping extending low down into œsophagus. Burning, and in throat; gradually and successively increasing on palate, uvula, isthmus faucium, pharynx, tongue and lips. Burnt feeling. Dryness; with scraping in throat; without thirst. Salivation; with profuse mucus; sour. Taste flat; and nauseous; flat and nauseous to water, which causes emptiness; pasty; as after almonds; bitter; sweetish, then bitter and burning; like chocolate, then burning; sometimes burning, sometimes scraping; scraping-burning, with salivation; acrid-burning, and in throat.

Throat.—Swelling of submaxillary glands, with pain on touch; S. of tonsils, with pain on external pressure. Redness and soreness; R. and smarting; R. of uvula, with elongation. Hawking of mucus tasting like vinegar. Jerking and shooting through T. Sensation of a morsel which he was unable to swallow. Pain. Rawness. Scraping; < expiration; > cold water, with warmth at back of mouth; in fauces, then burning, then tickling in larynx; causing frequent hawking; burning. Scraping tingling. Acrid sensation; and down œsophagus. Tickling of r. tonsil; where hard and soft palates unite, then scraping, then burning.

Complaints that his throat was swelling. Fulness extending up T., with pressure in pharynx. Burning; in pharynx, > drinking water; in fauces, > inspiration, < expiration; and in œsophagus; sometimes extending to pit of stomach; with contraction, and in tongue. Burning pain. Dryness; with irritation in pharynx. Inclination to swallow, with pain as if a ball were pressing out of l. side of œsophagus, > by cold water; frequent inclination to swallow, which causes pain as if a ball were pressing through l. wall of œsophagus. Swallowing difficult. Pain in œsophagus. Prickling at entrance of œsophagus. Burning extending up œsophagus; above entrance, with acrid taste at back of mouth.

Stomach.—Hunger, with rumbling in abdomen; unnatural H.; great, after the pains had ceased; H. without appetite. Appetite diminished; at lunch, and repletion after eating a little. A. lost; with dull feeling, yet he eats his usual allowance at lunch. Loathing of his usual breakfast. Thirst; slight. Aversion to beer. Eructations; with nausea and weakness; empty, < afternoon; empty, then nausea; sharp sour; acrid and burning; bilious in evening; of water. Hiccough and yawning.

Nausea; after milk; after every drink, with eructations; with sour salivation; with salivation and chill; with anxiety and oppression, and pressure in epigastric region; with inflation of abdomen and borborygmi in epigastric region; so that he lost hearing and vision; disturbing sleep after midnight, then sudden vomiting of copious sour, strong-smelling fluid, then diarrhœa, with sensation as if fluid were swishing about in abdomen. Retching; with vomiting of food and water; with vomiting, rumbling in abdomen and diarrhœa; spasmodic, > by pressing against the washstand; violent, with difficult vomiting of yellowish water, of oily smell and sweetish-bitter oily taste.

Vomiting; especially in women; then diarrhœa; of bile; of bitter mucus; of light and glairy matter; of much strongly-smelling fluid; of water, mucus and food, after eating. Rumbling, with heaviness on chest. Gastro-enteritis. Cramp, and in upper abdomen. Cutting beneath stomach. Severe turning, then cutting below stomach, then tearing in r. side near ilium. Burning pain. Pressure; in forenoon; in pit; in epigastric region; with anxiety; with tickling, nausea and spasmodic motions as if one would vomit; with discomfort in abdomen; in S. and chest, with fulness; in epigastric region, with fulness; in epigastric region, with constriction; changing into nausea, with salivation. Epigastric region sensitive to touch. Scraping, then nausea; burning S., extending into S. and along intestinal tract.

Constriction; in upper part. Oppression at midnight, with fulness, then nausea, then easy vomiting of the supper, then sweat on face and comfort, after half an hour bitter vomiting, then good sleep till morning. Tension in epigastric region; in region of S. and upper abdomen, with pressure, anxiety and oppression. Weight and heat in epigastrium as after strong spirits, then the heat radiates in every direction, then extends to cardia, > barley-water. Repletion; impeding respiration. Indigestion. Emptiness. Sinking, with weakness. Relaxed sensation, with pain on pressure. Burning; and in bowels; in pit. Heartburn; after dinner, with nausea. Epigastrium felt hot and tense.

Abdomen.—Distention, < sitting, with tension, tenesmus and emission of offensive flatus; with griping; with griping above umbilicus; with tension and rumbling; flatulent, with heaviness. Swashing as of water. Gurgling, < l. side. Rumbling; on l. side; on rising and when writing, with emission of offensive flatus; after supper, > emission of flatus, with pain and feeling as before diarrhoea. Movements, with griping. Flatulence; then urging, stool sudden, thin, small, with flatus (Jat.); with intermittent pain. Emission of much flatus in evening; easy E. when walking, with urging to stool; difficult, noisy E.; offensive. Urging to pass flatus when sitting.

Cutting, and about umbilicus; C., with emission of fetid flatus; then frequent diarrhoea; then a stool, at first pulsatious, then liquid mingled with mucus and bile, then three greenish-yellow diarrhoeic stools. Tearing when eating. Twinging; < in colon, with cutting; spasmodic, when waking, and about umbilicus. Griping after dinner; G., < touch; with pressure towards anus. Pain; in morning after rising, with much offensive flatus; during stool, then pain in rectum; after eating; when walking; < dinner; > gruel; in walls, especially deep, < pressure or deep inspiration; with tenesmus; with loud emission of offensive flatus; flatulent, in evening; flatulent, disturbing sleep, > noisy emission of flatus. Sensation as before diarrhoea. Soreness; on coughing; < pressure. Heaviness and confusion, with retracted parietes. Uneasiness, with griping and twinging. He felt the medicine working downward, causing gurgling, and as it approached the umbilicus twinging. Congestion rising to head, with warmth of skin and sweat. Burning; creeping warmth in parietes; febrile excitement across A. Coldness.

Upper.—Rumbling, with gurgling and griping, then emission of offensive flatus. Sticking in spleen in evening. Griping. Dragging, movements and retractions, and in umbilical region, then stool; spasmodic D., < sitting, then tensive pain. Pain in region of spleen. Tensive pain. Tension between umbilicus and pit of stomach. Throbbing in region of spleen. Heaviness.

Umbilical Region.—Gurgling, with vermicular movements. Painful movements, with increased pain on touch or pressure. Sticking, > two pasty stools; S. to l. of umbilicus. Tearing after dinner. Cutting; so that she could scarcely breathe, extending to stomach, causing her to bend double, extending thence to l. side of abdomen; as if two knives were cutting towards each other, > two stools, then a watery stool. Twinging on going out, with tension and pressure upward to epigastric region and sudden nausea; T. above umbilicus, with pressure. Twisting, then tearing in l. side of abdomen. Pain; below umbilicus in evening, with distention of abdomen, then urging to stool; on touch, with rumbling and gurgling; on pressure on umbilicus pain is felt down to anus, where there is constant protrusion; spasmodic, < sitting bent over. Griping; extending to l. side of abdomen, with pinching. Tension when lying, with movement and pressure towards anus.

Lower.—Sticking in caecum. Tearing in transverse colon; from l. groin up to r. nipple. Griping in transverse colon before every stool. Pinching and cutting in thick intestines. Pain; and in bladder; above posterior superior spine of l. ilium; undefined, in l. inguinal region; tensive, in inguinal regions.

Clinical.—Gurgling and swashing, as if there were nothing but water in the intestines.

Rectum.—Feeling as before purging. Tenesmus; after lunch, scanty stool, mixed with mucus. Urging in morning in bed, on rising soft, light-brown stool, then soreness of anus; U. and stool soft, dark brown, offensive, with spasmodic griping; constant U., then sudden pasty, dirty green, offensive, forcible stool; U., with fullness in abdomen and rectum, stool scanty and difficult; sudden U., he was unable to reach the closet, but was obliged to sit long; frequent, ineffectual U.

Anus.—Swelling, extending to anus, with burning. Pain, as if a plug were forced outward. Dragging as before diarrhoea. Pulsation, sticking and burning. Sore pain after moving about, with burning. Painful soreness after stool, with feeling as if rectum were swollen and would protrude, urging to stool, compression of abdomen, causing pain, extending into genitals and ending in glans as a sticking, so that he was anxious and oppressed, sweat on forehead, nausea, vanishing of sight and hearing, the pain < bending over, > quiet, on walking sore pain on outer part of anus, then prostration, ill humor and loss of appetite. Scraping after stool. Scratching on l. posterior wall during thin stool. Constriction on walking, with sticking at times. Itching. Burning; during pasty stool; so that he can scarcely sit.

Stool.—Watery; and yellowish, forcible (Jat.); and painless; with emission of flatus; and frequent; frequent, shooting away (Jat., Gamb., etc.); and choleraic, copious, every few minutes; at first fecal stool, then watery, with sticking in abdomen. Diarrhoea; with urging; with colic; frequent; frequent scanty; frequent yellowish; light yellow, with sweat, crawling in occiput, pressure upon larynx, < l. side; grayish-brown, evacuated at three different times and forcibly, with tenesmus, then prostration and colic; involuntary, with streaks of white, shiny, emulsion-like substance mixed with much clear, glairy fluid. Pasty, light brown, after urging, then rumbling and gurgling in l. side of abdomen, after an hour a second soft, mucous, urgent, grayish-green and dirty brown, forcible stool. Soft; slimy, frequent, with tenesmus; delayed, sluggish, unsatisfactory. Semi-fluid, semi-solid, dirty brown. Half soft, half solid, after the morning stool.

Constipation. Crumbly, difficult. Nodular, mixed with white points (larvæ of worms), the second contains long white thread-worms, the other nine stools offensive and bilious, or slimy, and at last watery. Dirty yellow, clayey. Tenacious. Large. Scanty, by efforts of abdominal muscles, without peristaltic action of bowels. Slimy, with tenesmus. With pinching. With rumbling and pain in epigastric and hypochondriac regions. Frequent; the first feculent, the others yellow and green; with sweat, < forehead. Copious, with rumbling in abdomen; C., mucous, frequent, with colic.

Clinical.—A very valuable remedy in diarrhoea, with the general character of sudden expulsion and great aggravation from taking anything into the stomach, stool occurs immediately after eating or drinking, generally very watery and yellow, passed with gush, sometimes associated with nausea and vomiting, sometimes with pain following the colon down to the rectum.

Urinary Organs.—Burning in urethra on urinating. Urging to urinate; immediately after micturition. Frequent micturition. Copious urine; and yellow; and turbid. Pale frothy U. Foaming U. in morning. Turbid. Brown U., soon becoming turbid, and a copious brown sediment. Fiery red at night and in morning, with oily pellicle and flocculent turbid sediment; almost blood-red after standing through the night, with a thick mucous sediment. Pale orange yellow U. after standing over night, with turbid sediment, which is at first flocculent. Pale U., with white sediment. Cloudy sediment, which gradually disappears, and brownish crystals float where the clouds had been and adhere to the walls of the glass.

Sexual Organs.—Inflammation of inner surface of prepuce, with irritation and some secretion. Pain in penis, with redness of glans and sticking coming out of urethra. Burning in glans when urinating. Constant painful erections. No erection in morning, contrary to custom. Retraction of l. testicle, relaxation of r. Drawing in l. spermatic cord, hindering walking. Scrotum shrivelled and itching, disturbing sleep, > scratching, which caused a voluptuous sensation. Vesicles on scrotum and penis. Inflammation of scrotum and penis (local effects). Herpetic eruption on scrotum. Phlyctæne on scrotum, with pustules on penis, penis partly denuded, pain at end of penis on urinating, urine dark (local effects). Itching of scrotum. Corrosive itching of scrotum and glans; of scrotum, < walking, with redness; of scrotum, and a moist, offensive spot on thigh, then desquamation of these places; of scrotum, disturbing sleep, > rubbing, which caused erections. Menstruation too soon and scanty.

Clinical.—Valuable in eczema of scrotum and penis.

Respiratory Organs.—Laryngeal catarrh. Mucus in larynx; with tickling and irritation; rattling of M. in evening. Mucus in bronchials, which he cannot remove. Mucus in trachea, provoking cough. Speech low. Voice hoarse. Voice hollow; with constant hawking. Cough and frequent hawking; constant C.; C. in morning, with expectoration; in evening, with white mucous expectoration and oppression of chest; with difficult yellowish expectoration and spitting of blood. Expectoration of much tenacious, sour-tasting mucus. Sensation as if he could not get air enough into air-cells. Dyspnoea, < ascending stairs. Difficult respiration; and anxious; with constriction of chest. Short breath after stool; S. and hurried. Slow respiration; and powerless.

Chest.—Catarrh. Sticking in l.; through middle of l. in afternoon; in r. lower third during inspiration. Tearing along edges of ribs, extending backward and to small of back. Pain; on touch; and in l. chest, l. hypochondrium; in l. with oppression. Pressure over sternum; deep within at middle of chest. Fulness, with burning sticking in l. chest and towards scapulae; F., with pressure and burning; F. impeding respiration. Oppression; in evening; on deep inspiration; with anxiety. Feeling of mucus in lungs, which could not be removed by hawking, with difficult breathing and whistling on deep breathing. Throbbing-bubbling in r., between sixth and seventh ribs. Throbbing in r. posterior part; sudden, in region of aorta. Hollow feeling. Burning. Malaise, and in abdomen; forcing him to stretch and yawn.

Clinical.—Nipples very sore, with excruciating pain running through to scapulae on nursing.

Heart and Pulse.—Sticking in præcordial region; on expiration. Jerking in l. side. Palpitation; in afternoon; after dinner, < lying. Pulse rapid; and weak; and small. Pulse full. Pulse feeble. P. small; and weak, then strong and full.

Neck and Back.—Sticking between nape and occiput. Pain in muscles of l. side of nape on nodding. Pressure and drawing in cervical vertebræ. Tension in r. side of neck. Sticking in l. renal region; in afternoon, impeding breathing. Pain in small of back; in back and lumbar region, in the space between lumbar vertebræ, false ribs and ilium.

Extremities.—Trembling of hands and feet. Pain. Weariness; of arms and legs. Tearing in r. shoulder. Sticking in l. shoulder-joint. Pain in r. shoulder-joint. Tearing in r. arm, extending to upper arm, then to fingers. Heaviness of arms, with weariness. Tearing in r. upper arm, then in r. shoulder-joint; sudden, in l. upper arm, < deltoid. Rheumatic pain in l. upper arm, waking him. Pain on inner side of l. upper arm. Tension, weary pain in upper arm; in r. extending to hand. Heaviness of upper arm, with lameness. Boring in l. elbow at noon. Tearing in l. forearm. Drawing in r. forearm; above r. wrist in evening. Swelling of hands. Jerking of l. middle and r. ring fingers. Tearing in r. finger-joints. Drawing in l. middle finger, with tearings.

Lower Extremities.—Swelling of nates where they approximate by the anus, after moving about, with burning. Tearing in l. thigh. Pain in thighs; sore, between l. thigh and scrotum; tense, in l. hip-joint, < by rising from a seat. Weariness of thighs, with tense feeling. Heaviness of thighs on waking after midnight. Paralyzed feeling in l. thigh. Cramplike pain in r. knee. (Tearing in knee, with crawling.) Pain in legs and feet. Sticking on r. outer malleolus; extending to forepart of foot. Heaviness of ankles in evening, with pressure. Cramp of l. sole and inner side of foot. Jerking in l. foot when sitting; J. in l. sole, with tearing. Sticking in l. heel when sitting, as if sprained; on margin of l. foot. Sprained pain in l. foot. Rheumatic tearing in l. foot. Nervous weakness of feet. Feet failed him on ascending stairs. Sticking in lower part of great toe, l. then r. When walking sticking and tearing as if sprained, < in metatarsal bone of l. great toe, so that he could not step fairly upon it. Rheumatic tearing in r. great toe. Prickling in r. great toe, where the nail enters the flesh, with sticking.

Skin.—Face, hands and toes cyanotic. Pimples on face; red P., with corrosive itching and sore pain when touched or rubbed; on a red base, hard, burning itching, about neck. Erythema of face, often symmetrical. Erysipelas; erysipelatous phlyctenulae on face, ending in desquamation. Redness; with coldness, then warmth. Red spot on l. thigh opposite scrotum, with offensive exudation, painfully sore on touch or walking, which also causes biting.

Redness of affected part, with smarting, heat and white, glossy, tense pustules, then desiccation, leaving a yellowish spot or crust, then intra-epidermic pustules, then dermic or sanguino-purulent pustules and a two-stony pustule, when the scabs fell off from the scratched pustules they were succeeded by pits, while the others were still elevated, so that the hand perceived a roughness, brownish discoloration after the scabs, pustules and inflammation of walls of abdomen, then desquamation.

Redness, then burning, next morning when lying on l. side throbbing, tension and jerking in l. upper arm, extending to fingers, red-pointed and roundish pustules, the itching and burning < touch, motion or rubbing, heaviness of arm and shoulder, redness and roughness of whole skin, the small pustules disappeared as whitish, shiny elevations, the whole skin became whitish, the large pustules red, then whitish desquamation only noticed on rubbing, itching continued, and also an alternating heaviness and tension of upper arm.

Tingling, with red points, then little pustules in apices, many formed patches filled with white opaque fluid, the eruption died away like smallpox. Pustules; on scrotum and face, those on side of scrotum were flattened and became suppurating ulcers, the other pustules dried and desquamated; with red areola, on abdomen, itching began in the night and disturbed the sleep, the P. became pale and disappeared without crust or desquamation, then pale red spots; dark red, with itching and burning on movement, < touch or uncovering, with roughness of the whole spot, elevations after the small pustules had disappeared.

Vesicles on labial commissures, r. upper lid and l. buttock (local effects); itching, on chin, which coalesce and form a crust, which is moist on pressure, then desquamation, then a red spot. Brick color, < face, scalp, larynx and chest, in the order enumerated, > abdomen, more on muscular parts of arms and legs than where the bones are more superficial, then swelling, then vesicles, differing in size and shape, some confluent, at first containing limpid serum, then pus, and ending in scabs (local effect).

Prickling in first r. toes; in lower third of l. leg. Fornication on face; in lumbar region; knees; r. little toe; jerking, in r. great toe. Itching, then painful burning; l., or rather smarting, as of vermin, on pubic region and on glans; prickling, on r. sole, with burning.

Clinical.—Vesicular and pustular eruptions, with painful burning and redness extremely like herpes and especially like herpes zoster.

Sleep.—Yawning; in forenoon. Sleepiness; towards noon, but on lying down after dinner inability to sleep, with palpitation; with weakness. Easy falling asleep, then chill across back. Sleeping on the back and sudden waking after an emission. Deep sleep after vomiting. Sleeplessness, with anxious tossing about. Difficult falling asleep. Frequent waking. Sudden waking. Twitching of thighs during midday nap. Uneasy sleep; with many dreams. Light sleep, disturbed by many dreams. Dreams; anxious; anxious, interrupted; in afternoon nap, about the occurrences of the day; heavy, till 1 A.M., then sudden waking from headache.

Fever.—Chilliness; with shivering; with weakness; in afternoon, obliging him to go to bed. Easily chilled. Chilliness extending, < over back. Cold skin. Coldness, < lower limbs, so that she seemed covered with gooseskin, > in bed. Cold limbs. Sudden C. and pallor of hands, with shrivelling of fingers. Cold feet and legs; as far as calves. Cool skin, then hot, then sweaty.

Heat; with sweat and rapid pulse; with salivation; with the pustules; with anxiety, so that he sought for a chair; general, then coldness in abdominal vertebrae; in flushes; prickling. Heat of face; r. half, starting from r. corner of mouth; in cheeks. Warmth starting from lumbar vertebrae. Heat of skin, < hands, with swollen veins. Itching burning in middle of l. thigh; in lower third of r. tibia.

Sweat; cold, clammy; on forehead; on forehead. in drops, with nausea.

Cubeba.

A tincture is made from the dried berries of the Piper Cubeba, L.

General Action.—A marked affinity for the urethra, bladder and vagina, where it produces violent inflammation. The mucous membranes of throat and air-passages are also involved, as well as the skin.

Allics.—Copaiba, Canth.

Generalities.—Emaciation. Peculiar odor to evacuations, sweat and saliva. Face red and swollen, lips dark purple, saliva viscid, frothy, tongue dry, chapped in centre, brown sordes on teeth, veins of forehead and temples turgid, eyes turned upward, injected, pupils contracted to a point, clammy sweat, pulse slow, dispersed by least pressure, gasping, he was aroused for a moment by shaking, uttered an incoherent expression and sank back into a comatose sleep. Convulsions. Restlessness. Weakness. Partial paralysis.

Mind and Head.—Mind weak. Memory lost. Headache; deep-seated. Dullness of head.

Eyes, Nose and Face.—Eyes turgid and watery. Full feeling in eyes. Coryza. Face swollen; and occasionally flushed. Face flushed. Lips puffed, dry and shining. Lips twisted to one side on attempting to speak or smile.

Clinical.—Obstinate otorrhea, offensive discharges. Nasal catarrh, with fetid odor, and catarrh of the throat, with greenish-yellow expectoration of fetid odor. In catarrh of the throat the mucus trickles from the nose into the throat, is greenish-yellow, with rawness of throat and hoarseness (compare Sinapis).

Mouth and Stomach.—Tongue white. Tongue furred and moist. Appetite increased. Intense thirst; slight T., with burning in throat. Eructations, with warmth in epigastric region; acid E., with uneasiness, heat at pit of stomach and fever. Nausea. Vomiting. Gastric irritation. Disordered stomach. Burning pain in stomach. Burning in epigastric and umbilical regions, with pressure.

Abdomen, Rectum and Stool.—Flatulence. Gripping, with diarrhoea. Colic. Burning in abdomen; in rectum. Hemorrhoids. Diarrhoea; copious; distressing, with headache.

Clinical.—Dysentery, stools colorless, transparent, mingled with white particles like rice, with unquenchable thirst, distended, sensitive abdomen, < fruit, acids, etc.

Urinary Organs.—Inflammation of urethra. Mucus from urethra much increased. Cutting after micturition, with constriction. Irritation of passages. Urine copious, dark. Urine frothy. Hematuria (Tereb.).

Clinical.—Chronic inflammation of bladder, with cutting and constriction during micturition. Hemorrhage from the bladder.

Inflammation of bladder and urethra in women, necessity to urinate every ten or fifteen minutes, with smarting, tenesmus and ropy mucus.

Sexual Organs.—Prostatitis (Cop., Elat.), the gland feels enlarged to finger in rectum, perineum tender, last drops of urine passed with pain, after micturition sensation as if bladder still contained water. (Hernia femoralis.) Testicles swollen (Cop.). Excitement. No inclination for coition, with weakness of sexual organs.

Clinical.—Inflamed prostate, with thick yellow gonorrhœal discharge; especially useful in the chronic form, sometimes with swollen testicles. Leucorrhœa, profuse, acrid, offensive, yellow or green, with pruritus, intense sexual desire, uterus swollen and painful, etc. Acrid leucorrhœa in girls. Catarrhal leucorrhœa, offensive, yellow.

Respiration and Pulse.—Respiration hurried and difficult. Pulse rapid; and full; and small. Pulse intermittent and sometimes slow, sometimes rapid.

Clinical.—Dyspnoea, with deposit of a false membrane in the larynx and danger of suffocation; also useful in bronchitis, in which the cough seems to tear the bronchi, expectoration difficult, sometimes streaked with blood.

Extremities.—Numbness of fingers and toes. Acute deep-seated pain in wrists, then redness and swelling of them. Wrists stiff and thickened. Hands swollen and so stiff that the fingers could not be bent. Prickling in soles.

Skin.—Eruption from head to foot, with fever. Urticaria (Cop.); febrilis. Redness, afterwards eruption from head to foot, which in some parts could not be distinguished from urticaria febrilis, while in others it appeared more like lichen in its papular stage, but with more inflammation around base of papule than is common in that disease. Itching.

Fever.—Heat; with thirst; fever, with heat at pit of stomach; internal and external, with tingling over whole body; hot skin; heat at times in palms and soles; in hands and feet, with numbness of them; in flushes upon face, soles and palm.

Cucurbita.

A tincture is made of the fresh stems of the pumpkin, Cucurbita Pepo, L. An emulsion of the seeds is given for tape-worm.

Clinical.—A tincture of the vines and of the seeds has been prescribed with alleged benefit in vomiting of pregnancy, and it also has cured vomiting of food and salivation in non-pregnant women. The seeds have been used very extensively for tape-worm.

Cundurango.

A tincture is made of the dried bark of Gonolobus Cundurango, Triana.

Generalities and Mind.—Weight increased. Did not feel well; when walking. Miserable feeling. Soreness all over body, like rheumatism; < through l. shoulder and under l. scapula. Languid when awake in the night. Stiffness of the muscles. Confusion of mind.

Clinical.—Tumors of the breast, very hard, painful, associated with ulcers in the corners of the mouth; this soreness and cracking in the corners of the mouth seem to be very characteristic of the drug. It seems also to have cured stricture of the œsophagus with burning pain behind the œsophagus, where the food seems to stick. Vomiting of food and indurations in l. hypochondrium, with constant burning pain.

Head.—Aching; in morning, < l. upper part of forehead, with feeling as if bigger. Vertigo; on stooping or turning head; with slight pain across top of forehead. Frontal headache; all day; at top; all day along top of brow and hairy scalp, > early in evening. Dulness in forehead. Forehead feels as if very broad and high. Heaviness in l. half of forehead. Pain in l. temple spreading over upper part of brain to r. side of head, feeling as if some one were pulling up the upper part of the skull, with one-half of brain, at 10 A.M., increasing till 6 P.M. Pimple on scalp.

Eyes.—Pain in l. ball. Vision dim. Vision of black serpents jumping in all directions before r. eye, on closing l. eye I seemed looking through a dense fog, afterwards the appearance before the eye was like two black horns, with large black balls on the upper ends, and a mound of crystal between them, their tops tapering off and tipped with black, afterwards the obstruction appeared in the shape of a pear, with the large end up, red on looking towards the light, purple on looking from the light, later appearance of curled hair in front of r. eye and a blur before l. retina congested, inability to recognize any one in the street with l. eye closed.

Nose.—Stiffness. Discomfort. Stuffed up. Full feeling in bridge. Ability to pronounce the French nasal sounds with great perfection. Discharge of much glairy mucus alternating with a dry feeling.

Face.—I do not look well. Painful crack in r. corner of lips. Lips unusually red; lower.

Mouth and Throat.—Tongue unusually clear and red; coated brown; painful pustule on r. upper side of tip, next day pain in r. side of tip; pain in l. half; feels burnt, also acrid. Sore throat, with enlargement of tonsils. Aching in throat extending to stomach, with burning in stomach.

Stomach and Abdomen.—Anorexia. Nausea; arising from r. hypochondrium. Cardialgia. Pain in S.; < at cul de sac. Fulness in S. Flatulence. Emission of flatus; painful, foul-smelling, in afternoon. Pain in r. hypochondrium. Uneasiness in abdomen; in iliac region, not quite a pain, at 8 A.M.

Stool, Urinary and Genital Organs.—Stool papæsent, small, with mucus, without sense of aid from sphincter muscles. Constipation. Stool dry and scanty. Frequent micturition; at night, with urging in renal ducts; and at times copious. Urine scanty; U. thick; high-colored and loaded with phosphates; almost colorless, emitted without effort, urging in renal ducts after bladder is emptied. Sexual appetite depressed.

Heart and Pulse.—Sharp pain in H. in morning on rising, then passage of flatus. Constrictive pain in H. Pulse accelerated, afterwards slow; slow and small.

Back.—Pain in l. scapula; then in r.; under apex of l. scapula; across lumbar region; about fourth dorsal vertebra; heavy, in l. scapula; as if in the bone, in r. scapular region; weary, in l. kidney; in occasional darts through kidneys.

Extremities.—Sharp pain posteriorly in l. shoulder in morning when driving. Creeping pain along periosteum of r. humerus. Tingling in l. fingers when writing. Apparent increase of strength in legs when walking.

Skin.—Brown. Some congenital, warty excrescences look red, fresh and unusually large. Blotches on upper arms, < l., after growing nearly invisible they again become red, and there is a new one below elbow, one on wrist, one on clavicle; erythematous, on face.

Pimples on thighs; on front of l. thigh; indolent, on chest, one on l. side of nose. Small pustule between eyebrows and one on r. side of nose, afterwards pustule on border of tip of tongue to right of mesial line, one on r. cheek, two on abdomen, to right of mesial line, and still farther to the right tiny papules, a large pustule that did not ripen near acromion. Itching on scapulae and legs; along anterior and outer tibial regions; shoulders and sternum.

Sleep.—Sleep as if narcotized. Sound, dreamy. Transient. Intermittent. Restless; and dreamy; but felt rested in morning. Had a bad night; < towards morning; and snored. Dreams.

Fever.—Rigors.

Cuprum.

Pure precipitated metallic Copper is triturated with sugar of milk. Solutions of the salts of Copper are used.

Allies.—Plumbum, Arsenic.

Generalities.—Stretched upon the floor without sense, lay constantly with legs drawn up; constant dorsal decubitus; on back, with head bent backward; the child lay upon its stomach, with jerking upward of pelvis; lay still and apathetic, looking straight ahead, with dim eyes and stupid expression. Emaciation. Violent struggles. Writhing of whole frame under the pain. Trembling; < hands. Cramps.

Convulsions; from pressure on stomach; general; with stiffness of limbs and body, jaws clenched; in sleep, twitching of fingers, arms and hands backward and inward towards body, drawing back of feet, at one time opening and distorting eyes, at another closing them and distorting mouth; after pain in last dorsal vertebrae, the pain extending suddenly into l. arm, to wrist, arm was spasmodically flexed and extended, then loss of power, these attacks returning the two next days; with constant vomiting and pain in abdomen, gradually passing into paralysis; C., < abdomen and limbs, when attacked they croaked like frogs or howled, were crazy, looked frightened, attempted to escape, eyes glistened and seemed to start from their sockets, if one was attacked the others on hearing his cries were likewise attacked. Epileptic fits; epileptiform convulsions, trembling, staggering, falling down unconscious, without crying; epileptiform attacks, with frothing at mouth, trunk bent outward, limbs forcibly thrust outward and mouth open.

Shooting through body; < r. side, causing shuddering. Painful jerks or thrusts in various parts. Pains all over; in muscles; in bones in morning, with headache and nausea; in bones during remissions of delirium and convulsions, with headache; neuralgic P. in various parts, stomach, intestines, hips and lower limbs; rheumatic. Jaundice, with vomiting, eructations, heaviness in head, difficult hearing, grayish stools, thirst, dark, turbid urine, with yellowish sediment. Sensitiveness to changes of weather. Sensibility of paralyzed parts.

Agitation. Uneasiness; with tossing about (Ars.); with piercing cries; with anxiety (Ars.); with jerking of limbs. Weakness (Ars.); after walking, so that limbs trembled; with increase of corpulence. Faintness; on slightest motion. Heaviness. Paralysis. Trunk and limbs stiff, jaws clenched. Aggravation from lying down. Amelioration after stool; and mie-turition; A. of pains and of hardness of abdomen after diarrhoea, then nervous symptoms.

Clinical.—Spasmodic contractions of flexor muscles, especially of the fingers, toes and thumbs. Epilepsy characterized by the most violent spasms, with cold sweat, blue surface, etc. Chorea brought on by fright. Chorea of the most violent character, with spasmodic vomiting, cold sweat, etc. Chorea, with violent hysterical symptoms, laughing or violent weeping. Chorea during pregnancy. Uræmic convulsions following cholera. Convulsions preceding the outbreak of eruption in measles, scarlet fever, or in repression of the eruption. Convulsions from worms. Neuritis, with lightning-like pains, < touch. Paralysis of flexor muscles. (Plumb., extensors).

Mind.—*Delirium; with disconnected talking; in attacks, with full, rapid, hard pulse, inflamed eyes, will look and disconnected talking, ending in sweat; attack of surly; in attacks, he fancies that he is a captain in the army, fancies that he is selling green vegetables or that he is repairing old chairs, merry singing, spitting in faces of attendants and laughing at it; quiet, unintelligible murmuring interrupted by lamentations; furious. Senseless, he seems in a half-waking dream. Unconscious; and fell down in sudden convulsions.

Clinical.—In mania, biting and tearing, foolish gestures of mimicry, or the patient shrinks with fear and tries to get away from every one, with general chilliness, not > heat, etc.

Head.—Drawn backward; D. obliquely. Inflammation of brain. Lancinations, < turning it to either side, it felt as if fastened to shoulders by a long peg. Aching; in evening; < motion; with nausea; then vomiting and purging; bruised, in brain and eyes on turning eye; beating; compressive, in different parts; drawing, in many parts, with vertigo and general sick feeling. Confusion; with beating. Heaviness; with sticking in l. shoulder on moving it from side to side. Dulness. Congestion. Apoplexy. Vertigo; on looking up (Plumb.), with vanishing of vision as from a veil before eyes; on reading; on rising from bed, even to falling; < moving, > lying, with weakness, head sinking forward; > stool, with stupefaction; preventing sitting up in bed; in attacks; as if it were turning around in head and he would fall forward.

Forehead.—Intermittent lancinations, sometimes in F., sometimes in vertex, sometimes in temples or occiput, < pressure. Burning sticking in l. side. Pain; over eyes; as if brain were pressed outward. < stooping, with confusion of head.

Temples.—Veins swollen. Burning sticking in l. and on vertex. Tearing, < touch. Pain in r., < touch; P. in temples, frontal eminences, occiput and in brain, < motion and touch, with vertigo; drawing P. in l., < touch. Painful throbbing in arteries.

Pain in vertex. Cutting jerking in l. side of head. Pain on r., then l. side; (P. in parietal bone, < touch). Drawing in l. side, extending to face, ear, behind ear and to l. side of neck. Burning tearing in occiput at attachment of cervical muscles on moving head forward. Heaviness in occiput. Hair colored green; from white. Crawling on vertex. Prickling tickling on vertex. Soreness; on touching hair.

Clinical.—Meningitis from suppressed eruptions, with convulsions, loud screams, clenched thumbs, lips blue, etc. Valuable in extremely violent continued headache, with sensation as if cold water were poured over the head. Violent headaches, with vomiting of all food and drunk, sunken eyes, etc. Extremely violent headache over frontal sinuses in nasal catarrh (compare Kali iod.).

Eyes.—Sunken; and staring; and dim; and glazed. Surrounded by blue rings; and sunken; and looking weary. Prominent. Fixed; upward. Wandering. Sparkling. Dim, inclined to close from weakness. Pain as from night-watching; burning P.; sore burning P. now in one, now in other. Itching towards evening. Pupils dilated; contracted; insensible. Conjunctiva injected; C. greenish-yellow. Itching of balls. Lids red; and swollen. Pressure in lids on opening and closing them, < touch. Pain in orbits; bruised, on turning eyes. Photophobia. Blackness before eyes, flickering vision of sparks.

Ears.—Sticking in r. Tearing in cartilage of l. Pain in ears, tearing in r. Boring in and behind E. Pressure in r. concha as from something hard. Itching. Distant drumming in ear on which he lay in morning, > raising himself. Roaring and ringing. Fluttering in l. Deafness.

Nose.—Red and swollen. Sensation of rush of blood. Itching internally. Stopped coryza, with sleepy yawning; fluent C., with lachrymation and smarting of eyes; profuse C. Bleeding; with petechiæ. Frequent sneezing. Loss of smell.

into stomach and thence into bowels, next day hæmorrhage again, then sudden collapse. Retching; ineffectual; ineffectual, with constriction of œsophagus and across chest in direction of diaphragm; violent.

Vomiting; with burning nausea rising to throat; with colic; > drinking cold water (Ars. in part). Forcible. Constant, with purging; C, with colic. Frequent; after drinking (Ars.); at night; with colic and diarrhœa, as in cholera. Of breakfast; of every kind of food; of contents of stomach and bile, then dry retching. Of water, with lachrymation. Frothy fluid mixed with blood. Bloody matter; of blood and mucus; bloody, with bloody diarrhœa, little colic, but much cramping in limbs; of B. without cough, with deep stitches in l. side of chest. Biliary fluid. Greenish; and yellowish; and liquid; liquid, with blood; violent, sudden, of water, with copious greenish diarrhœa and colic (compare Verat.); violent, bilious, with frequent liquid stools; and yellow-green bile, with cramps; bitter, slimy, at one time of sweetish, clear, tenacious saliva; viscid, glairy, tinged with blood. Frequent, almost brownish-yellow, in part greenish.

Distention in region, with soreness to touch; in epigastric region. Cramps and pains, and in bowels. Gripping and pressure, then vomiting. Sticking near l. side of pit, not affecting respiration; gnawing S. in stomach. Tearing; in pit. Pinching, extending at times into throat and at times into abdomen. Pressure, with intermittent, contractive pains. Pain; in region; epigastric region; in pit, < pressure; in pit, as from something hard, < touch. Cardialgia. Heartburn in afternoon, then bitter mucus in throat. Burning, rising into throat and mouth. Distress after eating; D. in S. and abdomen, < vomiting. Occasional weight in epigastric region, rather towards r. side, with uneasiness, and after meals sense of distention; W. in epigastric region, with weakness and oppression. Epigastric pulsation. Internal heat in epigastric region. Sensation of something bitter in it. Sensitiveness to touch; epigastric region. Weakness. Irritability, < eating. Impatient of everything but the most bland and simple milk diet. Disposition to remove some offending substances, without nausea.

Clinical.—Obstinate vomiting always on waking in morning, on the slightest movement. Cramp in the region of the stomach and abdomen, or very violent cutting pain going through to back as if transfixed and preventing the slightest motion.

Abdomen.—Tense, hot and tender to touch (Bell.). Stretched like a board (Plumb.). Distended, hard, painful to touch; D., with paroxysmal soreness and with falling out of teeth, < upper, without salivation, trembling of limbs, after a third attack perfect lameness, paralysis of r. hand. Tympanitic. Rumbling in sleep. Spasmodic motions of muscles; S. motions of A. and stomach. Contracted; and sore to touch; almost to spine, but not sensitive to pressure (Plumb.).

Acute enteritis. Cramp at 6 a.m., as if drawn together with a fist, and ineffectual urging to diarrhœa; occasional C. Shooting across A. and under ensiform cartilage; corroding S. and internal ulcers. Cutting; and tearing; and constriction. Chronic gastro-enteritis. Gripping; after warm milk in morning; on walking after eating green vegetables, > rest and lying down, then weakness. Sudden pain as if struck when sitting reading, > pressure. Colic; during digestion; < pressure; < fatigue; > stools; with constipation; with almost constant urging to stool; with vomiting and purging of green matter; intermittent C.; intermittently, > bending double; paroxysmal, with hot sweat; causing anxiety; extending transversely across A., remitting at times but not intermitting; as from something hard, < touch; spasmodic; intermittent drawing. Feeling as if intestines were drawn into knots, in some paroxysmal, with inclination to draw knees up and press hard upon bowels. Pressing together of intestines every forenoon, < walking or pressure, with pressure from upper and posterior part towards l. lower part. Constriction. Tension. Sensitiveness so that she could bear no covering. Internal heat. Inclination to waterbrash.

Colic in upper and middle, < pressure. Gripping in l. side. Drawing in r.; l., from below false ribs to bend of thigh. Feeling in l. as if bubbles formed and broke. Swelling of liver. Sticking in hepatic region, in axillary line through to pit of stomach. Gripping in l. hypochondrium, extending to hip. Pain in hypochondria; in r., extending to r. shoulder; drawing P. from l. H. to hip. Sensitiveness of H.; l. Cramp-like pain in middle and one side, < l. Pain in umbilical region; l. Hypogastrium dull on pressure. Pressure downward in lower A. as from a stone; drawing P. as from something hard, < touch. Pain in l. iliac region, < pressure.

Clinical.—Most horrible colics, with tendency to collapse, convulsive vomiting, hiccough, etc. Neuralgia of the abdominal viscera.

Rectum and Anus.—R. inflamed and sensitive. Heaviness of R. after stool, with uneasiness. Tickling as from pin-worms. Tenesmus; after stool; with scanty, dark, pulpy stools; with burning in R. close to anus. Frequent urging; ineffectual U. Sticking above anus. Smarting in A. after stool.

Stool.—Diarrhœa; violent; bloody; slimy, brown, then greenish, with streaks of blood; profuse, with tenesmus and prostration; alternating with constipation. Liquid; and involuntary, also green and offensive; and involuntary, copious, waking him at 2 a.m., when lying on abdomen; and frequent, with bright red blood and shreds of membrane, sometimes scanty, sometimes containing fragments of solid feces. Like frothy molasses. Constipation; with tenesmus; with intermittent drawing pain about umbilicus and flank. Green. Grayish. Bloody; of bloody mucus; of almost clear bright red blood; bright blood from bowels. Scanty, mucous, brownish, afterwards greenish, next day streaked with blood; S. mucous, greenish, preceded and followed by gripping, and tenesmus after stool. Copious. Difficult. Painful, green, with cutting and tenesmus. Involuntary. Frequent; and small, bilious, with burning and tenesmus; offensive, copious, green, relieving symptoms somewhat; slimy, tinged with blood, and on straining shreds of lymph and frothy ash-colored secretions were forced out, aggravating the sufferings. Omitted.

Clinical.—Cholera or choleraic stools, not copious, with desire for warm food and drinks, which are swallowed with a gurgling sound, the attacks are characterized by the most horrible cramps in stomach and abdomen and piercing screams, cramps in extremities, especially of the flexor muscles, with intense coldness and paleness of the surface, thumbs clenched across the palms.

Urinary Organs.—Urging, with scanty discharge and burning sticking or cutting, < meatus urinarius. Painful inability to urinate, requiring considerable time and effort to relieve bladder. Frequent micturition; and scanty, with smarting as from soreness of urethra. Involuntary M. M. rarer and scantier than usual. Urine suppressed (Plumb.). Burning sticking in meatus. Burning during micturition. Urine scanty; and scalding. Tinged with blood. Turbid and jumentous; T., dark red, with yellowish sediment; T., brownish, with sediment.

Sexual Organs.—Penis swollen, glans inflamed. Menses delayed, dark and painful.

Clinical.—Violent pains after labor. Puerperal convulsions.

Respiratory Organs.—Hoarseness so that he cannot speak; H. on breathing cold dry air. Voice trembling, stammering. Cough; with interrupted, almost suppressed respiration; fatiguing, with blowing of blood from nose; paroxysmal, without signs of lung disease; violent, at night, then chilliness and hoarseness from morning till evening; short; short, dry, straining; violent dry, at night between 11 and 1, < sitting, with tearing in head and return of the anxiety and pressure in chest; dry, preventing speech; hard, dry, with night-sweats; in morning, with offensive-tasting expectoration; with mucous E.; with bloody E.; with purulent E. Much expectoration. Purulent dark expectoration.

Respiration difficult. Suffocative loss of breath; sense of suffocation, < walking, fatigue and in damp weather. Spasmodic dyspnoea, with constriction of chest, then spasmodic vomiting. Short R. Rapid R.; with rattling in bronchi. Vesicular murmur weak, absent or replaced by a subcrepitant r le.

Clinical.—Whooping cough. Laryngismus stridulous, with thumbs clenched in the palms. Spasmodic asthma, with blueness of the face and constriction of the throat, intense dyspnoea, retching and vomiting. Violent spasmodic cough and whooping cough, face became purple, vomiting, the paroxysms > drinking water. Occasionally useful in pneumonia when there is want of reaction with coldness of the surface and cold sweat, excessive dyspnoea.

Chest.—Rattling when awake; R., ceasing during epileptic attack, with bloody mucus from nose and mouth. Spasms; cramping, after vomiting. Diminished elasticity posteriorly on both sides. Sticking beneath heart; S. in side, preceded and followed by screaming, which interrupted sleep. Pinching in l. side, extending to hip. Pain on r. side; sharp drawing P. in cartilage of sixth rib. Pressure as from something hard on cartilage of third rib, < touch. Constriction; spasmodic, impeding respiration and increasing the anxiety. Feeling as if blood accumulated. Coldness along sternum, with coldness of limbs and internal heat in abdomen.

Heart.—Dulness in precordial region on percussion. Boring in precordial region. Anxiety. Interval between first and second sound shortened by one-half, "bruit de rappel." Palpitation. Rapid action after a light supper. Contractions weaker.

Clinical.—Chronic aortitis, with distress behind sternum, etc. (see Baryta).

Pulse.—Rapid; and hard and full, also with red face and dry skin; and irregular; and weak; and thready; and small; and small, spasmodic; and small, intermittent; and small, weak; and small, wiry; and small, weak and thready. Slow, large and intermittent; S. hard and small; S. and small; S. and weak. Hard; and full; and contracted; and small, spasmodic. Contracted; and small; and small, weak, hard. Soft. Weak and small.

Neck.—Swelling of r. glands, with pain on touch; S. of r. glands, with induration. Lacinations in nape on bending head backward. Intermittent sticking tearing in muscles. Resisting pain in muscles where neck and back unite on moving head backward. Tensive pain in nape.

Back.—Pain; < rest, > motion. Cutting drawing in l. side. Sticking in l. scapula on moving head; S. beneath l. scapula near spine, not affecting respiration. Pain between scapula; P. beneath r. scapula changing on respiration to sticking. Sticking transversely across small of B. Lacinations in loins, sacrum, navel and in iliac region. Pain in loins; < rest, > motion.

Clinical.—Spinal irritation, with violent paroxysmal pain, extreme sensitiveness of the whole length of the spine.

Extremities.—Cramps; convulsive movements. Rigidity between convulsions. Periodic painful contractions of fingers and toes, often so that fingers could not be extended by any force. Painful jerks alternately in flexor and extensor tendons of hands and feet, extending into upper arms and legs, with cramps in calves. Trembling. Pain; < rest, > motion. Bruised and paralyzed sensation in E. and small of back, so that it was difficult to use E., with tearing. Drawing and tension, often with shuddering and chilliness though skin was not cold. Sick feeling as before coryza. Weakness; with pain at elbows, in bends of knees. Numbness; of different parts and under certain circumstances prickings in various parts of body. Difficult to move.

Upper Extremities.—Tearing. Paralysis as from lead. Drawing pain in shoulders. Jerking of arms and hands. Arms painful during rest, < r. Arms weak. Thrust or jerk in l. upper arm. Pain in upper arm; as if broken or bruised. Sensation as if bubbles of air issued from upper arm. Tearing in ulna, < wrist, < touch; jerking T. in ulna. Pain in l. forearm as if something were broken. Drawing pain in forearm, extending to thumb, r. then l.

Hand.—Swelling and inflammation, and of arm, with pain, fever, quick pulse, thirst, furred tongue, then abscesses on H. and arm, afterwards fingers and back of hands were oedematous and contained transparent fluid, finally it was necessary to make an incision from middle of forearm along wrist, over tendons, into palm. Twitching in morning on rising. Jerking tearing in metacarpal bones and first joint of thumb, < touch. Constriction of different parts of r. H. and forearm and sensation as if increased in size, motions not fully under control of his will. Pain in ball as if something were thrust through it. Lameness of r., forearm in constant pronation, hand bent at r. angle to arm, thumb drawn into palm, fingers flexed, extension of hand, especially of finger-joints impossible, flexion only partial, upper limbs emaciated, < r., r. hand nothing but skin and bone. Weakness; and paralysis. Numbness.

Fingers.—Nails white. Tearing in tips. Bruised pain beneath thumb-joints. Pain in thumb-joints as if dislocated. Tensive pain in balls of thumbs. Numbness and shrivelling.

Lower Extremities.—Cramps, < calves. Reeling from side to side. Drawing pain in nates. Sticking down from l. hip at noon, < joints of knee and foot.

Pain in muscles on anterior surface of thighs. Pain above knee as if bruised or broken. Drawing pain in r. thigh. Pain in knee as if broken. Knees weak, and painful drawing on walking or standing, they give way. (Edema of legs. Cramp, from ankle into calf; C. in calves; in calves on attempting to walk; paroxysmal, in calves, drawing one limb sideways and backward, > rubbing. Tensive-drawing cramplike pain in calf. Tearing below knee. Burrowing in and below calf. Pain in legs; in calves, < quiet; in lower part of calf as from a thrust or jerk; drawing P. in lower part of calf. Legs weak. Legs fall asleep. Legs feel heavy and dead.

Painful heaviness of ankles. Pain in ankles when tired. Jerking tearing in sole and on back of foot. Pain on inner margin of l. sole; P. in metatarsal bones, < touch; sprained P. in l. sole. Drawing pain in feet; in metatarsal joints, at root of great toe; in l. sole, < walking. Great toes drawn tetanically downward and pain in soles. Pain in toes. Sensation as if wind issued from toes.

Clinical.—Paralysis of lower extremities, attacks of suffocation, internal heat, external cold, with anxiety and anguish, the results of fright.

Skin.—Yellow; light, < face and conjunctiva; and pale, earthy. Red spots on arms, with burning itching, < night. Flabby. Dry and lifeless. Contracted on limbs. Rash on chest and hands. Eruptions; from back of r. hand to elbow and on l. hand, with irritation, < night in bed and near fire, and occasional oozing. Petechial spots on neck and arms. Tetter on bend of elbow, causing yellow desquamation, itching, < evening. Eruption similar to leprosy; < hair of head, the largest spots white and scaly, with moist base, appearing as if something acrimonious had been secreted under the cuticle, which thickened and separated from cutis. Vesicles exuding water, on tips of fingers. Sticking outward in various parts. Fomication of hands, < finger-tips. Itching on soles.

Sleep.—Yawning much in evening; frequent Y. without sleep; Y., with sleepiness, but inability to sleep on account of a crowd of ideas. Sleepiness; especially in children; with weakness. Lethargic sleep after vomiting. Deep sleep after colic; D., after the weakness; D., with twitching of limbs. Sleeplessness. Restless S., interrupted by dreams; R. and unrefreshing. Twitching in sleep. Raving in S. Difficult falling asleep, then sleep full of dreams, with frequent waking. Sleep frequently interrupted by dreams. Anxious dreams waking her.

Fever.—Coldness; with cramps in limbs; internal, with external heat and at night burning skin. Shivering. Cold limbs; and covered with cold sweat; legs, hands and feet. Cold skin. Fever; with full, hard, frequent, variable pulse; hectic; continuous, almost typhous; hot face without sensation of heat; pungent heat of skin; hot and dry skin. Sweat over the whole body.

Cyclamen.

A tincture is made from the fresh root of Cyclamen Europæum, L.

General Action.—The symptoms seem to group themselves about the functions of digestion and menstruation.

Alies.—Lyc., Puls., Carbo v., Cham., Coccul.

Generalities.—Drawing or tearing pains, < motion, in various parts where the bones are immediately covered by skin, as, for example, on tibiae and calves. Boring in r. metatarsal bones and in r. temple, then extending into r. upper teeth, and, after leaning on l. temple, extending into this also. Paralytic pressure on chest when sitting still and in upper arm and tibia. General discomfort. Uneasiness at night. Constant desire to lie down, in a child.

Weakness; in morning; on waking; in evening; in evening, with sleepiness and frequent yawning; in evening, with shortness of breath; in evening, but on rising after a nap bruised and stiff feeling in limbs and drawing pains in thighs and knees; on walking, also with clammy mouth and irritable mood; on waking, with fretfulness, confusion of head and pasty taste; after eating; after dinner, after midday nap, with tension in abdomen, passage of flatus up and down, profuse micturition, with dragging in bladder and rectum, heat in head and shivering in back; when moving, but on sitting itching and other symptoms towards evening; with pallor, sunken eyes and rapid pulse; with profuse sweat; with disinclination to work. General depression, with weariness of feet, sleepiness and frequent yawning. Sudden faintness as if everything turned in a circle, with blackness before eyes, then violent vomiting. Heaviness of body and weariness of knees; H. of body in morning on waking, with pasty mouth, hot head, pressure in stomach and passage of flatus upward and downward.

Mind.—Ill humor; with sleepiness of mind and weakness of body, the latter > on moving about; with disinclination to speak and little feeling in the body; with sadness, no desire to work and anxiety as if some misfortune were impending; then sudden joy, which he expresses by quivering of joints; alternating with liveliness. Anxiety. Apprehension. Sadness as if he had committed some evil and had not done his duty. Melancholy, complaints about her weeping mood (Puls.). Profound reflection concerning the present and future, almost to weeping. Sudden joy towards evening. Absorbed in himself and disinclined to talk; A. in thought, desires to be alone and thinks especially about his future state. Paroxysmal disinclination to talk. Disinclination to work, lasting till evening; D. to work, alternating with great desire therefor. Dulness. Memory weak; he easily misplaces words; alternating with great activity.

Clinical.—Symptoms of depression, with weeping and desire to be alone, in suppressed menstruation.

Head.—Sticking, > appearance of menses, with weakness; S. in brain on stooping. Aching; in morning; in morning on rising, with flickering before eyes; in afternoon, with vertigo; in evening; in evening on going to sleep; all night; with nausea; with weakness and nauseous taste; stupefying. Oppressive stupefaction, with obscuration of vision and sensation as if eyes were about to close. Confusion; in evening, with vertigo, as if objects were wavering, stupidity, heat of head, red cheeks, glistening eyes, alternations of heat and chill, full, hard, rapid pulse, finally nausea and watery diarrhoea preceded by rumbling and colic; after breakfast, with salivation, eructations and pressure in stomach; > cold applications to forehead, with other symptoms of head; with obscured vision; with roaring in ears; with warmth.

Emptiness changing to pricking in scalp and skin of face. Feeling as if bound. Heaviness. Dizzy fulness, with heat of it. Pulsations in brain in evening in bed, with late falling asleep. Congestion. Rush of blood, with headache, anxiety and dim vision. Vertigo; all the afternoon; towards evening; towards evening, with pain in forehead; < walking; with dim vision; periodic, with general sick feeling, disordered appetite and fulness in stomach; as if descending a mountain; as if objects wavered; as if all objects turned in a circle, and on lying down frequent eructations; as if objects were turning in a circle, < motion in open air, > in the room and when sitting; as if the brain were moving in the head or as if he were riding in a wagon with his eyes closed, on leaning against anything when standing. Sensation as if the body were turning around, and darkness before eyes.

Forehead.—Contraction of muscles as in anger. Sticking; in r. and in temple; in forepart of brain on stooping; jerking, in r., extending to face, < motion. Sudden tearing in r. bone. Pain; making night uneasy; drawing from r. side to l., then back into r. side, then in l. temple, > after touch. Stupefying pain, in r., then nausea and eructations. Confusion; of l. gradually extending over whole head, with pricking in scalp; in sinciput, with heat of it; in sinciput, with itching of scalp.

Temples.—Sticking in r.; in l., then in sinciput, with vertigo, then pressure in forehead; outward in bones; jerking, in l., then r.; drawing, in l., > touch. Pain; in l.; in l., with heat of head, then confusion of r. side of head; contractive, and emptiness; jerking and drawing pain towards vertex, with confusion of head, < forehead, and stiffness of nape.

Sticking on sides, < along coronal sutures. Sudden boring in l. parietal bone. Sticking in coronal suture; with pulsations in temporal arteries; in r., preceded by pressure. Pain in middle of vertex, at times causing vertigo; in vertex as if the brain were bound with a cloth and as if he were thereby deprived of his senses. Pain in occiput; painful drawing in brain, in a line from l. side of occiput through l. temple. Tearing externally. Pimples on occiput. Itching sticking, changing its place on scratching. Itching.

Clinical.—In menstrual derangements, vertigo, with headache, nausea and vomiting. Vertigo in gastric derangements, things turn in a circle, > in the room, > open air (Coccul, Nux v.), (the opposite of Pul.). Periodic headache on one side, with debility, in an anemic patient. The headaches of Cyclamen are apt to be associated with menstrual disturbances, or with anemia, indigestion, etc.

Eyes.—Sunken and dull-looking; S. and surrounded by blue rings. Glittering. Burning, < reading; on reading in evening in bed, with flickering of the light; of r. Sticking itching of E. and lids. Pupils dilated; < r.; alternately D. and contracted, finally contracted; alternately D. and contracted, dependent on respiration, occurring after inspiration or expiration, proved seemed able to see the fibres of the iris as through a magnifying-glass. Pupils contracted. Sticking in r. ball and lid. Vessels visible in whites, < l.

Lids.—Swelling of upper. Contraction as from a strong light. Blinking; on slightest pressure or rubbing; of r. upper. Vibration of r. upper on rubbing eye or forehead. Pressure upon, on frequent waking at night; P. as if agglutinated; P. in l. canthus; l. inner canthus. Dryness and pressure as if swollen, with itching sticking in them and in balls. Itching; in r. inner canthus.

Vision dim; < on waking, with spots before eyes; in afternoon, so that she could not knit. Flickering, of various colors, glittering needles, vision of smoke (comp. Lyc.); F., with confusion of head; beginning with headache, < r. eye, but lasting longer in l., with inability to read, the light appeared like a luminous ball, also with open as well as closed eyes, vision of a dark disc frequently pierced by lightnings, afterwards he saw with l. eye as through a dark blue glass. More acute than usual. Double. Rings around the light, so that she must stop embroidering on white. Vision of colors; yellow, at other times green; at times yellow, at times black.

Clinical.—The visual disturbances of flickering obscuration, etc., particularly associated with disturbances of the female functions and of digestion. Convergent strabismus.

Ears.—Tearing in inner passages of l. Drawing pain in inner passages of r., hearing less distinct in this ear. Itching, with removal of much wax. Stopped feeling in r. Ringing; < night, with sticking and headache. Roaring; on walking a long time.

Nose.—Pain across bones in evening. Dryness. Coryza, with frequent sneezing; fluent C.; sudden fluent C., causing febrile excitement; sudden discharge of much watery mucus several times at night, without sneezing. Frequent slight bleeding. Sneezing; violent, with itching of ear and much ear-wax. Smell diminished.

Face.—Red cheeks. Itching sticking in r. cheek, then burning. Biting together of jaws. Tearing in l. joint of jaw; T. in r. upper jaw and in crown of r. eye-tooth. Lips numb or feeling as if indurated. Dry lips without thirst.

Mouth.—Sticking in last upper hollow molar. Tearing in l. upper teeth; in three l. back T., as if they would be torn out. Jerking through upper T.; tearing, sticking J. in two first r. upper molars. Pain in r. lower T.; sore P. in r. upper incisors, < crowns, extending into walls of mouth. Hiccough; after eating; when eating and afterwards, or hiccough-like eructations.

Nausea; towards morning; at night; in morning after the accustomed smoke, with fulness of chest and unusual hunger; in afternoon; towards evening, with vertigo, weakness and ill humor; after a cup of coffee in evening that was not relished, with sour eructations; after the breakfast that was not relished, with vomiting; after dinner and supper, with uneasiness and qualmsiness in epigastric region as after eating too much fat (Puls.); in throat and palate on eating a little; caused by everything but lemonade; with waterbrash; with headache; with diarrhœa.

Vomiting; at night, with diarrhœa; then vertigo, dim vision and frontal headache; violent, then sleepiness; of a greenish liquid; of mucus; of food and mucus, with vertigo; of mucus, then uneasy sleep interrupted by starting up and unpleasant dreams; of watery mucus, then vertigo, so that she must lie down. Distention; with rumbling in hepatic region; and of abdomen, with eructations, especially D., like a ball beneath liver, with crawling as from something living in abdomen, on rubbing the crawling changed into the breast, and it felt as if air streamed out of nipples. Fulness as if overloaded, and six hours after eating incomplete eructations tasting of food. Sticking; in epigastric region. Pain; in epigastric region; in pit; in pit, and fulness as if overloaded; ending in eructations.

Clinical.—A general aggravation from fat food, like Puls., and many other symptoms similar to that drug, from which it is differentiated by its peculiar conditions.

Abdomen.—Distention (Lyc.); at night, with full feeling; by gas. Rumbling, with griping; R. after breakfast, with movings, then pain. Flatulence. Frequent emissions of flatus. Sticking; through A. on moving. Cutting, with pain in small of back. Griping at night; G., then diarrhoea twice. Gnawing as from a tape-worm, with sensation as from something living in it. Cramplike pain; in evening; with headache, < in forehead; sudden intermittent. Pain; in afternoon and night; on touch. Dragging, with increased warmth.

Sticking in hepatic region; beneath hepatic region. Tearing, piercing through-and-through sticking beneath stomach, on moving about. Griping in upper as before diarrhoea, then yellow soft stool, then griping, then constipation. Throbbing in upper. Paralytic pressive sensation in upper, as if part of the intestines were loose, with tensive sensation in neighboring parts. Tension in flanks. Sticking in umbilical region. Frequent griping in U. region, waking him at night, > pressure upon abdomen, disappearing after stool. Deceptive distended sensation in r. side beneath umbilicus.

Lower.—Rumbling after eating (Lyc.); R. after emission of flatus. Sticking in l. inguinal canal in evening. Jerking cutting along inguinal canal; sudden intermittent pinching cutting in lower A. Pinching; and pressure inward. Pain on touch, with sometimes pressive, sometimes griping pain, at other times a mixture of the two. Tension in inguinal region after midday nap. Discomfort, with nausea in it.

Rectum and Anus.—Sticking in R.; in A. in evening. Drawing pain in and about anus and in perineum, as if suppurating, when walking and sitting. Heat in R., with pressure and with swelling of hæmorrhoidal vessels. Urging to stool; which was thin, with burning and straining, then streaks of blood; ineffectual, after a normal stool.

Stool.—Fluid, with frequent rumbling and passage of flatus. Thin, light yellow. Diarrhoea; after every cup of coffee; sudden. Slimy, which afterwards is passed unnoticed. Pasty. Hard and frequent; in hard masses; compact, with burning in rectum. Constipated. Odorous, brownish-yellow and mixed with mucus. Shooting out, at first crumbly, then soft, with palpitation. With great urging and drops of blood. Delayed. Twice a day. Absent.

Urinary Organs.—Pain going from bladder to urethra in evening when urinating. Pressure on bladder and rectum after midday nap, with frequent urging to urinate, much urine and emission of much flatus; P. on bladder and rectum without frequent micturition or stool. Urging, with pressure in anus. Frequent urging; with scanty discharge. Frequent micturition after dinner; F., with dragging; F., with urging in bladder and rectum, with passage of flatus upward and downward; of much clear urine, also at night; of watery urine. Rare micturition; and urine scanty. Sticking in urethra; in forepart when urinating; with urging. Urine increased; and passing in a large stream; diminished; light, containing epithelial cells; dark, containing floating flakes; dark, reddish-yellow, discharged as if shot out all at once; much sediment, reaction acid, chlorides abundant.

Sexual Organs.—Prepuce retracted in open air. Frequent erections at night without dreams to cause them. Sore sensation in glans and prepuce in evening after slight rubbing. Menses profuse, black and clotted (Cham.), with labor pains and distention of abdomen, so that she could scarcely stoop; black, clotted and membranous; M. too early (Cham., Carbo v.), relieving somewhat the heaviness of feet and melancholy; M. preceded by pain in abdomen; omitted the second day.

Clinical.—Profuse frequent menstruation, which comes on too early, with labor-like pains extending from back to pubis. Suppressed menstruation with a great variety of symptoms of the head, eyes, stomach, anemia, etc. (general dread of fresh air or with constant chilliness). Chlorosis, with scanty and suppressed menses, great dread of fresh air. Membranous dysmenorrhœa, with profuse flow.

Respiratory Organs.—Pain in larynx. Scraping in trachea in open air, with dryness, causing suffocative cough; sudden S. in larynx. Tickling in larynx, with scraping and with dry cough, lachrymation and watery salivation; T. in larynx, with dry cough; frequent sudden T. in larynx, with paroxysms of cough. Voice rough. Voice weak when reading, with hiccough Cough, < during sleep, never caused by talking or walking, even against a cold wind; violent at night, with tickling in larynx; violent at night, with scraping in larynx, pain in fauces and thick mucus; hacking. Much expectoration; E. in yellowish-white consistent lumps. Suffocation.

Chest.—Sticking in r. side; l.; about l. nipple at 4 P.M. when walking; in r. side above sixth rib in evening; l. side, < by inspiration; intermittent, in upper part of sternum; tearing, with dyspnoea and short breath; tearing, on last true ribs on bending forward. Pressure on sternum; in middle of S. in evening; in l. side, < about heart, as from too much blood, with palpitation. Tightness in morning. Oppression, with difficult respiration. Fluttering in l. side. Burning in l. Mammæ feel larger than usual, sticking and tensive pains in them, glands hard and painful, flow of watery milk from nipples, the milk left a starchlike spot on the linen, as this fluid appeared the symptoms of the breast disappeared. Feeling as if air streamed out of breasts, with swelling and painfulness of them and discharge of watery, milky fluid.

Heart and Pulse.—Sticking in præcordial region at night on waking; S. in region of apex. Heart's action excited, fluttering in region. Palpitation in evening. Heart's beat and pulse scarcely perceptible. Pulse full. Pulse rapid and respiration somewhat accelerated; P. rapid, but respiration quiet; R., hard and full; R., scarcely perceptible.

Neck.—Rheumatic drawing in l. side on bending head backward. Drawing rheumatic pain in l. side in evening on moving head, with heat in muscles of neck and in l. ear. Paralytic pain in nape, > on bending head backward. Smarting sore sensation internally and externally in nape.

Back.—Drawings down spine, > throwing shoulders backward, < throwing shoulders forward. Tearing across scapulae, with sticking and paralytic pain in arm. Sore pain in region of l. acromium, < taking off' overcoat. Sticking in region of l. false ribs when sitting, > touch. Periodic deeply-piercing, gripping sticking on r. side near spine, between os innominatum and last rib, < during inspiration, which is impeded by the pain. Pressure in region of lumbar vertebrae, at times < stooping, at times < pressure. Drawing on small of; D. pain. Tension in lumbar region.

Extremities.—Stretching as before paroxysms of fever. Trembling of hands and feet. Pain in joints on motion. Fatigue as if their mobility were impaired. Heaviness, < arms and hands, so that objects easily drop.

Upper Extremities.—Heaviness. Sprained pain in shoulder-joint. Paralyzed, hard pressure in r. upper arm and forearm, in periosteum and deep in muscles, extending to fingers and preventing writing. Drawing in l. arm, extending into fingers. Tearing in elbow and wrist. Bruised pain in l. elbow; B. pain across outer side of elbow, < moving arm and on touch. Pain in r. elbow, > morning after rising, returned in forenoon, gradually extended to shoulder and fingers, < forearm, > moving arm or changing position, returned on keeping arm quiet, the pain returned on going to bed.

Sticking in muscles of r. forearm. Tearing in l. forearm; in periosteum of l. radius near to and in wrist. Paralytic, hard pressure extending to fingers, where it is so violent that writing is difficult. Painful drawings in inner surface of shaft of ulna, and in wrist. Bruised pain in r. forearm, extending from elbow to fingers, painful on motion, waking him, > towards morning. Swelling of veins on back of hands in evening. Aching on back of l. hand. Feeling as if everything would fall from hands. Numbness of r. hand. Cramplike, slow flexion of r. thumb and index, the tips approach each other and have to be forcibly extended. Tearing in periosteum of little, middle and ring fingers.

Lower Extremities.—Tearing on outer side of r. thigh in evening. Cramplike pain above r. popliteus. Rheumatic drawings in l. gluteus maximus, along its attachment to ilium, towards sacrum, when sitting, > standing. Weakness of thighs and legs, on long standing they sway to and fro. Sprained pain in l. knee-cap. Bruised pain in l. knee; when walking, or fatigued pain; B. pain, now in one, now in other knee, > on motion. Drawing pain in l. knee-cap; in r. knee, in acromium and cap; in bends when standing; in bend of r., becoming a drawing; in flexor muscles, extending to tips of toes, < l. leg. Tensive drawing in tendons of knees when sitting and standing. Weakness of knees. Twitching internally beneath l. knee. Sticking in muscles of r. calf. Tearing in l. leg. Tearing paralytic pain in tibiae on motion, with weakness and unsteadiness of knees. Drawing in l. leg. Drawing pressure in tibiae, appearing when sitting, and disappearing when walking, or vice versa, but more painful when sitting.

Sprained pain in ankle on stepping; when walking and standing, > sitting down. Cutting behind l. inner malleolus when walking. Sprained pain in l. foot; in r., > touch and when walking; in foot when walking;

when sitting and standing, < walking, < near heel and in ankles. Drawing pressure on back of foot when sitting, > standing. Sore pain in heels, preventing walking; burning sore P. in heels, < walking in open air. Weakness of feet. Heaviness of feet; paralytic, making walking difficult. Dead feeling in feet at toes after walking, and when walking sore pain, < jumping. Pulsating tearing on lower surface of r. toes. Pressure on l. great T.; drawing P. on great; drawing P. outward in periosteum of l. little. Drawing in l. great T.; D. inward where the l. great T. unites with metatarsal bone.

Skin.—Red spots on thighs like burns; R. spots on face, < forehead, with pustules. The almost imperceptible scars of smallpox became distinct and dark red, and the forehead was covered with similar spots. Pimples on forehead; on scalp, face and rest of skin; heat P. on r. chest; itching P. on parotid gland; speedily filling with white lymph, on face, also with whitish-yellow lymph. Sensation as if a large animal were running over her body. Prickling and sticking in evening in bed, causing scratching.

Itching on lower jaw; scalp, neck, shoulders and below axilla; in region of l. inguinal canal; on elbows; on calf; on r. calf in morning, with swelling of veins extending to foot, so that he scratches till it bleeds; of r. calf in evening, so that he scratches till it bleeds, which causes burning pain; in evening, not only in skin, but apparently in bones of l. toes; on back of r. great toe, after scratching itching white pustules, the I. > rubbing until the toe is sore; on middle joint of l. little finger, then red vesicles; then a red pimple on metacarpal joint of ring finger, soon becoming white as from a blister, surrounded by a red areola. Sticking itching in all parts in evening in bed; sudden S. itching between fingers; sudden S. itching above ankles and on toes, now better, now worse, then warmth alternating with numbness of skin; stitching itching in various parts in forenoon, changing to drawing and tearing pain; sudden throbbing S. itching in various parts, then numbness. Itching gnawing in various parts, > for a time by scratching.

Sleep.—Yawning; frequent. Sleepiness in forenoon; at noon after eating, with weariness; in afternoon, with fretfulness; in evening, with deep sleep at night and lascivious dreams (after a cup of tea, with four teaspoonfuls of rum); after eating; when sitting; irresistible in evening, also with chilliness. Early sleep and confused dreams. Sleeps longer than usual in morning. Sound sleep, with indistinct, frightful dreams; S. sleep, with confused, unremembered dreams.

Sleeplessness; with thirst, heat and headache. Late falling asleep and frequent waking; late falling asleep, much dreaming and frequent sudden waking, fully awake at 4 A.M., but sleep again about 6.30, with no desire to rise. Starting from sleep. Restless sleep; interrupted by dreams; with frequent crying out; with frequent starting in fright, caused by dreams, then weariness in morning on waking; with dreams of money; with confused dreams, though he went to bed after midnight; and disturbed by frequent attacks of anxiety and nausea. Frequent waking. Waking early, with inability to sleep again, and when he wishes to rise inability to do so from weakness and sleepiness. Sleep interrupted and towards morning.

Fever.—Coldness; all the forenoon, after the usual warmth begins the nose is still cold, but as this becomes warm the hands become cold; general, after midday nap, with heat in head, tension about flanks, pressure and heat in rectum, with swelling of hemorrhoidal vessels, flatulence, prostration and ill humor; towards evening, with sensitiveness to cold, then heat in different parts, on backs of hands and on nape, but not on face; towards evening, without thirst, with sensitiveness to cold, which causes sudden shuddering, then heat of certain parts, with anxiety as if some evil were impending; after eating; after dinner, with congestion to brain; after a feverish attack and paroxysms of heat and throbbing in head; then general heat, < of face, with redness that was < after eating, without thirst.

Coldness of cheeks, with internal and external heat of hands and swelling of veins. Coldness in back after midday nap, with tension of abdomen, passage of flatus up and down; C. over back after midday nap, with heat in head and eyes, frequent urging to urinate and pressure in rectum; C. over back after eating, with pressure upon bladder. Cold hands in morning; C. limbs till midnight, with heat in face, causing restless sleep. Chill alternating with heat; then profuse sweat. General shivering in morning, with yawning, but without coldness or gooseflesh; shivering in open air; sudden S. in evening; sudden shaking chill at 8.30 p.m., then a sleepless night, with heat, fever lasted next day, with headache through afternoon, in evening again fever lasting till 2 a.m., when he first fell asleep.

Heat; at night, preventing sleep; during restless sleep, also with sweat. Internal; in morning. In head; in morning on waking, with pressure in forehead; in morning, < forehead, with pressure in temporal region; towards evening; with confusion; in r. side, with fulness; and in abdomen; rising into head in bed, with sensation as if head were turning about; rising into head and lasting till evening; rising into H., with sweat; and towards evening cold shivering, then palpitation. In various parts, hands, nape, neck below jaw, and after an hour dryness of palate with thirst. In whole l. leg in evening, with drawing pain in it when sitting. Sweat at night; every time on waking; S. on waking, burning in face, without redness; offensive S. between l. toes.

Datura Ferox.

Datura ferox, from India. Symptoms from numerous cases of poisoning. Compare Stramonium.

Symptoms on an average continued twenty-four hours, then usually recovery with the return of mental sensibility, on the second day contraction of pupil and in many cases an attack of fever, but in the fatal cases the tympanitis of abdomen increased, coma set in with stertorous breathing, pulse weak, at last imperceptible, cold perspiration over whole body, death. Distressed appearance, and did not like to be touched.

Raving. Out of her mind, dizzy and sleepy, at last sleep, in which the eyes were more or less open, if disturbed she sprang up raving and uttered unintelligible words, and if one sang she began to dance in the Japanese fashion. Delirium, characterized by incoherent talk and by peculiar movements of hands, as if to pick up something from the ground or moving away from an imaginary thing in the air. Tried to escape whenever held, and shouted loudly and attempted to strike and kick when caught. If left alone they lay on the ground curled up, with legs drawn up on abdomen and chest bent forward, groaned incessantly but did not speak nor answer. Whenever they said anything it was with reluctance. In boys a tendency to run away. Considerable strength, eight or ten persons were required to hold a patient when the stomach pump was used. Two brothers of 50 and 55 years wrestled with each other when alone in a room.

Pupils always dilated and insensible to light, and in extreme cases ball insensible to touch. Conjunctivæ clear or pale bluish for the first twelve hours, became bloodshot afterwards and remained so for nearly twenty-four hours. Sight could not be fixed on any object and lids were mostly kept closed. In almost all cases the lips, inside of mouth, and throat were dry. Tongue dry, with thick fur, causing difficulty in swallowing and hoarseness. Stomach and bowels generally found loaded. Sour smell from mouth due to undigested food in stomach. Vomiting took place of itself in one case only. Tympanitis. In one case, which died on the seventh day, symptoms of enteritis, fever and constant discharge of muco-sanguineous stool, peculiar, hoarse, feeble and hesitating speech, though answers were rational and senses perfect, rapid loss of flesh, no appetite, the day before death tetanic spasms, mostly in legs. Bowels in general costive, and they took a long time to move, even with purgatives, in a few cases looseness of bowels followed after they were once opened, and one man died of enteritis, discharging blood and mucus. Answers in an undertone when recovering; answers shortly and quickly and suddenly appears to lose the string of thought, looks in another direction and wanders away as if thinking of something else. Pulse slow and full.

Digitalis.

A tincture is made of the leaves (of the second year) of Digitalis purpurea, L.

General Action.—The chief interest centres in its action on the circulation, which it seems to affect through the vaso-motor centres. It slows the pulse, increasing arterial tension and causing contraction of arterioles. Its action on the heart is remarkable in that it produces vigorous systolic contractions which become very irregular, one portion of the ventricle dilating while another remains in a state of contraction; finally the heart stops in systole. Its actions on the urinary secretion is uncertain and variable, but it is a valuable remedy (at least a palliative) in some forms of dropsy, with a weak heart.

Allies.—Apocynum c., Tabac., Hell., China, Ferr Bry., the Alkalies (Calc., Kali, Bar.), Zinc.

Generalities.—Lay on back prostrated, scarcely able to move a limb; lay supine in morning, cold, pale and covered with profuse sweat. Could not bear the upright position. Falling senseless. Tense white swelling of whole body, with pain on touch, afterwards becoming soft and changing to anasarca. Wasting of body in proportion to recuperation of mind. Convulsions. Epileptic attack. Cramps. Stiffening of body; painful S. of trunk and limbs, < thighs. Universal and partial trembling. Symptoms of inflammation of gastro-intestinal mucous membrane as well as of brain. Tearing burning and itching sticking in various parts. Feeling as if electrized on every inspiration. Bruised feeling. Malaise. Restlessness. Lightness of body. Relaxation of all muscles, with sensation as if he had not slept enough. Weakness; in morning on waking (Calc. c.), < rising (China); with trembling of muscles; sudden, with sweat; sudden, after dinner, as if he would lose consciousness, with heat and sweat. Faintness; between attacks of nausea; and nausea on motion. Heaviness.

Clinical.—Post-scarlatinal dropsy, urine frequently scanty and dark, extremities oedematous, dyspnoea, edema of lungs, etc.

Mind.—Delirium; at night, with agitation; violent, at night; secretive insanity, with disobedience, obstinacy and attempts to escape. Lively fancies. Gayety bordering on intoxication, with debility. Anxiety (Calc. c., Ars., Bry., etc.); < about 6 P.M., with dread of the future, > weeping; as if he had committed a crime or expected to be reproved. Fear of death. Apprehension; < music, with depression; with sighing; as if rising from upper abdomen. Anger at everything. Ill humor. Sadness; and weeping about disappointments; and all objects appear as to one sick with fever. Continual complaints. Disinclination to talk. Desire to be alone. Indifference; as if he had not slept enough, without sleepiness. Great desire to work. Increased energy, especially of imagination. Weakness. Intellect destroyed. Thought difficult, forgetfulness of everything, with internal and external heat of head. Incapacity for study. Confusion of ideas. Inability to connect ideas. Dulness, < evening, with indifference; D. in evening, with uneasiness in various parts of head and weakness of forearms. Stupor. Coma; interrupted by convulsive attacks of vomiting. Unconsciousness in morning, then falling down in syncope.

Head.—Falls backward when sitting and walking, as if anterior cervical muscles were paralyzed (Tabac.). Sudden cracking sound during midday nap, with starting up. Aching; in morning; in morning on waking; in morning on waking, < afternoon and evening, unfitting him for work; in morning on stooping immediately after rising; in various bones; with heaviness as from rush of blood; with nausea; with cutting in abdomen, then warmth over whole body and pressure towards bladder. Drawing in bones. Weight; > forenoon by nosebleed. Pressure on spots. Heaviness and confusion as if full; H., < forehead, < walking, stooping or overheating, with confusion and pain. Dulness as if hypochondriac. Confusion; like intoxication; causing difficulty in thinking, gradually changing into pain; gradually becoming a pain, extending from vertex over whole head; changing into intermittent pressure in occiput, lasting till noon, with false vision.

Tension in evening, < forehead and l. temple. Congestion, with ringing and roaring in ears. Apoplexy. Sensation on bending head forward as if something in it fell forward. Intoxication. Vertigo; in morning, with heaviness; when standing leaning against a chair, with anxiety as before faintness; on rising from a seat, with weakness of limbs; after rising from a seat or bed (Bry., Phos., Coec., Apoc. c.); so that he must fix his eyes upon some object; with inability to think; with dim vision, preventing descent of stairs.

Forehead.—Sticking in l.; externally. Sharp pain in spot over r. eye. Aching; in morning on waking, with nausea; in r. side in forenoon; in evening, with pressure on temples; < movement; in sinciput; over r. orbit; with fulness; with frequent uneasiness in region of heart; throbbing, or at bottom of orbits; contractive, in forepart and in temples, < thought. Weight; in middle of upper part on mental exertion; in sinciput, with heat. Confusion in sinciput. Tension on turning eyes to one side; T. in forepart.

Temples.—Sticking now in r., now in l.; in l., shooting through whole brain, in evening and at night in sleep; tearing, in l. Tearing in r. close to ear. Pain in r.; jerklike, now in temples, now in whole head.

Pain in vertex. Heaviness in vertex. Tearing in l. side of head. Stitchlike tension in a spot in parietal part of brain on stooping, extending into a l. upper tooth, > rising. Pressure in sides; with tension; jerklike P. in r.; one-sided P. like an internal itching; like the beating of waves against sides of skull, also < standing or bending backward, > lying or stooping. Drawing in sides causing vertigo. Sticking in occiput and vertex. Pain in occiput; l. half; extending from r. to l. side and from occiput to vertex, with confusion of head and incipient vertigo; in protuberance, as from a blow.

Clinical.—Cerebral meningitis, state of effusions, albuminous urine, slow or feeble and irregular pulse, cold sweat, etc. (differs from Hellebore only in the character of the pulse). A sudden crashing noise in the head, with frightened starting up, has led to the use of Dig. in periodical attacks of this sort occurring in the course of general nervous prostration or in threatening epilepsy.

Eyes.—Inflammation. Redness and sensitiveness to light; R., < in evening, with pain. Dimness and weakness. Both inclined to turn to l. with pain on turning them to r. when vision is double and triple, with puffy face (compare Gelsem.). Burning of r., then a pustule, with areola of inflamed vessels in periphery of cornea towards inner canthus. Lachrymation; < in the room, eyes dim, hot, full of red vessels, with pain and hardened mucus in canthi; biting. Pain in balls; on touch; sudden intermittent, in r. Conjunctiva anæmic; C. inflamed. Pupils dilated; < r.; and insensible; contracted; C., with stronger, clearer vision; alternately D. and C., pupils only slightly sensitive. Inflammation of Meibonian glands. Lids red. Swelling of lower lid. Agglutination in morning, then weakness of eyes. Sore pain in margins of lids in evening in bed on closing eyes. Scratching in inner canthus. Smarting burning in external canthi. Heaviness of lids in morning, with inability to hold them open. Sudden intermittent sticking tearing extending from r. brow into r. frontal region, at 1 P.M. Pain in r. superciliary ridge extending towards external canthus; burning pain in r. S. ridge, with dim vision. Throbbing pain in orbits.

Vision dim; and his own hands and another's face looked blue. Distorted in afternoon, with anxiety and pressure as from a finger upon eyes. Amblyopia or diplopia. Flickering (China); and double; before l. eye in morning and also in r. towards noon, so that he saw three varieties of figures, closing eye and rubbing it slowly caused clouds of phosphorescence, the eye sensitive to light, the form of the rose was the type of the flickering, in the first experiment there were round spots in the field of vision, the space circumscribed, four deep oval lines forming four convex indentations, and the waves of light and shade surrounding this showed the same form only less indented, the next two days the flickering figures were surrounded by curved lines with five indentations, but more superficial, which were again surrounded by enlarging waves of light and shade, with superficial indentations, afterwards when the flickering decreased there were only fragments with the rose formation on the side, like a segment of the larger and more superficially indented circle; F. before l. eye on winking and on looking from light to dark portion of field of vision, afterwards < before r. eye, there was in the middle of the field of vision an alternately appearing and disappearing roundish spot of light, and about this concentric waves of light and shade in similar motion, at last F. only on entering house after moderate exercise, on walking or ascending stairs. Hallucinations. Sparks; like lightning before r. eye at noon. Spots, stripes, white surfaces, waving before eyes. White spots and black rings waving before eyes. Vision of colors, red, green, yellow, like a shimmering light in the twilight. Objects seem green or yellow. The flame of a coal fire appeared blue. All objects appeared covered with snow in morning on waking. Blindness; sudden, as from going suddenly from the dark into the light, with vertigo, then floating sparks.

Clinical.—Detachment of the retina. Amaurotic symptoms and illusions seeming to result from disturbed circulation. Anæmia of retina and optic nerve.

Ears.—Painful swelling of glands behind E. Sticking behind E. Jerking in outer and middle. Drawing pain beneath r. mastoid process, > pressure. Tension in l. Constriction internally, he hears the pulse in them. Intermittent fulness as if suddenly stopped, < excitement, with flush of heat over face. Sudden obstruction of hearing, with ringing in ear. Hissing, as of boiling water. Ringing. Noises. Buzzing.

Nose.—Much sneezing without coryza; violent S., which seemed to start from orifice of stomach and rise as a nauseous sensation till it affected the nerves of sneezing, waking at night. Stopped coryza in morning; in evening and night, fluent during the day; fluent C., with much sneezing, then stoppage of nose; (C., with loss of smell, with catarrh of larynx and trachea and expectoration of greenish mucus without cough, sometimes with fever). Bright blood from both nostrils.

Face.—Pale; with greenish, livid tinge. Livid. Red and hot. Swelling of cheek from ear to corner of mouth, painful to touch, with eruption on it. Sickly expression. Convulsions of l. side. Cramp beneath r. zygoma on moving jaw, which on biting is drawn upward spasmodically. Cramplike drawing pain in zygoma, > pressure. Paralytic drawing beneath l. zygoma, in front of ear. Sticking in lower jaw. Lips anæmic. Eruption on upper lip. Swelling on inside of lower lip. Lips dry.

Mouth.—Pain in incisors; pulsating P. in l. lower eye-tooth in evening in bed. Gums anæmic. Tongue white; pale; moist T., with grayish-white coat; T. coated; coated white and swollen; coated white in morning; coated yellow and swollen; swollen. Full of mucus. Sticking posteriorly in palate and in beginning of throat, > swallowing. Palate rough after much smoking. Scraping raw feeling in palate. Soreness, and of fauces and œsophagus. Feeling as if covered with velvet. Dryness; of palate and pharynx, with nausea. Moist and thick. Salivation; with soreness of mouth, tongue and gums; with ecchymosis and nausea on swallowing the saliva; as after vinegar; sweetish; intermittent, watery, sweetish, then salt. Fetid breath. Taste bitter (Bry.), to bread, with good appetite; flat, slimy T.; T. as of sweet almonds, after smoking.

Throat.—Tenacious mucus loosened by cough. Sticking. Scraping in pharynx; in œsophagus; in fauces, with dryness. Scraping and burning in pharynx; in œsophagus. Rawness in pharynx, with burning. Dryness. Spasmodic constriction. Constrictive pain, and along œsophagus. Sensation as if walls of pharynx were swollen or as if constricted by swelling of tonsils. Choking sensation. Sore pain on swallowing; soreness in fauces and posterior nares, < morning and evening. Swallowing difficult.

Stomach.—Painful hunger; at intervals. Longing for bitter food. Appetite diminished; for dinner; lost; lost, with emptiness of stomach; no relish for food and indigestion when it was eaten. Thirst (Bry., China); unquenchable; for cold drinks; for sour drinks. Eructations; after dinner, with violent hunger; of tasteless liquid; sour, after eating; of a sour fluid; of an acrid fluid, then acidity in mouth like vinegar. Hiccough; in paroxysms, not quite rising to throat.

Nausea; in morning, in a woman; in middle of night, beginning with a noise in throat, then suffocative convulsions, in which he wakes in great distress, then general convulsions, then delirium and ungovernable mood, biting of his tongue, full pulse, noise in head, the fits often preceded by frequent but ineffectual desire to urinate; after eating; on going to bed; with pain at stomach; with uneasiness and weight at stomach; with relish for food; with headache and flashes of light before eyes; occasional; in epigastric region.

Retching. Vomiting; every day at 5 or 6 P.M., with retching, nausea, anguish in pit of stomach and external heat mingled with shivering, then sweat, with chilliness; renewed by drinking, after meals when seized with fit of coughing, violent, also with irregular feeble pulse (compare Tabac.); violent, then cold sweat (Tabac, Coccul.); of blood; bilious; bilious, and diarrhoea; greenish; of greenish fluid; of much mucus; frequent, of mucus, then of bile; in evening, of much saliva, mucus and acid food; of ingesta, then greenish liquid; of ingesta, then liquid, then greenish-yellow; with purging and colic.

Distention after dinner, with pain; D. in S. and upper abdomen after eating, with heaviness and disinclination to work. Fulness as if the breakfast would be eructated; F. as if food remained in upper part of œsophagus. Pinching stitches in pit, < touch only when standing, not when sitting. Cutting; in pit, with nausea in it. Paroxysmal pinching. Gastritis, with weakness and double vision. Pain; in pit < pressure; in epigastric region; epigastric and umbilical regions; in epigastrium, then vomiting and stool of dark yellow color and offensive odor; in epigastrium, extending to abdomen; spasmodic; sickening, rising up line of sternum to throat. Bruised pain in epigastrium and over sternum after dinner, > by weak tea, with languor and feeling of indigestion. Anxiety in epigastrium. Soreness; in epigastrium, also causing frequent deep sighs. Constriction across epigastric region towards liver. The food presses in pit when sitting, > standing. Weight on straightening up body. Uneasiness; after moderate eating. Difficult digestion. Unpleasant sensation in epigastric region. Heartburn; towards evening. Burning; extending up oesophagus, also in afternoon; in epigastric region, with pressure. Faintness as if dying (Tabac.). Frequent emptiness before sleep.

Clinical.—Nausea and vomiting of pregnancy.

Abdomen.—Contracted, hot, dry and rough to touch. Fullness. Hardness. Noises. Rumbling; with gurgling and pain; with gurgling and feeling as if bubbles of air moved along colon. Flatulence; causing tension. Emission of flatus; profuse, in afternoon. Moving, with colic, then the pain extended into public region, changed into pressure and dragging, extending into testicles, then frequent urging to urinate, with itching of penis. Sticking in whole. Tearing on bending forward; cutting T. in evening as after taking cold, < rising from a seat, with pain in vertex; pain more tearing than sticking, in morning in bed, then diarrhoea and tenesmus. Cutting; with urging to stool; by jerks; almost causing nausea. Gripping; with sticking and attacks of nausea. Tormina after going to bed, till 3 A.M. Pain; in morning; towards evening, then sudden liquid stools; before and after diarrhoea; > vomiting of food enveloped in white tasteless mucus; now pressive, now cutting, > diarrhoea of feces mixed with mucus; ulcerative, on moving but not on touch. Constriction; pinching, as from a cold, when sitting.

Sticking in l. hypochondrium, with sensation as if parts thereabouts were asleep. Pain in a spot beneath third l. false rib as if everything internally were torn. Anxiety in hypochondria, with tension and constriction. Pressure in l. hypochondrium; in upper A.; paroxysmal and cramplike, in upper A. Sticking in r. side during expiration while standing and walking; S. in l. side, < expiration. Boring in forepart of l. side, with dragging downward. Feeling in l. side as if something were forcing itself through. Sticking in umbilicus; above region of U., with burrowing; dull, almost pinching S. in r. side above U. when eating. Tearing about U. in morning; sticking T. in region when walking. Movings about lower A., with gurgling and pressure. Jerklike tearing from mons veneris towards l. groin when leaning backward. Gripping in lower A. as from a purge. Frequent gnawing in lower. Sore pain in l. ring as if a hernia would protrude. Dragging in pelvis, extending into testicles, with pressure.

Clinical.—Jaundice, with vomiting, soreness over the region of the liver, irregular pulse. Enlargement of the liver frequently associated with a jaundiced hue, when calling for Dig., is generally accompanied or caused by disease of the heart, stools may be white and urine high-colored (compare Myrica). Ascites, with attacks of faintness, etc., especially associated with hepatic diseases. Incarcerated hernia has been relieved.

Stool.—Urging to S. Diarrhoea; violent; ash-colored; painful; sudden; frequent; then urging. Thin, frequent, next morning constipation. Liquid and profuse (Bry., Apoc. c.); L. and frequent. Bilious and mucous; B. and frequent. Constipation. Dry and indolent; D., difficult and copious, at 11 P.M. Grayish-white, nearly white, with liver symptoms (China). Containing many thread-worms. Copious; and containing much bile. Frequent. Involuntary. Scanty; and green. Retained, then yellowish-white.

Clinical.—Stools, clay-colored. Diarrhoea associated with dropsy, intermittent pulse, cold sweat, etc.

Urinary Organs.—Contractive pain in bladder when urinating, with difficult micturition. Dragging in bladder as if distended, not > frequent micturition. Urging; at 3 A.M. and scanty urine; U., but difficult M. as if there were almost no urine in bladder, after M. pressure in bladder and burning in urethra (Apoc. c.). Frequent urging; with dribbling of reddish urine, with burning in urethra and glans. Constant urging at night, also vertigo on rising in consequence; C. urging, with large amount of urine though not much at a time. Ineffectual efforts to urinate. Involuntary micturition. Frequent micturition of watery urine; and copious; F. at night and copious. Rare micturition, urine scanty, then frequent M., with cutting drawing in bladder. Painful micturition of scanty red urine. Urine retained, with distention of bladder, which could be felt above pubis. Function of kidneys suspended. Pressing burning in middle of urethra as if too narrow, when urinating, > even while urinating.

Urine.—Copious; in afternoon; with constant urging; with urging and inability to retain it; with exhaustion; then retained, with nausea, vomiting and diarrhoea; and pale, passed every hour; and watery; and watery, it did not collect in large quantities, but provoked constant micturition; and pale straw-yellow, feeble acid reaction, sp. gr. diminished, organic and inorganic solids diminished, and deep-colored. Scanty; and dark; and of high sp. gr.; and red; and clear and pale. Dark. Brownish, offensive. Red and burning; R., depositing a sediment. Acid. Neutral; in afternoon, acid at other times; in evening, not after dinner. Thick, with dense white sediment. Turbid in morning and afternoon and depositing a thick, white sediment. Thin brownish sediment. Free deposit of lithates.

Clinical.—Nephritis after scarlatina. Cystitis. Inflammation of neck of bladder, after passing a few drops the desire to urinate is increased and the patient walks about in great distress, associated with tenesmus of rectum; these symptoms have indicated the use of the drug for the relief of acute inflammation in chronic enlargement of the prostate. In inflammation of the kidneys of the chronic form it is sometimes of temporary value when there is threatened failure of the heart, or very scanty or suppressed urine, with oedema of the lungs, etc.

Sexual Organs.—Flaccidity, with loss of desire. Irritation. Itching of glans. Erections in morning; continued, in morning on rising; almost chordee-like, waking at night, with urging to urinate, but scanty urine; almost painful, disturbing sleep. Bruised pain in r. testicle. Frequent sensation at night as if an emission would occur without one, in morning glutinous moisture at orifice of urethra. Emissions, then pain in penis; E. at night without dreams and without waking; almost every fourth night with voluptuous dreams; at night, then exhaustion next day and erections on and after rising; copious, at night; copious, at 1 A.M. and on waking smarting in urethra. Lascivious fancies, with frequent erections. Desire, with frequent erections during the day. Power diminished, the propensities disappear, liquor seminis diminishes and may at last cease. Menorrhagia. Uterine hæmorrhage. Discharge of menstrual blood.

Clinical.—Gonorrhœa, with stranguy, inflammation of prostate, upper portion of the urethra and neck of the bladder. Weakness of sexual organs in men, seminal emissions with general Dig. symptoms of the heart, faintness, weakness of the extremities, etc. Hydrocele, especially with suppressed or scanty urine and albuminuria. Suppression of menses, with hæmorrhage from the lungs, associated with cardiac disease.

Respiratory Organs.—Mucus in larynx in morning, easily loosened, but he is obliged to swallow it. Tenacious mucus in larynx, loosened by hacking cough (Kali). Rawness of air-passages. Hoarseness in morning; on waking (Iod.); after night-sweat so that he cannot speak; frequent painless H. (Calc. c.). Cough; at midnight, with sweat; irritation to C. as far up as arch of palate; with catarrh so that he could scarcely speak; so violent after eating that he vomits the food; sympathetic with affection of stomach; C. from tickling in trachea without expectoration. Dry cough in morning after rising, with dyspnoea (Ferr.); D., with tensive pain in arm and shoulder; D. spasmodic, after much talking; D. and short, from itching in larynx. C., < long sitting, with expectoration and peculiar weakness in chest. Expectoration of grayish, sweetish, offensive-tasting mucus (Stann.); E. of mucus in morning by involuntary hawking; of blood.

Respiration.—Irregular and performed by frequent deep sighs (K. cy.). Difficult, slow and deep. Dyspnoea (Ferr.), < sitting, with necessity to breathe deeply. Constant desire to breathe deeply (Ferr.), < evening, but on attempting to do so it seemed as if the chest could be only half filled or as if there were an impediment deep in chest, with dry cough, < deep inspiration, with rare expectoration of hard lumpy mucus, the expectoration freer in morning than in afternoon and evening, everything about body seemed too tight, the shortness of breath > evening in bed, returned in morning on rising with painful weariness and general affection of chest and frequent dry cough, the difficulty in breathing < afternoon and evening, especially when writing, < next day in afternoon and evening, when it was accompanied by palpitation. Short. Short gasping. Sighs; and groans. Rapid. Feeble murmur.

Chest.—Edema of lungs. Sticking in r. above pit of stomach. Pinching sticking in ribs beneath r. axilla. Itching sticking rhythmical with pulse, in l. on a line with pit of stomach. Cutting externally in front, in region of third rib, on violent motion of opposite arm. Rawness, with stitches. Pain on coughing. Pulsating pain in l. lower part, more in walls, in afternoon, unaffected by breathing; P. pain in region of r. nipple when walking slowly, causing oppressed breathing. Drawing pain deep in lower part of r. in evening, preventing sleep; D. pain in middle of sternum when walking. Bruised pain over sternum and epigastrium in evening. Soreness to touch from ensiform cartilage upward. Oppressive pain beneath ensiform cartilage.

Contractive pain in sternum, < bending forward head and upper part of body. Suffocating constriction as if internal parts were grown together (Ferr.), < morning on waking, obliging him to sit upright. Tension, with pressure in pit of stomach, obliging deep breathing; T. in l. on becoming erect. Pressive drawing on coughing. Pressure in l. upper muscles, with boring; P. on lower part when sitting bent, with shortness of breath; outward in C. and epigastrium towards evening, > beating on chest. Uneasiness in mammary region, < l., and extending to l. shoulder and upper part of arm. Pulsations in r. Peculiar relaxed sensation, < long sitting. Weariness across to l. side.

Clinical.—Pneumonia, especially in old people, with prune-juice expectoration, cold extremities, cyanotic face, feeble pulse. Edema of the lungs and effusion into the pleura, with weak heart.

Heart.—“Heart-worm,” with intermittent pulse and congestion to head, < occiput, somewhat to l., and nausea. Pain; shifting. Oppression; with need to inspire deeply. Sudden sensation as if it stood still at 9 P.M., with anxiety; after dinner, with anxiety and necessity to hold the breath; S. as if it stood still, violent slow beats, with sudden pain in occiput, unconsciousness and cold sweat on forehead (compare Apoc. c.). Uneasiness; in afternoon; with cold sweat; in various parts of region in evening, with weakness of forearm. Confusion, < moving, with weakness of wrists and forearms. Disagreeable sensation.

Palpitation; at night, starting him from commencing sleep; from a slight ascent (Calc. c.); from moderate exercise, with uneasiness at heart. Beats accompanied by gentle “bruit de souffle.” Action rapid, < the systole, heart dilated slowly and on each movement palpitation. Oppressive, contractive action, with anxiety and spasmodic pain in sternum and beneath ribs. Violent, slow action when sitting; V., with anxiety and contractive pain beneath sternum. Strong action; at night, so that he must rise, walk about and open the window, with orgasm of blood, palpitation, strong, rapid pulse; when walking in the room, with palpitation; and difficult; extending over entire l. side, the first sound dull and prolonged, the second clear, beats intermittent and irregular. Irregular action. Action feeble, frequent, intermittent and irregular (Apoc. c., Hydrocy. ac.); action and pulse feeble and small; F., with palpitation.

Clinical.—Pericarditis, with effusion; fluttering of heart. Cardiac dropsies. In all forms of disease of the heart in which Dig. is indicated there is feeble, irregular or fluttering pulse, feeling as if the heart stood still, with anxiety and oppression; sometimes there is a cyanotic hue of the face, general desire to take a deep breath, which only partially relieves the sense of suffocation.

Pulse.—Irregular; after walking; and small; and weak. Strong and full; when sitting; S. and hard; S. from twelve to twenty times, then very weak for four or five times. Rapid; after gentle exercise; after exercise, and weak and irregular; when standing, slower on sitting, very slow when lying; on slightest motion, and on slowly sitting upright from reclining it became jerky, small and weak; on standing, and weak; and strong and full; and strong and wiry; and irregular; and irregular and full; and hard and small; and small and weak; and small, weak, irregular, with strong beat of heart; and soft, feeble, arteries dilated, irregular; three or four rapid, small beats, then several slow, strong and full beats; suddenly R. for a few beats, then slow again, or it loses a whole beat. Full.

Slow; slow, thready, intermittent; and irregular, also small; and irregular, always a full hard beat after every three or four soft ones; and a peculiar explosive shock with each of the three or four feeble beats, then intermissions of several; and small, intermittent; but strong; and full; and strong, irregular and intermittent; and full and large, soon rapid and small; but accelerated on slightest exertion; and strong, full, their shocks rapid and separated by considerable intervals when at rest, but on slight exertion rapid, irregular and less full; and frequently intermittent, with every intermission oppression as if the heart were slowly grasped. Intermittent. Irritable. Undulating at noon. Small; and soft; and weak; and weak and jerky on slowly sitting up after reclining in a chair; when standing, and weak, irregular in rate and strength. Feeble. Almost pulseless.

Neck.—Sticking in muscles on moving neck; S. in nape on motion, with tearing. Cutting in nape, with numbness, obliging him to draw the head backward, which seems hindered by a soft, dead substance compressed between the joints. Pain in muscles as from a hand. Bruised pain in nape between shoulders, extending over anterior part of chest, where there was pain on pressure, < over sternum, with frontal headache, bruised pain in epigastrium and distended feeling in stomach. Pressive drawing in nape at occiput, at point of insertion of cervical muscles on bending head backward. Painful stiffness of neck and throat, < motion, with tension.

Back.—Tearing on motion, with sticking. Drawing in B, limbs and fingers as after taking cold. Stiffness of B. and sides of neck, with thruslike pain; S. in muscles of r. side, < bending head, with pain. Thrust in first dorsal vertebra. Sore pain in joint of last cervical and first dorsal vertebrae on bending neck forward. Sticking between scapulae. Tearing beneath r. scapula. Sticking in region of kidneys; l. when sitting. Drawing cutting in l. side in region of lumbar vertebrae, > pressure. Pain in small of B. on stooping. Pressure on both sides of spine in lumbar region after stool. Bruised pain in small of B. on blowing nose; B. pain on beginning to move after lying down. Drawings above nates.

Clinical.—Spinal anaemia resulting from seminal emissions (China).

Extremities.—Tense painful swelling of legs, then also of forearms and hands. Burning sticking in tips of fingers and toes. Piercing pain in joints. Pain in all joints after midday nap, as if crushed. Pressure in r. shoulder and l. knee. Drawings in elbows and knees. Weakness of arms and legs. Heaviness, with sluggishness; H., with helplessness.

Upper Extremities.—Pain in l. shoulder and in elbows, at night, with semi-conscious sleep, lying upon back, with l. arm over head. (Muscular rheumatism in r. shoulder, allowing but little sleep.) Tensive pain in muscles of arm and shoulder on moving arm. Paralytic weakness of l. arm, so that he can hardly raise it, and cannot clinch the fingers without pain. Heaviness of l. arm. Upper arm, sticking in lower part; burning S. in l.; tearing S. in r. when walking; painful itching throbbing in flesh. Pressure in r. elbow; pain in elbows on touch as if the nerve were pressed, or as if the arm would go to sleep.

Sticking in muscles of r. forearm. Tearing in r. forearm. Pinching on back of ulna above wrist, with sticking pinching. Paralytic pain in middle of ulna on stretching arm or when it lies outstretched. Boring in r. wrist towards thumb. Paralytic tearing in bones of wrist; in r. metacarpal bones. Swelling of r. hand and fingers at night. Jerking and drawing outward of l. index. Cramplike sticking in ball of l. thumb; burning S. in l. thumb above nail, < pressure. Paralytic tearing in finger-joints; jerking paralytic T. in r. index. Drawing in fingers. Frequent sudden stiffness of fingers. Falling asleep of F. Numbness of three last F. and of one side of ball of r. hand.

Lower Extremities.—Staggering. Infiltration. Stiffness of joints after sitting in a wagon, > walking. Nates fall asleep in evening when sitting, and feel dead.

Thigh.—Drawing cramp in forepart of bend of r., < motion of lumbar muscles, when it becomes a bubbling and continues even when sitting. Spasmodic movements of muscles. Sticking in bend when walking; S. above l. knee, towards l. side. Cutting on laying one leg over the other, > separating legs. Bruised pain on beginning to move after lying down, and in legs. Pain anteriorly, pressive rather than drawing. Tension in tendons of lumbar muscles in bends of T., < motion, but almost only when walking, on pressure there is pain, as from pressure of a hard body under skin. Drawing in anterior muscles; D. in inner side when sitting; cramplike, in muscles above popliteus when sitting, > after walking. Painful itching throbbing in flesh.

Pressure in l. knee and in bones of foot. Tension in hollows of K. Fatigue of K. on ascending steps. Stiffness of external condyles of K. as from internal swelling, with coldness. Jerking of muscles below hollow of l. K. rhythmical with pulse, > touch. Sticking on outer side of tibiae below knees. Pain in calves. Smarting pain in l. leg when standing, as if crushed. Drawing in l. fibula as if a part were torn out; painful D. in leg when sitting, < thigh, then in r. knee and r. ankle. Weakness of legs; with trembling; with necessity to stretch them; paralytic; and of knees; of tibiae and knees when walking. Heaviness in l. tibia impeding walking. Pressure in l. ankle. Sprained pain in ankle on stretching it. Sticking in r. sole in evening, so that the whole leg jerks. Pressure in toes. Drawing in toes.

Skin.—Pale, ashy-gray and parchment-like. Rash on backs of hands. Desquamation of whole. Erysipelatoid affection of face resulting in ragged desquamation. Red round spots on body, supinator surfaces of forearms and backs of hands, > pressure, uniting in large elevations, next day desquamation on face, new eruptions on upper arms and neck, later desquamation. Itching eruption on cheeks and chin, which desquamates and leaves red spots. Pimples on back; beneath l. nostril, with biting pain; red, on middle of forehead, with burning biting, < touch. Comedones on face, which suppurate and ulcerate. Painful furuncle on nape. Cluster of vesicles on chin. Tension of abdomen on becoming erect. Itching on back of hand, < night, also on back of r. foot; on cheek and chin, < night, with biting; voluptuous, in axillae. Corrosive itching in l. loin; of upper and anterior part of thigh; on leg above external malleolus; in various parts, returning after scratching; < when he does not scratch, becoming intermittent, burning, sticking.

Sleep.—Frequent yawning and stretching, with chilliness. Allies.—Hydrocy. ac., Con., Kali carb.; and compare spasmodic cough remedies.

Generalities.—Weakness in morning; on waking, so that he can scarcely open his eyes; general W., with sunken eyes and cheeks.

Mind.—Rage at a trifle. Mental uneasiness when reading. Ill humor. Depressed by persecutions of others on all sides and discouraged and solicitous about the future. Dependancy, with anxiety and loss of appetite. Uneasy, sad, he imagined that he was deceived by spiteful, envious people. Anxiety evenings when alone; A. < about 7 or 8 P.M. as if impelled to drown himself; with restlessness and distrust; rising from region below ribs; as if his enemies allowed him no rest; as if he would hear unpleasant news, with general flushes of heat, < over face, afterwards with shivering over whole body without heat or thirst. Obstacity in execution of matured plans. Taciturnity, with dread of hearing something unpleasant. Joyless, stupid and disinclined to physical or mental labor.

Head.—Tearing in brain, < towards forehead, < moving eyes, > resting head on hands. Aching; in brain, he feels every step in it. Heaviness on holding it upright, > stooping; H. and confusion. Vertigo on walking in open air; and inclination to fall to l.; with disinclination to work. Forehead, cutting stitches in r.; tearing tensile pain, < stooping; gnawing externally above brows in morning, with drawing thence into cerebellum; boring outward on stooping when writing; pain after violent motion and while walking, like the confusion of head which arises from violent talking; pain above orbits on stooping, > walking; pain extending outward in F. and zygomatic processes; sore pain in l. eminence. Pressure outward at r. temple. Pain above r. temple. Boring externally on vertex. Pressure externally at vertex, with at times gnawing. Drawing pain in r. half of brain, extending towards occiput; in l. brain extending towards temple. Scalp, sore sensation in skin of r. temple; sore pain above r. side of forehead; burning sore pain of r. side, > touch; biting burning pain on vertex; itching, > sides; itching-gnawing on forehead, > rubbing.

Eyes.—Stitches extending outward, < stooping. Cutting transversely across l. Pain more biting than pressing, on exerting vision. Tensive burning transversely across l. and lids. Pupils dilated; contracted. Sticking in l. ball during rest. Tearing across l. ball. Burning pain in r. ball, with sticking in l. inner ear. Agglutination. Sore pain in r. lower lid, < touch. Itching of lids. Drawing, burning pain in superciliary ridge, < towards temple. Pain in l. brow and lid as if suppurating, on pressure. Vision as through a veil, the letters run together when reading. V. obscured at 7 P.M., on entering the house from a walk, with vibrations before eyes. Presbyopia and weakness of eyes, a vibration before eyes on attempting to recognize small objects. Glistening flickerings, < about upper part and on one side, on looking at the flickering it moves out of the field of vision, disturbing him when reading.

Ears.—Sticking in l. middle, with twinging; S. in r., not wholly external; slow S. inward through l.; tensive, < externally; tickling, in innermost part of r. Tearing in front of l. meatus, with twitching pain. Gnawing beneath cartilages. Pain in r. middle as if everything would be pressed together. Drawing pain in r. lobule and part of cartilage. Prickling and burning pain externally in r., then drawing inward. Difficult hearing, with increased humming before E. Humming before E., with roaring or sound as of a distant drum.

Nose.—Prickling in l. side, with crawling in l. ear. Crawling in r., provoking sneezing. Frequent sneezing, with or without fluent coryza; painful S., with cough, obliging him to hold his hand upon his chest. Fluent coryza, < morning. Bleeding; morning and evening; in morning, on blowing when washing the face; on stooping. Very sensitive to sour smells.

Face.—Sudden jerking in l. cheek. Jaw, sticking tearing in l. lower, as if in periosteum; burrowing in r. joint and in adjacent bones, < opening mouth; pain in r. joint; drawing pressure on upper. Crack in middle of lower lip. Dry lips and little taste.

Mouth.—Teeth (loose); sticking in morning after warm drinks; pain; cold sensation in crown of an incisor. Tongue, whitish ulcer on tip; round, painless swelling in middle; picking sticking on dorsum; sticking biting in r. side and tip. Biting on inner side of l. cheek, as after pepper. Bitter taste to bread; B. taste in throat in morning, till dinner. No taste to food.

Throat.—Rough scraping dry sensation in fauces and soft palate, causing hacking cough, with yellow mucous expectoration and hoarseness so that he speaks with exertion in a bass voice, with oppression of chest as if the air were withheld on talking and coughing, so that the breath could not be expired. Burning rough sensation deep in T. after dinner. Crawling biting in r. side of fauces when not swallowing.

Stomach.—Ravenous hunger without appetite, returning when he thinks it is satisfied. Thirst. Acid eructations. Bitter eructations. Waterbrash. Hiccough. Nausea after eating; N. when coughing; (on thinking of it); with stupefying headache, < in forehead. Vomiting at night; in morning, mostly of bile; during the chill, at last of bile; before dinner; of water, mucus and food on coughing; of blood. Sticking in pit, with throbbing. Clawing together in pit. Pinching tension in pit as if everything would be drawn inward, < deep inspiration. Tensive pain in epigastrium before and after a soft stool, if he holds the breath, > during inspiration and expiration, < sitting and stooping.

Abdomen.—Cutting. Cutting blows in muscles of A. and chest, < sitting. Pinching, with clawing and diarrhoea; cutting P. as from incarcerated flatus. Pain; twisting. Constriction when coughing if he does not expectorate easily, with efforts to vomit. Sticking in r. side when sitting; boring S. in r. parietes; drawing S. from r. side to l. when walking, almost arresting breathing. Pain across hypochondria and lower part of chest; in H. on touch and on coughing, obliging him to press upon them when coughing. Constriction in H. on coughing; in H., preventing cough unless he presses on pit of stomach. Sudden contraction of lower A. as if about to vomit, on expiration in evening in bed, causing cough. Sticking in r. iliac fossa; drawing S. from l. loin into penis.

Clinical.—Constrictive pain in hypogastrium during the paroxysms of cough, so that he cannot cough on account of the pain, and so that he presses his hands on the pit of his stomach or holds his sides.

Rectum and Stool.—Pressing-out pain in R. when not at stool. Thin stool, then ineffectual urging. Stool always becomes softer as it passes. Copious, pasty. Scanty, hard, with pressing. Frequent, with cutting in abdomen. Bloody mucus, with S., then pains in abdomen and small of back.

Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Frequent urging to urinate, with scanty urine. Profuse urine; and frequent micturition. Watery, odorless urine, with slimy offensive stools. Itching sticking in glans.

Respiratory Organs.—Bruised feeling in larynx when inhaling. Crawling in larynx provoking hacking cough (Con.), with sensation as if a soft substance were in it and with sticking extending to r. side of pharynx. Cough waking him at 2 A.M. (Kali c.); C. in morning, with expectation; in evening on lying down; at night (Hyos.); from very deep in chest; paroxysmal, so that he could scarcely get his breath (Hydrocy. ac.). Bitter expectation in morning; nauseous E. in morning; (salt E. by coughing and hawking). Dyspnoea, < talking, > walking, with constriction of throat. Difficult respiration. Deep respiration. The breath from the lungs has a burnt odor when coughing.

Clinical.—The cough is usually < night, coming on immediately after lying down, of a spasmodic character, often ending with choking and vomiting and with cold sweat, sometimes provoked by tickling in larynx as from a feather, or from collection of mucus which must be expectorated, at other times it seems to come from the abdomen and to be associated with convulsions of the muscles of the chest and abdomen, when he must hold his sides with his hands, the cough generally ends with expectation of mucus. Whooping cough, with constriction of chest and abdomen and sides, so that he must hold them with his hands, attacks < night. Whooping cough, paroxysms < after midnight, the child holds its sides with its hands, often retches and vomits. In laryngitis there is generally a rather free secretion of mucus, the cough is paroxysmal in character. In laryngeal phthisis, with great hoarseness, secretion of tough mucus, sore bruised feeling of the chest, paroxysmal cough after midnight, breaks into sweat on waking, etc. Bronchitis of old people, with severe paroxysms of cough, free expectation. A number of cases of undoubted phthisis have been wonderfully relieved by this drug. It is often indicated in the cough of measles, especially hoarse cough in afternoon and evening and after midnight. After coughing some of the expectation seems to remain, so that he cannot fully expire, < speaking and coughing. Whooping cough, with hæmorrhage from mouth and nose, and suffocation.

Chest.—Hæmoptysis (Ip.). Sticking in muscles on coughing and breathing; near axilla through the day on coughing or breathing deeply, > by pressure, with purulent bloody expectation; in l. intercostal muscles during inspiration and expiration, almost arresting breath; hot, in muscles of r. true ribs during inspiration and expiration. Pain in and below clavicles, over a small space in lungs, when inhaling, extending round to scapulae; P. transversely across chest, more pressive than sticking, when sitting, with pain on touch; tensive, in muscles during inspiration and expiration. Constriction of lungs when inhaling. Burning in middle without thirst. Crawling in l. intercostal muscles, with pain in temples, < r.

Neck and Back.—Stiffness of nape and pain on motion. Cramp in muscles of back and abdomen on turning head and body. Sticking in l. muscles of back. Sticking tearing in spine when sitting, extending to anterior spine of l. ilium. Bruised pain here and there in back. Strained pain in B. in morning. Drawing pain in B. and shoulders. Rheumatism between scapulae on moving, extending to sacrum. Sticking in tuberosity of ischium on rising from a seat; itching S. in coccyx when sitting. Grasping pinching in l. loin on rapid walking, impeding respiration, > pressure.

Extremities.—(Jerking or jerking sensation.) Sticking in muscles. Pain composed of gnawing and sticking in shafts of bones of arms, thighs and legs, < joints, > motion, with sticking in joints. Bruised feeling, with pain externally. Pain, with general paralyzed sensation. Aching in those upon which he lies, as if the bed were too hard. Cramplike pressure, now in upper, now in lower. Paralyzed feeling in all.

Upper Extremities.—Sprained pain in l. axilla on walking or standing, > touch. Pressure outward in axilla during rest Twitching in r. shoulder during rest. Bruised pain in shoulder-joint on bending arm backward, raising, touching it or lying upon it. Pain in S.-joint as if arm would go to sleep and were tired, > continued motion. Sticking in r. arm, with pain extending from shoulder to elbow and with suppurative pain in elbow on touch. Pain in ama on motion, as if muscles would be torn from bones.

Bruised pain in region of elbow, then in shoulder. Pinching tension in bend of elbow on flexion, only slightly felt on stretching it out. Sticking through middle of l. forearm. Sudden cutting between bones above wrist, with paralytic weakness of arm. Pain in wrist at articulation of ulna and radius on bending and on touch. Bruised pain in hands, extending to elbows. Pulsation in an artery on back of l. hand, with outward pressure in forehead. Spasmodic contraction of flexors of fingers when holding anything. Now r., now l. fingers inclined to contract spasmodically, and on grasping anything joints of middle finger inclined to be stiff. Sticking extending into fingers and out of their tips. Tearing in ball of l. thumb.

Lower Extremities.—Thigh. Intermittent cutting sticking in middle anterior part of l. Cutting pinching in posterior part of l. (Tearing after eating, with heaviness of legs.) Pain in bones of r. thigh and leg, beginning at night in sleep, > stretching; P. in posterior muscles of l. at night, < pressure, stooping and lying upon them, > rising; paralytic, in r. T. and hip-joint, causing limping; in l. T. and knee as if broken.

Trembling of knees when walking, < ascending steps. Painful stiffness of knees. Sticking in shaft of fibula, extending to calf, waking at night; cutting S. in r. calf when sitting, > walking. Pain in leg on stretching it, with limping. (Sticking about r. ankle, < when lying at night, with throbbing.) Tearing in r. ankle on walking, as if dislocated; paralytic T. in ankles, < quiet. Stiffness of ankles. Sprained pain in r. ankle. Itching sticking in l. sole when sitting, and in balls of toes. Tearing in heel on motion. Pain drawing up and down feet, extending to calves. Weakness of feet, causing tottering on beginning to walk, > continuing to walk. Sticking in three middle toes on walking, causing limping. Tearing in a spot in ball of r. great toe during rest.

Skin.—Red elevations on back of hand and above wrist, at first painful, then itching sticking in a spot, which are < rubbing. Pimples here and there in face, with sticking on touch and pustules in centre; red P. in middle of chin, below lip, covered with white scaly skin; (painful to touch behind and beneath l. ear). Corroding ulcer on back of r. hand, with itching, which after rubbing changes to burning, then exudation of bloody moisture. Corrosion from application of the herb. Burning pain in front of r. corner of mouth. Prickling burning pain beneath l. eyelid.

Sleep.—Frequent yawning, with stretching. Snoring when lying on back. Sleeplessness. Frequent starting from sleep in evening. Frequent waking, always on the breaking out of sweat; F. waking as if he had slept enough; as from fright, but without anxiety on waking. Dreams vivid, partly joyous, partly anxious; vivid, vexatious, about the ill treatment of others; anxious D.; D. of thirst and of drinking and great thirst on waking.

Fever.—Chilliness; through the day and heat through the night; in afternoon, alternating with heat, with nausea; at night; creeping C. over whole body, with cold hands, hot face and nausea. Shivering; during rest; during rest, though warm to touch; over whole body, with hot face and cold hands, without thirst, also with warm forehead. Coldness of face, hands and nose; (cold cheeks in evening, with hot hands); (l. half of face cold after midnight and sticking in it, while the r. half was hot and dry). Quotidian fever, before 9 A.M., till noon chilliness with cold hands, blue nails and necessity to lie down, after the chilliness thirist, then heaviness of head, throbbing pain in occiput, heat of face and usual warmth of rest of body, lasting till 3 P.M., in the evening well, at night profuse sweat, < on abdomen, after the heat nausea. Febrile paroxysms, head heavy, confused, constant chilliness, no taste to food, thirst, heat of head and watery salivation. Warmth of upper part of body towards evening. Face hot and red. Heat of head; (on chest, thighs and hollows of knees, with sweat on these parts and thirst). Sweat; at night; after midnight; on face at night.

Duboisia.

A tincture is made of the dry leaves of Duboisia myoporoides, R. Br. These contain the alkaloid—Duboisine—from which most of the effects have been observed.

General Action.—Almost identical (as far as known) with Belladonna.

Allies.—Belladonna, Stramon.

Generalities.—Trembling. Intoxicated appearance. Restlessness; in afternoon. Ineffectual efforts to sit up in bed. Weakness; all afternoon. Faintness. Asleep sensation in legs, then in thighs, arms and other parts, afterwards patient could hardly talk or stand. Lemon-juice acted as an antidote.

Mind.—Delirium, with tendency to pick at surrounding objects, drawing up of arms, restlessness, rapid pulse, heat, attempt to get up. Hallucinations. Fidgety. Stupor, with weakness as if he had no life in him. Unable to concentrate thoughts, absent-minded, thoughts wander from one subject to another, but all are silly and nonsensical. Memory lost. Unconsciousness. Carphology, suspicious glancing beneath the bed-clothes and behind the back, incessant activity, the whole room was upset, flow of disconnected sentences, memory of things that happened years ago, an air of fun and humor, symptoms of childishness rather than of violence, imagined it was dark, afterwards unconsciousness of what had occurred.

Head.—Inability to hold it up. Aching; over eyes, in forehead and temples; over l. eye. Dulness as after interrupted sleep. Heaviness. Strange feeling. Vertigo; on rising up or walking, the legs seem unable to bear the body, staggering, but can walk straight by concentrating mind on the action and watching steps, inclination to fall backward, < ascending stairs, almost impossible to stand with eyes shut, constantly swaying backward and forward, obliged to be held by another when eyes are closed.

Eyes.—Pain; when reading, could read better and print looked blacker at double the usual distance, eyes feel tired, sharp pain in upper part of ball, afterwards paralysis of accommodation, could not bear to read at any distance, could not look at food when eating on account of pain. Hot and tired; hot and dry, also face, lids oedematous. Cool feeling; in evening. Lachrymation. Pupils dilated; irregularly, apparently in segments; ovoid, afterwards nearly round; dilatation grows less as paralysis of accommodation increases; pupil vertically ovoid and irregular, in response to change of light and shadow the least dilated parts show the most movement, at ten minutes it is firmly contracted everywhere, except at temporal side, and is irregularly round, at twelve minutes it is contracted evenly all around, sees horizontal lines best.

Disc very red, small vessels of disc visible, larger vessels enlarged and tortuous, outline of disc indistinct, retinal veins dilated, arteries diminished, whole fundus hyperemic, accommodation paralyzed, could not read Jager No. 1 at any distance, but with + 36 could read it at twelve inches, any change in distance causing blur. Smarting sharp pain in upper part of ball. On looking up from book pain in upper part of balls and in forehead similar to sick headache, and eyes feel large and protruding. Lids agglutinated in morning. Palpebral orifices contracted all day.

Photophobia. Things seem elevated. Letters ran together in evening when reading. Vision misty for near objects. Accommodation paralyzed; soon and before the pupil was fully dilated and continued when it had regained its normal size; cannot read at any distance, can read with + 20 glasses. Cannot make out print within two feet of me, print shows blue, orange and reddish-brown, can see to read with + 20 glasses, but glass strained the eyes.

Clinical.—Neuro-retinitis. Exophthalmic goitre.

Ears, Nose and Face.—Earache in morning. L. ear felt as if water were in it, a dull feeling. Sudden ringing in ears, < r. Nose stopped; and dry. Dark flush on face. Smarting sharp pain down r. side of face.

Mouth.—Dryness; and of tongue; and throat, > lemon-juice; of M. and throat in afternoon, < lips, temporarily > water, constantly thirsty for large quantities frequently repeated; of M., throat and tongue, with stickiness, but not much desire for water. Taste bad; bitter.

Throat.—Patches of partially translucent, adherent, yellowish-white mucus in pharynx. Pain as from a splinter in l. side on swallowing, < empty S. Dryness; < back part; with burning and cough; without much thirst; pharynx dry and hyperæmic, purple-red, capillaries much engorged, here and there varicosities, follicles very prominent and configuration of spinal column readily distinguishable, a picture of pharyngitis sicca.

Stomach.—Appetite lost. Nausea; all the afternoon. Deadly, gone feeling all afternoon, as if at greater curvature, not > eating or drinking. Sick feeling, general faintness, < epigastric region, head light as if intoxicated, face feels warm but is not flushed, mouth and throat dry, saliva scanty and viscid, giddiness on walking, it seemed as if I could not control all parts of body at the same time, pain in forehead, pulse 52, full, occasionally at rate of 80 for a few beats.

Urinary Organs.—Burning in urethra during micturition. Urine increased.

Respiratory Organs.—Epiglottis hyperæmic, < vicinity of glosso-epiglottidean folds, membrane lining larynx engorged, dry, with patches of viscid, semi-transparent, adherent mucus, appearing like a pseudo-membrane, the hyperæmia < along course of ary-epiglottidean folds, the membrane covering cartilages of Wrisberg, the capitula Santorini and the interarytenoidal commissure, in the last-mentioned localities the most of the dry, translucent discharge was seen, vocal cords congested, < near posterior commissure, mucus adherent to their free borders, forming narrow bands that stretched from side to side when the cords were widely separated in deep inspiration. Hoarseness; and phonation difficult, constant desire to clear throat, generally unsuccessful; voice husky and indistinct.

Cough increased (have always had a C., but not so severe as this), next morning hard, dry, hacking, from tickling at bifurcation of trachea, cough causes soreness or rawness over lungs, < lower lobe of l. and upper lobe of r.

Pulse.—Rapid; varied from 108 to 112, but always fell to 80 when the patient was supported in a sitting posture and increased again on reclining. Slow. Intermittent; and feeble. Strong, full, regular.

Extremities.—Heaviness, < lower. Weakness of arms and legs. Jerking of muscles of arm on extending hand to grasp anything. R. hands and fingers feel as if going to sleep. Gait unsteady, occasionally feeling as if I stepped on empty space, and I would catch myself for fear of falling. R. knee sore below patella, as if strained or rheumatic. Lower limbs tingle as if asleep.

Sleep and Fever.—Gaping and sneezing all day. Drowsiness. Night restless, could not get to sleep for hours, had to get up for water every five minutes. Chilliness. Heat; < internally.

Dulcamara.

A tincture is made of the fresh plant, before flowering, of Solanum Dulcamara, L.

General Action.—The most prominent effects are those of cough, of muscular rheumatism and of urticaria. Its resemblance to other Solanaceæ is slight, but marked. Its adaptability to conditions arising from cold-wet is very pronounced.

Allics.—Bry., Merc., Caust., Hyos.; also Rhus tox. and Nux mos.

Generalities.—Emaciation. Spasms; of facial muscles, then of whole body. Twitchings of tendons; T. of hands, lips and eyelids, < cold weather and dampness, > approach to the fire; sudden T. through whole body, seemingly from pains in abdomen, with piteous cries, then muttering. Trembling. Sticking here and there, < outward; itching pinching S. Pain as if the body would be cut off above hips, obliging him to move back and forth, but without relief. Pains in various parts as after taking cold. Restless; and could hardly be held, scratched his father. Sinking sensation, as if she would sink through the bed, she must get up at night and walk about. Weariness; in sudden attacks, like faintness. Necessity to lie down. Almost immovable. Aggravation towards evening; from wet-cold (Rhus tox., Nux mos.).

Clinical.—Very valuable for chronic muscular rheumatism, < cold weather, especially in cold wet weather (Rhus t.).

Mind.—Screaming as in hydrocephalus. Wakes early as if called and sees a ghost, which keeps enlarging till it disappears in an upward direction. Agitation. Picking in the air and at his clothes (Hyosc.). Quarrelsome in afternoon, but not vexed thereby. Restless. Ill-humored and not inclined to anything. Anxious after midnight and fearful for the future. Noticed none of his surroundings and heard nothing when spoken to. Coma.

Head.—Stitches, so that she became angry about them, < evening, > lying. Boring outward before midnight. Aching; in morning in bed, < rising; with indolence, general coldness and nausea; causing stupidity; < evening, with increasing coryza; drawing pain through brain, < evening; pressing-out towards evening on walking in open air. Pressure internally in spots as with a dull instrument. Dulness in evening; D., with painful stupefaction; with drawings in frontal eminences; as after intoxication, > open air. Heaviness; with boring outward in temples and forehead, as after a debauch; as if scalp were tense, < nape, where it became a crawling. Vertigo; in morning on rising, with trembling and weakness (Bry., Lyc.); in morning on waking, with heat of head and with obscuration of vision, which changed to flickering of black spots; at noon, when walking before eating, all objects in front of him seemed to stand still, and it became black before the eyes; with rising warmth in face.

Forehead.—Sticking deep in brain, with nausea. Boring outward above r. brow; B. outward alternately in F. and temples. Burrowing and pressure; B. deep in, in morning in bed, < rising, with gloominess and distended feeling in brain. Pain in l. frontal eminence; pressing-out P. in l. eminence in evening; jerklike pressing outward, < motion; tensive; above r. eye; in F. and root of nose, as from a board in front of head. Painful throbbing in l., with vertigo. Drawing in l. eminence, < stooping; pressive D. in l. eminence; jerking, from eminences down to tip of nose. Heaviness; with sticking outward in temples.

Intermittent tearing in temples; l. Boring in r. temple. Drawings in temples, extending into head; pressive D. in l. temple in afternoon. Pressure as with a dull instrument, now in r., now in l. temple. Tearing pressing together in vertex. Drawing pain on vertex in evening when eating, extending to nasal bones, where it is a constriction. Paroxysmal pressure inward on l. vertex as with a dull instrument. Stupefying pain in l. vertex; above l. ear, as if something blunt were pressed into head. Sticking in occiput. Pain in occiput in evening in bed; P. in l. bone. Occiput feels enlarged. Heaviness in occiput.

Clinical.—Headaches during cold wet weather, heaviness of head, flickering before eyes, nausea, etc., < motion, etc. Scald head, thick brown crusts, bleeding when scratched, < cold wet weather.

Eyes.—Inflammation. Wide open, moist, glistening. Pressure, < reading. Feeling as if they would be pressed out of their orbits. Feeling as if fire darted out of them when walking in the sun, and in the room. Dryness and tension. Pupils dilated; and contracted alternately. Paralysis of upper lid. Contractive pain in border of orbit. Vision dim. V. of sparks.

Ears.—Sticking in meatus and parotid gland; pinching S. in l. ear, extending towards drum. Tearing in l., with sticking outward, drumming and bubbling so that he could not hear distinctly and on opening mouth cracking as if something snapped asunder. Twinging in l., with nausea; T. in r., with sticking. Prickling as if cold air were in them. Aching all night, preventing sleep, > suddenly in morning, except a rushing noise. Drawing in external meatus. Ringing.

Clinical.—Inflammation of middle ear, with injection of the drum, caused by exposure to cold rain, several cases.

Nose.—Pimple in inner side of l. wing, with ulcerative pain. Dryness in evening. Sneezing. Stopped coryza, with confusion of head and sneezing. Bleeding of bright red, very warm blood, with pressure in region of longitudinal sinus, which continued after the B.

Clinical.—Catarrhal troubles in cold, wet weather, with free secretion of mucus.

Face.—Puffy, hot; P., anxious, distorted. Tearing in cheek, with drawing. Cramplike contraction beneath l. ear, extending to ramus of lower jaw. Painless pressure upon l. malar-bone. Trismus. Pinching in lower part of chin.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia caused by going out in the wet or < slightest exposure to cold.

Mouth.—Teeth dull and seem insensible. Gums loose and spongy. Tongue white; itching crawling on tip of T.; T. could not be protruded; swollen, stiff, paralyzed, and inability to articulate; paralyzed. Stammering, as if delirious or intoxicated. Articulation indistinct. Loss of speech; then rattling respiration, cramps, tetanic stiffness and death. Constant grasping at M. as if he would take something out of it, with constant spitting about. Pimples and ulcers on inside of upper lip and on anterior part of palate, with tearing on moving the parts. Dryness. Tenacious and soaplike saliva.

Clinical.—It has been found useful in the salivation of Mercury, which is notably worse in damp weather. It is reported to have cured gangrene of the mouth, with great swelling. Other forms of sore mouth, great swelling of mucous membrane, raw spots, heavily-coated tongue, great flow of saliva of putrid odor.

Throat.—Constant hawking of tough mucus, with scraping in pharynx. Pressure as if uvula were too long. Dryness in evening. Heat in pharynx. Inability to swallow.

Stomach.—Aversion to food, with shivering as if he would vomit. A., with hunger. Soon satiated when eating, with fulness and with rumbling in abdomen. Thirst but drink was immediately vomited; unquenchable T. Eructations; with hicough; with scraping in oesophagus and heartburn; empty; empty, with shuddering as from nausea; of the soup when eating. Waterbrash. Nausea; with chilliness; with inability to bring anything up. Retching; ineffectual. Vomiting; of mucus in morning, preceded by warm uprisings in pharynx; of mucus, then of a thick, blackish-green liquid; of tenacious mucus. Distended feeling in pit, with emptiness in abdomen. Sticking in pit; l. side of pit. Gripping, taking away the breath; G. in epigastrium in evening in bed till falling asleep. Pain in pit as from a thrust, < pressure. Tensive pain in r. side of pit, as if strained. Pressure extending into chest.

Abdomen.—Distention; after a moderate meal; when eating, with repeated gripping. Rumbling; with urging to stool; with pain in l. groin and coldness in back; with pain in small of back. Emission of much flatus; F. of the odor of asafetida. Pinching as before diarrhoea. Gripping, even in morning fasting, with cutting and distention; G. here and there, with jerking cutting; in A. and chest, with cutting, as from incarcerated flatus; as if a long worm were crawling up and down, with gnawing and pinching. Burrowing, with gripping, cutting and moving, as before diarrhoea. Colic; with rumbling before and after stool; as after taking cold; as before diarrhoea; as before stool, with rumbling and pain in small of back; as after a purge, moving about, always on stooping; like inclination to diarrhoea, > emitting flatus. Uneasiness, with distended feeling and frequent empty eructations. Emptiness.

Umbilicus.—Sticking in region; on l. side near, in evening; gripping S. on r. side. Pinching in region as if he should go to stool, but without urging; P. in region and above l. hip, > hard, scanty, difficult stool and emission of flatus. Gripping below U. when sitting bent; G. in a spot to l. above U. Gnawing throbbing above U. Twisting in region, with burrowing and griping (Diosc.). Forcing-out pain, as if a hernia would occur on l. side beneath U.

Sticking in r. side beneath ribs, arresting breathing; S. outward in a spot in l. side, arresting breathing, with sensation as if something would force itself out and pain on pressure; intermittent S. in l., > pressure. Sudden cutting contraction in l. side. Inguinal glands swollen and hard; l. inguinal gland S. Griping in hypogastrium in evening, with desire for stool. Burrowing above crest of l. ilium, > pressure. Pain now in l. inguinal glands, now in r. Tension in groin, in region of pubis on rising from a seat. Burning in the bubo on motion and touch, with sticking.

Rectum.—Pressing during the usual stool. Desire for stool in evening, with griping in hypogastrium, then a large, moist, at last thin, sour stool, after which he was relieved but felt weak, he had a hard, difficult stool in afternoon. Urging, then small hard stool; sudden U., then after some time hard sluggish stool, with pressure and griping and cutting here and there in abdomen; U., with griping, yet passes but little, with pressure; ineffectual U. all day, with nausea.

Stool.—Yellow watery diarrhœa, with tearing cutting before stool as after taking cold (Hyoas., Rhus t., Thuja). Thin, afternoons, with flatulence. Soft; in small pieces. Infrequent, sluggish, hard, difficult. Suppressed.

Clinical.—Diarrhœa always < cold; wet weather, stools mucous, green or changeable, of sour odor, with general dry heat of skin.

Urinary Organs.—Catarrh of bladder. Pulsating (stitches?) outward in urethra. Burning in meatus urinarius when urinating. Involuntary micturition.

Clinical.—Involuntary discharge of urine, paralysis of neck of bladder. Catarrh of the bladder, the result of taking cold. Inflammation of kidneys, with suppressed urine, caused by working in water.

Sexual Organs.—Heat in female, pruritis; also desire.

Respiratory Organs.—Cough, with expectoration of tenacious mucus and sticking in sides of chest (Dros.); hacking C. as from deep inspiration. Respiration rapid.

Clinical.—Cough < cold, wet weather, sometimes dry, but more frequently with very free expectoration, caused by constant tickling in larynx, the expectoration is tough and greenish, or the cough is dry and hoarse, or even spasmodic, like whooping cough (Dros.). Very frequently useful in bronchial catarrh, with free greenish expectoration. It is a valuable remedy for the cough of old people, < change of weather to cold and wet.

Chest.—Sticking on sternum; S. in l., in region of fifth and sixth ribs; in r., in region of third rib on pressure, extending into small of back and to between shoulders, and on inspiration sticking on margin of l. scapula; suddenly coming and going in r.; pulsating, beneath l. short ribs when sitting; intermittent, in l.; stupefying, beneath r. clavicle, extending into chest; on sternum, like a thrust. Sticking tearing from middle of sternum to spine when sitting. Thrusts beneath axilla; intermittent T. on l. side above ensiform cartilage, extending deep into chest, when sitting bent and afterwards when upright. Cutting and pinching as from incarcerated flatus; deeply C. pain beneath l. clavicle, > pressure. Pinching, < inspiration. Digging in r., > pressure; D. or strained sensation. Intermittent pressure beneath sternum. Oppression; < breathing; as after sitting bent. Intermittent squeezing in a spot beneath upper part of sternum. Drawing externally over forepart, with tension; D. beneath sternum, with jerking; intermittent surging, tearing D. through l. Tension on deep breathing. Feeling as if something would be forced out of l.

Clinical.—Suppression of milk caused by taking cold.

Heart and Pulse.—Excitement of H. Palpitation, < night; P. as if he felt the heart beating outside of the chest. Pulse rapid; and irregular; and small; P. slow, intermittent; small and hard in evening.

Neck.—Pain in nape as if head had been lying in an uncomfortable position; drawing P. in r. cervical muscles; constrictive, in muscles of nape as if the neck would be twisted; stupefying, in nape rising to occiput; in muscles of nape as from stiffness, on turning head to one side. Stiffness of muscles of nape (Causl., Rhus t., Lith.).

Back.—Sticking in middle of spine on breathing; tickling, in middle of r. scapula; intermittent throbbing, in l. side near spine. Intermittent tearing thrusts on outer side of r. scapula. Drawing tearing on external margin of r. scapula. Intermittent pressure on l. side of spine near nape, when lying on back in morning. Pain in small of B. as after long stooping (Bry.). Sticking outward above l. hip on every inspiration; S. outward in loins on every inspiration when sitting bent after a short walk; burrowing S. on l. side near sacrum; burrowing, in l. loin, > walking, returning when sitting; jerklike, above r. hip, near spine. Cutting deep in loin, transiently > pressure (Bry.). Bruised pain above l. hip close to spine.

Clinical.—Lameness of the small of the back, or stiffness and lameness across the neck and shoulders, or severe drawing pains in muscles of the back, with fever, after getting wet or cold (myelitis).

Extremities.—Trembling. Shooting in l. toes and thumb. Drawing tearing in r. shoulder, above r. hip-joint and above and below r. knee. Pain; cramplike, here and there, < fingers. Bruised sensation. Weakness and heaviness. Heaviness of arms and thighs. Sudden numbness in evening, with pains in knees and elbows, increasing so that he could hardly move his limbs.

Nose, Face and Mouth.—Stiffness of nose. Coryza. Lower lip sore. Sore pain in upper incisors. Raw feeling in tongue. Increased secretion of mucus and saliva.

Clinical.—Cures chronic catarrh of nasal passages and acute coryzas.

Throat.—Posterior nares inflamed and smarting, thick, whitish discharge on hawking, frequent violent sneezing. Fulness and soreness on swallowing, and burning. Sensation of phlegm in afternoon, with expectoration of thick, white, frothy mucus and a relaxed, aphthous condition. Tickling, smarting, incessant hacking cough in evening, weak feeling in chest, expectoration scanty, transparent, mucous.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; lost. Thirst; during the fever. Eructations tasting of the drug; and burning; smelling of the drug. Digestion difficult and painful. Fulness as if he had eaten or drunk too much; F., with pressure. Weight. Tenderness and burning in S. and abdomen, with heat in rectum, then tenesmus, with discharge of mucus and prostration, purging and hæmorrhage from bowels. Burning; after dinner; in epigastric and umbilical regions, with thirst, faintness, vertigo, dimness of vision, fulness of head, frontal pain and tightness across bridge of nose as before epistaxis. Faintness after dinner, with beating sensation in abdominal aorta synchronous with heart, lasting all the afternoon and next forenoon.

Abdomen.—Burning, and in sternum. Sharp pains running through A., < morning, with thin diarrhœa; S. pain in hypogastric region after dinner; in hypogastrum in morning on getting up, with yellow watery diarrhœa. Sticking in spleen and l. inguinal region. Uneasiness in umbilical region, extending farther, with skirrmishing pains in upper A., feeling as before diarrhœa.

Stool, Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Ineffectual urging to stool. Diarrhœa smelling of the drug. Irregular S. Insufficient S. Urine has a herbaceous smell; of violets. Urea increased. Urine diminished, none at night, which had not occurred for years. Sexual appetite increased.

Clinical.—Subacute cystitis.

Respiratory Organs, Heart and Pulse.—Sore pain in trachea and posterior nares during empty swallowing. Asthmatic, with crampy feeling in chest and back. Breathing quickened in fever. Painful palpitation. Rapid pulse.

Clinical.—Whooping cough. Gangrene of lungs. Bronchitis, with profuse expectoration.

Extremities.—Pricking, then aching in arms and legs, with fulness in veins and a stiff, weary sensation as if too lazy to move. Tingling in lower, as if asleep. Heels sore as from too much walking. Sticking in l. sole, near great toe.

Skin.—Swellings in different parts, one of the size of a filbert-nut below r. nipple was the seat of stabbing and darting pains; nodular S. over metacarpal and metatarsal joints. Eruptions. Herpes; and glandular enlargements, foul and indolent ulcers.

Sleep.—Sleepiness during the day, difficulty in falling asleep, sleepiness in morning as if he had not slept at all; S. (in anæmic subjects); S. and dulness. Sleeplessness.

Fever.—Temperature lowered. Chills running down back; and posterior sides of legs. Cold fingers; tips. Fever; seemed to have rheumatic; in flushes, also with sudden sweat. Burning in palms. Sweat at night; towards morning. Sweat odorous; of trimethylamine.

Clinical.—It has been prescribed in fevers, intermittent, typhoid and remittent, but without marked indications. It steadily reduced the pulse and temperature in typhoid.

Euonymus Europæus.

A tincture is made of the fresh fruit of Euonymus Europæus, L.

General Action.—Evonymin, obtained from the bark, of E. atro-purpureus has a positive action on the liver, increasing the secretion of bile. It is to be compared with Berberis, Chelidoni., Podo., etc.

Generalities and Mind.—Sticking in various parts. Sticking drawing in all parts, < back. Symptoms oblige lying down, and then disappear, but reappear in other parts. Aggravation of symptoms of head, chest and abdomen after a meal. Most troubles appear on l. side. Morose. Disinclined to work. Loss of ideas; on exerting the mind and ill humor thereat.

Head.—Aching, with chilliness. Deep stitches, now low down in r. side of occiput, then in l. frontal eminence, now in r. temple, then in r. parietal bone, now in l., then in r. temporal bone, as far as mastoid process. Vertigo, < forehead, < sitting; V., with tremulous mist before eyes. Frontal headache; intermittent, between eyes; drawing. Penumbing pressure above r. orbit. Painful drawing from l. side of frontal bone to malar-bone. Tension of skin of forehead, at times a convulsive drawing back and forth. Pain in temples; in l. bone. Pressure on r. temporal bone. Stitches now in r. side, now in l., now in both. Feeling as if a nail were pressing into r. side near vertex.

Eyes and Ears.—Eyes painful. Pressure in eye, external pressure; P. upon brows, when most violent the balls seem compressed and are painful. Vision obscured; V. of dark spots. Roaring in ears.

Face and Mouth.—Stitches in l. malar-bone; intermittent, beneath r. zygoma. Tearing in face; l. side of face, < frontal bone. Pain in malar-bone; drawing in face; paralytic, in r. malar-bone. Painful pressure on lower margin of l. malar-bone. Drawing from malar-bone to lower jaw. Tearing in teeth; r. Cutting in tongue; in muscle under tongue.

Stomach.—Nausea. Vomiting and diarrhœa. Stitches in pit; near pit, now r., now l. side.

Abdomen.—Cutting; in morning in bed, with constriction, as if A. would be cut off under the ribs. Acute pain, at one time seeming like a pressure upward of the diaphragm, at one time like constriction, at another like sticking, again a drawing about in the intestines as from flatus; frightful pain, profuse diarrhœa, then collapse, with involuntary evacuations of blood and mucus, on lifting him up tetanic convulsions, which immediately preceded death. Stitches beneath l. last ribs after eating; S. beneath navel. Pain in umbilical region; during and after eating; above navel, near pit of stomach. Stitches in middle of r. side of lower A.; in l. half of lower A. on inspiration.

Clinical.—A very efficient remedy for engorgement of liver, so-called biliousness, headache, coated tongue, bad taste, constipation. Passive congestion of liver. Constipation with hemorrhoids, also with severe pain in back like lumbago. Diarrhœa, stool variable in color, generally very profuse. It has been found useful for gastric derangements associated with albuminuria, especially for headache and weakness or vertigo and obscuration of sight (Lyc., Sulph.).

Sexual Organs.—Cutting in penis; extending to bladder.

Respiratory Organs.—Sighing.

Chest.—Electric-like shocks towards l. side. Stitches near ensiform cartilage; above r. nipple; below or on last r. true ribs, and difficult respiration with every stitch; shattering benumbing, in region of l. nipple. Burrowing beneath sternum without actual embarrassment of respiration; B. in l. side, now beneath scapula, and near spine, now beneath arm, now beneath nipple, manifesting itself by thrusts, stitches and pressure. Pain in l. side on a line with ensiform cartilage; P. < inspiration, > expiration. Sore and bruised sensation. Painful drawing in region of l. nipple in evening before going to bed. Fulness obliging deep breathing. Tension in sternum. Compression in whole circumference of l. side, with special pain in region of l. nipple and beneath l. scapula; benumbing C. beneath l. nipple.

Heart.—Anxiety like an internal pressure, affecting even the spirits.

Back.—Stitches in first lumbar vertebra; near l. side of spine, about the middle of the body; frequent, like electric shocks in a zigzag along spine from lumbar to scapular region. Crawling, biting, itching, or paralytic pain in l. side of posterior circumference of pelvis.

Extremities.—Tearing in shoulders; l. shoulder-joint. Pain in l. humerus and shoulder-joint; in fingers; paralytic here and there in fingers; drawing, in finger-joints. Painful drawing in metacarpal joint of l. index. Sticking now in both hips, now alternating between them. Drawing pain in thighs. Intermittent drawing in upper part of l. thigh, beneath joint. Pain in forepart of knee; paralytic, in knees from walking, < standing. Paralytic drawing on inner side of r. leg when standing. Pain (pressure and sticking) beneath l. outer malleolus, < anteriorly, along outer side of foot, with soreness and pain in bed. Pain in feet; in toes.

Skin.—Pustules (reddish spots) on chest and back, without moisture. Fornication on l. cheek; up and down l. half of back. Biting, itching, crawling in various parts, obliging scratching, followed by burning.

Fever.—Shivering chill over whole body.

Eupatorium Aromaticum.

A tincture of the fresh root is used.

Clinical.—Great soreness of the mouth in an infant. Vomiting of bile, pain in stomach, headache and fever.

Eupatorium Perfoliatum.

A tincture of the entire fresh plant is used.

Allies.—Bry., Ars.; and probably Carduus ben.

Generalities and Head.—Soreness in bones. Bruised feeling in every bone, preventing lying in bed and causing despair, moaning and crying out. Inability to lie on l. side. Aggravation in the morning of one day and in the afternoon of the next. Headache, < first going into the open air, < the house and by conversation, with internal soreness. Whirling around in brain in morning, as if placed in a coal screen and whirled around two or three times, soon repeated. Pain in forehead, extending to occiput, < l. side. Darting through temples, with sensation of blood rushing across head.

Clinical.—Periodical headaches, especially in occiput, throbbing, sensation of great soreness of eyeballs, soreness of scalp, etc.

Eyes, Nose and Face.—Eyeballs sore (Bap.). Increased lachrymation. Redness of margins of lids, with glutinous secretion from Meibomian glands. Dim vision on looking at small things. Nose dry and stopped. Redness of face; of cheeks, with dryness of skin.

Clinical.—Violent coryza or influenza, with thirst, heaviness over head, bone-pains, soreness of eyeballs, etc.

Mouth and Throat.—Tongue coated white (Bry.). Mucous membrane of mouth pale. Insipid taste. Throat dry.

Stomach.—Desire for ice-cream. Loss of appetite. Thirst for cold water (Bry.); T. for something cold at night. Belching of tasteless wind, with feeling of obstruction at pit of S. Nausea; from odors, the smell of cooking, etc.; with vomiting, free perspiration and copious expectoration. Retching and vomiting of bile. Vomiting preceded by thirst (Ars.); V. after every draught (Ars.); of food. Feeling as if something ought to come up without ability to raise it. Fulness. S. seemed contracted from side to side. Heat. Beating in epigastrium at night.

Abdomen.—Tight clothing is oppressive. Tightness in l. hypochondrium. Soreness in liver region, with fulness.

Stool and Urine.—Diarrhoea in morning. Purging, with smarting and heat in anus. Four or five watery stools in a day. Loose scanty stool, with tenesmus. Urine dark, dear. Scanty urine; and high-colored. Urine copious, limpid.

Respiratory Organs.—Cough, with soreness and heat in bronchi; C., < evening; hacking, in evening.

Clinical.—Inflammation of larynx, with soreness and hoarseness, soreness extending into the bronchi and trachea, usually with bone-pain and soreness of the chest generally. The cough is generally < lying on back, > lying on face; cough hurts the head and chest, the patient holds the chest with the hands (Dros.); generally there is no expectoration, or at least very little.

Chest.—Aching under l. breast; behind sternum, with soreness, weight, inability to inspire naturally or twist the body to r. or l. because of the soreness, he feels best when lying on the back with his arms down and legs straight, but inability to move to r. or l., inability to twist the body when standing, sitting or lying. Soreness on a full inspiration; S. from coughing, > going down on his knees. Grating sensation on very deep inspiration.

Heart.—Pressure as if in too small a place.

Neck and Back.—Beating pain in nape; > rising, and in occiput. Bruised pain in back. Trembling in back during fever. Pain and soreness in small of B. as if beaten; deep-seated P. in loins, with soreness from touch. Weakness of small of B.

Extremities.—Aching in bones, with soreness of flesh. Soreness and aching in arms and forearms; above and below elbows, as if beaten. Painful soreness of wrists as if broken or dislocated. Stiffness of arms; of fingers, with obtuseness of touch; of lower limbs on rising to walk, with soreness. Soreness of lower limbs, with aching. Pain in r. hip when sitting; P. in l. gluteal muscles, passing round in front of trochanter major, with sensitiveness. Calves feel as if they had been beaten. Pricking in soles. Pain in upper part of l. foot, with soreness and with increased sensitiveness of l. great toe, the pain in foot < standing upon it. Pain in first joint of great toe, l., then suddenly moving to r.

Fever.—Intermittent, quotidian, tertian and quar-

tan. The paroxysm usually begins in the morning, thirst several hours before the chill, continuing during chill and heat; C. in morning, heat through the day, but no sweat; C. through the night and in the morning, with nausea from the least motion; C., with nausea and trembling; C. alternating with flashes of heat. General shuddering proceeding from the stomach. Pungent heat at night, with sweat. Heat on vertex, with pain which is > by pressure; H. of soles in morning. Sweat at night, with chilliness from motion or uncovering.

Clinical.—The characteristic fever, intermittent fever, for which this drug should be prescribed, has thirst beginning before the chill and continuing during both chill and heat; it is extremely important to observe that vomiting is particularly apt to result from drinking or taking any nourishment, either before or after the chill and fever; this vomiting from taking water is much more characteristic of the drug than the bone-pains, especially the vomiting of bile as the chill passes off; the violent bone-pains, the violent headache, pain and soreness of the muscles, are the universal accompaniments of the intermittent fever; the patient feels as if all the bones were breaking; it is very frequently observed that these Eupatorium cases present an incomplete paroxysm, for the chill and fever are well marked, and perhaps violent, and yet the sweat is entirely wanting; while this is usually the case, it is true that the drug cures cases in which there is a decided sweating stage. Valuable for catarrhal fevers, especially if there is bilious vomiting, with soreness of the chest and muscles and bone-pains, running from eyes and nose, soreness of the eyeballs, soreness of head, etc.

Eupatorium Purpureum.

A tincture of the fresh root is used.

Allies.—Eupt. perf., Apocyn. c.

Generalities and Mind.—Neuralgia from below upward, < up l. side of back and hip. Rheumatic pain changing about always from below upward. Tired feeling; in every organ. Faintness; with the urinary symptoms; after rising, with sickness. Numbness, < in groin. Aggravation on l. side of body. Delusions; of sight and hearing. Talkative, exclamations. Depression. Homesickness though at home and surrounded by her own family. Fear of sickness.

Head.—Heavy pain, < forehead. Feeling as in a bad cold. Lightness, < morning, > at 12 o'clock; L., with sensation as if falling to the left. Sensation as if moving in all directions. Vertigo, with sensation of falling to left; V., with deep dull pain through l. temple; in which the whole body seemed to participate; as if flying round and round. Fulness in vertex, with pressing as if lifting up from adjoining parts, confusion and heaviness. Thumping pain on l. side of occipital bone. Soreness of scalp. Pleasant pricking in scalp. Itching of scalp.

Eyes and Ears.—Eyes wide open and fixed. Lachrymation. Inability to see as far as usual. Ears feel full. Reports in E. Squeaking in E. Cracking in E. like the burning of birch bark, < swallowing anything.

Nose and Face.—Copious watery discharge from nose. Constant discharge from a sore, from continued wiping of nose. Face shining as from washing with much soap. Congestion of face. Rush of blood to F. Redness, dryness and internal and external heat of F. Heat of F.

Mouth and Throat.—Gums red and hot. Stinging in end of tongue. Prickling in posterior part of tongue. Numbness of tongue as from Aconite. Salivation. Sensation in throat as after swallowing tobacco. Scalded feeling in throat. Smarting in posterior part of T.; < posterior part, with burning. Soreness of T. Roughness and dryness in T. Fulness in T., can hardly prevent crying; F., with choking, compelling frequent swallowing. Fluttering in pit of T.

Stomach.—Eructations. Nausea. Swelling, < l. side, with fulness. Crampy pain. Gripping, crampy pain in pit. Gnawing.

Abdomen.—As hard as a rock. Rumbling. Fulness; with pain. Crampy, windy. Twisting pain. Pain in the whole; < l. side, with soreness; deep in ossa innominata; as in diarrhœa, without much alteration in stools.

Rectum.—Pressure all day. Ineffectual urging to stool.

Urinary Organs.—Cutting in bladder, with pressure and fulness. Pain in bladder. Smarting in bladder and urethra, with burning, so that she could not stand. Feeling of continual micturition. Constant urging to urinate, with cutting in bladder, frequent and copious micturition, the stream smaller than usual. Frequent micturition, 58 ozs. in twelve hours, once with an aromatic odor, pale, containing a white flocculent mucus, in the next twelve hours greater urging and more frequent micturition, but less urine, the next day almost constant urging but urine scanty, one-half to two ounces at each evacuation, of higher color, during the three days occasional spasmodic action of bladder. Cutting in urethra. Smarting in urethra during micturition; burning S. in U. Smarting burning in urethra during micturition. Feeling of having retained the urine long. Heavy pain in urethra.

Clinical.—It has been recommended for chronic or subacute inflammation of the bladder with dysuria, and in intermittent fever when dysuria is a prominent symptom, with constant desire to urinate, with aching in kidneys and bladder.

Sexual Organs.—Constant wet feeling externally. Jerking in and above l. ovary. Cutting two inches above l. ovary. Heavy pressure during the day above l. ovary. Leucorrhœa leaving no stain.

Respiratory Organs, Heart and Pulse.—Frequent sighing. Desire to inflate the lungs, which she did from time to time without particularly noticing that she did it. Heart and throat fluttering. Palpitation. Pulse from 80 to 100, full and bounding.

Neck and Back.—Stiff, wry neck. Lame feeling in nape; in neck, with weak feeling. Sore pain in the whole extent of the spine, from below upward. Aching in sacrum running into kidneys; deep in l. kidney; deep in kidneys, with cutting.

Clinical.—The severe pain in the back noticed in this drug sometimes seems to indicate its use for chronic or subacute inflammation of the kidneys, especially from taking cold, with suppression of urine or with more or less difficulty in urinating.

Extremities.—Gnawing pain. Weakness, with uneasiness. Cutting in l. shoulder, running to occiput. Gnawing in hip-bone. Weakness of legs, < l., with numbness of r. Feet feel as after a long walk, and as if the heels were crowding through the boots.

Clinical.—It has been used for sciatica, severe pain in the course of the l. sciatic nerve. It has also been used for rheumatism of old people, with soreness of bones, swelling of ankles, etc. It has been found useful in dropsy during Bright's disease, with œdematous swelling, scanty urine, cold extremities, etc.

Sleep.—Yawning. Sleepiness; with dullness, it requires a great effort to move about. Wakefulness, with staring eyes.

Fever.—Clinical.—In intermittent fever it has generally been found curative when the chill begins in the small of the back and spreads over the body. This drug, as well as Eup. perfoliatum, seems to remove the bone-pains; the other symptoms of the two remedies seem also to be similar; whether there is a marked difference in the drugs it is for future experiments to determine.

Euphorbium.

A tincture of the gum-resin of some African species is used.

General Action.—All the species of Euphorbia have an acrid, milky, juice which seems to exert a pretty constant effect; namely, most violent vomiting and purging, or if the dust of the gum be inhaled most violent irritation and inflammation of the mucous membrane of the air-passages. The juice of some species even produces vesication, like croton oil. Numerous subjective symptoms have been developed by Hahnemann's provings. See the skin symptoms and compare Anacard. and Rhus tox.

Generalities and Mind.—Starting as from an electric shock at night when awake. Relaxed and tired in the whole body. Faintness. Anxiety; as if he had taken poison. Apprehension. Quiet and earnest; Q., reflective, seeking quiet, inclined to work. Dull, listless and feeling not at all like work.

Head.—Sticking, < forehead. Pain; as if it would be pressed asunder; as from a disordered stomach. Screwed-in sensation in brain and zygomata, with toothache. Tension, < forehead and cervical muscles. Vertigo, even to falling to the left, when walking in open air; V. when standing, everything turned about and he threatened to fall to the right. Sticking in l. side of forehead. Vertiginous tearing in l. side of F. on moving head. Frontal pain; r. side; above l. orbit; externally above l. eye, with lachrymation and inability to open eye on account of pain; stupefying. Stupefying pain in forehead of r. side of head, extending into forehead. Sticking externally in temples; S. beneath r. parietal bone. Pressure in l. half of brain; P. in occiput. Bruised pain in l. occiput, preventing lying upon it.

Eyes.—Sticking extending into inner part. Biting, with lachrymation. Aching; as from sand. Heat and smarting. Glutinous sensation in r. Gush of tears on raising lid, which was difficult. Pupils dilated. White of eye pale red and puffy, cornea dim, pupils small, drawn upward, insensible, the inner vascular zone dark brownish-red, vision prevented by photophobia and lachrymation. Swelling of lids, with tearing above brows on opening eyes. Inflammation of lids and nightly agglutination. Agglutination of r. lids in morning on waking. Hardened mucus in r. external canthus. Pinching in l. external canthus. Lids dry and pressing on eyes. Heaviness of lids, irresistible closing and vertigo. Itching of l. lower lid; of l. external canthus, > rubbing. Tearing sticking in orbit, extending across brow and lid, both lids hot and swollen, the upper hanging down immovable. L. brow and temple swollen, red and hot, upper lid hanging down over lower, œdematous, immovable, eyes watery, with sticking in them and vision of sparks. Photophobia; and intolerance of noise. Vision dim and short. Double V. Everything seems too large, so that he lifts his legs too high. All objects appear in variegated colors.

Ears.—Aching in open air. Ringiny, also when sneezing. Roaring at night. Chirping in r., as of crickets.

Nose.—Fluent coryza, without sneezing. Stuffed, < r. nostril. Discharge of purulent mucus; profuse discharge of mucus, with suffocative biting, extending to frontal sinuses, so that she could draw no air through nose. Increased discharge of mucus without coryza. In l. nostril ineffectual irritation to sneeze. Sneezing; with fluent coryza and full feeling in head; frequent S., without coryza.

Clinical.—It has been prescribed for influenzas with chill, headache, watery discharge from eyes and nose, with burning and cough. The juice of some species is said to be valuable for warts; it must be applied two or three times a day.

Face.—Swelling. Pale, sickly looking. Jerklike tearings in muscles of l. cheek, almost as in toothache. Tensive pain in cheek as if swollen. Sore pain in vermilion border of lower lip as if he had bitten it.

Mouth.—Sticking in last l. upper molar; in first l. lower molar. Gnawing tearing in teeth on beginning to eat, with chilliness, headache as if shattered by the toothache and a screwed-in sensation in brain and zygomata. Pain in second l. upper molar; in last l. lower molar, > biting teeth together; in next to last l. upper molar, < touch and chewing; P. in hollow tooth as if screwed in, with jerking as if it would be torn out; pain in tooth like a boil on touching it. Tongue covered with a thick mucus. Coated tongue and almost all the concomitants of nervous erethism. Inability to speak intelligibly. Much tenacious mucus after midday sleep. A membranous pellicle peels off upper part of palate. Burning on palate. Dry sensation without thirst. Salivation; with salt taste on l. side of tongue; with nausea and shivering. Taste bitter; and foul, < back part of tongue, after beer that he had relished; T. as if mouth were covered with rancid fat; T. flat after breakfast, with white-coated tongue.

Clinical.—It has cured toothache, with throbbing pain, sensitiveness, etc.

Throat.—Profuse discharge of mucus from posterior nares. Scraping and rawness. Burning; extending to stomach, with mucus in mouth; extending to stomach, with trembling, anxiety and heat in upper part of body, nausea, flow of water from mouth and dryness of cheeks; and in stomach, as if a flame streamed out of it, with necessity to open the mouth. Inflammation of œsophagus.

Stomach.—Great hunger, with a lax stomach, hanging down and sunken abdomen. Thirst; for cold drinks. Incessant eructations; empty E. Hiccough; frequent. Nausea during the day; in morning; N., with shuddering. Vomiting; incessant, of watery fluid; with diarrhoea. Spasmodic contractions, with empty eructations. Inflammation. Gripping as if it would be compressed, then salivation and nausea; G. in l. side, with clawing, then constriction of cardiac orifice, with salt salivation and shuddering in skin. Pain in pit; spasmodic pain in S. Bruised pain in S. on touch. Pressure on l. side. Constriction from all sides towards the middle, with salivation and nausea. Burning; in pit after eating, with pressure. Agreeable warmth as after spirituous drinks.

Abdomen.—Rumbling; in l., then emission of flatus. Emission of much flatus. Gripping, then a thin stool, with burning itching about rectum. Pain; with tympanites; in one spot; flatulent, > resting head upon elbows and knees, after which flatus was emitted; spasmodic flatulent, in morning in bed, accumulation of flatus in hypochondria and chest, causing spasmodic pressing asunder and constriction, > turning about, but returning on lying quietly. Uneasiness, with heat. Emptiness in morning, as from an emetic. Agreeable warmth, as after spirituous drinks. Sore pressure outward in l. flank and after micturition, also in r. Pinching on posterior part of ilium. Tearing in l. groin as from a sprain, when standing. Sprained and lame pain in l. side of pubis on stretching limb after sitting, extending to thigh. Pain in inguinal region. Anxious sore aching in lower A.

Rectum and Stool.—Burning sore pain about rectum. Fatal dysentery. Diarrhoea several times a day, with burning in anus, distention of abdomen and pain as from internal soreness; profuse D., preceded by itching in anus, with urging; profuse, with vomiting. Loose, large S., with tenesmus and sore feeling, as if dysentery were coming on. Thin S. after pressure, at last three hard lumps without difficulty. Soft S., scanty, mixed with small lumps, delayed. Pasty S.; and yellowish. S. at first natural, then fermented and watery. Clayey S., preceded by itching in rectum, with urging. Hard, difficult. Constipation.

Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Discharge of prostatic fluid from the relaxed penis. Frequent desire to urinate, with scanty discharge; urging, micturition by drops, with sticking in penis, then a natural discharge. Strangury. Itching sticking in forepart of urethra when not urinating. Much white sediment in urine. Intermittent cutting sticking in glans when standing. Erections at night without emissions or lascivious dreams; E. without cause when sitting. Voluptuous itching of prepuce, with discharge of prostatic fluid. Pinching burning pain in l. side of scrotum.

Respiratory Organs.—Irritation to short cough in upper part of trachea. Cough day and night as from dyspnoea and shortness of breath, then in morning much expectoration; C. from burning tickling in upper part of trachea; almost uninterrupted dry C.; dry hollow C. from tickling in chest during rest; hacking C. from crawling in throat. Dyspnoea as if chest were not wide enough, with tensive pain in r. pectoral muscles, < turning upper part of body to right. Deep inspiration hindered by sensation as if l. lung were adherent.

Chest.—Sticking in l. on walking in open air, so that he must stop; in sternum when sitting and standing; in l. when sitting and standing; in l. when sitting, > when walking; intermittent S. in l. when reading. Tensive pain in l., < turning upper part of body to right. Spasmodic pressing asunder in lower part. Warmth in middle as from hot food.

Pulse.—Irregular, 150; 78 in morning.

Back.—Jerking sticking. Intermittent sticking in one place in the middle when sitting. Pinching in l. scapula. Spasmodic pain in dorsal vertebrae in morning when lying on back. Pain in muscles; nightly P. in ischia; P. in small of when at rest; in l. kidney, with burning in all urinary organs.

Extremities.—Rheumatic pains. Shoulder, stiff pain in r., < stretching towards the left; tensive pain in r., preventing raising arm high; tensive pain in r., > walking, but returning with greater violence during rest; tension in joint like paralysis, in morning after rising, < motion; painful drawings in r. Internal painful drawing in arm, with weakness, < radius, humerus and wrist. Pain on outer side of arm above elbow in morning in bed. Sprained pain in r. upper arm, near elbow, on moving arm. Drawing pain in ulna. Paralytic pain in wrist on moving it. Intermittent tearing in muscles of l. hand. Pinching in muscles of r. hand near wrist, < moving it. Spasmodic drawing in r. hand on writing. Pain in ball of r. thumb, > touch and motion.

Lower Extremities.—Feeling of deadness and coldness in l. when sitting, as if it would fall asleep, not > motion, and on walking internal coldness remains, < leg and foot. Weakness on walking in open air.

Thigh.—Tearing in muscles of l. hip; in muscles about r. hip when sitting; in anterior muscles of l. thigh when sitting; in muscles of r. thigh when standing and sitting; intermittent, in muscles on outer side of r. when sitting; intermittent stitchlike, in muscles of l. hip when sitting. Pain in muscles about l. hip. Sprained pain in hip-joints; S. pain near bend of l. thigh when walking in open air, > standing. Pain as from a blow in l. gluteals on motion. Pain in forepart of hip as if crushed, only on moving body while sitting. Burning pain at night in bones of hip and thigh, waking frequently. Tensive pain on stepping forward, extending from l. gluteals to hollow of knee, as if tendons were too short. Painful lameness in r. hip-joint on stepping.

Sticking in inner knee when sitting. Tearing outward in knee. Legs, sticking in r.; hot S. in l. calf, as with a knife; tearing in l. tibia below knee when sitting; T. in forepart of l. leg when sitting; T. in muscles of r. when walking in open air; sticking T. in muscles near ankle when sitting; gnawing T. in r. calf when sitting and standing; pain as from a blow on outer side of l. calf; frequent falling asleep to above knees, with painful crawling in them and inability to move them; weakness as if they could not support the body.

Tearing burning pain in ankles, with heat of the parts. Cramp of metatarsus, drawing the toes together. Cramplike pain in foot, < towards external malleolus, when sitting and standing, > walking. Pain in r. heel as if suppurated, when walking in open air. Sprained pain in l. heel, < walking. Frequent falling asleep of feet when sitting, with inability to move them, and painful crawling in them.

Skin.—Erysipelatous swelling of cheek, and vesicles filled with yellow liquid. Red swelling on cheek, with boring, gnawing and digging from gum into ear, and with itching and crawling in cheek when the pain is relieved. Erysipelatous inflammation of face and external head; < face and head, with great tumefaction and throbbing headache, < forehead and vertex. Erysipelas bullosus, with fever. Swelling of l. cheek, with tensive pain and on touch bruised pain. White swelling of cheeks, feeling oedematous to touch. General swelling, inflammation, cold gangrene, death. Scarlet stripes on l. forearm, which itch when touched but disappear when rubbed, with sensation as of a thin cord under skin. Reddish pimple on chin, painful on touch. Pustules above r. brow, itching, and after scratching exuding bloody water. Vesicles filled with yellowish serum, with diffused redness. Ulcerating, boil-shaped elevations. Gangrene.

Itching, with urging to stool, and stool too soon; I. on back of l. hand. Corrosive I. on l. thigh; on r. close to hip; on l. leg near knee in morning. Sticking I. on upper arm near elbow. Burning I. on middle knuckle of index; on outer side of l. forearm. Ticking I. on r. sole.

Clinical.—It seems to have cured erysipelas of the cheek, of the vesicular variety, with violent fever. Abscesses and erysipelatos inflammation. It has been found useful for old torpid ulcers and for gangrene. It is said to be a valuable topical remedy for cancers, and is said to have cured entirely epithelioma.

Sleep.—Frequent yawning. Sleepiness after mid-day meal. Irresistible sleepiness during the day. Stupid slumber in afternoon, from which he cannot arouse himself. Slept with arms stretched far above his head. Sleeplessness, with tremulous tossing about before midnight, roaring in ears and inability to close eyes. Sleep poor and tossing about two nights, afterwards heavy sleep. Frequent and easy waking; F., but immediate falling asleep again. Dreams after 3 A.M., of the transactions of two days previous. Anxious, confused D., without end. Vivid, lascivious, with emission. Vivid, anxious, causing him to cry out, whereupon he wakes.

Fever.—Chilliness of whole body in morning; C. when walking in warm open air; C., with sweat; with sensation as if he had not slept all night and were completely washed out, and with disappearance of veins of hands. Cold hands, with heat in face and warm forehead, without thirst. Shivering; over upper part of body; over back, with glowing cheeks and cold hands; frequently in skin, then salivation. Heat; with pulse at 86; all day, the clothes are burdensome, with heaviness of whole body as if he had carried a great load; of face. Sweat in morning on thighs and legs, but not on feet; on neck every morning in bed and on rising; in morning, extending from feet over the whole body, with heat, without much thirst. Cold sweat; on legs in morning.

(Euphorbia corollata has proved valuable in terrible attacks of deathly retching and vomiting, with a feeling of clawing in the stomach and with cold sweat, after Cocculus, etc., had failed.)

Euphrasia.

A tincture is made of the fresh plant (except the root) of Euphrasia officinalis, L.

General Action.—A "catarrhal" remedy, with special reference to the mucous membranes of the eyes and nose.

Aliases.—Sulphur; Puls. > cold and open air. Compare also Allium cepa, nose and eyes.

Generalities.—Sticking here and there; in muscles; < adductors of r. thigh and last phalanx of the finger which carries the thimble and which had been bruised a few weeks previously; S. jumping about in hands, spine, arms, legs and genitals; frequent S. in l. side of head, liver and spleen (wherever there was sticking there was a sensation as if warmth penetrated); S. and burning pain in l. scapula, liver and diaphragm, in the latter, especially, renewed by deep inspiration. Pain in adductors; r. Bruised sensation in morning. Uneasiness at night, with urging to urinate.

Weariness; in morning; during the day, and sleeplessness till 2 A.M.; lasting into the night; as after fasting; obliging her to lie down towards evening, with heat of hands and rapid pulse (as she thinks), upper arms were as heavy as lead, wrists felt as if they had been squeezed, in spite of partial sleep she heard everything, and on closing eyes large heads appeared making grimaces, she woke with chilliness over the whole body, < thighs and knees, then pressure in stomach as if overloaded. Symptoms > coffee.

Mind.—Irritable. Reflective and disinclined to speak. Indolent, hypochondriac, external objects had no life for him.

Head.—Sticking. Aching in morning on waking, < forehead; A. externally, < forehead. Emptiness in morning, > riding. Confusion; on waking, > a cold sponge bath, with pain in sinicupit; at 10 and 11 A.M., with emptiness; after dinner, with heaviness of head and sleepiness; in evening, with bruised pain (and fluent catarrh), so that he must lie down earlier than usual, though the headache was < lying; C. on blowing nose, with pain in nose.

Sticking in r. side of forehead. Tearing above r. eye, extending into middle of forehead and becoming a pressure. Frontal pain; at 9 A.M., > open air; and orbital, with photophobia and lachrymation; extending into eyes, > open air; intermittent, at 9 A.M., when walking in open air, extending into eyes. Sticking in r. temple; externally in l. Pain in temples, with heat in forehead. (Confusion and pressure externally in vertex.) Sticking in r. side of brain; in brain beneath r. parietal bone; in upper part of l. side of brain; in r. side of brain on stooping; in brain, more in l. than in r. side, and < in the room; in sides of head, > putting his cool hands to the temples. Headache in l. side at 9 A.M., beginning with ringing in ears, > cold applications, with heat in head and loss of appetite for dinner. Tearing sticking in l. side of occiput in afternoon.

Eyes.—Cornea feels as if covered with mucus, it obscures vision and obliges him to press the lids together, in morning. Vessels running through white nearly to cornea (therewith a pressure and a dark spot on cornea that had lasted a long time disappeared within two days). Sticking in r. Biting at times, biting water runs from them; frequent burning biting, obliging winking at noon, > increased lachrymation. Pressure in r., then l., extending from inner canthus, with lachrymation, the lids seem smaller, pupil dimmer and eye cold; P. in r. morning and evening, with lachrymation; in r. in bed at 11 P.M.; > the dark, with frequent winking as from twinging in eyes; when writing, on fixing eyes for a long time vision vanishes and eyes water profusely; causing frequent blinking; as if sleepy; as if some one were pressing upon them at 2 P.M., > a nap. Pain from glare of light, as from insufficient sleep. Contractive feeling on walking in open air; C. feeling in r., with lachrymation; C. from both sides, < upper lids, in evening, causing frequent winking.

Itching; of l.; in afternoon on going out, obliging frequent winking and wiping of eyes, with increased lachrymation. Itching tension, now in one, now in other, < upper lid, becoming a burning on scratching. Burning till noon, with lachrymation; < r., and the letters run together on exertion by reading. Dryness; so that he must close them when reading or writing; as from loss of sleep. Lachrymation; so that he was almost blind; in morning. Sticking in ball.

Lids.—Burning and swelling (Apis., Sulph.), < morning on waking, till towards 11 A.M., with misty vision, next day with redness; B. and S. of margins. Redness and swelling in forenoon, with burning and tension in r. ball; R. and S. of margins (Sulph.), < l., with intermittent itching burning in them and increased lachrymation. Redness and dryness of margins. Swelling and sensitiveness. Frequent inclination to blink. Blinking during the day as from twinging; B. in morning, twinging pain in eyes. Pressure at 11 P.M., in bed on looking at the reflection of the moon on the curtains. Dryness. Burning in margins (Sulph.); < forenoon, with swollen sensation; < canthi, in morning on waking, with tension; also twinging with itching; as from too little sleep, alternating with tension.

Dry mucus in canthi; in inner. Sticking in outer C., with burning, then lachrymation. Pressure in l. inner C.; in l. C., which seems protruded and cold, with sticking in ball and pressure in it. Frequent itching burning in l. C., with tension above both eyes (at noon, with migraine). Tension in outer C. Pain in upper orbital regions at 6 P.M., > lachrymation, with pinching in eyes. Vision dim on looking at a distance; when walking in open air; D. in evening; of r. eye, > after a sticking from forehead out of r. eye; by candle-light; sometimes the light seemed to burn brightly, sometimes dimly. Everything seemed enveloped in mist and moving. Vision bad in evening. Sensitiveness to light; to candle-light.

Clinical.—Conjunctivitis; the inflammation of the eyes calling for Euphras. is, above all, catarrhal in nature, subacute, characterized by free discharge of matter which seems to be acrid, making the lids somewhat sore; the margins of the lids even may become ulcerated, there may be burning lachrymation, or the discharge may be thick and yellow and somewhat acid; one very prominent characteristic of the drug is the tendency to an accumulation of sticky mucus on the cornea, which is removed by frequent winking. It is found useful in a large number of cases of cold in the eye and nose, with acrid water from the eyes, while the discharge from the nose is generally quite bland. It is said to have cured inflammation of the cornea and even ulceration with burning, smarting tears, running from nose, etc., and various forms of superficial inflammations of the eyes and lids are treated successfully by Euphras. when there is this peculiarity to the discharge. (It is even reported to have cured iritis.)

Ears.—Sticking; in r. mastoid process. Boring outward in region of r. drum. Pain in r., with sensation as if hot water penetrated it. Tension in l. Dragging outward and a spitting noise.

Nose.—Swelling of mucous membrane of l. nostril in morning. Dryness. Itching in nostrils. Sneezing; (frequent, with discharge of much watery mucus); with profuse fluent coryza, whereby much mucus was discharged through nose and posterior nares; irritation to sneeze all day without cause. Profuse fluent coryza in morning, with much cough and expectoration; fluent C. at 5 A.M. on waking, > at 6 after a cold sponge bath, with pressure in forehead near root of nose.

Face.—Redness and heat; of cheeks. Pallor. Pain in facial nerve below eye in afternoon. Stiffness of l. cheek when speaking and chewing, with heat and sticking. Sticking in chin; with internal heat in the same place. Sticking through r. lower jaw; S. forward through l. lower jaw at noon when eating, hindering chewing; forward beneath r. lower, near throat, > touch. Drawing pain transversely across upper jaw. Drawing in r. lower jaw in afternoon, with indications of aching in r. ear. Excoriations in corners of lips.

Mouth and Throat.—Sticking in lower teeth; S. in a hollow tooth in afternoon when walking in open air, > entering warm room; also in r. lower jaw. Intermittent pain in a molar which had been sensitive several months. (Throbbing in two teeth.) Profuse bleeding of gum. (Inflamed swelling on gum near last molar, which had been loose and painful for weeks.) Pain in r. lower gum on rising, where there is an inflamed ring around incisor. Tongue coated in morning; with earthy taste. Hesitation after the periods in order to select another expression, and repetition of the first words. Dry mouth. Taste clayey. T. insipid. Unnatural T. to food at noon. Bitter T. to tobacco-smoke in morning. Isthmus faucium painful.

Stomach.—Hunger at noon without appetite. Appetite lost. Little A. for dinner; and breakfast, with pasty taste. Little relish for cigars. No relish for cigars. Thirst in evening. Eructations tasting of food; in afternoon; E. of food in afternoon. Hiccough. Nausea; on beginning to smoke; from tobacco-smoke, which has a bitter, biting taste; > a swallow of water; with emptiness in stomach; with griping in abdomen. Sticking in epigastric region; beneath pit of stomach on inspiration and expiration in evening when sitting. Gnawing at noon after eating. Pressure; as from fullness. > eructations. Pulling at noon during dinner. Tensive pain in epigastric region at noon. Heartburn, with frequent empty eructations. Distended feeling, > afternoon, with frequent eructations of food. Discomfort; increasing in the room to nausea and uprising of heat, gradually affecting the whole body.

Abdomen.—Distention before dinner, as without flatulence. Rumbling at 10.30 A.M., with hunger that was satisfied with a bit of bread; R. as from hunger and emptiness. Griping (in the morning he had had a difficult, unsatisfactory and delayed stool); G., with three soft stools and rumbling; G. waking at night, and rumbling, > emission of flatus; paroxysmal G. Pain; burning, extending transversely across. Distress. Sticking in hepatic region at 6 P.M., extending to back; S. extending sometimes to abdomen, sometimes to r. lung; in spleen in morning. Griping in umbilical region in afternoon; G., with nausea, then rumbling in abdomen. Sudden sticking drawing pain along l. inguinal canal on rising from a seat, extending into testicle.

Anus.—Swollen and tense hemorrhoids; sticking in H. after stool, with burning; pain in H.; burning in H. in afternoon, also > cold sitz bath; itching in H.; the itching in H. becomes boring sticking. Pressure when sitting. Painful crawling in evening.

Stool.—Diarrhœa three times in a day. Pasty in part in evening, after a nodular one in the morning; P., thick, delayed, preceded by flatulence, with urging, followed by burning in anus. Constipation. Hard and scanty; and at an unusual time; H. and sluggish; H. and difficult; H. nodular, unsatisfactory, delayed, followed after two hours by itching in anus; H. at first, then pasty. Scanty. Profuse and formed, twice a day. Delayed. Omitted two days.

Urinary Organs.—Frequent urging at night. Frequent micturition; in evening, with profuse urine; at night. Urine increased; and pale. Urine scanty.

Sexual Organs.—Cramplike drawing inward in evening in bed, with pressure above pubis. Sticking on tip of glans; voluptuous itching S. on glans when sitting, painful after scratching. Voluptuous itching on margin of prepuce, and after scratching and pressure pain. Heat in glands. Testicles drawn up and crawling in them. Menstruation delayed, scanty and shorter than usual.

Respiratory Organs.—Irritation in larynx causing cough, then tension beneath sternum. Pressure in larynx after prolonged reading in evening, as if its calibre were diminished. Hoarseness in morning. Cough, < during the day; with mucus in chest which cannot be loosened; profuse expectoration of mucus by voluntary hacking cough. Sudden violent C. from tickling in larynx. Suffocation suddenly waking from midday nap (apparently from mucus in posterior nares), so that he must sit upright and cough. Breath lost when coughing, almost as in whooping cough. Respiration difficult; even in the room; inspiration is difficult even when sitting. Breath short; on lying down in bed, with sobbing.

Clinical.—It is sometimes indicated in acute colds with cough, associated with severe coryza and running from eyes; the cough begins in the morning on rising and continues through the day, not troubling the patient at night; in some cases the cough is dry and tickling, but usually there is a free expectoration, and in nearly all the cases the characteristic symptoms of influenza will be present.

Chest.—Sticking in r.; in r. pectoral muscles; in lungs; l. lung; in r. lung in region of nipple at 8 P.M., always renewed by deep inspiration; beneath sternum, < inspiration. Sticking pulsation in l. lung in region of nipple. Pain beneath sternum, < forenoon, with sticking here and there in chest. Pressure upon chest. Tension, < l. side at night, with sleeplessness till midnight.

Heart.—Sticking. Pain in afternoon, with palpitation. Palpitation on rapid walking.

Back.—Sticking along spine mornings on waking, > moving about. Cramplike pain; intermittent. Pain when sitting and walking. Rheumatic drawing from uppermost dorsal vertebra to l. clavicle in afternoon, with pain on touch. Heaviness in small of back in morning on rising, changing to sprained pain, so that he could hardly stoop forward and could not bend to right, > forenoon, extending into l. hip, where there were similar heaviness and straining, > dinner and disappearing in evening.

Extremities.—Weariness in evening; W. and generally almost febrile condition.

Upper Extremities.—Sticking in r. shoulder-joint in afternoon. Sticking in arm. Pain in r. arm in afternoon, extending to fingers. Arms asleep. Sticking in r. upper arm; beaumbing S. in l. Rheumatic drawing and sticking in r. elbow, wrist and hand in evening, which latter is hotter than l., with distention of veins, the pain extending to middle finger and thumb, then suddenly jumping to larynx, < to l. side, then suddenly returning to hand. Tearing in elbow and wrist. Sticking in l. forearm close to wrist. Pain in r. forearm and hand as from being asleep. Cramplike pain in wrists. Paralyzed sensation in r. wrist, extending to elbow. Piercing pinching on back of hand. Cramplike pain in metacarpus; alternately violent and slight C. pain in l. hand, changing to fingers. Hands fall asleep. Pinching in l. fingers at 9 A.M. when sitting; P. in metacarpal phalanx of index. Cramplike pain in fingers, < l. joints. Pain in finger-joints and knuckles as from being asleep, < towards outer side. Numbness of r. index and middle finger; and thumb and parts affected by writers' cramp, on going out. Deadness of r. fingers.

Lower Extremities.—Sticking in r. natis; in l. hip-joint when walking; in anterior muscles of r. thigh when standing; posteriorly in r. thigh when standing; in fascia lata of l. thigh, with burning. Sticking drawing from upper part of thigh into groin, < sitting. Pain in adductor of r. thigh when walking, corresponding with the pain she had nine months previously, when she pushed with the foot something standing on the ground. Burning pain in r. thigh and glutel. Jerking sticking in l. knee on walking. Tension of tendons under knee when walking. Weariness of knees. Boring sticking upward in tibiae. Pain drawing upward and downward in periosteum in front of l. tibia when sitting. Cramplike pain in calf on long standing, with heaviness. Cracking in l. external malleolus when stepping. Tension from outer malleolus, near tendo-achillis, to calf when walking and sitting. Sticking in heel in the beginning of the night; frequent S. in ball of r. foot in afternoon, becoming a burning when sitting; lacinating S. in l. os calcis at 6 P.M. when sitting. Numbness of l. foot, with an unpleasant sensation when the circulation returned. Sticking in l. great toe in evening and when walking. Tickling crawling in l. toes and after rubbing pain.

Skin.—Pustules on wings of nose. Formication beneath l. scapula in afternoon. Frequent biting and itching over whole body. (Sticking in the condylomata when sitting, < walking, with sore and burning pain when touched.) Itching sticking here and there at night, with tossing about and coldness. (Itching in condylomata.) Voluptuous itching on r. calf in evening when walking; on forepart of thigh when walking in open air, and pain after scratching.

Clinical.—Measles; very frequently indicated in the catarrhal symptoms of measles, inflammation of eyes, photophobia, cough, running from the nose, headache, etc.

Sleep.—Yawning; when walking in open air; with sleepiness, but inability to sleep; then nausea, > a glass of water; in short, then in long attacks; frequent, at 5 P.M.; frequent, with sleepiness, sleep only about 11 P.M.; incessant, in evening, without weariness; spasmodic, before she had completely yawned a second yawning began, without weariness, with lachrymation, humming in ears and pulsation in throat, then indistinct vision in l. eye. Desire to stretch when sitting and reading. Sleepiness during the day; in afternoon; early in evening; with activity; which begins in eyes; overpowering, in afternoon; overpowering, at 8 P.M.

Late falling asleep. Sleeplessness till midnight after going to bed early. Frequent waking as from fright; frequent W. from feverish dreams, with chilliness, frequent urging to urinate and copious micturition. Waking every moment after 3 A.M. for three mornings, then stupid sleep at 6 A.M., on waking from this sleep pressure on upper part of chest, heaviness of head, nausea, general sweat, vertigo, < motion, even to falling sideways, limbs weak and tremulous, on rising the upper part of the body seemed too heavy, as if the limbs could not carry it, the attack gradually diminished till noon, with depressed mood. Tossing about at night, the bed seemed harder than usual. Uneasy sleep, with many dreams and frequent urging to urinate. Sleep unrefreshing, with tossing about and frequent micturition. Sleep interrupted, then in the morning confusion of head, > cold bath, with heaviness of eyes. Dreams frightful and uneasy; frightful, of fires and conflagrations from lightning. Confused D. Disagreeable D.

Fever.—Chilliness; internal in forenoon, but in afternoon internal and external chilliness of arms. Cold skin at night. Cold hands, with flushes of heat and red face, without thirst. Heat in evening; H. of head, with pressure; H. suddenly changing to orifice of stomach and then ending in lower part of œsophagus, with spasmodic constriction. Sweat at night in sleep, > waking; of strong odor at night in sleep, < chest, on rising chilliness. Distressing dryness of skin.

Ferrum.

Pure Iron, reduced by Hydrogen, is triturated for use.

General Action.—Iron acts chiefly on the blood, producing more rapid oxydation, with rise of temperature, at first an increase of red color (or of red corpuscles), but subsequently a diminution of red corpuscles and profound anæmia. The use of the various preparations of iron for febrile and inflammatory states has been greatly neglected.

Allies.—Cinchona, Bell., Mangan., Phos., Puls., Lyc.

Generalities.—Emaciation. Trembling; in frequent attacks; anxious T., alternating with fatigue. Blood darker, corpuscles intensely colored, more colorless corpuscles, coagulating in a shorter time; darker, corpuscles intensely colored, sharply margined, more and larger colorless corpuscles, fewer elementary corpuscles, longer in coagulating, serum darker; corpuscles deeply colored, colorless corpuscles smaller, longer in coagulating; serum increased in one case, diminished in four, dried serum diminished, ashes of serum increased in four cases, diminished in one, coagulum increased in three cases, diminished in two, dried coagulum increased in two, diminished in three, ashes of coagulum increased, red sediment increased in three cases, diminished in two, fibrin increased in one, diminished in four, water increased, dry residue diminished, fat increased in two, diminished in two, sol. salts in ashes increased, iron in ashes increased in one case, diminished in three, calc. phos. in ashes increased in two cases, diminished in three.

Periodical pains. Wandering about at night on account of pains. Magnetized sensation on waking, irresistible sleepiness. Nervousness; after menses; for three successive monthly periods, with headache and varicose veins in l. ankle; and hysterical feeling, proneness to weep or laugh immoderately, with choking in throat as if it were swelling outwardly. Restlessness.

Weakness; all day, with sleepiness; by day, with sleepiness (little > by sleep); in afternoon; general, from mere speaking; from walking; walking in open air; during menses; at beginning of menses, > exercise, with mental depression, and the pain usually felt at beginning of menses disappeared; < towards evening; with falling asleep; with drowsiness and disinclination to talk or work; with aching in all limbs; periodical, then persistent (after increase of physical and mental energy), < walking. Tired aching as from lying long in one position. Inclination to lie down. Syncope; when walking, darkness before eyes, feeling as if she would have apoplexy and at every step roaring in ears; then weakness.

Aggravation in evening; A. by sitting; when standing, by motion, heat, eating, drinking water, conversation, the sight of any person, even the dearest, noise, the sound of voices. Amelioration from gentle movement; A. from rest, sitting, lying, cool weather, after vomiting or evacuations, silence and solitude.

Clinical.—Profound prostration, generally with restlessness and general relief from walking slowly, cannot keep quiet, but feels worse from any active effort. General oversensitiveness to pain (headache, neuralgia, etc.). General anæmia, but with tendency to flushing of the face and head and liability to violent headaches; in anæmia the extremities are generally cold, and the feet and hands often swollen.

Mind.—Wandering and discontented. Excited by the slightest opposition. Anxiety; from slight cause, with throbbing in pit of stomach; with alternations of trembling and weakness; as if she had done something bad, also at night, with sleeplessness and tossing about. Depression before menses; during menses, with excitement; after menses; when alone, but without complaints or weeping; (as from too loose bowels). Ill humor; after menses; with disinclination for labor; with indifference, also periodically. Sober and uncomfortable, but not gloomy. Quarrelsome, insisting that he is right. Disinclination to talk or work. Desire for solitude. Too gay one evening and sad the next. My surroundings seem large, and I am inclined to attribute great importance to trifles and am unusually earnest. Dulness and heaviness all day. Stupor, with headache; S., with vertigo. Indisposition to think and confusion of head. Memory weak.

Clinical.—Hypochondriasis or even melancholia, with profound anæmia.

Head.—Shooting before menses, with singing in ears. Intermittent tearing. Aching as if brain were torn; in morning slumber. Aching all day, < in evening, < on r. side of forehead, going down to r. nostril; in afternoon, with fever; every evening, with dulness over root of nose; in evening after a walk in the open air; after menses; from writing; < when walking or stooping, > when sitting; > towards evening during a foot bath, but soon returning more violent than ever; with languor and stiffness of head; with coryza; extending into nostrils; acute, then dull, > towards night, with stupor; intermittent, during the day; undulating; drawing. Sick headache after menses, with hot head and cold feet; sick H. a few days after menses, which, till within six months (after Veratrum), always preceded or followed menses, this time with throbbing in vertex as if a vein were too full, pulsation in stomach extending through œsophagus, as if a nerve were quivering, causing at times a sensation of suffocation as if something rose in the throat like a valve, hysterical sensations. Hammering and beating, so that she must lie down, for two, three or four days every two or three weeks, then aversion to eating and drinking. Pulsations, with sticking.

Emptiness. Heaviness; in morning on waking; with stupefaction in forehead and pressure in temples; with fulness, every pulsation is felt in temples. Fulness in afternoon; F., > sleep. Dulness in morning; on waking, as after a wakeful night, with heaviness; at 8 A.M., gradually > towards night; with heaviness of eyelids. Confusion; > after motion, with aching in one or other temple; as after a sleepless night. Congestion. Rush of blood, swelling of veins of head, and flushes of heat in face (Bell). Beer rises to head. Intoxication. A giddy shock in brain. Vertigo; when walking; on descending (see Mercurialis), as if she would fall forward; as if everything went round with her, on looking at running water; on sudden rising after sleep in the afternoon, with sensation as if a dark curtain were slowly let down before the eyes, nausea, prostration and lethargic dulness, then sleep from which it was difficult to rouse himself, two attacks of V. in afternoon as if balancing to and fro on water; on lying down, as if shoved forward or as if driving in a coach, > shutting eyes; with cold hands; with stupor, restlessness and inability to apply the mind. Symptoms, except the fulness, > after sleep.

Forehead.—Sticking over l. eye; S. inward; cutting. Prickling in l. sinus, then in r., changing to pressure, > at 3 P.M. Sharp pain over r. eye. Pain as if it would burst. Pain all day, with cold feet; P. waking at 1.30 A.M., with rumbling and gurgling in abdomen; over eyes; over l. eye, with lachrymation; in eminences in morning after dressing, then extending over forehead to vertex, then changing to pressive pain from without inward, < descending stairs, transiently > pressure, decidedly > in open air, changing at 2.15 P.M. to dull pressure, > towards 8 P.M., also lasting from 4 to 6 P.M.; in eminences, then in whole F. Sudden intermittent pain over l. eye. Pulsating, tickling pain, and in head. Drawing pain, with hot head and cold feet; sharp D. pain. Pain above l. brow, towards nose. Dulness and heaviness in forehead of head. Heaviness in F. and over eyes in morning.

Temples.—Sticking; as with a penknife, waking at 3 A.M., extending over forehead, with chilliness, preventing sleep. Pain, > lying quietly; P. extending over forehead. Heaviness. Pulsation.

Pain in vertex, waking at 2.15 A.M., < every change of position and preventing sleep till 4 A.M.; throbbing P. on moving suddenly or quickly ascending steps; peculiar pain in cool open air. Soreness in vertex, < r. side. Shooting in l. side of head in afternoon; l.-sided headache; all day; r.-sided, with itching in eyebrows and nose. Pain in occiput and neck at 8 A.M., gradually extending to forehead. Periodical beating pain in occiput and neck, gradually extending to sides and forehead, < moving or stooping. Weight from ear to ear. Heaviness in occiput in afternoon. Falling of hair, with pain in scalp and formation. Pain in scalp as if blood were extravasated, with pain on touching hair. Soreness of scalp; < in front. Itching.

Clinical.—So-called congestive headache, with violent throbbing, flushed face, extreme sensitiveness to all external impressions (like Bell), the pain greatly < any sudden motion or by noise; the pain generally begins in one temple or one side of the head, and may involve the whole head, sometimes the skull feels as if it would burst open; with this very hot head there are generally cold extremities, feeble pulse, etc.

Eyes.—Redness, with burning pain. White of eye discolored; yellow. (Shooting in l.) Aching in r., with agglutination of lids at night; A. as if sleepy; A. as if they would protrude (Bell), < r. Burning. Itching in evening and aching as from sand. Weakness, with lachrymation; and watery discharge from nose. Lachrymation so that he cannot read long; L. of l. eye, < open air. Pupils capable of only slight dilatation. Redness and swelling of lids, on upper a styte, the lower lids full of hard purulent mucus. Lids heavy; in morning. If he writes two hours he cannot open the lids wide, the eyes are watery as if he had not slept enough. Sticking in external corner of r. orbit. Pain in l. orbit, with heartburn. Pain in brows, extending into nose. Darkness before eyes in evening, with pain over orbits and dropping of blood from nose; D., < rising from stooping. Inability to see the stitches when sewing. Letters run into each other when reading or writing.

Clinical.—Morbus Basedowii after suppressed menstruation, with violent palpitation, extreme nervousness, etc.

Ears.—Sticking in r. in morning. Ulcerative pain in l. external. Ringing in r. Chirping before E. like crickets. Rushing, > laying head on table, with disagreeable feeling in brain.

Clinical.—Fetid discharge from l. ear.

Nose.—Numbness and stiffness. Spasmodic sneezing four times at 1 P.M. Watery discharge all day, with dull headache. Bleeding in morning on stooping; profuse B. in morning after rising, relieving the head; dropping from r. nostril in forenoon; B. from l. nostril.

Clinical.—Nosebleed.

Face.—Yellow. Flushed and cheeks burning; when riding on a cloudy day; cheeks F. Bloated; and pasty. Earthy and spotted blue. (Pale, with rumbling in abdomen, contraction of chest, congestion to head, spasmodic eructation, then heat in face, < r. cheek, and shooting on crown.) Expressions by turns melancholy and fretful. Pinched. Swollen feeling. Lips pale; and dry.

Clinical.—The face is generally bloodless, often puffy, but with the headache it may be flushed and hot.

Mouth.—Toothache all the morning. Tooth back of r. eye-tooth feels elongated and sore. Gums discolored. (Gums and cheeks swollen.) Tongue coated white; and mouth dry, taste bad; and taste slimy, without loss of appetite; T. white; T. coated yellowish-gray; T. red at tip, coated, white anteriorly, yellowish-white posteriorly; T. more natural after eating; sticking posteriorly and in centre of T., < touch of food and drink, but when not eating or drinking the part feels burnt, numb and stiff. Mouth dry in morning. Taste dry to all solid food as if it contained neither juice nor strength, he likes warm liquid food best; T. bitter to all food; T. like rotten eggs; putrid T. rising into mouth in afternoon, taking away his appetite; earthy; pasty; of iron constantly; (sourish in morning); bad on rising; improved in morning by drinking cold water.

Throat.—Rising of phlegm. Pain on swallowing, with heat in fauces and stiffness and pain in cervical muscles on movement. Soreness, not painful when eating; S. with dulness and heaviness all day; (with roughness and hoarseness). Constriction. Choking. Sensation of a lump below l. tonsil, painful during empty swallowing, > when eating and drinking. (Sensation of a plug when not swallowing.) Tickling with dry cough, then a spoonful of bright blood came up. Burning, with eructations of acrid gas. (On swallowing pain in oesophagus and soreness as after the bursting of a blister.)

Clinical.—Goitre, with protruding eyes, palpitation and nervousness.

Stomach.—Appetite great; in evening; diminished; little, especially for meat; can eat only bread and butter, meat disagrees with him; even when she has A. she can eat but little, she is immediately full and the food oppresses her. Anorexia, dislike for all food (China); A. without bad taste or thirst; A. for he always feels full, but drinks are relished. Thirst after the day sleep; T. after dinner, for he knows not what; T. at 3 P.M. between the chill and fever; in evening after chills and fever; in evening, then heat and sweat; unquenchable, in evening. Adipsia.

Eructations; constant, as soon as she eats (Ant. cr., Phos., etc.); of food after eating, without nausea; acrid; acrid and burning; foul. Nausea on rising; N. in forenoon; at 8 P.M., with flushes over whole body as before sweat; at night, with diarrhoea; after eating; before and after eating; when walking, and head inclined to right; with vertigo; in throat, ending in eructation. Heaving like the nausea of disgust, when eating. Vomiting of food after midnight, then aversion to food and dread of open air; V. of food immediately after eating (Lyc., Puls.); V. before midnight, < when lying, especially on l. side; on eating, having the taste of iron, or else of clear, frothy water; of mucus and water every morning and after eating, a kind of water-brash, water runs out of her mouth and her throat feels drawn together; sour and acrid; profuse, on taking acids and beer.

Distention in regions of S. and abdomen; D. in epigastric region. Spasm. Cramplike pain. Pain; in pit; in pit at 2 P.M.; after every meal; after eating meat; after drinking; in pit on touch. Feeling as of a hard body or of undigested food, then burning and acrid eructation. Oppression whenever she eats. Painful contraction of everything at pit at 6 A.M. in bed, then spasmodic cough, with mucous expectoration. Tension; in epigastric region, with rumbling, becoming pressure, heaviness and griping, extending over abdomen, < morning and evening, at times with nausea. Feeling as if he would vomit, without nausea. Feeling as if something rose in it.

Heaviness in pit. Fulness; as if he would eructate after walking, > after eating. Drawing in epigastric region. Discomfort after every meal; D., > after dinner, with bitter eructations smelling like foul eggs. Occasional uneasiness in l. extremity. Heartburn; in evening after sourish beer. Burning after eating; B., > after eructations; in epigastric region, also with fulness; with indigestion; with cramplike pain in splenic region; with general unpleasant feeling, being febrile symptoms, with soreness and languor of limbs, indigestion and eructations, the heat in S. < before eating, > after eating; upward from pit during exercise, like apprehension, she must lie down. Sensation extending through oesophagus. All sensations are at the cardiac extremity and in splenic region.

Clinical.—The patients may have ravenous hunger, but the appetite sometimes vanishes and there is absolute disgust for food; the attempt to eat brings on diarrhoea; there is frequently sinking in stomach; food cannot be taken on account of the diarrhoea which follows; there is often soreness of the walls of the abdomen.

Abdomen.—Distention; and hardness; without flatulent symptoms. Rumbling; all day, with pain in small of back and kidneys and soreness in urethra on urinating; at 1.30 A.M., with gurgling; in evening, with soreness and feeling as before stool; > after a copious stool, with griping, pasty taste, dryness of fæces and nausea; with soreness; with gurgling as before diarrhoea, but stool normal; with headache; waking, with griping, fulness and tension, > emission of flatus and copious stool, so that the colic was distressing only when sitting up. Noisy flatulence. Discharge of flatus; frequent and offensive, after rising in morning. Movement as before diarrhoea, but stool natural.

Sticking. Sharp pain; and bearing down in uterus, with aching below it. Pain; in morning after rising, < eating, > stool; after midnight, then diarrhoea; at 2.30 A.M., and urging to stool, stool free, loose, with griping, cutting and straining, nausea, disagreeable taste, > drinking cold water, at 6 A.M. another loose, brownish-yellow stool, with colic before and straining during stool; in attacks, waking him, > emission of flatus and profuse stool; flatulent, and emission of flatus; paroxysmal drawing P.; bearing down, in morning, as before menses; contractive, and in back. Soreness as if beaten or as after purgatives, on touch and on coughing. Distress, < in epigastric region, increasing to a pain on touch, < walking. Discomfort increasing to a sick feeling, with bitter foul eructations and griping, then copious, for the most part liquid stool. Tension. Warmth, < in epigastric region, > walking, with pressure, tension and griping in abdomen; heat rising from A. after sleeping an hour before midnight, mouth dry and a bad vapor and putrid taste rise into his mouth.

Sharp pain in upper A. and pit of stomach. Pressure just below stomach as soon as she eats or drinks. Flatus in r. side when riding in a carriage, soon passing off. Iron pain in l. side. Fulness in hypochondria. Shooting in l. hypochondrium. Cramp-like sensation in splenic region. Pain in liver; in r. hypochondrium; in splenic region, with heaviness. Flatus in lower A., incarcerated in l. side, and copious emissions by mouth and anus. Rumbling and gurgling in transverse colon, < in cæcum. Pain in lower A. Weight in lower A., < walking.

Rectum and Anus.—Protrusion of large hæmorrhoids. Violent hæmorrhoidal flux. Ascarides are passed with the slimy stool, itching and gnawing in R. Spasm of R. Tearing in R.; in anus, with hard stool. Urging, then frothy stool, with loud flatus, then three watery, almost odorless stools, then griping in pit of stomach, but relief of the full feeling in hypochondria; frequent U., with burning in anus and pain in back on moving. Straining at stool all day; S., with and after stool.

Clinical.—Bleeding piles, with itching and gnawing. Ascarides, with itching, unnatural appetite, flushed face, etc.

Stool.—Watery, with flatulence, and frequent, more frequent after taking food or water (Coloc., Crot. t.); W. and sudden, without pain or smell; W. and profuse, with cutting in abdomen. Diarrhoea; frequent; violent; with nervous spasmodic pain in abdomen, back and anus. Constipation; and hæmorrhoids which cause pain in going to stool; S. only every two or three days, frequent urging, S. dry, dark green. Hard and small; with pressing and tearing through anus; of small hard pieces, with straining, at first brown, then greenish or greenish-black, only once a day was there a copious soft S.; hard and delayed; hard, greenish and black, afterwards copious pasty stools; partly hard, copious, generally delayed, greenish or greenish-black; hard and soft on alternate days. Black. Yellow. Odorless. Mucus and sometimes blood with the S. Scanty.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea, especially containing undigested food, (China), as a rule painless, recurring particularly when eating or drinking, especially apt to recur at night; with the diarrhoea there is generally unnatural hunger, with easy flushing of the face, great paleness, weakness and exhausting sweats. Chronic diarrhoea, gushing, watery, painless, < night, with coldness of the body and great prostration. Diarrhoea in teething children, stools undigested, with flushed face, sometimes associated with vomiting, both diarrhoea and vomiting coming on immediately after taking nourishment.

Urinary Organs.—Pain in bladder. Urging; constant, with pain in liver, chest and kidneys; with tickling in urethra extending to neck of bladder; beginning with tickling in navicular fossa, obliging frequent micturition, with tenesmus recti in evening. Involuntary micturition < by day (Bell.); at night (Puls.); slight, when standing. Frequent micturition. (Gonorrhœa) mucous discharge from urethra after a chill. Soreness of urethra on urinating. Tickling in urethra in afternoon, < in fossa navicularis, with urging; T. in urethra on beginning to urinate, gradually extending along the whole urethra, afterwards with frequent urging without increase of urine. (Burning in urethra on urinating.) Urine copious, with prostration and nervousness; C. wine-yellow or reddish, sp. gr. rose from 1005 to 1025, reaction acid. Turbid U. Dark yellow U. Blood-red, charged with blood-corpuscles. Light-colored U., with whitish sediment. Sediment in U.; profuse, mucous.

Clinical.—Involuntary micturition, especially during the day, the child wets himself even while walking; also nocturnal enuresis.

Sexual Organs.—Tickling of glans between 8 and 9 A.M. and 6 and 7 P.M., with warmth and irresistible desire to urinate, when the urine reached the glans distressing pulsation, which continued after micturition, with increasing tenesmus vesicæ, the distress > rapidly drinking much water and compression of glans with the finger. Erections. Emissions; nocturnal.

Prolapsus of vagina during pregnancy. Pain in vagina during coition. Less dryness in vagina on beginning coition and more pleasure in it. A previously painless white discharge became painful as if the parts were raw. Leucorrhœa like whey, causing (at first) smarting and soreness. Discharge of stringy mucus from uterus before menses, with sensation in abdomen as during menses. Sticking shooting in uterus. Pain near mouth of uterus when lying. Abortion. Sterility without abortion. Menses delayed; one day, scanty, watery, with cutting in abdomen. Menses intermit for two or three days. Metrorrhagia. Menorrhagia, pale, increased by least movement. Menses copious.

Clinical.—Great sensitiveness of the vagina to coition (Sep., Bell., Plat.). Suppressed menses, with hemorrhage from other parts, lungs, nose, rectum. Menses excessively profuse and prolonged, with great debility, flushed face. After severe uterine hemorrhages, Fer. may be indicated by great coldness of the skin and bloating, by the gastric symptoms, by the prostration and headache. In anæmic women when the menses are very pale, watery and acrid, with great prostration. During anæmia or chlorosis calling for Fer. there is apt to be milky and acrid leucorrhœa.

Respiratory Organs.—Contraction of glottis in evening in bed, with rush of blood to head, burning externally on neck, and between scapulae and on upper part of body generally, cold feet, and in the morning sweat. Pain in larynx provoking cough and hawking, < pressure, in morning on waking, but at noon giving place to a similar sensation behind upper third of sternum, and on hawking and coughing expectoration of frothy, tenacious mucus, mixed with black blood, frequently till 4 P.M. Ticking in trachea, causing frequent cough, < inspiration. Voice almost extinct, utterance difficult and panting. Hoarseness, with rough sensation in larynx.

Cough, < moving; C. all day and after lying down; at night. Dry cough, with sensation as if she could not get air; dry C. in evening after lying down, but expectoration on waking. Coughing up blood in morning on rising; at night, then increased dyspnoea; while suckling the child. Hæmoptysis. Expectoration scanty, thin, frothy, with streaks of blood; E. of bloody mucus by hacking. Copious purulent E. in morning (with putrid taste); on waking, and greenish, with sickly taste; copious, purulent, white E. after coughing, < smoking tobacco and drinking brandy.

Dyspnoea; and oppression of chest as from pressure of a hand (Chin. s., Phos.); after midnight, so that he must sit up in bed; generally < in forenoon, often > when he walked a little, sometimes < when walking in open air, with weariness of limbs; from heaviness in l. lung; and slow breathing, > by walking and talking or by constant reading or writing, < when quiet and especially when lying, particularly in evening, he must take several breaths before he can fill the lungs. Suffocation from quivering and pulsation in stomach. Asthma; anxiety in pit of stomach, impeding breathing. Uneasy breathing from pain across chest. Panting. Wheezing; under sternum, with slight inclination to cough at night, > after rising. Mucous râles behind manubrium sterni.

Clinical.—The very marked symptoms of Fer., of occasional oppression of chest and difficult breathing, may be compared with those of Phos.; Fer. is certainly extremely useful when the chest symptoms seem to occur from a kind of surging of blood to the chest, a not infrequent symptom in persons whose circulation is feeble, in such cases there are oppression and dyspnoea. It has been prescribed for asthma and even for pneumonia, and it is very probable that Fer. has been overlooked as a valuable remedy for inflammation of the thoracic organs, for it certainly may be indicated when there is marked febrile excitement. The cough of Fer. is usually dry, spasmodic, and may be accompanied by expectoration of blood, especially if there is the symptom of rush of blood to the chest; when blood is expectorated it is generally bright red and associated with great weakness.

Chest.—Consumption of lungs. Sticking all over; through lungs; in side under rib; in r.; r. side, with bruised feeling in neck; in sternum at night in bed; in side during exercise; wandering, in breast. Sticking cutting. Contractive cramp; on moving, and coughing. Pain; < full inspiration; below sternum; superiorly under sternum, with catarrh and cough; with sticking and tension between scapulae and inability to move; and in liver; in r. side and in liver and kidneys, with constant desire to urinate; revival of an old P. in l. lung. Drawing pain; and around heart. Heavy pain across upper, causing uneasy breathing; heavy sore pain below l. nipple. Bruised pain. Pain in l. clavicle as if it had fallen asleep. Oppression. Tightness, with anxious asthma, < walking. Fulness. Heaviness; in upper part of l. lung, making breathing difficult, with soreness below clavicle and l. nipple, preventing a long breath. Rush of blood with hot vapor out of windpipe, sweetish taste as of blood and hæmoptysis. Burning at upper part of sternum after coughing. Sensation of dryness and mucus, the D. > transiently by drinking.

Heart and Pulse.—Bruit de souffle now and then. Tension in præcordial region. Rapid action of heart. Palpitation, < movement. Pulse slow, diminished in fulness, with rise of tonus in walls of arteries and rapid action of heart; S. and hard; S., full, tense; S. and tense; S., small, tense. Tense. Small, weak, sometimes intermittent, sometimes uneven pulse. Pulse scarcely perceptible.

Clinical.—Palpitation, sensation of oppression about the heart, sometimes with a full but soft pulse. In anemia we may have anæmic murmur of the heart with palpitation.

Neck.—Chronic glandular swelling. Pain; when lying on r. side, and in shoulder. Drawing extending from nape into head, in which there are then shooting, roaring and rushing. Soreness as if bruised. Soreness and stiffness; and in occiput. Stiffness, with coldness of hands and feet, < hands.

Back.—Tearing when sitting and lying; between scapulae when sitting, < when walking. Pain during menses. Sticking in scapulae if she works a little with her hands. Tension between scapulae and in sternum, preventing raising the arms, a kind of paralysis. Sticklike jerks in sacrum when walking, extending more towards the hips than upward, < after sitting or standing, almost as if strained. Pain in small of B.; in kidney region; on each side of sacrum at its junction with the ossa innominata; in sacrum on rising from a seat. Lumbago in l. loin; lumbago all night, > rising. Bruised pain in sacrum. Soreness in small of B. on rising, with rumbling in abdomen.

Clinical.—Rheumatism of the back; lumbago, > walking slowly, as are most of the pains of Fer.

Extremities.—Swelling of hands and legs up to knees. Fingers and toes drawn up with cramp and painful. Pain in joints. Pain from touch. Soreness, with languor and restlessness. Heaviness; and exhaustion; and general exhaustion. Stiffness of fingers and toes.

Upper Extremities.—Shoulder. Creaking in r. joint, with bruised pain on touch, and shooting and tearing down through upper arm, inability to raise the arm; C. in joint and on touch bruised feeling. Downward-shooting, and in arms, more severe than the shooting upward. Shooting and tearing from joint into upper arm and farther down, so that the arm cannot be raised. Boring passing down to finger-ends; in r. joint, < at irregular intervals, passing down biceps to elbow, < motion, > heat. Pain, and in neck; pain alternately in S. and elbow. Soreness in front part of r. and in r. arm; S. on touch.

Arm.—Pinching in r. deltoid (see Sang.). Pain, > bending them towards the chest, < motion and weight of bed-covers, with stiffness. Drawing, whereby it feels heavy and paralyzed. Lameness of r., with disinclination to move it, involuntarily assisting it with the l. hand. Irresistible desire to move them; at 2 A.M., then pain driving him out of bed. Stiffness; with pain; with soreness. Fixed in an upright position, with general trembling and chilliness.

Sticking in l. elbow; in l. wrist and back of hand, thumb most painful when moving it. Sprained pain in l. wrist. Swelling of hands, then desquamation. Trembling of hands in morning on trying to work; in evening, preventing sewing; T. when writing, write better when writing fast. Soreness and stiffness of hands. Numbness of hands, with swollen sensation; l. nearly numb, r. cold. Cramp in fingers, with numbness. Pain in thumb on motion; P. in fingers from shoulders; rheumatic P. in phalangeal joints of l. hand. Stiffness of r. thumb, with pain on motion.

Clinical.—It seems to have an especial affinity for the deltoid just above the insertion of the biceps, where there is pain causing inability to move the arm or fingers. Severe muscular pains about the shoulder-joint, extending to the elbow, particularly worse in l. shoulder.

Lower Extremities.—Weakness. Tonic spasm of thigh and leg. Shooting and tearing from hip-joint down tibia, < in evening in bed, he must get up and walk, with bruised pain on touch; a kind of paralysis, shooting and tearing from hip-joint to tibia and sole (the ball is always painful on touch as if bruised), by day he cannot step on account of pains, which, however, diminish when he walks, < in evening after lying down, so that he must get up and walk till midnight. Paralytic pain in thigh when sitting, after sitting crouched for some time she has to stretch the feet, the pain < rising from her seat, > walking. Distress in thighs during menses. Thighs feel as if asleep. Numbness of thighs.

Knee.—And ankles swollen and painful, < extending knee in bed. Contractive pain, and in ankles. Pain as if overfatigued, so that he cannot keep them still. Weariness in hollows on rising from a seat, < beginning to walk; W. so that he sinks down.

Leg.—Trembling, with bruised pain on walking. Cramp in calf in morning on rising; cramp in calves when standing, > when walking. The varicose vein in l. continued to extend downward, more painful to touch. Sensation in l. as of a swollen vein, painful on touch, sometimes inconvenient when walking. Acute pain like the moving of a screw through r. on walking. Contractive pain in tibia and calf, like cramp, on beginning to walk. Bruised pain in morning in bed, > rising. Painful drawing. Weakness of calves as if bruised.

Foot.—Swollen to ankles. Varicose veins. Cramp in r.; C. > pressing them against the footboard; in soles; frequent, in soles and toes; in evening, first in l., drawing up the limb. Shooting pricking in r. instep. Pain in heel; extending from r. into thigh. Soreness and stiffness. Has to take off the boots. Weariness after eating. Will not support her. Stiffness after resting from a walk.

Clinical.—Rheumatic or neuralgic pain through the whole extent of the lower limb, > moderate motion.

Skin.—Pale. Icteric around eyes, lips and nails. Dark herpetic spots on dorsum of hand inflame and suppurate. Round red itching spot on r. shoulder, which peels off like dust in the evening and night. Peeling off like dust from l. hand. (Scarlatina during desquamation corresponds to the peeling of the skin.) Burning pain when not touched, on dorsum of thumb, of toes, etc., with smarting on light touch. Itching in eyebrows; of nose; above r. knee, with sticking stabbing.

Sleep.—Yawning in morning, stretching, and eyes fill with water; frequent Y. Sleepiness; after dinner at noon, with dullness and headache over root of nose and inability to undertake mental employment; in evening, and thirst; almost impossible to keep awake when reading. Heavy sleep in morning till 9 A.M., from which he can scarcely rouse himself. Sound sleep, with unpleasant dreams.

Restless sleep; and lying awake a long time, but not tired in the morning; and dreamy, with emissions. Anxious tossing about after midnight. Light sleep. Late falling asleep. Waking every hour and light slumber; repeated W., with quiet sleep only after 2 A.M. Almost entire sleeplessness, waking in quarter of an hour bathed in sweat, with prostration, epigastric anxiety, feeling as if life were leaving her, then nervous excitement. Sleeps with half-open eyes. Sleeps on her back, cannot sleep on either side.

Dreams disturb sleep, weariness in morning on rising. Vivid D.; and anxious. Nightmare. Unpleasant D.; all night of friends and relatives deceased. D. of old friends, disturbing sleep; of meeting old schoolmates, of student life, etc. D. that he is in battle, that he has fallen into the water, etc. Confused D.

Fever.—Chilliness all day; in morning, with headache; in afternoon, so that he must go to bed; in afternoon, then fever; in afternoon, then thirst, must go to bed, then heat with sweat; between 1 and 2 P.M.; at 5 P.M., then fever; in evening in bed; then heat at 3 P.M., with sweat; all day, < afternoon, then feverish in evening, then chill after going to bed; not > sweat after rapid walking. Creeping chill at noon; C. chill beginning at 7 A.M., < in back. Rigor in evening before sleep without external coldness, chilliness all night; (R., and during the chill his face got glowing hot). Chill in back. Cold hands and feet; and numb, not > walking though there was sweat; C. and stiff hands. Cold feet; on getting into bed, lies awake some time; all night, and numb; with stiff fingers; with heat of head. Toes cold and painful.

Ebullition of blood by day and heat in evening, < hands. Heat; at 3 P.M.; after the siesta; with sweat at 8 P.M., after thirst; after beer-soup, with anxiety; > at 7 P.M.; without thirst; in flushes, as if sweat would break out; internal, with external coolness and sensation as if the face were swollen; in body, with red cheeks, but the head was free; in palms; soles; (of face in morning).

Sweat; by day when walking and sitting; mornings; in morning after rising, relieving the head; at night, with weariness; frequent, in slumber about midnight; on alternate days from daybreak till towards noon, each time preceded by headache; during digestion, with anxiety; of peculiar odor.

Clinical.—Fer. produces a decided type of fever and many symptoms of chills and fever; there is certainly general coldness, especially of the extremities, though the head may be hot and the face red; sometimes there is persistent heat of the palms and soles; there is also profuse sweat, which is very debilitating. It has been prescribed for protracted intermittent fever, especially after the abuse of quinine, with swelling of the spleen, general anemia and dropsical swellings of the face or feet. In many cases of fever the Fer. patient feels worse while sweating (Merc.).

Ferrum Iodatum.

Fresh, pure Iodide of Iron is triturated for use.

Generalities.—Pain in and between shoulders, in nape and in joints of lower limbs. Weakness; all day, with weary, bruised sensation in all limbs, < legs and calves; all night, with bruised sensation; with sleepiness. Indolence in evening, with sleepiness and bruised feeling in limbs, < calves.

Head.—Aching; < evening; < a warm room, on stooping, shaking head, walking rapidly, reading, writing, etc., > open air, a draught, cold air and towards evening; confused, < forehead, < r. side, < putting on hat, reading, writing, etc., > open air, sitting down or standing in a draught. Confusion, < forehead; with heaviness, the aching < smoking. Drawing tearing through forehead above eyes. Pain in forehead; above and between eyes, < going to bed.

Nose.—Stopped coryza; at night, so that he must sleep with open mouth, suddenly > between 5 and 6 A.M.; > towards noon. All symptoms of coryza, profuse discharge of mucus from nose and frequent expectoration of mucus from larynx and trachea.

Mouth and Throat.—Tongue coated yellow. Tongue burns. Dryness. Taste insipid; > after breakfast; and bitter at back of mouth; pasty T.; T. of peppermint; bad in morning. Hawking of mucus, with cough and expectoration. Frequent rattling of mucus in throat and expectoration of mucus. Tickling and scraping in throat and nose, with sensation as if he would suffocate and necessity to hawk in order to raise mucus from throat. Indescribable sensation, not painful, along œsophagus.

Stomach.—Appetite diminished. Did not relish smoking. Eructations after eating; violent, after supper, with nausea; frequent E., with constant inclination to eructate. Nausea. Heat, and in intestines.

Abdomen.—Rumbling; towards morning, before stool, with gurgling; before stool; before stool, with pain. Emission of flatus smelling of iodine. Pain in evening, < after eating; P. before a small light stool; > by light yellow diarrhoea; > after a natural yellowish-brown stool mixed with black portions; with urging to stool, then a dark stool; < about middle, with flatulence and urging; usually beginning about umbilicus and extending downward about r. side. Sore pain before stool, with rumbling. Soreness; in evening, with pulsation; < after eating, with pain.

Rectum.—And in anus, sensation all day as if something turned in a circle, and something like drops of water flowed down, and as if a screw bored upward and downward. Constriction as if worms were in it, < in anus, while stool was easy and painless. Peculiar crawling and tickling all day, and < in anus. Urging, with drawing pain from above umbilicus down r. side, then a small, hard, yellowish-brown stool; ineffectual U.

Stool.—Light yellow diarrhoea morning and evening, preceded by pain. Soft, small, light brown, with much urging and pressing. Hard and small, with sticking and constriction in anus during its passage. Black. Scanty.

Urinary Organs.—Frequent and profuse micturition, urine light, of sweetish smell; F. and P. micturition, with pain in whole urethra. Pain in urethra in evening during frequent but scanty micturition; P. in urethra, on urinating, then in the whole penis; in urethra during micturition, with soreness and with frequent desire. Prickling itching in urethra, < forepart, with frequent urging, but little urine at a time. Peculiar crawling tickling all day in urethra and especially in rectum. Sensation in morning as if urine remained in fossa navicularis and could not be forced any farther. Urine dark; with a thick white sediment. Urine bright yellow in evening, smelling sweetish, with milky sediment.

Clinical.—It has proved wonderfully efficient in acute nephritis following the exanthemata.

Sexual Organs.—Frequent erections all night; erection waking him, with pain and burning in the whole urethra, but inability to urinate from tenesmus of neck of bladder, though there was a violent urging.

Clinical.—Uterine congestion, with great bearing down, with feeling as if something sore were being pushed up when sitting down. Uterine displacements, retroversion and prolapsus, with atony, difficulty in retaining urine. Suppression of menses.

Respiratory Organs.—Cough, with expectoration of grayish-white, tenacious mucus drawn out in threads; irritation in afternoon to cough and to expectorate, with much mucus in throat. Short breath, necessity to take a deep breath, oppression of chest and pressure beneath sternum.

Chest.—Sudden sharp sticking, extending outward from l. nipple to arm at 11 A.M., < pressure, returning frequently in afternoon and evening. Intermittent sharp pain. Pain in sides; in evening on respiration, and deep in abdomen and in region of spleen (where it was more like a stitch). Oppression, < inspiration; O., more in upper part of lungs; O., with expectoration of thick yellow mucus; with necessity to breathe deeply, which caused soreness; as from a weight. Congestion of lungs.

Pulse.—Rapid.

Back.—Pain in small of, and in kidneys; < evening; < evening, and extending farther downward; in lumbar vertebrae, extending to lower part of spine, small of back and kidneys.

Extremities.—Painful drawing in tendons on back of r. hand and l. foot. Weakness, with bruised sensation and great aversion to moving. Paralyzed and bruised sensation, < legs; in r. arm in evening, with weariness, so that he must stop writing. Rheumatic bruised sensation in upper arms, < r. Rheumatic paralyzed feeling in r. upper arm and r. shoulder. Bruised, paralytic feeling in thighs, extending to knees, which are heavy, the legs feel much lighter in proportion, in the afternoon this paralytic sensation extends into calves, even r. tibia is painful. Rheumatic pain in back of l. foot in evening, extending to pelvis.

Sleep.—Sleepiness in morning after a long sleep at night, with no desire to rise. Frequent waking, with urging to urinate and pain on micturition. Restless night, with frequent waking, many dreams and easy erections; R. sleep, with dreams of long-past events. Dream that I had grown very large and was from thirty to fifty feet high, everything about me seemed small and insignificant, the bedstead was too small and short, and waking with a paralyzed sensation, and hands and feet could not rest. Dreams of thieves and of fighting with them, waking him. D. towards morning that he met many acquaintances, each of whom complained of a different indisposition.

Fever.—Coldness from 9 to 10 A.M. and again in afternoon; C. at 10 A.M., after 12 the pulse was 84, with sleepiness and soreness in small of back and kidneys; about noon, some fever at 3 P.M., then rapid pulse, next day C. between 12 and 1 with sleepiness, at 3.30 P.M. rapid pulse with heat. Heat beginning at noon, < 3 P.M., with hot skin, > 4 P.M. and pulse decreased, skin moist and profuse, sweat only on forehead; H. in afternoon; H. without sweat.

Ferrum Phosphoricum.

The pure Phosphate of Iron is triturated for use.

Generalities.—Malaise all the evening. Weariness in morning on waking; at 1 P.M. (not having eaten since breakfast), with desire for brandy.

Mind.—Hasty, intolerant feeling in afternoon. Impetuous feeling in evening, yet obstacles cause hindrance and annoyance and trifles seem like mountains, intolerant of hindrance and annoyance. Annoyed at the conversation of fellow-passengers in street-car, < when earnest or excited, > afternoon. Shrinking and timid at hearing cross words about an absent stranger. Soothing, pleasant effect from walking in a quiet part of the city after dark, ceasing on returning to the bustle of the central streets. Inertia, indifference to ordinary matters, craving for brandy without real muscular debility. Loss of courage and hope early in evening, > sleep.

Head.—Feeling as from insufficient sleep, fell asleep at my table at 4.30 P.M. Pain all day, < r. side, < first thinking of it; P. from r. brow to r. ear when reading; in r. side. Sharp twinges of pain over whole l. side at 11 P.M.; from r. vertex to r. supra-orbital foramen in afternoon. Aching dulness extending from vertex towards orbits and sides of head as a pressure, < holding head down when writing, > when walking, but when walking in the street more in occiput, and when rising, walking, etc., most in vertex, as the force of the circulation most impinges, it always seems in subcutaneous cavities. Pain in posterior part of base of skull in afternoon at every concussion (as of coughing or even sudden and hard smacking of lips).

Clinical.—Symptoms of meningitis of the brain, suffused eyes, full, soft pulse, with drowsiness and heaviness. Violent headache, throbbing, followed and > by nosebleed. Violent headaches during menstruation; the head is extremely sensitive to pain (compare Fer. met.).

Eyes and Ears.—Smarting in edges of r. lids. Neuralgia at l. inner brow and down l. side of nose, in evening when riding. Sharp aching at outer edge of l. orbit, as if in bone, at 7.30 P.M., on r. side at 8.30. Sticking in r. ear; on going to bed, extending as a headache above periosteum of that side.

Clinical.—Encysted tumor of the eyelids. Inflammation of the external ear, with mucopurulent discharge, ear red and swollen, mastoid process swollen and sore.

Nose and Face.—Lips blue after a tepid sponge bath. Grumbling in l. lower jaw, near filled molar. Smarting in r. anterior nasal passage; r. posterior nasal passage < inspiration, > expiration.

Mouth and Throat.—Increase of the usual light coat on tongue, with yellowish tint increasing towards the base. Liberation of pharyngeal, tracheal and nasal mucus. Working down of phlegm behind velum palati, also loosening from below.

Clinical.—Sore throat, catarrhal affections of the Eustachian tube and ears, especially in singers.

Stomach.—Indifferent to food on sitting down to supper, but ate heartily. Thirst for cold water and for brandy in morning; for brandy on rising in morning after studying till 2 A.M., took a teaspoonful with good effect; for ale at 1 P.M., at 3 P.M. no desire for dinner but for brandy, if he took a teaspoonful, he then ate with relish, the same desire before breakfast. Irritating, greasy eructation. Hiccough at noon after sitting bent towards the floor; H. when respiration compressed the stomach and afterwards. Nausea in morning on rising. Heartburn at 9.30 P.M. when sitting bent forward reading, with eructations causing coughing and hemming, irritation in throat and behind left of mid-sternum, later eructations of gas and of greasy fluid provoking cough (had had stewed oysters and aromatic tea at supper). Pinching in epigastrium.

Clinical.—Dyspepsia, with loss of appetite, nausea and vomiting after eating, aggravation from acids, especially with pulsating headaches, profuse menses, restlessness, etc. Persistent vomiting of food, often before eating in the morning, in women.

Abdomen.—Emission of fetid flatus when standing leaning over the table, continuing when undressing. Pain in transverse colon; at 3 P.M.; at breakfast, when bending forward, repeated when standing, using arms moderately towards the left. Threatening of diarrhoea from colon to rectum.

Stool and Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Stool soft, yellow, easy. Urine pale, copious, in cool weather; in warm weather, and limpid, less copious and darker in cooler weather; when pale there were several crystalline forms, the principal being hexagonal plates answering to cystin, and tablets answering to uric acid and chloride of sodium.

Clinical.—Hæmorrhoids. Cholera infantum, with red face, full, soft pulse; stools watery or even bloody, after checked perspiration. Hemorrhage from the bladder. Irritable or inflamed bladder, with frequent urging. Retention of urine, with fever, in children. Ovarian neuralgia. Dysmenorrhœa, with sacral pains, headache, frequent urging to urinate, pains in l. ovary.

Chest, Heart and Pulse.—Pain in C. in morning. Oppression of l. C. and stomach from indignation. Palpitation when sitting; when sitting writing. Pulse accelerated.

Clinical.—Its action upon the respiratory organs may be clearly foreshadowed by the provings of Fer. and Phos.; like Fer., it is indicated in congestions of the respiratory organs, even when there is considerable fever, especially notice that the oppression and dyspnea, both of which are extremely marked in Fer. and Phos., are duplicated in this chemical compound and afford good indications for its use; so, in a general way, symptoms of oppression like Phos., with the evident fever and congestion of Fer., should be treated by this drug; the cough may be short, dry and hacking, or even paroxysmal; there may be expectoration of blood, either streaked or clear.

Neck and Back.—Pain in neck in morning. Pain in l. lower lumbar region when walking bent forward; in sacro-iliac symphysis at 1 P.M. on walking in the street after standing, > pressure. The habitual aching in dorsal spine (< standing or sitting, > walking or leaning back against chair) is increased, also > change of position. Tired feeling in r. lumbar region in evening when sitting in church.

Extremities.—Rheumatic feeling in r. wrist after writing, extending downward in dorsal tendons, < rest, then the pain ebbs and flows, when writing it sometimes extends up forearm, < dorsal and ulnar aspects, on rising felt in little finger to first phalanx, > warmth and wrapping.

Clinical.—In articular rheumatism, especially of the shoulder, the pains extend to the upper part of the chest; and of the hands, which are swollen and painful, or of the knee, with severe pain, or of the ankle, with shooting pain.

Sleep and Fever.—Drowsiness at 4.30 P.M., felt much in eyes, extending up into head, necessity to take a nap. Sensitiveness to cool air; at noon; all the evening. Dry heat of palms; when sitting, and of face; D. heat of face, hands, throat and upper chest at 6 P.M.

Clinical.—There may be heat, with quick, soft pulse, thirst and sweat, which does not relieve the patient (Fer.).

Fluoricum Acidum.

For use, 1 part of the pure acid is dissolved in 99 parts of water and preserved in gutta-percha vials. This should be well diluted before taking.

General Action.—It is an irritant to mucous membranes and a profound tissue remedy. Indicated in deep destructive processes (periosteal, ossous and connective tissue generally affected.) It also seems to affect the veins and restore their tone.

Alies.—Boron (Borax and Boracic acid), Silicon (Silicic acid, Silica).

Generalities.—Writhing about in indescribable agony, Motion of hands, fingers, toes, feet, jaws, lips, eyebrows, lids, muscles of face, etc.; fond of movement of the whole body when sitting. Pain, < hand, arm to elbow and in foot, with lameness; transient P. in different parts in evening, in neck, knee, r. forearm, l. leg, r. foot, r. shoulder and l. arm, sometimes below, sometimes above elbow; erratic, in l. half of body, in arm, chest, nates, etc., with itching; jerking, in different parts, behind l. ear, on l. middle finger and in small of back; jerking burning, almost boring, in a small spot; burning, at 9 P.M. in different places, < externally, on thighs, l. upper arm, fingers, etc.

Shaking sensation in forenoon when sitting, with pressure and compression in occiput, < towards r. side, with internal numbness in l. forearm and pricking in it on stretching it. Sensation almost like rush of blood, though rather as if caused by the nerves, somewhat like numbness and confusion or burning, in r. side of forehead, then in r. sides of jaws, in posterior half of occiput, in bladder, and so on in various places. Lame-ness. Lassitude; in forenoon; at night when walking; sudden, in evening. Many symptoms worse when standing, though better when standing than when sitting; S. < r. side; during rest; in the room when reading or writing; as soon as she rises. Amelioration on motion, on walking; pains > after breakfast, except pain in head on motion of it.

Clinical.—It has been used in typhoid fever, especially for the bed-sores, and in tabes dorsalis and in other diseases where there has been tendency to decubitus. In a general way it is a remedy for an unhealthy condition of the tissues in broken-down constitutions, as in drunkards, varicose veins, bed-sores, syphilitic destruction of tissues, exostoses and bone-pains; diseases of the bones generally; also in diseases of the skin, ulcers, various spots, naevi, lupus-like tubercles. The symptom of necessity for energetic and rapid motion, "It seems as if she could walk forever," has been relied upon as a marked indication for the drug in numerous diseases, for example, tumors, felons, etc.

Mind.—Satisfaction. Enjoyment of everything. Gaiety next morning. Sensation as if daemons menaced him. < during pressure in occiput, during the staggering, pain in bladder, etc., without fear. Anxiety so that sweat frequently breaks out. Ill-humor. Discontent in evening, but joy in the morning after a restless night. Ungovernable anger when considering what might happen. Hatred, which he vents in words, but a suddenly altered view as soon as he sees the people. Dissatisfaction, with discomfort in abdomen. Aversion to his business. Disposition when alone to repulsive fantastic imagination, especially in regard to people with whom he is connected, for example, that he must get rid of all servants, children must go out of the house, a betrothal must be broken off, a marriage must be dissolved, etc. Indifference. Mistakes r. and l. in making notes. Writes December for August daily though memory is good. Forgets the most common things. If his ideas are interrupted by other thoughts he cannot recall the former, or only slowly and stupidly. Peculiar rush of memory every morning. Attention difficult to fix. Comprehension of philosophical works difficult, but facts appear clearer.

Head.—Aching, with nausea and vertigo. Pressure outward; P. in brain, extending upward. Contractive pain, then beneath r. scapula. Confusion. Dulness in morning till breakfast; in morning, with drawings in r. side of head; D., sensation as if brain were pressed upward. Heaviness till going to bed, he wakes with it in the morning, > 9 A.M.; H., with pain deep in middle of forehead. It seems to proceed from throat to head, feeling as if he would be struck by apoplexy, a kind of determination of blood to head and unconsciousness, he could not remember where he was. Determination of blood, with heat in forehead, increasing to pain in os frontis. Stunning sensation, < in front. A kind of shaking in forenoon, after 10, < occiput, and more towards r., at first when sitting, then < every quick, short movement, on rising, turning, during walking. Vertigo in morning on rising, lasting when walking or sitting, then eructations and nausea.

Forehead.—Shooting in l. Pain; in upper part of F. and vertex, towards r.; in morning on waking; in r. side in forenoon; over r. brow in forenoon; at noon in frontal and parietal bones, on lying down she feels it all over; in l. side in evening; in r. protuberance in evening; in r. side of sinciput and in r. eye in evening after lying down; in sinciput on stooping, with pressing on r. eye. Compressing pain in r. protuberance. Heavy pain; in upper part of sinciput in evening < stooping, sometimes passing to upper part of temples, < to l. Heaviness above eyes, < motion, with nausea. Painful, quick determination of blood to sinciput in evening on beginning to walk after standing, not after sitting.

Pain in temples; l.; in l., proceeding from within; quick, throbbing P. in r. at 8.30 P.M. on bending head, as in stooping. Pressure outward in temples; in l. Pain like a contraction on vertex towards the right in forenoon, then under r. scapula.

Parietals.—Sharp, darting pain like a prolonged electric shock, or compression of ulnar nerve, from near posterior superior angle of r. bone to r. mastoid process. Shooting, undulating pain from l. side about middle of head and near sutura interparietalis to l. temple near exterior part of orbital cavity, causing an idea of impending danger, this pain shoots about for two seconds, but the undulation lasts longer. Pain in course of l. coronal suture in morning; P. in parietal bone, extending to r. mastoid process; P., a partial fullness, as if something were lying on l. bone. Dulness and painful tension towards r. side of head. Drawing in r. side of head.

Cramp deep in l. side of occiput. Pinching in lowest l. side of occiput in morning after waking. Pressure in occiput beneath protuberances; P. in r. side; sudden intermittent pain in l. side. Dulness of occiput; r. Hair tangled, unless frequently combed. Itching. Desire to scratch without itching, with great falling of hair.

Clinical.—Alopecia areata. Falling of the hair. Caries of the skull, < temporal bones.

Eyes.—Quivering externally in r., then burning shooting at bottom of orbit. Pain in r. Pressure upon r. when stooping. Burning. Itching; in l. as from a grain of sand. Affected so that he must wink and rub it. Lachrymation. Pupils contracted. Quivering above l. external canthus. Lids feel as if forced open, and as if in a wind, then sensation like sand in balls, which felt inflamed. Pricking in internal canthus, with burning. Itching of upper lids and inner canthi; upper lids in evening; I. in l. internal canthus; in r. internal C. in evening. Pain behind r. eye; deep above and behind l., occasionally in evening; behind l., extending far into upper jaw, at 1 o'clock, the same behind r. between 5 and 6 P.M.; in bone behind l., towards temple, in l. nostril and in forehead, as if something pointed were forced deep into it at 1 P.M. Throbbing in bone above and behind r. brow. Drawing around r. eye in evening.

Pleasant sensation as if lids were wider open or eyes were more prominent, vision clearer, and he feels a kind of luxurious enjoyment when looking at things he sees every day. Inclination in morning to go without glasses, though his shortsightedness was no better, it was very irksome to bring objects near the eyes. Vision of a large, bright ring on closing eyes firmly in evening. V. of a light crossing itself like lightning in evening in bed. V. of red sparklings crossing each other in all directions on closing eyes after going to bed, then red, flaming, trembling, > opening eyes.

Clinical.—Lachrymal fistula. Chronic inflammation of the lachrymal sac, < cold air.

Ears.—Sticking in r. Jerking behind l. Pain in r.; behind r., extending upward; about r. in forenoon, as if ringing in ear would begin; peculiar P. in l., > stirring in with finger, with itching. Itching in r., then l. Sensitiveness of hearing increased in morning.

Clinical.—Otorrhea, with hardness of hearing.

Nose.—Pain on l. side, nose had not been sore or painful for several months; sudden P. in l. side after some emissions. Sore feeling, < towards l. side. Crawling. Feeling as from a bad cold. Sneezing in afternoon; violent S. seven times in morning, with scanty discharge of thin mucus from nose, salivation and sensation in nose as from very cold weather. Suddenly full of mucus in morning on rinsing mouth with cold water, as quickly passing over. Coryza; in frequent attacks, suddenly appearing and disappearing, coryza > excitement; fluent, and on r. side, with crawling before sneezing; fluent, at night in sleep or next morning, after drinking red wine in evening, constant dropping and stoppage of nose; sudden fluent, all day after drinking ale in evening, suddenly disappearing; sudden tickling fluent, all day after ale in evening.

Clinical.—Chronic nasal catarrh and ozæna.

Face.—Appears to have become suddenly old, he sees in the glass superficial whitish, puffy folds beneath the eyes, extending towards nose, etc., without discontent thereat. Constant motion of muscles. Spasmodic sensation in zygomatica at 5 P.M., drawing towards larynx. Jaw, gnawing near angles; pain in r. upper, with heat, reflected in lower; drawing pain in r. lower, towards the middle; peculiar sensation near bone of r. lower in evening, with drawing in entire r. limb; sensation in r. joint as if a spasm would occur; cramplike confusion in joints, < l.; warmth in r. upper, with confusion; burning pain on outside of r. lower, near first or second molar; numbness in r. joint, with warmth and sensation as if it would begin to pain. Lips warm; burning like a sore near inner edge of lower, towards the right.

Mouth.—Teeth. Digging in a r. lower incisor. Pain in l.; l. lower; P. in a r. tooth disappears for a moment and jumps to outer part of l. thigh above knee; P. on r. side, extending to outer part of l. thigh above knee; in r. eye-tooth in evening; in a r. upper carious incisor in evening from the cold air of the room; so that he could not bite upon the teeth. Drawing in l. lower. R. eye-tooth, which was once rough but afterwards smooth, is now rough and begins to ache, < at upper part of root, and along roots of upper teeth there is pain on pressure, < evening, temporarily > cold water. Bluntness; with sticking, contraction and tension, then the mucous membrane of mouth became whitish and peeled off. Lower incisors feel sharp, as if broken, and pain on touch of tongue. Warm feeling, < l. upper, especially incisor and canine, then warmth in pharynx. Acrid offensive taste coming from the roots; acrid putrid T. from root of r. upper incisor, on which an artificial tooth is fixed, in morning; like ink in evening, from a l. lower. Pain where the roots of l. teeth had been taken out. (Painful excoriation near first r. lower molar.)

Prickling of tongue, with salivation, afterwards with smarting of palate as if something acrid had been gargled, tenderness in larynx and soreness in throat on coughing to clear it. Painful ulcer in r. angle of jaw. Contractions, with pricklings and sour taste. Pain as from hot water, teeth so painful that he cannot chew. Sensation during a walk as if the passage to nose were wide open. Dryness in evening of l. half of palate and roof. Greasy feeling. Salivation > after headache began; and a sensation as if head were too heavy and would drop from one side to the other, a pressure outward; tenacious S. on waking at night, before diarrhoea; viscid, tasteless S. on waking at 2 A.M., with burning pinching in stomach and sensation of flatulent distention, < emission of wind, after a copious pappy stool the pains concentrate in umbilical region, the pain > after the stool but returns, a second stool with pain in umbilical region, and a pasty one at 7 A.M. Taste intolerable; T. salt in morning on waking, till breakfast; sweetish in throat at night; T. of what he has eaten, < afternoon.

Clinical.—Dental fistula, with persistent bloody, salty discharge, which keeps the mouth foul. Several cases of dental fistula and caries of the jaw-bone have been cured by this drug.

Throat.—Hawking of bloody mucus from low down. Constriction at first in afternoon, with difficult swallowing; C. in l. side; C., with pressure in stomach and fulness in epigastric region, disgusting eructations and nausea; with rumbling in abdomen, pressure and burning in stomach, eructations, retching, then constipation for two days. Soreness of pharynx, extending below larynx, swallowing bread is painful; S., with difficult swallowing, > after breakfast next morning, the same morning hawking from low down of much phlegm mixed with blood. Sensation posteriorly at entrance to oesophagus, < on l. side, as if raw, or as if an ulcer would form, in morning and forenoon, and when hawking he thought blood would come from it. Warmth; in fauces in morning. Swallowing difficult.

Clinical.—Goitre. Syphilitic ulcerations of the throat, with fetid smell, much tumefaction, throat very sensitive to cold.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; after diarrhoea; voracious. Good, but soon satisfied. Speedy satiety. A. diminished, he wants something "piquant." Thirst increased; at night. Longing for coffee. Aversion to coffee. Relishes wine no more. Eructations; in evening, with nausea; flat, nauseous, sour; frequent sour, in afternoon, with pyrosis and emission of flatus; sour, bitter after dinner. Nausea; with general heat; with vertigo and headache; with heaviness above eyes; without inclination to vomit, with dulness of head. Retching. Vomiting; difficult, several times, of clear, viscid fluid, with coagulated white pieces.

Stinging in l. great toe at night, with burning. Sharp intermittent pain in l. fourth toe, then burning pain behind ball of l. great toe, then pain in lower part of l. tibia.

Skin.—Creeping down back. Pricking stitches, <

in region of r. nipple, then on l. side of back, then on other parts. Tingling of l. fingers. Itching on scalp, arms, abdomen and whole trunk; at r. nipple; in l. palm; in l. axilla, then soreness with a sore place inwardly, afterwards the soreness, < scratching; in r. axilla, more outwardly, mornings, instead of in the inner and anterior part of l.; intermittent, on l. scapula and l. thigh near groin, in evening, night and next day, always > scratching; burning, in bend of l. knee, < at 9.30, the same sensation, which is a union of itching, burning and pressure, here and there on body.

Sleep.—Frequent yawning at 1 P.M., with necessity to stretch the limbs. Sleepiness, with heaviness of eyelids and inability to study; sudden S. after water-soup, and falling asleep in his chair, on waking he does not feel refreshed, but goes to bed and falls asleep at once. Sleeping easily in evening; easily falls asleep at night after being disturbed. He does not feel like getting up in morning, he has scarcely aroused himself when he falls asleep again. Can do with less sleep. Went to bed at 1 after drinking beer and wine in evening, woke at 3 and felt as if he had slept enough. Sleeplessness the first twenty-four hours, then alternations of waking and sleeping. Difficult falling asleep, with frequent waking on alternate nights. Sleep disturbed, night restless. Dreams lewd, with erections some nights; vivid, lewd, with erections and emissions; D. not unpleasant; a mouldy sausage in his room caused a D. that he saw a funeral procession with a large coffin and many smaller ones, the persons had died of scarlet fever, the procession almost came up with him and stopped at the corner, as he attempted to get out of the wind which blew from the procession he woke.

Fever.—Susceptible to cold; < walking against the wind in evening. Chill at night. Cold feet. Heat; < scalp; of hand and face; of palms; pressing burning in spots on skin. Clammy sweat on waking; disagreeable S. at night; copious S. after whisky.

Gambogia.

Gum Gamboge, obtained from Garcinia Hanburii, Hook. f., is dissolved in alcohol (1 to 9) for a tincture.

General Action.—A powerful drastic cathartic, often producing nausea and vomiting.

Ally.—Aloe.

Generalities.—Sticking, < evening; burning, at times in fingers, at times in hand, also in malleoli, then over whole body; like a pinching over whole body. Pressure on head, stomach and chest. Congestion of head, chest, uterus. Feeling of ease and lightness in all movements. Faintness. Aggravation in evening or night; A. when sitting, amelioration on motion in open air; aggravation on r. side.

Mind.—Cheerful, talkative. Ill humor in morning on rising, with vehemence; I., with vexation, anxiety and desire to work, though the work does not advance as he would wish.

Head.—Pain in forenoon and beating in forehead towards nose; oppressive P. in afternoon, > open air, with heaviness in forehead or with general heat. Compressive pain; from both sides in forenoon. Heaviness, with inertia, drowsiness and pain in small of back. Vertigo in morning on rising, or in forehead when spinning (then anxiety). Heaviness in forehead in forenoon, with beating. Tearing in l. temple in afternoon. Stitches in r. side and in temples. Bruised pain in vertex in forenoon, > open air.

Eyes.—Burning in evening or afternoon, photophobia, both > walking in open air, but returning next morning. Itching in evening. Dryness, with redness of canthi; D. as from sleepiness, with yawning and sneezing. Nightly agglutination, burning in morning, photophobia through the day, and frequent stinging in eyes. Pressure in r. internal canthus as from a foreign body obliging rubbing. Itching of inner canthi (and in forehead), with acrid lachrymation after rubbing, > open air; I. of l. lower lid. Biting in external canthus, > rubbing. Dim vision of r. eye occasionally.

Ears.—Sticking. Deep-seated tearing in evening. Painful drawing from r. to vertex in forenoon. Throbbing pain in l. as in an abscess. Frequent ringing in morning. Frequent buzzing in afternoon and evening, > after a sensation as if a leaflet were bursting.

Nose.—Ulceration of r. nostril, with burning pain. Tearing in bones of dorsum. Itching of nostrils all night. Sneezing; violent chronic, only in daytime, < forenoon, < strong smells, with irritation in r. nostril, above wing of nose, dryness of r. nostril, the sneezing caused tearing in forehead, sticking in l. side, heaviness of lower limbs and flushes of heat all over body. Stopped coryza; then discharge of offensive mucus. Mucus smelling like pus. Haemorrhage, and from mouth and throat; bleeding from r. nostril in evening.

Face.—Tearing in r. malar-bone in evening and in r. lower jaw frequently during the day. Burning vesicle on inside of upper lip.

Mouth.—Tearing in r. molars and in gums, with sensation as if gums were sore and swollen. Beating in a r. lower molar in cold air. Cold feeling in tips of incisors. Burning in tip of tongue, which feels hard; B. in anterior half of T. Sensitiveness of palate like a smarting or soreness, > cold. Dryness. Salivation. Taste sweetish in mouth and throat, then expectoration of bright red blood; taste S. in throat, with expectoration of bloody mucus. Taste bitter.

Throat.—Tearing in tendons of sides of throat, with choking, lancinating tearing in throat under l. ear, < external pressure, descending to region of larynx, with stinging in throat when swallowing. Stinging in r. side in evening; S. on swallowing, > eating; S. in the goitre. Sore pain, which is felt on external touch. Swollen feeling internally. Sore burning posteriorly in fauces when not swallowing. Roughness and burning, causing constant hawking.

Stomach.—Violent hunger. Increased appetite and much thirst (loss of thirst in the first days of the proving). Aversion to food. Thirst after dinner, and < evening; violent T. in evening and at night, preventing sleep. Frequent, violent, empty eructations. Hiccough in morning after rising. Nausea; in morning on eating soup, > bread; when walking in open air, with salivation, gulping up of sour water and movements in stomach; with stomachache; with ptyalism and roughness in throat; then pinching in umbilical region and diarrhoea. Constant heaving, > dinner. Violent vomiting; horrid V. and purging, with faintness. Dartings. Gnawing, with movements of flatus in abdomen. Ulcerative pain, > eating, then rumbling in abdomen when walking in open air, and papaceous stool. Paroxysmal pressure in S. and chest at 3 and 9 P.M., impeding breathing. Pain as if sore, with sensitiveness to touch; with contraction.

Constriction after dinner. Beating, leaning against anything. Emptiness, and in abdomen. Weakness as after fasting, with salivation.

Abdomen.—Rumbling. Inflation and accumulation of flatus (Aloe); I. and tension, with pinching in umbilical region. Frequent emission of flatus, < evening and night. Inflammation of intestines. Cutting, with wanderings, then emissions of fetid flatus. Pinching after eating; immediately after eating, P. in abdomen or sleep; frequent P. without urging, or else succeeded by diarrhoea and burning in anus, after which the P. ceases. Flatulent sensation, < small of back, then urging. Burning and movement of flatus; painful B. in hepatic region. Pinching around umbilicus from morning till evening, with frequent urging to stool, and protrusion of rectum. Contraction at umbilicus; beneath U., with twisting and urging to stool. Gnawing in a spot beneath U. Sticking in groin, as from flatus. Sudden darting in G. when sitting. Pinching in G.; in r., as with a nail. Constriction deep in l. G. Tension in G.; when standing.

Anus and Stool.—Sticking in anus before stool. Ineffectual urging. Yellow and green diarrhoea, mixed with mucus, preceded by cutting around umbilicus (Aloe); repeated D., with discharge of green mucus, preceded by pinching in abdomen; D., with burning pain and tenesmus of rectum, protrusion of anus, and pinching around umbilicus, sometimes with discharge of flatus; watery, profuse, with colic and tenesmus; fecal, forcible, with burning in anus, preceded by cutting in abdomen, waking him about midnight, > compressing abdomen, which is small, as if eviscerated, awakened again by pain in back; with cutting; frequent, with burning and tenesmus. Frequent soft S., with rumbling in abdomen, or followed by pain about umbilicus and pinching. Soft, scanty S., with sensation as if arrested by a hard body in anus. Constipation. Hard, insufficient S., with urging and protrusion of rectum; hard, before midnight, then burning at anus and passage of a lumbricus or with sticking in groins and emissions of flatus. Repeated S., rather hard than soft, then a hard, then a soft stool. S. late in evening, with frequent emissions of flatus, which seems to press on bladder, causing stinging, hardness and tightness in region of bladder and shortness of breath.

Clinical.—The diarrhoea of Gambogia resembles that of Aloe in respect to the suddenness of the movements, which are expelled in one gush; the evacuations are thin, yellow, generally watery, or with some mucus, associated with burning in anus and protrusion, gripping below umbilicus, with sudden urging and sudden expulsion; the stool is followed by a feeling of great relief. Intense itching of the eyelids, so that children rub them frequently, is said to be a marked indication for the drug in diarrhoea.

Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Micturition rare: frequent, but little at a time: of one or three drops at a time, then intermitting and finally returning, with burning at orifice. Urine increased: scanty. Leucorrhoea. Menses too soon and too profuse.

Respiratory Organs.—Scraping in region of larynx at night, causing dry cough. Cough in afternoon, with hoarseness and hawking of mucus: C. < night, with soreness in chest: < night after lying down: violent, at night, with expectoration of loose mucus: dry, at night, forcing him to sit up: hacking and dry, in daytime.

Chest.—Sticking: in axilla, etc.: beneath r. mammary region; repeated S. in forepart of sternum, in afternoon and evening; intermittent, in forepart in afternoon and evening; deep in forepart in evening, alternating with S. in r. mamma; beneath C. in evening, then pressure in middle of chest, with want of breath; under l. axilla, > rubbing; in r. side, extending from ribs towards axilla, after carrying a heavy load, arresting breath. Digging in substernal region in evening, or gnawing. Pain, as if every part were sore, even when not coughing. Pressure in middle, with sticking from both sides towards each other; pressure upon C., not affecting breathing. Weight at night, preventing sleep. Oppression and heaviness, with sticking in back, < substocal regions. Tightness and heaviness, with sticking extending to back, < hypochondria. Choking sensation ascending into throat, arresting breathing.

Neck and Back.—Tearing in nape and l. shoulder; lancing T. in side of neck. Sticking in region of l. kidney; in r. sacral region; sudden, in sacral region, > walking. Bruised pain in small of back. Gnawing in os coccygis.

Upper Extremities.—Intermittent sticking in top of r. shoulder. Tearing in shoulders or in axilla, in tendons of extensor muscles of fingers, in ball of thumb and index and between metacarpal bones of index and middle fingers, so that the skin is drawn backward. Pinching in r. humerus. Sticking through palm to back of hand, then burning in hand; S. in last joint of l. index; in ball of r. thumb and middle finger, with numb feeling, then S. from palm through to back of hand and extending to forearm, with heat.

Lower Extremities.—Spasmodic condition. Sticking in bend of l. thigh. Tearing in l. hip; in bend of l. thigh, with drawing. Cramp in calf; > rubbing, with tearing and with contraction of toes. Sticking in l. calf. Tearing from middle of r. tibia, extending above knee; T. in tendo-achillis, with drawing as if too short. Pain along r. tibia in afternoon and evening in bed, with stiffness and with difficult stretching of foot. Bruised pain below l. patella with ulcerative pain on touch. Pressure as with a hand above l. externus malleolus, > pressing foot to the ground, with sensation as if asleep. Spasmodic constriction in region of r. externus malleolus and great toe, when walking, causing limping. Sticking in r. sole, < rubbing. Pinching in dorsum of r. foot, towards toes. Heaviness and languor of feet. Cramp in r. great toe when walking and in evening in bed. Sticking beneath r. great toe. Spasmodic tearing in two r. smaller toes.

Skin.—Pimple above orbit, with tense pain; P. on inside of forearms, with redness and itching in evening. Itching blister, pale, then red, on hands. Biting over whole body as from ants, < evening and at night, even walking. Itching, < evening and night, and after scratching generally a burning ulcerative pain, with swelling and redness; I. of ball of l. thumb; I. here and there on head, l. side of forehead, face, upper surface below elbow, ball of thumb, index, bend of foot, dorsum of hand; voluptuous, here and there over whole body, < evening and night, even waking, usually with burning, at times followed by redness and swelling.

Sleep.—Sleepiness all day. Uneasy sleep. Disturbed by anxious dreams. Vexatious, anxious D. D. about dancing, lice, etc.

Fever.—Chilliness all day or only in forenoon; in morning, with elongated sensation in anterior teeth; with chattering of teeth, thirst so that the lips stick together, but skin warm to touch; with empty eructations, yawning, thirst, pain in small of back, and biting as of ants over whole body (at night) or sticking in ears, in the beginning; sudden transient shaking C. waking him at night; internal and external, beginning at 6 to 8.15 P.M., lasting from a quarter to two hours or till 5 A.M., sometimes with thirst; shaking, from 7 P.M. till 4 A.M., proceeding from back, with external coldness, even of forehead; in l. temple in afternoon, as from a wet cloth. Remittent or intermittent, quotidian or tertian fever, rather postponing than anticipating. Heat in afternoon, with anxiety and sweat; H. in flushes; H. mounts to head, with sweat. General sweat in morning; on waking at 4 A.M.; at night.

Gaultheria.

A tincture is made of the fresh leaves of Gaultheria procumbens, L. (wintergreen).

Convulsions. Insensible, apparently in sound sleep, but could not be aroused for ten hours. Restlessness. Weakness. Hemiparesis of l. side and loss of power. Stupidity. Headache and noise in ears like the buzzing of bees. Dizziness; and drowsiness, then delirium. Contraction of pupils. Disturbance of vision when she was not delirious, with hallucinations of sight and hearing. Dulness of hearing. Tongue dry, smooth and swollen, so that speech was rather indistinct, mouth parched. Inability to speak. Beating of carotids increased in intensity. Uncontrollable appetite, notwithstanding the irritability of stomach. Vomiting; after supper of all the contents of stomach, the V. with retching continued all night whenever anything, as a cup of water, was given him; but she was nearly strangled by the contents of the stomach lodging in fauces. Gastritis. Pain in epigastrium and lower part of hypochondria, < pressure with finger. Cramp in epigastrium. Two copious stools at night. Urine contained salicylic acid. Pulse 125. Respiration labored; and quick; labored, slow, prolonged, loud but not stertorous. Sleep only prevented by strong currents of electricity. Cold limbs. Hot skin. Cold sweats.

Clinical.—The oil of wintergreen has been very largely used for both acute and subacute rheumatism. The plant itself contains salicylic acid, and to this fact may be due some of the beneficial effects of the drug. It has also proved useful in pleurodynia in the anterior part of the chest.

Gelsemium.

A tincture is made of the fresh root of Gelsemium sempervirens, Ait.

General Action.—It produces spinal convulsions and paralysis, lowering the force and rate of the heart, and finally paralyzing respiration. The paralysis of the oculo-motor nerve is noticeable, with double vision, ptosis, squint and vertigo. Consciousness is preserved to the last stage of life.

Allies.—Arg. nit., Cimicif., Nux vom., Ign., Con., Gran.

Generalities.—Lying on l. side. Trembling at noon, with general chill; T. in afternoon, with weakness; general, in afternoon, with tingling in legs; with profuse micturition (Arg. nit.); with anxiety. Sudden acute darting pains along single nerve branches in almost every part, at one time in quick succession down outside and front of tibia, leaving tenderness in its track. Pains fugitive or fixed, here and there; P. of a shifting character all day; erratic rheumatic (Cimicif.); drawing and aching, which seem to come from bones. Running in all nerves at noon, < fingers, and jumping as from ant-bites in finger-ends, nails blue half way to root. Unpleasant sensation at 10 A.M. when in a hospital, with weakness, pallor, nausea and trembling of lower limbs, > open air. Feeling as after "a fit of sickness;" in forenoon; feeling of general illness, as in fever.

Restlessness, with chill after breakfast. Feeling of lightness and sense of instability in whole body. Feeling of danger of stumbling or falling. Inclination to lie down. Weakness and trembling through whole system (Arg. n., Cimicif.); W. in morning, with vertigo; in afternoon; mental and physical in afternoon; in afternoon when reclining for the purpose of study, after sleeping an hour was unwilling to move, > stirring around; when reclining before a heavy shower, with drowsiness; < elevators of lower jaw and lids and muscles of arms; with emaciation; with muscular relaxation, convulsions, staggering, want of co-ordination through system; with diuresis and flaccidity and coldness of genitals; with irregular and slow breathing. Easy fatigue; < lower limbs. Sensation as if blood did not circulate. Relaxed muscles and motor paralysis. Paralysis; paralytic symptoms through muscular system, first in knee, then in inferior tibial region. Aggravation from any movement or touch of head or application of any fluid to lips, the dread of which nearly equalled that in hydrophobia.

Clinical.—General prostration and loss of muscular power, fear of making any effort, desire to be alone. Paralysis of various groups of muscles about the eye, throat, larynx, chest, sphincters, extremities, etc. Paralysis following diphtheria. Locomotor ataxia. Paraplegia. In general, hysterical spasms, a kind of hysterio-epilepsy. Puerperal convulsions. Convulsions from suppression of menses. Catarrhal affections of various mucous membranes, with a relaxed and debilitated condition of the system, especially in women. Neuralgias of various nerves, with loss of control over the part, pain in the muscles of the back, hips and lower extremities; the pains are mostly deep-seated.

Mind.—Uncontrollable mirth. Vivacity in morning after rising. Cheerful, careless, then depressed. Irritable, impatient. Anxious. Melancholy; all day, and stupid; in afternoon, with headache. Inability to think or fix the attention. Listlessness and languor. Dulness; > profuse micturition (Nux vom.). Listless and incapable of reflection, as after ague, with headache all day and digging in r. ear all the afternoon. Mistiness of brain, not affecting lucidity of thought, but confusing the perception. Stupid, intoxicated feeling; S. and averse to study; S. and disinclined to conversation. Aroused with difficulty. Semi-comatose. Unconsciousness.

Clinical.—The patient has lost control of his mental faculties, his ideas flow on in a disconnected fashion, the attempt to think connectedly causes a painful feeling in the head, dizziness, heat of the face, cold feet, etc.; on falling asleep the patient is apt to be delirious. In low types of fever the patient is generally stupid, desiring to be let alone; the mental faculties are either dull or there is great depression, with fear of death. This drug is frequently indicated in bodily ailments, especially diarrhoea, uterine symptoms, etc., resulting from emotional excitement, such as sudden bad news, fright, grief, etc. It has rarely been indicated in acute mania during the progress of melancholia; if so there is wild talking or singing.

Head.—Dropped forward with chin resting on breast from paralysis of parts. He cannot hold it erect. Bruised sensation (Nux vom.). Pain; after dinner, lasting till evening; after breakfast, < as the day advanced, in occiput, head > dinner, but < 4 P.M. and till evening, with nausea, head > shaking it; > sitting; in head and eyes, < moving eyes, generally in forehead, < just over eyes, some call it dulness over eyes, others a heavy pain, others a giddy pain; tendency to P. during the day, < ascending stairs; band-like, around head, with shooting in jaws and parietal bones; stupefying, < forehead and temples. Sensitiveness of brain, with sensation as if every step or sudden movement of head would cause pain, but it did not.

Dulness at 11 A.M.; D., with stupor, dry mouth, coated tongue, bitter taste, full and strong pulse, intoxication, vertigo to falling. Tightness of brain. Fulness; with throbbing and uneasiness of occiput; and excited or feverish feeling. Heaviness, > profuse micturition; H. in afternoon; of brain; with fulness, increasing to pain, > copious micturition, then pleasant languor of system. Discomfort. Lightness. Intoxicated feeling, with painless diarrhoea. Vertigo; after breakfast; < sudden movement of head and walking, with light-headedness; < standing; with blurred vision. Symptoms < smoking.

Forehead.—Stinging, with pressing in eyes as if too large and with external coldness of F. Shooting in sinuses, extending to eyes and jaws, with pricking from middle of eyes to canthi, < r. eye, where the pain rolled about; S. in middle in evening on turning eyes or head and on stooping, extending as far as half the brain; intermittent S. in middle in afternoon, extending as far as half the brain; S. inward in middle at noon; S. inward in middle in afternoon. Pain in F. and vertex; after sleep both in forenoon and evening; with dim vision, roaring in ears, sensation of enlargement of head, confusion, almost amounting to delirium, the headache was heavy and alternated with sharp laborlike pain in uterine region extending to back and hips; in l. frontal region, waking at 2.30 A.M., extending to r. occipital region and occasionally over whole head. Pressure as if too narrow, with pressing upon eyes as if too large; P. in sinuiput as if too narrow in morning on waking, > pressure of hand, necessity to close eyes. Bruised pain above and back of orbits. Fulness of sinuiput. Weight over F. Drawing over eyes; r. Vertigo in brows. Contracted feeling on centre of scalp.

Pain in r. temple, with vertigo, blurred vision and nausea; P. in T., at times in occiput, at times all over head. Pain on r. side of head; at breakfast; periodical P. extending from l. parietal protuberance to mastoid process. Pain in vertex, extending to occiput, with general vertigo and headache; P. in V. in afternoon when writing, then in l. occiput, on both sides and in upper cervical region, again on vertex, then in l. side, then dragging pain, < occiput, in mastoid and upper cervical region, extending to shoulder, > sitting, resting head and shoulders on a high pillow. Drawing on r. side of vertex towards occiput.

Occiput.—Pain: at 11 A.M.; during the day, < movement, especially stooping, < towards evening; at night, occasionally extending into os frontis (to vertex, Cimicif.); in r. side on rising, with tendency to throbbing, previously at breakfast cutting on l. side: with sensation as if the crown were lifted off in two pieces; heavy, at night. Numbness.

Clinical.—A large proportion of the conditions indicating Gel. have more or less vertigo, which is sometimes intense and associated with loss of sight and lack of muscular steadiness, so that the patient staggers when walking (Con.). Headache as from a band around head. The pain is mostly seated in the posterior part of the head, associated with muscular soreness of the neck, pain extending to the shoulders and spine, with dizziness. Blind headaches, the head feels large, confused and dizzy. Headaches at the base of the brain extending through the head to the eyes, < heat. General nervous headache, with soreness and pain extending into face and teeth or to shoulders, with attacks of blindness and dizziness. In cerebro-spinal meningitis, with extreme tenderness of the occipital region, intolerance of slightest motion, etc. Headaches generally > discharge of profuse watery urine (Ign., Nux v.). Menstrual headaches, with blurred vision, nausea and vomiting which relieved the headache. Headaches at the climacteric period, with drowsiness, vertigo, blurred vision, > profuse menstruation.

Eyes.—Suffused. Bloodshot. Inflamed and weak, with lachrymation at intervals. Yellow. Distended. Staring; with inability to raise lids. Strabismus. Dulness in forenoon. Pains extending deep downward in l. Sore at night, sensitive to light, and lachrymation; S. in evening as if a foreign body were irritating conjunctiva. Burning, with weak vision and heaviness in forehead; B. in forenoon as if too dry. Dryness. Heaviness as after night-watching. Pupils dilated; and insensible; and muscles of accommodation paralyzed and vision weak. Sclerotic congested. Continual twitching of balls (Zinc.). Sticking outward through l. ball. Aching in balls, < moving eyes, now and then shooting, sometimes < in one ball. Pain in orbits; with fulness.

Lids.—Drooping (Con.); < l.; with pain on attempting to open eyes widely, > closing them. Congested; in spite of him on looking steadily at anything; partially closed and motionless; half closed and apparent inability to move them. Swollen. A stitch traversing r. vertically. Difficult to open or to keep open. Heaviness; and congestion. Paralysis of upper lid and lower jaw, overflow of saliva from corners of mouth. Burning around r. inner canthus.

Vision.—Smoky, with pain above eyes. Dim; with vertigo; > by profuse watery micturition; for distant objects; or glimmering. Confused; after the morning stool, > by holding finger vertically before nose, or by closing either eye, with heavy-looking eyes; after a dessertspoonful of red wine; < evening; > evening. Blindness, with vertigo; almost B., and control over upper lid almost lost. Double; on raising head from stooping or on looking sideways; on inclining head to either side; controlled by effort of will; the images sometimes above each other, sometimes on a level, in one case preceded by weight under upper lid, the constant form of diplopia occurs only in upper half of field of vision, first with objects at extreme r. or l., then nearer the middle, and at last only in a median vertical plane, then D. disappeared in the inverse order, the outer lateral image was higher and the farther the object was carried to the r. or l. the greater the horizontal and vertical distances between the images, when a colored glass was placed before either eye the outer and higher image was seen by the covered eye, when the object was high above the head the images gradually coalesced and the object looked like a thread, with well-marked D. there is impaired movement of ball, affecting the rectus, < external, the ball oscillates when carried as far as the muscles are capable, the D. often changes rapidly, thus while on one side the outer image is higher, if the object is carried to the other side the inner image is higher, or first the outer, then the inner is higher.

Clinical.—Serous inflammations within the eyeball. Iritis, with serous exudation (descemetitis); choroiditis; detachment of the retina; retinitis, with hazy vitreous or extravasations of blood; retinitis in Bright's disease; in all these interocular inflammations there are generally dull aching pain in the eyeball and neuralgia about the eye. Paralysis of the muscles of the eye; of the upper lid and of the proper muscles of the eyeball. Asthenopia from muscular weakness. Double vision from paralysis of muscles of the eye.

Ears.—Sticking in external meatus near noon when sitting. Often affected by the pain which ascends from back to occiput. Heaviness. Rush of blood. Humming. Sudden and temporary loss of hearing.

Clinical.—Deafness, the result of catarrh of the middle ear and Eustachian tube; several brilliant cures have been made by it. Deafness resulting from quinine has been cured.

Nose.—Pain extending from bridge to eye. Tingling in nares. Lively action in region at 6 P.M., when sewing, as of a worm or fish. Watery discharge. Bloody mucus; mucus in nose and upper part of trachea, it slips into the trachea when talking and keeps up a hacking cough. Sneezing at 9.30 P.M., with headache; S. at 11.30 P.M., then tingling and full sensation in nose.

Clinical.—Nasal catarrhs, with excoriating discharge, sore throat, associated with physical weakness. Acute nasal catarrhs, especially in the summer, with inflammation of throat and pain extending into the ear, and deafness. Disposition to take cold at the slightest change in the weather. Hay fever, with the peculiar head symptoms of the drug.

Face.—Flushed and hot to touch. Congested, then pale and deathlike. Heavy, besotted appearance. Swollen and dark. Yellow. Livid pallor. F. and lips blue and livid. Looked strange, staggered and fell. Countenance miserable, sunken, grayish-yellow, with dull dusky eyes. Contraction of muscles, < orbicularis oris, impeding respiration. Numbness. Lips livid; lips pale in forenoon; dry L. at 11.30 P.M. and heated. Jaw drooping; J. wagging sideways, no control over it; rigid; stiffness of muscles.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the face, pains generally sharp, the face usually congested, of a dusky hue, associated with vertigo occipital headache and dimness of vision.

Mouth.—Foaming. Discharge of bloody brown mucus during the fits. Stinging in l. lower hollow back tooth at 6 P.M., through lower jaw to ear and zygoma, with burning. Pain in last r. molar, up towards temple.

Tongue so thick that he could hardly speak. Tongue coated; yellowish-white; yellow; whitish. Tongue red, inflamed in middle; dry T. and throat; burning, soon extending over mouth and throat, then through œsophagus into stomach and abdomen, then the same burning pain passed around in all intestines, simultaneously with descent of burning pain into œsophagus, burning in chest, then a stitch in l. lower anterior side of chest, extending into l. scapula, with weakness, fluttering and irregular beat of heart; constriction at base; numbness (Con., Acon.); felt thick and he could not articulate; stiffness and thick, guttural voice; use lost and feeling like a foreign body clogging mouth. Speech muffled; S. difficult; unable to speak or move.

Dryness; and of throat, as after salt bacon, with disposition to swallow frequently. Astringent sensation. Paralysis of muscles of M. and throat. Saliva yellowish, as from blood. Fetid breath. Breath and taste foul the latter part of the day, with frequent need to rinse mouth or spit. Taste bitter; and slimy; T. mawkish; clammy T.; feverish feeling.

Clinical.—Disorders of dentition in children, with fever, frightened feeling, apparent vertigo, or with drowsiness and confusion, sometimes dilated pupils, dim vision, etc. Paralysis of the tongue, it feels numb and heavy (Acon.).

Throat.—Pain in sterno-cleido-mastoideus, back of parotid. Hawking up of bloody matter. Soreness about root of tongue and larynx when swallowing, with mucus in upper part of trachea, causing frequent clearing of throat. Dryness, with burning; D. in fauces. Burning, with painful swallowing, the sufferings < food and drink, especially warm; B. from mouth to stomach. Spasmodic sensations in gullet, with cramplike pains. Inability to swallow; from paralysis of muscles of T.; difficult swallowing.

Clinical.—Various forms of sore throat, mostly catarrhal, rarely ulcerative, sometimes with difficulty in swallowing from the soreness, when the pain extends to the ears, or at other times the difficulty in swallowing may be due to paralysis of the pharyngeal muscles. A very valuable remedy for paralysis of the throat following diphtheria, a feeling as if there were a lump in the throat which could not be swallowed.

Stomach.—Hunger; appetite alternately increased and lost; want of A. in afternoon; sudden satiety after a moderate meal. Thirst during sweat. Eructations; sour; of wind and bland fluid at 11.30 P.M.; rising of tasteless semi-solid matters in œsophagus at night when sitting studying, with flatus and sensation of something lodged in œsophagus. Hiccough. Nausea; with headache. Retching. Vomiting.

Rumbling in epigastrium, > emission of flatus, with pain. Pain, with nausea and dim vision, then ineffectual retching, restlessness and general sweat; P. from pyloric end to axilla and under scapula and down r. arm to outer side of forearm, a hand's breadth from elbow, > biscuit and coffee; cramplike P. in epigastrium, leaving constriction, then burning in stomach. Gastralgia in afternoon, with colic and intoxicated feeling. Cardialgia at 11 A.M. when driving; in evening when sitting, with eructations. Heartburn at noon when riding, with pain at cardia. Oppression at breakfast, necessity to loosen waistband, then colic to l. of navel, as before stool. Sensation of something wanting in epigastric region. Empty and weak feeling in S. and bowels.

Clinical.—As a rule the Gel. cases have no thirst, and there is generally a sensation of emptiness and weakness in the stomach, or of oppression, a feeling of a heavy load. Numerous cases of hiccough, some chronic cases, < evening.

Abdomen.—Emission of flatus above and below; with rumbling. Lancinations disturbing sleep, > discharge of flatus. Gripping through A. after supper, < umbilical region. Sharp pains, with pappy, cream-colored stools. Pain; in evening; at night, < towards morning. Burning towards 12 o'clock, the pain going around in intestines. Palpitation of muscles. Heaviness. Weak nauseated feeling. Tenderness of parietes.

Sharp drawing pain through l. hypochondrium. Pain in l. hypochondrium; pulsative, at 3.30 P.M. Rumbling in umbilical region. Sticking around umbilicus. Pain in U. region in morning till rising; P.

in two spots on r. side of U., extending into bowels, < pressure; P. below U. in evening, extending to testes, > expulsion of flatus. R. inguinal gland swollen and tender to touch. Movement of flatus in hypogastrium at 11.30 P.M. Gnawing in region of transverse colon all afternoon. Pain in l. iliac region; P. in transverse colon, with yellow face; moving P. in hypogastrium (after chills, headache, feverish and prolonged sweat) waking him, then a large natural stool without relief, soon > bilious stool, nine hours afterwards another bilious stool without pain.

Clinical.—Gastro-intestinal catarrh, with jaundiced hue, persistent nausea, dizziness and diarrhoea. Passive congestions of the liver, with vertigo, blurred vision, etc.

Rectum and Stool.—Piles returned with raw smarting. Urging to stool caused by exciting news, stool papaceous, dark yellow. Stool bilious; and soft, preceded by threatenings of diarrhoea, the latter renewed at noon by exciting news and afterwards when walking. Loose but difficult S., great strength in sphincter muscles. S. at first consistent, then papaceous, bilious, homogeneous, preceded by flatulence. A second, consistent. S. after supper. Tea-colored; and semi-solid. Insufficient. Slow (having been put off), leaving a sensation of more to be passed and abdominal repletion. Attempt to pass stool, but only wind passed.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea, both acute and chronic, resulting from depressing emotions, such as fright or grief; stools generally painless or even involuntary, without much thirst (compare with Arg. nit., which is also indicated in diarrhoea from emotional excitement). Paralysis, more or less complete, of sphincter ani, and in some cases partial prolapsus of the rectum.

Urinary Organs.—Paralysis of bladder so that there was constant dribbling of urine, with muscular weakness, < r. side, in arm and leg. Frequent micturition of clear limpid urine, relieving dullness and heaviness of head (Ign.); frequent M. Urine copious at night; C., clear and watery (Ign.); C., watery, with chill, trembling and alleviation of heaviness of head, dullness of mind and dimness of vision. Urine at times clear and limpid, at times milky and turbid. Redness about orifice of urethra. Feeling as if something remained behind when urinating, stream intermittent (Nux v.). Agreeable sensation in urethra during micturition.

Clinical.—Loss of power of the bladder, especially in old people, or following diphtheria. Fundus of bladder paralyzed and the bladder enormously distended. In incomplete paralysis of the bladder the flow is intermittent and the patient seems not to empty the bladder (Nux v.). Dysuria from stricture.

Sexual Organs.—Irritation in spots on mucous membrane of prepuce at night with surrounding congestion; I. of r. testes in afternoon and evening, then dragging pain extending into groins and hypogastrium, > discharge of flatus. Emission at night without erection. Sharp labor-like pains in uterine region, extending to back and hips (Cimicif.). Discharge of blood from vagina from 4 to 5 P.M., next day after 6 P.M.

Clinical.—Great weakness of the sexual organs, so that men have emissions without erections. It has been prescribed for inflammation of the urethra. Inflammation of ovaries. Congestion of uterus and inflammation of ovaries, heaviness in uterine region, with melancholia. Dysmenorrhœa, with sick headache, vertigo, faintness, pains shooting up back and into legs. Suppression of menses, congestion of the head, pain extending upward and downward from the uterine region. It is sometimes valuable during labor when the os is rigid, with cutting pain in back extending upward. Inefficient labor pains, which do not force downward, but shoot upward. Threatening puerperal convulsions with stupidity, twicel-ing of muscles, albuminuria, sharp cutting pain from the neck of the uterus upward.

Respiratory Organs.—Glottis spasmodically closed. Paralysis of glottis and difficulty in swallowing. Burning from larynx into chest under sternum. Voice weak; V. thick as if tongue were too large. Paroxysmal hoarseness, with dryness of throat. Food drops into trachea when eating, causing strangling. Cough from tickling and dry roughness of fauces; hacking C., with feeling as if a drop of liquid were in wind-pipe and with frequent clearing of throat. Expectoration of thick yellow pus. Inability to expectorate.

Respiration.—Choking, pushing his fingers into his throat as if to tear it open. Struggling for breath. Suffocative sensation, > throwing his head back; sudden S. sensation, as in hysteria. Difficult, with oppression in precordial region, then a series of short rapid inspirations, then three or four prolonged gasps. Stertorous and imperfect. Heavy; in morning; in afternoon. Moaning. Sighing; slow, at times sobbing. Slow; and catching; and superficial, with now and then a deep inhalation; with rapid pulse; with offensive breath and slow pulse, then rapid breathing and quick, weak pulse; then spasmodic. Scarcely perceptible.

Clinical.—Paralytic aphonia, with dryness and burning in throat, < during menstruation. It has been used for spasm of the glottis in children. Occasionally in laryngitis. Cartarrhal affections of the air-passages, with relaxed, debilitated condition of the system. Dyspnoea, with distressing fulness in the chest, cold extremities, threatening suffocation, desire for fresh air, etc. Threatening paralysis of the lungs, especially in old people.

Chest.—Sticking; in anterior lower l. side in afternoon; through l. lower side into scapula, with irregular action of heart and dyspnoea; in l. lower anterior side through to l. scapula, with irregular action of heart when sitting quietly; paroxysmal, downward in upper part of r. lung on taking a long breath. Cramp in r. side at last short ribs. Pain as of a thrust with a sharp instrument under l. floating ribs at 2 P.M., when lying, changing immediately to l. temple, causing contraction of brow. Pain; behind fifth rib to l. of sternum at night, > eructation; periodical, in pectoral muscles; extending from ensiform cartilage along free ends of r. short ribs to lumbar region, as if liver were congested, < a hand's breadth from lower end of sternum; shuddering, in r. breast. Soreness when coughing. Constriction around lower.

Heaviness in afternoon. Burning in l. anterior side at 8 A.M., where she had lately had sticking, with ulcerative pain on touch and even on pressure of a loose dress, and with fulness; B. in chest at noon, going into pit of stomach and radiating over the parts covering the intestines like a tree, the stem of which is in pit of stomach, with fulness, sighing and anxiety; B. under lower part of sternum in afternoon, with heaviness of chest, drawing towards l. lower anterior side of chest, where there had been sticking, which is now repeated, ulcerative pain and tenderness to touch, chest > when the burning went to l. side. Weakness on speaking.

Heart.—Sticking. Shocks in forenoon at every exertion, with throbbing of pulse through whole body, trembling, weakness and sweat; S. at noon, with heavy breathing. Feeling as if it would stop beating if she did not move about. Palpitation in afternoon. Irregular beating from noon till 5 P.M.; in afternoon, with trembling of body. Sounds heard as if far distant.

Clinical.—Palpitation and oppression about the heart, the effects of grief. Heart's action feeble, the pulse soft and weak, extremities cold.

Pulse.—Rapid; and full; and bounding, then feeble and thready; and weak; and weak, small; and small all the afternoon; rises during the reaction after the chill as far above the normal as it has been below it. Full. Harsh at noon, and intermittent, during the intermission two quicker double strokes of heart, changing in rhythm but not in time. Irregular in afternoon; I., feeble and sometimes intermittent. Fluttering. Slow; but arterial tension increased, then impairment of heart's action; when the person is quiet, but subject to great variation from exercise; and full or slow and soft; and weak; 58 at noon, weak, wirey, unequal, when the first stroke is stronger than the preceding one the second one is scarcely perceptible or vanishes, irregular double action of heart, intermittent pulse, shaking of heart so that she feels it as far as neck. Weak. Scarcely perceptible; with chilliness, cold feet, heat and pain of head, etc. Pulseless at wrist and carotids.

Neck.—Aching in muscles of N. and shoulders, with soreness. Rheumatic pain in l. side on lying down. Contractive sensation in r. side at 5 P.M.

Back.—Pain as in cold stage of ague. Rheumatic pain in bones and joints of B. and limbs at night. Weakness in B. and limbs, with sleepiness. Pain under l. scapula at 7 P.M.; P. in anterior part of l. trapezius on leaving a warm room. Trapezius muscles sore on motion. Aching in loins; in lower lumbar and sacral region; in sacro-iliac and lumbar regions and lower part of l. thigh at supper-time on entering a warm room, < eating, with languor and thirst as at beginning of fever.

Extremities.—Trembling in afternoon; at 1.30 P.M., with chill, then stinging outward along l. lactiferous ducts, < sternal half of breast. Sensation of a galvanic current down forearm and hands and in feet, when sitting. Pain; waking at 4 A.M.; at night, < after midnight, > day; at night, < forearms and calves, also in knees and elbows; in l. elbow, wrist, knee and both ankles; deep, and in joints; in muscles; deep, in muscles, > movement; deep in muscles of upper, waking at 3 or 4 A.M., in l. arm and both calves; in bones or deep in muscles in region of humerus and in lower limbs, at 10 A.M.; in muscles of r. arm and shoulder, and sometimes in l. arm and lower limbs. Pulsative pain in l. hand and finger-joints when lying, and at same time in r. foot, < ball of great toe. Rheumatic pain.

Weakness towards 12 o'clock; W. of hands and feet, with indisposition to move. Heaviness. Gradual loss of control.

Clinical.—Loss of power in the extremities; the hands are very tired from playing on the piano; writers' cramp; loss of power in the lower extremities; gait staggering; the lower limbs feel as heavy as lead. Rheumatic symptoms in the lower extremities, the flesh feels sore. Trembling of all limbs; loss of muscular control; numbness and lack of sensibility of the extremities.

Upper Extremities.—Inability to pour coffee from a cup. Shooting from r. shoulder to dorsal vertebrae after breakfast. Spasmodic pain extending from inner condyle of r. arm to axilla. Arms insensible to pain. Aching in l. elbow at 7.30 P.M.; crampy, in bend of r. arm when walking after writing. Drawing about l. elbow at 3 P.M. when in a draughty church, with aching.

Sensation of a galvanic current down forearms at 6 P.M. Pain in flexor muscles of r. forearm. Pain in r. wrist, with weakness; sharp P. in r. at 6 P.M. Drawing sticking in dorsum of r. hand, running into middle and ring fingers. Sensation in hands and arms blunted, but not in proportion to the loss of motion. Flexors of hands and arms paralyzed and extensors nearly so. Shooting in last joint of r. thumb in morning. Pain in little and fourth fingers.

Lower Extremities.—Staggering. Pain; paroxysmal, in l. Fatigue after slight exercise (Arg. nit.). Feeling during and after a walk as if they could not be moved another step. Loss of voluntary motion. Jerking about middle of r. rectus muscle; of vastus externus muscle near r. knee; from r. sartorius about middle of thigh. Sticking as of drawing or cramping of single fasciculi of muscle, about origin on l. gluteus maximus, running in direction of hip-joint. Crampy pain in inner part of thigh when walking; drawing C. pain in bones and muscles of thighs, extending to toes, during the headache. Sharp drawing pain in hip-joint, extending at times to outside of thigh, < movement. Pain in l. thigh at 7 P.M.; in l. rectus femoris at 11.30 P.M., with drawing in r. calf.

Sudden twisting on inside of patella when sitting down to breakfast. Knees feel when walking as if bones did not fit. Pain under r. K. when walking; when pains are felt above K. they are not felt below, and vice versa. Drawing pain in l. hamstring, extending across joint to origin of gastrocnemius. Rheumatic pain in r. K. when walking. Weakness of K. Shooting in r. calf at 3 P.M.; S. midway between knee and ankle in paroxysms, each more violent. Sharp crampy pain about largest part of l. gastrocnemius. Contracting pain in l. gastrocnemius, unlike other pains in limbs, not > sitting. Soreness of gastrocnemii as if beaten. Pain in l. ankle, with spasmodic contraction of toes and drawing pain in them. Cramp in r. instep. Crampy pain in r. foot.

Skin.—Yellow in forenoon; in afternoon. Erythema on face and neck. Papules as in measles, but larger and more distinct, < on face, with little or no sensation. Sore pimple, with inflamed areola on l. side of neck, one at r. corner of os hyoides, another at l. anterior temporal ridge, a P. sore to touch on l. side of larynx. Painless vesico-pustules on inside of thighs. Sudden stinging in whole skin at 4 P.M. as before an eruption, with greenish color, then burning, then itching, with profuse sweat. Itching at 11.30 P.M. about elbows and forearms; of points on face and at edge of hair, on forehead, r. side and elsewhere on scalp.

Sleep.—Disposition to yawn, a sort of stupor, inability to keep eyes open, necessity to lie down and sleep. Sleepiness; in forenoon; with dim vision, a kind of drunken stupor; with deep respiration and general numbness; then aggravation of the habitual sleeplessness; like a lethargy, after 2 P.M., lasting all the afternoon and evening. Sleep after supper. Sleep long and sound; sound till 7 A.M., difficult, weary waking. Restless night; < towards morning; with unpleasant dreams after midnight. Sleepless all night; till 1 A.M., with desire to study, sound sleep the last half of night and weary waking. Late falling asleep, then nightmare woke me, N. repeated on falling asleep again, as if l. side from neck to knee were a soft muscle jerking up and down with the elasticity of jelly, the centre of this motion seemed to be in region of heart, while r. side of back, on which I lay, was quiet, with inability to stir, on waking drawing pain in lower third of l. thigh, which was repeated next day. Little inclination to sleep, and when it comes dreams much about business, etc. Dreams and early waking; D. of work and of many people; unpleasant D.

Fever.—Chill; during the day; all day, < morning; after breakfast; in afternoon, then cold sweat till 5 P.M.; after 2 P.M., then weakness like faintness, then cold sweat; between 2 and 4 P.M., then heat, then cold sweat, all without thirst; at 3 P.M., with cold sweat, hot running in legs and burning in soles, without thirst; at 9 P.M.; with profuse micturition; with chills running from loins to nape; with pains in and between bones of l. calf, inability to descend stairs without holding on to something; with tremor and sudden general cold sweat, so that drops stood on arms; with cold limbs, hot head and face and headache; then flying heat and pricking in skin, then sweat; then heat, < about head and face, with full, rapid pulse. Cold skin; and congested; and clammy, finally covered with cold sweat; in afternoon, and sweat; head cool to touch in afternoon. Chills on upper half of body, < in back and nape, at 3 P.M., when reading exciting news; C. along spine; cold limbs; hands and feet; feet as if standing in cold water, generally with heat of head and face and headache.

Heat in forenoon; in afternoon, as if sweat would break out, then chill down back. Heat in face, with fulness of head; with bruised pain in brain and rapid pulse; at 2.30 P.M. without external heat. Burning in zygomatic region and in eyes in afternoon whenever aroused from sleepiness; B. in l. zygoma in afternoon, then in r., drawing down to a gland at anterior r. side of neck, where it swells and pains as if an ulcer were forming (at this spot she had, twenty-two years ago, a glandular abscess, which opened internally); in l. zygoma, with swelling, and in eyes, < l., then in r. zygoma at 1 P.M.; in l. zygoma before 2 P.M., and in eyes, < l., with red swelling of zygoma. Burning running through all limbs in afternoon, with burning in first joint of l. index as if blood would come out (this joint is stiff and ankylosed from a wound). Hot and dry hands at 10 A.M.; in afternoon, < palms; palms at 11.30 P.M.

Sweat; with prostration; easy, from movement; profuse; profuse and cold during the stinging in l. breast and after the chilly tremor; sudden, profuse, cold (after pain in forehead) till 6 P.M. Dry skin.

Clinical.—Eruptive fevers, especially measles, with catarrhal symptoms of eyes, nose and throat, and cough, but with great prostration, stupor, livid eruption and lack of thirst. In malarial fevers, especially of the South, so-called bilious-remittent, it is an extremely valuable remedy; the fever is periodic, generally coming on towards evening, with stupor, dizziness, blindness, faintness, no thirst, great prostration, slight perspiration, which relieves. In pure intermittents there may be chill in the back, a prolonged low type of fever, possibly with delirium, but with soft pulse and other Gel. symptoms. Nervous chills, the effects of emotional excitement or depression. Early stage of typhoid fever, with vertigo, tired feeling in all limbs, great weakness, soft pulse, tremulousness of the extremities. Catarrhal fevers, chilliness in the back, desire to be over the fire, hot head, suffused eyes, stuffed nose, etc. Fever of erythema, or in low types of scarlet fever and mild forms of erysipelas.

Gentiana Cruciata.

A tincture is made of the fresh root of G. cruciata, L.

Generalities.—Tension of all nerves so that walking was difficult. Uneasiness. Faintness. Amelioration in open air.

Mind.—Weeping mood, with disinclination to talk. Apprehension, with rapid and difficult breathing, swelling of temporal veins, pressure in temples, and on reading print, indistinct vision.

Head.—Constriction on prolonged sitting. Sensitiveness after dinner, < violent motion of it. Confusion. Vertigo. Pressure in forehead; in temples. Sudden stitch through l. temple towards 6 p.m. Tension in vertex, and at times jerking pain, the tension becoming an acute pressure, < exerting eyes or constant thought.

Eyes, Ears and Nose.—Pressure inward in r. eye. Eyes feel as if lying deep in orbits. Acute drawing in mastoid process. Frequent sneezing.

Face and Mouth.—Two aphthous ulcers on margin of lower lip, on either side of frænum. Saliva increased.

Throat.—Violent pulsation in carotids. Redness of posterior part of palate, of both tonsils and upper part of pharynx, at certain times of day; R. of arch of palate, uvula and posterior wall of pharynx, with difficult swallowing and anxious constriction; R., with constriction so that swallowing was difficult, and constant hawking up of tenacious mucus. Sticking in tonsils. Rawness and scraping; with constriction on swallowing; R. causing frequent hawking. Scraping, and in soft palate and half way down œsophagus. Constriction, with frequent necessity to hawk and expectorate. Difficult swallowing.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; lost. Thirst. Eructations of air tasting of the tincture; of air and of acid fluid tasting of the drug; of air relieving the tension of abdomen and the headache; acid E., then three sour, watery vomitings. Nausea; with inclination to lie down; with constriction of throat. Vomiting; violent, difficult, of mucus; difficult, of scanty, bitter, sour-smelling mucus, leaving scraping and rawness in throat. Movements, then in abdomen, > walking. Pressure; as from a stone, with nausea; inward in pit. Full sensation, with constant inclination to eructate. Burning. Sensation all day in S. and œsophagus as if he had swallowed a hot morsel, then cold water, < eating, > drinking water.

Abdomen.—Frequent passage of offensive flatus. Distention; > continued walking; with constriction; with heaviness in stomach and frequent empty eructations. Movements, with headache, then copious pasty stool. Pain. Tension; > a profuse pasty stool; with nausea. Intermittent griping, sore sensation in umbilical region, < dinner, > sitting and lying, < standing and walking, obliging him to bend forward, therewith the umbilicus seemed drawn forward. Dragging in r. inguinal region as if something would protrude, > sitting and lying, after violent sneezing sensitive protrusion the size of a hazel-nut.

Stool.—Urging, then three watery stools. Three liquid, preceded by griping. Pasty diarrhœa several times. Free, pasty, without the usual itching in anus.

Sexual Organs.—Menstruation three days earlier than usual, during which there was headache as if head were too full, with distended feeling in skull, > rest, < motion, and delaying sleep.

Respiratory Organs.—Hoarseness, the voice gave out in the middle of his speech; H. in attacks, with sensitiveness of throat. Frequent expectoration.

Neck and Back.—Drawings in cervical muscles; extending to ears, < turning head, an uneasiness so that he could not remain long in one position; D. along r. side of neck to shoulder, with jerking. Tension in lumbar region.

Extremities, etc.—Jerklike drawings in extremities. Distressing drawing in r. shoulder. Cramplike pains in soles. Creeping in evening over whole body as from fleas. Uneasy sleep.

Gentiana Lutea.

A tincture is made of the fresh root.

General Action.—In moderate doses it acts as a "tonic," increases the appetite and power of digestion, stimulates the heart and raises the temperature. Its prolonged use enfeebles digestion and depresses the heart.

Alties.—Cinchona, Erythraa.

Generalities.—Dulness; with morose mood. Weakness. Aggravation in afternoon.

Head.—Confusion; when writing, with heaviness; with heaviness, and with tensive pain in sinciput; with heaviness and fulness as if enlarged. Fulness, with throbbing pressure, especially a pressure upward towards sinciput. Feeling as after drinking liquors. Vertigo. Sticking in middle of sinciput. Pressure in sinciput after 12 o'clock; P. in forehead, with dragging; P. outward in forehead. Confusion of sinciput. Pain in temples; in occiput in afternoon.

Eyes and Nose.—Pain in eyes; at 4 p.m., with redness of conjunctiva; in balls. Sticking in l. upper lid. Vision obscured. Nose stopped. Irritability of nostrils as from coryza, then watery discharge.

Mouth and Throat.—Dryness. Saliva consistent. Taste bitter; T. earthy. Frequent hawking on account of tenacious mucus. Swelling of throat, < posterior part of palate, with sticking and constriction. Rawness of throat.

Stomach.—Appetite ravenous in evening; diminished. Eructations; violent; acid. Nausea; in evening; in attacks after the simplest meals; with lachrymation; with anxious pressure. Wind. Tension and fulness; T. in epigastric region, with pressure; T. in stomach and external epigastric region, with distention, pressure upon it causes nausea, then dragging towards anus. Heaviness, with pressure, anxiety, nausea and difficult, full respiration. Constriction. Faintness; and emptiness.

Abdomen.—Distention, with tension; and offensive flatus; and pain in lower abdomen, < about umbilicus. Rumbling and gurgling; with distention, heaviness and fulness; R., it seems as if bubbles rose. Cutting in morning, so that he must bend up, then heat extending from lumbar vertebrae; sleep delayed, waking about midnight with aggravation of the heat, cutting in A., rapid breathing, the pain prevented sleep and obliged him to toss about, > lying on back with feet drawn up, constant passage of wind upward and downward, distention of A., even above transverse colon, except epigastric region, and pain on touch, slumber after 2 a.m., the pain in A. alone disturbing sleep, weakness and desire for sleep, but inability to really sleep, next morning pain, with cutting when touched, < from pubic region to transverse colon, necessity to walk slowly because A. was painful on motion or a hard step. Twinging, then scanty, yellow diarrhoea twice in quick succession. Pain; with pressure in umbilical region and urging to stool; in walls; especially tense pain in r. side, < posteriorly, with tension in lower A. Tension, < towards evening, with shortness of breath. General sick feeling, with dragging towards anus. Discomfort in l. hypochondrium, with pressure. Pressure in umbilical region; with tension; inward; pain like a drawing inward. Umbilical region sensitive to touch and pressure; pain below U. region on touch.

Stool and Urine.—Dragging towards anus, with tenesmus. Sudden urging, then copious stool; constant U., with frequent consistent stools. Bilious diarrhoea in afternoon. Soft stool; twice soon after rising; and light yellow, preceded by cutting. Pasty, frequent, yellow stools. Urine increased.

Voice, Chest and Pulse.—Hoarseness; in forenoon. Pressure in middle to l. of sternum; upon chest on motion. Tightness of C. Fulness of C. in morning, with pressure and with difficult breathing. Pulse rapid in evening.

Back and Extremities.—Pain in B. and abdomen, < motion, > sitting; P. in small of B., with heaviness; in r. hip near small of B.; in hips and small of B. on stooping, as from a girdle about hips. Prostration and tension in limbs. Sprained pain in l. knee. Crawling in knees. Sticking and tearing in soles on bending toes when walking.

Sleep and Fever.—Yawning. Uneasy sleep. Three times shivering spreading over back like an electric shock, then exhaustion. Heat; of head, < cheeks; of head, with confusion of it.

Ginseng.

A tincture is made of the dried root of Panax quinquefolium (wild Ginseng).

Allied botanically and somewhat symptomatically to Aralia.

Generalities.—Heaviness in all movements. Pressure and drawing alternately in forehead, r. forearm, toes, tibiae and calves. Sensation when sitting as if the body fell backward. Malaise; after dinner, with drowsiness, internal coldness, external heat, fornication in fingers, yawning, stretching, shivering, trembling, thirst, dryness of mouth, drawing in stomach, weakness of thighs and legs, as during convalescence. Uneasiness obliging him to walk. Indolence. Weakness; after a short walk; on entering the house, with heaviness in sinicupit; with internal trembling feeling in limbs; < legs, with pain in various muscles; alternately in back, knees and arms; sudden, at 7 P.M., with creeping coldness, flushes of heat, cool sweat and longing to expose the body to cold air and to have something strengthening. Aggravation on r. side.

Mind.—Anxiety after dinner. Generally calm, but impatient impulses and fear of accidents, with at times disposition to weep or to be anxious about the future. Thought difficult. Not inclined to thought or business. Forgetful.

Head.—Pain; after dinner, with heaviness; deep in brain, changing about; in longitudinal sinuses. Heaviness; constant, with pressure in forehead rhythmical with pulse, and objects have a tremulous motion rhythmical with pulse. Confusion; all day; < forehead, then vertigo, sleepiness and heaviness of upper lids. Fulness after dinner. Seemed enlarged at times and to shake in direction of sides. Vertigo; on going into open air; on ascending winding stairs, < descending; at times; ground seemed to waver when standing; with indistinct vision; with unsteadiness in walking, which seemed to start from hips, so that thighs seemed pushed outward; with obtundation.

Forehead.—Drawing stitches extending to r. inner canthus. Lancinations; in r. eminence, extending above orbit, with heaviness of eyelid. Pain; in bone; in l. eminence; in sinicupit; upper part of sinicupit; with heat; with drawing transversely through it; at times. Drawing in r. bone. Heaviness. Confusion in sinicupit. Vertigo.

Pressure in temples; in r., and in l. sensation as if too thick; constant P. and pulsation on exertion; on vertex. Pain on r. side of head. Pressure in sinuses of cerebellum; P. in occiput, with impending vertigo. Drawing in occiput in afternoon, on mental exertion, so that he involuntarily bent the head backward. Sudden blow upon occiput, then bruised pain. Sensation in occiput when sitting as if swaying to the sides. Reeling in O., with gray spots before eyes.

Eyes.—Sticking deep in upper half, then pressure, repeated in evening by the light; S., with lachrymation, redness of conjunctiva of bulb and inclination to close lids. Pressure inward. Pupils contracted; with sensitiveness of eyes to daylight in dim weather; large; alternately large and small. Cold sensation on surface of ball. Drooping of upper lids, < r.; lids difficult to open, with heaviness and pain. Itching of lids. Biting of margins of lids; with itching; with burning. Constriction of l. upper lid. Wearied by a bright light. Blinded by daylight. Letters run into each other when reading. Vision indistinct; distinct, but objects are not seen clearly because the eyes wander too quickly from one object to another; swimming of objects on going into open air, with unsteady gait. Vision of black floating points; of large white spots. Vision double on looking steadily.

Nose.—Dryness; with sensitiveness to air. Scanty, thick mucus in evening, next day thin and copious. Bleeding from r. nostril; at 9 A.M. on slight touch; at 9 P.M. on blowing. Frequent sneezing.

Face.—Alternately red and pale. Pressure in zygomata; in joint of jaw. Drawing in l. side of lower jaw; D. in ascending ramus of lower jaw, zygomata and upper jaw of r. side. Lips thick, covered with dry rough scales. Lips red and dry, they crack and bleed, < lower. Dryness of lips and mouth, < open air, > dinner, but returning, with scraping and soreness in fauces; D. in lips and mouth as far as pharynx, with swollen feeling in lips and nauseous odor from mouth; in lips, mouth and fauces, < talking, with rough voice and scraping in throat; in lips, mouth and fauces, < open air and talking, at the same time scraping soreness in fauces, < empty swallowing and by drawing air through nose, which is dry; of lips, teeth, mouth and throat, all parts stuck together; D. and roughness of lips, mouth, teeth, tongue and fauces as if covered with sand, in open air or on exercise, with rapid breathing.

Mouth.—Tongue red and smarting, with thirst, then white in middle; T. white, dry, with large glistening papillae. Speech difficult and indistinct on account of affection of mouth. Dryness; > eating; of arch of palate; < arch of palate and tongue, then flow of saliva; < tongue, arch of palate, whole fauces, with stale odor from mouth; so that swallowing of bread and butter is difficult and leaves sticking deep in throat; alternating with salivation; dry sensation in palate, with salivation. Salivation, with nausea. Saliva almost grass-green. Mouth and throat troubles < open air, > dinner.

Throat.—Redness of uvula, fauces and posterior pharynx; of uvula and fauces, with pain on empty swallowing and swallowing of saliva. Sticking in pharynx. Scraping in fauces; in T. and fauces in afternoon; in fauces and pharynx on empty swallowing, with dryness and rawness; in fauces, < talking, also with soreness; < empty swallowing, with dryness; scraping soreness in fauces, extending into pharynx, > 1.30 P.M., after dinner. Pain on swallowing bread, which was not relished. Fauces sensitive to air of the room.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; great, at an unusual time. Thirst absent. Eructations, with relief; empty E.; bitter E. Nausea; with sore pain in r. flank, under ribs, < touch. Swelling, with throbbing, anxiety and nausea; S. from flatus. Lincination in r. side of epigastrium. Pain; with feeling as if it would burst, dyspnoea and pressure in l. frontal eminence. Constriction in region, with difficult breathing; C. in pit, like cramp, at 4 P.M., after eating. Drawings; painful, as from hunger, preceded by shivering. Oppression, the clothes feel uncomfortable. Intolerance of clothing in epigastric region.

Abdomen.—Inflammation, with pain and borborygmi; I., with tension and pressure in hypogastrium; I. as far as below r. ribs, with pain; from flatus, discharge of which relieved; from flatus, and pain in umbilical region, < pressure. Tense, painful. Rumbling. Noises from wind, it goes upward and downward. Tension. Swollen sensation. Pain, then liquid stools in evening; P. rising to region of stomach, with pain on leaning against it; vague P., and in chest; as from a bar, with digging and starting in r. hip, then internal pain; in r. side from hip to below ribs; in r. side as far as groin, with formication reaching to foot. Digging in r. side as far as groin, rising to stomach, with griping in whole hypogastrium. Pain in r. side of hypogastrium extending to groin, with painful formication as far as great toe, causing lincinations there; P. on r. side of H., extending to l., then rising to region of heart; in H., with pressure in groin; extending from within pelvis to thighs, as if one must sink to the ground, then four thin stools; vague, in H. Bruised pain in r. iliac region, < pressure. Heaviness of pelvic members.

Clinical.—Loud gurgling noise in ilio-cæcal region, dry tongue, delirium on going to sleep. It seems to have relieved the threatening inflammation of perityphilitis, and possibly also relieved the local symptoms of typhoid fever.

Rectum and Stool.—Sticking in rectum. Stool soft; hard; hard, difficult, then smarting at anus, tenesmus and lincinations in rectum; difficult but not hard; delayed.

Urinary Organs.—Frequent desire to urinate, with smarting. Sticking in fossa navicularis. Tickling in fossa navicularis; voluptuous T. in end of urethra, with erections. Itching in urethra, with burning pain and frequent urging to urinate. Urine scanty; and dark; and clear, in a thin stream, the bladder did not empty itself, only by pressing is a broad stream produced; abundant and clear; yellowish U., with red lateritious sediment; lemon-colored, after standing a reddish sediment.

Sexual Organs.—Erections when sitting at engrossing business; nocturnal, without pollutions. Pressure in testicles. Excitement.

Respiratory Organs.—Voice rough; and hoarse, deep. Dry cough; in afternoon; in paroxysms. Dyspnoea. Oppressed breathing; worse when sitting than when walking; slow, deep, difficult; short, anxious; deep now and then. Frequently deep, labored inspirations; when sitting; frequent deep I., with tightness of chest, anxiety and heaviness of limbs. Difficult inspiration, with sticking in r. lung.

Chest.—Sticking in r. taking away the breath; sudden, beneath l. ribs, so that he holds his breath. Tearing in anterior wall. Pain near heart, preceded by shivering, which extends to elbow. Constriction, with anxiety; C. transversely across lower part in evening. Tightness; in region of heart on deep breathing, > walking. Oppression, < sitting.

Heart.—Lincinations in præcordial region; and there. Pain in præcordial region; at l. side of cardiac region. Tightness as if something were lying on præcordial region, with deep, labored inspirations. Palpitation. Beats increased; stronger and irregular; violent when sitting, then floundering sensation in heart, with rapid, small, indistinct pulse; sudden violent beats when sitting and lying, with anxious oppression in præcordial region. Beat not perceptible, but oppression in præcordial region.

Pulse.—Rapid; in morning; in afternoon, and irregular; < slightest cause; and full; and irregular; and small, weak; and small and soft, after coughing; and jerky; small, then slow and full, alternately rapid and slow. Jerky, sometimes like a quick trembling, that is also felt in chest. Slow and full. Irregular; and sometimes 90 when sitting; at 3 P.M., more rapid when sitting erect, slower but fuller and larger when sitting bent forward. Fluttering. Could not be felt, but it was an undulation, then small, soft beats.

Neck.—Cracking in upper vertebrae on moving head. Pain in nape; in muscles of neck and loins. Drawing in l. muscles. Pulsation in r. side. Heaviness of nape; and occiput, with stiffness of nape.

Back.—Sticking. Painful lassitude along, with bruised feeling down to sacrum. Stiffness. Pricking in scapulae extending to l. shoulder. Lincinations between scapulae, in shoulders and along spine to sacrum < straightening himself, with difficult breathing. Pressure in spinous processes of several dorsal vertebrae. Deep lincinations around loins. Bruised pain in sacrum. Pain in l. lumbar muscles, < bending or turning.

Extremities.—Cracking in joints on moving them. Drawing in arms and limbs as if beaten. Bruised pain in various muscles; B. pain alternately in different parts; B. pain in afternoon when walking, with weariness; alternately in l. knee, elbow and foot when sitting. Peculiar lightness and vigor in spite of much walking; peculiar lightness and flexibility in morning in spite of a bad night. Weakness; < l.

Upper Extremities.—Pain in shoulders, with cracking in them; P. in shoulder-joint; in l. upper arm. Weakness of shoulders and upper arms; of arms, with painful drawing in muscles of upper arm. Constriction of flesh of lower part of l. arm. Pain in muscles of lower part of l. forearm as from a hoop. Objects held with uncertainty, so that they easily fell, with haste in all movements. Sticking in l. hand, with insensibility of fingers. Hands feel swollen on closing them, and as if the skin were tight. Fingers feel fine and smooth, and agreeable warmth of their skin. Contraction of r. fingers, with stiffness of their joints. Drawing in side of r. index.

Lower Extremities.—Tottering; with knees bent and legs spread apart; in open air, with beginning vertigo. Sensation as if tottering in open air; always on going into open air, and sometimes real staggering, < ascending steps. Cramp-pain from r. hip-joint to tips of toes. Heaviness. Difficulty in walking, with limping; D. in ascending steps, without weakness. Cutting in r. hip, extending into abdomen and forcing him to bend over. Bruised pain in hips. Pain in muscles of l. thigh; in muscles of interior and middle parts of thighs when sitting; from l. groin to knee, with stiffness; in r. knee; in outer side of r. knee. Cracking in r. knee on motion and when sitting. Cramp in r. calf. Retraction of muscles of r. leg, with bruised pain in hip-joint. Sticking in r., then l. tibia when walking and sitting. Tearing here and there in muscles of l. leg; in l. tibia; on surface of l. leg, between tibia and fibula. Pressure in r. calf. Drawing in calves. Weakness of legs; r. Lancinating tearing in r. tibial-tarsal joint. Pain in knees and ankles, soon alternating with drawing in calves and r. joint of jaw, < walking. Tensive pain above and behind l. malleolus when the foot leaves the ground in walking and the tension is brought upon the tendo-achillis, extending to sole, < walking rapidly, so that he limped, > walking slowly. Drawing in feet when sitting, extending to back, with coldness. Weariness of feet. Lancinations alternately in both great toes. Sharp pain in l. great toe, long affected with gouty swelling which has disappeared. Pain in r. great toe and in muscles of forepart and middle of thighs. Peculiar weak pressing in r. toes. Internal trembling sensation in l. toes.

Skin.—Veins very small. Itching pimples on neck and chest. Prickling in calves. Smarting on r. cheek, chin and wing of nose, with itching and heat, then erythematous burning redness, then miliary pustules with formation, then tetter ending in desquamation. Formication along r. thigh to foot, with stiffness; F. at night along r. thigh to great toe, where there are lancinations. Itching under r. foot.

Sleep.—Yawning though he had slept all the morning. Sleepiness. Sleep deep, prolonged, quiet, towards morning. Wakes with difficulty or else with a start. Many dreams, with frequent waking, mostly with headache. Remembered dreams. Vivid, voluptuous dreams.

Fever.—Sensitiveness to cold. Coldness after a walk; C., with trembling and with numbness of hands, coldness of fingers, which are white, numb and prickly; piercing into occiput; in r. elbow and parietal eminence, with crawling; through back; in back, extending into bones of arms, with cold hands and blue nails; in back, extending into limbs, which are cold and feel bruised; in spine, > walking, with coldness in head and limbs, weakness of limbs, pressure in testicles and elbows, frequent deep breathing, oppression of chest, prickling in calves, pulse 55 to 60. Shivering through back; with warm limbs; when walking and sitting, extending into arms, with cold skin, bluish nails, weakness of r. limb, oppressed respiration, pupils contracted, and sensitive to daylight. Warmth of skin, which seems soft and fine. Heat of head; forehead; of whole body, < back, from a small glass of Malaga wine, with distention of veins; externally in tips of fingers.

Glonoine.

One part of Nitro-glycerine is dissolved in nine parts of alcohol for the tincture.

General Action.—Identical with Amyl-nitrite, paralyzing the peripheral vaso-motor nerves. Its action is more lasting than that of Amyl.

Allies.—Amyl-nit., Cactus, Mellilotus, Nitrous oxide.

Generalities.—Head fell backward, jaw dropped, stertor, pulseless at wrist. Tremor, sopor, lassitude. Falling down unconscious, congestion to head or heart, face sometimes pale, sometimes red; F. down senseless, with convulsions and frothing at mouth, after alternations of palpitation and congestion to head. Spasms after cold water was poured on head, ending in vomiting, then short relief, then return twice of pressure and throbbing in brain, each > vomiting. Fulness in vertex, forehead, through body, chest and abdomen. Throbbing through whole body; when lying; on moving about; wherever the body touches anything, wherever he puts his hands; with heat and sweat. Feeling as after ether; lightness, then fulness in brain, with dizziness. Discomfort. Inclination to stretch backward. Sensation as before ague. Nervousness; with clammy sweat.

Weakness; in morning; during headache; with apathy; with sleepiness, inability to study, dulness when thinking, wandering of thoughts when writing. Faintness; before nausea; fell senseless on pavement, lay breathless, sighing at long intervals, face pale, conscious in two minutes, sweat, nausea, cold hands and feet, pulse feeble, must have head elevated, it felt full, vision indistinct, dizzy, face pale, at times flushed, at times dark livid, symptoms < motion, > hot foot baths, vomiting caused by jolting of carriage, sticking in occiput. Body seemed asleep while the mind was awake, the latter resolved to take notice of crooked, jagged objects before the closed eyes, attempted in vain to raise the body, it seemed to shrivel till completely asleep. Paralysis of all voluntary muscles, partial P. of muscles of mastication and of face and eyes. Aggravation on r. side; A. during rest; from coffee if wine has been taken. Amelioration from black coffee; A. during sweat; after each evacuation, but return of headache each time he vomited; partial A. from tea. Alternations of head and heart symptoms.

Clinical.—Epilepsy, with great rush of blood to the head and vascular excitement generally.

Mind.—Delirious, then comatose. Familiar things seemed strange. She felt as if she woke from a dream and she moved her arms like one waking from a dream. Animated, talkative, great flow of thought and inclination to jest. Agitation. Terror. Fear, with sensation as if chest were screwed together; F. that she had been poisoned; F. that her death was approaching. Anxiety; with headache; with inclination to run away. Depression. Recalls old grievances and determines to justify himself. Confusion of ideas, so that he could not tell where he was; scarcely knew what he was about, > effort of will; C., with weakness and with diminished power of tongue. Inability to collect the thoughts. Memory difficult. Stupor, weakness of mind and body. Partial insensibility and dislike to being aroused. Unconsciousness.

Clinical.—It has proved valuable for the effects of shock, which show themselves by sudden attacks of terror so that he dares not go into the street. In acute mania or insanity it has been found useful when the head was hot, full, throbbing, eyes staring, pulse very rapid, pulsation in carotids, or in other cases when there was violent maniacal excitement with hot head. It certainly has relieved the mental confusion which is characterized by the loss of the sensation of location, so that one loses his way in well-known places. Insanity caused by long-continued heat of the sun; thought he was the Lord Almighty.

Head.—Holding it with both hands. Hands frequently raised to it. Inclination to bend backward; to throw it backward. H. and face puffed up, blood forced upward, convulsions, frequent unconsciousness, copious urine containing much albumen. Brain fever. Sudden piercing pain. Sticking in morning on stooping. Darting pain in morning when stooping. Painful twitching here and there; T. at every step on ascending stairs.

Aching; from morning till 2 o'clock; in morning, with general heat and fetid flatus; in morning on rising, with pain in hypogastrium and painful copious diarrhoea, pain > stool, returning, < moving or sitting erect, soreness on l. iliac region on pressure, with shuddering and heat in anus; at noon, < sudden rising or shaking head, with soreness; returned at 1 P.M. after drinking coffee; afternoon; evenings; after eructations; when rising suddenly; from every change of position; on rising, so that he could not stand; in open air; at a concert, > during the walk home, with fullness in vertex and throbbing in temples; when the period appears, with congestion and fullness; A. and pulse increase and diminish together. Aggravation of A. mornings and forenoons and one afternoon; afternoon, < occiput; shaking head; pressure; stooping; stepping; movement; motion from side to side; on every motion, beginning in open air, continuing in the house, > a second walk; ascending stairs quickly; leaning forward; in open air; after dinner; reading, writing and smoking; after expelling breath, if he waits before inhaling. Amelioration in open air; A. in evening; throwing H. back; lying; repose; sleep; pressure; combing hair; smoking; strong tea; walking; gentle exercise, especially in open air (Ferr.). Aching, with nausea; and with dull, heavy pain in stomach; A. with buzzing in l. ear and redness of l. eye.

Aching deep in brain; A. in median line; A. rising from below upward; extending to nose; extending over shoulders and under arms; so that he walks the room all night; waking three or four times; impeding breathing; like migraine, concentrating over r. eye, with dullness about eyes and heat; drawing A., extending to occiput; racking, with faintness, intolerance of light, general distress and alarm; bursting; upward from middle; as if pressed by a band; as if brain were pressed towards centre from temples and occiput, from morning till night; undulating, in middle of brain; U., during fullness of heart. Throbbing pain; all night, > in morning by coffee; on stooping; after motion, < shaking head, > night; preventing lying down, obliging him to hold on to head as if to prevent rupture of skull; rising from base of skull to vertex with every throb of carotids.

Bruised sensation internally, < in forehead. Soreness; on moving; of brain on shaking head, with sensation as if hard and loose; < shaking; and he is afraid to shake it lest it should drop to pieces; with laced sensation and pain, < shaking head sideways. Cracking sensation in brain, obliging him to hold on to head on movement to prevent apparent threatened rupture of cranium. Sinking sensation, and in chest, as from working in the hot sun. Feeling as if hungry. Sensation as if he had eaten too much. Strange sensation after the pain. Disagreeable sensation, < at base of brain. Dulness; < light shaking, not by violent shaking; externally. Confusion. Stiffness of H. and neck; or tension as if laced. Heaviness; with warm sweat on forehead, skin otherwise cool; as from a weight on brain; from middle to ears. Feeling as if brain were smaller than cavity of skull.

Fulness; with full, quick pulse and red face; and throbbing, without pain; at base of brain, with throbbing in all arteries of head and nape; with throbbing above and behind temples and pricking on l. side of tongue near tip, afterwards the same throbbing, with almost twitching in scalp of same place, < getting up, walking across room and sitting down again; worse now and then, changing places. Felt too large. Feeling as if brain were distending in all directions; as if head were swelling, < stooping, with throbbing, the T. < l. side.

Shocks synchronous with every pulsation of arteries (Ferr.). Throbbing (Ferr.); during motion; < stooping; < temples and over eyes, < motion, > sitting still, lying or pressure, with heat in head; < ascending stairs; with confusion of senses, sensation of balancing requiring constant effort to keep head erect; < above ears, and in temples, with bursting sensation and choking as from a band about neck, which prevented blood from returning from head; heard and felt in brain at 8.15 P.M., after running up-stairs, and at each pulsation sensation (amounting to pain) in scalp above ears; outward; so that pulse could be counted by it (pulse 100). Undulating sensation; upward; < turning head. Feeling as if something moved inside on shaking head; and hit skull.

Sensation as if hanging with head downward, and as if there were great rush of blood in consequence. Congestion; till midnight; sudden; frequently, in an old woman, always causing coldness; and to chest; and to lungs; alternating with C. to heart. Vertigo; in afternoon; on shaking head; on throwing head back; on turning around; going into open air, with reeling; on rising, with blindness and nausea, also with desire to drink cold water; < moving about; with nausea; with dim vision; with faintness, then nausea; sudden, in afternoon, on descending from a carriage.

Forehead.—Sticking in r. from laughing. Piercing pain outward towards middle, more upward. Tearing near middle line, not very deep. Aching; in morning on waking; on looking long in one direction; on moving head, and in occiput; < shaking head, also evenings, > night's sleep; > when driving; in sinu-put; sides of sinu-put; over eyes; over r. eye; in "benevolence;" in "wonder," < r., then l.; in l. "wit," with sensitiveness to pressure, the pain > continued pressure; in "wit," l., then r.; r. side of F. and l. side of occiput, < shaking head; over nose and in r. petrous bone; headache, beginning at root of nose; then in vertex, then in whole head; with sensation as if eyeballs were pressed out; in sinciput, with nausea; in sinciput, with necessity to remove his hat in open air because it was too heavy; headache from front backward; extending to middle of brain; extending over vertex to occiput; extending to r. margo-superciliaris; over r. eye and over supraorbital ridges, across from r. to l.; and in eyes, causing winking; and in occiput, as after intoxication.

Throbbing pain; in afternoon and evening, and in temples; extending to vertex; beginning in glabella, spreading upward and backward, < first in front of r., then behind l., then < occiput, extending to nose and contracting eyelids; and at root of nose and in temples. Undulating pain in r., then l., then over whole head; compressing burning pain in F. and vertex, in a spot which might be covered with the hand, with heat, shooting and throbbing in temples, burning in malar-bone and eyes, soreness in head all day, gnawing in occiput and inability to think. Bruised sensation where the pain had been; B. sensation in l. organ of "form," then on both sides. Soreness, with bruised sensation. Pressure downward towards eyes; P. upward, so that he must support head; upward in F. and vertex in forenoon; as from a liquid upward from root of nose and through sinus longitudinalis, with constantly increasing force, with general sweat, redness of face and anxiety. Pain in middle as if water were trickling down inside. Dulness, > open air; D. in l. upper part; in l. and in sides, with heat in face. Drawing extending to eyes and root of nose.

Weariness like a weight over eyes, extending to temples. Heaviness; over eyes; over eyes, towards temples; between brows and across nose. Tension over eyes and nose, extending behind ears, then choky feeling about throat like strangulation; T. over sinus and across nose, with fulness above and in front of ears; with pressure at root of nose. Fulness; all day; in r.; over orbits; upper part, with throbbing; in sinciput; deep in sinciput, with throbbing. Throbbing; in sinciput; over eyes; in "wonder;" sinciput all afternoon; < by every motion of head; < rising; under bone, extending to temple; beneath bone, extending across temples. Sensation on moving head as if something were loose. Brain seemed to move in r. Sensation in F. and occiput as if something rose to vertex. Vertigo.

Temples.—Veins enlarged and face flushed. Sticking in r.; then l., causing vertigo, with sickness; from r. to l., with weakness and inability to stand or walk, without vertigo; intermittent tearing S., extending towards masseter muscles. Piercing pain externally on l.; P., < in l., after flushes of rising heat. Cutting, tending to move towards ears. Pain; through T.; in r.; in r., then in both and behind ears; r. on shaking head; on running up-stairs, with throbbing in them, nausea and vertigo; < walking, talking or reading; > open air, returned at night in bed; and when pressing on them haze before eyes; from r. to l.; extending from one to the other; to l. of T., extending inwardly to nose. Twitching pain. Throbbing pain; at each step, obliging pressure on temporal arteries; < moving head, > application of snow to temples. Pain moving in waves towards middle of brain, with a bursting upward and with a piercing pain on skull over l. temple. Pain undulating and raging through whole head, < at last in region of sagittal suture.

Pressure outward; < l. and towards eyes. Tightness. Tension in r., with occasional pricking in r. eye; T. alternately in temples, occiput and ears; changing to occiput and ears, late falling asleep, waking frequently with the same pain, > next morning. Drawing in r. Oppression, and in occiput. Throbbing; in arteries, which felt like whipcords; in r.; < motion; < standing or walking in open air; moving from T. to T.; in r., with sharp pain, then in both and behind ears; could count the beats. Sensation as if something were running through them. Rushing sensation as of fulness.

Vertex.—Pain; at night on waking; in evening; after vertigo in occiput, < evening; in region of first fontanelle, also with fulness; in region of l. coronal suture; extending to nape; intermittent in intensity, with confusion of mind. Throbbing pain; in forenoon; in region of l. coronal suture; under V., with heat and redness of face, sinking beating in aorta behind umbilicus, beating in l. parietal region, all pains < shaking head, stooping, first motion after rising, on walking, standing and turning around. Confusing pain, with languor. Burning pain. Bruised sensation in brain in V. and region of first fontanelle, < moving head; in "firmness," r., then pulsation there. Soreness just under V., < stooping or stepping, > quiet and lying down. Pain in V. and temples as if pressed together; in V. and sides of head as if pressed together. Sudden pressure inward on V., with rush of blood; P. upward as if there were not room enough, < motion, especially of head, > during rest and in open air, also across eyes. Throbbing; upward; with pain extending to nape; paroxysmal, and in temples and occiput. Fulness.

Parietals.—Twitching in r. side of head and in r. orbit at noon, then in l. side and ringing in l. ear. Pain in l., then r. side of head; l. half of head, < vertex; r. side in front and l. side behind; behind ear and up in forehead; behind ears on shaking head; in sides, extending to over eyes; intermittent, in l. P. region. Throbbing on each side near vertex and across in region of coronal suture, < motion and looking up. Fulness forward from P. protuberance, including the whole of the anterior parts, on attempting to read, increasing to pain.

Occiput.—Cataplectic state of occipito-frontalis muscle during the day, with obtuseness of brain. Sticking. Gnawing. Pain; in forenoon, gradually extending forward and upward; from congestion; > night's sleep; in lower protuberance, < r., < turning head; r. and towards ears; and in region of ears and in nape, as if in medulla oblongata, < moving head, with stiffness of neck; with fulness, heat and thumping; then in vertex; extending to vertex; extending to eyes and temples; headache from back to front and from below upward; extending towards vertex, < shaking head sideways and only a little on shaking it backward or forward; extending to nape. Twitching pain; in l. and in l. orbit. Drawing pain towards O. Sore pain. Tensive pain extending upward and downward and towards both ears, with intermittent tension above r. eye. Oppression. Dulness. Beating in head from back to front, as if it would crowd everything out at forehead, less frequent than pulse. Fulness; < outside; then pain extending to forehead; thumping, when sitting down, < shaking it. Congestion, it seems as if he must lose his reason. Vertigo; then pain in vertex. O. and neck more affected than any other part. Relief in open air, but tensive pain in O. returns at times.

Skull feels too small; and as if brain were attempting to burst skull, with violent action of heart and pulsation over whole body. Skull feels empty. Shedding of hair. Pain in wens as if pressed together by a ring. Numbness of scalp.

Clinical.—An extremely valuable remedy for most violent supraorbital congestions from a great variety of causes, in all of which there is a strong pulsation in the head with every beat of the heart, the head sometimes < pressure and cold applications, with thin lips, or sometimes purplish lips, swollen face; the pain is crushing and oppressing; the brain feels as if it surged in waves (Aconite). A most valuable remedy for the effects of sunstroke. With these terrible headaches of Glo. the patient loses all power of recalling the names of objects, becomes dizzy and loses his way. Attacks of violent hemicrania. Threatening apoplexy. Symptoms of cerebro-spinal meningitis; pains seem to rise from neck through occiput. Terrible headache and sensitiveness of the upper part of the spine, from being thrown from a carriage.

Eyes.—Staring; and wild, protruding. Injected; l. during headache. Bluish pallor under eyes. Lifeless, much winking, looking strangely about, blue rings under eyes. Dim and tearful. Quivering, with inability to see straight. Prickling in r. Pain at 7 p.m., then drowsiness and heaviness of lids; P. behind l. eye and ear. Pressure across E.; P. downward upon E.; P. deep in r. at 7 p.m., when walking home. Soreness when moved. Whirling sensation under r. and in bone, then above eye. Heat; with tension. Sensation as if water were running out. Lachrymation; with heat. Pupils enlarged. Burning in balls; l. with sticking. Pain in balls. Conjunctiva congested. Lids, lower swollen; lower dead, dirty looking, as if sunken, eyes unsteady; lids contracted early in evening, as by sleep; heaviness in morning, with difficult waking. Heat in r. outer canthus. Orbit, sticking in r.; pressure in r.; twitching pain in l. Pain in supra-orbital ridge as if sore.

Vision dim; suddenly; with tingling in nerves of whole body. Weak in afternoon, letters seem blended and small. Confused, dancing of objects. He thinks he sees, with every beat of pulse, the blood-globules passing in eyes. Visionary objects pass before eyes. Of sparks. Lightnings so that he cannot see. Black floating spots, < on attempting to stoop, > driving, with vertigo so that he could not stand. Blindness; on attempting to read when standing, with faintness and nausea.

Clinical.—Supraorbital neuralgia, pulsating. Retinal congestions the result of exposure to a bright light.

Ears.—Sticking in r.; alternately in r. and l.; S. alternating with pressure in forehead. Piercing pain from region of r. towards r. eye. Throbbing pain piercing outward in r. Pain in r. as if swollen. Pain below l. mastoid process at 9 a.m. on pressure. Tensive pain behind r.; < pressure; in a spot in region of mastoid process. Stopped feeling in middle. Throbbing above E. Fulness; < r.; about E. Ring-ing and audible pulse. Rushing noise like escaping steam. Cracking in l. Buzzing. Humming. Deaf-ness, with heaviness and stopped sensation; partial.

Nose.—Twitching in wings and prickling twitching in face. Twitching pain in r. side of root; darting T. pain in r. side of root and r. side of forehead. Pain in root. Stoppage at root. Fulness. Schneiderian membrane thick as in dry coryza. Sneezing, with running from nose; late in evening.

Face.—Red; during headache; < upper part of cheeks, lower lids and ears, but not forehead. Blue, then red and swollen. Pale; after sweat; and agitated; with nausea and congestion to chest; alternately P. and red; or at times flushed, at times livid. Twitching in l. malar-bone; T. pain in l. malar-bone and temples. Pain in l. malar-bone, extending over forehead to vertex. Bloating feeling and heat. Sensation as if chin were elongated to knees, chin had been injured twenty years previously. Masseter muscles contracted; tight as if lockjaw were coming on. Gnawing in masseter muscles. Pain in joint of jaw; P. in r. lower jaw, < about joint, with stiffness in both sides of lower jaw. Movement of jaw impeded by twitching of temporal and masseter muscles. Cyanosis of lips, with involuntary diarrhoea. Sensation as if lower lip were swollen and pendant, but it was not. Burning in lips and tip of tongue; in various places in lips; in lips and fauces, with smarting. Itching of lips and after rubbing swollen sensation. Numbness of lower lip, with swollen sensation.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the face extending through the head, pulsating.

Mouth.—Throbbing pain in all teeth (Sul.). Drawing pain in all r. teeth as after taking cold, alternating with same in ear and lower jaw. Pain in lower molars, < r., then l. Tongue white, enlarged, indented by incisors; coated white; red specks, papillæ sore; stinging near centre and tip of T.; pricking, and in fauces; pricking, a chilling burning; pricking-biting; biting in a spot on l. side, with pricking and burning; pricking on l. side near tip; feeling swelled, raw, with twitchings; burnt feeling, and in mouth; numbness. Difficulty in conversing from diminished power of tongue and confusion of ideas.

Pimples on r. inner cheek. Soreness. Sensitiveness of hard palate. Swollen sensation in hard palate, with throbbing. Burning in hard palate. Dryness; at night, with thirst; of M. and throat at night, with choking and frequent inclination to swallow; and clamminess, and throat dry and painful during empty swallowing. Filled with thick offensive saliva in morning, during the day slimy saliva which had to be ejected as if it was too disagreeable to swallow. Offensive breath. Taste fatty; and like cinnamon; T. oily; bitter; sharp and tenacious; aromatic; like pine wood; like pine roots; sweet, burning and acrid; sweet, sharp, aromatic.

Throat.—Fulness of jugular veins. Pulsation in arteries. Thick mucus. Sticking in l. tonsil. Sensation as if swelling, with fear, causing her to feel it constantly; swollen sensation in fauces. Vomiting in afternoon after a walk of two hours, with great nausea, chilliness and sudden weariness; V. of all food (Ferr., Nux v.); V. immediately of midday meal, without nausea, with sickly aching in pit of stomach; V., with gripping all day.

Sticking, and in bowels; in pit, with throbbing. Constrictive pain. Cramp from œsophagus to umbilicus after eating. Gripping in forenoon, > eating. Gnawing before dinner; G. after eating. Pain all day, > lying and warmth of bed, returning on rising; P. in pit all forenoon, > eructations; in pit at night and in morning; after eating, > drinking; in pit; in r. side, > frequent eructations; with necessity to vomit; with oppression and anxiety; like ravenous hunger from morning till afternoon. Inspid and spoiled sensation, with good appetite. Heartburn; rancid; rancid, after a meal. Burning before eating, obliging him to eat; B. after eating, with heaviness of body and ill humor; B., then general heat, then sweat. Fermentation, then emission of flatus, then pressure, drawing and sticking alternating in body, then weakness of eyes. Coldness and emptiness.

Clinical.—Gastralgia, > eating (compare Petrol.), but the colic lower down in the abdomen comes on immediately after eating, < below umbilicus. Indigestion, with feeling of rancidity and heartburn. Complaints from fat food (compare Petrol. and Pul.). Gastralgia coming on some hours after eating, > warm milk, < cold drinks. Chronic gastric catarrh.

Abdomen.—Distention (Carb. v., Lye., etc.); on eating; after eating; after eating, with sourish, astringent taste; < eating, with sensitiveness to pressure; with heaviness; with rush of blood to head, heaviness of head, vertigo and confusion; and in stomach, with loss of appetite and constipation; as from incarceration of flatus, intolerance of anything tight about hypochondria. Tympanites after stool, with uneasiness and gripping. Tense; with diarrhœa. Rumbling; in morning; during noon meal; after drinking; with gripping between umbilicus and l. hypochondrium. Croaking like frogs. Almost involuntary emission of flatus; frequent offensive flatus (Carb. v., Sul.).

Jerking. Cramplike pain at night, with absence of urine. Cutting in morning, with several stools; C. on walking in open air; C. and burning. Gripping always before emission of flatus; G. < region of œcum; by jerks, with thirst without appetite. Burrowing. Dragging during menstruation, with labor-pains, pain in back, anxious pain in small of back, beginning with tickling, with eructations and then jerking-sticking toothache. Colic in morning, then diarrhœa, then consistent stool; C. after eating; after emission of flatus; one day before and two days during menstruation, with heat in abdomen; > pressure. Flatulent colic when walking; during excitement of genitals, hindering coition. Drawing pain at night, with desire for stool, but without diarrhoea. Intolerance of anything tight after eating (Lyc., Carb. v.).

Upper.—Pain as if everything would be torn to pieces during menstruation. Sticking in r. hypochondrium in morning after rising; in l. H. on motion; in r., extending to back; in hypochondria, obliging him to lie down; in hepatic region. Acute pain in hepatic region after breakfast so that she must lie down. Pain in region of spleen. Tension in hypochondria as from a band, with oppression of chest; T. in hypochondria, extending deep into lower abdomen. Burning in l. H. when sitting, > motion. Beating beneath short ribs at night on waking.

Jerking in side. Gurgling in r. side, extending into limbs, as from softly falling drops. Sticking in l. Burning in a spot in l. Constrictive gripping about umbilicus, with cutting, then natural stool.

Hypogastrium.—Sudden flatulence passing painfully towards ring; flatus < side, with rumbling. Fulness, < evening and night, with hardness and sensation of incarcerated flatus. Swollen glands in r. groin; S. of an inguinal gland, with sensitiveness; inflamed gland in r. groin. Sticking jerks in pelvic muscles about r. hip when sitting. Cramplike sticking Sticking in groin. Pain in r., < every step and inspiration; burning P. in r. groin, as if intestines would protrude, which seemed to move, < stretching body, > stooping; sore P. in l. inguinal glands. L. inguinal glands feel swollen so that he cannot walk well, but they are not swollen nor painful to touch. Tension in groins when walking. Heaviness, with dragging. Nausea.

Clinical.—Induration of the liver. Relief of ascites. Chronic catarrh of the intestines and discharge of masses of mucus with the stool, with constipation, stool covered with mucus. Note the numerous abdominal symptoms, constipation, accumulation of large masses of feces, which are covered with mucus; the anus is fissured, the cracks bleed and ulcerate.

Rectum.—Prolapsus (with its hæmorrhoids), without urging, as if anus were paralyzed. Discharge of blood, with sticking in it. Sticking; as if everything were indurated. Dragging in R. and anus, with burning; D. as with hæmorrhoids. Urging, stool not hard, but difficult on account of inactivity of R. Tenesmus with each stool. Pressing without stool. Provocation to stool without need therefore.

Anus.—Burning hæmorrhoids. Swelling all about; much S. of veins. A cord like a swollen vein extending from anus towards nates, painless to touch. Single stiches; tearing S. extending into rectum. Cutting (rectum?) in morning in bed. Sore. Smarting sore pain on wiping (Æsc. h.). Itching (Sul.). Burning with the stool. Swollen feeling. Sore pain on r. side of perineum, where there are pale red, irregular pimples between the hairs, with acute pain on touch.

Stool.—Liquid, with mucus. Diarrhoea almost without pain, then prostration; frequent D., with burning in anus; sudden slimy, with feeling as if flatus would pass, preceded by sinking and coldness in abdomen. Soft, with blood; three S., at night, with colic; S. and sour, offensive. Pasty, dark. Hard, with urging and sticking in anus (N. ac.); II. and lumpy; H. and blackish. Lumpy, with threads of mucus, and after stool there is still mucus in anus. Dark, half-digested, of intolerable odor (Sulph.). Thin, like a round worm. Sour-smelling, with burning in rectum. Much white mucus with stool; reddish mucus. Blood with stool; after menstruation, with smarting in rectum. Round worms with stool. Passage of thread-worms, with itching in anus. Increased feces mixed with mucus. Frequent; the first hard and thick, the others soft.

Obligated to urinate early in morning; at night. Micturition in a thin stream as if urethra were contracted. Frequent micturition; at night; and copious. Involuntary M. Raw pressure in root of urethra, with desire to urinate. Tickling in urethra when urinating. Burning in urethra when not urinating; in orifice after urinating. Urine clear, but after four or five hours covered with iridescent film. Acid, sourish odor to urine. Dark brown U., with a stich in urethra during micturition. Dark U., depositing reddish sediment. U. becomes turbid and deposits a white sediment (Berb., Sep.); becomes turbid after two hours, with reddish sediment, biting in urethra during micturition.

Clinical.—Nocturnal enuresis associated with the eruption of Grap. Inflammation of the urethra (herpetic), with more or less soreness and with gluey, sticky discharge at the meatus.

Sexual Organs.—Tension when walking and on touch of clothing, with unpleasant sensation. Penis, eruption; P. covered with thick mucus; pinching; jerking pain; drawing pain; bubbling sensation during erections. Erections without lascivious thought; strong E.; strong E. after coition. Vesicles on prepuce. Prepuce swells to a large water-blister, without pain (see Nit. ac.). Swelling of scrotum (in coverings of testicles? Hydrocele?). Itching and moist eruption on scrotum (compare Nat. m.); I. within scrotum. R. testicle seems swollen. Sticking at times in r. testicle. Drawing in testicles. Jerking pain in l. spermatic cord. Voluptuous irritability. Revival of desire. Lascivious thoughts, so that he feared he should be insane, with running about, and with heaviness in perineum and tensive pain in penis without erections. Desire gone; afterwards aroused so that even the touch of a woman caused sexual excitement and trembling in all limbs. Emissions nearly every night. Ejaculation does not follow coition in spite of every exertion.

Female.—Pressure towards; when standing. Papules on pudenda, with itching. Itching of pudenda before menstruation. Soreness of pudenda. Vesicle on labia, with itching biting. Painless pimple on internal labia. Frequent sticking in labia. Biting in vagina. Leucorrhœa; < morning on rising; profuse; profuse, of white mucus; profuse when walking and sitting, with weakness of back and œnum; thin, with distended abdomen. Swelling of the l. indurated ovary, with stony hardness, with pain, partly on touch and partly on inspiration or hawking, when stiches shoot into it, with general sweat and sleeplessness. Menstruation delayed (Nat. m., Puls., Sep., Sulph.); with heaviness in abdomen and dullness in head the first day; suppressed, with heaviness of arms and legs. M. too soon (Carbo v.) (secondary action); too soon, thin, of short duration, with pain in back, > motion.

Clinical.—It has been used for sexual debility, seminal emissions, constipation, etc. Herpes of the prepuce. Hydrocele. Moist eruptions on the scrotum. Disorders accompanying scanty or delayed menstruation or suppression of the menses, with great mental depression, weeping, vertigo, eruptions on the face and herpetic eruptions on other parts of the body. Menstruation very irregular, sometimes scanty and pale, at other times the flow is dark, associated with violent colic, at other times suppressed, with severe cutting and bearing-down pains in uterine region and hips. Particularly adapted to menstrual irregularities in women who are inclined to get fat and who have herpetic eruptions. Suppression of the menses, with induration of the ovaries. Leucorrhœa instead of menstruation, the discharge coming in gushes, with great weakness, soreness of the pudenda, ulceration. Membranous dysmenorrhœa. Profuse milky-white leucorrhœa in gushes. Diseases following laceration of the cervix, especially follicular and cystic diseases, are sometimes cured by Grap. Sub-acute or chronic inflammation of vagina and neck of uterus. Tumors of the pelvis, with bearing-down pains. So-called cauliflower excrescences, with severe lancing pains, have been relieved and perhaps cured. Indurations and excrescences which bleed easily, on neck of uterus. Induration of l. ovary, very hard, with violent pain on touch or on breathing. Induration of both ovaries, which are very sore, < taking cold or getting feet wet, with tendency to cold, wet feet. Indurations form in the mammae and become cancerous. In nursing women the nipples are sore, cracked and bleeding.

Respiratory Organs.—Tickling in larynx, < evening in bed, causing hawking and short cough. Hoarseness every evening; H. during menstruation, with catarrh and catarrhal fever. Scraping in trachea. Cough, with catarrh and heat in head; C. which fatigues chest in morning and during the day, > night, before and during menstruation; which fatigues chest, with pain low down in chest; dry, during menstruation, with profuse sweat; dry hacking, wakes him at night and lasts next day; C. in evening on lying down, with much expectoration. Expectoration of blood, with sensitiveness of palate and tongue. Whistling in air-passages on breathing. Suffocative sensation, waking her at night; on walking in open air. Dyspnoea in evening on lying down and cough on deep inspiration; sudden D., with difficult short breath. Difficult breathing.

Clinical.—Chronic hoarseness in persons subject to herpetic eruptions, especially if the eruptions have been suppressed, the voice breaks on attempting to sing. Spasmodic asthma, with suffocative paroxysms, which awaken from sleep, > eating. Whooping cough.

Chest.—Mucus. Sticking in l.; in forepart of l. in evening; in sides on every motion; in r. on breathing, > pressure of hand; externally in r. near sternum, < lying on r. side; in middle on ascending steps, with oppression of breathing; in r. arresting breath. Tearing in r. Pinching; in evening obliging him to stretch; on walking long in open air. Pressure on l. side, increasing to pinching and almost intolerable twinging pain, only when sitting. Pain in nipples; in sternum between breasts; P. in chest on ascending; when sitting; in r. ribs on touch; in lower ribs near sternum on touch; in upper part on yawning, touch or riding horseback; across from l. to r. side. Raw pain like raw flesh. Catarrhal rawness of C. and trachea. Tickling low down, with loose cough and salt expectoration. Intolerance of anything tight. Oppression; morning on rising, < inspiration; l. side and heart in morning. Burning pressure beneath l. axilla. Burning in middle on inspiration, with tension and sensitiveness. Burning throbbing externally in l., < inspiration. (Elnptiness and coldness in C. and about heart, with sadness.)

Heart.—Sticking. Pressure on breathing. Throbbing in evening when lying on l. side, > turning over, with anxiety. Palpitation; sudden, like an electric shock from heart to throat; which moves arm and hand and causes anxiety.

Neck.—Sticking in nape; tearing; S. in sides on moving head. Smarting cutting as from an ulcer at seventh cervical vertebra. Pain in nape; and shoulders on bending head forward, preventing raising arms to head; and in shoulders when lying upon them or turning (from swollen glands on side of neck, which are not sore). Rheumatic pain in nape. Tension in nape and r. side of neck on moving head. Stiffness of nape.

Back.—Drawing. Scapulae, sticking in l., with pain; pressure between; bruised pain in scapulae; rheumatic pain in l.; contractive pain between. Heart and Pulse.—Pricking pain in region of H. and in veins of arms. Palpitation. H's beats can be counted by lying still and pulsations are felt in balls of fingers. Pulse rapid. Pulse irregular; full and hard, then almost imperceptible; 60, every fifth, sixth or seventh beat a little faster and stronger.

Neck and Back.—Sore pain down cervical vertebræ. Tearing across back. Backache; caused by an emission; all day, and pain in legs; along spine, back of stomach, about 4 P.M.; in loins all day; in loins in morning; in kidney region in morning on rising; in sacrum and hip all day, < walking.

Extremities.—Aching and tendency to go to sleep. Drawing pain in hands, legs and feet. Rheumatic symptoms in arms and legs through the day. Fulness in joints as if they would burst. Weariness in r.; r. arm and leg; of limbs and arms when walking. Going to sleep easily in afternoon.

Upper Extremities.—Arms, drawing pain in flexors of r.; weariness; stiffness of A. and shoulders after horseback riding; bruised pain in upper A. and shoulders, < motion, next day with drowsiness. Pain in humeri; extending to elbow and causing stiffness in elbow; sore, in head of r. in morning, extending to elbow, with stiffness of elbow. Shooting along flexors of r. forearm into palm. Pricking pain from wrist to shoulder, along course of superficial veins, < pressure. R. wrist and fingers stiff in morning. Pain in back of r. hand, extending to shoulder-joint; P. in hands and fingers in morning, with stiffness. Sore pain in r. thumb-nail after a slight knock, < night, afterwards with sensation as if growing into flesh, afterwards transiently > discharge of pus. Finger sore after rubbing off a small piece of skin. Fingers stiff at night, and sticking in first joint of r. index.

Lower Extremities.—Bruised feeling, < l. Tired; from hips to feet, inability to run fast; in r. at 6 P.M., with forcing feeling in varicose veins; in r., where there are varicose veins, > placing it on a chair, removed by walking. Sensitiveness of varices. Peculiar feeling in varices. (Apparent diminution of varicose veins above knee.) Sticking along l. sciatic nerve; S. in l. hip and under l. patella when walking. Soreness of femoral vessels to middle third of thigh. Sore pain in r. femur; S. pain running down thighs, < r. Weary pain in thighs; < l.; at night, < middle and lower third, and in popliteal space, with dilatation of varicose veins. Stiffness of upper part of thighs.

Pain in l. knee. Sore pain in popliteal space. Soreness of knee. Rheumatic pains in legs. Fulness in joints of legs as if they would burst, then dread of moving the limbs, with weary, stiff, full feeling. R. leg tired. Pain in feet and toes; in r. great toe; suddenly in r. great toe when running. Feet easily go to sleep when driving in cold wind. Sticking in corns on r. foot at 10 A.M., afterwards as soon as boots are put on in morning (rainy day), permanent during the day, occasionally pulsating. Sharp pain in corns on toe. Pulsations in corns on l. toes in evening; P. in corns on both feet after paring them in morning.

Skin.—Herpes on lower part of nose; on nose in afternoon, > evening. Hands chapped. Pimples between thumb and index, < r.; on face, caused by emissions, with bad feeling; on nates, sore on touch; behind ear and on body, sore on touch and pressure; fine, all over body, next day not so sensitive. Feeling as if vermin were running over body; all over hairy parts. Tingling in foot when counting femoral pulse. Itching of hands; axilla, < r.; all over body on undressing; on lower limbs on undressing; of hands in morning on waking, transiently > rubbing them together, < scratching, l. next day at 6 A.M. on waking, > rubbing and putting them into cold air, unaffected by washing in cold water.

Sleep.—Sleepiness; two hours after dinner. Less inclination to sleep than usual, slept well all night. Sleeplessness from thinking too much. Could scarcely sleep, heard the clock strike every hour. Uneasy sleep in morning; U. sleep, constant waking from thinking of the business of the day, turning over in bed, unrefreshed on waking. Restless night, whole body felt hot and dry, sexual dream, with emission, then weariness and pain in loins. Sexual dream, with an emission; without emission. Fearful D. Unpleasant D. at 5 A.M., then uneasy sleep. D. that a bat was flying in the room and fear of injury therefrom.

Fever.—Coldness; on going to bed; running up legs; in flashes over back and hips at 9 A.M., extending down limbs. Heat; then tearing across small of back and fulness in joints of legs as if they would burst, which soon extended to all joints. Hot hands; and dry; burning in palms, with dryness. Hot and dry skin. Sweat at night after lying down.

Clinical.—It has been used in low forms of typhoid or malarial fevers, with weak, rapid pulse, etc. It has been given for hæmorrhagic measles, hæmorrhagic smallpox and purpura.

Helleborus Niger.

A tincture is made of the dried root of Helleborus niger, L.

General Action.—It produces a "bluntness of sensibility" of all the special senses; also occasionally convulsions. It first produces scanty urine and dropsical symptoms.

Allies.—Puls., Colch., Apis.

Generalities.—Flesh feels soft. Convulsions; in coldness. Cramps and convulsive motions, with shooting in brain. General tremor. Unsteadiness in her actions. Tearing sticking in several places at once, on upper arms, chest, back, etc. Sticking boring in coverings of bones; S. boring in various parts, < cold and exertion and after eating and drinking. Feeling after the fever as if he had been sick long in bed; feeling in open air as if he had been sick long, all objects seemed new. Soreness in flesh. (Distended sensation in swollen parts, with heaviness.) Could neither sit, stand nor lie, and constantly pointed to his heart. Feeling as if blood were poor and thin, listlessness. Necessity to stretch as soon as he opened his eyes in morning, then weariness and closure of lids. Weakness; in forenoon, with sleepiness and yawning. Sudden relaxation of all muscles, with falling to the ground, coldness of body, cold sweat on forehead, stammering, slow pulse and contracted pupils. Faintness. Aggravation in afternoon and evening. Amelioration in open air.

Clinical.—This drug seems to be useful in a general condition of want of reaction, a semi-paralytic state of the system.

Mind.—Delirium. Vivid fancies after lying down, a hundred forms float before his eyes, suddenly coming and going. Self-confidence. Happy carelessness about everything. Mirth alternating with melancholy, desire to laugh, then desire to weep. Anxiety; with restlessness, apprehension of misfortune; with indifference to joy or sorrow, contented with nothing. Restless, impatient, hopeful, feeling as if circulation were increased, could accomplish great deeds, fearless, feeling as if brain were boiling. Anger at trifles. Fretfulness. Despair about his own life. Sadness; on seeing a cheerful person; on account of his condition. Home-sick. Do not wish to speak, dread company; do not wish any one to speak to me or look at me. Reflective, taciturn all the afternoon. Tranquil and desirous to lie down. (Irresolute.) (Dresses himself awkwardly.) Stupefaction, with slow answers (Phos.); S., with vertigo. Distraction when studying. Inability to reflect. Memory weak.

Clinical.—The general mental condition characteristic of this drug is one of almost complete stupor; it is extremely difficult to arouse the patient (the Phos. ac. patient can be aroused easily). There seems to be great physical prostration, or at least loss of control of the mind over the body, possibly due to cerebral effusion (serous); this tendency to serous effusions is very marked in almost every part of the body, and in dropsical effusions everywhere Hell. is the remedy if the patient be stupid (Apis). Melancholia, fear of death, a kind of stupidity, unintelligible muttering, etc.

Head.—Tearing in various parts. Piercing pain, which on sitting upright becomes a burning in brain. Aching; all day, with heaviness in it and pain in limbs; every day from 4 to 8 p.m.; on waking, < occiput, with heaviness; in skull; deep; so that he moves constantly, > lying quietly in a half dose, with eyes closed; stupefying, all day, as from drunkenness; as if compressed all day; as if brain were pressed inward on every step in open air; as if brain would be pressed from both sides towards middle and upward. Bruised pain; now in one part of brain, now in another, < stooping, with dulness.

Brain feels too large; on waking, with paroxysmal pain in forehead, < movement, > pressure. Confusion; till evening, with heaviness; < stooping, with warmth; > pressure of palm; > open air, with heaviness and inclination to vertigo; with painless digging here and there; and noise hurts, sound of wind distresses. Heaviness; all day, < during fever, > open air, with tension and pressure inward in temples, < forehead, and with every pulse pressing drawing as if blood were forced through head; with internal heat in it, cold fingers and general chill. > wrapping up hands and keeping them warm; of brain, with sensation as if it were surrounded by a tight skin, with inability to think or remember. Stupefaction; dizzy. Congestion of brain.

Vertigo; all day, < walking; in morning on waking, with heaviness of head, then nausea, he feels better when sitting and bending head, but on rising return of nausea and vertigo; on stooping; on stooping and raising head again, > becoming erect; on becoming erect; on walking; with nausea and prostration; with indistinct vision, dilated pupils, roaring in ears and unsteady gait; with pleasant warmth in stomach and abdomen; stupefying, with inclination to fall forward; as if objects moved in a circle, with stupidity.

Forehead.—Muscles drawn in folds. Drawing in skin so that it is wrinkled. Sticking externally in r., then l.; boring S. transversely across. Tearing in r. eminence, involving l. eye. Boring in bone and along coronal suture; in F. and occiput, with sticking. Boring drawing pain. Aching; in l.; over eyes; in bone; in sinciput; deep in sinciput; in sinciput all day, with heat in it; in evening, with pressure in r. temple; in eminence when sitting, with vertigo; in sinciput, < evening, with tearing and heat; in r. eminence, < walking in open air; over eyes extending to temples, skin of F. feels tight, disposed to frown, head feels weak as if dazed; bursting. Pressure outward in r. Brain feels too large in front, occiput feels empty, then reverse in forehead and occiput feels as if it would fall forward, disposed to lie down and roll head from side to side, feel helpless like an infant, disposed to draw up feet like an infant. Pulsation, and in temples, with heat in face. Confusion; all day in sinciput, with heaviness and pain. Heaviness; in sinciput; in sinciput, < afternoon, with heat and pressure, then towards evening the trouble in head alternated with pressure in r. upper arm, then the headache alternated with pain in knee, r. leg, l. hand and upper arm, with these symptoms rapid pulse, cold hands, hot head and face, relief at 11 p.m., next night full of anxious dreams. Stupefaction and pressure. < eyes, as if something would fall out of F. and eyes.

Pain in temples; in r. after exerting attention. < walking; compressive; drawing, to ear; bursting sensation. Pulsation in l. temple, ending in a stitch. Drawing pain in vertex in morning in bed. Pressure upon vertex; as with a point; as if skull were pressed inward; like a clavus. Bruised pain externally in vertex and occiput, < during chill, becoming on motion, < stooping and ascending steps, a jerking in scalp, > pressure. Sticking in region of r. coronal suture, as if rising out of brain. One-sided tearing, with chill. Pressure in l. side; drawing P. in l. hemisphere of brain from behind to forehead, as if brain accumulated there. Stupefying, dizzy drawing now in one, now in other hemisphere, also in whole brain. Confusion of l. side, with change of coryza from fluent to stopped. Pain in occiput; extending towards nape; bruised, < stooping. Sensation as if scalp were tight over occiput.

Clinical.—Hydrocephalus, with torpidity, unconsciousness, insensibility of eyes, suppression of urine, especially with wrinkling of forehead and constant chewing motion. Hydrocephalus, with sudden screams and boring of the head into the pillow, wrinkling of forehead, automatic motions of one arm or foot. Some cases of hydrocephalus, with most violent general convulsions, distortion of the face, complete unconsciousness, suppression of urine. The sequelae of hydrocephalus, the child is idiotic, seems to want nothing, but drinks eagerly. Effects of repressed eruptions, simulating hydrocephalus. Distortion of the eyes in hydrocephalus. Effects of concussion of the brain, after Arn. had failed.

Eyes.—Staring. Sunken and discolored about lids. Sticking as if they would lachrymate. Boring deep in r. Pressure; deep; P. upon them. Feeling as if pressed together by something heavy from above in open air, he must exert himself to open them widely. Burning biting. < inner canthus. Pupils dilated; contracted. Sticking in l. ball; S. in ball and its covering in morning after waking, on pressing eyes together; S. downward. Pain in r. ball; in a spot on l. ball, between it and external and upper part of orbit. Twitching of lids; upper. Lids, half open in slumber and pupils drawn upward; (swollen, red); biting in r.; B. in margins; burning and pricking. Canthi, inner full of dry mucus in morning; soreness in l. in morning on waking, with moisture in them; pressure in r. inner, < closing eye; itching.

Orbit, sticking in upper margin of l., rather towards inner canthus, > during pressure with finger; tearing on outer side of l., as if between wall and ball, affecting ball; aching; deep A.; A. as if eyes would fall out. Twitching of brows and cheeks, with heat of face. Brow, sticking tension in l. on touch, as if a pimple would form; pain drawing back and forth, with spasmodic contraction of their muscles. Photophobia; during fever. Sensation as if everything were too clear and black. Vision dim; in morning; flickering; of floating specks; of black specks; of black specks and rings; of bright and dark spots.

Ears.—Burrowing boring-sticking in r. at night, with sticking-tearing toothache, only the earache remained in morning and during the day. Pressure; in fossa behind lobule. Drawing pain as if middle ears would burst. Roaring and ringing.

Nose.—Pain in root. Constriction as if suffocation would follow. Heat; in nostrils; about nostrils; under nose; itching, in l. wing. Biting itching beneath nose and on upper lip, as in commencing coryza. Spasmodic tickling as if it would cause sneezing, with yawning. Sneezing; in morning on rising, whereby upper lip cracks in middle; in morning fasting; with nausea. Catarrh of l. nostril; fluent C., with dizzy confusion of head; fluent C., with stupefaction of head. Small less acute.

Face.—Pale during heat of head; P. and features distorted; and swollen; pulse lost, icy coldness and cold sweat all over body, so that a drop is on end of every hair. Red. Yellow. Boring in l. zygoma. Pain in l. zygoma; in r. as if in bone. A row of stitches behind ascending ramus of lower jaw, near ear. Vesicle in middle of red of upper lip in morning after waking. Ulceration in corners of lips, with itching.

Mouth.—Tearing in third molars on biting them together, extending into roots; sticking T. in r. molars in evening in bed, < warmth and cold, so that he sleeps little, the lower molars seem longer, > during the day. Hollow teeth feel as if cold air passed through them. Tongue, trembling; vesicles; pimple on tip, with sticking on touch; sticking; dry and white in morning on rising; stiff, insensible. Scraping posteriorly on palate; S. on arch of palate and in fauces. Dryness; all day, with scraping in throat; of palate, with cutting scraping in it on moving mouth to swallow. Salivation; watery. Taste bitter in throat, < eating; B. to all food; sourish T., with salivation; dry, slimy, with thirst.

Clinical.—Aphthæ of the mouth.

Throat.—Pain in cervical glands. Flapping as of mucus, like the opening and shutting of a valve on every inspiration. Sticking; low down; and in fauces and tongue, with strangury and constriction of throat and difficult swallowing, pain at epigastrium and violent sickness, swelling of tongue and other organs of deglutition, much viscid mucus from mouth. Scraping; in fauces from 10 to 1 and from 10 to 11 P.M.; in fauces, with dryness. Rawness as after acrid liquor. Pressure on swallowing, with excoriated feeling. Constriction. Burning and dryness; agreeable warmth from pharynx to stomach and over whole body, as after spirituous drinks.

Stomach.—Appetite great; in forenoon; with frequent tasteless eructations; ravenous; diminished; lost; A., but no relish to food and nausea while eating. Aversion to food; to fat meat; to green vegetables and sauerkraut. Thirst; none all day. Eructations; of bitter fluid; suppressed. Empty eructations; after breakfast; with nausea, but inability to vomit. Hiccough. Nausea; in evening; in evening, > bitter vomiting, with prostration, then helpless feeling; at night, with prostration and bitter vomiting; after eating; > breakfast, with headache; disturbing sleep; rising from pit of stomach; in whole abdomen; it often seems as if he were hungry, but food disgusts him. Vomiting; copious, frequent; of mucus; of food, then relief; greenish slimy; greenish-black, with colic; bitter at night.

Distention in pit and epigastric region, impeding respiration, with ulcerative pain; D. in stomach, with ravenous hunger; D., with grumbling in abdomen as of frogs. Lancinations from epigastrium to rectum. Gripping. Cramp in pit and just below it, > straightening up and when walking, returning on sitting, with nausea. Pain; in pit; in pit at every step; ulcerative, after every meal; distending; bruised near and beneath pit and in region of pylorus, where it is painful on every step, the pain < talking loud and on touch. Soreness, < stepping and coughing. Scraping as if rubbed with woolen. Biting; in evening, with heaviness and distended feeling; during a short walk, with gnawing, ravenous hunger and prostration of lower limbs; in morning fasting, then pain in abdomen, with rumbling, then slight soft stool, then dragging in rectum. Oppression. Pit feels drawn inward. Feeling as if a fluid were poured into it. Uneasiness as before vomiting. Burning; rising through œsophagus; rising into head like nausea; and in fauces, like a streak of fire.

Abdomen.—Distention; in evening; with constant ineffectual urging to stool; with ulcerated sensation on pressure; painful. Rumbling; with uneasiness. Movements of flatus; as if bubbles rose and burst, then offensive flatus; rising of flatulence towards short ribs, with empty eructations. Offensive flatus; in morning after the customary milk; after dinner. Sticking, with tearing transversely across it. Cutting continuing in evening. Gripping on ascending steps; dysentery-like C. transversely across after eating. Burrowing.

Colic; on waking at 5 A.M., with more urging to urinate than usual in morning and scanty urine; at night; with pallor, sunken features and staggering, found leaning against a tree, arms hanging down relaxed, hands cold, eyes sunken, lids closed, pupils moderately dilated and scarcely sensible to light, lips bluish, face covered with clammy sweat, pulse thrready, 102, then four liquid stools, with tensusus, retching and vomiting twice of slimy, yellowish fluid (compare Colch.); as before diarrhœa; bruised pain anteriorly and laterally in walls. Loose sensation in morning, so that pressure was agreeable. Heaviness. Coldness. Discomfort, with coldness, as before diarrhœa; D., with drawing pain as before diarrhœa, then urging to stool and pasty stool.

Twisting griping in hepatic region extending downward and forward. Umbilicus, twisting about, in morning, > bending together and passage of flatus, with cutting; pain deep in region; heat deep in region; sharp pressure inward transversely across below U., < sitting. Rumbling beneath umbilicus; R. low down as if in spine. Sticking in hypogastrium, disturbing sleep. Jerking cuttings from r. iliac region (beneath and outward in umbilicus) to outer part of l. iliac region, returning in r. iliac region, which was painful to pressure. Pain in r. groin; becoming a sticking, a sensation as if a hernia would form; intermittent, in outer surface of os ilium, similar to sciatica, in afternoon. Pressure on middle of pubis.

Clinical.—Many cases of ascites have been cured. Dropsy the result of disease of the kidneys or following eruptive diseases.

Rectum.—Aching. Tenesmus after stool. Frequent inclination to stool. Sudden urging, with cutting in abdomen, then pasty stool, with disappearance of discomfort in abdomen; sudden pressing asunder urging, then a thick, dry, difficult stool, with smarting in anus during and after stool. Ineffectual urging. No desire for stool at usual time, and a sensation as if anus were closed forever, then sudden pressure and sensation of distention, at first only short emissions of flatus, then a hard, large, difficult stool, with smarting during and < after the stool.

Anus.—Inclination to hæmorrhoids. Dragging, with pressing asunder sensation, then stool difficult, frothy, mostly hard feces in balls. Sudden pressure as from a foreign body, with desire for stool, but only flatus is passed, afterwards return of pressure and a small amount of large feces. Feeling all day as of constipation. Burning biting after stool. Itching as from ascariæ.

Stool.—Of only clear, tenacious, colorless mucus (Colch.). White, gelatinous, like frog spawn, frequent, with pressure. Liquid, twice at night. Diarrhœa; with nausea and colic; always preceded by colic, which is relieved after stool. Soft and in part thin, with feeling as if intestines had not power to evacuate it. Constipation. Hard, scanty, during and after which there is cutting sticking upward in rectum, as if it drew itself tightly together and something with sharp edges were sticking between its walls. Large, difficult, with burning smarting in anus, which continues after stool, < sphincter. Undigested. Frequent. Retained, next day earlier than usual, and in afternoon diarrhœa.

Clinical.—Diarrhœa, stools of jelly-like mucus, like frog spawn, generally with tenesmus (Colch.); sometimes profuse watery diarrhœa alternating with constipation, in abdominal dropsy.

Urinary Organs.—Urging; frequent, with scanty discharge (Colch.); desire and scanty discharge, with burning through urethra. Frequent micturition. When urinating there is no stream and no desire, as if bladder had lost its power of expulsion. Urine copious; without much urging; and watery; diminished; U. decomposes in a few minutes; U. dark yellow; passed without a stream.

Clinical.—Subacute inflammation of the kidneys, with suppression of urine in dropsical symptoms. Inflammation of the bladder and almost complete suppression of urine.

Sexual Organs.—Relaxation and no desire. Itching sticking in tip of glans. No erections even when urine has accumulated in bladder. Desire suppressed. Pain in region of r. ovary.

Clinical.—Suppression of menses.

Respiratory Organs.—Mucus, so that breathing was audible. Contracted feeling, with audible inspiration. Cough; sudden, constant hacking, when sitting smoking tobacco as usual; dry hacking, with painful tension in l. short ribs. Moaning. Groaning and grunting. Involuntary sighing. Breathing difficult; in evening; from tightness of chest; and he must breathe slowly and deeply; with frequent need to breathe deeply, < walking in open air. Rapid breathing. Short breath when reading or speaking. Breathes better with mouth open.

Chest.—Sticking in walls; in top of lungs; in l.; l. costal region; beneath l. ribs; in l. short ribs when walking; in last true ribs on every inspiration; in l. on every deep inspiration when lying in evening. Cutting on lowest true ribs outward through chest, < inspiration. Twinging at one time in r. anterior part, at another in region of heart. Piercing pain in l. breast near axilla. Pain in walls; in muscles; l. muscles; near r. axilla; in l. breast on leaning over; in l. breast and shoulder on moving, extending down arm to elbow. Constriction so that he gasps for breath, with open mouth, but cannot breathe. Tight, as if lungs were tightened, because ribs do not seem to expand. L. short ribs seem screwed to spine. Scraping in upper part of sternum. Warmth in lower part.

Clinical.—Hydrothorax, difficult respiration, necessity to sit up, with great constriction of chest and gasping for breath.

Heart and Pulse.—Pain in region of H. Heaviness in region of H. Palpitation. Violent throbbing of H. Pulse rapid; then slow; slow; varied from 30 to 50, small, at times scarcely perceptible; small; small and tremulous; small and feeble; strong; felt vividly through whole body, < heart.

Clinical.—Heart's action weak, pulse small and tremulous, with dropsical symptoms.

Neck.—Pain in cervical bone; P. in nape extending to vertex; in some muscles on moving neck, with stiffness. Stiffness of muscles of nape as far as occiput, during rest, < moving head; rheumatic S. of nape.

Back.—Sticking in middle of spine, with gnawing; boring S. in region of spine just below shoulders. Pain in various parts; P. under scapula; in l. scapula, becoming sharp on moving it; in lumbar muscles; above waist, rocking from side to side; bruised, in spine between scapula; bruised, in loins; P. in loins as from flatus which could not pass, towards evening when sitting; contractive, in sacrum.

Extremities.—Stretching. Unsteady, feet weak, knees tottering. Sticking in calves, shoulders and toes. Tearing in toes and fingers; T. in joints at night in bed. Boring drawing pain in fingers, forearm and knees. Pain in fingers and toes; fingers, knees and shoulders; arms, toes and knees; knees, toes and shoulders; l. knee, r. shoulder and in toes; lower part of thighs and in elbows; anterior muscles of thigh and in wrist; all day in r. knee and in legs, externally, in tibia, joints of fingers, wrists and ankles; r. ankle and leg, then in r. shoulder, then in r. fingers, between metacarpus and fingers; changing from one joint to another; P. and drawing alternately in l. fingers, calves, l. elbow, beneath r. shoulder, in l. cervical muscles, in r. knee, then more seldom, in toes and l. side of head; rheumatic P. in bones. Drawing in fingers and toes. Heaviness; with sensitiveness of muscles. Weariness, < standing, with bruised pain in small of back. Limbs and arms relaxed. Paralytic feeling, they feel large and heavy. Torpor, with stiffness.

Upper Extremities.—Shoulder, tearing in l.; pressure, in l., which feels higher than r. Arm, tearing in shafts of bones; pressure in muscles of A. and scapulae. Upper arm, bruised pain; in l., with twitching of muscles; pressure. Pressure in elbows. Forearm, tearing in r.; pain in l.; drawing from middle to elbow. Wrist, sticking in l. in evening on walking in open air; pressure; pressure in r.; drawing pain from r. into index. Hand, sticking transversely across flexor tendons of l. on walking in open air; pain in bones, also in evening; pain in last r. bones; weakness; numbness of r., with prickling in it and coldness through r. arm; N. of r., with coldness through arm to tips of fingers; N. of r., with internal coldness of arm and hand.

Fingers.—Inflamed spot on nails of l. index and r. thumb, with suppurative pain on touch, next day whitish exudation, after which they heal. Jerking of l. index towards thumb during the day when walking, sitting and reading, and sometimes jerking of thumb towards fingers, sometimes sudden J. of muscles between two fingers. Tearing in l. middle, < middle joint; on backs of all l. in morning in bed; paralytic, in r. little; paralytic, in r. fourth during rest, with spasmodic stiffness. Boring in middle joints of middle and index. Painful pressure transversely across r. thumb. Tickling in l. index.

Lower Extremities.—Aching as they get warm. Hip, sticking in l.; pain in l. like sciatica; pain in l. all day as if rubbed sore or burnt, < touch; drawing pain in r.; burning pressure in l.; sudden paralytic stiffness of l. when walking in open air. Thigh, tearing in anterior and outer part of r. like sciatica; boring in r. T. and leg, with sticking; pain; P. in bend of r.; P. in muscles of l.; P. in anterior muscles of l.; P. in muscles above knee; compression above l. knee; weariness; stiffness of muscles, with tension; S. of hamstrings, < external, on walking in open air.

Knee, boring sticking through l., frequently in open air, when walking and standing; boring externally in r.; burrowing in r. patella; pain in l. knee and patella as after a thrust, < bending knee and by pressure; pain; P. in r.; P. in outer part of l.; P. and sticking; stiffness in hollows. Legs, frequent twitching of muscles; sticking in calves; sticking upward near r. external malleolus; pain; P. in calf; P. in r. calf; P. in tibiae; drawing pain; weakness. Ankles, sticking extending to toes, with tearing; pressure; P. in r., above and below, in evening; sprained pain in l.; bruised pain in l. inner malleolus.

Foot, tearing in ball of l.; pain in back; P. in heels; P. in r. os calcaneum; P. in heels; P. in r. sole when sitting; prickling in l.; heaviness and weariness; numbness. Toes, sticking jerking in l. great; prickling in all, pain in r.; P. in r. great; P. in great.

Skin.—Sudden dropsical swelling; swellings in forehead, with bruised pain. Desquamation. Hairs of whole body and nails fall out. Pimple on l. side of forehead, with bruised pain on hard touch. Yellowish roundish tetter on arms, exuding water on scratching. Vesicles between first joints of fourth and fifth fingers, smarting on touch, moist, then scabs; moist painless V. on middle joint of r. fourth finger, with soreness of bone on pressure. Crawling in l. cheek. Itching corrosion on arms after going to sleep in evening and morning, and after scratching biting as from salt water.

Sleep.—Frequent yawning. Sleepiness in evening; S., then uneasy sleep disturbed by dreams or coma vigil, then deep sleep. Uneasy sleep towards morning, turning from side to side, with dark floating visions; U. sleep, filled with historical fancies towards morning, during which he turns from side to side. Dreams confused, unremembered, often anxious.

Fever.—Coldness (Colch.); always in evening on lying down, sweat every morning; when sitting, standing and walking, with cold hands, internal heat and dulness of head, sleepiness, heaviness and weakness of feet, stiffness in hollow of knees, and on lying down in bed heat and general sweat, all without thirst; < morning; with headache; over body without thirst, with heat in head and bruised pain in occiput; internal, between 5 and 6 P.M., < lying down, with shivering and with heat over body, < head, without thirst, when he wishes to drink it becomes repugnant and he drinks only a little at a time (Puls.); shaking, in morning, with gooseflesh, sensitiveness of external head to touch and motion, drawing tearing in limbs, frequent sticking in joints, < elbows and shoulders, without thirst. Sensitive to cold, with sticking in and about eyes and nausea. Shivering, then thirst; S. so that he desires to lie in bed, with yellow face; S. beginning in arms. Cool skin. Coldness through back; in loins during dinner, with shivering; extending up and down near l. side of spine and for a moment across l. shoulder towards front. Cold limbs, with general cold, clammy sweat; limbs, with hot head and face; hands and feet; hands and feet, with internal heat of head, then general sweat; backs of hands, with sweat in palms; (feet in evening.)

Heat; with rapid pulse; alternating attacks of dry H., then shivering and coldness, then concealed colic. Heat in head; deep; and in face, with heaviness; in forehead, with fullness; hot forehead; deep in sinuities; extending to nape and down back, with hot, red cheeks; into back and small of back in flushes. Heat in face; after dinner, with redness; with redness and rapid pulse; external, in room. H. in back; extending to small of back. Burning in l. hip. Sweat; general towards morning, with usual warmth of body; at night; inclination to, in afternoon by open window; in drops on forehead and back of nose; cold; general cold clammy; on feet towards morning.

Clinical.—Typhoid fever, with great apathy, offensive breath, feeble pulse, stupor almost resembling that of Opium (similar to Arn.), general coldness and cold sweat.

Helonias.

A tincture is made of the fresh root of Helonias dioica, Pursh.

General Action.—It produces depression, mental and physical, and is indicated in atonic conditions. It acts upon the kidneys, increasing the flow of urine and the excretion of urea.

Albes.—Sepia, Nat. ars., Nat. mur., Tereb., Cimicif. Generalities.—“Bilious,” sleepy during the day, head dull and stupid, poor appetite, no taste to food, etc. Restless. Weak at noon; W. on walking a mile. Sensations as from great fatigue, > the walking of walking. Amelioration when moving about and when doing something which absorbs the whole attention.

Clinical.—Effects of excessive fatigue, especially in women, with tired aching in back and legs. Sometimes useful in debility following exhausting diseases, such as diphtheria.

Mind.—Despair after a feeling of general wellness. Discouraged. Irritability during headache; I, all conversation unpleasant, desire to be let alone.

Clinical.—Profound melancholia, intolerance of contradiction (associated with uterine derangements, “consciousness of a womb”).

Head.—Darting pain. Aching, with dim vision and vertigo on sudden motion of head. Fulness, with pressure up to vertex, the latter < looking steadily at one point. Vertigo. Frontal pain extending towards vertex; P. as from a band an inch wide from temple to temple. Fulness all through forehead between temples. Pain through temples, with fulness in head and vertigo; P. in temples and forehead every day at 4 or 5 p.m. or between 8 and 9 p.m., with pressure over root of nose, feeling as if I had caught cold, internal heat and irritability; P. in vertex, < stooping. Pressure on vertex every afternoon; P. outward in vertex and occiput, > reading earnestly, concentrating attention, < turning attention from the book to my hand, with burning in scalp.

Clinical.—Headaches associated with uterine derangements, especially burning on top of head or fulness and pressure on vertex.

Eyes.—Sensation of much light; with dim vision, and on sudden motion of head almost blind. Blind from much exertion; B. from walking.

Clinical.—Inflammation of the optic nerve and retina, with albuminous urine, boring pain in lumbar region extending down the legs, feeling as if the head were bandaged.

Mouth.—Tongue and fauces dry on waking at 5 A.M. (unusually early), with bitter taste. Dryness and bitter taste.

Clinical.—Salivation of pregnant women. Nursing sore mouth.

Stomach.—Appetite not as usual. Tasteless eructations. Nausea; when at supper. Vomiting; of dinner, which was fermented. Irritability. Cramp. Pain partially > empty eructations, with tightness. Indescribable sensation in epigastrium. Indescribable distress in epigastrium. Vague distress in forenoon. Burning; griping, in epigastrium, with salivation; glow, with flashes of heat through system. Heat and cold in region.

Abdomen.—Full of flatus and each eructation caused nausea (?). “Bellyache” before stool. Feeling before stool as before diarrhoea; feeling at supper as before diarrhoea. Distended feeling in spleen, causing pain. Intermittent pain in hypogastrium. Frequent pangs of pain like electric shocks deep in r. groin when walking, causing limping, > pressure with finger-tips. Burning in lower third, as if pelvis and to midway between umbilicus and pubis were filled with warm water.

Anus and Stool.—Burning in A. after stool. Purg-ing, with burning in bowels. S. loose and in an hour another yellow and mushlike. First half hard, dark brown, the second soft and light yellow. Two S.; and small, brown. S. in four lumps, in quick succession, sensation as if anus were distended and then a lump shaped like a Minnie bullet, the big end first, was shot out.

Urinary Organs.—Spurting of urine after micturition. Irritation of urethra. (Scalding when urine passed over the denuded mucous membrane.) Urine copious; then scanty; C. and clear, light-colored. Urine neutral, then acid (formerly faintly alkaline). Urea increased. Specific gravity lowered. (Amorphous phosphates the exception after the proving, and not, as previously, the rule.)

Clinical.—Diabetes insipidus, urine very profuse, light-colored, with great debility and emaciation. Diabetes mellitus, large quantities of sugar in the urine, with emaciation, thirst, restlessness, melancholia, etc. Constant aching and tenderness over the kidneys, which seem excessively active. Acute and chronic inflammation of the kidneys, with great restlessness, frequent micturition, weakness, etc. Albuminuria during pregnancy, urine very scanty, with soreness and pain in region of kidneys, restlessness, etc.

Sexual Organs.—Uterine hæmorrhage. (External labia and pudendum puffed, hot, red and itching, so that she scratched till the surface bled, every morning thin, transparent exfoliations, the mucous membrane of labia red, swollen, covered with a white, curdy deposit, like aphtha, the inflammation reaching to one-third of vagina.)

Clinical.—This drug seems to have proved valuable in atonic conditions of the female organs, prolapsus with general mal-nutrition; prolapsus following parturition, this local condition being associated with general debility, mental depression and particularly with a feeling of soreness or sensitiveness of uterus, the patient “is conscious that she has a womb.” Menorrhagia, atonic, < moving body. Menorrhagia, with ulceration of the cervix, dark, offensive blood, great debility. Offensive leucorrhœa, with ulceration of the cervix, which occasionally causes hæmorrhage. With the local uterine symptoms of displacement or of chronic inflammation, etc., there are generally pain in the lumbar region, dull aching, sometimes weight on the chest, pressure on head, etc. Pruritus of vulva and vagina, which are hot and swollen and exfoliate, with aphthous patches. Indurations of uterus.

Respiration and Chest.—Feeling as if respiration were about to cease. Breasts swollen, nipples tender and painful. Tired aching in chest when walking, as if front of C., and especially in a strip four inches wide down sternum, had been compressed in a vise. Sensitiveness to cold the length of sternum and as wide apart as nipples.

Pulse.—S4 in evening, and full, irregular. Weak; and slow. Slow and small; and weak.

Back.—Lameness and aching. Sharp, spasmodic pain running to crest of l. ilium. Piercing drawing pain in lower part through to uterus, like inflammation. Kidney region, aching at 10 p.m.; A., then albuminuria, urine copious, with increased specific gravity; sudden A. at night on undressing, as if shot; weariness and weight, also in afternoon and evening, with general fatigue; sensation as if kidneys were two bags of hot water. Lumbar and dorsal regions, aching and burning. Lower lumbar region weak. Lower lumbar and sacral regions, aching; and lameness; A. in spine; tired A. in spine on sitting down at 3.30 p.m., with burning; tired after rest. Sacrum, aching in afternoon; at 4.45 p.m., extending into each buttock; A. in upper part and in pelvis, < night; dull feeling in morning; weakness; tired aching, and in lumbar region.

Clinical.—Effects of fatigue, with burning and heat in dorsal region.

Extremities.—Rheumatic pain in r. hip. Burning, or rather warm numbness streaming up from both tendo-achilles, < over region of gastrocnemius and in knees. Pain as if a wedge were driven into r. ankle, till sleep. Feet numb when sitting still.

Sleep.—Waking every morning at 5, an unusual hour.

Fever.—Coldness alternating with heat, < epigastric region. Chill radiating from solar plexus all over body, on motion of arms. Cold limbs. Heat in flushes on every movement in the room. Internal heat during headache. Burning in upper dorsal spine; B. in dorsal region when sitting reading at night, < between lower half of scapulae; between scapulae, with tired aching in lower lumbar and sacral regions; in sacral region. Heat in renal region.

Hepar Sulfuris Calcareaum.

Calcium sulphide, prepared as directed by Hahnemann, is triturated for use.

General Action.—A "tissue" drug of wide action. It simulates Mercury in its action on the glandular system, especially on the liver and kidneys, Sulphur in its action on the skin and mucous membrane of the intestinal tract, Calcarea in affecting the respiratory tract, and all of the foregoing in its general action on connective tissue. Extreme sensitiveness to a draught of air, easy perspiration, profuse secretions and suppurative tendencies are marked characteristics of the drug.

Allies.—Mercury, Calcarea, Sulphur, Silicea, Nit. acid, Kali in general, Phos., Puls., Bry., Tell., etc.

Generalities.—Emaciation, with chill in back, red cheeks, sleeplessness, larynx affected, hoarse, weak voice, anxiety, apprehension and irritability, as in hectic fever. Inflammation of affected parts. Stretching. Painful throbbing here and there from slight wetting of body. Sensitiveness to open air, with chill and frequent nausea. Sensitiveness of nerves in various parts, as, for example, in septum of nose. Nervous irritability, every physical or mental impression causes a kind of inward trembling. Weakness; in morning, and slumbering and late rising; in morning on waking, with palpitation; in morning in bed, with uneasiness of legs and stoppage of nose; in morning on rising after good sleep, with heaviness of body; in evening, with palpitation; after eating; on walking in open air, after eating, with stretching as before ague, on walking farther cold sweat and in evening in bed heat, which prevents sleep till 2 A.M.; with sleepiness; with bruised feeling in all limbs. Sudden faintness towards evening, with slight pain. Heaviness of body. Aggravation of pain at night; during nightly fever, especially during chill. Amelioration from frequent eructations and emissions of flatus.

Clinical.—Sometimes indicated in the marasmus of children who have diarrhoea, < in the daytime and after eating, with the peculiar sour odor to the sweat and stools. Cases requiring Hepar, are, as a rule, extremely sensitive to external impressions, especially to the slightest cold; for example, it has removed the effects of malarial poisoning which have been maltreated with calomel and quinine from the simple indications of profuse and easy sweat, which is offensive, and of such extreme sensitiveness to air that the patient wears an overcoat in hot weather. Hepar is generally indicated by extreme sensitiveness of inflamed parts, as if they were about to suppurate. The pains of Hepar, are almost universally splinter-like in character, even the neuralgias and tooth-aches are of this sort. It is indicated in threatening suppurations, with great soreness and sharp pains as if about to suppurate. General aggravation from cold dry winds.

Mind.—Irrational talking. Ghostly image of one who was dead, in morning in bed when conscious, which frightened him, and it seemed as if he saw his neighbor's house burning, which also frightened him. Fright on slumbering, even after eating; F. concerning sickness in the family, < walking alone in open air. Anxiety at 10 P.M. after lying down, with uneasiness in whole body and painful jerking up of lower limbs; A. in evening, belief that he would die and sadness even to suicide. Sadness and bitter crying; S. and apprehension; S. from stretching out on sofa. Hypochondriac. Remembers everything which has been unpleasant during her life. Everything of which she only thought was disagreeable. Violent about trifles, he could have killed some one. Irritable in morning after rising, he will not speak; I. about trifles; about his pains, and discouraged; I. and desirous to be alone; and obstinate; and impatient. Discontented with himself. Contrary, does not wish to see his own family. Desire for nothing.

Memory weak during peevishness. Mistakes when talking and writing. Sudden vanishing of thoughts when at work. Stupidity; with heaviness in forehead. Stupor, with contracted, irregular, scarcely perceptible pulse, sunken, pale face, cold skin and limbs, vomiting and diarrhoea. Unconsciousness in attacks when walking in open air.

Clinical.—Dementia, with complete stupidity, is silent and speechless. Melancholia, with paroxysms of violence, hasty speech, ("words roll out, tumbling over each other"), in patients who have taken much mercury. Hypochondriasis.

Head.—Sticking; waking him at night, with confusion, as if skull would burst; after deep sleep in morning, > walking in open air; on stooping, with bursting sensation, eyes close on account of the pain; on rising from stooping and on every motion, < walking in open air. Hammering. Burrowing mornings, > tight binding, with nausea. Aching; in morning on waking; in morning, > rising; every morning on any shock; on shaking it, with vertigo; contractive, before menstruation; contractive, grumbling, even when walking, < open air, > in the room, with pressure against skull; tense, confused. Swashing. Vibration internally during cough. Confusion; during cough, with throbbing in forehead and temples. Vertigo in morning after rising; in evening, with nausea; on rising; during dinner, after eructations, with blackness before eyes; when riding in a wagon, so that she could not stand alone on getting out; with heaviness of head; with faintness and rigidity or vanishing of vision, as if he sat in thought; everything turned in a circle with her on closing eyes for midday nap.

Forehead.—Jerking of muscles in afternoon when lying. Sticking. Tearing at night, with general heat, without thirst. Tensive pain above root of nose. Pain like a boil from midnight onward, with sticking on stooping and on coughing, also externally pain like a boil and sticking on touch mornings. The pressure of the hat is painful. Bruised pain in morning, < moving eyes, with similar pain in abdomen.

Pulsating sticking in l. temple at 10 A.M. Boring in r. T. extending upward into head. Painful throbbing bing in r. T. Pressure in T. during the day, with drawing. Pain in vertex, with heat; P. in evening, with palpitation. Sticking in r. parietal region on stooping, with vanishing of senses. Pain in one-half of brain as from a nail or plug. Boring in spot on side. Pressure in r. hemisphere of brain, at times worse. Sticking in occiput and temples as if a nail or plug were driven in (Thuja, Ign.); pulselike S. in occiput and lower part of it. Pain externally in r. side of occiput, gradually extending to nape, throat and scapulae. Hair falls out.

Clinical.—Headache following the abuse of mercury, of a neuralgic character, sometimes boring at the root of the nose, sometimes feeling as if a plug or nail were driven into the head (Thuja, Ign.); sometimes a feeling as if the eyes would be pulled backward into the head; the headaches generally > tightly binding the head (Merc, Iod.). Falling of the hair after mercury. Extreme sensitiveness of the scalp, could scarcely comb the hair, with painful nodes on the scalp; the bones of the skull pain at night. Eczema of the head, with great sensitiveness, tendency to ulceration, bleeding and offensive discharge.

Eyes.—Inflammation and swelling, with redness of white. Blue under E. Sticking. Pain from daylight; in bright daylight if he moves them; P. at every step; < moving them, with redness; frequent P. during the day, causing lachrymation; as if they would be drawn into head. Sore, agglutinated at night, hard mucus. Lachrymation from tickling cough. Pain in balls, with bruised pain on touch. Boring in upper wall of orbit. Obligated to wink after writing. Redness of upper lid, with inflammation, swelling and pain more pressing than sticking; R. of lids, with pressure as if sleepy. Cannot open lids in morning on waking. Smarting in external canthus, and hard mucus. Cutting in external canthus. Flickering; and everything looks dark, then great weakness. Dim vision in evening by candle-light; D. when reading. Blindness on rising and standing up after sitting bent over.

Clinical.—A great variety of scrofulous inflammations of the eyes, particularly ulcerations of the cornea involving the inner layer and accompanied by collection of pus in the anterior chamber. The cases requiring Hep. are generally of a very sluggish type, anæmic, sweat easily, < night, very sensitive to open air, and perhaps have been salivated. Kerato-iritis, involving also the ciliary body. Chronic catarrh of the conjunctiva, with very profuse muco-purulent discharges. Ulceration of the margins of the lids and inflammation of the Meibomian glands. Subacute inflammation of the lachrymal sac, with very free secretion of pus in the inner angle of the eye. Inflammation and ulceration of the margins of the lids, with collection of much dry matter in the lashes. Erysipelatous inflammation of the substance of the lids threatening suppuration. Moist, offensive eczema of the lids. Herpes following the course of the supraorbital nerve, with severe pain as if the eyes would be drawn back into the head.

Ears.—External, red, hot and itching. Wax increased. Purulent discharge. Sticking on blowing nose. Jerking pain through E. Pain in external, at night when lying on it. Itching in E. Cracking on blowing nose; C. as from electric sparks. Whistling on blowing nose; in r. Roaring in l. Murmuring in l.; before E. in evening after lying down till sleep, with throbbing.

Clinical.—Inflammation of the outer and middle ear; ulceration and offensive, bloody discharge (Tellur.), generally with violent pain, perforation of the drum, especially following overdosing with mercury.

Nose.—Redness and heat internally and externally, with swelling of it. Scabs in r. nostril. Pain in bones on touch (Merc.); ulcerative P. in nostrils; bruised P. in tip; sore P. on back on touch; drawing P. in morning, extending to eyes and becoming a biting. Crawling in l. half on blowing, as from a foreign body. Rush of blood. Contractive feeling. Burning lasting into the night. Stoppage after stool. Sneezing at night waking; S. after paroxysms of cough; S. caused by tickling; from itching in nose; frequent. Coryza, with much spitting of saliva; C. with inflamed swelling of nose, which pains like a boil, with cough; with scraping in throat; stopped; obliged to blow nose every moment, with too great appetite; mucus from posterior nares mixed with blood; blowing of offensive mucus, even without catarrh; dropping of yellow, glutinous water from one nostril. Bleeding; after singing; blowing of clotted blood; drops of blood exude every morning. Smell sensitive; lost.

Clinical.—Inflammation of the nostrils, with great soreness of the nose, which is swollen and red, with profuse greenish-yellow discharge. Ozena, with soreness of the bones, heat, ulceration, nose very sensitive internally to air and to touch, discharge very offensive (Puls., Kali Iod., Graph.). Chronic diseases of the nose resulting from abuse of mercury.

Face.—Red cheeks; in morning; in evening, and burning. Yellow, with blue margins about eyes. Pale if she becomes heated on moving about. Swelling of l. cheek; erysipelatous S. of cheeks in morning. Pain in bones on touch. Lip, swelling of upper (Calc. c.), with tension and with pain on touch; eruption in corner, with heat; crack in middle of lower (Puls.); crack, with pimples in red of lower and burning pain; smarting painful pimple in red of upper; ulcer in corner; twitching of l. side of upper, with trembling; pain; tension in middle of upper.

Mouth.—Teeth. Looseness (Merc.); of all, with tenderness of gums (Merc.); of hollow, with pain on biting on it. Sticking. Aching; in all after cold drinks or opening mouth (Merc.); < eating; in hollow, with sensation as if too long; jerklike, extending into ear; drawing, in hollow in evening, as if too much blood pressed upon nerves; drawing, in evening, in a T. which begins to be loose, < warm room, > open air, < biting teeth together, which causes jerking in a tooth. Gum, ulcer; inflammation on inner side of front, with swelling; swelling of back, with pain as if a new tooth would come through, < touch and biting upon it; bleeding easily; jerking.

Tip of tongue sensitive; burning pain in tip, even waking at night. White aphthous pustules on inside of lips and cheeks and on tongue (Kali chl.), with pain, < touch and drink. Dryness. Much mucus. Salivation. Drivelling from r. side. Offensive odor. Bitter taste; in back of throat, with natural taste to food; B., slimy in morning; to food. Taste metallic; and sourish; T. as of bad eggs; doughy in morning; earthy in throat, with natural taste to food; lost.

Clinical.—Abscesses at roots of teeth which have been filled. Unhealthy gums, which ulcerate and bleed, with offensive odor.

Throat.—Sticking like flea-bites externally and behind ears. Pinching near r. side of thyroid cartilage. Hawking of mucus in evening after eating; what she hawks up is mixed with blood. Mucus causing hoarseness. Sticking as from a splinter on swallowing, extending towards ear on yawning (compare Nit. ac.); S. on turning head, extending to ear; every morning, with dryness; on deep breathing; during cough, with pain as if everything would come out of forehead; beneath larynx after supper. Fear of constriction; suffocative C. towards evening. Smarting, < swallowing solids, with rawness and scraping. Rawness with pain on swallowing saliva. Scraping; in morning, with roughness as from burnt lard; and constantly full of water. Feeling as of a plug of mucus or swelling at entrance in morning; feeling as of a plug in pharynx. Feeling as if he had to swallow over a swelling (Phyto.); with bruised pain in external muscles of throat. Difficult swallowing of food without pain in throat. Constant sensation as if water rose after sour things. Tickling, and moist, provoking cough.

Clinical.—Tonsillitis in the suppurative stage; it is indicated after Bell. and Baryta; these three remedies may follow in succession; Bell. in the very outset, Baryta after the Bell.—dryness and fever have subsided, then if suppuration threatens Hep., the indications for which are the fetid odor of the salivation, sharp splinter-like pains on swallowing and great sensitiveness to air, or even chilliness. Sometimes indicated in follicular inflammation of the pharynx, with splinter-like pains and the general symptoms of the drug.

Stomach.—Unusual hunger in forenoon. Appetite for only sour pungent things; A. for something at times and when he gets it he does not like it. Appetite lost; with emptiness in abdomen. Disgust for everything, especially fat (Puls.). Thirst greater than hunger; T. from morning till evening; T., but she is afraid to drink much because it distends the stomach. Desire for vinegar. Longing for wine. No thirst.

Eruclations, with burning in chest; E., with burning in throat; E. after eating, of sourish fluid; frequent, without odor or taste; constant empty, during mental exertion, with distention of stomach and abdomen; tasting of food; hot, after eating. Waterbrash, with flow of saliva from mouth two days at the same hour. Hiccough; after eating. Nausea; in morning when sitting and standing, > lying; at night, with vomiting; < movement; with flow of saliva from mouth; frequent; like a foreboding of faintness, in morning. Vomiting every morning; V. of bile in morning after long violent retching; of mucus and bile, the slightest drink caused retching and vomiting; sour, in afternoon; of mucus mixed with clotted blood; spasmodic.

Flatulent distention, with cold hands. Gastric enteritis. Pain in pit every morning on waking; P. after eating a little; in pit on blowing nose; when walking, as if it hung loose; as if lead were in it; drawing, in epigastric region and back. Gnawing as from acids, rising into throat. Burning during cough. Heartburn; and eruclations as from too fat meat. Tension across pit, he must loosen his clothes and cannot sit. Uneasiness in pit during digestion, with heaviness and acidity.

Clinical.—Dyspepsia following the abuse of mercury or even quinine, indicated by the longing for highly-seasoned food or for acids.

Abdomen.—Distended, tense (Graph., Lyc., Carb. v., etc.); D. after stool; D., worse when walking than when sitting, with sensitiveness; D. and hard. Rumbling. Noisy movements. Emission of flatus; every morning, with colic, < sides; at night. Sticking; here and there many hours after meal-time, < every pulsation, with cutting and griping, as from flatulence. Cramp. Cutting; towards evening. Griping mornings, with soft stool; G. as after taking cold. Pain rising to pit of stomach, > emission of flatus; periodic P. during fever; drawing P.; bruised P. when walking. Constriction; before eating. Tension all day; frequent spasmodic pinching T. Empty feeling in intestines. Heat after eating.

Pressure beneath pit of stomach, with feeling as if everything in stomach were hard like a stone. Drawing pain in upper A. and across small of back. Flatulent distention of l. hypochondrium. Sticking in hepatic region when walking; in spleen when walking; beneath l. ribs; in r. hypochondrium in morning. Cramp in r. hypochondrium, with nausea, then ineffectual urging to stool. Pressure in r. H. as from a stone, with cramps in stomach. Painful rush of blood to H., with pain on every step. Congested feeling in H. on every step.

Fermentation above umbilicus, with eruclations of hot air. Paroxysmal clawing in umbilical region, from sides of abdomen, towards middle and sometimes to pit of stomach, causing nausea, with anxious heat of cheeks. Twisting above U. Sore pain above U. Pressure, almost sticking, in l. side when riding in a wagon. Smarting in l. side. Suppuration of inguinal glands, buboes (Calc. c., Merc., Thuj., Nit. ac.). Pain in an I. gland, < on touch, with swollen sensation. Pain about hips. Fulness of lower abdomen after eating. Smarting in lower A.

Clinical.—Threatening or actual abscess of the liver.

Rectum and Anus.—Rumbling in R. Crawling in R. as from thread-worms. Urging, but large intestines are wanting in peristaltic action and cannot expel soft fœces, only a part can be forced out by aid of abdominal muscles; ineffectual U., with many eruclations. Protrusion of hæmorrhoids. Soreness of anus, with discharge of moisture after stool. Burning in A.

Stool.—Diarrhœa; with colic, inclination to lie down, hot hands and cheeks; three times, with rumbling and nausea in abdomen; frequent, slight, preceded by griping, with flatulence before and after stool; of bloody mucus, with rumbling in back. Liquid, dark brown-greenish, frequent, with yellow lumps of green bloody mucus, smelling like bad eggs, with rumbling and urging so that they were frequently passed in bed, preceded by cutting tearing in abdomen, < umbilical region, extending deep into pelvis, the pain < before every stool. Soft, difficult; S., with blood. Thin, more frequent at night. Difficult, scanty, not hard, with much urging; D., of hard pieces mixed with yellow moisture. Hard and unsatisfactory, with inactivity of rectum and swelling of anus. Clay-colored. Greenish. Blood with stool. Frequent, even at night, but little is passed, with pressure, tenesmus and weakness.

Clinical.—Bowels very inactive, the soft stools are evacuated slowly and with effort. Stools may be light-colored, with enlargement of the liver. Diarrhœa white, sour, undigested, or sometimes mucous, yellow or green and of decayed odor. The sour odor of the stools and sweat is often an indication for the drug (Bry., Rheum). Chronic catarrh of the intestines, abdomen distended, tender, with fermentation or with a feeling of clawing or cutting extending towards the umbilicus.

Urinary Organs.—Discharge of prostatic fluid during stool. Bladder weak, urine drops down vertically and he must wait before urine flows (see Caust., Op.). Micturition impeded, he must wait and then urine flows slowly. He can never finish urinating, some urine always seems to remain in bladder (Helo.). Urging in morning on waking, but difficult slow micturition; frequent desire. Meatus urinarius red and inflamed. Urethra, sticking; cutting in female, during micturition; sore pain during micturition. Urine acid; and burning, making inner surface of prepuce sore and ulcer- atad (Merc.); U. burning; last drops bloody; milky, even when passing, with white sediment; pale, clear, becoming on standing turbid and thick, with white sediment; dark yellow and burning; blood-red; brownish-red; dark and scanty; copious; copious, pale, with pressure on bladder; shimmering film (Graph., Sul.); pellicular fat upon U.

Clinical.—Valuable in certain stages of inflammation of the kidneys, especially after abuse of mercury, with soreness in region of kidneys, incessant urging to urinate, sour sweat, diarrhoea, etc. Occasionally in albuminuria during diphtheria. Atony or paralysis of bladder, urine passes very slowly and without any force, the bladder does not seem to empty itself. Oily film upon the surface of the urine.

Sexual Organs.—Excitement and emission without amorous fancies or desire for women. Weakness, testicles relaxed, penis hard. Itching of glans; and frænum; on scrotum. Ulcers externally on prepuce, similar to chancre (Nit. ac.). Sticking in prepuce; S. in region of frænum præputii. Painful erection during caresses, with soreness and pinching in penis extending from bladder. Desire diminished. Soreness between pudenda and thighs. Itching of pudenda during menstruation. Discharge of blood from uterus after distention of abdomen. Menstruation delayed and diminished.

Clinical.—Venereal ulcers, with fetid discharge. Profuse secretion of an offensive odor from the glans penis. Figwarts of an offensive odor. Herpes of the prepuce, which is very sensitive and bleeds easily. Suppurating inguinal glands, with offensive moisture in the folds of the skin. Enlargement of ovaries, with great soreness, pain in back (Helo.), etc. Abscesses of the labiae, which are very sensitive, with splinter-like pains. Extremely offensive leucorrhœa of a decayed odor. Ulceration of the uterus, with offensive discharge.

Respiratory Organs.—Weakness of organs of speech and of chest, so that she cannot speak aloud (Phos., Caust.). Tickling in larynx waking her about midnight and provoking cough and expectoration. Cough day and night; in morning, waking her frequently; in evening; evening and morning; < walking; < deep breathing, so as to cause vomiting; paroxysmal, if slightest portion becomes cold, with sensitiveness of nervous system (compare Nux vom.); paroxysmal, forcible, deep, painfully shocking larynx and causing retching; almost uninterrupted, from tickling in l. upper part of throat, < from talking and stooping and till late in evening, then suddenly ceasing; tickling at 3 P.M.; suffocative, from tightness of breath; provoking vomiting; scraping, rough. Dry cough; in evening on going to sleep; and paroxysmal, in evening; and short; hacking, after eating; and deep, in paroxysms on deep inspiration, from tightness of breath, with sore pain in chest. Cough, with expectoration; paroxysmal; of mucus, all day, from scraping in larynx and < throat; of mucus, and violent, from 11 till 12 in bed; of bloody mucus; bloody, preceded by sensation of a hard body in pit of stomach, offensive sweat after the cough, then weakness of head. Expectoration of acid mucus at night, almost without cough; bloody E. from chest, with peevishness and weakness. Dyspnœa. Frequent deep breathing, as after running.

Clinical.—Subacute inflammation of the larynx, with considerable secretion of mucus. In a late stage of membranous croup, with hoarseness, profuse collection of mucus, difficult respiration; Hep. should be given very cautiously even in a late stage of membranous croup; overdoing with it is apt to cause recurrence of the more acute symptoms, to lessen the secretion of mucus, rendering the cough dry and tight, and to increase the difficulty in breathing; it follows well after Spong.; Spong. should be given after Hep. only when Hep. has aggravated the cough and caused a return of the former symptoms; Hep. is never to be given when there is a hot, dry skin; the child is always sweaty and weak; it is to be carefully differentiated from Kali bi. and Bromine, neither of which is indicated when there is fever; the tenacious character of the expectoration indicates Kali bi., while Bromine is indicated by the spasmodic character of the cough and expiration, and a tendency to cyanosis. Sulcinate bronchitis, cough loose and rattling. < cold air, always < towards morning; (the profuse collection of mucus in the chest, which cannot be removed by coughing, with free sweating, is like Tart. emetic).

Chest.—Tenacious mucus. Suppuration on last r. rib, with sticking in it and great pain on touch. Sticking in side extending to back; S. in sternum when breathing and walking. Pain in l. side; in side on which he lies at night. Flesh of r. side and beneath r. arm sensitive on touching breast or moving arm. Oppression, with burning. Feeling as if hot water moved about in it. Heat above heart. Itching of l. nipple.

Clinical.—Late stage of pleuritis, with exudation, with the general indications of the drug. Chronic pneumonia, with profuse purulent expectoration and threatening abscess. Abscess of the lungs, when the symptoms indicate.

Heart and Pulse.—Sticking in region of heart; and in l. chest, with palpitation. Palpitation after dinner, with tightness of chest and need to breathe deeply. Pulse rapid and hard.

Neck.—Pain in muscles of nape on touch, < beneath ears. Bruised pain in muscles, with painful swallowing as from a swelling; B. pain in nape on bending head backward.

Back.—Sticking; in l. side. Tensive pain, < turning body at night. Drawing in B. and sacrum in morning, pain in whole B. after rising, so that she can scarcely move, with weakness of limbs, aversion to eating or working, shivering, chilliness and loss of thirst. Weakness of spine. Scapulae, sticking between; S. in r. on blowing nose, hawking and deep breathing; pain between S.; sensation during micturition as if something were running internally in r. Extremities.—Sticking in joints. Drawing pains, < thighs and legs, with paralytic sensations; D. pain in joints of shoulders, hips, < knees. Crawling pains, < walking and standing, which bend him up. Sick in all, as if getting cold.

Clinical.—Very valuable in run-rounds and even in felons, with sharp suppurative pains. Hip-joint disease in the suppurative stage.

Upper Extremities.—Axillary glands suppurate. Shoulders, tearing in l.; pain on raising arms; sprained pain; drawing pain; pain as from a weight. Arms, jerks here and there in l.; bruised pain; weariness; falling asleep of one on which he leans at night. Bruised pain in humerus. Drawing pain in l. upper arm. Elbows, pain in bends on stretching arms; pain or bruised feeling in tip on moving it after violent walking, > open air. Forearm, boring sore pain on inner side of F. and across back of hand after midnight, < touch, > during the day; bruised pain in a spot; painful drawing in flexor tendons; drawing tearing in extensor muscles of F. and fingers. Wrist painful. Hands tremble when writing; swelling of r. Fingers, swelling of all when lying down, with stiffness; swelling of all, with tension on moving them; swelling of joints, with gouty pains; easily put out of joint, they crack if pressed when hand is outspread; sticking in one.

Lower Extremities.—Uneasiness during the day when at rest. Pain in nates and posterior part of thighs when sitting. Thighs, cramp at night, extending into foot; C. in muscles of T. and pelvis if T. is drawn up; tearing in r.; T. in l. hip on undressing; T. when sitting, with numb crawling; T. as from weariness, and in legs; pain in hip when walking in open air; bruised pain in anterior muscles; B. pain transversely through centre; sprained pain in hips on walking in open air; sudden weary pain when walking. Knees, swelling; cramp; trembling on walking in open air, with anxiety, general heat and burning in soles; frequent sticking in r. during the day; tearing in outer side as from weariness; pain in hollow during motion; pain as if broken; bruised pain; tension in hollow of r., making walking difficult.

Cramp in calves; in morning in bed; on bending knees. Legs, tearing in tibiae, above malleoli, at night; T. in tendo-achillis in bed, when walking a sticking in it; cramp-like pain in muscles on walking; cramp-like drawing pain beneath r. knee on walking; uneasiness; U. at night, with trembling; U. and necessity to keep them outstretched; weariness, < ascending; heaviness; tension at night preventing sleep; T. in back and in hollow of knees; falling asleep of l. in morning in bed, with heaviness. Ankle, cracking; pain as if suppurating; broken pain in r. on walking; paroxysmal sprained pain on walking; stiffness, with numbness and dead sensation.

Foot.—Swelling about malleoli, with difficult breathing; cramp; C. in soles and toes; C., between great toe and heel; sticking on instep; S. in heel; itching S. on back, at base of toes; tearing at night; T. in soles, with drawing; bruised pain on outer side of one on which he had lain, in evening after uneasy sleep, > touching and stroking; pressure in heel on walking, as from a stone; soles sensitive to walking over uneven stones; drawing burning pain in evening in bed, extending to malleoli; burning pain in morning in bed, < on their backs. A hitherto painless corn begins to burn and stick on slight pressure. Toes, sticking extending into great; S. in hard places on little; S. in fleshy part of r. little; tearing in great, worse when walking than when standing; pain in nail of great on pressure.

Skin.—Yellow. Jaundice, with blood-red urine and yellow whites of eyes. Unhealthy, slight injuries suppurate (Silic.). Nettle-rash on face. Painless swellings on forehead. Chilblains on feet, so sensitive after healing that she cannot wear the shoe. Itching miliary eruption on hands and wrists. Red itching elevation on upper part of l. nates. Red itching spot beneath lower lip, soon covered with yellow blisters, which change to scurf. Pimples here and there; on upper lid and beneath eyes; on nape and sides of throat; on side of forehead, feeling worse in room; above anus, with feeling as if anus were swollen. Pimples like hives sore on touch, on scalp and nape; on chin, above and below lips and on throat. Itching pimples on chin; on top of l. shoulder and beneath l. patella; about knee. Warts become inflamed, with sticking in them. Erysipelas on diseased leg.

Soreness and moisture in fold between scrotum and thigh (Sulph.); with smarting biting. Cracking and smarting of hands and feet (Graph.). Scabby eruption on hands. Scoury eruption beneath l. corner of mouth. Itching pustules on l. elbow; P., with sore pain on sternum. Boils; on nates; on leg, with inability to let leg hang down. Vesicles as from nettle-rash, for example, on wrist; corroding V. on last phalanx of thumb, with sticking on pressure; burning V. and ulcers on r. side of chin towards lower lip. Ulcer bleeding on slight wiping (Nit. ac.); sour-smelling matter from U.; sticking in U. on laughing; corrosive pain; itching corrosion; burning at night, with throbbing.

Sensitiveness to touch and to slightest cold (Nux. v.). Tickling in soles. Crawling in tips of fingers; in soles; toes. Itching of nose; on zygomata; about mouth; in bend of elbow; in palms; on inner side of knee; on tibiae and backs of feet; on soles; here and there at night, < on ankles, between fingers, on wrist, back, under knees, preventing sleep; on hands, with rough, dry, shrivelled skin; sudden in toes; near nail of l. index, as if a paronychia would form; sticking; crawling in toes at night. Burning itching in toes; on forehead and cheeks during dinner; < morning on rising, with white vesicles after scratching, which discharge a white fluid.

Clinical.—General moist eruptions, which smell badly, suppurate and bleed. General inflammations and blisters, which threaten to suppurate, and in which there are sharp suppurative pains.

Sleep.—Yawning from morning till noon; frequent Y., causing pain in chest. Sleepiness towards evening, with almost convulsive yawning; sleep-weariness in evening, so that he slept from after supper till morning; sleeps in evening sitting up, with weariness. Sleep too long and dull, then confusion of head, with pressure in temples, troubles from a disordered stomach, eructations tasting of food and scraping in throat as before heartburn; sleep long and confused, with thoughts of his business passing through his head like drifting clouds. Slumbering sleep for several days, with dreams of the business of the day and many thoughts, which passed through his brain like clouds, at times he woke somewhat, not stupid, gave right answers, attended to his needs and immediately fell asleep again. Sleeps on his back.

First bitter taste, then chill, with thirst, then heat, with interrupted sleep, all twice on the same day. Shaking chill; with chattering of teeth, coldness and pallor of hands and feet, pallor of face, change of expression, unconsciousness, coma, when aroused he talked irrationally or stared without expression, then heat slight in comparison with the chill, with dry mouth, periodic colic and liquid stools. Shivering; then heat; waking at 2 A.M., with hot, dry skin, frequent S. from nape down back and over chest, then sleep, from which he woke with sweat, pain in back, in and about hips and in abdomen and nausea; frequent S. in forenoon in open air; frequent S. extending to head, where hair is sore to touch. Chilliness in arms and legs in morning; in feet during the day.

Catarrhal fever, weakness, with sensitiveness of skin to touch and to slightest cold, constant chill, with sore throat as if raw, pain on swallowing saliva, muscles of nape, < beneath ears, painful to touch, with dry cough, no appetite, no thirst, sleeplessness all night, with moaning and groaning; C. fever, with internal chill and fretfulness; C. fever, with sick feeling in all limbs. Orgasm of blood preventing sleep. Heat; three nights in succession, from 4 P.M. through night, with great thirst, headache, delirium; so that sleep was bad; with violent vomiting of green acid water and tenacious mucus and nausea; dry, at night, with sweaty hands, which cannot tolerate uncovering; H. in forehead; hands; palm and wrist; face night and morning on waking; in soles in morning in bed; of one hand, with redness and swelling and bruised pain extending into arm on moving it; flushing, in face and head.

Constant offensive exhalations from body. Sweat at night; as soon as he lies down, < head, then S. in drops on face; about midnight, < back; before midnight; after midnight in bed; from midnight on, then chill in morning; S. on slightest motion (Merc.); S. even on writing a few lines; frequent, without heat; general, at night when awake. Profuse sweat; general, in morning; general, with burning of skin; and sour-smelling at night (Bry.); and clammy, at night; between upper part of legs; on head in morning. S. on perineum. Cold S. on hands; on feet.

Clinical.—The easy chill from exposure to air, even from putting the hand out of bed (causing cough), and the general tendency to sweat are the general indications in febrile states; there is comparatively little fever. Sour sweats.

Homarus.

The reddish, offensive liquid (the digesting fluid) contained in a sack just back of the mouth of the live lobster is triturated with sugar of milk. (This fluid mixed with warm milk solidifies it in ten minutes, making a coagulum harder than cheese-curd.)

Generalities.—Pain somewhere all day, in eyes and various parts of body and limbs after retiring. Strange feeling all over, was not dizzy, but when I tried to take hold of the door-knob I could not do it readily, but put my hand all around it, I guess I was a little scared. Felt sick, unable to move, > moving. Dull feeling. Nervous feeling; but dread of moving. Restlessness. Weakness; < walking. Amelioration after eating; after dinner.

Head.—Aching; in morning; sharp at times, mostly in temporal region, < l. Dizziness. Frontal pain; just above eyes, at times worse in l. temporal region; from over eyes to occiput, < l. side; sharp, over l. eye, had to scowl and rub the parts. Pain in temples; r.; l., and in occiput; sharp, in l.; sharp, in front part of l.

Eyes.—Aching; in r. and above l. angle of r.; in l., with soreness to touch; from l. side of r. to occiput; in l. when rising, later in r., as if something had been blown in the eye suddenly. Sharp pain in l.; over and back of l.; occasionally in r. Smarting. Sharp pain in r. ball. Aching pain in l. ball, not much affected by the light. Lids stuck together in the morning.

Ears and Nose.—Frequent stabbing through lower lobe of l. ear, had to pinch it. Stinging in nasal passages. Burning in nasal passages extending to throat after rising. Sensation of mucus in l. nostril. Nose stopped in morning. Discharge from nose; watery, from l. nostril. Sneezed often.

Throat.—Pain near l. ear; sharp, sudden, transient, in l. side, occasionally extending to ear. Smarting; and redness; < r. side, back of it looks as if covered with tough mucus, constant accumulation of mucus in fauces, next day throat sore and burning, looks mottled, arteries show very plainly, sticky mucus in mouth and T., smarting in T., < l. side, T. dry and sore on waking from a nap, T. looked granulated, expectoration salt. Irritation; of l. side. Sore and raw feeling; S. and burning, posterior fauces gray and covered with membrane or tough mucus, arteries show very plainly where there is no mucus or appearance of deposit; S. < l. side, less on r. than posterior parts, with smarting, the smarting and inclination to cough > opening mouth and inhaling very cold air; in l. side of T., ear and neck, with aching, the S. seems to be in the muscles rather than in the mucous membrane, > holding side of head with my hand. Tingling; and inclination to cough, raised white mucus. Burning; in r. side; and in cesophagus, stomach and bowels.

Stomach.—Belching of tasteless wind in morning. Pain; all the forenoon, with occasional hot flashes; sharp, after a light breakfast. Distress on waking in the night, > morning, returned in evening; before and after a light breakfast; after a plain dinner, followed by a little ice-cream; through to back; through epigastrium to back, worse near spine, several times during the day; around body at epigastric region before rising, extending down back to region of kidneys. Burning.

Abdomen and Stool.—Pain in diaphragm; in hypochondria; lower part of liver; liver and spleen; liver and spleen during the day; in liver, < evening. Sharp pain in region of liver; in liver in morning; in l. lobe of liver; region of liver, < drawing a long breath; under ends of l. floating ribs after retiring, appeared to be in the spleen, but a little higher up on the other side, may have been in lower border of liver. Frequent transient inclination to stool during the day.

alternate diarrhoea and constipation, changing every three or four days.

Genital Organs.—Long-continued excitement every morning; and in night.

Respiratory Organs and Chest.—Difficult breathing after retiring. Sharp pain in back side of l. lung. Pain through chest; in sides; in r. lung; in back side of r. lung; through centre of r. lung; in centre of l. lung after retiring, and around body at diaphragm; in centre of r. lung and through to scapula. Burning distress at right of lower end of sternum; in both sides, with difficult breathing.

Pulse.—Full, rolling.

Back.—Aching; just below diaphragm; in centre of r. scapula in morning; inside of scapula, < r. Sharp pain at superior spinous process of l. ilium; suddenly at anterior superior spinous process of l. ilium; transient, sudden, in r. side near kidney, forcing me to sit down.

Extremities.—Grinding pain just above elbows. Pains in arms and legs; in l. arm in afternoon; just above elbows, < r.; just above r. elbow, seemed to be in the bone; in l. forearm; l. forearm and wrist; l. wrist in afternoon; r. thigh and leg; legs, < above knees; bones of l. leg after going to bed; knees; l. ankle; in feet, with burning. Lame pain in r. knee. Knees weak; < afternoon, < r.; and trembling. L. foot lame through metatarso-phalangeal joints at times.

Skin.—Sore pimple on l. thigh, outside. Itching in various parts frequently day and night; of various parts before and after retiring, > scratching, but appearing in another place; sudden, < night, < limbs; frequent sudden darting, on various parts, < legs.

Sleep.—Slept in a chair (unusual) after dinner. Restless at night. Sleepy after retiring, so that eyes ached, but could not sleep for a long time. Sleepless for nearly two hours after retiring, and restless, had headache, pain in back, stomach and bowels, woke at midnight, after a few minutes sleep, with hurried desire for stool, > passing much wind, after much effort passed a large, long, tenacious stool. Every night go to sleep on retiring, and in five or ten minutes wake and lie awake one or two hours. Wakefulness in the morning, but later in the proving it was both in the first and last part of the night. Woke early and could not go to sleep on account of pains all over, < epigastric region, back, arms and legs, legs lame and painful as from severe exercise and cold, expected to be very lame on rising, but felt nicely. Woke two hours earlier than usual, with dull headache, burning all over chest, seeming to be in the pleura, aching pain through lungs to scapula, aching in back part of shoulder, outside of upper portion of scapula, pain in hypochondria, extending down back, burning pain in legs and feet, mostly below knees, so that I could not go to sleep, feet so hot that I had to put them out of bed, then the pain extended to the thighs, the pain was so severe that I felt as if I trembled all over, but think I did not, I felt as if I could not move, but on moving there was no pain and I felt better by moving, could not sleep again.

Fever.—Chilliness all over so that I trembled. Feet cold; and damp; afterwards burning.

Hydrangea.

The dried root of Hydrangea arborescens is used either in the form of infusion, fluid extract or tincture.

Clinical.—This seems to be a valuable remedy for certain forms of "gravel;" particularly useful for profuse deposits of white amorphous salts in the urine. It is reported to have arrested the tendency to formation of calculus in the bladder, as well as to have relieved distress from renal calculus, with soreness over the region of the kidneys, bloody urine, etc. With these indications, it is to be compared with Ferh., empirically with Bursa pastoris (Dudgeon), and with Ocimum (Mure).

Hydrastis.

A tincture is made of the fresh root of Hydrastis Canadensis, L.

General Action.—A "catarrhal" drug, causing inflammation of all mucous membranes, with profuse discharges. It depresses the vitality, causing atonic as well as catarrhal dyspepsia, constipation and general weakness. Its action on the liver is marked; jaundice, and symptoms of inflammation resemble its near relative, Chelidonium.

Allies.—Puls., Stann., Borax, Chel., etc.

Generalities.—Darting pain occasionally in long muscles. Pain at night, but too sleepy to notice where. Tendency to take cold easily. Malaise. Langueur; in morning; at 4 p.m.; < towards evening, with headache, and giddiness, and when walking falling; and ennuï. Disposition to lie down. Dulness. All symptoms except the gone feeling > dinner.

Clinical.—The hydrastis patient generally suffers from debility, constipation, atonic dyspepsia, palpitation, dyspnoea, and in a general way is subject to catarrhal discharge and ulceration of mucous membranes. Scrofulous affections, particularly marasmus in children. Malignant ulcerations (epithelioma). Retarded convalescence from typhoid fever, with loss of appetite, constipation, etc.

Mind.—Affections active. Exhilarated; and desirous to sing. Sanguine and contented. Vindictive. Spiteful, > towards evening, and disposed to hit things in general; S. and angry, and desirous to snub any one who differed from me. Angry, and desirous to curse everything and anybody who bothered me. Fretful. Despondent, > "quiz" in evening. Gloomy, taciturn. Fearful that he will become sick all over. Dislikes to go out, to read, write, do anything. Averse to mental occupation, and memory dull. Forgetful when writing. Memory deficient; and head confused.

Head.—Aching on rising; after breakfast, with sensation as if brain were pressed against frontal bones; A. till sleep; with sticking through temples; extending from centre of brain to r. parietal protuberance; bounding, throbbing; nervous, gastric, till noon. Heaviness, amounting to pressure over root of nose. Fulness after breakfast, then aching in temples, < every step or sudden movement or coughing, with bursting sensation on ascending stairs or on sudden stooping. Confusion, with heat in it and loss of memory of recent events, the heat and confusion > pressing cool hand across forehead. Brain feels partially narcotized, then cutting darting through temples. Intoxicated feeling in morning.

Forehead.—Pain; on rising at 6.30 a.m.; at 8.30 a.m.; in supraorbital regions at 8 a.m.; over l. eye at 9 a.m., with soreness in forehead, stoppage of r. nostril, the aching > walking in open air, when watery coryza sat in, the latter stopped again in the room; above l. eye at 10 a.m., always > laying hand on part; at night, and in temples; throbbing P. across sinuses. Bursting, almost stupefying sensation on waking at 9 a.m. > pressing skin towards middle of forehead and when in motion and when mind was engaged, < pressing skin towards temples on pressing in forehead and on wearing a light hat or loose hat drawn tightly. Heaviness, < over l. eye at 9 A.M., in a warm room, > open air, with fullness.

Temples.—Stinging, with dull pains in vertex and over eyes. Cutting through T., with dim vision. Pain over l. eye at 11 A.M.; P. at 9 P.M. from emotion, > pressure and open air; in l. at 8 A.M., extending into l. nostril; throbbing P. all day, < with all other symptoms, in warm room, when sitting and resting, especially when thinking of the symptoms, > fresh air.

Pain in r. parietal protuberance at 8.30 A.M., on ascending stairs; P. in a spot over l. parietal protuberance at noon; heavy P. in l. side of head all day. Heaviness of r. side of head, with drowsiness. Dulness in r. side. Pain in r. cerebellum, then l. Heavy pain in l. occiput, > pressure of cool hand and cool open air, with pale face, heat in head and pressure outward in region of temporal fossa.

Eyes.—Lids agglutinated in morning on waking.

Clinical.—Catarhal ophthalmia, acute, with swollen lids, profuse secretions, smarting and burning; chronic, scrofulous, with profuse discharge, opacities of the cornea, etc. Dry catarrh of the conjunctiva. Blepharitis.

Ears.—Pain in r. at 6.30 P.M., after supper, then fulness in forehead and pain over l. eye; P. extending from l. mastoid process to scapula at 9 P.M.; tensive P. in r. in morning and afternoon. Eustachian tube partially stopped. Noises; at night on waking, with rumbling in bowels. Ringing, with pain in anus. Roaring at 9 P.M. Noise as of cogwheels at night. Whirring like a partridge on habitual waking at night.

Clinical.—Catarhal inflammation of the middle ear and deafness, after scarlet fever. Otorrhœa, with thick mucous discharge.

Nose.—Constant snuffing through the day and occasional sneezing. Sharp excoriating feeling in nares, with constant inclination to blow nose and free discharge of mucus. Sore inside at 3.30 P.M., air felt painfully cold on inhaling, with hawking of mucus from throat and posterior nares; internal edge of r. wing sore and thickened, l. nostril stopped, r. dry and painful (in room). Sensation in r. nostril of a curtain opening and shutting during inspiration, gradually passing to l., leaving r. stopped. Tickling in back part after sneezing. Tingling down r. nostril at 3.30 P.M., then a few drops of arterial blood, stopped with cold water; T. in r. at 4.30 P.M., causing sneezing. Itching in r. nostril from 6 A.M. to 1 P.M., always > cool air. Air seemed cold to l. upper inner nostril at 9 A.M. and 2 P.M. in open air, with pain extending from posterior nares deep into head and with pressure in and over l. eye. Dryness; < r. nostril, with stoppage; and stoppage, with scabs in it. Stoppage; in morning; in r. nostril; l. nostril, with tickling in r. like a hair.

Sneezing at 7 A.M. after breakfast, from tickling in r. nostril; S. at 7 P.M.; at night, every time he woke; sudden, at 8 P.M. in a warm room, then excoriating watery discharge from nose, he goes to bed very sick; constant.

Coryza; in afternoon; < morning, > evening; in r. nostril, with constant inclination to sneeze from 7 A.M. till 1 P.M.; with dry feeling in nose in morning on walking, on going into open air discharge of water, which ceases in room, and nose feels dry and sore when breathing through it. Stopped coryza. Stuffed-up sensation in posterior nares and nasal sinuses, with discharge of thin, clear mucus; posterior nares stuffed up, smarting as from a recent cold, with increased nasal secretion. Profuse discharge from nose and bronchia. Discharge of thick yellow matter (Puls.); frequent D. of watery mucus on walking in cold open air; D. of thin mucus excoriating upper lip, afterwards thicker. Blowing out blood and yellow mucus. Bright red blood from nose at 2.30 P.M., after dinner.

Clinical.—Nasal discharge, watery, excoriating, with burning, rawness of the throat. Catarrh mostly in the posterior nares, which become obstructed, with headache, the discharge dropping into the throat. Hypertrophic catarrh, with yellow-greenish, offensive discharge. Ozæna, with ulceration and bloody discharge. Ulceration of the septum of the nose, bleeding easily on touch. (It has been used as a local application in diphtheria of the nose.)

Face.—Pale. Tight feeling of skin around corners of mouth, which seem drawn down. Aphthæ on under lip. Fever blisters in r. corner of lower lip.

Mouth.—Edges of teeth sensitive to draught of cold air. Tongue, large and marked by teeth; aphthæ (Bo-rax), yellow coat; broad yellow stripe and bad taste. Scalded feeling in morning on rising, < smoking; scalded feeling in l. side of tip, spreading over anterior half of tongue, with smarting and with a burning painful vesicle where the scalded sensation started; dryness at root. Sticky mucus around palate, with bad taste. Sticky, with fur on tongue and aphthæ on upper lip. Smarting in l. side of palate in morning. Taste bad in morning; T. peppery; acid, peppery on forward half of tongue; strange, to food, Clinical.—Numerous cases of aphthous sore mouth. Stomatitis in children or women. Canker in the mouth, after chlorate of potash.

Throat.—Unusual clearing when singing. Hawking from increased mucus (Stan.). Sticky mucus around fauces; mucus in fauces, which cannot be swallowed (Puls.). Soreness; in morning on waking; < coughing or swallowing; of r. upper part of pharynx, < dry swallowing, > swallowing fluids; < about epiglottis, with rawness and hoarseness; and dryness. Roughness in morning on waking, < swallowing, with soreness. Feeling of a lump in lower part of pharynx causing constant deglutition, at times the lump seems to rise, almost suffocating, the suffocative feeling > drawing long breaths through mouth. Dryness at 4 P.M., with swelling of uvula and mucus about posterior nares, throat seemed raw and swallowing scraped it. Tickling low down in pharynx at 6 P.M. after lighting a match, the fumes of which passed into mouth, > coughing and drinking.

Clinical.—Catarhal sore throat; it is very extensively used both internally and locally by homeopathic physicians, without special characteristics, and while the indications for its use are not always plain, and it doubtless has no effect in a large number of cases, yet it seems to have a marked curative action in a certain class, probably in those characterized by hypertrophy of the mucous membrane, with rather free discharge and with burning and rawness extending into the nose and chest. Follicular pharyngitis, the mucous membrane is studded with protruding points, which are deep red and very irritable, < least exposure to cold.

Stomach.—Desire for eggs; D. for bread and tea. Appetite poor; diminished for breakfast. Dislike for meat and vegetables. Eructations of wind; loud, in afternoon. Nausea; at 11 A.M., with eructations of wind, empty feeling in stomach and visible sinking in region of stomach. Gurgling. Cutting in region at 3 P.M., after eating; in stomach and l. hypochondrium after dinner. Acute pain. Pain (Stan.); in region at noon, > empty eructations. Feeling of something twisting in it on lying upon it. Weight. Heartburn in afternoon. Sinking in epigastrium; in morning. Empty feeling in morning on rising, with scooped-out appearance of abdomen, nausea and heavy, white-coated tongue; E. feeling at 11 A.M., with pain.

Clinical.—Inflammation of the stomach, with frequent vomiting and loss of appetite, great soreness over the region of the stomach and burning, in a disease that had been diagnosed as cancer. Atonic dyspepsia, with acidity, especially in old people. Ulceration of the stomach.

Abdomen.—Trembling. Rumbling as before diarrhoea. Fetid flatus. Cutting; at 10 A.M., extending to anus, > slight emission of flatus when lying; during breakfast, then desire for stool, with emission of wind before evacuation, first part of stool natural, last part soft and dark brown; after breakfast, > emission of flatus; before and after dinner, as before dysentery. Gripping, with external soreness; G., with several light, acid stools; G., with profuse light-colored, prostrating stools. Pain at 9 A.M., with passage of wind and pressure to stool. Uneasy, burning sensation.

Rumbling in l. side at noon, with gurgling; R. high up in l. side, with gurgling and pain. Cutting in hypochondria. Intermittent acute pain in liver region, extending to scapulae (see Chelid.), < between 8 A.M. and 2 P.M. Pain in upper A. Soreness in upper A. in morning on rising, while inhaling. Cutting in umbilicus at 5 P.M., extending to penis. Pain in umbilical region and in anus. Cutting in sigmoid flexure of colon at 2.15 P.M.; C. from r. iliac region into r. testicle at 11 P.M., which left the parts above Poupart's ligament sore and tender, with pain extending into root of penis when pressing upon it; C. in hypogastrium before each stool, > stool, with uneasiness, frequent scanty stools, with tenesmus in rectum, which caused dragging, bruised feeling in ovarian region. Pain in r. groin at 2 P.M. when walking; P. in r. groin changed to l.

Clinical.—Gastro-duodenal catarrh, with sinking in the region of the stomach, palpitation, etc. Liver torpid, skin yellow, stools light-colored, hepatic region tender, etc. Jaundice. Gallstone colic, with jaundice. Chronic catarrhal inflammation of the bowels, with mucous discharge, or feces covered with mucus; feces soft and mixed with mucus.

Rectum.—Heavy distress.

Clinical.—Ulceration of the rectum. Fissure of the anus. Prolapsus of the rectum, especially in children.

Stool.—Diarrhoea driving him out of bed at 7 A.M., and stool almost entirely of yellow water at noon; D. preceded and followed by tenesmus, before stool sensation of weakness and trembling, after stool weakness; D. preceded by tenesmus and nausea and followed by tenesmus. Three loose, greenish, with pain in bowels as after a drastic purge. Mushy, copious, light-colored. Soft and of small diameter. Of natural size, but excoriating anus, as if covered with sand. Scanty. Two normal, in one day. Tinged with blood; covered with blood, painless. Natural, then profuse discharge of bright red arterial blood, causing anxiety, then sensation all day as if the hæmorrhage might be repeated, and was in consequence squeezing sphincter ani all the time. Constipation; no desire, passage of some flatus.

Clinical.—Chronic constipation; especially valuable after purgatives (Nux v.). Constipation in children. Obstinate constipation, with a weak feeling in stomach, sour eructations, dull frontal headache, etc. Constipation following parturition, with hæmorrhoids and headache. Constipation and hæmorrhoids in pregnancy.

Urinary Organs.—Micturition frequent, of considerable limpid urine; F., but not more copious. A little urine escapes into urethra when eructating. Tickling in urethra in evening, generally low down, once at orifice. Urine diminished and pale; D. and smelling strong; U. has an unusual odor; U. smells decomposed.

Clinical.—Catarrh of the bladder, with thick ropy mucus in the urine.

Sexual Organs.—Offensive sweat, < scrotum, and excoriating S. under prepuce. Aching in penis during and just after stool; A. at root just as flow of urine stopped. Voluptuous itching on scrotum at 8.30 A.M., > rubbing.

Clinical.—Chronic gonorrhoea. Hydrocele. Pruritus of the vulva, and hard nodular tumors of the breast, with lancing pains. Ulceration of the cervix, with prolapsus of the uterus. Cancerous ulcerations of the uterus. Hæmorrhages from the uterus, especially with ulcerations. Yellow, tenacious leucorrhoea. The leucorrhoea is almost always tenacious, rarely with albuminuria; associated with great prostration, palpitation, or with derangements of the liver, constipation, hæmorrhoids, etc. It has been used successfully in chronic enlargement of the uterus (subinvolution). Uterine fibroids. Inflammation of the cervix, with heat and itching of the vagina. Ulceration of the neck of the womb, fungoid, leucorrhoea profuse.

Respiratory Organs.—Hoarseness; with sharp acrid feeling near epiglottis. Desire to cough increased to nausea at times. Cough from pressure of fingers on trachea; short and dry C., then loose; C., with sweetish expectoration. Breath oppressed; constant want to draw a long B.; short B.

Clinical.—Laryngeal catarrh, mucous membrane pale, vocal cords relaxed. Bronchial catarrh, yellow, tenacious mucus.

Chest.—Catarrh descended into C. causing distress and difficult breathing, constant desire to take long breaths. Stinging at 8.30 A.M. Spasmodic pain under r. clavicle in morning when laughing, extending to r. side of chest and back. Retching pain in l. lobe of lung, from front through to back, from 9 A.M. to 1 P.M., with congestive feeling and sensation as before bleeding of lungs. Pain as from excoriation under upper part of sternum at every cough, with constant desire to cough. Soreness of C. and upper abdomen on drawing a long breath, later soreness in mammary regions and disposition to stretch body backward and arms upward, with yawning. A vertical drawing streak in l. breast, half way between nipple and sternum, twelve inches long, spreading like a feather from median line, going as quickly as it came. Constriction about sternum; at middle of S. (Compare chest symptoms with Stannum.)

Heart and Pulse.—H. agitated at 5 P.M. when at a lecture. Palpitation; in morning. Pulse slow; and labored.

Neck and Hand.—Pain from l. side of neck to shoulder, > laying back on it; P. in nape, extending to r. shoulder, with heavy pain in r. shoulder. Soreness in muscles of neck, with harshness. Pain under l. scapula all day; sore P. in small of B. and region of kidneys all day.

Extremities.—Pain in r. shoulder, l. elbow and knees; in outer side of l. knee when walking, causing limping, with pressure in l. shoulder; stinging rheumatic P. in elbows, forearms and knees, in morning. Shoulders, stinging in r.; sharp pain, and in arms, and < l. index; deep pain, < l., with pain extending from head to shoulder; heavy pain in l. Soreness of muscles of arms on moving them. Elbows and biceps muscle, cutting; contusive lameness. Elbow, crick in r. and in l. phalanges; pain in l., with snapping in shoulder-joint on rotating arm. Drawing pain on radial side of l. wrist, extending towards elbow at 11.30 A.M. Pain in r. hip when walking, passing to knee. Rheumatic pains in thighs, < first sitting down after walking, later extending to hips and knees. Knees, pain in outer part of l. when sitting and walking; stiffness, < descending stairs. Shooting posteriorly on l. leg, down to os calcis, at 10.30 A.M. Aching in l. sole at 7 A.M.

Skin.—Yellow, < around mouth and neck. Swelling of lips, nose and mouth, pimples around mouth and chin going through the various stages of varioloid. Erysipelatoid rash covering face, neck, palms, wrists and joints of fingers, with maddening irritation and burning, after four days exfoliation, but irritation remained in a slighter form, < night. Itching of skin and pendulum, disturbing sleep after 1 A.M., > scratching; l. in spasmodic attacks in various parts during the day, < scalp.

Clinical.—It has cured lupus, epithelioma, malignant ulcers of the skin, lips and various other organs. It has benefited varicose ulcers, especially when applied locally. Eczema, especially in the margin of the hair on the forehead, with oozing secretions. Bed-sores. Chronic ulcers, which bleed easily and smell badly.

Sleep.—Sleepy at 10 A.M., at a lecture. Sleep at 11 A.M. S. unusually sound in morning, hard to be awakened. Waking once or twice at night, thinking it was time to rise, but immediately falling asleep again. Restless sleep; waking every half hour, upon each occasion seeking a new position; and seeking cool positions; and full of dreams (had studied hard); with frightful dreams and fancies. Dreams of monsters; of being pursued by wild beasts; troubled and lascivious, with profuse omissions; vague, unremembered, lewd, disturbing sleep.

Fever.—Chill at 9 A.M.; at night on undressing; in back and thighs at 11 A.M., when walking in open air, then agreeable heat in those parts. Sensation of a draught of cold air on r. lumbar region and r. nates at 11 A.M. General heat at 10 P.M.; H., with itching in various parts; H. of skin; in flushes over face, neck and hands.

Clinical.—General tendency to profuse perspiration and unhealthy odor.

Hydrocotyle.

A tincture is made of the dry plant, Hydrocotyle Asiatica, L.

Generalities.—Bruised feeling in all muscles; B. feeling on waking. Wandering pains in muscles of chest and legs. Drawings in several muscles. Malaise. Weariness; with heaviness and dulness; and unfitness for everything.

Mind.—Gloominess. Misanthropy. Inclination for solitude. Ennui. Indifference.

Head.—Aching. Painful drawing in almost all cranial nerves. Heaviness. Congestion of blood. Vertigo with torpor. Neuralgic pain in external frontal nerve. Pain in posterior part of skull, with swelling. Occiput sensitive, < touch. Constriction of back part of skull; C. of posterior and superior integuments of skull.

Eyes and Ears.—Look unsteady. Injection of palpebral conjunctiva. Pricking in eyes. Vision dim. Dazzling. Pain in l. internal meatus auditorius. Ear, throbbing in r.; ringing; ringing in l., with stoppage; confused noise in l.; blowing sound.

Nose.—Swelling. Tickling; < l. nostril. Feeling as before bleeding. Stoppage. Coryza; dry. Bleeding.

Face.—Intoxicated expression. Intermittent pain in l. cheek-bone.

Mouth and Throat.—Whitish spots on l. upper and under sides of tongue. Impediment in speech. Redness of velum palati, with pain on swallowing, < food. Hyperæmia of buccal mucous membrane. Saliva increased. Taste insipid or bitter. Tonsils red. Pricking in pharynx. Disorder of constrictor muscles of pharynx. Œsophagus dry and rough; burning and pricking in O.

Stomach.—Loathing of food. Anorexia; then strong appetite. Aversion to tobacco-smoking. Eructations frequent; acid E. Nausea. Swelling of S. Contraction. Cramplike pain. Sensation as if gases collected into a ball. Anxiety in region, with weight. Heat in region, spreading out like a bar.

Abdomen.—Borborygmi in different parts. Flatus. Violent contractions of intestines. Pain; every five minutes; < transverse colon. Constriction. Sensation as if all organs were in motion. Pain in upper part of liver. Obstruction in hepatic region. Heat in hypogastrium.

Clinical.—Cirrhosis of the liver.

Rectum and Stool.—Weight in rectum. Burning in anus. Itching in anus. Ineffectual desire. Stools dry, dark. Stools increased. Stools easier.

Urinary Organs.—Feeling of weight in prostate gland. Irritation of neck of bladder. Constriction of bladder. Frequent desire to urinate. Irritation of urethra. Urine increased. Urine becomes brown on cooling. U. turbid, without sediment.

Clinical.—Inflammation of the neck of the bladder in women, with inflammation, heat, etc., within the vagina and neck of the womb. Pruritis of the vagina.

Sexual Organs.—Drawing in spermatic cords. < l. Serotum relaxed. Impotence. Indifference to intercourse. Vulva and vagina red. Heat in bottom of vagina, at its orifice pricking and itching. Leucorrhœa increased. Pain in ovarian region. Uterus, redness of cervix; pain, < l. side; laborlike pain in U. and appendages; heaviness.

Respiratory Organs and Chest.—Pricking in vicinity of glottis. Dryness of windpipe; of ventricles of larynx. Voice weak. Speaking soon fatigues. Irritation of air-passages. Difficult expectoration of bronchial mucus. Breath short. Oppression of chest relieved suddenly, then intermittent.

Heart and Pulse.—Cardiac spasm. Constriction of heart; with quiet and regular pulse, or with a few separate beats in certain arteries, or with hot flushes in different parts of face. Irregular beating of heart. Pulse stronger and fuller.

Neck and Back.—Renewal of old rheumatic pains in l. rhomboid, < pressure. Bruised pain in loins. Obstruction in region of kidneys, with heaviness. Formication in kidneys.

Extremities.—Contractions of forearms and legs. Irresistible inclination to stretch. Pain in all joints; < l.; P. in all muscles. Sensation as if hot water ran through marrow of bones. Weariness in all muscles of shoulders. Crampy numbness of r. forearm, hand and fingers. Pain in finger-joints. Gait unsteady. Inability to stand. Sharp pains in hips. Weariness in muscles of thighs, with crampy movements in calves.

Skin.—Spots almost circular, with raised scaly edges. Yellowish spots on legs. Erysipelatous redness. Red points on eyelids, l. side of neck and both hands. Red spots covered with whitish scales, on l. side of neck. Lilac-colored spot, shaped like an ear, on sole, the skin over it is depressed and walking is painful. Erythema on face, neck, back, chest, arms and thighs; E., with much itching; E., with copious sweat. Miliary eruptions on neck, back and chest. Sudamina on abdomen. Papules on face. Pustules on chest. Pricking on different parts. Itching in several places; I. at tip of nose (in one who had chilblain there every year).

Clinical.—It has cured lupus of suppurating variety. Lymphatic tumors. It has ameliorated cases of leprosy, seems to have arrested the destructive processes; it also has ameliorated cases of elephantiasis. Numerous cases of eruptions, for the most part dry, with great thickening of the epidermoid layer and enormous exfoliation of scales. It has cured psoriasis with the above indications, and has greatly relieved forms of dry eczema; excessive thickening and exfoliation of the epidermis is a strongly marked indication for its use (Kreos.).

Sleep.—Yawning and stretching. Sleepiness; in the daytime. Heavy, dreamless sleep.

Fever.—Shivering in afternoon. Cold hands and feet, with general condition resembling precursory stage of fever, without alteration of pulse; C. forearm, hand, l. foot and leg, > rubbing, but returning. Febrile movements. Heat of skin; H. in bones of leg; in l. tibia; in face in flushes; in different parts of face in flushes, < temporal regions. Profuse sweat.

Hydrocyanic Acid.

The officinal acid is diluted with an equal part of distilled water to make the first centesimal solution.

General Action.—A deadly poison, one grain of the pure acid being sufficient to cause death. It slows the heart, causes extreme dyspnoea, blurred vision, vertigo, frothing at the mouth, tetanic and epileptiform convulsions.

Generalities.—Appeared like a man suffering from excess of drink. Increased secretions from skin, glands, < salivary glands, kidneys and serous membrane. Bloodvessels injected, whole face bloated. Relaxation. Rigidity of muscles. Agitation, with trembling of whole body. Arose slowly and unsteadily. Staggered; and fell; with groaning, rapid breathing, foaming at mouth, hands clenched. Leaned forward on a table, then became insensible, fell backward and was violently convulsed. Fell insensible; and breathed deeply, slowly and forcibly. Fell suddenly; and was stretched out lifeless, without trace of pulse or respiration, limbs cold, all muscles paralyzed, but eyes glistening and full of life. Threw her hands over her head and fell. Started up, threw her hands over her head, gasped, stood for a second, then ran forward and fell with her head first to the ground, then was motionless and moaned.

Throwing herself about in a violent manner. Jerkings. Spasms; with unconsciousness; then paralysis; of limbs, < upper, and of chest; face distorted, limbs spasmodically extended, head drawn down on shoulders; so that head seemed buried between shoulders and arms nearly turned around by action of pronator muscles; beginning in toes, then distortion of eyes towards the right and upward, then general spasm, distortion of limbs, face, etc., with rigidity of body, twisting around of arms, and distention, especially of region of stomach; he drew himself up in his seat, supported behind by r. arm, contracted lower limbs and with a fierce look and fixed eye uttered three hideous groans, then twisted the body towards the left, with the face to the floor. Tetanus. Trunk spasmodically bent forward. Trembling.

Neuralgic pain in r. hip and thigh, afterwards in region of heart. Malaise. Activity of senses. Dulness of senses. Discomfort. Sensation as of impediment to touch. Standing upon feet very difficult. Movements difficult, as from loss of power of limbs. Restlessness; with dyspeptic fulness of stomach. Aversion to mental or physical exertion; with difficulty in moving and depression of spirits. Weakness; in afternoon; in afternoon, < feet; in evening; in evening, < lower limbs; with sleepiness; with general bruised sensation; nervous. Faintness; with sweat. Insensibility; with coldness; with coldness and pallor; and head leaning on table, r. hand hanging down, l. hand in her lap; and thighs drawn up on abdomen and rigid, upper limbs rigid, and on drawing them from the side they forcibly reverted to their former position, eyes shut, teeth clenched, face convulsed. Paralysis. Coffee removed most quickly the narcotic effects.

Clinical.—Hysteria or epileptiform convulsions, frequent, violent attacks, with feeble, irregular beating of the heart. Tetanic convulsions, with complete loss of consciousness. Tetanus, cyanosis, coldness; action of heart irregular, feeble. Hysterical attacks, when drinking the water seems to gurgle down the throat. Epileptic attack preceded by nausea, vomiting or waterbrash. Uremic convulsions. Attacks of faintness, cyanosis, cold skin, gurgling on drinking. It has been used for the collapse of Camphor, with sudden cessation of all discharges, cyanosis and gurgling on drinking.

Mind.—Disconnected talking. Answered quickly, but he soon became heavy. Exclaimed "bread, bread," and sprang convulsively from his seat. Wild delirium, with tossing from side to side, biting at bystanders, eyes anxious and protruding, pupils small, heart's action and pulse rapid. Anxiety. Fear of imaginary troubles. Loss of courage. Could not remain in middle of road when he saw a vehicle approaching, even at a distance, but was forced to stand aside without waiting for it to come nearer. Fretful. Gloomy in afternoon, > open air, and ill-humored. Thought difficult; impossible. Memory weak. Stupefaction. Coma; interrupted by sudden convulsive movements. Unconsciousness; with weakness; sudden, with loss of sensation.

Head.—Inclined forward and unable to hold it up. Aching; only at night; > in open air, with confusion; with feeling of distention; with weight and heat in it and gastric disturbance; violent, stupefying, on bending head the brain seemed to beat against it; intermittent; in afternoon, now in this, now in that place; intermittent, in various parts, always extending to forehead. Confusion; then pressure, then pain; with acute pain in forehead and occiput, < region of r. brow; uneasy, then falling down. Disturbance as if brain were on fire, then falling down and debility. Feeling as if exhausted by mental exertion. Heaviness in evening, with pressure. A sort of convulsion. Congestion. Apoplexy. Condition like intoxication. Vertigo; < motion, with obscuration of senses; with staggering and indistinct vision; and objects seemed to move; feeling as if everything about him moved slowly, with pressure in l. side of occiput extending over l. half of head to forehead, < forehead.

Forehead.—(Pain above l. eye.) Pressure; on r. side; on r. side, extending to occiput; outward, and in orbits, gradually becoming sticking and boring. Heaviness and pressive sensation. Tension. Confusion; with pain.

Pressure on vertex, not real pain, causing confusion, and extending towards forehead and orbits, where it became fixed, and pressure extending from occiput down nape. Pain in r. side of head; in region of crown and forehead; < frontal region, changing to region of l. mastoid process, then to l. temple, then to r.; intermittent P. in l. half, especially in region of forehead and vertex, at times changing to r. Confusion of r. side, with pressure in r. side of occiput and sineiput.

Occiput.—Pain in open air; P. in O. and forehead, < r. side; P. extending to anterior surface of head; extending to frontal sinuses, where it becomes seated; beneath scalp. Confusion, and in forehead; C. and r. side extending forward and causing pressure in forehead.

Eyes.—Distorted. Fixed; and prominent. Brilliant. Glassy; and prominent. Prominent and glistening, but half closed, pupils dilated and insensible. Pain deep in E. and temples, then in occiput. Balls tense and prominent. Pupils motionless; and dilated; and contracted. Pupils dilated; then contracted. Varicose veins in lids. Lids open and balls fixed; open and balls turned upward; wide open, eyes staring, injected and watery; wide open and balls difficult to move; half open; partly closed, eyes appearing as if pushed forward between them, pupils dilated and insensible; closed; closed and both eyes drawn to left. Pressure over r. inner canthus. Vision dim; with intoxicated feeling; V. of floating clouds in afternoon; V. of sparks. Blindness; with pain in forehead, pupils dilated, less sensitive to light, eyeballs tense and prominent, with injection of capillaries of lids.

Ears and Nose.—Ringing in E. Roaring in E. Buzzing in E. Difficult hearing. Pricking as if mephitic air passed over Schneiderian membrane. Sneezing.

Face.—Flushed; F. and neck red and puffy; bluish-red and swollen. Almost purple. Dusky. Blue. Gray and earthy. Almost black, then ghastly pale, swollen and covered with large drops of sweat. Pale; and sunken. Sunken. Swollen; and purple. Lines very distinct. Wild-looking and bloated. Ecstasy of features. Congested, and veins enlarged; F. and head congested and hot. Jaw fallen. Jaws clenched in rigid spasm; C., with corner of the sheet between teeth, along sides of sheet much thick white foam issued at each expiration; C., and lower teeth retracted within upper; C., but other muscles relaxed. Slight movement of jaw the only symptom of life. Lips pale, bluish. Lips distorted. Lips and tongue purplish. Lips closed.

Mouth.—Tongue white and dry; T. coated; T. protruding; irritation at root, becoming a scraping as after eating dry walnuts; feeling at root as if drawn together at both sides; coldness; numbness. Loss of speech. Unintelligible speaking. Mouth dry; before and after dinner. Froth; bubbles of viscid; thick, salivary, tinged with blood (from her biting her tongue). Brown tenacious matter fell on to the blankets. Spitting. Salivation, with attacks of nausea. Taste sharp, irritating; T. bitter; sweetish; insipid.

Throat.—Swelling and undulatory movements of jugular veins and quick and full beating of carotids. Gurgling. Drink rumbles through T. and intestines. Spasmodic constriction; with hawking. Pain, heat and cramp in fauces, œsophagus and stomach. Scraping; till 7 P.M.; in soft palate; pharynx; with sticking and increased mucus, which compels frequent expectoration of thin saliva; < larynx, with sticking, then feeling as if larynx were swollen and narrow and pressing against neighboring parts; with tickling extending from larynx low down air-passages and causing inclination to hacking cough, this condition of air-passages was compared to that after taking cold when hoarse or that caused by eating hips of roses when the hairs stick in throat, in the evening this changed to dryness in mouth and larynx. Soreness hindering deglutition, flow of saliva from mouth in evening. Uneasiness. Heat; in œsophagus. Inability to swallow.

Stomach.—Hunger increased, with aversion to food. Appetite diminished; and digestion; A. lost; lost, then unusually increased; lost at breakfast, a few mouthfuls cause nausea, desire for stool, oppression of chest and palpitation, at 12.30 sinking at stomach, but inability to eat. Aversion to eating. Thirst. Eructations; of gas; sour. Violent hicough, > a cup of black coffee. Nausea after eating, with discomfort; N. and vomiting, with relief of symptoms. Vomiting; frequent; of black liquid; of black mucus. Distention of region. Heartburn after eating, with waterbrash and salivation. Feeling of a lump; gradually changing to sticking, then pressure. Sensitiveness of epigastric region. Warmth. Disturbances. Unpleasant sensation in epigastrium, with such weakness of limbs and muscles that he thought he would fall.

Clinical.—Chronic dyspepsia, with vomiting of food in evening and night (Ferr).

Abdomen and Stool.—Rumbling in A. Spleen feels enlarged. Involuntary stools. S. omitted; urgent, copious; mushy.

Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Burning in urethra during micturition. Frequent micturition, urine not increased; involuntary M. Urine and sweat copious; U. copious and saturated; copious and watery. Urine retained four days. Emissions of semen. Sexual desire increased.

Respiratory Organs.—Scraping in larynx; with rawness; with tickling, causing dry cough; as from eating too many walnuts; S. in trachea. Larynx feels enlarged. Increased mucus in trachea; expectorated in evening; increased mucus in larynx in afternoon and evening. Hoarseness. Cough; in evening; violent; in paroxysms, with expectoration of black-yellowish mucus, relieving the rattling respiration.

Suffocation, then stupefaction, and congestion and pain in chest. Dyspœnia; with contraction of sides of chest; with pressure in region of heart; with stertor and rattling respiration. Respiration difficult; caused by exercise, with nausea and sweat on face and hands; and rattling; and deep. Convulsive breathing; then regular, with snoring inspiration and moaning expiration. Gasping. Groaning. Moans; low. Sighs, with occasional sobs. She made a noise (Oh! oh! oh!). Noisy and agitated breathing. Wheezing, rattling. Irregular breathing. Anxious B. Respiration slow; and convulsive; and labored; and labored, with hissing; and stertorous; and deep; with frequent need of deep breathing; and deep, whereby the ribs were drawn back to spine; with deep, prolonged inspirations and moaning; and weak; and faint, gasping, sometimes with slight stertor. Respiration imperceptible. Respiration forcible.

Chest.—Sticking on deep breathing; S. under short ribs; S. internal to l. nipple; beneath lower end of sternum; in region of r. fifth and sixth ribs, near sternum. Acute pain, with anxiety. Pain; in r. side; between r. fifth and sixth ribs, near sternum; in region of heart, with dyspnoea; in sides, becoming a sticking. Constriction; transversely across; with sudden difficulty of breathing; obliging deep inspiration; of diaphragm, with sense of suffocation. Tightness; gradually extending into r. side of chest and becoming a pain that extends over chest and makes breathing difficult. Tension transversely across, especially in region of seventh and eighth ribs, < inspiration. Oppression.

Clinical.—Threatening paralysis of lungs and heart (compare Mur. ac.).

Heart.—Sticking. Pressure. Præcordial anxiety; alternating with vertigo, pain in same locality. Palpitation; with soft, full pulse. Irregular action, pulse hardly to be felt; irregular, with slow, depressed pulse; action and pulse variable, sometimes rapid, sometimes slow and intermittent, also weak. Action weak; and fluttering, slow at wrist imperceptible.

Pulse.—Rapid; and weak; and weak, and action of heart could scarcely be felt when lying on back; and small; and small, feeble; and small, a weak impulse alternating with a strong one; and small, unequal; and now strong, now weak. Slow; in evening; and weak. Unequal in strength; and irritable, small; the tone of the different beats irregular. Small. Imperceptible; almost.

Neck and Back.—Neck bloated. Congestion of veins of neck and face. Cramp in back. Sudden pain in region of r. kidney, extending to epigastric region, then spreading over abdomen, causing warmth in abdomen.

Extremities.—Seemed bloodless. Flaccid; and fell lifeless when lifted. Trembling; and useless. Contractions, but no tetanus. Weak, so that he thought he would fall. Immovable and cold. Paralyzed and lay wherever placed, not rigid; hands and feet P. Arm stiff from tonic spasms. Arms bent and hands clenched. Arms relaxed, fingers contracted. Forearms stiff and inflected on arms. Trembling of r. hand. Hands partially contracted, fingers rigid and about nails of a dark lead color. Staggered. Legs dark when in a dependent position, from congestion of bloodvessels. Legs stiff, and straight.

Skin.—Pallor and coldness; P. and cyanosis. Rubescence on arms, then on legs. Yellow and livid about neck and breast. Urticaria, < upper part of body. Prickling in various parts. Fornication, < epigastric region; F. on thighs, legs; limbs. Itching on neck and arms.

Sleep.—Yawning; frequent, with overpowering sleepiness, on waking confusion of head and difficulty in keeping awake. Sleepiness; towards noon. Condition between sleeping and waking, paying no attention to surroundings, on waking sensation as if he had not slept at all. Sleep prolonged and deep. Sleeplessness.

Fever.—Chill; intermittent, creeping, in afternoon; general, then general warmth; alternating with heat, with stupefaction and vertigo. Rigors, > coffee and brandy. Shivering like electric shocks; S. in paroxysms in afternoon when riding in a wagon over a rough road; creeping. Cold skin. Cold limbs. Forehead and face cold and dry. Heat; < feet. Sweat; general; general, clammy; clammy on forehead; cold, clammy; cold, covering face. Dry skin.

Hyoscyaminum.

The crystallizable alkaloid contained in Hyoscyamus, isomeric with Atropine, $C_{17}H_{23}NO_3$. Solutions in alcohol may be used.

Generalities.—Tetanic attacks. Muscular system flaccid, unable to sit erect in a chair, hand suddenly pronated and supinated with a jerk. Arrest of various secretions and excretions. Restlessness and tossing about bed; R. and reeling, then falling together like a drunken man. Heavy feeling. Inability to stand when she got out of bed. General numbness, with loss of power in producing ordinary movements of co-ordination.

Mind.—Delirium; violent, failed to recognize his family, saw animals about him, next day remembered nothing that had passed except the dreams of animals; wakeful, quiet and usually pleasing D., with illusions of sight or great sleepiness, and when aroused dreamy sleep, broken by occasional mutterings and jerkings of limbs. Clear when engaged in conversation, but dreamy when undisturbed, eyes wide open, he reached to an object on the table and looked about on the floor, when questioned said that he thought something had dropped from the table, and that the walls appeared to move, afterwards quiet, but meddlesome when not engaged in conversation, grasping at objects, attempting to remove them before the hand reached them, when left alone he lapsed into forgetfulness and dreamy, meddlesome delirium, picking at objects, having reached them after unsuccessful efforts he fumbled with them till he dropped them, then on attempting to pick them up lost his balance, when aroused he rubbed his hand, gaped, answered readily, a remark excited a risibility which he could not restrain, and occasionally the suppressed chuckle burst into a hearty laugh.

Dulness, heaviness. Difficulty in concentrating thoughts. Coma, with relaxation of voluntary muscles, except occasional spasmodic movements of arms and legs.

Head.—Aching. Congestion, and of face, violent throbbing of carotids with every impulse of heart. Drunkenness, nausea and vomiting. Giddiness; with staggering on rising from a seat; with staggering on walking; across forehead. Weight across forehead.

Eyes.—Suffused; sclerotic and conjunctiva. Balls restless. Pupils dilated; and insensible. Vision misty; and letters run together, can read fine print only at distance of a yard; double V.; yellow V.; V. perverted as to color and size, she thought some pills in a box were larger than the others; inability to read unless the print was within two or three inches of the nose.

Face.—Flushed; and hot; cheeks, occasionally; especially cheeks flushed and hot. Heavy look.

Mouth.—Tongue dry; and brown; at centre, and brown, also with clamminess of rest of mouth; and hard; and rough, except margins; and rough and brown, hard and soft palates dry and glazed, afterwards tongue and palates covered with a sticky, acid, offensive secretion, as after Belladonna; tongue and throat so dry that articulation was indistinct. Forepart and margins of tongue wet with acid secretion. Dryness of mouth; except gums. Clammy; and moist, exhaling an offensive odor. Suddenly moist. Sensation of mastic in it.

Throat.—Dryness; with moisture of mouth; of pharynx; with difficult swallowing.

Stomach.—Vomiting during the coma.

Urinary Organs.—Urging, dysuria and discharge in a feeble, dribbling stream, partial retention (urine contained Hyos.). Urine changed from high-colored to glaucous green. Urine changed from acid to alkaline and opalescent on boiling; and on standing a deposit of triple phosphates, the specific gravity increased. Urine pale, specific gravity decreased. Specific gravity decreased, uric acid decreased, changed from acid to neutral; sp. gr. and uric acid decreased, changed from acid to alkaline; sp. gr., chlorine, urea, sulphates, phosphates and uric acid decreased.

Respiratory Organs.—Dry, tracheal cough. Rapid respiration.

Heart and Pulse.—Heart's action excited and rapid. Pulse increased in rapidity, force and volume; then slow; then decreased in rapidity, force and volume. Pulse rapid; then slow and soft. Pulse slow; and at first increased in force and volume.

Extremities.—Jerking; occasionally, and fidgety. Inability to walk. Inability to rise from his chair or walk without assistance, and as he sat twitching now and then of the extensors of the legs, so as to advance the foot with a little jerk. Weakness of legs; of feet, so that I could only walk by fixing eyes on the ground.

Sleep.—Yawning; and sighing; and tired feeling. Sleep.

Fever.—Heat; of skin, with dryness.

Hyoscyamus.

A tincture is made of the whole fresh plant of Hyoscyamus niger, L.

General Action.—It acts very similarly to Belladonna, but with less indication of congestion or fever; generally indicated in conditions of adynamia, with involuntary discharges, muttering delirium, carphologia, etc.

Allies.—Stram., Bell.

Generalities.—Dropsy. Distention of veins of whole body; of neck, extremities, and < face. Clutching about her without knowing at what. If made to walk she did so with body bent backward, if she spontaneously attempted to walk she did so with feet wide apart and with involuntary motions of hands, with which she felt about her, sometimes closing them as quick as lightening. Constant change of position. Tossing about and restlessness. Tossing about the bed and screaming constantly; and rubbing his hot head with both hands constantly. In bed, at one time drew knees up, at another stretched them out, at another turned over, turned head back and forth, at another raised head and beat the bed with it, at another picked straws from his mattress, groped about him and did not speak.

Reeled, then fell; R. to the bed, fell upon it and was motionless. Fell suddenly; with cries and convulsions; fell down unconscious, whole body cold and stiff, face pale, eyes closed, pupils dilated, conjunctiva injected, anterior cervical muscles contracted so that it was impossible to lay head upon pillow, pulse small, thready, rapid, respiration stertorous and difficult, spasms of pectoral muscles; fell from her seat, lay immovable and slept with head upon chest, red face, deep respiration, warm skin, small, rapid pulse, eyes closed and injected.

Tremors, horripilation and rigors. Startings. Twitchings; frequent, with violent delirium, during the remissions catching at flocks in the air or pulling at bed-clothes. Convulsions; after every drink, sometimes he did not recognize his relatives; with frothing from the mouth (compare Hydrocyanic acid); with twitching of hands, feet and muscles; C. flex the limbs, and the bent body is tossed high. Opisthotonos, with convulsions of limbs. Epilepsy. General rigidity as in tetanus.

Stitches come out of finger-tips and out of all parts of body. Tearing or drawing pains in limbs and testicles. Rheumatic (tearing, jerking, gnawing) pains in outer and posterior surface of l. upper arm and in lower end of bones of l. forearm and in scapulae. Restlessness, with confusion of speech and conduct; R., excessive animation and hurry. Peculiar sense of lightness and mobility. Activity, thought himself more active and vigorous than he really was. Ground seemed to give way under their feet. Oppression. Aversion to motion and work. Weakness; between the convulsions, with snoring; with general trembling and external coldness of limbs; with stupor and overpowering sleepiness; causing staggering; with heaviness of limbs. Inability to maintain an erect posture and reeling on attempting to stand. Faintness. Sensibility blunted. Insensibility; to pinching; loss of sense of touch; and he sits immovable in bed. Hemiplegia. Aggravation in evening; A. after eating.

Clinical.—Chorea, with clutching motions of the hands and numerous incoherent muscular movements. Epileptiform convulsions, especially in children or after labor. Convulsions from fright, in children. Tetanus. Hydrophobia. Paralysis agitans. During severe malaris, congestive chills.

Mind.—Carphologia; in nervous fever, with fumbling about his head, face and nose, and groping about the bed. Ravings. Delirium; and restlessness, would not stay in bed (Bell.); with ludicrous actions like monkeys; ridiculous gestures like a dancing clown; ridiculous grimaces like one intoxicated; violent and beats people; bit, scratched and nipped every one who interfered with them; violent exertions to get out of bed, attempts to bite, rage, then weeping aloud, while lying she turned the head r. and l., at times raised it and snapped as if she would take hold of something; strikes and tries to kill bystanders; attacks people with a knife; attempts to escape.

Delirium most of the time, quick working and clutching of hands and striking his attendants, it was difficult to hold him on their laps, afterwards talking about everything, cannot fix his attention, he cannot be held, wants to get away but cannot stand, and if he attempts to walk he falls on his face, limbs seem weak, almost paralyzed, acts as if intoxicated, wants to fight, closes his hands and strikes at his attendants, attempts to bite, at intervals sings and at times laughs, nervous trembling and jerking of muscles, when anything is offered him he clinches hold of it with both hands greedily, the slightest opposition excites him.

Lively delirium. Foolish laughter (Cannab. ind.). Sings love songs and street ballads; sings constantly, talks hastily and indistinctly, is violent and beats about her if spoken to strongly or taken hold of; merry, singing, imitating with her hands spinning; (laughable, solemn actions mingled with the raving, in an improper dress). Dancing; and laughing, running about, grasping at things, stared at bystanders, heard nothing, answered no questions, several men could not make her drink or lie down, face pale, pulse rapid, pupils dilated, capillaries of eyes injected, sleeplessness, vertigo, stupefaction.

Talking more than usual and more animatedly and hurriedly; absurd talk; irrational, as if a man were present who was not; T. about incoherent things; incessant chattering without meaning, also leaping and dancing as in chorea, did not know their own family. Muttering to himself; absurd; M. on being aroused, became irritable, resented attempts to make him drink, soon hallucination, in which his countenance became threatening, called on absent persons with whom he imagined himself in debate. (Prattled about things wise men would have kept to themselves.) Unintelligible answers. Excited, incoherent in speech, wandered purposelessly about the house, muttering and touching things as if suspicious of those about him, then delirious, saw policemen enter the house, heard them speaking about him in the hall, hands in constant motion, trying to rub his face or brush something away, was irritable, did not answer questions, but muttered a few disjointed words. In speaking used very fine language, so that the usually quiet and indolent peasant was scarcely recognized.

Frightful screams all night and tossing about. Roving about, senseless, naked, wrapped in fur in summer. Moaning and groping about, with outstretched fingers as if something should be seized suddenly. Acting as if cracking nuts; A. as if frightening away peacocks with his hands. Embraces the stove and wishes to climb upon it as on a tree. Listening to imaginary sounds and clutching at phantoms. A thousand fancies hover before his imagination. Thinks men are swine. (Considers himself a criminal.) Thought he was at home and desired to make visits. People in the room appeared grotesque, then noisy, and then quiet delirium, afterwards she sat in the corner of the room, muttered to herself, rocked her body to and fro, now catching at the air, now pulling the bed-clothes about, answering either not at all or incorrectly. Typhomania. Sudden intermittent excitement, with wild look.

Reproaches others and complains of a supposed injury to himself. Quarrelsome; and insulting; and tries to injure others. Uncontrollable anger. Fear; of death, becoming a monomaniac, then nervous irritation; of being devoured by animals. Dread of drinks. Hydrophobia. Jealousy. Anxiety; after dinner. Sad. Morose. Impatient. (Reproaches himself and has conscientious scruples.) Quiet, reflective. Laughter. (Lively and crochety, next day morose and quarrelsome.

Disinclination to think; or work; D. to study in afternoon. Aversion to reading. When reading he mixes up improper words and sentences. Disconnected words. Distraction at 6 A.M., with sleepiness, so that he must cease reading. Confusion of sense, weakness of sight and difficulty in speaking, like slight intoxication. Incapable of comprehending what was said to her. Inability to fix the attention, every attempt to overcome this was followed by confusion and headache. Ideas stand still. Ideas lost, he is troubled about everything, sleeps several hours in afternoon, often half awake. Remembrance of long-past events; easy R. of circumstances which he does not care to recollect, and remembers with difficulty occurrences which he tries to recollect. Inclined to forget himself in thoughtless staring at objects. Memory weak. Memory lost; when reading; of what she has read. Coma vigil. Sopor; after each fit. Lethargic state when left to himself. Stupefaction. Insensibility, but intermittent consciousness, when she spoke much, but hastily and disconnectedly. Foolishness. Amentia. Idiotic. Unconsciousness; on waking.

Clinical.—Delirium occurring in course of acute diseases' characterized by restlessness, is constantly busy with his hands' picking, working and clutching, and is constantly muttering or talking to himself, or is frightened; in a general way, loquacious delirium indicates the drug. Erotic delirium, refuses to be covered and talks in an obscene manner. Violent delirium, with tendency to bite, scratch or to escape (Bell.). Stupid, seems to be completely unconscious, but is picking at the clothes or catching at the air. Mania, with suspicions of his friends. Puerperal mania, with desire to be uncovered and with obscenity. With the delirium of this drug there are apt to be dry, cracked tongue, indistinct speech, involuntary evacuations and convulsive movements of the muscles generally. Acute mania, suspicious of having been poisoned or of being pursued. Delirium tremens, in which the patient is very suspicious of his friends and very loquacious.

Head.—(Sticking.) (Sticking, tearing.) Aching; in the room; with weight over eyes; at base of brain; when walking, as if brain were shattered; throbbing, waking him at night, with violent throbbing in carotids; stupefying, < forehead, changing to intermittent tearing; stupefying, < forehead, alternating with sticking, < l. side. Feeling as if encircled by a band. Confusion; at 4 P.M., with pressure in frontal region and difficult thought on going into open air; < open air, with pain in forehead and temples; with fulness, then heat; as from physical weakness, < morning. Heaviness; < sinciput, with pressure. Stupefaction. Rush of blood. Congestion of brain. Pulsation in brain. Waving in brain as from violent throbbing of arteries, < stooping, with pressure in forehead. Intoxication; after a meal. Vertigo; < walking, with tottering; with obscured vision; with reticulated vision, pain in r. side of forehead, then pricking in arms, then viscid sweat on them; even to faintness. Apoplectic and cramped condition. Amelioration in room; A. from a cup of coffee.

Forehead.—Sticking over r. eye when coughing. Pain; over eyes; on l. side, with amblyopia; < meninges of brain; and in occiput, less in parietals and still more seldom in encephalon; involving parietal region and occiput; so that he wrinkled the skin; paroxysmal in upper part, at times contractive, with general discomfort, at another time ease, with excited fancies. Pressure, provoking laying hand on it; P. > nosebleed, with heat. Fulness as if screwed in. Tension; and warmth. Heaviness, with burning; H. in sinciput, < stooping, with confusion. Confusion; in l.; in open air; in sinciput in morning on waking; and in occiput; with warmth; preventing thought; spreading afterwards to sight and hearing. Throbbing in eminences; l.; r., < movement and stooping, with drawing.

Aching in temples; after eating, and in whole external head; < r., < cold air, > in house; in r., forehead and upper lid, > motion in open air, with dizziness. Pressure in vertex on turning head, with drawing in nape. (Tearing in occiput.) Pain in occiput; P. concentrated itself in side of O., which felt sore, with burning, > pressure. Tension in occiput. Crawling on vertex. Gnawing on scalp, < moving or pressing it.

Eyes.—Distorted. Squinting. Staring; and looked larger than usual; and sunken, glistening; and looked dim, watery, pupils large, later wild look, squinting. Red; and wild, sparkling; and prominent. Brilliant; and rolling about. Lustreless, and brain obscured. Protruding, moving convulsively. Twitching. Sensation of a foreign body; pressure as from sand in them. Felt larger than usual. Felt as if he had been awake all night. Burning. Weakness; on reading. Heaviness. Insensibility, so that lids did not wink when cornea was touched. Lachrymation in open air, with sensitiveness of r. eye.

Pain in balls; r., < turning it outward and upward; in upper part, < moving them outward and upward; with heaviness of upper lids. Pressure on balls, with sensitiveness to hard pressure; P. upon r. ball, with sensitiveness to touch of upper and outer part. Pupils dilated; and insensible; l. D. and insensible; and insensible, and albuginea red; then contracted. Pupils contracted; < r.; < r., neither completely round; r., and angular; r., and r. ball sensitive; P. became smaller as headache grew worse; then dilated. Pupils not quite round.

Mucus in inner canthus. Lids swollen, whites reddish here and there, eyes look as after crying. Lids always half open. Biting in outer surface of l. lower lid, then r. Heaviness of upper lids; from sleepiness. Inability to open eye. Itching tearing in canthi, < external, > rubbing. (Itching in l. inner canthus.) Conjunctiva injected; r., and burning and lachrymation; < l., l. lids agglutinated, vessels of sclerotic injected. Pain in superciliary ridge; in r. brow. Gnawing pressure in upper margin of orbit, > touch.

Vision dim; r. eye; and short. Short. Uncertain. Weak. Photophobia; with lachrymation in open air. Double. Sticks the needle in the wrong place when sewing. They cry out that near objects will fall and grasp at them. Flickering; and dark points moving rapidly. When reading, letters looked like ants running together. Small objects seem very large (Nux. mos.). Objects seem larger and brighter. All objects seem brighter and smaller, an indistinct yellowish umbra around every letter, afterwards some words seemed very large, but when viewed with r. eye they were like other words. The flame of one light seemed smaller, that of another larger, though they were of the same size. Everything looked like gold. Scarlet. Stars and sparks, all objects seemed cut into teeth or covered with points, all white objects surrounded by colored rings. Of stars and sparks, all white objects surrounded by rings, in which yellow predominated, if she looked into a cup the edges appeared yellow and it seemed as if small animals moved in the interior, at intervals muscæ volitantes and objects appeared strongly illuminated and to have colored edges. Blindness; and senselessness, wandering about the town; they lost in succession sight, hearing and speech. They carried the jug upside down to the mouth. They ran against all objects in their way, with open, wild eyes.

Clinical.—Spasms of the ocular muscles, eyes distorted or rolling. Illusions of vision, objects seem large, or double, or indistinct.

Ears.—Sharp stitches into ears. Tearing in cartilages, < pressure. Pain, < l.; sudden indescribable, in r. towards evening. Obstruction on hawking. Ringing. Loud noises. Roaring. Hearing weakened; lost.

Nose.—Jerking downward in root. Pinching in root and in zygomatic processes. Dryness; at root, with pain, mucus mixed with blood. Heat internally and externally. Sneezing; frequent, without coryza; frequent, with sensation of approaching coryza, which developed itself. Increased secretion of thick tenacious mucus mixed with blood. Bleeding; relieving head. Smell diminished. Smell and taste lost.

Face.—Red; and distended; and excited; and congested; F. and neck red, swollen and dry; dark red, with blue lips; brownish-red, swollen. Pale; and sunken; and covered with sweat; with blue lips. Bluish. Livid; and distorted, lurid, mouth open. Brown and turgid. Frequent changes in color. Distorted. Bloating, and neck. Dull, haggard look. Intoxicated look. Confused look in morning. Twitching; of cheeks. Trismus. Pain in upper jaw and in bone of zygoma. Chewing impeded. Risus sardonius. Lips distorted; drawn obliquely, the drawing soon extended over face, then over whole body. Blisters on lower lip; white B. on lips; painful fever B. on lip. Lips, tongue and mouth appeared thick. Margins of lips dry.

Mouth.—Teeth. T. and all mouth covered with yellowish mucus in morning, taste disgusting. Gnashing. Grinding, with protrusion of tongues, which were shaken to and fro with trembling movement. Tearing in morning, with rush of blood to head as if spitting of blood were imminent; T. in gum, < entrance of cold air. Looseness, aching and tingling. Pain in upper, with swelling of l. gum; P. as if teeth would fall out, < chewing. Jerking pain in a hollow T. and on biting on the T. sensation as if too long and loose. Painful drawing here and there in a single T., as if it would become hollow.

Tongue.—Put out slowly and with difficulty, swollen, brown and dry. White coat; or yellowish; T. coated at back. Pale, dry and rough. Dry; T. and lips dry, burning, they look like singed leather. Heavy. Numb in middle as if burnt. < talking and drawing in breath. Paralyzed. Speech confused; impaired; difficult and irrational; indistinct. Muttering inarticulate sounds. Dumb; and wild look.

Mouth in General.—A kind of scurvy. Pain as if suppurating in soft parts behind teeth, between cheeks and gums, in evening during febrile heat. Dryness; and of lips and fauces; of M. and fauces in morning, without thirst; and of fauces, with warmth; with disgusting taste, tongue coated yellow. Thick feeling. Slavering. Salivation; salt. Bloody saliva, with bloody, sweetish taste. Offensive odor; in morning on rising. Taste bitter; in morning; nauseous B.; sharp B., causing vomiting; metallic; pasty; flat, pasty.

Throat.—Hawking of loamy, blackish mucus from fauces. Spasm. Angina and coryza. Constriction (Bell.); impairing swallowing. Back part affected, he points to it as if something were sticking in it. Smarting at back. Scraping; with hoarseness; with roughness; S. and roughness of throat and tongue, with moist mouth; S. in throat and fauces, with dryness and warmth; S. in throat and palate as after too much speaking. Dryness; of fauces; of soft palate; of fauces, with tickling; with contraction so that a swallow of tea threatened to suffocate him. Pressure as from a swelling. Swallowing difficult; impossible; I. from dryness of mouth and fauces.

Stomach.—Great appetite; at noon; A. diminished; lost. Aversion to food, with white coat on tongue, pasty taste and offensive breath. Will not eat nor drink. Thirst; from sticking dryness in throat; unquenchable. No desire or relish for water. Aversion to every beverage. Eructations; with nasty taste and nausea; empty; ineffectual efforts at. Frequent hic-cough. Nausea; from external pressure on pit of stomach, > stooping; rising from abdomen at 5 A.M. Difficulty in retaining food without vomiting. Ineffectual retching. Vomiting; frequent; copious, after drinking coffee.

Inflammation. Gnawing. Pain in region of S. and umbilicus; flatulent P. in epigastrium, with distention of abdomen in evening after lying down. Pressure after drinking water; attacks of P. in pit, impeding respiration; paroxysmal pulsating P., returning and extending to r. side of chest. Distress in pit, rising suddenly towards sternum and up both sides of it. Heartburn; in afternoon. Burning; in pit; in epigastric region, rising towards chest. Constriction in pit. Weight. Oppression. Fulness in epigastric region in evening, with tension in abdomen. Sensitiveness of epigastric region to pressure; S. to touch in pit, with pain. Weakness.

Abdomen.—Distention; with necessity to breathe deeply, sour eructations and diminished stools. Hardness. Rumbling; < r. side, with gurgling. Discharge of flatus. Flatulence after a moderate supper, with frequent, but difficult emission of flatus. Spasmodic contractions of muscles as from something alive in them. Cutting; with drawing in small of back. Pinching. Gripping; with soft stool. Pinching drawing, with emission of much flatus. Drawing pain. Pain; in muscles when sitting, as if he had fallen upon them; strained P. in muscles, in morning after waking; as if it would burst, causing screams, he thrusts his fists into his sides. Sensitiveness of walls. Warmth, with frequent yawning; W., then cutting, then rumbling and gurgling as before diarrhoea.

Sticking in l. side; S. in hepatic region. Burning spot in r. side in morning. Warmth in middle and upper A., > discharge of flatus. Sensation of incarcerated flatus in l. hypochondrium after dinner. Sticking in umbilical region during inspiration; S. beneath umbilicus when walking. Gripping in umbilical region; with movings; with cutting; as from flatus; as before diarrhoea, with cutting. Pressure in umbilical region; > pressure. Hypogastric region distended and sensitive. Cutting low down; attacks of C. beneath pubes. Flatulent colic in morning on rising, a gripping pressing downward like a weight in hypogastrium, with nausea and bruised pain in back; pain in hypo-gastrium as from incarcerated flatus, with sensitiveness to pressure.

Rectum.—(Hæmorrhoidal flux.) Heaviness as if it should be evacuated. Urging, with passage of only flatus; U. as to diarrhoea. Tenesmus and burning in anus. Frequent desire; constant. Desire and frequent stools alternate with delayed stools and absence of desire. Irritation of perineum.

Stool.—Liquid, frequent, with thirst, rapid, small pulse, prostration, heat of head, pain in occiput, obscuration of vision. Diarrhoea; day and night; after eating plums; with nausea. Soft, large; and easy; S., in small pieces; S., scanty, sluggish. Pasty, early. Mushy, copious, and scanty micturition. Hard, covered with mucus, with pain in anus during its passage; H. and insufficient; H. and delayed. Constipation; for four days, with frequent pressure in umbilical region as from fulness, frequent desire without tenesmus in rectum and anus; and impeded micturition, with urging to urinate. Scanty; but easy, next day dry and sluggish. Involuntary, in bed (Phos. ac., Arn.). Frequent. Delayed, next day earlier than usual.

Urinary Organs.—Paralysis of bladder. Spasmodic contraction in region of bladder, with frequent urging. Bladder so affected as not to discharge its contents but by partial efforts. Desire, with loss of irritability of bladder, alternations of scanty and copious urine, so that there is much desire with scanty or profuse urine, also inactivity of bladder with scanty or profuse urine may at the same time be present, still much urging with scanty urine is the chief action. Urging; (frequent, with scanty urine, next days profuse). Micturition frequent and profuse; F., but amount not increased; F. at night. Dysuria. Urine profuse; and light-colored. Urine scanty; and dark. Urine yellow, turbid when passed, afterwards a whitish-gray sediment. Urine retained (Nux v.); suppressed, with dragging in bladder (Stram.).

Clinical.—Paralysis of neck of bladder, with involuntary discharge of urine.

Sexual Organs.—Excitement, erections without excited fancies. Constant erections after a meal. Impotence. Tearing drawing pain in testicles. Desire diminished; then increased; increased. Soreness at entrance of vagina, with burning. Labor-like pains in uterus before menstruation, with drawings in loins. Menses delayed; suppressed; recurred on fourteenth day.

Clinical.—Nymphomania, sometimes of the most furious character. Metrorrhagia. Puerperal spasms. Muscular spasms during labor (threatening convulsions). Retention of urine after childbirth, seemingly no power to evacuate the bladder (Op.).

Respiratory Organs.—Mucus in larynx and air-passages, making voice rough. Sensation of something in air-passages which could not be discharged by coughing. Sticking in larynx, then dry cough, with sweetish taste of blood. Dryness of larynx, then sticking. Heat in larynx. Hoarseness. Cough at night; frequent; always waking him; almost incessant cough when lying, < sitting up (Puls.); dry C. at night; dry, hacking C.; dry, tickling, hacking, seeming to come from trachea; C., with greenish expectoration; inclination to C. Dyspnoea. Respiration rattling and difficult. Stertorous respiration, as in apoplexy; S. and irregular; S. and unequal, generally with simultaneous twitching of limbs. Constant need to sigh. Short and difficult respiration.

Clinical.—Speechless from fright. Irritable cough, < lying down and at night, from elongation of the uvula or from irritable condition of the epiglottis. Irritable cough from eating, drinking, talking or singing. Whooping cough, < night on lying down.

Chest.—Sticking; in r. Soreness beneath and somewhat to l. of l. nipple, alternating with sticking, pressure and pulling. Pressure; with sticking; upon chest, with internal sticking, < inspiration; on r. side near ensiform cartilage and last true rib, with anxiety and oppression of breath; in r. lower side and on ascending steps anxiety and dyspnoea; sudden, upon sternum, above pit of stomach after eating. Oppression, causing deep inspiration; O. like shortness of breath, with violent beating of heart. Tightness, as after too great exertion in speaking or running. Squeezing in upper part. (Burning pain in l. side in evening.)

Heart.—Sticking; causing deep respiration, alternating with yawning; tearing. Soreness and tightness in præcordial region, causing sighs. Tightness in præcordial region, causing deep inspiration, which relieved. Pain. Pressure and anxiety in præcordial region, causing deep inspiration. Oppression in præcordial region. Action violent; and irregular. Action tremulous, irregular; tremulous, small, quick, waking him.

Pulse.—Rapid; and full, strong; and full, soft; and weak; and threadlike; and small; and small, indistinct; and small, intermittent, also easily compressible. Strong. Full. Slow; and tense; and small; then rapid, small and irregular, then slight fluctuations, but constantly above the normal. Irregular; and small. Intermittent. Small, intermittent; and scarcely perceptible; S. and weak. Imperceptible at wrist.

Neck.—Turned obliquely in attacks. Tetanic contraction of anterior muscles so that it was impossible to lay head on pillow. Sudden sticking in region of upper insertion of r. sterno-cleido-mastoid, > pressure of thumb. Muscles stiff and tense on bending head forward. Stiff pain in nape.

Back.—(Tearing.) Sticking in scapulae; l. Pain in loins; on stooping; on walking. Bruised pain in small of B. when sitting; in afternoon; B. pain when lying on back; when walking.

Extremities.—Trembling. Twitching, with flexions and tensions of fingers; T. of hands and feet. Convulsions; now of upper, now of lower. Distortions like chorea, the child made ill-mannered faces, between spasms eyes closed and child passive. Necessity to stretch. Sticking in joints of arms and legs. Cutting tearing in almost all joints, < motion. Drawing and tearing. Drawing pain in joints and still more in muscles near joints. Pains. Knees, feet and joints of upper limbs feel bruised and weary. Burning, prickling in hands, feet, legs, afterwards on attempting to get out of bed found her legs powerless. Stiffness as in apoplexy; tetanic S. Paralyzed sensation, < lower. Asleep.

Upper Extremities.—Tension in pectoral and dorsal muscles, at shoulder-joint, < raising arm. (Arms tremble in evening after exercise); A. convulsed; twitch at night in bed; prickling; tearing on posterior surface of l.; aching in bones of l., < posterior end of humerus. Goutlike pain in l. elbow. Pressure in bend of elbow if he holds arm bent. Sticking on flexor surface of forearm; itching S. Pain in wrists and elbows, spreading, > motion. Drawing pain about wrists and knuckles. Hands swollen; H. trembles when writing; in constant motion, she carried one, then the other to the mouth as if she had something in them which she would bite and chew; numbness; painful stupor; crawling in l. as if asleep. Thumb closed into fist during convulsions. Pain in last phalanx of r. little finger, with swelling. Drawing on inner margins of fingers on motion. Sensitiveness of second joint of r. index, with swelling.

Lower Extremities.—Gait insecure. Staggering. Weakness. Paralysis. Cramp in r. ischiatic nerve, with pain, muscles cramped if put on the stretch. Sticking in region of l. hip, S. in l. gluteal muscles, with cramplike pain. Sticking drawing in thighs, < rest. Paralytic drawing in thighs, < walking. Tensive pain transversely across middle of thighs on ascending steps, as if too short. Bruised pain in knee and ankle, with warmth. Weariness of knees on ascending steps; W., < l. when walking; W., with paralyzed feeling in lower limbs; when walking in open air, with stiffness.

Pinching in calves; sticking P. on tibia. Cramp-like pain in calves in afternoon on moving. (Bruised pain in l. tibia when walking, < evening, and the side of calf is hot, swollen and covered with red miliary rash.) Uneasiness of legs. Weariness of legs; < eating. Cutting in tarsal joints when walking. Bruised pain in ankle in afternoon. Stamps one foot after the other on the ground in the convulsions. Drawing tearing in soles, < rest, > walking, returning when sitting. Pain in feet. Sensitiveness of r. metatarsus, < walking over an uneven pavement, tension and pressure as if too full of blood, < walking in street, often making him lame, like gout. Toes spasmodically flexed as from cramp, when walking or carrying foot forward and on ascending. Pain in a corn on r. little toe.

Skin.—Rattling like parchment. On palm seemed like stiff leather, then numbened. Redness; of nates and feet; reddish cinnabar color after the heat, and as if inflamed. Pimples on elbow externally and sore pain when touched. Swelling of lips, then of nose, then over face and whole body, less about waist, with prickling and itching, skin of face red, shining and hard, eyes shut, no interval seen till below middle of body, where irregular patches appeared, some smaller ones looked like enlarged papilla, with stiffness of lips and tongue so that he spoke in a thick blundering way.

Purplish rash over whole body, < about neck and face, face swollen so that she thought it would burst, scarlet, < l. cheek. Red papillary eruption covering body, > firm pressure, but returning immediately, then vesicles on various parts, resembling varicella, they dried, leaving scales, which peeled off with portions of surrounding cuticle, no desquamation of thick epidermis of hands and feet, the mucous membrane appeared somewhat as in scarlatina, but the strawberry tongue was not so well marked. Boils; small, here and there on face. Gangrenous spots, < lower limbs, with blisters. Ulcers became bloody and painful; bruised pain in ulcer on moving the part. Itching; here and there.

Sleep.—Yawning; on reading aloud; and stretching; frequent in forenoon; frequent and deep. > after sleepiness came on, then long sleep. Sleepiness; during the day, but restless, unrefreshing sleep at night, interrupted by dreams; from noon till 3 P.M., with inability to study and weariness; at 5 P.M., with yawning; during an interesting lecture; but wide awake after a short nap; with inability to think; with restlessness; with dreaming and occasional muttering, when aroused he rubbed his hands, gaped, answered questions readily, but dozed off with a half-finished sentence on his lips. Deep sleep; and long; interrupted by frightful dreams. Sleep for three days.

Sleeplessness; on account of exhilaration (Coffea); long-continued; all night, he tried lying on one side and the other but could not get quiet, only towards day-break short naps and general sweat, < about neck; anxious S.; S., with alternate tremors and convulsive startings; S. alternates with sleepiness and sleep. Hyperæsthesia in morning like exhausted wakefulness, in afternoon sleepiness, prostration and irresolution. Starting out of sleep. Woke himself with a cry. Laughing expression during sleep. Talks of war in sleep. Suffocative snoring on inspiration. In sleep at 9 P.M. he began to weep, raised his sound arm, suddenly let it fall, then jerked the shoulder upward, then tossed head back and forth, then raised the diseased leg, then jerked the sound leg, often the sound hand was affected, when the fingers suddenly stretched out and again closed tightly, with these symptoms occasional moans. Restless sleep; with frequent waking, also with thoughts of business of the preceding day. Frequent waking as if disturbed or as if he had slept enough. Sleep disturbed, wakened by fluttering and agitation about centre of body. Great flow of ideas during partial sleep. Late falling asleep; and many dreams; long after midnight, yet woke early and felt lively and inclined to fantasies, active and strong.

Dreams; frightful; anxious; anxious, of furious cats springing at him, soon after falling asleep; heavy; lascivious, without emissions, but with excitement of genitals.

Clinical.—Sleeplessness, with uneasiness, cannot keep the bed-clothes on, difficult breathing or difficult swallowing. Very useful in the sleeplessness of children, when they twitch, cry out, tremble and wake in fright.

Fever.—In afternoon, coldness and pain, for example, in back. (Could not get warm in bed at night.) Sudden chill in the house, < bright and warm open air. General shivering, with hot face and cold hands, without thirst. Face cold and pale. Coldness along spine; in open air; C. in back, < in house; C. runs from small of back to nape; C. in back on walking around the room, then when visiting patients heat in back, < loins. Cold limbs; hands; hands and feet. Temperature of skin diminished.

Heat; general, with distended veins; general, internal; general, external, without redness; hot and dry skin; (burning of blood in vessels); H. on walking in open air, with weakness; general, in evening, with thirst, putrid taste, much mucus in mouth and lips stick together; in flushes, with warmth of face. Prolonged burning in any place on which he has laid his warm hands for a moment. Hot head; H. deep in head; with crawling; and he often put his hands to his head with loud cries. Heat of face; with redness; < lobules of ears, with redness of face and dilated pupils. Along back; then sweat, < small of back and in axillæ; H. rises into back; rush of H. at spine, < loins. H. in loins; when sitting in the room; when walking in the room; in cold open air. H. in artic- ular end of last phalanx of l. little finger, the condyle swollen, with pain, < motion, which is difficult. Feeling as if warm air were breathed on arms.

Sweat; general, < thighs and legs; on back and pit of stomach; profuse; general, profuse, clammy; cold, clammy, on palms; viscid, on arms.

Hypericum.

A tincture is made of the whole plant of Hypericum perforatum, L.

Allies.—Arnica, Calendula.

Generalities.—Starting as from fright, with rising of heat into neck. Active. Fugitive, laming pains in face, shoulders, limbs and fingers. Dull; in morning, and languid. Sensitive to cold. Disinclined to mental and physical labor. Weak; in morning on waking, and thirsty; in morning, > towards noon; in afternoon after a short walk, and distracted; at night; when walking, must walk slowly; and heavy; even to falling. Whole body affected as after recovery from disease. Feeling on waking at 4 A.M. as if she were not lying in bed, at another time as if lying very heavy in bed.

Clinical.—Tetanus. Tetanus of neck and jaw, < r. side, involving thorax and abdomen, from getting pins in the foot. The results of penetrating wounds from pointed instruments. Effects of gunshot wounds. Concussion of the brain and spine in a railroad accident, followed by a large number of symptoms, < between scapula, stiffness of extremities, nervous cough, chilliness, < damp weather, diarrhæa from slight excitement, etc., all cured by Hyper. In a general way it is indicated for the effects following injuries of nerves. In general, excessive painfulness and soreness of the affected part indicate the drug; the attacks are generally brought on by change of weather. Many cases of subacute and chronic neuritis have been apparently cured by its use.

Mind.—Talks wildly in sleep after 4 A.M., eyes distorted, red and staring, head hot, carotids throbbing, face red, puffy, pupils dilated, pulse rapid, hair of head moist, with dry heat over the rest of body, apprehensive, once she sang, then wept, screamed and gasped, after a few magnetic passes she came to herself, applying the hand to head had a soothing effect. Excited as by tea; at night. Irritable. Apprehensive. Easily frightened. Sober. Sad; at 5 P.M., in evening, and inclined to weep, which she tried to suppress. Religious thoughts, hopeful. Weakness; of memory; memory defective, can hardly arrange ideas and cannot execute her intentions, forgets what she wanted to do. Forgets people's names. Omits letters in writing. Mistakes in writing in evening.

Head.—Tearing stitches internally in morning. Pain, < dinner; (P. waking at night); as from hammering, in morning, < on vertex; P. of weight, generally on passage of a heavy storm-cloud. Pressing asunder sensation at 6 P.M., < vertex, a roaring sensation. Brain seems compressed; in evening. Feeling of something alive in brain at night in bed, or a tickling. Dulness; in morning in bed. Fulness; on rising; > breakfast; in morning, with low spirits, then stiffness in eyes as after tears, and strained pain in forehead. Confusion; in morning on waking. Feeling as if longer than natural; suddenly. Heaviness; in morning, with general weakness; in morning, > towards evening; in afternoon. Weak feeling; in evening. Vertigo; in morning; in morning on waking, with nausea; at 9 A.M.

Forehead.—Aching over brows after breakfast; A.

as if smashed, < night and lying down, < next day, but more towards vertex. Pressure on anterior and upper part of l. bone after breakfast. Tension as if drawn up. Feeling as if touched by cold hands in evening, then extending towards r. eye. Head heavy, tense between temples.

Temples.—Sticking in r.; in l. in evening; now r., now l. in evening; suddenly in l. when walking. Tearing in r. at 4 p.m., with general chill. Aching; in l. after breakfast. Tension. Throbbing.

Sticking in vertex at 7 p.m. Tearing in vertex in evening. Pain in V. in morning on waking, with roaring in ears, < l. Throbbing in V. in afternoon, with heat in head. Fulness in vertex before waking, with pain and heat in it; fugitive F. in l. half of head in morning in bed. Sticking in r. side of head on exerting eyes and head.

Shooting up l. occipital nerve in forenoon. Tearing in occiput in evening. Pain in O. on motion. Feeling in l. side of O. in evening as if violent pain, with pressure, would come on. Feeling in O. in forenoon as if bothered. Creeping feeling in r. side of O. after dinner. Falling of hair. Pain in scalp on l. side of occiput after breakfast, sometimes sharp; weakening, drawing P. in scalp over upper and anterior part of l. parietal bone. Formication on vertex. Itching at night.

Clinical.—Severe headache on vertex, as if the whole brain would burst, extending into cheeks and chin, with cramp in chin, etc.

Eyes.—Sticking through r. Tearing in r. in evening. Aching. Tension. Weariness. Pupils dilated; at 6 p.m. Lids agglutinated and tense. R. lids spasmodically closed in evening. Smarting of lids. Burning stinging in tarsi of l. lids at 9 p.m. Burning in canthi. Focal distance of vision lengthened in evening. Vision weak.

Ears.—Sticking through r. in evening. Pain at entrance to r. meatus. Drawing pain in l. towards zygoma, on touching zygoma it feels swollen. Pressure in r. in evening, with exoriated feeling in r. side of pharynx. Itching in r. meatus, > touch, but returning.

Nose.—Pain in bridge on rising. Dryness; with sneezing; of l. nostril, with crusts in it. Sneezing in morning; in a sharp fit after breakfast, with free nasal secretion. Smell very acute.

Face.—Jerking in l. zygoma in morning, with crawling. Jerking pain in cheeks. Aching; in afternoon and evening; in afternoon after eating a mulberry tart, with disturbed sleep at night, next day A. < l. side; > diet and abstinence from artificial stimulus; in brows and face, < night to distressing aching in r. half of face, < an old tooth. Pressure on malar prominences after breakfast; on malar-bone in evening. Seems puffy in evening. Tension in cheeks; in afternoon. Contraction in l. zygoma. Aching in articulations of jaws. Lips dry. Lips hot.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the face, which had lasted for two years, following the shaving off of a cold sore, was entirely cured.

Mouth.—Toothache in forenoon; in a stump of a r. upper molar at night, keeping me awake and restless, > lying on r. cheek and keeping quiet, aching next day after a glass of beer, < night; tearing, here and there; tearing in r. at 3 A.M. on waking; drawing, in all lower after midnight; jerking pain in teeth and cheeks in afternoon. Tension in teeth in forenoon.

Tongue coated white; coated dirty yellow; T. whitish-gray, < at base; foul T. on rising. Much mucus after eating. Dryness. Dry heat at 5 p.m. Taste bad, eructations. Taste of blood in throat after stool, on hawking bright red bloody expectoration.

Clinical.—Terribly inflamed tongue, resulting from a bite during an epileptic fit, inability to speak; cured in forty-eight hours.

Throat.—Hawking of tenacious mucus. Lancinations from r. submaxillary gland down neck, at 10 p.m. Raw soreness after sneezing. Feeling as if a worm were squirming in it. Rising of heat in afternoon.

Stomach.—Appetite great in morning; at noon; in evening; for pickles in evening; not great for breakfast; lost in evening; lost, with nausea and pressure as from an overloaded stomach, though he had fasted; no relish for breakfast. Aversion to eating. Speedy satiety without pressure in stomach. Tobacco is not relished. Thirst; in morning; on waking, but inability to drink on account of choking in throat and heat; with heat in mouth; for wine in afternoon.

Eructations; after breakfast; on drinking water; with pressure on chest; empty at 5 p.m. without having eaten anything; bitter; of mucus in morning, with burning and pressure in stomach. Nausea; so that he could hardly rise in morning, with pressure in precordial region; at noon, with weakness; in evening, with constant eructations of wind or mucus; in evening, with distress in stomach, retching and collection of water in mouth; on waking in night; during dinner, with sleepiness and feeling as if stomach and bowels were hot and swollen; two hours after eating, with pressure and weakness; > drinking water, with retching. Retching.

Dyspepsia after plums and pickles, with bilious diarrhoea. Indigestion at night, with flatulence, woke with distention and cracking pain in hypogastrium. > morning by diarrhoea. Distention after tea-time, with flatulence. Sticking alternately in epigastric region and r. hypochondrium. Pressure after milk; P. after a small meal; after breakfast, extending towards back; P., with burning, waking, feeling as if disordered by sour wine. Weight after meat at breakfast. Oppression in evening after a little rice. Crawling in morning, with yawning, like hunger, but without appetite on account of nausea. Feeling contracted and hot in evening. Heat in morning after rising. > drinking cold water, with discomfort; II. in epigastrium and chest. Apprehension and crawling in pit and in precordial region in evening.

Abdomen.—Distention; flatulent, also in evening; with cracking pain, waking at night; griping D., then soft stool. Hardness, with tension in r. hypochondrium. Emission of flatus. Flatulence through the day, with pressure and dragging. Cramp. Cutting and griping as from incarcerated flatus. Griping as from flatulence, then soft stool. After tea pinching in bowels, which became relaxed. Pain in evening after coffee, with diarrhoea. Feeling as if flatus would pass.

Sticking in r. hypochondrium. Dragging pain in liver at point of false ribs at 6 p.m.: weight and dragging in liver at 11.30 p.m., from walking. Tension in hypochondria. Cutting in umbilical region in afternoon, as if something were cooking therein. Pressure in r. iliac fossa, towards ring; in l. groin towards ring; on l. inguinal ring in morning.

Rectum.—Cutting warm pain all around, internal to sphincter in forenoon. Dryness in morning. Inclination to stool. Tenesmus with stool. Urging in morning in bed, then normal stool; U., with passage of small fecal masses; U., with discharge of hard masses; ineffectual U. at night.

Stool.—Painless diarrhoea, then constipation. Soft; and free, bilious; and yellow, bilious, at 4 P.M., had had a firm one after breakfast, as usual. Hard; and knotty; and large; and scanty. Free. Profuse, morning and evening. Delayed. Difficult, with tenesmus so that it caused nausea.

Urinary Organs.—Warm biting in urethra in afternoon. Biting stinging in orifice of urethra. Urging; at 2 A.M., with vertigo, almost a faintness. Frequent micturition of very yellow urine. Urine clear, wine-yellow. Urine high-colored, in morning, frothy, of peculiar sweetish odor. U. profuse at night, clear yellow, with burning. Strong-smelling U. at night. Turbid.

Sexual Organs.—Tearing at night, with desire to urinate and micturition twice. Erratic ideas; in afternoon when walking, with erection. Tension in uterine region at night, as from a short band. Leucorrhoea. Menses increased, with less trouble than usual; increased, too early, preceded by pinching in abdomen, diarrhoea, cold feet, wrenching pain over eyes, > motion, and backache, during menses sickening pain in abdomen, headache and sensitive hearing; M. fourteen days too late.

Respiratory Organs.—Bronchial catarrh from night fogs. Scraping and roughness in larynx, upper part of pharynx and nares, at night, in fog. Frequent dry, hacking cough. Expectoration of gelatinous mucus. E. of much granular white mucus. Dyspnoea in forenoon. Short breath in evening.

Clinical.—Asthmatic breathing, apparently resulting from concussion of the brain, always < before a storm. Spasmodic asthma, with sensitiveness of the spine.

Chest.—Sticking in l., among tendons of serratus magnus; S. in l. pectoral muscles; in l. in evening; in l. breast in evening; here and there beneath r. breast in evening; through chest at 5 P.M., so that she must hold the breath; here and there below r. chest at 8 P.M.; alternately in both sides; outward through sternum and l. chest, < motion; in r. pectoral muscles, extending to back around ribs; in middle (like heartburn); (in ribs and shoulder as after taking cold). Sticking cutting in r. upper half on moving about, and in afternoon on r. side and once in l. lower part. Stinging burning pain on edge of l. pectoral muscle at noon. Tightness; in evening. Oppression in evening. Pressure; at 5 P.M., with burning; on r. side from seventh rib down, after breakfast; on outer third of l. clavicle after breakfast; on nipples, with warm fornication. Anxiety in morning, like shortness of breath.

Heart and Pulse.—Heart feels in evening as if it would fall down. Palpitation. Pulse rapid; after breakfast; at 6 P.M.; after dinner; and hard.

Neck.—Swollen. Aching in nape and upper part of shoulders (trapezius); A. in r. trapezius in morning, > washing. Tension in nape, with pressure and sticking in middle of chest; T. in nape, motion of head is painful. Stiffness.

Back.—Stinging in scapulae; near edge of r. scapula and near spine, in morning. Cutting under l. scapula after dinner, with pressure in stomach; C. between S., on r. side of vertebrae. Pain in l. scapula after dinner; P. on top of r. in afternoon. Sticking in loins at noon; S. in loins, with burning pain in them and coldness in back, shoulders and arms. Aching in loins; in renal region at 4 P.M. when walking; paralytic, in loins. Squeezing in l. kidney.

Clinical.—Spinal tenderness, with paroxysms of terrible pain, screaming if approached (Arn.); in other cases, great sensitiveness of cervical vertebrae to touch, with dyspnoea, short hacking cough, etc.

Extremities.—Sticking in r. middle finger as if a knife were thrust from joint along metacarpal bone to wrist, then a similar pain in great toes. Lancing pain in l. wrist and ankle at night, and along inner border of l. foot. Sparing pain in l. hand and l. inner ankle. Flying pain in r. shoulder and l. calf. Bruised feeling in all joints. Drawing in l. buttock, under tuber ischii, and in r. wrist in morning in bed, with sticking jerking on centre of back of foot. Heaviness, felt fatigue when walking before dinner. Feeling of weakness and trembling. Paralyzed feeling in r. foot and l. arm alternating with tearing.

Upper Extremities.—Sticking in l. shoulder at 2 P.M. with every inspiration. Tearing in r. shoulder and forearm. Pain in shoulder-joints in forenoon, < l.; rheumatic drawing, in point of l. shoulder in morning. Trembling of l. arm and fingers, with cramp. Sticking in arms. Tearing in arms; in l. in morning; in evening; in l. in evening, < from elbow to fingers; at night. Tension in arms. Weakness of arms; of r. behind elbow, with pain. Numbness of l. arm at night, waking her, > friction. Pressure on r. humerus at insertion of deltoid. (Neuralgic, paralytic pain in l. upper arm.)

Tearing in elbows. Pain in r. elbow; rheumatic; P. in l. elbow, then in r. forearm. Return of weakness and strained feeling in r. elbow, < lifting. Lancing pain about head of r. radius. Pain down ulnar side of l. forearm. Starting above r. wrist on going to sleep. Jerking in tendons of l. wrist on going to sleep. Sprained pain in l. wrist on motion; S. pain between l. index and thumb at 1 P.M. Lancing pain on back of l. middle metacarpal bone in morning. Pain as if suppurating on outer margin of ball of l. hand when it lies on the table. Tension in hands. Lancing pain in joints of l. fingers; in phalanges of r. middle and little fingers. Tearing in r. thumb in evening. Cutting in fleshy ends of fingers. Rheumatic pain in last joint of l. little F., with swelling and tension.

Lower Extremities.—Reeling as from vertigo. Cramp in lower part of r. gluteal muscle at 5 P.M., then flashing pain on back of l. toes. Shooting down great sciatic nerve, on back of pelvis, at night in bed. Pain running down l. median nerve in evening, then P. in front of thigh; P. on centre of front of l. thigh in afternoon; in inner condyle of r. thigh in morning in bed; intermittent, in front of l. thigh at noon. Strained feeling in r. ham at night after a walk. Bruised pain in l. thigh on walking in afternoon, muscles supplied by anterior crural nerve stiff and sore, coming and going for days. L. thigh sore and lame.

Knee.—Cramp. Sticking in l. Thigh in r.; on outside, then pressure on upper part of r. scapula. Pain in r. in morning; P. in outer and upper part, in an outward and upward direction, as from straining a tendon, in morning on walking. Tingling in knees and legs as from weariness.

Leg.—Starting of l. on going to sleep. Cramp in l. on going to sleep; (frequent C. in calves at night, r., then l.). Sudden shooting over front of l., in periotem; sticking in inside of r. calf at 4 p.m. when walking. Tearing in r. leg and knee; T. from r. calf through foot at 6.30 p.m. Diductive pains down nerves of r. in afternoon. Drawing in r. calf; in r. tendo-achillis at breakfast; painful in r. tibialis. Flashes of weakening drawing pain all over front of l. in afternoon when walking and sitting. Pressure on l. calf as with a blunt point. Biting on l. shin; in front in evening. Tendency to tingling, < l. Heaviness. Numbness; of l.; of l. in evening.

L. ankle liable to wrench. Cramp in l. foot; at night on going to sleep. Tension in soles like a cramp. Sticking in bone in inner side of r. foot on ascending steps, as if sprained; sprained or dislocated feeling in l. foot on rising from stool at 3 p.m. Twinges of pain along outer border of l. foot after dinner. Drawing on inner border of l. foot in forenoon; cramp-like D. as if feet would become dead when lying. Tingling in feet; disposition to T., in bed. Feet feel numb and sticking.

Toes.—Jerking of l. at night on falling asleep. Swelling and biting in toes and heels. Sticking in ball of great; in fold of skin internal to nail of r. great; in fourth in evening; frequent biting S. in r. Stinging biting in attacks in back of r. in morning. Biting on a r. Gnawing in r., then pressure and aching in middle of l. thigh, about where sartorius crosses.

Skin.—Pimple on r. side of back; on r. hip, sore under friction of clothing; on middle of r. sternomastoid muscle, such as had appeared before on chest. Biting eruption like nettle-rash, on hands. Cluster of itching, psora-like vesicles on root of l. thumb in forenoon, gone at night. (Ulcerating pain in a vesicle on thigh.) Biting in l. fingers in evening; on back of hand in evening; on hands, nettle-rash on backs of hands and between fingers. Fuzzy feeling in feet, with sticking in them. Crawling in hands and feet, with fuzzy feeling in morning; C. in r. breast up to median line. Itching in evening on undressing, < sacral region, the skin was rough and seemed full of pimples; (l. on forehead, vertex and hip); (l. on cheeks, < beard).

Sleep.—Yawning. Sleepy; at 6 p.m.; (in afternoon after eating). Heavy, exhausting sleep every night, with sweat in morning. Waking late. Lies on back at night and has emissions. Waking early, with hot sweat and uneasiness. Falls asleep late, sleep restless, wakes early. Restless sleep; and lay a good deal on back, kept jerking head backward; it seemed as if she lay very heavy; with frightful dreams, starting up and apprehension. Felt as if under the influence of tea, went to bed with brain excited, sleep unsound, dreams vivid and active, next morning found myself lying on back and digging head backward into pillow.

Dreams.—With sweat in morning. Distressing. Many; and waking after each. Vivid, unremembered. Confused. Busy; and confused; and indistinctly remembered. Awful, as that God was far from me, repudiated me, etc. Anxious, as if something important were left undone. Horrid, sexual; horrid, starting of legs when falling asleep, then convulsive shocks preventing sleep, erethic state of nervous system, erotic ideas and dreams. Of Mormons, horses, fights and great action, found myself lying on my back in morning, dreaming some desperate horror and half awake, saying "Why should I fear, the Lord is around and about me." Exhausting, of climbing mountains, pressure of business, etc. Of journeys, hunting, etc., indistinctly remembered.

Fever.—General chill, with nausea. General C. at 4 p.m. General shivering in evening; till midnight, when sitting, < moving about, with expectation of mucus, nausea, > drinking cold water; S. extending from calves over thighs; (in back, extending across shoulders). Cold feet; soles; l. leg when sitting, with numbness of it. General dry heat; in evening, with anxiety. Internal heat in morning, without thirst, with sweat, preventing sleep, but coldness if he threw off the covering. Heat in face in afternoon; in face, with smarting. Hot ears on going to bed. Heat in head and feet from 3 to 5 a.m., with restlessness and desire for cool places. Sweat in morning; S. on slight exertion.

Ignatia.

A tincture (or trituration) is made of the seeds of Strychnos Ignatia, Lindl.

General Effects.—It contains a large amount of strychnia, and most of its toxic properties are due to that alkaloid, but the other elements contained in it determine marked peculiarities, especially extreme sensitiveness of the nerves, symptoms of hysteria, neuralgia and a peculiar form of fever.

Allies.—Nux vom., Cham., Silicea, Lach., Gels., Zinc., Puls., Lycopod., Staph.

Generalities.—Trembling; with twitching and spasms. Twitching in various parts of muscles, here and there after lying down. Convulsions; so that he could not stand. < jaws, causing risus sardonicus, without other symptoms. Frequent change of position at night, lies now here, now there. Constant motion of body, looks as if in a doze, it is irksome to look or to open mouth to talk, respiration light and slow.

Tearing in r. arm and on r. side of head from cold air. Deeply sticking, burning pain in various parts. Pains as if beaten in joints of neck, back and shoulders at night when lying on either side, > lying on back. Tingling pain. < head. Pain here and there in spots on touch, as, for example, on ribs. Pains renewed after dinner, in evening after lying down, and in morning after waking. Crawling in all bones. Weight, congestion and orgasm of blood in whole body in morning on waking, with melancholy.

Weariness in morning on waking; in afternoon, overpowering sleep at 2 p.m., unrefreshed by two hours' sleep; in evening; on walking, it seems as if his breath would fail, is quibish at pit of stomach, and then coughs; from slight exertion; after dinner. < 2 to 4 p.m., with sleepiness (after stool), with yawning; as from weakness about pit of stomach, with nausea and necessity to lie down; so that he had no desire to dress himself and go out, has no pleasure in anything, but prefers to lie. Unwillingness to move, shirking of work. Stiffness of knee, ankle, thigh and sacrum in morning on rising; S. of knees and loins, motion causes pain. Faintness. Insensibility. Aggravation from coffee (Cham., Nux v.) and smoking tobacco (Nux v., Puls., Staph.).

Clinical.—The general characteristic conditions of the Ign. patient are extremely important, since they are almost always unexpected in character, for example, if the patient has fever he is not thirsty and wants to be covered, if he is cold he wants to be uncovered, the headache in the forehead is relieved by stooping, the irritation to cough increases with coughing; this "contrariness" is a general characteristic of Ign., both mentally and physically. Extreme sensitiveness to pain (Cham.). General tendency to faintness and debility, with nervous prostration and excitability. Numerous phases of hysteria and of neuralgias in various parts of the body, spasms in children from teething or from worms, or from fright. Chorea especially in children who have been frightened. Epilepsy originally caused by fright. Hysterical paralysis. In all the phases of hysteria there is a changeable mood, often flushing of one or the other cheek (Cham.), tendency to scream, or to tear, or to bite, or to cry.

Mind.—Fancies that he cannot proceed, that he cannot walk; F. at night, which fatigue the mind. Weeping. Howls, cries and is beside herself on account of trifles; cries aloud if one hesitates to do what she wishes, remonstrates with her or tries to persuade her, or if others wish something different from what she wishes. Cries aloud if improper things are refused. Walks about perplexed and stupid. Unreasonable complaints about noise. Sensitiveness, delicate conscientiousness. Inconstant, impatient, irresolute, quarrelsome, in attacks. Changeable mood, alternations of joking, merry mood, with lachrymose mood. Anger at slight blame or contradiction, and this makes him angry with himself; A. at slight contradiction. Ill humor; from headache; towards evening, and discontented, obstinate; and absorbed in himself. Thinks of vexatious things contrary to his will.

Anxiety; as if he had committed a crime; preventing talking; so that he cannot express himself clearly. Tendency to be frightened (Stram.). Dread of trifles, < things coming near him. Fear of thieves on waking after midnight; F. that she will have an ulcer in her stomach. No self-confidence. Sad towards evening; S., earnest, cannot be induced to talk or be cheerful, with flat, watery taste to food and little appetite. Indifference to everything. Boldness. Busy, restless; after exerting brain, < morning, unable to do anything as rapidly as he wishes, whereupon anxious behavior, mistakes in writing and talking and awkward actions; hurrying, with dulness of sense and rush of blood to face. Merry, jesting. Thoughts difficult to fix; from affection of head. Fixed idea, which he pursues in his thoughts or talks about with earnestness and exhaustiveness; fixed ideas in evening before and after lying down, as, for example, of music. Memory weak.

Clinical.—Melancholia, the result of grief, sits with a vacant stare. Many mental symptoms following depressing emotions, especially grief, such as sighing, despondency, hysterical laughing or crying.

Head.—Inclined forward. Laid upon table. Stitches through head. Tearing after midnight when lying on side, > lying on back. Aching; in morning, < eating (Nux v.); in morning, > rising; in afternoon and evening, with heaviness; at 2 P.M., < above eyes; with every beat of arteries; < stooping; < talking; < reading and paying strict attention to a speaker; extending into l. eye, when eyes burn and water, lids swollen, Meibomian glands secrete much mucus; extending below orbits and into cheeks; < in r. side of forehead, extending into r. eye, sensation as if ball would be pressed out, burning in eyes, lachrymation and much mucus; external, head sore to touch. Jerking pain on ascending; J. pain < opening eyes. Throbbing pain.

Paroxysmal pain as from pressure of something hard on surface of brain, this and all other headaches > coffee (Cham.). Aching after midday nap, as if there were too much brain or blood in head, < reading and writing. Pain as if head would burst from talking or speaking loud, > sitting still, reading and writing. Pain as if bruised; in brain in morning on waking, changing on rising to pain as if a nerve of a tooth were crushed, then changing to a similar pain in sacrum, the headache always renewed on thinking. Sudden pressure now in one place, now in another in evening, and at night, next morning he was unrefreshed, the P. increased to real pain, which lasted till 3 P.M.

Confusion; in morning on waking, with discomfort of head; in morning on waking, lasting till after dinner, continued next day, changed to pain in forehead and eyes, so that movement of lids and eyeballs was painful, pain < ascending steps or any violent exertion; < thinking and speaking, with pain in r. side, < occiput; then pain in vertex, then extending into l. eye and whole head; as before coryza; like intoxication, at times becoming a pain in forehead, < r. half, so that thought was difficult. Heaviness; in morning on waking; as if filled with blood, with tearing in occiput, > lying on back, especially by bending head forward, < sitting erect. Seems too full of blood, nose internally sensitive to air, as before nosebled. Hollow feeling. Intoxication; from beer; as from brandy, with burning of eyes. Vertigo; all day till 10 P.M., with sticking in head; with staggering; changing to pain in r. half of occiput.

Forehead.—Sticking, < above brows; S., with pain in r. side of occiput; extending outward, and in temples. Tearing in F. and behind l. ear, > lying on back, < raising head, with hot, red cheeks and hot hands. Pain; from towards noon till 2.30 P.M., with pressure in eyes; till sleep in evening, and around orbits; < sunlight; beneath r. bone; above r. brow; in r. half, involving r. eye, which was sensitive to light, < in eye by moving it, > towards evening; extending to different places in head; in r. half, afterwards extending to l. side; in r. side, extending to l., then over whole head; extending to different places in head, < evening, > night's sleep; extending downward on sides; from 2 P.M. till evening, extending at times more to r., at times more towards l. eyeball, < motion of body; in sinciput, extending into nasal cavities, and every ten minutes sensation as before violent coryza, when after ten minutes the nose was better the sensation extended to other parts of head, and so alternated; P. above root of nose, compelling him to bend head forward, then nausea; drawing P. above r. orbit at root of nose, renewed by stooping low; cramplike P. above root of nose, in region of inner canthus. Stupefying intermittent pressure beneath l. eminence. Digging beneath r. eminence and on r. side of frontal bone. Dulness in sinciput in forenoon, amounting at times to real pain. Throbbing above r. brow.

Sticking deep in r. temple. Pain in temples; < r.; with deep sleep; externally, extending across orbits, and when touched pain as if beaten; as if pressed outward; as if pressed outward, in morning when lying on sides, > lying on back. Contractive pain in vertex, extending to forehead, where it remained till 4 P.M. Pain in r. side in forenoon; P. in one half of brain on walking in open air, < talking or reflecting. Pain in occiput and r. side; in r. half of O. all day, > night's sleep; above mastoid process in afternoon, at times involving ear, when hearing was blunted; in O. as if bone were pressed inward; throbbing P. in one side of O. (Hair falls out.)

Clinical.—The headache of Ign. is usually sharp, confined to one point, as if some piercing instrument, like a nail, were being driven into the head. Supraorbital neuralgia, boring pain in a small spot. The headaches sometimes present the unexpected condition of being relieved by stooping. Hydrocephalus from sudden metastasis from the bowels to the brain during dentition, with sudden pallor, delirium, rolling the head, difficult swallowing, convulsions of the eyes and lids.

Eyes.—Inflammation of l. Staring in front of him without thought. (Sticking in r.). Pressure in and above them in morning on waking; P. outward in r. as if ball were protruding. Itching internally. Irritability of r., with increased mucus in both. Pressure in balls, < looking at the light, with pressure above eyes. Itching in ball at inner canthus. Pupils contracted; then dilated; dilated; cannot be dilated. Pressure beneath l. brow.

Lids.—Agglutinated in morning, with purulent mucus, on opening eyes the light is blinding; A. in morning, pressing in eyes as from sand, on opening lids sticking in eyes. Sticking tearing in external canthus, lids agglutinated, lachrymation in forenoon. Sensation of a particle in l. external canthus, which at times presses on tissues. Pain above and behind upper; in inner surface of upper in evening, as if too dry; like a soreness in external canthus on closing eye. Biting in external canthi; gnawing B. on margins of lids in morning when reading. Weariness as if they would close.

Vision.—Dim in r. after midday nap; in one, as from tears, in evening when reading. On reading, the letters to which the eyes were directed became invisible, but those near were more distinct than ever, it seemed as if the middle of a word were marked with chalk while the beginning and end became more distinct. Zigzag and serpentine white flickering (Lach.), at one side of field after dinner; a circle of white, glittering, flickering zigzags about point of vision, and letters at which one directed the eye invisible, but those at the side are distinct. Objects seem to move. Cannot endure candle-light.

Clinical.—Astenopia, with spasms of the lids and neuralgic pains about the eyes. It has been used for inflammatory affections of the eyes, especially in intense photophobia and nervous excitement.

Ears.—Sticking. Pain in middle. (Throbbing.) Itching in auditory canal. Ringing. Roaring. Intolerance of noise. Music causes an unusual and agreeable sensation. Insensibility to music.

Nose.—Ulceration of nostrils; sensation of U. and soreness in inner angles. Tickling. Crawling itching in nostrils. Stoppage of one nostril as by a leaf, not like dry catarrh; (inability to draw air through N. on closing mouth). Trickling from N. then coryza. Floent coryza. Dry catarrh. (Bleeding.)

Face.—Redness from slightest contradiction. Sticking in zygomata in front of l. ear; in cheeks. Pressure in zygomata before sleep; intermittent paralytic, in l. zygomatic process; P. beneath rami of jaw as if flesh beneath jaw were pressed downward. Jaws closed, impeding speech. Pain in joint of jaw in morning when lying. Lips cracked and bleeding. Enlarged gland on inner surface of lower lip, with sore pain; and suppuration. Ulceration of inner surface of lower lip; U. of one corner of lips. Sticking in lips, < moving them; S. in lower; in lower on touching a hair of beard in that place. Inner surface of lower lip painful as if raw.

Clinical.—Distortion of the facial muscles whenever the patient attempts to speak. Neuralgia of the face.

Mouth.—Clawing digging in incisors in evening. Toothache near end of a meal, < after eating; T. and looseness of teeth; T. as if nerves of molars were crushed; sore T. in anterior molars, < reading; T. in morning as if loose; as if an incisor were numb and loose, < touch of tongue. Inner side of gum painful as if numb, as if burnt. Glands under tongue excited, inflamed. Sticking in tip of tongue; in frænum. Tearing in tip of tongue as if burnt or sore in morning after waking. Sharp feeling in tip as if sore. Biting on forepart from tobacco-smoke, with pain in incisors. He easily bites one side of posterior part of T. when talking or chewing. Burning of T. Front half of T. numb when talking, when eating it feels burnt or sore.

Easily bites inside of cheek near orifice of salivary duct when chewing (Nit. ac.). Painful swelling of orifice of salivary duct. Inner surface covered with offensive-smelling mucus in morning on waking. Sticking in palate, extending to inner ear. Inner surface sore. Palate feels excoriated (as after frequent swallowing of saliva). Palate feels as if swollen or covered with tenacious mucus. Constantly full of mucus. Avoids opening M. and speaking. Salivation; in forenoon; in forenoon, with nausea; white, frothy; frequent spitting of saliva; spitting of frothy S. all day; flow of S. from mouth in sleep.

Taste.—Sour, saliva has a sour taste. Bitter, then sour, with sour eructations; B. to tobacco-smoke; to beer; B. and putrid to various articles, < beer (Puls.). Nauseous, as after fasting, with appetite and relish for food and drink. As from a disordered stomach; flat, watery, morning and noon after eating. Insipid, as if he had eaten chalk. Flat to beer, as if spoiled. When eating, drinking and smoking, the good taste disappears as soon as the actual need is supplied, or it changes to an unpleasant taste, and one cannot take any more, though there is a kind of hunger and thirst.

Throat.—Pain in submaxillary glands; after walking in open air; drawing pain; drawing, extending into jaws, then swelling of glands; in anterior, as if compressed. Pain in glands beneath angles of jaws on motion of throat. Pain in throat on touch as if glands were swollen. Tonsils turgescent. Sticking when not swallowing, and even somewhat when swallowing (compare Lycopod.), the more he swallows the more it disappears, entirely > swallowing anything solid; S. when not swallowing, when swallowing sensation as if one swallowed over a bone, causing jerking; low down when not swallowing; in parotid gland when not swallowing; > when swallowing. Pain as if raw and sore; when swallowing. Soreness like a lump, which is painful as if excoriated when swallowing. Pressure. Constriction in pit. causing cough. Food seems to stick high up in evening before sleep and in morning. Difficult swallowing of food and drink. Inability to swallow bread, it seemed too dry.

Esophagus.—Choking constriction in middle in evening, from a plug, < when not swallowing. Sensation as if a plug were sticking in it when not swallowing. Stick- ing low down on swallowing, > continuing to swallow, returning when not swallowing. After dinner it seemed as if food stuck above cardiac orifice of stomach. Crawling.

Clinical.—Inflamed tonsils, ulcerations, with sticking pains (the general indication for Ign. in sore throat, aside from the mental state of the patient, is the relief of the throat symptoms from swallowing). Diphtheric sore throat, with sensation of a plug and with constant efforts to swallow. Some alarming cases of diphtheria are reported cured by this drug.

Stomach.—Appetite great; at 11 A.M.; at 11 A.M., but diminished when the time for eating came; ravenous, at 11 A.M., with at times nausea; A. good, but when he attempted to eat he was satiated. Desire for fruit; D. for acid things. Appetite diminished. Satiety; so that he could eat nothing in evening if he smoked in afternoon. Appetite lost; and desire for tobacco and drink, with frequent salivation. Aversion to tobacco-smoking; though it has not an unpleasant taste; as if he had smoked enough; A. to milk; to boiled milk after his necessity is satisfied; to meat, and desire for acid fruit, cranberries; to warm food and meat, desires only bread, butter and cheese; to fruit, it does not agree with him; to acids; to wine. Thirst, with chill; T. in afternoon and evening; at night.

Eructions, empty; bitter E. in forenoon; of bitter fluid; of food, and the taste of milk taken in morning cannot be removed from mouth for a long time; tasting of food; sour; musty, mouldy in evening; (ineffectual, in morning in bed, causing pain in orifice of stomach and in œsophagus to pharynx). Hiccough from tobacco-smoking (Puls., Staphs.); H. after eating and drinking; in evening after drinking. Nausea; towards noon; in forenoon, with loss of appetite; from smoking, in an old smoker. Ineffectual retching. Efforts to vomit, > eating.

Sticking; in pit. Slow sticking jerking pain in epigastric region and pit of stomach. Pinching in pit and r. hypochondrium. Cramplike pain. Spasmodic flatulent pain in epigastrium in evening on falling asleep and in morning on waking. Strained pain in epigastrium. Pain in pit on pressure as if sore internally. Pain extending to spleen, then to spine, changing to sticking, which extended into chest, then sticking and burning in region of spleen. Pressure; in pit; in epigastric region; in sides of epigastrium or in hypochondria; intermittent, in region of pit; alternating with pain in cœliac region, as after Camphor. Drawing as if walls would be distended, at times with pressure. Burning; B., pressive and drawing pains, and in liver and spleen. Coldness. Feeling of flabbiness, S. and intestines hang down relaxed. Peculiar weakness in pit and epigastric region. Sensation of fasting, with physical exhaustion (Sep.); feeling of F., with flat taste and weakness of limbs. Fulness alternating with emptiness, with the latter ravenous hunger. Digestion weak.

Clinical.—Indigestion, with aversion to the ordinary diet and longing for a great variety of indigestible articles; regurgitation of food, hiccough, empty retching, weak, empty feeling, has to eat at night even, especially attended with sighing; gastric symptoms generally > eating (Lach., Zinc.). Gastralgia < pressure.

Abdomen.—Distention, < umbilical region; D. after eating; flatulent D. after eating; flatulent D., with itching in neck of bladder, which causes sexual desire; anxious D. after eating in evening; pinching D.

after eating, only on standing, < walking, > sitting quietly. Tense in evening after eating, mouth dry and bitter, one cheek red. Rumbling; and noises; in afternoon; after eating; then ineffectual urging to stool in forenoon, but in afternoon several normal stools. Gurgling. Discharge of flatus; copious, at night, even in sleep; after eating; unsatisfactory, abrupt, offensive, not without exertion of abdominal muscles. Wanderings. Flatulence which presses upon bladder.

Cutting sticking after eating, then meteorismus. Cutting; in evening, then diarrhœa; then diarrhœa twice. Gripping; in open air, as before diarrhœa. (Tearing.) Pinching when walking in open air; P. after the least fruit, < standing and walking, > sitting. Flatulent pain at night; F. pain, with sticking extending to chest; F. pain here and there in evening in bed and always on waking at night. Bruised pain in morning in bed. Drawing two days before menstruation, with gripping in it, pressure in rectum, nausea, weakness in pit of stomach and pallor of face. Oppression, with cutting. Throbbing. Anxiety arising from A. after breakfast.

Gripping in side, then sticking. Cutting in r. Contractive pain from sides beneath ribs. Pressure in l. Distention of hypochondria, < in sides, pit of stomach and small of back, inability to breathe on account of tension and fulness under ribs, with anxiety and necessity to loosen clothes (Lyc.). Intermittent pain in region of spleen and pit of stomach. Constriction in hypochondria in morning, as in constipation, with one-sided pain as if nail were pressed into brain.

Upper.—Pain as if intestines would burst, like cardi-algia, extending into throat, in morning when lying on side, > lying on back. Pain as if something pressed towards chest at 6 P.M. Tensive pain as if walls were pushed downward and diaphragm upward, pain < in region of spleen, whence it extended towards spine, alternately worse in different places, the pain returned at 3 P.M., < towards evening, when it extended into chest, where it at times became burning, which was worse in spine in region of cœliac ganglion, these attacks transiently > eruptions of air.

Umbilicus.—Sticking beneath U.; above and to l. of U. Cutting in region. Gripping in region, whereupon the pain, consisting of pinching and sticking, extended into l. side of chest. Flatulent colic above U. alternated with salivation. Pressure in region, then distention of abdomen; painful P. near l. side; painful P. near r. side, < deep breathing and voluntary distention of abdomen, > retracting U., with rumbling in abdomen. Sensation of something alive.

Hypogastrium.—Sticking in l. Cutting and contracting pains. Sticking jerking pain in l. groin in evening in bed. Pinching in region of cœcum, < walking in open air. Flatulent pain in morning, causing sticking, which extended into chest and sides. Pressure; painful in l. Sensation in l. groin as if a hernia would protrude.

Clinical.—Excessive flatulence, especially in hysterical subjects (compare Arg. nit., Zinc.).

Rectum.—Prolapsus from moderate exertion at stool (Lyc., Pod.). Spasmodic tension all day. Frequent cutting deep in (Sil.). Sharp pain in evening after lying down; S. P. deep in after stool, as from incarcerated flatus (as after a hurried stool). Pain as from blind piles, contraction and soreness (Sil., Lyc.), after stool; P. as from piles, constrictive and smarting, as from touching a sore spot. Crawling as from thread-worms (Sulph.); near anus. Itching in evening in bed; I. in perineum, < walking.

Urging, with feeling as after a purgative, then several natural stools during the day; U. more in upper intestines (Nux v.), stool soft and insufficient, the U. lasts long after stool; anxious U., inability to evacuate faeces without danger of eversion and prolapsus of rectum (Nux v.); sudden U., then difficult, insufficient, tenacious, clay-colored, not hard stool; frequent, almost ineffectual U., with colic, tenesmus and tendency to prolapsus; ineffectual U.; ineffectual U. in evening, < middle abdomen, with protrusion of rectum (Nux v.); ineffectual U., < eating, with desire in upper intestines (Nux v.).

Anus.—Blind piles, with pressure and soreness in A. and rectum, painful when sitting and standing (Æsc. hip.), less when walking, < after taking fresh air. Swelling of margin, as from a distended vein. Itching pimple, which causes pressure when sitting. Hamorrhoidal symptoms, with soft stool. Thread-worms crawl out. (Discharge of blood, with itching of perineum and anus.) Coarse sticking; extending deep into rectum. Sore pain without reference to stool (Æsc. hip.); pain as from blind piles after a soft stool, with sore pain; after mental exertion. Contraction evenings, painful when walking, < standing, not painful when sitting, with insipid salivation. Painless contraction. Drawing downward towards anus. Crawling burning. Itching.

Clinical.—Fissures of the anus, without constipation, with acute pain shooting upward. Prolapsus ani, with sharp stabbing pains shooting upward. With the symptoms of the rectum and anus there is frequently spasmodic contraction of the anus, < after stool. Bleeding hemorrhoids, with the characteristic shooting pains. Violent itching of the anus caused by swellings, which produce most violent nervous symptoms, even convulsions in children.

Stool.—Diarrhœa; frequent. Thin, involuntary, with flatus; T., frequent, small. Soft; after eating. Hard, then thin. Slimy. Acid. Copious. Large and difficult; and yellowish-white. Yellowish-white. Frequent.

Clinical.—Diarrhœa from fright or emotional excitement, especially from grief, with great urging. Diarrhœa simulating dysentery, with tenesmus and great nervous excitement. Like Nux v., it is often indicated when there is almost constant desire for stool in the abdomen, but no stool follows. Painless diarrhœa, with much moving of flatus in the bowels, first brought on in a child by fright, the diarrhœa had lasted for several years and had resisted all other treatment (compare Arg. nit., Gels., etc.). Alterations of diarrhœa and constipation.

Urinary Organs.—Scraping pain in region of neck of bladder, < walking and eating, < when urinating. Sharp pressure upon bladder after supper, as from incarcerated flatus. Discharge of much prostatic fluid while urging at stool. Stitches in urethra when walking; S. in forepart after dinner, ending in tearing. Scraping in middle of urethra in evening in bed, with scratching and scratching tearing; scraping tearing in middle in evening when sitting. Biting burning in forepart of urethra when urinating. Crawling in urethra, < urinating, with burning, sometimes with stitching. Itching in forepart of urethra. Frequent micturition; of watery urine (Gels.). Urine burning in morning; (B. and dark). Urine lemon-colored, with white sediment. Urine turbid.

Clinical.—The urine is very much increased, not scanty with hysterical symptoms. Retention of urine after cohabitation. Incontinence of urine in women and children.

Sexual Organs.—Itching in bed about genitalia and in penis, < wratching. Penis retracted after urinating, so that it is very small. Paroxysms of pulling tearing pain in root of penis, < walking, < leaning against sacrum when standing. (Shooting into penis at every shock of cough, like sudden forcing of blood.) (Cramplike pain in penis.) Biting of gland, with itching. Urging and pressure over a large surface about penis (mons veneris), with violent erection, ending with emission. Erection; always on going to stool.

Retraction of prepuce. Erection on margin of prepuce, with ulcerative pain and itching. Sore pain on frenum of prepuce as if excoriated. Biting itching pain on inner surface of prepuce. Swelling of scrotum in evening. Itching sticking as from numberless fleas on scrotum, < rest. Sweat on scrotum. Strangulated sensation in testicles in evening in bed. Pressure in testicles. Desire lost. Impotency, with weakness of hips; I., with lasciviousness; I., with lascivious fancies, sudden sexual excitement, weakness of genitals and external heat of body. Irresistible desire for emission, with relaxed penis. Profuse emission at night.

Leucorrhœa. Constriction of uterus like labor-pains, then purulent corrosive leucorrhœa. Menstruation promoted; delayed; scanty, black, offensive; discharged in clots. Lasciviousness, with prominence of clitoris, weakness and relaxation of rest of genitals and cool temperature of body.

Clinical.—Morning sickness of pregnancy, with weak, sinking feeling in stomach, < eating. Labor-like pains during pregnancy brought on by emotional excitement. Nervous spasms amounting almost to convulsions during labor. Suppression of menses from grief, with the peculiar mental symptoms of the drug. Dysmenorrhœa, with great tearing down, menses dark. Neuralgia of the ovaries. Menorrhagia in a woman of 62 years, brought on by sudden grief.

Respiratory Organs.—Tearing in larynx, < swallowing, breathing and coughing. Scratching in upper part of larynx in evening, as from heart-burn. Protrusion in larynx to locking cough in evening when lying down (Sang., Sil.), not cough, suppressing cough. Inability to talk loud. Desire to cough in evening on falling asleep. Short, frequent, dry cough, as from feather dust in pit of throat, not cough, allowing himself to cough, tearing evening; short for a time C. in evening from sudden interruption of breathing in trachea above pit of throat; hollow dry C. in morning on waking. Difficult expectoration from chest; E. from chest, yellow, of the odor and taste of old tarrah. Inspiration impeded as from a lead in chest, expiration is just so much easier. Inspiration is slow, expiration rapid; I. slow, he must draw it from deep in abdomen. Short respiration alternates with long, light with violent. Breath fails when walking, and if he stands still, he is attacked by cough.

Clinical.—Nervous spasms of the glottis. Hysterical spasm. Nervous, irritable cough, which becomes extremely annoying and almost constant, caused by tickling in the trachea, not < sleeping, but < the more he coughs. Cough sympathetic, with remote affections especially of the uterus or ovaries, or from worms.

Chest.—Milk disappears from breasts. Catarrh, air-passages full of mucus. S. in evening; I. in morning; no breathing; in side in region of last rib, when no breathing, rhythmical with pulse, in nipple on sleep inspiration, with flatulent movements in abdomen. Pain at both sides of sternum in morning as if ribs rubbed against each other. Pain in sternum as if beaten, even caused by touch. Pressure; in l., then r., then in ankle; in l., then sticking in r.; behind sternum in evening; in middle of sternum after eating; > deep breathing; in region of middle of sternum, as with a sharp instrument. Tensive pain across on standing upright; T. pain in forepart if when sitting he straightens up. Oppression; after midnight, impeding respiration; and oppressed respiration; with pressure in pit of stomach, < inspiration and suddenly changing to sticking in pit of stomach. Fulness. Anxiety, with pressure waking him, he must often breathe deeply and can only sleep after an hour. Throbbing in r.

Heart and Pulse.—Sticking in precordial region on expiration. Palpitation; after noonday nap; during dinner; when in deep thought. Pulse accelerated; and small; slow and small in afternoon.

Neck.—Swollen glands. Sticking in nape. Sticking tearing in nape. Tearing in nape as if strained on moving neck. Sharp pain in cervical vertebrae in morning in bed. Painful pressure upon neck above l. shoulder. Stiffness of nape (Sil.).

Back.—Sticking in spine when walking in open air; S. near l. side of spine where true ribs are divided from false; in tip of scapula in morning. Tearing deep in middle of spine, towards l. side. Pain in scapula, < moving arm or letting it hang down. Sticking in sacrum. Pain in small of B. like a clawing, sticking, drawing and working altogether. Drawing pain in l. loin. Pain in sacrum in morning when lying on back; bruised P. in sacrum in morning when lying on back; (tensive P. in sacrum and chest on standing erect). Throbbing in sacrum.

Extremities.—Jerks on falling asleep (Cham.). Tonic spasm of all, like a stiffness. Isolated twitches. Sticking about or above joints; burning S. in external prominent parts of joints, with itching. Sprained pain in shoulder, hip and knee-joints. Pressure as with a hard substance, painful as a bruise, here and there in periosteum of middle of shafts of bones, < evening, by lying on side, > lying on back. Weakness; of arms and legs. Crawling, asleep sensation.

Upper Extremities.—Gripping, pulling, kneading, in part drawing pain in shoulder-joint during rest, on motion becoming a sticking. Dislocated pain in shoulder; in joint on moving arm. Pain in shoulder-joint on bending arm back as after violent exertion or as if bruised; rheumatic or bruised pain in joint, when walking in open air. Twitching of deltoid. Drawing pain in arms. Pain in shafts of bones and joints of arm on which he lies in morning in bed, > lying on other side; in shafts of bones and joints of arm on which he does not lie in evening, > lying on painful side; in biceps on turning arm inward. Arm of side upon which he lies falls asleep. Painful drawing above r. elbow. Pulsating drawing extending from upper arm to fingers. Bruised pain in head of humerus of side upon which he lies in morning in bed, > lying on other side or upon back; B. pain in head of l. H. in evening when lying on r. side, > lying on l. side; B. pain in muscles of humerus, if arm hangs down or is raised.

Jerking in forearm as if a mouse were crawling under skin in one part of muscles, in evening after lying down. Tearing in wrist and fingers; on wrist in morning after waking. Paralytic pain on l. wrist as if sprained. Drawing in r. carpal bones. Stiffness of r. wrist and feeling as if asleep. Yellow hands. Sticking on touching a hair on hand. Cramp extending to middle finger when exerting fingers, > stroking it. Spasmodic motion back and forth of index in evening after lying down. Sticking in last joint of thumb. Tearing in joint of thumb as if sprained, in morning when slumbering. Sprained pain in metacarpal phalanx of index on motion.

Lower Extremities.—Totters when walking, falls easily and stumbles over slightest obstacles. Paralytic stiffness and jerking. Sticking in hip-joint; and knee, from 4 to 8 A.M. when walking, on moving leg. Bruised pain in posterior muscles of thigh when sitting. Intermittent deep internal pressure above l. hip; violent deep P. in middle of l. thigh. Thigh and leg fall asleep when sitting after eating. Knees crack. Knee drawn upward, preventing walking, > sitting. Knees give way from weakness. Sticking on inner side beneath l. knee. Knee stiff after ascending steps.

Cramp in calf in morning in bed on bending leg, > stretching or pressing it; C. in calf when sitting at dinner; when walking, > standing and rest. Sticking in tibia. Tearing in backs of legs, < tendo-achillis and its muscles, as if the parts would be cut off, < standing after walking. Grasping beating, tearing in anterior tibial muscles, < motion. Pain in tibia when walking. Paralytic pain in whole l. leg from walking, continuing when sitting. Painful drawing in whole l. leg in bed before sleep. Tension in calves on stretching legs or walking; T. in leg extending above knee, with heaviness of limb. Heaviness of legs on walking in open air, > in the room, with anxiety, then depression of spirits. Leg falls asleep when sitting after midday meal; as far as above knee in evening when sitting.

Sticking beneath malleoli on motion. Pressure in l. ankle (with internal tickling), > tremulous motion of foot; intermittent P. above r. external malleolus. Sprained pain in ankle in morning on walking. (Ankles stiff.) Attacks of cramp in muscles of foot and under toes when sitting. Sticking in heel in morning; intermittent S. on inner margin of foot; burning S. in side of foot, or a burning cutting. Tearing on back of foot. Itching jerking pain internally in ball of heel, < morning in bed. Bruised pain in ball of heel, or rather in periosteum of astragalus. Internal soreness in ball of heel, or rather in periosteum of os calcis, when walking. Burning pain in a corn when sitting; B. pain in a corn on pressure upon it; tearing burning P. in bone of heel in morning on waking. Soles sensitive when walking. Drawing in r. foot. Burning itching pain in a spot on back of foot during rest. Itching burning in heel and other parts of foot. Feet weak; at twilight, and mood quiet. Feet heavy; one foot H. Feet stiff in morning. Crawling in bones of feet, not like a going to sleep. Deadness (as if asleep) of ball of heel when walking. Pain in upper part of toes from pressure of shoe.

Cinfeal.—Sciatica recurring during cold weather, with intense coldness and shivering, < night, the pain is intermittent, sometimes throbbing. Violent attacks of sciatica, of a boring, tearing character, lasting about an hour, always preceded by coldness, < night, has to get up and walk about.

Skin.—Pimples about inflamed eye; painful on touch, beneath lower lip. Boil on inner part of thigh.

Burning in ulcer. Sticking here and there like fleabites, < in bed; itching S. in thumb-joint. Outer skin and periosteum painful. Crawling in feet; sticking C. in feet (in calves) after midnight, preventing his remaining in bed. Itching; in umbilicus; wrist, elbow and neck; here and there at night, > scratching; here and there if heated from walking in open air.

Sleep.—Yawning even when eating; frequent excessive Y.; frequent, after sleep; frequent, interrupted by rigidity of chest; as if jaw would be dislocated in morning and < after midday nap; convulsive, so that eyes overflow with water, in evening before sleep and in morning after rising. Sleepiness; after sad news; when sitting, but if he lies down he is half awake; so that he went to bed at 9 o'clock and slept soundly all night, yet next morning and all day tired and apathetic. Falls asleep when reading. Deep sleep. Midday nap sound, but not refreshing; sleep sound, but not refreshing, on waking he does not believe that he has slept.

Sleeplessness. Unable to fall asleep, then waking without cause. Light sleep, so that he hears everything. Twitching through whole body on falling asleep; of limbs (Cham.). Shuddering on falling asleep on account of monstrous fantasies, which are still present after waking. Restless sleep interrupted by dreams; R., with internal restlessness and heat. Moves his mouth in sleep as if eating; muscles of open mouth moved in all directions and hands jerked inward. Suddenly starts up in moans, with piteous expression of face, stamps, kicks, face and hands pale and cold. Whimpering, prattling and tossing about. Talking as if weeping and complaining, inspiration snoring, mouth wide open, sometimes one eye, sometimes the other partly open. Snoring inspiration. Short inspiration, with slow expiration. Alternations of all kinds of respiration, short and slow, deep and light, intermitting and snoring. Groaning, grunting and sighing. Sleeps upon back, with palm under occiput; in morning he is lying with the outspread hand under occiput or on neck. Wakes with a friendly expression; W. with a morose look; stands up suddenly on waking, and talks disconnectedly.

Dreams in slumber before midnight, with heat. D. all night of one thing; and the idea does not leave him on waking. Frightful; wakes from, in morning; as, for example, of drowning, waking from afternoon nap. Of being buried alive. That he had fallen into water and cried. Sad, he wakes weeping. Full of disappointments. With reflections and deliberations. Full of learned excitations and scientific discussions. D. towards morning, in which thought is exerted. (D. that she was not standing firmly, that she bent herself double in order not to fall, therewith general sweat.)

Fever.—Coldness; at sunset; with one-sided headache; < posterior parts, > immediately in warm room or by stove (Nux mos., Sabad., Men.). Dread of open air. Shivering in morning on waking from light sleep; S. in afternoon, with colic, then weakness, sleep and heat of body; S. in evening, with red face (Ferr., Cham.); (after eating, at night anxiety and sweat); over body, with heat of hands and anxiety developing into weeping; constant, during apyrexia; on thighs and forearms, with gooseflesh, then on cheeks; of face and arms, with chattering of teeth and gooseflesh. Skin sensitive to draughts, feeling in abdomen as if he would take cold. Cold nose, with hot knees (with tickling itching of one knee). Chill in back and over arms; in arms when lying on back, < upper arms, then heat and redness of cheeks, heat of hands and feet, without thirst; over upper arms, with heat of ears; of hands and feet, with heat of face; about knees, which are not cold externally; of feet; of feet and as far as above knees; of feet in evening when eating, with distention of abdomen and hoarseness.

Heat; in morning in bed, with thirst, but no wish to be uncovered; in morning in bed, with palpitation; from 2 till 5 A.M. when fully awake, < on hands and feet, without thirst, sweat or feeling of dryness; at 3 A.M. on waking, with vomiting of food that had been eaten in evening; in afternoon, without thirst (Asaf., Nux mos., Nux vom.), with dry sensation in skin, but sweat on face; at night; < during sleep. External H., with redness, without internal H.; external H., then rapid respiration; E., at 2 A.M. so that he sighs. Flushing. Feeling of orgasm of blood in evening, preventing sleep. Feeling as if sweat would break out; in forenoon, with partial sweat; suddenly, with partial sweat. Anxious H. at night, < lying on side, with sweat about nose, most heat in hands and feet, which he wishes to keep covered, with cold thighs, palpitation, short breath and lascivious dreams. External warmth is intolerable, then rapid respiration. Intermittent fever, with thirst during chill, but not during heat. H. in head; H. mounts to head, without thirst; external. H. in nape or one side of neck; of one ear and one cheek, with redness (Cham., Mosch.); of feet.

Sweat; in morning if he falls asleep a second time, if he then rises he is so weary that he would rather lie down again; cold; on inner surface of hands; on inner surfaces of hands and fingers; profuse on hands in evening.

Clinical.—A valuable remedy for certain types of intermittent fever, with the peculiar contrary aspects of the case, namely, thirst during the chill, but not during the fever; during the fever the patient desires to be covered; frequently there are the peculiar mental symptoms of the drug, or the onset of the paroxysms is characterized by the neuralgias of the head or extremities, which may serve to indicate it (Cedron).

Iodoform.

For internal use it is triturated with sugar of milk.

Compare Iodum.

Generalities.—Trembling. Constant convulsive movements. Neuralgic pains in various parts; N. pains flying all over him at times. Sharp pains all over body; in nerves of l. arm and back; pains sharply define the course of nerves. Pains < thinking of them; < touch; renewed when riding in cars; renewed in bed, in r. side of head, r. shoulder, r. arm, hands, fingers, thigh, leg, foot, toes. Strange feeling. Thinks he has taken a bad cold. Faintness. Sensations of impending death. Loss of power came on so imperceptibly that general paralysis was feared, a dreamy state, in a few days complete stupor and loss of power over sphincters, they could be aroused by great effort to take a little nourishment, but soon lapsed into unconsciousness. Paralysis of sphincters. Amelioration after sleep.

Mind.—Elated. Excitement interrupted by broken sleep; E., melancholia, hallucinations of sight and hearing. Apathetic, amnesia for recent events, nightly restlessness, did not recognize persons, weak-minded. Forgetful.

Head.—Stitching. Aching; on waking. Heaviness on attempting to rise; H., with aching in vertex; H. at night as if he could not raise it from the pillow, H. next morning after waking, with intermittent pain in skull and < l. side. Confusion, with nausea. Feeling as if he had been intoxicated the previous day. Sudden giddiness. Frontal pain; < descending stairs, with shooting in r. ear; neuralgic, < stooping. Stitching in temples. Neuralgic pains in nerves of temples, < r., extending to behind ears. Pain in temples as from a weight. Sticking in r. side of head. Itching of occiput.

Eyes.—Bloodshot and painful. Smarting and burning; S. and stinging. Bruised feeling in r. in morning. Sensitive to light. Objects appear tessellated and red, > rising. Vision double.

Ears.—Sticking in r.; S., then fulness. Feeling dry and feverish; and full. Neuralgic pain in l. Dull hearing.

Nose.—Dryness, and he complains that he cannot get any discharge from it; with fulness of membrane and constant snuffing. Constant sensation as if smelling fumes of iodine. Smell as of decaying leaves in a swamp.

Face.—Pain in malar-bones; in zygomatic muscles, < motion and bending forward. Drawing in malar-bones, with pressing. Stiffness of zygomatic muscles. Aching in r. lower jaw, increasing to pain as from a weight. Lips and throat dry; lips dry and stinging.

Mouth and Throat.—Sharp pain in upper teeth. Aching in sound teeth; in decayed, < upper and r., coming and going quickly; toothache in afternoon quickly changing to temples. Teeth feel sore and too long. Metallic taste. Stitching in r. side of throat. Dryness of throat, with bitter taste; D., with rawness on swallowing.

Stomach and Abdomen.—Nausea; at times. Rumbling in A. Scaphoid A. Flatulent colic. Cutting in A. Warmth in A. and rectum, with nausea and desire for stool. R. inguinal region, sharp pain; cutting, with desire for stool; sore pain.

Stool and Urine.—Desire for a liquid stool. Stool delayed; with feeling as if anus were drawn up into rectum. Urine very yellow; and smelling like saffron.

Respiratory Organs.—Aphonic disturbance of voice. Cough from dryness of throat; C. on going to bed, with wheezing from mucus in throat. Smothering sensation. Respiration irregular.

Chest.—Sticking in r., extending to lower angle of scapula. Pain in l.; sharp, in r.; ulcerative, in l. breast, to r. of nipple at night, then grasping at base of heart, next day aching in l. breast. Soreness on taking a long breath; S. in lungs; sore pain in apex of r. lung, on breathing sensation as if two ulcerated surfaces were in contact. Feeling in lungs as from a heavy cold. Feeling as if a weight rested on C., preventing free expansion.

Heart and Pulse.—Sticking through heart. Pulse rapid.

Neck and Back.—Contraction of muscles of neck. Bruised sensation in nape. Spine sore, does not wish it touched. Pain along spine; along r. side of dorsal vertebrae; in lumbar region, with weakness and straining. Sharp pain in angle of scapula.

Extremities.—Pain in l. arm and l. leg, < lower half of tibia and fibula, then extending into foot. Bruised feeling in l. arm and leg, as the pain increases the muscles feel ulcerated. Sticking in l. shoulder; and arm. Pain in median nerve of l. arm; P. in l. humerus, with bruised pain in muscles around the bone. Rheumatic pain in r. arm; < using it. Bruised pain in l. arm in morning on touch. Pain in l. elbow; in nerves of l. hand; sharp, in nerves of l. hand.

Lower Extremities.—Pain along l. crural nerve; P. in inside of knees; neuralgic, in l. knee. Weakness of knees on ascending stairs; W. < standing, with pain. Rheumatic pain in gastrocnemii; rheumatism of flexor muscles of legs. Legs weak. Cutting in l. ankle on walking in open air. Sticking in r. instep. Pain in l. foot, < walking.

Sleep.—Sleepiness; intermittent, ending in coma. Wakefulness. Jerks and shocks in nerves when trying to sleep. Restless sleep, full of dreams; R., < after 2 A.M. Sound sleep till 1.30 A.M., then sudden waking, restlessness and sleeplessness till 4.30, then partially conscious sleep for an hour and a half, then heavy sleep and difficult arousing. Confused dreams, of accidents, etc.

Fever.—Susceptible to hot weather. Heat at night, keeps laying off covers. Sweats easily from motion. Sweat on head.

Iodum.

A tincture is made by dissolving 1 part in 99 parts of alcohol.

General Effects.—It affects nearly every organ and tissue in the body. Acute catarrh of all mucous membranes, especially eyes and nose. Salivation; enlargement of all lymphatic glands, followed by atrophy, especially of testicles and mammae, and general emaciation. Polyuria, nephritis and albuminuria. Skin eruptions. Neuralgia, even convulsions and paralysis. It is particularly important to observe that it controls inflammations (with high temperature) of many, if not all, parenchymatous structures, particularly the lungs, when the indications permit its exhibition.

Allies.—(Bromine), Sulph., Arsen., Merc., Nit. ac., Nat. mur., Bry.

Generalities.—Emaciation (Nat. m., Sul.) ending in marasmus; of glandular tissues (breasts, testicles, thyroid gland). Dropsy. Edematous swelling of whole body (Arsen.). Sitting in bed, and restless. Indolent in all movements. A kind of catalepsy. Convulsive movements; of arms and legs, and head drawn backward; almost convulsed when the pains are intense. Cramps of arms, back and legs, with jerkings of them. Trembling; < arms from least movement, and out of breath. Restless moving about, with sleeplessness, so that she was taken to be insane. Hysteria. Nervous condition; an internal agitation, as from bad news or remorse after a quarrel, with inability to fix attention when reading or drawing, weeping and intolerance of opposition.

Rheumatic pains; in nape and upper arms; in neck, arms and body. Rush of blood to head and heart. General sensibility increased. Takes cold easily. Restlessness (Arsen.); in morning, with anxiety. Aversion to sitting still. Weakness (Arsen.); in afternoon, after a short walk, with feeling of fasting, but no hunger; after dinner, with discomfort; during menses; during the passing away of menses; after restless sleep; with craving for something reviving, temporarily > a cordial or a little nourishment, but delay in eating causes malaise, drawings and often pain in stomach; physical and mental; so that sweat breaks out on talking. Collapse, with sunken face. Inability to stand. Faintness. Paralysis of limbs, then of organs of deglutition and respiration.

Clinical.—Cases requiring Iod., when not febrile, are apt to have great appetite, but rapid emaciation. It is indicated in numerous wasting diseases in scrofulous patients. Mollities ossium. Lymphatic tumors in various parts.

Mind.—Clouded; Delirium. Excitement, with heaviness, indolence and ill humor; E. in afternoon, sleepiness in evening. Illusions of sensation. Sat all day with her head leaning on her hand, and hardly answered. Irritability; during digestion, from noon till evening, with sensitiveness and with oppression of throat and chest, as if about to weep. Anger. Sad; and taking no interest in anything, unable to fix her thoughts. Anxiety; and depression, busy with the present rather than the future. Fright; and vexation. Fear that from every trifle some misfortune would arise. Apprehension after manual labor, > sitting; A. if he does not eat every three or four hours, yet he dares not eat too much. Aversion to work. Lively and talkative. Sensitive; and easily moved to tears. Mild, scrupulous and timid, with blunted sensibilities. Thoughts fixed; troublesome and unreasonable mental impressions easily developed into fixed ideas. Sluggish, but inclined to mechanical labor. It is difficult to collect his senses, and he is irresolute. It constantly seems as if he ought to remember something, but he knows not what, he remembers nothing. Feels unfitted for anything. Stupor.

Clinical.—The mental condition of the Iod. patient is generally one of despondency, but during fevers and wasting diseases we often meet with excessive irritability and sensitiveness, much like that found under Sul.

Head.—Sticking at times. Aching; in forenoon; in warm air when driving far or walking rapidly; as from a band (Sulph.); sudden, < r. temple; intermittent, < l. side towards forehead. Confusion, with aversion to earnest work; C. at 9 A.M., changing at 10 to pain, > noon; with pressure in r. half of forehead; making thought difficult; becoming an intermittent pain, < temples, > evening. Heaviness. Feeling as if not right. Throbbing on every motion. Congestion, then pain. Vertigo; in morning, with weakness; on rising; on quick change of place, < quick rising from a seat; on rising from bed and walking, then unconsciousness; tending forward.

Forehead.—Tearing above l. eye and in temple; sharp pain in l. upper part. Pain; in a spot above root of nose (Ign.); suborbital; above eyes towards evening; < noise and talk, and in vertex; > sweat; with confusion of head, then violent hunger, > dinner; externally, as from suppuration. Bruised feeling in brain, with powerless and paralyzed feeling in whole body, < arms, necessity to lie down, eructations, sensitiveness of scalp to touch, next day confusion of head and painfulness of brain on motion. Throbbing.

Tearing in l., then r. temple. Stitches in vertex. Pain in vertex; on l. side. Tearing in r. side above forehead. Drawing pain in l. side, extending into teeth; D. pain in l. upper part, extending into temple. Sticking in occiput, > lying down. Pain in occiput; before 11 A.M., > rest, < motion of body, changing at 4 P.M. to confusion of head, > 7 P.M.; in under surface; in r., with occasional pain in forehead; biting sore P. in O. above r. ear, extending backward in skin. Hair falls out.

Clinical.—Persistent headaches, with vertigo on active exertion, or congestive headaches with vertigo in old people. Tubercular meningitis.

Eyes.—Red; and glistening, protruding. Whites dirty yellow, with injected vessels. Sparkling and restless. Dull-looking; and fixed, surrounded by black rings. Inflamed; from taking cold; with tension above r. Surrounded by black rings. Brownish discoloration under E. Sometimes fixed, sometimes wandering. Sunken and wild-looking. Ophthalmia. Jerking. Cutting stitches in l. extending towards external canthus. Tearing about r., < beneath it; T. around r., passing from inner canthus to joint of jaw. Pain; in l. and inner canthus; as from sand. Weak feeling as if sunken, < afternoon. Lachrymation. Sticking in upper part of l. ball. Pupils dilated. Lids red and swollen, and nightly agglutination; swelling and violet color of upper; leucoplegmatic S. R. lid spasmodically looped into festoons. Twitching back and forth of lower lid. Itching in canthi.

Vision.—Disturbed. Dim; and manifold. Saw nothing but the white paper when reading print, when at the end of a phrase the beginning of it was visible. Flickering; of stitches when sewing. Dark rings float down at sides and near visual axis. Of sparks. Fiery curved rays shoot sideways from visual axis, near point of vision, especially upward. By day objects seem illuminated by a flaming fiery red and almost blinding light, and artificial light in evening was intolerable.

Clinical.—A valuable remedy in inflammation of the iris, especially if of syphilitic origin.

Ears.—Tearing in fossa beneath r. and in neighboring parts of neck. Aching. Ringing. Roaring. Noises in r. as in a mill. Sensitiveness to noise. Difficult hearing; required some time to understand what was said to him.

Clinical.—Chronic deafness, with adhesions in the middle ear or granular enlargement; deafness, with chronic catarrh of the Eustachian tube, inflammation of the tonsils, roaring in ears, etc.

Nose.—Scab in r. nostril. More open than usual; wide open in morning and dry, almost all day stopped, smell almost lost. Itching sticking in forepart of septum. Pain in lower part on blowing, without coryza. Stoppage. Sneezing; without catarrh, whereby nasal mucus is thrown far out. Increased mucus; with stoppage, but without catarrh. Blowing out of much yellow mucus (Puls.). Coryza; stopped, < evening, becoming fluent in open air, with much expectoration; fluent, like water; fluent, with much sneezing; sudden, violent, with lachrymation, pain in eyes, then violent cough and nausea, difficult, almost wheezing respiration, feeling as if larynx were constricted externally. Bleeding on blowing.

Clinical.—A very valuable remedy in acute fluent coryza, the discharge is hot, the nose becomes sore, headache at root of nose and over frontal sinuses, the attack is attended with fever, sneezing, etc. (compare Ars.). In subacute and chronic catarrhs, discharge fetid, nose swollen and painful (Nat. m., Aur.).

Face.—Red; in evening. Reddish-purple. Yellow. Pale; and sunken; and drawn; with blue lines; pale, yellowish or greenish. Wan. Collapsed. Animated; and excited, anxious. Melancholy expression. Peculiar liar change in expression. Twitching. Lips bluish, with swelling of superficial veins. Sealing of lips. Trembling of lips as from cold. Lips painful, dry. Contraction of jaw, causing her to clench teeth. Pain in r. upper jaw.

Mouth.—Teeth were covered with mucus in morning, became yellow and were easily blunted by vegetable acids (Nit. ac.). Chattering of T. Toothache; now here, now there, in molars; pinching, in r. molars; pain in teeth and gum as from looseness, when eating; drawing pain in r. T., extending towards ear, with sticking; cutting drawing in roots or gum of lower incisors, now l., now r., with sore sensation. Gums bleed (Merc.); red G.; G. pale, swollen, painful; swollen and inflamed, causing general toothache; ulcer on G. of a hollow lower molar, with swelling of cheek to beneath eye (Merc.).

Tongue dry; in evening, white at edges, brown in centre; and hard, dark, coating apparently imbedded into mucous membrane. Tongue furred. Biting constriction of tongue, changing to burning. Stammering; and sounds other than intended, from incomplete control of tongue.

Full of mucus in morning fasting. Aphthous eruption. Elevations on inside of r. cheek, with inflammation in vicinity, sore pain on touch, afterwards sticking and cutting as if ulcerated; < opening mouth widely when eating or reading aloud. Irritation, and in throat. Pressure in l. half of palate. Soreness of M. and throat, with much tenacious mucus. Dryness, and of throat; causing dysphagia; walls seemed dry, but were not. Salivation (Merc.); after paralysis set in; with nausea. Offensive odor (Merc.), even in morning after rinsing it. Taste bitter; in afternoon, sweet plums tasted B.; nothing had its natural flavor but sweets and eggs, wine tasted acrid, astringent, bitter, acid; T. salt; nauseous, sweetish (Merc.); sweet, on tip of tongue.

Throat.—Post-mortem showed a thin, firm, easily detached, orange-yellow patch on uvula and arch of palate, confluent with one on posterior wall of pharynx, it extended, increasing in thickness, into œsophagus and trachea, the membrane under this was hyperæmic, epiglottis covered with a thick false membrane, mucous membrane eroded, dark, with many swollen pustules, submucous membrane œdematous, but relaxed, ventriculi Morgagni closed by swelling and covered with a similar false membrane, mucous membrane here and there very red, a similar membrane on vocal chords and part of larynx beneath, bronchi inflamed and full of tenacious mucus, mucous membrane swollen, injected and showing points of mucus, acute emphysema between lobules of lungs, œsophagus covered with a false membrane, orange-colored, firm and detachable, with phlegmonous purulent spots in submucous connective tissue.

Redness of fauces; with denuded sensation in it, tip of tongue and part of lip. Swelling of uvula, with elongation and much spitting. Increased mucus and rough voice. Fauces relaxed and sensitive. Choking as from shreds of skin in various parts, with salivation and smarting, the latter temporarily > jelly or arrow-root. Tearing above larynx. Scraping; in pharynx as after eating hips. Biting in tonsils, < l., with twinging. Pain low down; P. in r. side, > swallowing. Constriction; in goitre. Fulness. Becomes thick when speaking loud. Heaviness extending into chest, making respiration difficult, then cough, with expectoration of mucus. Tickling crawling in region of larynx in morning in bed. Dryness. Burning; from sea-air; to stomach, with dryness; in fauces, extending to abdomen, < stomach, with pain; sharp, in pharynx, extending into trachea, with rawness; acute, in pharynx, with scraping in larynx and irritation in nostrils as from sulphurous gas; in uvula, as if consumed; biting, extending into air-passages. Swallowing difficult; S. of water impeded, as if throat were constricted and weak. Smarting in œsophagus, with biting, heat, constriction and roughness.

Clinical.—Acute inflammation of the tonsils, with hoarse cough and deafness, the Eustachian tube seems to be especially involved. Ulceration of the throat and mouth, syphilitic or mercurial, with swollen glands, aggravation from warmth. Very rarely indicated in any stage of diphtheria. A large number of cases of goitre have been cured by the internal administration of Iod., and many cases of goitre have been dissipated and followed by alarming pulmonary symptoms from the external application to the goitre. Valuable in mumps.

Stomach.—Ravenous hunger. Appetite great; at noon and in evening; with thirst; diminished; lost; lost, or else canine hunger. Aversion to food. Thirst; day and night; in morning; in evening; unquenchable. Eructations; empty; constant, empty. Nausea; in morning after rising, with cramp in stomach, < night; in pit of stomach, > eating, with heaviness in stomach; by paroxysms, with heartburn and feeling of disordered stomach. Retching; often, then sudden vomiting, the V. < drinking or moving about, then short relief, but nausea in the intervals. Vomiting; and inability to retain food or drink; < eating; and liquid stools; and yellowish liquid stools containing flocculi; incessant, with diarrhœa; serous; forcible; violent, with spasm.

Permanent contraction. Movings in S. and small intestines, with warmth and cutting; M. extending over abdomen, with cutting, once these M. extended into chest, which was constricted, then towards pubis, into bladder and towards testicles. Frequent cramp; drawing, in pit, extending into upper abdomen. Sticking in pit; upper border. Lacerating pains in epigastric region; < pressure. Cutting in region. Gnawing in upper part. Pain; in morning, > eructations; in epigastric region; in E. region, extending into abdomen, back and œsophagus; excruciating P. Painful to touch; in epigastrum. Burning pain, and in umbilical region. Heartburn. Heat; in region; in pit; epigastrum; in epigastric region, spreading over body. Heaving in epigastric region, extending towards surface, with sensation as if he would tremble or perspire. Weight in epigastric region, with universal tremors. Digestion difficult; irregular; indigestion after slightest food, with headache that often makes him senseless, without loss of appetite, with necessity to avoid relaxing, bitter or resolvent medicines, inability to drink sweet milk.

Abdomen.—Distention. Meteorism. Rumbling. Movements; gradually becoming painful, then frequent emissions of flatus of the odor of sulphuretted hydrogen and frequent desire for stool. Frequent emission of flatus. Place of a hernia inflamed from the usual truss. Heaving, with heat and determination to surface of body as if general sweat would break out. Increased peristaltic action, with frequent emissions of air and feces; increased P. action, changing to tense feeling. Pinching. Almost cutting. Pain; < along colon; or in attachments of diaphragm; extending to spine. Heat; in morning. Irritability, < region of stomach, beginning as warmth, then cutting. Uneasiness, < night. Straining downward, then urging in rectum to evacuate gas and feces, then relief.

Distention of upper A. lasting from dinner through digestion, with sharp pressure here and there as from flatulence. Pain between pit of stomach and umbilicus. Irritability in region of stomach and in small intestines, less a pain than a moving about, then tense sensation. Inflammation of liver, with pain, hardness, swelling, constant fever, dry tongue, restlessness, little sleep, small, rapid pulse, and on rising from bed faintness. L. hypochondrium hard and acutely painful to pressure (Ceanothus). Sticking in hepatic region; in forepart beneath r. ribs on inspiration, often recurring on deep breathing; in l. hypochondrium, as from incarcerated flatus. Pinching in hepatic region, with cutting. Pressure in r. hypochondrium; with pain on touch; sore P. in l. hypochondrium.

Incarceration of flatus in l. side. Sticking in sides. Cutting in umbilical region. Rumbling in site of an inguinal hernia in morning on inspiration. Sticking in l. side of hypogastrium; jerking S. above arch of pubis. Burning tearing near l. hip; bubbling tearing in r. side close to penis. Pain on r. side close to penis; P. near r. hip; in r. groin; in hypogastrium after each morning stool, which was rather hard than soft; paroxysmal, in H., < sitting, > stretching.

Clinical.—Enlargement of the spleen, with salivation. Disease of the pancreas, with salivation, vomiting and profuse watery or frothy stools; the cases reported are both acute and chronic; in the chronic form there is constipation; in some of these cases there is a depressed, irritable mood. Numerous cases of mesenteric disease, glandular enlargement, emaciation, irregular stool, enormous appetite. Jaundice, with cirrhotic liver, clay-colored stools, tenderness over the region of the liver, especially after the abuse of mercury.

Rectum and Anus.—Itching, painful hæmorrhoids; pain in H. before and after stool. Smarting in R. after a natural stool. Burning pain in R. Burning in A. in evening (Sul.); B. after stool. Itching in A.; as from thread-worms; frequent, with smarting and itching. Pressure in R. in evening in bed. Frequent urging and frequent liquid stools; ineffectual U., easy stool only after drinking cold milk.

Stool.—Liquid, reddish-brown, with colic and urging; of watery, frothy, whitish mucus, with griping about umbilicus and pressure on vertex. Diarrhœa; excessive; profuse, bloody; mucous, bloody, scanty; in violent attacks, with violent colic. Thin and copious. Soft; frequent; whitish; and easy; and frequent, then burning in anus. Pasty. Constipation. Hard and difficult. Difficult; and infrequent. Containing much clear blood. Of peculiar odor and early. Frequent; and copious.

Clinical.—Chronic exhausting diarrhœa, stools frothy, whitish. Pasty diarrhœa from disease of the pancreas.

Urinary Organs.—Sticking in orifice of urethra. Itching smarting in orifice of U. Cutting in orifice when not urinating. Constant desire; and constant dribbling. Polyuria. Involuntary micturition. Frequent and copious M.; F. and scanty each time; F., with urging; F., urine copious, bright yellow, watery. Urine suppressed. Urine dark, turbid, at times almost milky; dark yellowish-green. Urine thick, with dark sediment; and copious. Increased U.

Scanty and red U.; S., dark reddish-brown, with strong odor of iodine; S. and light-colored. Biting corroding U. U. contained albumen; contained iodine.

U. amber-colored, sp. gr. 1038, acid, flocculent sediment, amorphous, acetic or nitric acid caused a copious amorphous precipitate, soluble in excess of nitric acid and from heat, on subsequent cooling a precipitate of yellow halberds of uric acid mixed with granular matter, no precipitate on boiling, no albumen, much urea, good reaction of iodine combined, not free, and of indican, next day sp. gr. 1025.

Clinical.—Diabetes, with canine hunger. Incontinence of urine in old people, with senile degeneration of the prostate.

Sexual Organs.—Irritability. Acute drawings in forepart of penis. Frequent tickling of glans; T. on and beneath glans. Itching of glans. Cutting drawing in corona glandis. Priapism. Erections without lasciviousness; violent and continual E.; feeble E.; slow E. Burning pain in a spot on r. side of scrotum. Testicles diminished in size and power; D. in size and consistency, with impotency; double its former size; one retracted to abdomen; vigorous activity; frequent dragging towards T. from 10 A.M. till evening. Desire increased (in men). Semen increased. Emissions, with dreams after falling asleep again, then weakness.

Activity of uterus and hæmorrhage from it. A woman became barren. Menstruation irregular; too early; too late, with vertigo and palpitation; retained; M. that was present ceased.

Clinical.—Enlargement of testicles, with pain extending to abdomen. Many cases of hydrocele have been cured by the internal administration of the drug. Amenorrhœa. Uterine hæmorrhage after every stool, with atrophy of the mamma, aggravation from warmth. Chronic menorrhagia. Chronic excoriating leucorrhœa, with atrophy of the mamma, goitre, induration of the cervix, etc. Chronic inflammation of the ovaries, with thick, yellow, burning leucorrhœa. Many cases of ovarian cysts. Chronic metritis, with intense pain, nervousness, constant urging to urinate, heat and dryness of the vagina, etc. Cancer of the uterus, with profuse hæmorrhages, corrosive yellow discharge, ravenous appetite, etc. A characteristic is a wedge-like pain from r. ovary to uterus.

Respiratory Organs.—Edema of glottis. Increased mucus in trachea. Sticking in larynx; on swallowing. Pain in larynx, with desire to cough; frequent P. in region of L. and bilingual glands, with stitches; pressure in region of L., not exactly painful, extending to pharynx, causing swollen sensation in the parts, even in tonsils. Crawling in larynx in morning in bed, > hawking and coughing, with tickling and salivation. Smarting in region of trachea, with frequent lacerations. Rawness in air-passages in morning on rising, with dryness. Irritation of bronchi. Suffocative feeling. Hoarse; in morning. A fatiguing whisper. Voice deep; V. broken; tremulous, jerky; weak. Aponia, want of vibration of cough.

Cough in evening; irritation to C. from tickling in throat; croupy C.; dry C.; dry, deep; C., with effort, so that she almost vomits, > expectoration of mucus; short, from tickling in throat, also with thick yellow expectoration and good appetite, but sickly expression. Copious bloody expectoration. Spitting of white frothy mucus, sometimes of a ropy fluid. Respiration difficult, especially inspiration; R. tight. Dyspnoea in afternoon; sudden D., with pain on deep inspiration, rapid and violent beating of heart, and rapid, small pulse. Oppressed respiration on slightest exertion, with palpitation and vertigo. Rapid R. Short R.; < slightest exertion. Breath lost. Inarticulate sighing.

Clinical.—In croup, inflammation of the larynx and trachea, with hard croupy cough, difficult breathing and fever indicate the drug. A large number of cases of "membranous" croup have been cured by the lower dilutions; our experience is that it is indicated in cases in the early stage with more or less fever, with dry skin and a very dry cough, great difficulty in respiration; it follows closely after Acon.; if Acon. has been given and the patient is not improving, or if Acon. has relieved only the restlessness and extreme anxiety but not the cough, the patient is still dry and hot and the cough is still croupy, then give Iod.; it is, however, rarely useful after febrile excitement has disappeared or if the patient perspires freely; (this stage, together with the attacks of suffocating cough, indicates Brom. instead of Iod.). In catarrhal laryngitis the larynx is sore to touch, the cough is dry and croupy, and there is an excoiating watery discharge from the nose (compare with Allium cepa). Whooping cough, with emaciation and with enormous appetite. Chronic laryngeal catarrh, with dry croupy cough, sawing respiration, soreness of the upper part of the chest.

Chest.—Atrophy of breasts. Milk diminished. Rattling of mucus, with rawness beneath sternum and heaviness on chest. Pleurisy. Sticking in middle of r. on expiration; S. in r. near pit of stomach on inspiration. Tearing in r. parietes. Burning sticking tension in parietes. Sore pain in sides when breathing and on touch. Sudden pain in r., < inspiration. Pressure deep in r.; P., > open air and hot sunlight, with sticking and frequent dry, rough cough; P. on C., at times changing to pain and often causing deep dry cough. Constriction; then pressure, in afternoon sticking. Tightness in middle, sometimes l., sometimes r. side, with pressure and burning. Heaviness, causing difficult respiration.

Clinical.—It is one of our most valuable remedies for pneumonia; in these cases it must be carefully differentiated on the one side from Acon. and on the other from Bry.; it lacks the anxiety of Acon. and the sticking pains of Bry., but it has the high fever of each; like Bry. it is indicated when hepatization has taken place (contraindicating Acon.) and the cough is dry; it was formerly supposed that left-sided pneumonia indicated Iod., but it is now known that it is equally useful in pneumonia of either side; it is particularly useful in the pneumonia of scrofulous subjects, especially in pneumonia at the apex. Phthisis pulmonaris, with rough voice, dry cough and night-sweats.

Heart.—Sounds weak, apex beat and pulse could not be felt. Præcordial anxiety causing constant change of position. Pressure in region. Squeezed sensation. Palpitation (Nat. m., Ars., etc.) after menstruation; till sleep; < movement; spasmodic, as far as umbilicus, < pit of stomach. Rapid action.

Clinical.—Valvular insufficiency, with periodical attacks of pain about the heart following typhoid, dilatation of the r. side, etc. Pericarditis complicating pneumonia. Hypertrophy of the heart.

Pulse.—Rapid; in morning, and feeble; especially < at intervals, and small; and small; and small, hard; and small, feeble; and weak. Hard, thin, carotid rapid, small, weak, with tumultuous, irregular, at times intermittent action of heart. Energetic in afternoon, and large, full. Small; and thready; and contracted; and slow, weak. Irritable. Tremulous. Weak; and tremulous; with long intermissions.

Neck and Back.—Tearing on r. side of neck. Rheumatic pinching in N. near l. shoulder, < touch, > eructations, but returning. Rheumatic tension in r. side of N. Constriction of N. Confusion in back extending through nape into head. Sticking in scapulae on lifting anything; S. in small of back. Pain under l. scapula; in small of B. during menstruation; in coccyx and sacrum, now increasing, now decreasing. Drawing in region of r. kidney. with pressure.

Extremities.—Trembling; with staggering. Heaviness in morning. Numbness. Position of upper E.

looked as if convulsions would come on. Stitches in shoulder-joints even during rest. Rheumatic pain in l. shoulder. (Drawing tearing in the morbidly elevated S.) Arm and part of hand swollen. Jerking of arms, hands and fingers. Twisting of arms, < r. Tearing in arms after slight manual labor. Pain in bone on outer side of arm, waking and preventing sleep again, < lying on it. Paralytic weakness of arms in morning on waking. Tearing in l. elbow. Pressure in bend of l. elbow. Sticking in r. wrist when lifting or grasping anything. Hands red. Hands tremble. Tearing in metacarpal bone of r. index. Pain as from a blow on metacarpal bone of index, < touch. Ulceration of nail of l. index caused by a slight prick near nail. Tearing in l. index and middle finger; in knuckle of r. little finger; in first joint of r. thumb. Tensive pain in finger-joints as if they would break on bending, with swelling and pain on pressure when stretched.

Lower Extremities.—Rheumatic drawing, < thigh and knee in evening in bed, < motion, with grumbling in bed. Lassitude as if stiff, so that he could scarcely stand. Pressure in l. nates, as if in ischium. Twitching in muscles of thighs. Thighs sore where they rub in walking (in a woman). Intermittent tearing between l. hip and articulation of thigh, < moving joint; pinching T. near head of l. femur; sticking T. in middle of l. thigh, towards inner side. Rheumatic pain in l. thigh. Tension in thighs and legs, almost like cramp, only when sitting. Tearing on l. knee; on outer side of hollow of r.

Swelling of legs. Tearing on sides above malleoli. Pain in tibia as if suppurating. Leaden heaviness of legs. Leg falls asleep easily. Cramp of ankle at night, with jerking in it. Sticking in malleoli. Rapid swelling of feet and soles, so that walking was painful. Cramp of feet. Sharp pain in inner half of r. heel. Leaden heaviness of feet. Sticking tearing beneath nail of l. great toe. Cramplike pain extending from middle toe to tarsus. Sudden pain in r. great toe, next day passing to other toes, great toe less sensitive, then cold, then black, with sudden typhoid fever, the gangrene rising to thigh, with horrid pains, leg black and cold, when the woman attempted to turn in bed the tibia and fibula broke, and then the limb dropped off.

Clinical.—Articular rheumatism, sometimes with hot shiny swelling of the joints (Bry.), with great swelling, pain, etc. Articular rheumatism complicated with pericarditis; in these cases there is generally nocturnal aggravation. Wandering rheumatism, which even seems to attack the meninges of the brain and finally attacks the heart. Subacute inflammation of the knee, with fistulous openings discharging bloody serum, nightly boring pains. Housemaid's knee. Scrofulous affections of the joints (recently treated with marked success by injections of Iodoform). Affections of the joints or of the articular extremities of the bones, following mercury or syphilis. Gonorrhœal rheumatism.

Skin.—Pale. Dinky and livid. Brown as if smoked, instead of former yellowish tint. Redness of neck and chest as if congested. Red burning spot on nose beneath eye. Scratched spots become dark brown and the ulcerated places remaining after furuncles become gangrenous. Various eruptions, from erythema to morbus maculosus. Erythema of face and inflammation. Itching elevation on nose. Itching iodine exanthem, > sweat. Round, burning, itching spot between r. thumb and index, with two whitish pellicles upon it, > rubbing. Itching papules on an old scar.

Skin of arm tight, glossy, then covered with milary vesicles, with heat, itching and smarting, V. ruptured by any considerable motion, discharge of much water, most from inside of elbow, < bending arm. Furuncle between scapulae, with inflammation of surrounding parts (with loss of appetite and sleeplessness), after warm poultices the F. detached itself from the skin in hard knots, leaving deep and painless ulcers, which refused to heal. Feeling over whole body like fleabites, day and night. Itching on back above r. hip; I. of an old scar; sticking, in various parts.

Sleep.—Frequent yawning. Sleepiness. Sleeplessness; at night, but weariness by day; with profuse sweat; for eight days, with restlessness and delirium. Sleep broken by sudden starts. Restless sleep; with anxious dreams; with unpleasant and fatiguing dreams; then sleeplessness, on getting to sleep nightmare and hallucinations. Sleep bad, with nightmare and electric shocks, which wake her with a start. Waking early.

Nightmare. Dreams; vivid, from which he wished to wake but could not, then weakness after waking; anxious, restless; anxious, of dead people; unremembered, with sound sleep; every night, of swimming, walking in mire, that her daughter had fallen into a brook, etc.; of having unsuccessful intercourse with men, no emissions; that he was about to have connection with a man, but for some unknown reason the dream changed before the act was accomplished, no emission.

Fever.—Coldness; alternating with heat; cold nose; limbs; limbs, and trembling of them; upper limbs; hands, and clammy; feet; feet at night. Quartan fever, with constant diarrhoea on the days free from fever. Irregular febrile movements. Heat; after wine, with excitement, but feeling as if he would soon become tired; in flushes. Fever, with dry skin, weakness, rapid pulse, delirium, twitching of muscles, carphology and more coldness than heat of skin. Flushes of heat in head before menstruation, with palpitation and tension in throat, which became thick. Heat of hands; in r. scapula; flitting across r. thigh; of skin; of skin in evening, with dryness. Sweat at night; profuse; profuse S. on forehead; viscid S.; cold; contained iodine; general, sour, towards morning, then weakness of limbs; acrid on feet.

Ipecacuanha.

A tincture is made of the dried root of Cephaelis Ipecacuanha, A. Richard.

General Action.—Its most marked effects are observed on the gastro-intestinal and respiratory tracts; it produces nausea and vomiting (one of its most constant effects), considerable increase of the secretions, especially in the upper portion of the intestinal canal, and also dysenteric symptoms. It greatly increases bronchial secretion, causes pulmonary engorgement, and even hepatization; it also produces emphysema. Its cough is frequently spasmodic. It produces, in some cases, violent neuralgia of the eyes and head, with intense congestion of the conjunctiva, lachrymation, etc.

Allies.—Puls., Ferr., Eupat. perf., Mag. c., Cact., Nux v., Phos.

Generalities.—Awkward and knocking against everything. Swaying to and fro of body to either side as in drunkenness, in evening when walking in open air, with stupefaction of head. Opisthotonos; symptoms of O. and emprostotonos. Body of the child stretched out stiff; then spasmodic contraction of arm. (Sticking here and there, caused by motion, ending in burning.) Throbbing pain in head and pit of stomach after coughing. Anxiety in blood in morning on waking, as if he had been in great heat or had perspired profusely or were awakened by anxious dreams, with heaviness of head as if brain were compressed. Sensitiveness to cold and warmth. Restlessness. Weakness; and indolence, depression of spirits and shivering. Stiffness.

Mind.—Cries and screams constantly (a child), sticks its fists into its mouth, face pale, body rather cool. Whining, must be carried. Impatient. Ill humor; scorning everything and desirous that others shall not value anything; because his business does not proceed fast enough; and no desire to talk, inclined to weep; and quiet, retired in himself, scorning everything; and sinking of courage. Exasperated at slightest noise. Angry; often at trifles and again just as easily can be quieted. Scrupulous, fearful, thinks trifles are very important. Longing, but he knows not for what. Pleased with nothing. Averse to everything. Disinclination to work; to literary work, ideas fail him. Slow flow of ideas.

Head.—Sticking, with heaviness; paroxysmal S., then pressure. Tearing in morning after rising, > afternoon. Aching; tensive. Bruised feeling in brain and skull, piercing through skull into root of tongue, with nausea. Drawing here and there. Feeling as if H. and forehead were compressed. Heaviness; with sleepiness. Confusion. Fulness, < cerebrum. Vertigo; on walking; only on walking, < turning around, with disappearance of thought.

Forehead.—Sticking on touch; S. above eye on stooping, with swollen sensation. Tearing, < stooping; < touch. Boring. Pain, with heaviness of eyes; P. extending to vertex; pressing outward P. in l. side, < moving head; burning P., < touch.

Pressing-out, almost boring pain alternately in temples and in a spot over orbits, > pressure and closing eyes. Pain under l. temple as if it would burst. (Constriction in l. temple and above orbit.) Pain externally on parietal bone as from a thrust with a dull point. Sticking in vertex. Feeling as of a band across the top of H. from ear to ear, with headache, < moving, and throbbing pain behind l., then r. ear. Pain in occiput and nape from moving head; tensive P. in O. and nape, extending to shoulders.

Clinical.—Neuralgic headaches. Bursting headaches or bruised feeling in the head, with symptoms of indigestion. The most characteristic indication in the head is the bruised or crushed feeling extending into the root of the tongue, with nausea and vomiting.

Eyes.—Inflammation. Tearing, < r., extending towards temple, on opening r. lids, which were swollen, copious gush of tears, conjunctiva of bulb infiltrated, tunica vaginalis swollen, cornea dim as if infiltrated, small depressions, iris congested and dull-looking, pupils contracted, reacting but little in the light, vision lost, after pounding Ip. again these symptoms appeared in l. eye, with nausea. Raging pain, < r., waking at 3 A.M., with much lachrymation and loss of vision. Biting and pressing pain, < r., < light, which blinded him, conjunctiva red and chemosed, lachry mation, vision lost, with l. eye he saw fiery rings with rainbow colors. Tensive pain waking at night, with lachrymation and loss of vision. Uneasiness, with congestion of palpebral and ocular conjunctiva. Scalding lachrymation. Pupils dilated. Pain in balls as if forced out of their orbits, with foggy vision. Conjunctivæ injected. Hardened mucus in external canthi. Lids, < r., swollen. Dryness of lids, with sleepiness.

Clinical.—Granulations of the lids are reported cured by the instillation of the dilutions. Subacute inflammation of the cornea, with intense pain and great photophobia. Extremely valuable in pustular conjunctivitis, especially in children. Inflammation of the eyes, with tearing pain and gushes of tears. Violent neuralgia of the eyeballs, shooting into the head, with gushes of tears, nausea, etc.

Ears.—Pain extending from concha into drum, then to occipital protuberance. Dull hearing with r., and pressure in it.

Nose.—Mucous membrane of N., mouth and throat irritated, dyspnœa, nostrils impervious to air, I had to sit erect and gasp for breath, yellow water ran from nostrils, soon changing to bloody serum, mouth and throat inflamed and discharging thick mucus, then free vomiting, with some relief, but for three weeks cough and tenderness of chest. Titillation in nostrils. Dryness, and in frontal sinuses. Catarrh; with drawing pain in all limbs; feeling of dry C., as if nostrils were too dry. Sneezing; with thin mucus; violent; violent, paroxysmal, with cough and expectoration. Bleeding.

Clinical.—Catarrh or acute coryza, with frequent hæmorrhages from the nose, associated with bronchial catarrh, loss of smell, etc.

Face.—Pale, sunken; P. and puffed; P., with blue rings around eyes and weakness. Red. Yellow. Anxious and livid. Biting on lips; on margins of lips and on tip and sides of tongue, with watery salivation and colic. Excoriated sensation in corners of lips when touched and on moving lips.

Mouth.—Paroxysmal pain as if teeth would be torn out; P. as if hollow tooth would be torn out on biting anything, then constant tearing. Biting on margin of tongue. Burning of tongue and upper lip. Sensation on back of tongue and on palate as from chewing liverwort or Artemisia dracunculul, which increases saliva. Burning extending down throat and bronchia, with dyspnœa. Dryness, < at top of œsophagus, with rawness. Sensitiveness. Salivation; and obliged to swallow constantly; with nausea; thin; saliva runs from mouth on lying down. Taste flat; to beer; nauseous T. to customary tobacco-smoke, causing vomiting; T. in throat as from rancid oil, on swallowing.

Throat.—Sensation as if he had drunk melted lead, and in stomach, causing rolling about the floor, > vomiting induced by drinking warm water, then asthma. Stitches transversely through T. into inner ear; S. in œsophagus. Soreness; of pharynx, mucous membrane of velum and pharynx injected, with many hæmorrhagic points. Spasmodic contractive sensation, and in chest. Dryness; causing inclination to cough; of fauces, with constriction of glottis; pain in œsophagus as if dry, raw and sore, transiently > swallowing saliva or drink; dry, burning sensation, almost suffocation. Swallowing painful, as from swelling at top of œsophagus; S. difficult, as from paralysis of tongue and œsophagus.

Stomach.—Loss of thirst. Erections; with rumbling

in abdomen; empty. Nausea; with empty eructations and salivation (Cupr., Puls.); distressing; with convulsive but ineffectual retching; (with hicough) after customary tobacco-smoking, > several stools, the last of which was pasty; (with heaviness in abdomen); intermittent. Empty retching. Vomiting; on stooping, with feeling as if he would fall; frequent; of everything swallowed (Eupt. perf.); of food (Ferr., Nux v.); of food on stooping; of yellow, green and black mucus. Rumbling. Sticking in pit. Gripping. Feeling as if it hung down relaxed (Sep.), and appetite lost. Sensation of emptiness and laxity (Sep.). Warmth; agreeable, with rumbling in intestines.

Clinical.—The gastric symptoms generally are indicated by persistent nausea and aversion to all food; this nausea accompanies the various hæmorrhages which call for Ipec. The vomiting is generally free, consisting largely of mucus, sometimes of blood. The nausea and vomiting are more frequently the result of nervous irritability than of inflammation of the stomach, so that the drug has often relieved the distressing symptoms of pregnancy; the nausea is a marked indication for the drug in malarial fevers, etc. Gastric catarrh from injudicious eating or drinking, with white-coated tongue, or sometimes with perfectly clean tongue. Obstinate vomiting of blood (Ferr., Phos.), extremities cold, countenance hippocratic, pulse feeble, the ejecta sometimes black, tar-like.

Abdomen.—Distention. Gripping; clawing G. as if grasped by a hand so that each outstretched finger pressed sharply upon intestines, > rest, < motion. Pinching. (Sticking, with burning and sticking in rectum and urging to stool.) Colic; with rumbling and with warmth extending into chest, at times with sticking; flatulent; on coughing P. as if obliged to urinate and urine could not pass, as in retention of urine. Nausea, with incipient colic. Uneasiness. Tearing about umbilicus. Cutting about umbilicus, with shivering; C. at side of U., < touch, with white, frothy saliva and dilated pupils; C. about U. as before menstruation, with chilliness, but internal heat mounting to head. Pain in umbilical region, < pressure. Sticking in l. hypochondrium; in r. flank. Pinching in hypochondria and region of pit of stomach.

Anus.—Sticking; S., cutting, burning pain on margin, as in obstinate hæmorrhoids. Crawling as from thread-worms.

Stool.—Diarrhœa; as if fermented. Thin, frequent, with qualmsiness in abdomen; (T., with burning sticking in rectum and anus.) Soft. Frequent, of greenish mucus (Arg. nit., Mag. c., Merc. dul., Puls.). Bloody; covered with bloody mucus. Offensive. (Porraceous.) (Lemon-yellow.)

Clinical.—Green, mucous diarrhœa. Dysentery, in some cases with dark, pitchlike blood. Autumnal diarrhœa, green or fermented light-yellow stools. Cholera infantum, stools light green, with nausea and vomiting. With the diarrhœa frequently flatulent colic and a distressed relaxed feeling in the abdomen, with the peculiar nausea and vomiting of the drug. Cholera infantum, with green, frothy stools, colic, hot head, etc.

Urinary Organs.—(Discharge of purulent fluid from urethra of a child, with biting pain.) Frequent desire; with scanty urine. (Frequent micturition of straw-yellow urine, with burning and urging before the discharge.) Red, scanty urine. Urine bloody.

Clinical.—Hæmaturia, especially from the kidneys, with nausea and cutting pains.

Sexual Organs.—Volutuous itching when standing. Sticking in testicles when resting one thigh over the other. Twisting drawing pain in testicles. Dragging towards uterus and anus. Menstruation fourteen days too soon. The bloody discharge at close of menstruation was suppressed.

Clinical.—Menstruation very early and profuse, bright red, with colic and nausea. Threatening miscarriage, with bright red blood and cutting colic. Hæmorrhage following miscarriage or parturition, with persistent nausea, faintness and gasping for breath. Hæmorrhage in placenta prævia.

Respiratory Organs.—Rattling in bronchi during respiration. Bronchial catarrh, with exhaustion. Dryness of larynx, with burning and scraping. Hoarse. Suffocative cough; whereby the child becomes stiff and blue in the face. Cough, causing inclination to vomit, without nausea; C. from constrictive tickling, extending from upper part of larynx to lowest end of bronchi; dry C., from tickling in upper part of larynx; incessant C. after walking in cold air, and after lying down in morning and evening, caused by deep inspiration, with pain as if umbilicus would be torn out, heat in face (head) and sweat on forehead; violent and convulsive C.

Expectoration of blood (Ferr., Phos., Acon., Cact.); catarrhal E.; E. of lemon-colored viscid phlegm in balls, and traces of blood (Puls.). In morning on stirring about after a night's rest from cough, mouthfuls of mucus were thrown up, looking like a mass of nearly transparent worms, but they were real casts of bronchial tubes (see Calc. acet.).

Asthma; spasmodic, with constriction of throat and chest, with peculiar wheezing (Ferr.); sudden, with dyspnoea and oppression of præcordia; generally beginning with irritation of nasal membrane and rapidly extending to bronchi and all their ramifications; sudden paroxysms, with inability to lie down, preceded by tickling in nose and sneezing. Suffocation (Ferr.); suffocative constriction of air-passages and pharynx, with pallor and anxiety for air (Ferr.). Dyspnoea (Ferr., etc.); in evening; from 10 P.M. till 10 A.M.; > expectoration, with wheezing, and weight and anxiety about præcordia (Ferr.); with constriction across chest, violent and convulsive cough (Cact.), sneezing, till face became anxious and livid; D. or suffocative stricture of chest and oppression at præcordia (Cact.). Difficult breathing, with sense of suffocation and dry, hacking cough. Sudden attack of short breath, with wheezing. Breathing rapid, difficult, without aid of auxiliary muscles, and noisy, with sharp, vesicular respiration all over lungs, with loud whistling and râles. Tetanic convulsions of respiratory muscles (instead of the ordinary wheezing) like "holding the breath," with sighs at long intervals. Simultaneous imperfect efforts to breathe, cough and vomit, causing indescribable suffering, irregular spasm of all muscles of chest and abdomen, every effort to vomit interrupted by an attempt to cough, necessity to be supported in an erect position, and to have the windows open, > appearance of eruption. Thorax arrested in expiration, speech and cough impossible, in the open air he was able to inspire, sneezed and coughed without expectoration.

Clinical.—Spasm of the glottis, with rapid alternations of contraction and relaxation of the vocal cords. Spasmodic asthma. Capillary bronchitis of infants, with mucous râles, spasmodic cough, vomiting (the patient is not so prostrated and cold as when requiring tartar emetic). Bronchitis, with great accumulation of mucus, especially in the larger tubes, violent paroxysms of coughing, retching and vomiting and expectoration of large quantities of mucus. Cough, with threatening suffocation. Violent spasmodic cough, sometimes quite dry, caused by suffocative feeling as from sulphur fumes, the patient becomes blue in the face, with coughing (Cupr.). Whooping cough, with retching and vomiting (Cupr.). Whooping cough, so violent that the child seems to lose its breath entirely and has hæmorrhages from the nose or from the lungs. Hæmorrhages from the lungs in tubercular cases, with gasping for breath. Hæmorrhages from the lungs, with sensation of bubbling in the chest and expectoration of frothy mucus.

Chest.—(Gripping [jerking-tearing?]) beneath shoulder.) Sore pain internally. Pressure. Oppression (Ferr.); in forenoon, with short breath, as from dust; after eating. Constriction from evening till 9 A.M., with short and wheezing respiration, necessity to open the window and gasp, pallor, scarcely perceptible pulse and apparent danger of suffocation, then cough, with expectoration of thick, metallic-tasting mucus. Contractive sensation beneath short ribs. Uneasiness.

Heart and Pulse.—Pricking pain in heart. Palpitation. Rapid pulse.

Back.—(Pinching between scapulae on motion.) Cramplike pain shooting from r. kidney down r. thigh to knee.

Extremities.—Cracking of joints. Shocks through all when she wishes to sleep. Bruised pain in all bones (Eupt. perf.). Pain in all joints, as if limbs were asleep. Pressive and spasmodic pain in hollow of r. knee and in l. arm, < touch. Drawing pains in humerus and femur in evening after lying down. Spasmodic contractions of arms. Pinching in r. arm. Pain in l. arm near wrist; as if bone were bruised, then in r. Twitching of lower. Weariness of lower. Pinching in l. hip, extending from crest of ilium to great trochanter. Sprained pain in l. knee, < walking, > sitting. Pain in knee as if tendons and ligaments were wearied by a long walk. Twitching and crawling in muscles of calf, as if asleep. Sticking in r. tibia. Pinching in r. foot. Weariness of feet.

Skin.—Erysipelatous eruption covering every part, in fiery circular patches, varying from the size of a sixpence to that of the palm of hand, elevated with rounded edges, with burning. (Nettle-rash on forehead, extending into hair and to cheeks.) (Tetter on wrist and about anus, itching most in evening and after lying down, after scratching red pimples.) Papulae and vesicles on a deep red base of irregular extent, they became flat, pustular and confluent, with external heat and tingling in the part, pustules became covered with scablike scales, which fell off and left no mark. Fornication on calf.

Sleep.—Frequent yawning; Y. after eating, with stretching. Sleepiness; after vomiting; with weariness; with lassitude in all limbs. Starts up in sleep. Sleep with half-opened eyes. Sobbing fearfulness during sleep. Uneasy sleep; with moaning. Frequent waking and frightful dreams. Vivid unremembered dreams.

Fever.—Coldness; all night, preventing sleep; C., then heat, then sweat; external, with internal heat; beneath skin, < sitting in a warm place; C., feverish and thirsty. Shivering at 4 P.M., then chilliness without thirst; S., with yawning; S., with eructations; S. coldness in limbs as if startled. Coldness of one hand; of hands, with moisture; hands and feet cold and wet with cold sweat, one cheek pale, the other red, miserable in mind and weak in body, with dilated pupils.

General heat in evening; suddenly about 4 P.M., with sweat on arms and back; (external H. without internal). Heat in head, on forehead and cheeks in afternoon and evening, without thirst; H. in head and over whole body, with cold hands and feet, as heat increases to its greatest severity sweat breaks out on trunk and head, with biting and itching, < neck; H. of cheeks, even perceptible externally, without redness; (H. of face, with redness of it, without thirst). (Sweat); about midnight.

Clinical.—It has been found valuable in intermittent fever, the paroxysms characterized by persistent nausea, especially with the chill and fever, frequently with raging headache, nearly always with great thirst, but the water taken is apt to be vomited; it is to be compared with Eupatorium; Eupat., however, lacks the persistent nausea of Ipec. and Ipec. lacks the bone-pains of Eupat.; besides, the paroxysms of Eupat. are only partially developed, while those of Ipec. are perfectly developed, as a rule. (They are very similar.)

Iris Versicolor.

A tincture is made of the fresh root of Iris versicolor, L.

General Action.—It produces nausea and vomiting, is an active cathartic and diuretic, and stimulates the liver, increasing the flow of bile.

Allies.—Aloe, Sulph., Sang., Bry., Pod., Phyt.

Generalities.—Malaise with the neuralgia. Feeling as if he had taken cold, with lameness of trunk and lumbar region. Languor; in morning on rising; in afternoon, with feverishness.

Mind.—Irritable; in morning on waking. Displayed with everybody and everything, then lively and active. Depressed. Despondency, thinking that he is going to be very sick, alternating with disposition to laugh at his fears. Dulness of mind and special senses. Inability to fix mind. Memory weak.

Head.—Aching; in morning after being in cold air and on quick motion, < forehead and vertex, as if top of head would come off, < cough; with pain in bowels; with depression of spirits and debility; nervous, gastric, in forenoon; stunning, with neuralgia; dull, stupid. Fullness. Heaviness, with dulness of eyes and pain over l. superciliary ridge. Dulness (resembling vertigo). Feeling as if brain were partially narcotized, then cutting through temples. Intoxicated feeling at 7 A.M. Dizziness; with pressure in forehead; then lightness of head; sudden; sudden, when walking in-doors.

Forehead.—Pain; over eyes; at 6 P.M., and in posterior fontanelle; in evening, with occasional vertigo; intermittent; changing from side to side; dull, heavy (Sulph.). Tightness across. Sensation of a band across (Carbol. ac.), on attempting to laugh and preventing laughing.

Temples.—Shooting; through; from r. to l. part of occiput. Cutting through T., with dim vision. Sharp pains. Pain; in r., then it passed over vertex and behind l. ear; heavy.

Pain in vertex. Boring in r. parietal protuberance, causing him to bend head. Pain in r. parietal protuberance, becoming a hammering pain, < movement, > continued movement, returning during rest. Stitching in lower part of occiput, < r. side. Pain at posterior fontanelle. On vertex, twenty-six pustules tender to touch, on inflamed base, with red streaks running from one to another, and containing yellow matter. Constrictive feeling in scalp.

Clinical.—Neuralgic headaches are very frequently cured by this drug; they are generally one-sided, are associated with gastric symptoms, are, as a rule, periodic, occurring every few days, are nearly always associated with blurring of vision and frequently with vomiting; the pain usually begins over one eye.

Eyes and Ears.—Eyes sunken. Conjunctiva red. Lachrymation; with burning pain in r. inner canthus. Pressure towards and out at ears. Throbbing pain in mastoid processes in afternoon, > warmth of hand, then tingling. Tender feeling in mastoid process on moving jaws, extending half way down jaw along edge of bone.

Nose.—Sharp, raw, excoriating feeling in both nares, with constant inclination to blow nose, free discharge of mucus, constant sneezing, bronchi similarly affected. Stuffed-up feeling in nasal sinuses and posterior nares with discharge of thin clear mucus, snuffing and sneezing. Sneezing.

Face.—Flushed. Appearance of anguish. Neuralgia in r. side, waking, < infraorbital nerve, with stitches in two carious teeth, next day facial neuralgia involving supra and infraorbital and superior maxillary and inferior dental nerves began after breakfast, with stupid stunning headache, next day began after breakfast, with malaise and headache, next day soreness where the neuralgia had been (Bry.). Lips dry and cracked.

Mouth.—Toothache; in warm room. Teeth sore; and feel elongated. Elongated and sore feeling in molars, with heavy pain. Swelling of gums on inner side of l. lower molars. Tongue coated white. Tongue and gums feel greasy or slimy in morning. Feeling of a greasy coat on mouth and tongue in morning. Tongue feels thick at 7 A.M. Mouth and tongue feel scalded in morning; in mouth at 4 A.M., tongue rough and thick. Raw feeling on roof behind incisors, < cold or hot drinks, eating, touching with tongue, < onions or cheese, with feeling as if skin of that part hung loose, the rugæ of mouth enlarged, pale, and two on r. side excoriated, afterwards the rawness and feeling of loose skin extended to throat, afterwards rawness behind incisors after eating cherries in morning. Soreness of hard palate; < touch of tongue or solid food, with roughness, with pain in a defective filled tooth, which felt too long and was tender when used. Feeling as if on fire, and in stomach; in back part of mouth and fauces in afternoon, with flow of saliva. Burning and smarting of palate and fauces. Profuse saliva (Merc.); ropy S. (Phyto.) drops from mouth during conversation. Taste peppery; on forward half of tongue, and acid; acrid T.; flat; flat at 7 A.M.; bad; lost.

Throat.—Tonsils, uvula and soft palate bright red and larger vessels engorged. Rawness. Soreness, and of chest; S., < around epiglottis, with raw feeling, hoarseness, stuffed up, smarting in posterior nares, as from a recent cold, increased secretion in nose. Roughness, with running of saliva. Burning; in fauces; in fauces during expiration; in fauces, palate, tonsils and back of tongue, < expiration, > inspiration; in fauces on inspiration, extending to tip of tongue, < expiration. Heat in fauces, soft palate and tonsils, changing to smarting and burning. Smarting of soft palate, with burning and scratching, increasing to fiery heat, spreading over fauces, upward towards nares and far into œsophagus, the throat felt three times as large as usual and like a fiery cavern, the B. temporarily > drinking water, enlarged bright red vessels on uvula, palate and posterior wall of fauces. Swallowing difficult when eating, food sticks in pharynx. Spasms of œsophagus, with inability to swallow, food sticks in throat, with choking and gagging. Burning in œsophagus; with nausea.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; lost; lost at dinner. Frequent empty eructations; empty, with pain in stomach; empty, sour; of sour food. Nausea; in evening, obliging him to lie down; at 6 p.m., with empty eructations. Retching, resulting in little more than forcible eructation. Vomiting; of sour fluid. Rumbling, with uneasiness, lumpy, brown, offensive diarrhoea, with little pain. Pinching in pit. Pain before breakfast; P. after drinking cold water; twisting P. Heartburn, a hot cramplike sensation rising from pit. Burning distress in epigastric region (Sang.), cold water does not reach it; in region of pancreas in afternoon and evening. Distress; in epigastric region; in epigastric region, with restlessness and fright, with copious watery stool, then > nearly two quarts of water tinged with bile running out in a continuous stream. Fulness, > empty eructations. Uneasiness in pit, with rumbling in lower abdomen, increased till lower part of sternum seemed to protrude.

Clinical.—Nausea and vomiting of pregnancy, with tenderness over the stomach and profuse ropy saliva (see Ip.). Nausea, with profuse salivation during headaches. Dyspepsia, with severe burning distress in the stomach, vomiting of food, headache, etc. (comp. Sang.).

Abdomen.—Rumbling. Fetid flatus; in afternoon. Flatulence. Neuralgic pains. Gripping at 6 p.m.; with soreness of surface; with several light, acid stools; with profuse light-colored, prostrating diarrhoea. Pain; in afternoon, > night; > discharge of flatus; in evening and night, > bending forward, with loss of appetite and restlessness at night; with heat, soreness, as after cold, and premonitions of diarrhoea. Nausea like beginning of seasickness. Faintness as if intestines revolved in wrong direction.

Pain in r. hypochondrium when walking. Rumbling in umbilical region in afternoon; R. in U. and hypogastric regions, with desire for stool, soft, painless stool; R. in U. and hypogastric regions, waking at 4 a.m., with distress and desire for stool, copious watery stool, which could not be retained a moment without pain, at 8 a.m., another watery stool, with rumbling. Intermittent pain in U. region at 5 p.m. Uterine pain in shocks from U. to epigastric region, then nausea, straining, belching of wind, with commotion and rumbling above seat of pain. Pain above crests of ilia; along posterior part of r. crest; P. in r., then l. flank in afternoon, with urging to stool.

Clinical.—Flatulent colic, with constipation, especially in children. Derangements of the liver, with yellow eyes and skin, numbness of r. arm, nausea, headache, etc. Bilious colic, almost incessant vomiting of extremely acid substances, with soreness over the liver. Soreness over the region of the liver, with cutting pains and vomiting of bile, which is very acid and burns the œsophagus.

Rectum and Anus.—Burning in anus after stool (Aloc, Sul.). Anus sore in morning, as if points were sticking in it (Ign., Æsc.). Distress in anus as if pro-lapsed. Disposition to stool, with burning in anus. Urged to a second stool by sensation as if wind distended rectum, > discharge of a little greenish dark water, with burning in anus (see Aloe and Sulph.).

Stool.—Frequent, watery, with burning in anus (Bry.), disposition to strain and bear down (Sulph.), pain in epigastric and umbilical regions, rumbling in abdomen, faintness, knees weak and trembling, sometimes with blood and mucus, once with water and undigested food, at last mucous membrane of anus prolapsed and smarting, abdomen tender to pressure, flying pains through abdomen. Watery, through the day. Six dysenteric, at night, with pain and rumbling in lower abdomen (Sulph.). Diarrhoea; after breakfast, then pain in epigastrium; then pain in umbilical region; with colic; with rumbling and cutting in hypogastrium; sudden, after supper. Mushy, copious, light-colored. Papescent; with rumbling in abdomen; with pain in umbilical region; painless, with rumbling; yellow, painless, with rumbling, also large. Constipation. Hard, lumpy. Greenish-black, twice in one day.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea, with burning in anus as if on fire and burning all through the gastro-intestinal tract, the stools are generally very thin, preceded by colic. A very valuable remedy for constipation, especially with recurring sick headaches and gastric symptoms.

Urinary Organs.—Cutting in urethra at beginning of micturition; C. during micturition, with sticking and with coldness and itching of genitals, the I. < scratching. Strangury. Micturition frequent, copious, limpid; M. twice in the day. Urine high-colored. Urine thick, of strong odor, deep amber-colored (from excess of uric acid), discharged with effort, but without pain. Copious U.; and offensive. Scanty U., with burning in urethra after micturition; afterwards frequent and copious micturition; scanty and high-colored; S., red, then burning along urethra; S. and of strong odor, dark and thick in morning, passed without force and after straining.

Sexual Organs.—Glans swollen and red. Emission at night; with amorous dreams. Menses three days late and scanty.

Respiratory Organs.—Much hawking and clearing of larynx; frequent and painful H. of tough mucus from larynx. A lump of mucus rattled up and down trachea, it was expectorated with a sweetish, offensive taste at 10 a.m., obstruction and catarrhal soreness of air-passages, frequent hawking, cough, with soreness in trachea and tickling. Hoarseness; with sharp, acid feeling near epiglottis. Short, dry cough from tickling in larynx; hacking C. in morning without expectoration, with soreness in larynx anteriorly. Expectoration of phlegm in morning. Short breath.

Chest.—Rattling of mucus not to be raised by hawking. Cramp in l. side under ribs; in l. side like a knife, then darting pain in abdomen. Pain in l.; as if ribs were pressing upon lower part of lung, inability to take a long breath for the sticking cutting in l. lung; P. in pectoralis major, < during motion and in evening. Constriction; about sternum; at middle of sternum. Soreness from nipple to nipple in morning, with tender painful spot on r. border of sternum and pain on inspiration. Tickling under top of sternum, waking at night, with cough dry and distressing, because nothing could be raised nor the tickling be reached, rattling of phlegm low in œsophagus.

Heart and Pulse.—Heart's action increased in force and frequency. Pulse rapid; and feeble. Pulse slow and labored.

Neck.—Soreness of muscles, with harshness.

Back.—Pain; < walking. Stiffness in morning, < on sitting down. Weariness. Pain behind l. scapula. Stiffness of trapezius; all forenoon, causing constant shrugging of shoulders and desire to twist head from side to side; S. of r. latissimus dorsi on motion. Tearing in lumbar region on rising, so that he can become erect only gradually. Crampy pain in r. loin in evening, causing sweat. Pain in r. kidney. Pain in lumbar region all day while sewing; P. in lumbar region, < motion; and in sacral region, so that it is almost impossible to walk; heavy P. Weakness in lower part of back.

Extremities.—Tearing in r. hip, knee and shoulders. Pain through the day; neuralgic P. like constriction around l. upper arm, forearm and thigh; rheumatic, in r. arm and r. knee, < motion; stinging, rheumatic, in elbows, forearms and knees; tense, in all joints, mostly the smaller, shifting about rapidly, < from supper till bed-time.

Upper Extremities.—Stinging in r. shoulder; during motion, < raising arm, with tension. Rheumatic pain in r. shoulder, < motion, especially raising arm. Sharp pains in shoulders, arms, < l. index. Sharp pain near outside of l. arm on moving it. Lameness of upper arm, with soreness to touch, the L. soon extended to shoulders and nape, like rheumatism after taking cold, the L. and stiffness > night. Cutting in elbows and biceps, with contusive lame feeling. Heaviness of hands and elbows as after wine; H. of hands and elbows, with pains between shoulders, which settle in r. upper arm. Pain in metacarpal joints of hand and in muscles of r. arm, < motion and evening.

Fingers.—Shifting shooting in phalangeal and metacarpophalangeal joints, < evening and motion. Cutting in metacarpophalangeal joint of r. thumb. Sharp pain along l. side of first. Sharp pain along l. side of first phalanx of r. middle, then in l. middle fingers, then in l. axilla, occurring frequently. Pain; in last joint of l. middle; in r. phalanges when writing, and in end of r. index.

Lower Extremities.—Weakness and pain so that walking was almost impossible. Sciatic pain; frequent, as if l. hip were wrenched or forced to remain long in an awkward position; S. twinges as if hip were wrenched, then burning aching; S. twinges behind l. trochanter in morning when writing, with lameness. Coalgia in l. hip in evening on walking. Pain in l. hip; when walking; in l. thigh. Painful drawing and lameness behind l. trochanter, extending to popliteal space in evening, causing limping. Sudden rheumatic lameness in femoral region posteriorly in morning when exercising, causing limping, then shooting posteriorly down thigh to foot on every motion, < walking, > 4 p.m., next morning pain in l. sciatic nerve only on walking, with increased soreness and with weakness of l. leg, violent exercise does not increase the pain more than moderate exertion. Pain when walking in r., then l. knee. Knees weak and trembling. Pain in calves when walking, < r. Sticking in r. foot. Sharp pain in first joint of r. great toe when walking.

Clinical.—Sciatica of the l. side, of a burning character, shooting down to the foot, greatly < motion (Ery.).

Skin.—Pimples like mosquito-bites; pimple on l. middle finger, next day the inflammation extended over hand, then great pain, it was opened but no pus found, but it afterwards formed and discharged through the opening, which penetrated as far as bone, a fungous growth around edges had taken place meanwhile, pain extended up arm, appearance of a malignant boil, disposition to a similar formation on index, sweat with the pain in finger. Boils on back, face and hand. Vesicles on r. wrist, which formed into pustules, depressed in centre, then crusts. Itching of face, < warmth from exercise.

Clinical.—Herpes zoster of r. side; psoriasis, eczema; impetigo of the head; all these symptoms associated with the gastric derangements and other symptoms of the drug.

Sleep.—Sleepiness; with chills down back; with dulness and dizziness; in daytime, fell asleep when reading, dreamed of dissecting a woman who was hanging by the heels in my office, woke frightened, tried to get up to shut the door but could not, real nightmare. Night restless; with dreams of fighting, etc.; with awful dreams of the dead; with dreams of digging up corpses, and finally fell into a grave which woke me in fright; with dreams of snakes and everything bad; with amorous dreams and emissions. Sleep disturbed by startings. Early waking; with dry mouth and general depression. Frightful dreams. Dreams of suffocation.

Fever.—General chill at night. Heat; with itching in various parts; general, then chill, with cold hands and feet; of skin; of head, with flushing of face; of hands all day, with dryness of them; of palms. General sweat, < in groins.

Jaborandi.

A tincture is prepared from the dried leaves and stems of Pilocarpus pinnatifolius, Lem., which contain the alkaloid Pilocarpine.

General Action.—The most remarkable property of this drug is diaphoresis; in a few minutes a flush of the face is followed by profuse perspiration and salivation (frequently if one of these is profuse the other is greatly lessened), which last for hours. It contracts the pupil and causes spasm of the accommodation. It stimulates the hair, making it coarse and often turning it dark.

Allies.—Agaricus, Physostigma.

Generalities.—Redness of face, throbbing of temporal arteries, then heat in mouth and on face, salivation, then sweat on forehead, cheeks and temples, incessant expectoration, sweat covering face and neck, then whole body red and moist, pleasant warmth, then general sweat, which soon runs down on all sides, then lachrymation and copious discharge from nose, increased activity of mucous glands of back of throat, trachea and bronchi, salivation so great that he can scarcely speak, salivary glands enlarged, sometimes accumulation in bronchi cleared away by cough, thirst, contracted pupils, after the sweat and salivation have ceased, prostration, drowsiness and dryness of the parts that have secreted so copiously, < mouth and back of throat, with much thirst.

Restlessness; in evening, with anxiety. Weariness; in morning, with dryness of mouth and thirst; on rising; from a short walk, with hurried breathing and palpitation; so that legs give way when walking. Faintness. Collapse.

Mind.—Confusion. Disinclination to speak.

Head.—Aching; every day about noon; about noon, with hurried breathing, pressure on chest, anxiety, palpitation and pain in region of heart; towards dinner-time (noon), not affecting appetite; < l. side, during sore throat; with suffocative feeling. Uneasiness; increasing in forenoon to pain in occiput, then extending to forehead, > late in afternoon. Empty feeling. Vertigo. Throbbing pain in vertex and front of head at 7.30 P.M.; sudden T. pain in vertex and forehead. Pain in lower part of occiput; extending over l. side of head to forehead; heavy, < l. side; pain in l. side of O. in evening.

Eyes.—Red spot near r. iris in morning, vascular appearance in both eyes as from cold or overwork. Cornea red after waking at 5.30 P.M. Lachrymation. Pupils contracted; and tension of accommodative apparatus, with approximation of nearest and farthest points of distinct vision, amblyopic impairment of vision from diminished sensibility of retina; P. dilated; P. sluggish. Balls sore on rolling them at 7.30 P.M. Lids stiff and heavy. Vision disturbed. V. changing constantly, becoming suddenly more, then less dim; dim, with pricking in eyes; dim, restored suddenly. Blurred V. for distant objects. Swimming of distant objects. Clouds before vision. V. of snowflakes during the sweat and salivation. V. lost for distant objects.

Clinical.—Asthenopia of hypermetropia. Spasms of ciliary muscle in hypermetropia. It has relieved the asthenopia of cataracts. Convergent strabismus. Especially useful after operations for strabismus.

Nose and Face.—Nasal discharge. Redness of face; and of ears and neck; and of body; involving cheeks and ears, < when the sweat was greatest, then pallor; with heat of it and with throbbing of temporal arteries.

Mouth.—Tongue furred. Articulation difficult and indistinct. Heat. Dryness. Salivation; with profuse sweat; with dry skin; stringy, but not very viscid; constant spitting of alkaline saliva; alkaline saliva flows upon pillow during sleep, causing collapsed feeling in glands in cheeks. Saliva contained a notable quantity of urea.

Clinical.—Profuse salivation during pregnancy.

Throat.—Swelling of submaxillary glands (Merc., Calc.). Pain in submaxillary glands. Dryness at back; dry and inflamed feeling in forenoon, with scraping on swallowing anything, the inflammation < afternoon, with swelling of tonsils and stiffness of jaws. Soreness and smarting, with headache, < l. side, and hurried breathing.

Clinical.—Mumps, especially when there is metastasis to the testicles.

Stomach.—Appetite. Hunger disappeared and he could not eat. Urgent thirst. Eructations and vomiting. Hiccough. Nausea; sudden, and retching, often with hiccough. Vomiting; after supper; sudden, in the lad who failed to perspire; of the saliva that he had swallowed; severe, of the contents of stomach, then of bile, then continued retching. Distress, and in lower half of œsophagus, especially the latter feels constricted; heavy D. at pyloric part at dinner-time, as from an indigestible substance, > a full meal. Constrictive feeling as if rugæ were puckered (probably owing to alcohol in tincture).

Abdomen.—Empty, gone feeling. Cutting in lower.

Stool.—Watery, yellow, frequent and painless; and undigested, gushing, weakening. Yellow, gushing. Papescent and large. First part five-eighths of an inch in diameter and about five inches long, the last part papescent and dark brown. Hard. Constipation, two stools a day instead of three. At 7 A.M. and again at 7 P.M. difficult, of long, large, dark feces.

Urinary Organs.—Sudden shooting from bladder to urethra. Burning in urethra, with urging to urinate.

Urine dark. Urine increased; during the sweat; and sp. gr. diminished, urea increased. Urine decreased; and sp. gr. and urea increased. Urea diminished, next day increased. Chlorine, chlorides and uric acid diminished, next day increased.

Respiratory Organs and Chest.—Bronchial secretions increased. Loose cough. Breathing difficult. Breathing hurried. Sticking in chest. Pain in chest and around heart. Pressure on chest, with anxiety, palpitation and pain in region of heart. Anxiety in chest, with oppression, preventing sleep.

Heart.—Pain in region. Palpitation. Irregularity, weakness and rapidity of action, with nervous, restless condition and constant yawning.

Pulse.—Rapid; then slow; at beginning of sweat, the tracing becomes a little crooked, the rising line larger and more upright, the descending line more oblique, more dicrotic, at the height of the sweat the general outline very irregular, some beats shorter than others. P. rose (the reverse of temperature), returned to normal rate, with return of normal temperature, but was soft and compressible. P. and temperature increased during sweat, then lowered. Tracings showed almost complete asystolia, with diminished vascular tension during sweat.

Sleep.—Sleepiness. Fell asleep while sitting reading. Profound sleep; in daytime. Most wretched night that he ever remembers, fever, headache, malaise, no thirst, restlessness, moving and delirium. Did not sleep well on account of restlessness, with pressure on chest and hurried breathing. Distressing dreams towards morning. Dreams of accidents and frights, waking him twice at night.

Fever.—Temperature sank. Chilly up and down back at 7 P.M. Shivering. Temperature 98.5°, in taking which he uncovered himself, this caused coldness, with horripilation and griping, but as soon as he covered himself again profuse sweat. Heat; temperature rose, then fell; internal, in face and over body; in face; in face, then extending over body. Profuse sweat; and finger-ends shrivelled like a washerwoman's; in drops on forehead; S. on forehead, then over whole body, then chiefly on face, legs and feet; S. on forehead and over whole body, < trunk, simultaneously with the salivation; on face; on face and upper part of chest; on face, then on whole body; on chest, then on other parts, < upper extremities. S. of neutral reaction running down all over body. S. contains urea. Perspired easily before taking, but did not sweat during the proving.

Clinical.—Flushings at the climacteric period, with profuse perspiration, cold extremities, nausea and vomiting.

Jalapa.

A tincture of the dried root of Ipomea purga, Hayne, is used.

General Action.—An active hydragogue cathartic.

Allies.—Jatropha. Rheum. Coloc.

Uneasiness, with tossing about of limbs. Weakness. Fainting fits. Headache. Humming in ears. Stinging in tongue and fauces. Nausea and vomiting. Increased motion of stomach, sometimes with nausea, succeeded by increased activity of small intestines as far as region of cæcum, where there is seated illness, then motion in colon and its flexions till there is desire for stool, which occurs without great irritation and is not succeeded by any other irritation or desire, even if there be another looser stool. Pain in small intestines as if they would be cut to pieces. Inflammation of intestines. Anus sore. The first stool is always thick, reddish and sour. Violent, excessive stools. Bloody stools. Several watery stools, then decrease of temperature; several watery S., then weak pulse. Pulsations slower. Pain in thighs. Febrile attacks.

Clinical.—Coryza in an infant, violent attacks of crying and intense pain, quiet during the day, but screaming all night. Chronic diarrhoea, stools six or eight times a day, dark, offensive, like gruel, with much griping and some tenesmus; it is reported to have cured a diarrhoea that had lasted twenty years, stools sudden, watery, very offensive, generally with a little blood, much gas, tongue smooth, glazed and dry.

Jatropha.

A tincture of the ripe seeds of Jatropha curcas, L., is used.

General Action.—A violent hydragogue cathartic.

Allies.—Crot. tig., Jalap, Gamb., Elat., Verat. alb.

Generalities.—Cramps; in evening; and twitchings, "calves were twisted around to shins" (Cupr.); of extremities, afterwards extending to muscles of abdomen and back, and occasional twitchings of those of back, as in tetanus. Pains in lumbar muscles, chest and shoulder-joints; in l. ankle, l. upper arm, l. hypochondrium and l. inguinal region; in muscles of shoulders and back, in knees and calves, with weakness; indefinite P. in hypochondria and various parts of extremities. Pressure in muscles of back and l. upper arm; painful P. in lumbar, dorsal and pectoral muscles. Bruised feeling in muscles of back and chest. More susceptible to wine than usual. Restlessness; at night on account of rush of thought and palpitation. Weakness; in evening, with rapid and weak pulse; of vital powers; of vascular system; painful, of muscles on slightest exertion. Stiffness of muscles of nape and forehead. Aggravation of symptoms in muscles when sitting. Amelioration in open air. It is said that placing the hands in cold water will stop the effects (see Jalap.).

Mind.—Delirium and insensibility. During painful diarrhoea an ecstasy as if an ideal had appeared to a poetic painter, or like that which sometimes comes to a dying person, with bright eyes directed upward, a feeling of pleasant warmth and ethereal lightness. Anxiety, with burning in stomach and coldness of body; A. at night, constricting chest and preventing sleep till towards morning. Easily disturbed by anxious events. Little inclination for anything, laconic. Forgot the events of his illness, except the earliest symptoms.

Head.—Aching. Heaviness. Confusion; and almost loss of ideas; and stupefaction. Vertigo; on raising head, with pain; with restlessness. Sticking now in r., now in l. half of forehead. Frontal pain; with heaviness; externally, and pain on r. zygoma; in muscles; pain in l. frontal and temporal muscles. Pressure in temples. Pressure inward in temples; all day when in the house; extending to crown, > open air, returning on entering house; with throbbing pain, afterwards extending now and then to crown. Pressure in occiput.

Eyes and Ears.—Pupils contracted; dilated. Trembling of l. lid; upper. Itching of lids; on margins, > rubbing, with smarting. Vision of black points; of bright and dark spots. Sticking in l. ear; deep. Aching in r. ear. Roaring in ears. Difficult hearing. Deafness.

Nose.—Ulcers, and in mouth. Itching in nostrils, when eating. Sensitiveness on drawing in air, which seems cold though it is warm. Sneezing; with catarrh and discharge from nose. Catarrh at noon, with heat of head; sudden C., with sneezing, running from nose, frequent copious discharge of mucus, which soon became alternately yellow and white, with paroxysms of cough, with difficult expectoration, but in the intervals frequent easy hawking of large lumps of mucus, with intermittent headache here and there.

Face.—Pale and anxious; P. in afternoon, with dark rings below eyes. Aching in r. zygoma; in l. zygoma, gradually extending to r. and ending with aching in r. ear; A. in masseter muscles; contractive A. in l. masseter muscles. Lips cracked and painful. Ulceration of r. corner of mouth, with smarting and tension. Soreness of l. corner of mouth. Itching of lips in morning, with tension.

Mouth.—Sticking in a hollow tooth. Drawing in l. incisors. Rheumatic drawing in a hollow tooth. Burning pain in tongue. Numbness of tongue. Dryness at night; D. without thirst, then all night and in morning feeling as if mouth had been burnt; dry sensation, then real dryness of M. and tongue all night without thirst, then feeling as if mouth had been burnt, < night. Burning, and in throat. Salivation; thin; much spitting of saliva with the stools; frequent spitting all the morning, with metallic, bloody taste. Insipid taste, < back of throat.

Throat.—Pain along l. jugular vein. Sticking, < swallowing. Scraping; < chewing. Pain; burning. Soreness; of soft palate. Acrid feeling gradually extending to stomach, at last causing vomiting. Dryness; of fauces; of upper part of T. and fauces, with thirst, but dread of drinking on account of nausea, after several hours vomiting of food, with short hacking cough. Burning. Swollen feeling.

Stomach.—Appetite diminished; lost. Thirst; in evening. Less longing for wine. Eructations; of air. Nausea; after eating; > eating (Verat. v.); with salivation; with burning in stomach; intermittent; peculiar, in pit of stomach. Dreads to drink on account of nausea (Verat. alb.). Vomiting; easy, of much watery albuminous substance, with watery diarrhoea; frequent; copious; violent, also with violent diarrhoea (Verat. alb.); of all food (a few hours after Maderia wine).

Rumbling. Cramplike stitches. Cramp on stooping. Cutting in S. and abdomen, < pressure. Pain; with pyrosis; < pressure; rising into œsophagus; extending paroxysmally towards umbilicus and into œsophagus; in epigastric region; intermittent; drawing; jerking, in epigastric region; burning. Sensitiveness of epigastric region, < pressure. Anxiety in pit. Heat; with cramp rising into œsophagus; with copious easy vomiting; in S. and bowels, with nausea; extending to spine, repeated in rapid succession. Sinking in pit, with nausea; after soft stool.

Abdomen.—Distended; and soft; and tympanitic; and tympanitic, tense; and soft, with pain deep in umbilical region on slight pressure. Noises as of a liquid (Crot. tig.); < l. side. Noise as if a full bottle were emptied in evening, continuing after a thin stool at 10 P.M. Rumbling; all day, > going into open air, returned in warm room and lasted all the evening and night; all night; after stool; with desire for stool; with emission of flatus; with pain in transverse colon; with pain shooting through deep in abdomen. Movements. Emission of flatus. Gripping. Pain; in morning, with sensation of impending diarrhoea; in forenoon, with uneasiness in it and sinking feeling in stomach, as during violent diarrhoea; with heat in it; with desire for stool; < along spine, < pressure, with distention of abdomen and desire to urinate. Sensation as before stool, which, however, occurs only next morning.

Piercing pain in l. hypochondrium extending to lumbar muscles. Tearing deep in umbilical region, < pressure. Painful thrusts from umbilicus to lumbar region. Pain in umbilical region; in morning, with rumbling, emission of flatus and desire for stool; after soft stool; deep; extending into l. hypochondrium and l. chest. Crawling about U. in forenoon. Noises low down. Gurgling low down, with rumbling. Sharp pain in transverse colon. Aching in lower part, with inclination to stool. Pressure outward in l. inguinal ring on blowing nose. Peculiar tension in inguinal region. Feeling of tension and protrusion in l. inguinal ring on coughing or blowing nose, whereby l. leg is involuntarily flexed and drawn towards abdomen.

Rectum.—Soft hæmorrhoidal swellings. Stitches; in anus. Burning after stool. Violent crawling of worms in evening. Itching in anus at night in bed. Urging; to diarrhoea-like stool in morning; sudden, with noises as of liquids in abdomen (Crot. fig.), < l. side.

Stool.—At night. Watery, spurting from him (Crot. t., Elat., Gamb.); W., copious, then great relief; W., copious, mucous, frequent; copious, mucous, not unlike rice-water. Thin, preceded and followed by rumbling and at times noise as if a bottle were emptied. (Crot. fig.). Diarrhoea; violent (Verat. alb.); violent, with tenesmus; painless, with cramplike jerking in calves. Soft; and frequent, with nausea and much spitting of saliva; without relief of colic, which was > emission of flatus; for several days, then constipation, with pressure inward in temples. Hard; after the proving, and scanty, delayed. Delayed. Small, and in half an hour another. Frequent.

Clinical.—An extremely valuable and too little used remedy for profuse, gushing, watery diarrhoea, sometimes associated with coldness of the body and unquenchable thirst, frequently with rumbling and gurgling in abdomen, at times with vomiting of large amounts of albuminous-looking substances; it may be compared with Verat., but, as a rule, it lacks the violent pain of that drug. Cholera Asiatica.

Urinary Organs.—Spasm of neck of bladder (with every attack of nausea), with drawing pain and desire to urinate; spasm of bladder beginning with twisting pain in umbilicus, which extends to neck of B., these attacks, like the nausea, gradually > between 6 and 7 P.M., they are preceded and followed by noises of liquids in abdomen and by sour eructations. Slow oozing of clear mucus from urethra when walking and sitting. Stitches in urethra. Tickling in navicular fossa, with frequent micturition. Urging; after micturition; frequent; constant. Dysuria. Difficult micturition. Urine bright yellow; and frothy. Urine copious; in evening after exertion; and watery. Urine scanty, dark brown, clear. (Urine white.) (Blood with urine.)

Clinical.—Irritation of the bladder, most violent urging to urinate, with inflammation of the whole urethra.

Sexual Organs.—Aching, < r. testicle, with diminished urine; A. as after excessive sexual intercourse; A. in l. testicle. Drawing pain extending along inner side of r. thigh to knee.

Respiratory Organs.—Painful pressure in r. side of larynx at night, waking him, not painful on touch. Hollow cough at night. Short hacking cough. Respiration difficult. Respiration quick and panting.

Chest.—Stitches behind cartilages of l. sixth and seventh ribs; S. downward deep behind sternum; sudden S. to l. of ensiform cartilage, behind costal cartilages, arresting breath. Pain in l. clavicle; deep behind sternum; in region of l. third rib, above and inside nipple; in r. pectoral muscles; in l. clavicle in forenoon; in l. pectoral muscles, making respiration difficult. Throbbing pain in l. clavicle in morning. Constriction, with attacks of anxiety, preventing sleep. Tension in middle of sternum.

Heart.—Sinking feeling in præcordial region, with nausea, then soft stool. Violent beating; when walking slowly about the room; suddenly. Action irregular and weak. Palpitation; after moving about.

Pulse.—Rapid; and strong; and hard; throbbing; and large, full, almost jerking; and weak. Slow; and full; and full, soft. Irregular, of normal frequency. Small, thready, intermittent. Almost pulseless.

Neck and Back.—Stiffness of nape; of muscles of nape. Pain in muscles across back; in l. rhomboid muscle, in region of fourth and fifth ribs; in region of sixth dorsal vertebra. Stitches in lumbar muscles. Feeling of a thrust in muscles of small of back when walking. Soreness of small of back; and in rectum, as in diarrhoea. Painful stiffness of lumbar muscles. Crawling beneath skin of sacrum.

Extremities.—Spasms. Cramps in arms and legs; of hands and feet. Pain in l. calf, r. knee and r. wrist; on back of r. foot, on posterior surface of l. upper arm and in flexor surface of l. forearm; P. alternately in upper arms and r. calf, only when sitting; pressive and contractive. P. in various parts, < in wrists, toes and calves; drawing P. in various parts, in part seeming to be under the skin.

Upper Extremities.—Pain in shoulder-joint; in l.; in r. shoulder, extending into hand, < along ulnar nerve; rheumatic P. in r., then l. shoulder. Bruised pain in shoulder-joints; B. and stiff feeling in shoulders. Drawing in muscles of l. shoulder. Bruised pain in muscles of arm. Pressure in muscles of r. upper arm. Weariness of upper arms. Pain in elbows extending to tips of fourth and fifth fingers, with numbness and burning, causing insensibility. Gnawing in ulnar nerve. Aching along l. ulnar nerve; from elbow to tips of fourth and fifth fingers. Internal pressure in flexor muscles of l. forearm. Drawing on back of l. hand. Pain in metacarpus of r. thumb, extending to wrist and hand; P. in first joint of r. index, extending to tip; in first joint of r. thumb, extending to wrist, in morning.

Lower Extremities.—Gait tottering, body inclined to l. in walking. Tearing in l. knee and malleolus. Pain in hollows of knees; r. knee and l. calf on walking slowly in the room. Bruised pain in knees; when sitting; extending into legs and becoming seated in ankles. Cramp of legs and feet. Cramplike pain in legs, and cramp in calves, which become knotted (Cupr.). Scraping on inner surface of l. tibia. Painful pressure in external muscles of legs, with internal crawling. Compression in muscles of l. leg, < lower part of calf. Painful weakness of legs, < knees. Stiffness of legs when walking, with unsteadiness.

Calves.—Cramplike jerking, with painless diarrhoea; internal jerking and pressure in l. C. and toes, more towards inner angle of tibia and on inner surface of tibia. Sticking. Pain; in l.; in l., < towards tibia, with stiffness; when walking, with internal drawing in legs; drawing pain in outer part of r.; bruised pain in outer part of r.; bruised feeling, < when sitting. Pulsation in l. Stiffness; of l.; when walking in room; of l. and back of l. foot, with pressure.

Pain in r. ankle; rheumatic P. in l., < forenoon. Sticking in l. sole and l. calf, with pressure; S. in l. sole when sitting, with jerking. Heels sensitive when stepping on them. Drawing on back of right foot; drawing in balls of feet; rheumatic D. in l. foot, extending into ball of great toe. Rheumatic pain in ball of r. foot in morning. Twitching inward of r. toes. Sticking in l. great toe. Tearing alternately in toes and on back of l. foot. Pressure and drawing in great toe and on back of l. foot.

Skin.—Pimples on wrist and back of r. hand; hard, on middle of r. cheek; sore painful P. on nape; sore painful P. on bend of r. thigh. Prickling on back of l. hand. Crawling on legs and feet; in toes; l. great toe. Itching between r. index and middle finger and on palm; between first and second fingers in morning, > rubbing; between toes at night in bed; around mouth, > rubbing, with tension; between thumb and index, < then > rubbing; internal l. in fingers, < l.

Sleep.—Yawning, with nausea, salivation and eructations. Drowsiness; after vomiting, with heat. Dropped asleep every half minute, but was easily aroused. He is scarcely able to wake in morning and afternoon, must force himself to move, after which he feels better. Waking at 2 A.M. on account of an angry conversation which he had had in the evening, then dream of the conversation. Sleeplessness, with throbbing of pulse; all night, with tossing about. Incessant dreaming.

Fever.—Coldness, with shivering, clammy sweat, vomiting and diarrhoea. Shivering; with cold fingertips; with cold hands and blue nails; with cold feeling extending through abdomen, and the palms previously dry became moist and cold. Shivering in back; in spinal marrow; in region of lumbar vertebrae; creeping; up and down back; starting from lumbar vertebrae; deep in lumbar vertebrae, with desire for stool earlier than usual; extending into upper arms. Coldness in back; at times; deep in spine; extending into upper arms. Cold hands; and blue nails. Cold limbs; in evening; C. creeping through limbs, extending to scalp.

Heat; in evening. Hot skin, with rapid pulse and dry tongue. Heat in head; < sinciput; in occiput; in occiput, with confusion of it; in ears; in face; in face, as in catarrh; across back. Sweat; during sleep; profuse, general; cold.

Juglans Cinerea.

A tincture of the fresh, young, inner bark of the root of the "Butternut," collected in the spring, is used.

Generalities.—Loss of weight. Aching in various parts. Feeling as if all internal organs were too large, < l. side. Restlessness in afternoon, with pain in region of lumbar vertebrae. Weakness; with sick feeling. Faintness, > rising and moving about. Deathlike feeling, with chills and shuddering.

Mind.—Want to be alone, want to do nothing but eat and sleep, cannot think of concentrating my mind upon any one subject. Confusion so that I could not study. Dull feeling, cannot remember anything that I read. Absent-minded, forget what I am about.

Head.—Aching; in morning on waking, with yellow coat on tongue; in forenoon; in forenoon, < r. side; in evening; and I can hardly see; heavy, in morning. Feeling as large as a barrel. Vertigo at 11 A.M., with nausea; V., with faint feeling in stomach extending to abdomen. Fulness in frontal region. Pain in forehead; in r. temple in forenoon; in occiput in morning, > rising. Itching of scalp.

Clinical.—Occipital headache is said to be a characteristic of the drug.

Eyes.—Red and swollen. Burning in afternoon. Feeling as if drawn together. Loss of vision on sudden motion, with faintlike giddiness.

Nose.—Numbness at root; in bridge, > rubbing. Dryness. Watery discharge. Bleeding.

Face.—Pallor. Erythematous redness, with dry, burning sensation.

Mouth and Throat.—Tongue coated white; coated yellow in morning. Burning and pricking in mouth and throat. Taste coppery. Swelling of submaxillary glands, < r. Sore throat; in forenoon, with roughness; on swallowing; with swollen feeling. Fauces dry. Burning in pharynx. Pain in r. side of fauces.

Stomach and Abdomen.—Ferocious appetite. Thirsty, want to drink all the time. Nausea in morning; N. < night. Burning in stomach. Stitches in hepatic region. Pain in each hypochondria; in umbilical region; in abdomen after dinner, then diarrhoea, with burning in anus; in region of inguinal rings, with soreness on rising from a recumbent position; flatulent, in different parts of abdomen; heavy, in umbilical region. Burning in abdomen after stool.

Stool.—Bilious, copious, frequent, painless. Diarrhoea, with cutting in abdomen; D., with burning in anus before and after stool; painless, in forenoon; yellow, frothy, with tenesmus and burning in anus after stool. A drastic purge, producing irritation and inflammation of mucous membrane of bowels. Soft, with pain and flatulence in abdomen; S. and brown; and dark, sticky. Constipation; with griping in umbilical region. Hard, and in balls; H. and dark brown; and brown, difficult; first part H. and brown, latter part diarrhoeic and greenish-yellow. Small and brown. Dark brown.

Urinary Organs.—Micturition frequent and copious; frequent, with burning and smarting.

Chest.—Expectoration of dark blood. Pain in l.; in centre at times, by day and night, with foreboding feeling at night; sharp wrenching, in l. side at 6 P.M., when walking, with suffocating sensation under sternum, compelling him to stand still, which did not alleviate the pain, the attack being similar to angina pectoris. Oppression; hindering long breathing.

Clinical.—Angina pectoris, with suffocating pain behind sternum, especially < walking, has to stand still.

Pulse.—Rapid.

Neck and Back.—Neck rigid. Lame feeling in nape. Pricking up and down spine. Sticking under

r. scapula on stooping. Pain between scapulae; under scapula; under r. scapula, making breathing difficult; under vertical border of r. scapula, < moving the part and drawing a long breath; in region of lumbar vertebrae and r. sacro-iliac symphysis; in region of lumbar vertebrae in afternoon, with restlessness; in lumbar and dorsal vertebrae at night; in region of sacro-iliac symphysis, < sitting, also in forenoon, and in region of lumbar vertebrae; in lumbar vertebrae, extending through lumbar region and up spine. Occasional shooting in lumbar region.

Extremities.—Pain; in shoulder; r. axilla in afternoon; r. axilla, extending down arm; l. arm; elbows and knees; wrists, extending up arms; thighs and l. knee in forenoon; r. knee on ascending stairs; ankles; sharp, rheumatic, in shoulders and wrists; occasionally sharp, in calves; cramplike, in hip at night; arms and wrists, as if sprained by hard work; numb, in r. axilla, extending down arm along nerves; numb, in arms and wrists in forenoon. Numbness of l. foot when sitting still.

Skin.—Exanthematous eruption resembling flush of scarlatina. Eruption resembling eczema simplex on upper chest, with itching pricking when heated by overexertion. Pustules on thighs, hips and notes, with itching and burning, a few pustules on body, face and arms. Itching in spots, now here, now there; I. on arms, > scratching, with burning; head, neck and shoulders, with pricking; arms, with burning and redness.

Clinical.—Numerous cases of scarlatina; eczema; herpes circinatus; impetigo; lichen; erysipelas; erythema nodosum; ethyma.

Sleep.—Constant yawning, without sleepiness. Sleepiness. Sleeplessness; after 3 A.M. Sleep restless; and light. Sleep unrefreshing. Dreams vivid; frightful; frightful all night, and waking covered with sweat; troublesome; of being among Indians; ridiculous.

Fever.—Chilliness alternating with flashes of heat; C. along spine; beginning in back when near the fire, without coldness of flesh.

Juglans Regia.

A tincture of the hulls of the unripe, green fruit and of the green leaves of the European walnut is used.

General Action.—The skin symptoms of this drug and of Juglans cinerea are worthy of careful study and more extended application. Note also the marked action of both drugs on the bowels.

Generalities.—Muscles relaxed. Exhaustion and disinclination for the usual business.

Mind.—Excited in evening in bed as if intoxicated, and feeling as if the head were floating in the air. Peevish and discontented in evening. Disinclined to talk or quarrel, as was customary with him, mentally indolent.

Head.—Aching; after dinner and in evening; with flushed face. Feeling in H. and nose as in beginning of coryza. Confusion. Heaviness. Vertigo. Lancinations in forehead. Frontal pain; in l. side; above l. eye, and pain in eyes; above eyes, < motion; < shaking head or moving eyes; with yawning and sleepiness; above eyes, as if dizzy. Throbbing in temples, > going into open air, returning on entering warm room, with sharp pain in front part of head.

Migraine in a spot in region of l. parietal bone preventing speaking.

Clinical.—A valuable remedy for occipital headache; sharp shooting pains.

Eyes and Ears.—Burning in eyes. Aching and fullness in r., then l. ear, then discharge of pus from both ears, external ear inflamed and two painful sores on it. Burning in l. ear, then redness and swelling, then pimple on inside, then discharge of pus from both ears, < l., with burning and redness of l. external ear and feeling as if something dropped inside of ear at every step, and soreness preventing lying on l. side of head.

Face.—Swelling of l. cheek and upper lip, with swelling on gum over l. upper incisors, without previous toothache, then a hard reddish painful swelling in l. cheek, in the middle of which was a sharply-defined, depressed, dark red, yielding circle, pus could be seen through the thin skin, the apparently sound tooth was drawn and ichorous pus was discharged through the opening, then the swelling disappeared.

Mouth and Throat.—Tearing in hollow teeth, < warmth of bed. Tongue coated white; in morning, with bitter slimy taste. Tongue covered with white mucus. Salivation. Inclination to keep mouth dry after dinner, could not make up his mind to drink wine or water as usual. Taste bitter; T. slimy in morning on waking. Hawking of much mucus.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; lost. Aversion to tobacco-smoking in evening. Thirst increased. Eructations; violent; loud; tasting as after eating fat. Hiccough more violent after eating. Nausea; at 6 A.M., and after supper. Vomiting; woke suddenly, vomited food eaten four hours before, then slept without further trouble. Burning. Pain in epigastric region, with distention of abdomen.

Abdomen.—Distention; after eating; after dinner, with emission of flatus; with sudden desire for stool; so that he must loosen his clothes, with pressure in stomach; so that he could eat but little in spite of good appetite; tympanitic. Rumbling; with griping; with pain in epigastric region. Emission of flatus; < lying. Pain; > eructations; wandering; pressive and drawing, < motion, > appearance of menses (fifteen days too soon), then for eight days (instead of three as usual) copious discharge of blackish blood, often in large clots, with exhaustion and loss of appetite; drawing pain. Drawing, with pressure in region of spleen. Tension.

Sticking beneath l. lowest ribs. Pressure in region of spleen, with eructations. Pain beneath l. false ribs, < deep breathing, laughing or stooping; P. in l. side on rapid walking; P. over l. side, with wandering gripings in intestines; P. above umbilicus; P. in hypogastrium, with nausea. Sticking in hypogastrium on moving or stooping. Cutting in r. hypogastric region.

Anus.—Sticking at night, preventing sleep and obliging him to get up.

Stool.—Liquid; twice a day; preceded or accompanied by pain in abdomen. Thin. Soft, large, at last almost thin. Hard; and difficult; and difficult, scanty, delayed. Constipation. Bowels confined in morning, natural stool in afternoon. Large, then burning pain and pressure in anus. Scanty and frequent. Difficult. Omitted.

Urinary Organs.—Frequent desire from loss of tone of sphincter. Constant urging and involuntary dribbling. Obligated to urinate at night. Obligated to urinate often; and much at a time. Copious urine; but no thirst. Urine scanty; and clear. Urine dark red.

Sexual Organs.—Frequent erections. Burning in penis after coition with his wife, with abrasion where prepuce joins penis, afterwards a suppurating streak half way around between glans and prepuce, then the ulcer became larger, margins hard, base lardaceous, bleeding on slight pressure, often there was a small scab, from beneath which pus oozed and which often came off and left a suppurating ulcer, afterwards a healthy scab formed in the middle and fell off, leaving healthy skin, so that instead of one long narrow ulcer there were two small round ones, these healed and left no scar.

Clinical.—Menses early, black.

Chest.—Sticking; in lungs, not dependent on motion or respiration. Oppression.

Pulse.—Rapid; and full.

Back.—Stitches in sacral region.

Extremities.—Drawing pain as if sprained, in first phalanx and joint of l. thumb, < motion, and while in bed the same pain in r. great toe. Sticking and itching in r. leg and r. fingers. Drawing and paralyzed feeling in legs and knees, with weakness and with giving away of knees when walking, and a similar sensation in r. hand. Electric starts in forearms and hands wake him as he falls asleep. Weak feeling in r. hand. Intermittent pain in r. index. Sticking in inner condyle of knee and feeling of impediment when walking. Rheumatic pain in knee impeding walking. Pain in r. instep when walking and sensation of impediment.

Skin.—Eruption behind ears of children. Itching eruption over the whole body. Pimples on face; red P. on face, neck, shoulders and back, some containing thickish fluid; P. on nape, discharging moisture when scratched (like acne). Itching here and there; on sternum; on hands; r. hand; dorsum of r. hand, then on feet, forehead, scalp and abdomen; r. fingers in afternoon; legs, arms and abdomen at night, with tossing about and inability to sleep; here and there, causing restless sleep, with dreams and erections; on flexor surface of r. forearm, near elbow, with burning and red spot in the middle of which was a pimple, the redness disappeared, but the pimple was painful and pus formed.

Itching in r. axilla, with burning, skin sore and cracked, then red and scaly, it became moist, on margin of tetter burning vesicles, the tetter aggravated after perspiring much, the perspiration, with the secretion from the eruption, stiffened the linen and stained it greenish-yellow, the pain sometimes so great that violent motion of arms was impossible, there were always new vesicles and larger extent of redness after increased burning and itching, the same trouble in l. axilla, then a furuncle on shoulder, on coracoid process, then a painful furuncle over biceps, with circumscribed redness and induration, discharging bloody matter, then two red itching spots on r. elbow, upon which a yellow pustule formed, a furuncle, with induration and pain, between ninth and tenth ribs, with thick, bloody discharge, leaving an induration, about this time a red spot on arm near seat of second furuncle, becoming like an indurated gland, at this time on l. instep, then on r. redness, with itching and vesicles, leaving hard scurf, whereby the whole place became elevated and painful, the scabs were pressed in by the boots and rubbed off so that the part was raw, after healing the spot was bluish-red and swollen.

Clinical.—Comedones and acne of the face. Suppuration of axillary glands.

Sleep.—Yawning; in afternoon, with stretching. Sleepiness. Inability to sleep after dinner though inclined to do so earlier than usual. Restless sleep, with frightful dreams. Restless dreams.

Fever.—Cold limbs; after 9 P.M., with hot head. Alternations of coldness and heat over whole body, with heaviness of head, which after eating increased to pain, > after 3 P.M. Heat over whole body in evening; H. in flushes, with confusion of head; hot head in evening; hot hands at 9 P.M., with rapid pulse, then general sweat.

Kali Bichromicum.

Triturations of the bichromate of potash are used.

General Action.—A "tissue" drug, affecting the skin, papular and pustular eruptions as well as ulcers of characteristic shape; producing general catarrh of mucous membranes and frequently erosions or ulcerations (throat, nose, stomach, rectum); causing inflammation of the periosteum and of the ligamentous structures about the joints; causing also acute inflammations of the kidney, with albuminuria, sympathetic disturbance of the liver, etc.

Allies.—Puls. Cinnab., Merc. c., Phyto.; Kali in general, particularly K. iod., Iris, Rhus, Sin. nig., Ailanthus.

Generalities.—Anæmic appearance. Emaciation; with hectic symptoms. Cracking on moving joints of limbs and vertebræ. Cramps; in various parts, < calves and inner thighs, with gastro-intestinal inflammation; sudden, in lower limbs and nape. Stitches in different parts. Tearing here and there in body, in shoulders and hands; in r. thumb, then in l. upper arm, then along arches of l. ribs; in bones, concentrating in little toes, with crawling; in r. axilla and on posterior surface of l. thigh, with sticking. Drawing tearing suddenly jumping from one place to another (Puls.); and > moving the affected parts (Puls.); D. tearing here and there in morning on waking, < limbs, forepart of chest and between shoulders. Sharp pain in r. knee and hips, and l. breast and shoulder. Rheumatic symptoms. Rheumatic pains in different parts; in knee and chest.

Drawing pain in l. hand, in forearm and nape; D. pains during the day, < limbs; in small of back and in l. shoulder in morning, then drawing behind l. ear; in bones of face and of r. hand in morning; in various parts, < bones of face, in morning after rising; in various parts, always near bones, as if in periosteum or in tendinous expansion near it, in morning on waking; in morning on waking, in hands, feet, occiput and face, then pressure and drawing between shoulders before dinner, and tension in pectoral muscles; D. and tearing pains in l. teeth and in joints of limbs, suddenly changing their location. Drawing in zygoza and in bones of extremities; D. here and there in sheaths of muscles, in neck, back and limbs, in morning on waking, > rising; in l. little and ring fingers in morning on rising, then in l. side of face and in r. knee; in r. index and in spine in evening in bed.

Discomfort in morning, with uneasiness; D. after rising, prostration, < limbs. Feeling on waking of having caught a cold. General sick feeling; in afternoon. Indisposition, > open air, with nausea (Puls.). Paroxysmal venous excitement in forenoon, with uneasiness. Uneasiness, rolling over, tumbling about and nervousness. Sensitiveness to touch; to cold air in afternoon. Indolence, > beginning to work. Disinclination to rise from bed and move about.

Weakness; in morning; till noon; in evening; after rising, < limbs; after slightest motion; when walking in open air, with leaden heaviness of limbs, indifference, aversion to usual business, exhausting warmth, taciturnity, inability to collect my thoughts, and I cut short conversation to avoid showing the fact, desire to be alone, feeling better in open air; with sleepiness; < region of navel; even to sinking down; so that he trembled on attempting to rise. Paralyzed feeling, < r. foot. Almost complete insensibility. Stiffness and difficulty in rising in morning. Pain more severe in winter than in summer. Amelioration towards evening; after dinner; after eating; after a short sleep; from vomiting.

Clinical.—Rheumatism or rheumatoid pains, < smaller joints wandering from one place to another (Puls.). The rheumatism is apt to recur every spring. The pains are apt to appear and disappear suddenly and to change location rapidly, especially in chronic rheumatism. It is usually indicated in people, especially children, who are fat and sluggish.

Mind.—Good humor and inclination to laugh. Ill humor; and disinclination to business. Gloomy; in evening; during dyspeptic attacks. Anxiety rising from chest. Indifference, with distress in stomach. Discouragement amounting to ennui. Anthropophobia. Disinclination to mental work. Aversion to mental work after dinner (without physical indolence). Inability to attend to his usual business, > sleep, but ill humor, with distress and sickness, remained. Stupid, but answered questions well. Unconscious, pulseless, breathing slowly and with effort, skin cold, lower lip swollen and purple, tongue swollen.

Head.—Stitches, with chilliness; S. now in vertex, now in temples or occiput; tearing S., < temples and occiput. Tearing, < forehead and occiput, with stitches in temples. Aching; in morning on waking; in morning on waking, < forehead and occiput; in morning on waking, < vertex, > rising, then weariness and feeling as if he had not slept enough; towards noon; in afternoon, aggravated till dinner, then relieved; in evening; in evening, then feeling as if nose were stopped, with great heat of air coming through it, then nosebleed, preceded by burning in eyes and sleepiness; on waking, with thirst; after dinner, < forehead; > afternoon by nosebleed, at times with vertigo; < temples, with uneasiness of stomach and dim vision; with nausea; with prostration of limbs; with pain in eyes and frequent tearing in ears, then pain, < forehead, at times with ringing and pain in ears; at a point; < sides of vertex, extending towards temples; generally on one side and in a spot that may be covered with the finger; intermittent, < parietal regions; flying; nervous, in various parts after dinner; sore, with bristling of hair on vertex; burning, > warm soup, with vertigo and vision as if objects were enveloped in a yellow mist; heavy, on waking at 5 A.M.; throbbing, with sticking in a spot near crown, touching the hair at this place was painful, with nausea. Throbbing on bending forward.

Confusion; in morning during dyspeptic attacks; about noon, < forehead and vertex; < supraorbital region; sudden, about 6 P.M., with nausea, anxiety and dulness of mind, on account of the confusion and anxiety the night was almost sleepless. Heaviness. Fulness; < vertex, with heaviness. Feeling as if brain were too large and forced bones asunder, < temporal bones towards ears and parietal bones, the external meatus < l., sensitive and stopped. Lightness. Rush of blood. Vertigo; in morning on rising, < stooping, > walking, with heaviness; in evening; on rapid motion of head; when sitting writing, then sudden violent vomiting of white mucous acid fluid, pressure and burning pain in stomach, then relief, then vertigo, nausea and similar vomiting; > tea at 10 or 11 A.M., < stooping; with nausea; as if room whirled around on rising in bed, < lying down, with nausea; as if everything turned around, on rising from a seat, with pain in epigastrium. Vertigo in paroxysms; in morning on waking; in evening; sudden; sudden, when standing and walking.

Forehead.—Shooting; above r. eye in evening; across F. and in temples when walking, > rest. Darting pain, < open air; D. pain in a spot over l. eye in morning after rising, spreading over forehead, < motion. Pain; in protuberance; in bone every morning; in l. side in morning on waking; in F. and vertex in morning on waking, after rising it changed to occiput; in r. side in evening; in evening, > sleep, with pressure upon eyes; after dinner; and in occiput; then constrictive pain in vertex; extending to eyes; in arch of l. orbit, extending to l. upper jaw and causing increase of saliva; preventing sleep; sudden P. in bone along l. brow; in bone, postponing each day, in the later days a second paroxysm in evening, also postponing; in l. sinus in forenoon, as in catarrh; as after a debauch, on stooping; throbbing, in spots at angles, with dim vision. Heavy pain on r. protuberance; over l. eye in afternoon; above eyes, < cold air and motion. Heaviness. Lightness on stooping, < morning.

Temples.—Shooting; < lying. Darting pains; in l. Tearing in l.; in r. muscle, with drawing; T., with sticking; intermittent T. extending to occiput. Creeping pinching on bones in forenoon. Intermittent pressure during the day. Attacks of throbbing pain in l. bone, extending to vertex, at first only after 4 P.M., after four days in morning, with nausea. Intermittent heavy pain, < cold air and motion; frequent H. pain in r. after eating, with craving in stomach. Drawing pain in r. Drawing, and in joint of jaw; in aponeurosis of l. muscles. Tension of muscles. Compression in evening. Confusion of r.

Pain in vertex. Pressure on vertex; at noon. Constriction of vertex towards noon. Sticking in r. side of head and in whole occiput; in r. side, extending into r. ear and r. side of face. Attacks of lancinations in r. side. Stabbing and pain as if head were opening in a spot in l. parietal region, < night, then a hard lump. Darting or aching in one side. Cutting along r. parietal bone. Pulsative pain in l. parietal bone.

Tearing in r. occiput. Biting in occiput. Pain from O. to forehead (after discharge from nose stops).

Pressure in O. in forenoon. Sudden stitches through skull. Sensitiveness of bones here and there. Drawing in skull. Falling of hair. Inflamed pimples on occiput and hairy part of nape. Crawling constriction of scalp. Tension of scalp. Itching points towards nape, as from coming pimples. Itching of whole scalp, with burning and with pimples in various places.

Clinical.—Neuralgic headache confined to a small spot, with dimness of vision; (the observations of cures of "sick-headache" by this drug do not differ in any way from those cured by Iris).

Eyes.—Sunken; and glistening, with dark rings about them. Swelling in morning, with heaviness. Inflammation; in morning, with yellow discharge and agglutination (Puls.); with loss of vision. Ophthalmia beginning with itching, then pain and heat in eyes, agglutination of lids, redness of conjunctiva. Stitches in r. Smarting; < open air. Sensation of sand in them. Sensation of a foreign body in l. Pain; in r.; < looking long at an object. Sensitiveness; and margins of lids red, a yellow purulent substance in inner canthus in morning. Heaviness and soreness. Biting. Itching; with burning lachrymation and photophobia; < evening and night, with pain as from sand in them.

Burning; in l.; in morning, with redness of l. towards outer canthus; in morning on waking, < margins of lids; in morning after rising, smoking causes burning and lachrymation; in open air in forenoon, with pressure; in evening; in r. in evening, and in skin about it; in open air in evening, with pressure; in l. in evening, with lachrymation; in evening, < margins of lids, which are sensitive to touch and motion; in E. and lids after dinner; in r. and inner surface of upper lid after dinner; on fixing them upon an object, with dim vision; with pressure; with running of water from nose; with indescribable discomfort in nose, though accustomed to smoke every inspiration through nose caused sensation like sulphuretted hydrogen.

Lachrymation; with burning pain in eyes. Pupils dilated; and fixed. Pain in ball. Pressure on surface of r. ball in forenoon, with burning. Soreness of caruncula. Redness of conjunctiva; < r.; with heat and uneasiness as when opened under water. White granular elevations surrounded by redness, on l. conjunctiva, towards inner canthus. Pustule on l. cornea, with surrounding indolent inflammation and with pricking pain. Leucoma on l. cornea. Brown spot in r. albuzinea. Red spots and streaks in white of l. White became yellow; dirty yellow, seemed loose, with yellowish-brown dots, < l., which also showed a brown spot near inner margin of cornea, with heat of eyes and necessity to rub them.

Lids.—Redness of margins; towards external canthi. Swelling of r. in morning on waking, till evening; S. of upper, with redness; S., with inflammation. Mucus in canthi; dry M. in lashes in morning. Agglutination in morning; and white of eye reddish-yellow, with itching of eyes, eyes weak and drawing back in orbits; with pain in lids on touch and lachrymation; with lachrymation, photophobia, itching and burning. Granular. Twitching in r. when reading and afterwards. Stitches. Smarting of external canthus. Raw feeling in margins. Roughness of margins, so that winking causes rubbing against balls. Inner surface felt thick and rough.

Heaviness of upper in morning on waking. Dryness. Itching; in canthi. Burning pain in external angle of l. eye; B. pain in margin of r. lower lid. Burning; and on surface of balls, with pressure in balls; on inner surface; in r. inner canthus on waking, then extending over margin of lower lid, < writing. Burning in margins; in morning; in forenoon, with itching and on moving them sensation as if they rubbed against ball; at noon; in afternoon; in evening, with running of water from nose, < towards outer canthus; of lower, < writing.

Pressure about orbits. A spot on r. lachrymal bone is swollen, pulsating and painful. Vision dim; in evening on walking; confused; weak; flickering; flickering at noon, muscae volitantes, so that he could scarcely write; V. as if a black plate were before eyes at the distance of ten paces, then sensation as if a veil were drawn up and down, then the first sensation, then vertigo, then headache, < frontal and orbital regions, at times with sticking in eyes and tearing in ears, > 9 P.M. Photophobia, with jerking of lids, lachrymation and burning in eyes, the P. < afternoon, > towards evening.

Clinical.—An extremely valuable remedy for a variety of inflammations of the eyes; catarrhal inflammation of the conjunctiva generally of an indolent character, without much photophobia and with rather scanty exudation; it is used successfully in granulated lids with pannus; it is certainly very frequently indicated in ulcerations of the cornea, which are small and perforating, generally without much photophobia; sometimes indicated in subacute scrofulous inflammation of the cornea or cornea and iris. Subacute iritis in the later stages, especially of the syphilitic variety (compare Kali iod.).

Ears.—Inflamed swelling at entrance of l. meatus. Sticking; in l. and in parotid gland; in l. and in l. outer side of throat; in r. in forenoon; in l., extending into palate, l. side of head and l. outer cervical region, the later painful to touch and glands swollen; through external meatus, extending into r. ear, in afternoon when walking; drawing S. through r. external meatus, then roaring in head as of a distant noise. Tearing. Pain in evening; in r. Pressure outward in l. mastoid process. Drawing extending into lower jaw, with salivation; D. behind r.; D. behind l. and on l. lower jaw, with tension of l. cervical muscles. Stoppage of r., with burning in concha. Ringing. Singing. Roaring.

Clinical.—Chronic suppurative perforation of the drum and discharge of yellow tenacious pus. Eczema of the ears externally, with watery oozing. A few cases of threatening abscesses about the ear, with great swelling of the external meatus, terrible pains.

Nose.—Swelling and pain; S. of alae. Septum ulcerated away; in upper part, as far as its articulation with vomer and ethmoid, and purulent inflammation of whole nasal mucous membrane; septum dotted with minute ulcerations. Scab in l. nostril, bleeding always on removal. Twitching in l. wing and crawling like formication, extending over side of nose to eyelids, where it caused twitching. Shooting from root along l. orbital arch to outer angle of eye (compare Cinnab.), every morning, < till noon, > towards evening, with dim vision. Pricking, with sneezing, then the membrane begins to be thrown off, septum becomes thin, perforated, then detached. Sticking in r. side on blowing, as if two loose bones rubbed against each other, with discharge of greenish offensive masses, every portion which passed through posterior nares had a disagreeable taste, then r. nostril was filled with hard masses, ulcers in external bor- ders of nostrils, ulcers burn, < l. nostril, then sensitiveness of tip of nose, < r. side.

Burrowing inside root (in ethmoid bone?), with beating and externally heat and throbbing rhythmic with pulse, nose swollen at root and hot, nose seemed thick and full, she spoke through it, inclined to blow it on account of a thick substance in it, but nothing was expelled, heaviness as if a weight were hanging to it. Pain; in root (Ign.); in bones (K. iod.); in r. bone; in bones in morning; in septum, < touch, with burning. Pressive and smarting pain in margins of nostrils, with swollen feeling. Tensive drawing pain extending from r. nostril into r. auditory canal. Sore pain on r. side of septum, < touch; then a burning. Soreness; a yellow scab on outer surface of septum, chiefly at junction of septum with lip; of mucous membrane; in r. nostril, and dorsum painful to touch; as if nostrils were stiff; margins feel sore.

Sensation as if water had been drawn up violently. Burning; inside near lip; in r. side near tip; in forenoon, and in upper lip; in outer margin of r. nostril in evening; in r. nostril after dinner, < touch; in r. nostril, then trickling of bright blood. Coldness in r. nostril on drawing in air. Tickling; in l. nostril; in l. nostril, extending upward, in evening in the house; with itching and with crawling in l. side of nose and twitching in margin of l. lids. Itching; < rubbing, with tickling. Stoppage (Sin. nig.); in morning on waking; of l. nostril in morning on rising, with discharge of thick yellow mucus. Frequent need to blow it after dinner, though there was nothing in it. Full in morning on waking.

Dryness (Sin. nig.); r. nostril; in morning on waking; in morning on waking, then discharge; of r. nostril in morning after rising, with burning; in evening; with pain in root, as in beginning of stopped catarrh, extending to temples and affecting head; with swollen sensation, the walls feel stiff and velvety (K. iod.); with sore pain in r. nostril; with tension in wings and septum; and cavities dilated; towards root, extending into frontal sinuses (K. iod.); with sore feeling and with burning, < r. nostril, extending to frontal sinuses; of margins, which are covered with thin scales; sensation in middle of l. ala as if dry or denuded; dry and painful except in morning, when there was a watery discharge; after dinner cough forced black coffee into nose, which caused dryness and pain in nose.

Sneezing (Iod.); in morning; after eating; after dinner; on lying down in bed; with lachrymation of r. eye; with pressure in upper part of larynx, which extends through choane into nose; in paroxysms; violent. Coryza; sudden, < r. nostril; fluent; purulent. Plugs. Chinkers, which if torn away too soon cause soreness at root of nose and intolerance of light. Always full of thick mucus. Discharge; in evening (Puls.); with swelling; from r. nostril; from lower part; increased secretion after dinner, with sore pain on margin of nostril; of mucus streaked with light-colored blood; scanty, acrid, causing burning on septum; acrid, from r. nostril; thin, acrid. Thin discharge; from r. nostril; with burning in outer margin of septum as if sore. Watery discharge; in morning, causing burning of upper lip; towards noon; from r. nostril; causing corrosive pain on outer margin of septum; from r. nostril, causing burning on margin of nostril and on upper lip; with redness of nose and fetid smell; with soreness, sneezing and snuffling in speaking; unnoticed, from r. nostril; sudden, from l. nostril; from r. nostril, then dryness of nose.

Bleeding; from r. nostril, waking him in morning; in morning on washing; from r. nostril in forenoon after moderate walking; towards noon; in evening; from r., waking him at night; after eating; sudden during dinner, and in evening; bright blood from r. nostril after beer during supper; thick dark blood from r. nostril after eating, then tickling in nose extending into throat; blowing of thin blood into mouth. Smell very acute; offensive; imaginary putrid, with eructations and taste of rancid bacon; blunted; lost.

Clinical.—It has been used for a great variety of diseases of the nose, but a general characteristic is the peculiarly tough, adherent secretions; these may exist in subacute or chronic inflammation of the mucous membrane or there may be ulceration, but the ulcers are usually round and deep and do not spread laterally; (the ulcers of Merc. are extensive and superficial). The sensations in the nose are usually those of obstruction and swelling, especially pressure at the root, sometimes with violent pain extending into the cheek-bones or around the eyes. In a few cases it has cured catarrh with watery excoriating discharge, but in these cases there were generally adherent scabs in the nose covering ulcerated spots. The formation of "clunkers" in the nose, the detachment of which leaves very sore places or ulcers, is a strongly-marked characteristic of the drug. Nasal polypl.

Face.—Swelling; of r. cheek, < over malar-bone. Flushed; cheeks. Pale; and sickly; and cold; and drawn, covered with cold, clammy sweat; and cadaverous, covered with cold sweat. Ashy gray. Yellow; and earthy. Anxious. Uneasy expression. Sticking through r. zygoma towards forehead. Tearing in l. side; periodical T. in bones. Acute pain in infraorbital part of malar-bones. Pain in bones, < infraorbital region and in nasal bones; P. in side, < zygoma and towards ears, r., then l.; in cheek-bone in evening. Pressure outward in zygomatic process. Sensitiveness of bones (Aur.). Bruised pain in bones, < facial side of upper jaw. Sore burning in fossa between r. wing of nose and cheek. Tension of muscles; making features rigid, a sickly expression; of masseters, with drawing and salivation.

Jaws.—Tense circumscribed elevation beneath pericostem of l. ramus. Stitches towards l. ear. Sensitiveness in upper, < beneath orbit. Burrowing in rami. Boring in l. side of lower in evening; intermittent B. in l. side of lower. Pressure below orbits after breakfast.

Lips.—Swelling under nose in forenoon, with redness; S. beneath r. nostril, with redness and blisters. Pimples on upper; on r. side of lower; itching, on upper and lower. Yellow scabby eruption over upper. Ulceration of inner surface; U., with indurated edges and smarting. Itching vesicles on margins, burning in evening. Itching of eruption, though it had begun to dry. Dryness in morning, with burning; D. in forenoon. Burning; beneath nose; on inner surface of upper; smoking burns lips, which are dry and tense.

Clinical.—Frequently a valuable remedy when the face is blotched, or when there is more or less indigestion and the face covered with pimples or acne.

Mouth.—Teeth. Stitches in l. molars and in an anterior upper incisor; in hollow and sound l. molars. Tearing in l. lower molars, with stitches extending into ears and l. temple; sudden drawing T. in all l. teeth, momentarily > pressure on lower jaw, lasting till towards midnight, next morning swelling of gum, which was painful near a l. lower hollow molar, at noon drawing tearing toothache on same side, with stitches in jaws extending to ear, temple and neck of same side, that side of neck sensitive to touch, cervical glands swollen, tearing in various parts of limbs, tongue coated yellow, in evening tearing sticking through head, at times cutting, with chilliness and flushes of heat in l. side of head and face, pulse rapid, next day intermittent tearing in l. lower teeth, with sensitiveness and with sticking tearing in l. ear, temple and side of neck. Burrowing in all l. after midnight. Gnawing in roots of all at noon. Boring in r. upper molars towards evening. Aching, with salivation. Sensitiveness; of upper incisors.

Gums.—Livid. Bleeding on sucking. Pain in l. upper, extending through lip to wings of nose, with inflammation, then an oblong abscess above eye-tooth, between lip and gum. Sensitiveness. Uneasy sensation in evening.

Tongue.—Smooth, red and cracked, during dysentery (Rhus., Merc., Ail.); red and dry. Papillæ very long on dorsum, with a brown patch. Coating; in morning, with dryness; thick, loose; yellow; yellow, except at edges; whitish-yellow; white; yellowish-white; yellowish-white, in morning, with nauseous taste and qualmsiness; in morning on waking, a light brown, on dorsum. Painful ulcer. Eruptive (tetterlike?) swelling which became depressed and out of its hollow oozed blood. Stinging. Pain at back of and on velum. Burning in tip.

Apathæ. Burning pimple on inside of l. corner, next day it was a painful ulcer surrounded by hard swelling, next afternoon burning in mouth, < inner surface of lips. Rough, papular, elevated appearance of velum. Excavated cicatrix on roof, from which a slough separated, no pain till separation of slough. A stream of thin blood comes into mouth. Constriction. Burning caused by smoking. Dryness (Rhus t., Puls., etc.); in forenoon; in forenoon, with bitter, astringent taste; < lips, without thirst. Salivation; after smoking; till noon; with nausea; with cooling, salt, astringent, metallic and then bitter taste, with salt eructations; watery, then frothy; yellow (Phyto., Merc.); sweetish-sour; salt, bitter, tenacious (Phyto., Puls., Merc.), full of bubbles, < smoking, forcible hawking loosened large quantities, with eructations of air. Breath fetid.

Taste.—Flat. Pasty in morning. Salt in afternoon. Bad; to water; on smoking. Musty in morning. Putrid. Of rancid bacon. Of blood. Sweetish; when smoking; after soup, then pressure in stomach; S. resinous, < middle of tongue, < if it touches hard palate, when smoking. Saltish-sour; sweetish-sour and astringent, after breakfast; cool-sourish on back of tongue and in throat in morning on going out, with nausea. Astringent at root of tongue; resinous, A.; sharp, A. when smoking, extending into fauces; sweetish A., with watery salivation. Nauseous; after breakfast, < root of tongue; on putting cigar into mouth; N., sharp scraping when smoking after breakfast; N., sharp astringent when smoking after breakfast. Bitter; in morning; on smoking; to the largely watered wine; B., pasty; B., resinous; B., pungent on back of tongue. Coppery. Metallic; sudden, at root of tongue and soft palate, with nausea and eructations; sudden, at root of tongue in forenoon and evening; sweetish; sweetish, < at root of tongue and on palate, < smoking; sharp, sweetish, resinous, nauseating, < entrance of fauces, after breakfast, < a glass of water; astringent, nauseous after dinner.

Clinical.—Syphilitic ulceration of the tongue. Aphthous inflammation of the mouth.

Throat.—On r. side of root of uvula, an excavated sore, with reddish areola containing yellow tenacious matter. Ulcers on tonsils and throat (Ail., Lyc. etc.), the surface of which was covered with an ashy slough, and the surrounding mucous membrane dark, livid and swollen. Uvula and tonsils red, swollen and painful, then ulcerated. Redness in morning on waking, with inflammation; R. of fauces, with relaxation of uvula; R. of fauces, with elongation of uvula and sensation of a plug in throat. Erythematous blush of fauces and palate; of fauces and tonsils. Coppery color of fauces and soft palate. Hawking of much tenacious mucus in morning; and gelatinous; H. of thick mucus in morning, also with sensitiveness of larynx and trachea; of mucus in afternoon; of mucus and copious expectoration of thick bluish mucus; H. expectoration of white frothy saliva.

Stitches; on empty swallowing; on swallowing and speaking, < moving jaws sideways, extending into ears, with redness of anterior surface of arch of palate; in l. tonsil towards ear, > swallowing. Soreness as from a broad substance covered with prickles, impeding swallowing. Feeling as if something were sticking in it when eructating. Feeling of adherent mucus in morning (Kali c.). Pain; in morning on waking; at palate on waking, > open air; on swallowing, < moving jaws sideways; with red spots as if ulcers would form on anterior arch of palate. Drawing pain here and there, at first in front between lower jaw and hyoid bone, then in ethmoid bone extending to behind ears.

Sensation of a hair in fauces. Scraping; in isthmus faucium, causing vomiting; in isthmus faucium, in open air, when most severe causing cough on every inspiration. Rawness; of pharynx; in morning; in morning, with frequent hawking from larynx; in night, with burning, causing hawking cough. Raw rasping sensation. Roughness, with hawking of mucus. Constriction of fauces. Coldness, with inability to swallow saliva quickly; C. in posterior wall, gradually increasing to a dry scraping that caused painful cough. Feeling as of rush of blood. Heat; in pharynx; compelling dry hacking. Dryness; in fauces; in morning on waking, with painful swallowing; after midnight, < upper part of larynx, as far as hyoid bone, with scraping and burning; with pain on empty swallowing, the D. changing after washing to the usual secretion of mucus; and saliva was salt; obliging her to swallow saliva, on swallowing burning. Difficult swallowing; > evening, then rawness and scraping in fauces, with salivation.

(Esophagus.—Choking on swallowing, then a stitch through upper part of r. lung. Sensation as if food remained in it. Burning.

Clinical.—Catarrhal inflammation of the throat, with tough mucus dropping down from the posterior nares; this mucus is so tough that it is difficult to get it out of the throat. Chronic inflammation of the posterior wall of the pharynx, which is dark and glossy. Ulceration of the posterior wall of the pharynx, with well-defined edges; cheesy exudation. Follicular pharyngitis. Follicular ulceration of the tonsils. Follicular ulceration of the fauces, with tenacious exudation. Diphtheritic ulceration of the palate, tonsils and pharynx, with very tenacious exudation, fetid discharge. Numerous cases of diphtheria have been cured. In all these cases we find profound prostration, soft pulse, tendency to perspiration, general lack of acute painful sensations, slight infiltration of the cellular tissue and very tough, adherent exudation.

Stomach.—Appetite. Increased. Ravenous on seeing food, the ill humor > eating, then shivering and chilliness, < limbs, alternating with flushes of heat and general sweat, with eructations tasting of food, nausea and salivation. Good at breakfast, soon changing to disgust, so that he had to leave the table. Hunger, with aversion after the slightest food. Diminished; for breakfast. Capricious. Lost; for breakfast; for dinner, but food was relished. Dislike to meat; to breakfast; to smoking all the forenoon.

Thirst; in evening; but the smallest amount of liquid causes return of nausea; burning; for acids and increased thirst after them; for fresh water; little. Longing for beer; in evening. Aversion to water; which has an unnatural taste.

Eructations; after eating; after breakfast; after breakfast, with nausea; empty; convulsive; salt; sour; offensive, sweet and of bloody taste; with taste of food; tasting of putrid fat. Hiccough; in evening, with waterbrash.

Nausea; in morning, and pituitous vomiting; at 2 A.M., but inability to vomit; in forenoon, > soup; towards noon, < evening; towards noon when smoking, with frequent spitting; during breakfast. N. after breakfast; with pressure in stomach; with sour eructations, then griping; with heaviness and tension in region of symphysis pubis and malaise; when walking in open air. N. on attempting to eat; after dinner; after coffee with milk, with salivation; after a glass of water, with pinching in abdomen; when smoking after a meal; after smoking; on moving about; from pressure on pit of stomach; < sight of food; < drinking coffee; < pressure on epigastric or hepatic region, which caused pain; > eating; > vomiting much food and mucus, with low spirits, pallor, blunted sensibility and weakness; N. in epigastric region; N., with headache; with vertigo and confusion of head; with hot eructations and sweetish flat salivation; with shooting in stomach, then vomiting; with chilliness; with coldness, trembling and hunger; in attacks; intermittent, after breakfast: sudden, after a moderate dinner; sudden, with headache, then vomiting and purging. Retching; violent, causing cracking in abdomen.

Vomiting; with violent retching, also after breakfast; in evening after black coffee, with effort, with vertigo, burning pain in stomach, general anxious sweat and shivering, the ejecta in forenoon consisted of food but in evening of bilious fluid; of a pinkish glairy fluid; of clear watery fluid; resembling the rice fluid in cholera; milk is ejected (pink), with very sour smell; of white mucus containing a clot of bright blood; of mucus and blood, also violent; sour, on stooping or moving, with pain at epigastric; of undigested food; of contents of stomach, with painful constriction of stomach, then persistent retching, then relief; sudden, forcible, of contents of stomach after breakfast; greenish V. and purging; greenish bile, then watery mucus; of a pea-green, bitter liquid, with sensation as in seasickness, bursting sensation in blood-vessels of head, smell and taste keen, the nausea < Ipecac. < Camphor, with general chill and shivering, trembling, cramps in stomach, then soreness and aching at pit of stomach; of a brownish-yellow pappy matter; light yellow, insipid fluid when walking in open air; frequent, of pure yellow bile, with mucus, preceded by nausea and retching, then hiccough; frequent, preceded by ineffectual efforts, yellow, sweetish, at last bruised pain in upper abdomen, then difficult ejection of a dark brown, bitter substance; violent, yellow, with violent purging; repeated, violent, of yellow, bitter, bilious matter, with headache, fine scorbutic eruption covering face, taste bitter and salt, thirst, external flushes of heat and internal chill; difficult, from the mildest beverage, mucous, bilious, yellow, sometimes bloody.

Distention; in evening after eating a little, also < motion, > rest, with pain on pressure and inability to bear clothes tight. Incarceration of flatus in S. and hypogastric. Stitches after dinner in epigastric, breast into nipple (male) and in r. hypocondrium. Cramp; alternating with griping in umbilical region, preventing sleep after midnight. Gastralgia in a spot a hand's breadth above navel after dinner, > towards evening, with anxiety in pit of stomach and sweat on upper lip. Gnawing in epigastric in morning, with emptiness. Pain; in pit; in region; in epigastric; in morning, with discomfort; in morning on waking; in forenoon, and in upper abdomen; in epigastric region in evening; after eating, with burning; in epigastric region after dinner; in epigastric and abdomen. < pressure; > tobacco-smoking, but returning and lasting till going to bed; < pressure of clothes; at greater curvature, with weight; agonizing, in epigastric, with dizziness, sparks before eyes and weakness of legs; in pit, increasing to cutting, with bruised sensation in epigastric and retching.

Frequent sensation in epigastric region like the last stage of seasickness, a twisting and constriction. < every step, > rest, with intermittent rush of blood to head and with exhaustion and indifference. Burning constriction in anterior surface before dinner, < pressure, with nausea and salivation. Wavelike contraction at 4 P.M., extending to chest. Tightness in evening fasting, extending to chest. Oppression in pit, with smarting burning pain, then tough, light-colored sputa. Load; in pit, then pressure, with nausea, rancid eructations and griping in upper abdomen. Sore feeling in pit, with pain on pressure.

Indigestion. Disordered by meat; by anything but the mildest food; D., with general heat at night, yellow-coated tongue, gnawing at epigastric. Discomfort in epigastric region, increasing when walking in open air to nausea, and almost faintness. Uneasiness; about greater curvature, as if overloaded; waking him, with soreness and tenderness, < a spot towards l. of xyphoid cartilage, with dry mouth, nausea, restlessness and wakefulness, heat of hands and feet, then sweat of hands, feet and legs. Heartburn; in evening after tea; in waking in middle of night; after dinner. Burning pain; in pit. Burning; in afternoon; after dinner; with salivation; extending into throat; extending into mouth, or soreness, also on waking. Coolness; and in bowels; uneasy, in epigastric region, then constriction, impeding respiration.

Anxiety; in pit; in pit at 11 P.M., with warmth, waking me, then expectoration of blood, with short paroxysms of cough and rattling in air-passages, the cough and easy expectoration of blood repeated every two hours, next day posterior wall of pharynx dark, glistening, swollen, injected with bright red vessels, and to the l. a fissure from which the blood issued, on swallowing sensation as if a dry morsel stuck in throat, frequent, sudden hoarseness and then scraping on posterior wall of curtain of palate and in choana, often tenacious, metallic-tasting mucus was drawn from these parts, also boring drawing pains in bones of limbs (as often as the troubles in throat were relieved, and vice versa). Faintness; before breakfast; but want of appetite. Feebleness in morning.

Clinical.—Dyspepsia; especially associated with nausea and vomiting; nausea and vomiting of drunkards; nausea and vomiting, with ulceration of the stomach; with soreness in a small spot in the stomach. Dyspepsia resulting from malt liquors, with flatulency, oppression after eating, nausea and vomiting of mucus. Acid dyspepsia, with sour vomiting coming on an hour or so after eating (Puls.). Gastric catarrh, with vomiting of glairy mucus, tongue thickly coated.

Abdomen.—Distention; after eating; after dinner, with discomfort; with sensitiveness. Rumbling; after stool; after breakfast, with gripping, then a second thin stool, then retraction of anus and nausea; with discomfort about umbilicus, with profuse, pasty stool, then tickling in rectum. Gurgling. Movings. Emission of flatus; offensive. Ulceration. Gastro-intestinal inflammation, with cramps in various parts, < calves and inner part of thighs. Sudden contractions in intestines, with nausea, then pasty stool, then burning and tenesmus in anus.

Sticking; extending towards spine. Cutting; in all directions; towards noon, < parietes. Gripping; in morning, then semi-liquid stool, with rumbling; when walking in forenoon; from a draught of air, with gripping; with intermittent nausea; occasional. Pain; with diarrhoea. Sore to pressure. Constriction. Tension; in evening after chocolate, with heaviness in stomach. Burning after stool.

Rumbling in colon, < inspiration. Cutting in l. side, increasing and decreasing in paroxysms. Gripping in upper; on going out after breakfast, and in middle, so that sweat stood on forehead. Spasmodic constrictions of upper. Region of sigmoid flexure tender. Sticking beneath umbilicus. Gripping beneath U. Pain in umbilical region; above and to l. of umbilicus; in a spot to r. of U.; in umbilicus after breakfast, rising into throat. Weakness above umbilicus on waking at 5 A.M. Midway between umbilicus and spine of ilium, in ascending colon, a tender point, which often bulges out.

Hypochondria.—Sticking; in l.; in region of spleen, extending into lumbar region, < motion and pressure. Sticking in hepatic region; till afternoon; in evening, < pressure; sudden, when walking rapidly. Tearing shooting in r. Sticking pinching in hepatic region after dinner. Boring in l. Aching in r.; posteriorly in liver; in liver, < full inspiration and cough; heavy, in hepatic region; circumscribed in l. Intermittent soreness in r. during the day.

Hypogastrium.—Sticking in r. flank, extending to l. clavicular region and acromion process and side of neck, < stooping, causing a stretched sensation, with restlessness and depressed spirits. Pain in l. groin darting through to r. Gripping as if something pierced bowels, < deep inspiration, > pressure. Pain in r. groin and r. hip; P. in groin as if a hernia would protrude. Bearing down towards r. groin. Uneasiness in r. iliac region on waking.

Clinical.—Duodenal catarrh, sometimes with jaundice, white stools dark urine, nausea, sometimes with soreness over the abdomen, with nausea and vomiting. Gastro-enteritis, catarrh, with discharges of stringy mucus. Gastro-enteritis, with bilious or bloody vomiting, prostration.

Rectum.—Urging before usual hour, urine before stool, after stool colic and debility; U., waking at 6 A.M., she could not reach the closet soon enough, a watery stool spurted from her, then tenesmus, U. and only a spoonful of liquid, but relief of discomfort in abdomen; ineffectual U. after dinner; U., but passage of only offensive flatus.

Anus.—Stitches. Dragging; after hard stool, then pressure in hæmorrhoidal vessels, then D. and pressure during dinner so that he could scarcely sit; > emission of flatus, with pressure; in hæmorrhoidal vessels after exercise, with burning. Pressure; in forenoon, with burning, desire for stool, sudden sweat, < face, disappearing suddenly, emission of only flatus; in hæmorrhoidal vessels in evening, when sitting after exercise. Painful retraction, < on days when there is no stool. Burning pain. Burning after stool (Iris, Sulph.); in forenoon, with pressure. Soreness; towards evening, < walking; after prolonged motion; with dragging in hæmorrhoidal vessels. Sensation of a plug in afternoon when sitting. Fulness of hæmorrhoidal vessels. Biting. Itching; when walking. Acute drawing from perineum into urethra.

Stool.—In morning on rising, then soreness in anus. Dysenteric attacks for several successive years, frequent bloody stools, with gnawing at navel, then ineffectual straining. Of brown frothy water, frequent, with tenesmus, pain in abdomen and nausea, then sudden complete rest. Liquid, involuntary; and two L. in quick succession, then burning in anus; semi-liquid, then gripping in intestines. Diarrhoea; profuse; constant, involuntary; constant, involuntary, of mucus and blood; greenish-yellow; partly diarrhoea-like, sudden, profuse, in evening, with gripping, then tenesmus. Pasty; then feeling as if too little had passed.

Constipation; with pain across loins; every three months. Hard, then burning and pressure in anus; H. and scanty, then burning in anus; H. and scanty; H. and lumpy; and unsatisfactory; and unsatisfactory, difficult; and difficult, painful; and infrequent, with protrusion of rectum. Bloody and painful. Pale, slate-colored. Copious, relieving abdomen, but return of pain after dinner; C. and dark, with tenesmus. Scanty, round, then burning in anus (Iris); S., pale, clay-colored, twice a day; S., twice a day. Frequent; and dark coffee-colored; two daily, the first normal, the second diarrhoea-like.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea of brown frothy water (compare with Rheum). Dysentery, with dry, red, cracked tongue, with painful tenesmus, stools gelatinous and bloody, aggravation in the morning. Dysentery occurring periodically in the spring, with the characteristic tongue. Dysentery, with drops of blood, tenesmus, without thirst or fever, with large insular patches on the tongue. Constipation, hard, dry stools, with burning in the anus (Iris).

Urinary Organs.—Sticking in prostate gland in afternoon, preventing walking. Escape of prostatic fluid at stool. Sticking in urethra, < after urinating. Smarting in urethra during micturition. Burning in bulbous wreath; B. in glands of urethra when urinating and afterwards; B. in navicular fossa when urinating. Irritation at orifice of urethra (male). Urging before the usual hour; constant U. Some time in passing urine. Frequent micturition, with burning after urinating; frequent M. at night, of copious, watery, strong-smelling urine.

Urine red, with pain across back. High-colored; and hot. Brownish. Turbid in afternoon, thick mucous sediment; T. at night, with copious sediment. Milky, contained pus, reaction acid. Scanty; and reddish (with pain in region of kidneys, etc.); and high-colored, with pearly-white sediment; with white film and whitish deposit. None passed. Mucous sediment.

Clinical.—Subacute or chronic inflammation of the urethra, on urinating it seems as if a drop of urine could not be expelled and it troubles the urethra for a long time; with these symptoms there is usually burning in the fossa navicularis and in the bulbous portion of the urethra after urinating.

Sexual Organs.—Itching of penis and rectum in evening; I. of hairy parts, increasing to inflammation, pustules, with itching and tearing, night restless, pustules united into an ulcer, in which paroxysmal stitches woke him at night. Pain in penis. Constriction at root of penis in morning after waking. Erections.

Clinical.—Venereal ulcers, especially true chancre, to which it seems particularly homeopathic, with the characteristic cheesy, tenacious exudation. Yellow, very tenacious leucorrhœa. Pruritus of the vulva, with great burning and excitement. Several cases of prolapsus of the uterus, particularly < hot weather.

Respiratory Organs.—Mucus; in morning; in bronchi and nose without real catarrh. Bronchitis. Dryness of bronchi; in morning on waking. Burning in bronchi when coughing. Larynx, mucus in morning; mucus, obliging hawking; ulceration and necrosis of cartilages; ulcerative pain; intermittent scraping, with hoarseness; soreness in morning on waking; pressure, < talking, speech refused its service; roughness in morning after rising, obliging hawking; irritation in morning, causing hawking; tickling at dinner; tickling, causing cough and clearing of throat; tickling extending into mouth and ears (preceded by pressure).

Hoarseness; in morning, with mucus in larynx; in morning on waking, < till noon, > eating, then aggravated, with at times scraping in larynx and hawking of thick bronchial mucus all day; in morning on waking, < till late in evening, with pressure and scraping in larynx, and in evening hawking of mucus; in evening, with dry cough; > expectoration of thick, tenacious, yellowish-white mucus; sudden, in evening; and rough voice.

Cough; when exercising; after meals; from tickling; from irritation in trachea. Irritation to cough; sudden, then dry, difficult cough; with expectoration of thick white mucus. Hard C, with weight and soreness in chest and expectoration. Short. Dry, in afternoon; D, then expectoration of dark tough mucus; short D, from tickling in larynx. Hawking, in evening, with hoarseness. Dry hawking; in evening; in evening, with hoarseness; with stitches in chest. Hard, dry, then expectoration of gray mucus of the consistence of white of egg. Dry, tickling, paroxysmal, with pressure in middle of sternum, extending to hyoid bone, when she coughed violently a taste of blood, at last with expectoration of sweetish-yellow pus from deep in lungs. Tickling C. as if an acid and acrid liquid flowed from choanae over certain of palate, uvula and posterior wall of pharynx, afterwards with expectoration of bright blood in paroxysms.

Cough, with expectoration of mucus; C. (with dyspnoea), < morning, with E. of white mucus "as tough as pitch" and which could be drawn out in strings (Cocc. cact., Lac. ac.); with E. of yellowish-green tough matter; thick yellow mucus with traces of blood; dense, transparent, lumpy mucus; thick, transparent, slate-colored, in morning on waking; C. from tickling in throat, with copious expectoration of thick lumps of bluish-white mucus; C. in fits from tickling at bifurcation of bronchi, with expectoration of reddish mucus; short hawking C, with expectoration of tenacious mucus, also white; short interrupted C. in morning, which loosens lumps of tenacious mucus, then sensitiveness of larynx; "stuffing" C, with pain at chest and yellowish, heavy, tough expectoration; loud C. from "stuffing" at epigastrium, < waking in morning, he then had a fit of coughing, with expectoration of tough mucus, with lightness in head.

Expectoration of tough mucus, so viscid that it drew in strings down to feet. Tough light-colored E. E. of mucus; thick; pasty; easy, white, salt.

Dyspnoea; in sleep; in morning on rising, as if mucous membrane of bronchi were thickened; < morning; with cough and difficult expectoration of black tough mucus. Stertorous breathing. Rapid breathing. Short breath, as if something tight around upper abdomen prevented deep breathing.

Clinical.—Catarrh of the larynx, subacute, generally without fever, but with very tenacious expectoration. An extremely valuable remedy in the late stage of membranous croup; (it is rarely indicated in the beginning, the pulse is soft, the child is weak, perspires, the cough is not dry, but hoarse, barking, the expectoration is very tenacious and gags the child, who sometimes tries to vomit; the constant sawing respiration, with the harsh rough voice and cool skin, is a general condition calling for this drug. Spasmodic and chronic bronchitis, with great wheezing and very tough expectoration, which must be pulled out of the mouth to prevent vomiting and choking. In bronchitis the cough is apt to be barking, croupy, it seems to come from low down in the chest, < eating. In all these cases the cough generally < morning, > warmth, sometimes > lying down, < eating.

Chest.—Sticking in sides (Kali c.); in inner surface of sternum in forenoon; in region of l. nipple in forenoon, renewed on deep inspiration; in evening; in upper part of r. lung on sneezing; through chest, < r. side; beneath one pectoralis major, at another time in an intercostal muscle; irregular, in integument; superficial, in r.; sudden, in inner surface of sternum; tearing, in whole l., from axilla to flank, as if in costal pleura, in morning on waking. Darting pain in mamma (female); from middle of sternum to between shoulders, on coughing. Sharp pains. Pinching in upper part of r. lung, < violent motion to sticking, next day sticking so that he must incline to right when walking and take short inspirations.

Pain; beneath sternum; in r. mamma; in r. lowest ribs; under l. axilla; in pectoral muscles beneath axillæ; in region of clavicle; in a spot to r. of centre of sternum, next day stitches there; in a spot in upper lobe of r. lung in forenoon when sitting, then drawing internally along r. chest; in r. in evening penetrating to back; in middle of lung on waking at midnight; on pressure towards middle and to l. of sternum; on deep inspiration; in region of three last true ribs, < deep inspiration; circumscribed, in r., < inspiration; in l., in region of seventh rib, next day sensitiveness to touch; in forepart, in region of l. fifth and sixth ribs, as if in costal pleura, with burning, then in evening beneath r. axilla; so that he could scarcely turn over in bed, get up or walk on account of aggravation of pain in muscles and bones, the latter seem broken, next day these pains extended over cervical region, < turning head or lifting arm, impeding respiration.

Pain consisting of pressure and sticking, in a spot in costal pleura, in region of l. seventh rib, in evening. Burning pain in middle of sternum; sudden B. pain as from a knife-cut in centre of chest, beginning under clavicles and extending from region of lower ribs, < centre of chest, < deep breathing, but forcing him to respire deeply, > warmth. Intermittent heavy pain in r., passing through to back, then tearing. Rheumatic pain between r. seventh and eighth ribs, at angles, < raising or twisting body to l. Soreness; in evening, < region of wall; under sternum, like an ulcer under skin, causing pain on lifting arms.

Pressure, waking about midnight and preventing sleep till daybreak; frequent P. in forenoon, < beneath sternum; P., with intermittent anxiety; anxious P. at night, taking away the breath. Oppression; at night, < region of bifurcation of bronchi, compelling him to take a deep breath with the aid of pectoralis major; in lower part on deep inspiration, with sticking. Tightness; all the forenoon. Tension and constriction; T. in r. half, at insertion of pectoral muscles; T. in anterior wall on deep breathing; externally in l. in evening when walking; drawing, in r. side, < ascending stairs and deep breathing, with pain. Drying of lungs in evening, with rawness.

Heart.—Sticking. Cramp in region. Darting pain in precordium. Sharp irritative pain in region of apex. Pain; in evening; several hours after dinner; with palpitation and anxiety; preventing sleep; cold, heavy, in cardiac region, with tightness of chest and dyspnoea. Trembling on pressure upon region. Palpitation in bed, with pain in region of heart.

Pulse.—Rapid; and full; and full, hard; and small, sharp. Irregular, small, contracted. Slow; and full-form. Depressed and small. Weak; and fluttering. Scarcely perceptible.

Neck.—Glands swollen and sore to touch. Tearing on slightest motion. Pain in nape and l. shoulder in morning on waking. Stiffness; of nape; of nape on bending head downward.

Back.—Twitching in back and scapula as if liquid dropped on the flesh, it pulsates sharply like the key of a telegraph. Shooting. Pain from exercise; P. in different parts, > evening; running down on l. side into hip; rheumatoid pains in B. and limbs, as after taking cold. Drawing in all muscles, extending into upper arms, loins and thighs. Tension in muscular aponeurosis, < bending forward or moving arms.

Stabbing from third cervical to fifth dorsal vertebra, striking to sternum, < motion, with inability to straighten spine after stooping. Deep-seated shooting under scapulae at night; S. at lower angle of l. scapula, then in toe. Acute pain at base of l. scapula. Pain under r. scapula; at lower angle of r.; deep-seated, at upper angle of l.; drawing P. in l. S. and l. arm, extending into hand and thumb, in the joint and bone, > moving arm. Discomfort between scapulae. Undulating contraction of r. dorsal muscles on sitting down after exertion. Pain in r. side of spine, about ninth dorsal vertebra, with uneasiness in stomach.

Lumbar Region.—Sticking, < inspiration and cough; S. in l. side and l. groin after a meal; in l., then r., extending down thigh, < motion. Darting pain in renal region. Sudden cutting, < moving or turning, with scanty urine; C. on outer l. side of sacral bone, shooting up and down. Pain; in l. side between hip and last vertebra; in sacrum and coccyx in morning; in morning on waking; in coccyx in morning on waking; in coccyx in morning on waking and towards
