Pure precipitated Platinum is triturated with sugar of milk.

Allies.—Rhus t., Lyc., Aur., Puls., Sep., Bell., Verat., Hyosc.

Generalities.—Lies in morning on waking with legs spread out, r. hand under head, l. on pit of stomach, that is uncovered, or with legs drawn up and knees far apart, or with hands above head, also with erections, always on back, with inclination to uncover legs and body, though without heat (Hyosc.). Painful tremulousness of whole body, with throbbing in veins; tremulous sensation at times through whole body (Arg. nit., Gels.); T. sensation in hands and feet, then chilliness and trembling of whole body and chattering of teeth, with warm face and cold hands. Sticking through whole body. Bruised pain on pressure in the parts affected by cramp-like pain; B. pain here and there, suddenly disappearing. Drawing in various parts in succession; cramp-like, here and there, as from taking cold; jerklike, on r. side of neck, then in a hollow tooth, at last in ear, where it was a jerklike sticking.

Necessity to stretch in afternoon, which made her feel better. Weakness; in morning in bed, with sexual desire, so that she covered her face and wept hard; in evening, with sleepiness; after dinner, with sleepiness; in open air, even to sleeping; < sitting, with tremulous restlessness, feet tired out (Rhus t.); with sensation as if cold sweat would break out on face; even to falling down; as if she had slept but little. Numbness; painful, as from a blow, in spots, < head. If the mind is joyous the body is suffering, and vice versa. Symptoms all l.-sided. Aggravation in evening before sleep.

Clinical.—Hysterical spasms resulting from nervous excitement, especially with constriction of the esophagus, globus hystericus. Spasms during labor. Alternations of anaesthesia and hyperaesthesia. General aggravation from rest, relief from motion. Pains generally increase and decrease gradually (Stann.)

Mind.—Arrogant, proud. Contemptuous, pitiful looking down upon people usually venerated, with a kind of casting them off, in paroxysms, against her will (Verat.). Illusion on entering the house after a walk, as if everything were too small, all persons physically and mentally inferior, but she herself physically large and superior, the room seemed gloomy, with apprehensive, sad and fretful mood, whirling vertigo and discontent with the surroundings, all > open air and sunshine.

Lively, so that she could have danced, half an hour after weeping; lively for two days, everything seems joyous, could laugh at the saddest thing, then the third morning and evening sadness, with weeping even at joyous and laughable things and if she is spoken to (Ign.). Inclination to whistle and sing. Weeping mood after mild reproaches; W., < evening; > open air; and out of sorts with the whole world, everything seems too narrow (Puls.); with sticky tears; with aversion to eating; and laughing, yawning, again weeping, aversion to everything; so that she was vexed with herself, with silence. Feeling that he shall die soon; with shuddering at the thought. Thinks that she stands alone in the world. It seems as if she does not belong to her own family, everything seems changed after a short absence.

Anxiety; on attempting to talk in company, with palpitation; < walking, with palpitation; with trembling of hands and flushes of heat over whole body; deathly, as if her senses would vanish, with trembling of limbs, oppression of breath and palpitation; frequent, sudden, through whole body. Sad in morning, and fretful, next morning happy, especially in open air; S. and restless, she thought that she was not fit for the world, was weary of life, but had great dread of death, which she believed to be near; and morose, she sits alone, does not talk, cannot keep awake, then inconsolable weeping, < being spoken to; and quiet; suddenly.

Sensitive mood. Morose and discontented; M. all day, and anxious about heart; in morning, and indolent; and easily excited, he could have beaten any one without provocation; > frequent weeping. Quarrelsome; and spoke only when obliged to, abrupt. Earnest and taciturn, next day she made jokes and laughed at everything. Disgust for everything, no desire for anything. Indifference, does not care whether his absent wife dies or not. Vacillating mood. Disposition affected, < afternoon and evening.

Mental quiet, increased vigor, and inclination to think. Absent-minded; and forgetful; in the company of friends in the open air, and reserved, cold. Disinclination for mental work. Memory deficient.

Clinical.—Melancholia; a form characterized by great pride, extreme self-esteem. Mania, especially puerperal, with incoherent talk, at times very violent in her actions. Mental troubles associated with suppressed menses. Religious melancholia; great dread of death, palpitation, weeping; hysterical alternations of laughing and weeping.

Head.—Aching; as if tense; as if torn, after the vertigo; as if water were in it, waking her about midnight, with dryness and scraping in throat, ill humor and sweat, < face. Intermittent cramplike drawing constriction, < about forehead, beginning slight, increasing till violent, ending slight. Painful drawing in various parts. Confusion; tensive, like a board in front of head. Vertigo, < sitting down or descending stairs; V. so that she dared not move the eyes. < day, mostly with palpitation; in quick paroxysms, as if he would lose consciousness, in evening when standing.

Forehead.—Sticking in sinciput. Boring in middle. Burrowing in l. side after dinner, while walking in open air and afterwards. Pain above l. brow; beneath r. eminence, increasing and decreasing at intervals; cramplike, as if screwed in; wavelike benumbing, above r. orbit; bruised, in r. eminence. Intermittent compression. Sudden pressure inward in l. side. Pressure as if everything would come out, < motion of head, with weight upon head that presses eyes together and forces out tears, before the attack anxiety about heart, followed by stupidity so that she could not talk, headache < till 10 P.M. (it returned at the same hour several days), with anxiety, heat, redness of face and thirst.

Drawing from l. side into temple, where it is a pressure. Numbness in sinciput as if constricted, in a warm room full of people, increasing to burrowing compression, with fretful impatience and heat in upper part of body, < head, as if anxious sweat would break out, and in evening in cool air heat, and on beginning to walk shattering in brain as if a ball were beating against the skull, later in bed addition of whizzing in ears; tensive N. in sinciput as after a blow, extending to nasal bone. Dulness.

Temples.—Burning sticking in l., > scratching. Cramplike pain in r. in afternoon; in l. beginning gently, increasing and decreasing. Cramplike tension as if screwed in. Cramplike pressure inward; wavelike P. inward in l. Sudden spasmodic, contractive shocks through head from r. temple to l., then numbness as if bound, with tremulousness of sides of head. Crawling on r., afterwards extending down along lower jaw, with coldness in it.

Numb pain on top of head as if scalp would be contracted and as if a weight were on it. Pressure inward on middle of vertex. Sticking in l. side in evening in bed; intermittent corroding, in a spot on l. parietal bone. Sudden bruised pain in a spot on l. parietal bone. Pain in parietes at night as if lying upon a stone, obliged to sit up; P. as from a blow in r. side and forepart of head; in r. parietal bone, as if a plug were sticking in it. Jerklike drawing in sides. Cramplike drawing extending from l. side of occipital bone through head to lower jaw.

Clinical.—Periodic headache, which increases and decreases gradually, generally < stooping and > exercise in the open air. The sensation of numbness or a contraction of the brain accompanies nearly all the headaches of this drug, indeed numbness is one of the most frequent accompaniments of all the affections requiring Platinum.

Eyes.—Feeling of sand in r., with necessity to wink. Pain in the evening by the light and on exerting vision, at first an itching, so that she was obliged to rub them, then suppuration and pain, with trembling before vision so that she could see nothing and was obliged to close lids, then sleep. Smarting of r., with coldness in it. Sleepy pressure in forenoon, without inclination to sleep. Painless drawing about l., with dim vision and feeling as if eye were agglutinated. Heat, < in house, with sleepiness as if they would close, less pain on closing them, and on looking sharply at anything sensation as if they would water. Cornea red and inflamed. Lids twitch. Crawling in r. canthus. Margin of orbit, intermittent cramplike pain near r. outer; tensive pain as if pressed together in upper, and in eyeballs; sore biting on upper, as if denuded. Pain as from a blow on arch of r. brow.

Ears.—Sticking jerking in r. outer, with numbness and coldness extending through cheeks to lips. Intermittent sticking in r. meatus. Digging in r., with jerklike drawing in l. Cramplike pain. Tearing drawing in r., with sticking. Biting crawling in r. meatus. Ringing; in r., with crawling; then tearing. Whizzing every morning and afterwards, also every evening after lying down, with roaring. Roaring, with sticking in head; R. in r.; in r., with cramplike dulness in head; in r., as from the fluttering of a large bird. Sound of a wind, as if stopped, < slightest noise, so that it was difficult to understand what was said. Thundering jerks in r., like distant cannonading.

Clinical.—Nervous deafness. Otalgia, with sensation of coldness or numbness extending to cheeks and lips.

Nose.—Rhythmic cramplike jerking in l. wing. Cramplike pain in r. side of nasal bone, with numbness. Pulling above l. wing, as if pulled by a hair, then numbness as if a hair had been pulled out. Acrid biting. Crawling, with lachrymation and ineffectual attempts to sneeze. Increase of mucus. Stopped catarrh in one nostril, later on walking in open air fluent catarrh, then stoppage of other nostril, then again fluent coryza.

Face.—Pale, sunken; P., suffering expression. Bluish veins like varicose veins, on chin. Jerkings in chin, as if it had been knocked up. Burning sticking in l. cheek, necessity to scratch. Neuralgic pain in l. malar-bone. Bruised pain in l. mastoid process on pressure. Stupefying pressure in r. malar-bone and in whole half of nose. Painful cramplike numbness in l. malar-bone. Tense numb sensation in zygomata and mastoid processes, as if head were screwed together; tense numb sensation in chin, as if screwed in. Slow intermittent shocks beneath chin. Cramplike pain in l. side of lower jaw; on lower margin of lower jaw.

Lips.—Desquamation, bleeding, pain and in open air smarting. Vesicle on inner margin of upper, with sticking on touch; vesicles about outer margin of lower, with biting pain. Intermittent cramplike jerkings in upper in morning in bed. Smarting of inner surface of lower, and in gums; of inner surface, with painful feeling of looseness of upper; just below red of lower, as if denuded. Dryness and roughness; upper dry as if burnt.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia, a feeling of numbness especially in the malar-bones or a feeling as if the parts were between screws (Verbasum).

Mouth.—Teeth, numb pain in l. lower in morning after rising; drawing and throbbing in upper molar, then in lower; cramplike drawing; burrowing drawing in a hollow incisor and in a sound one. Tongue, burnt feeling, < rubbing it against teeth; burning beneath and on r. side; crawling. Glutinous and slimy all day, < eating, also in morning, with ill humor. Smarting as if raw on r. half of palate, with crawling in l. nostril. Salivation. Sweet taste on tip of tongue.

Throat.—Painful swelling of r. tonsil. Pain extending suddenly through head as a drawing, heavy sensation; P. in the goitre, < touch, with tickling in it. Scraping in evening after lying down and next day, at times provoking short cough; S., with mucus and necessity to hawk; as from catarrh or as from biting food, with frequent necessity to hawk, which caused sticking. Rawness as if a piece of skin were hanging down. Constriction. Cramplike drawing about hyoid bone as if everything were constricted. Uvula feels elongated.

Stomach.—Almost always hungry. Sudden ravenous hunger during the contemptuous mood, with greedy, hasty eating (Aur., Lyc.), then at mealtime she eats without desire. Though longing for tobacco he does not relish it, is soon averse to it. First morsels are relished, then speedy satiety; satiety immediately in evening on account of sadness, afterwards she eats. Appetite lost. Thirst after supper; T. for water; no T.

Eruccations.—Empty; in morning fasting; in morning fasting, with fullness in stomach and abdomen as if overloaded; loud, when fasting and after eating; with hunger. Sudden, of a bitter-sweet liquid, during which he choked, so that he was obliged to cough, then scraping in throat. Like hiccough, after eating, with emission of flatus.

Nausea in forenoon, with weakness, anxiety and tremulous sensation through whole body; N. in epigastric region; in epigastric region in morning; with appetite; with weariness of limbs; in pit of stomach as from fasting, then gripping tension extending into abdomen; in attacks when walking in open air, < walking against the wind, > in the house by laying head on table, < rising again, then with whirling vertigo, < looking up, with smoky vision, and on laying head down a condition midway between sleep and waking, with vivid dreams, all > rising.

Fermentation in epigastric region (Lyc.). Distention of pit and epigastrium, with scraping and tearing in stomach. Visible twitching in epigastric region. Sticking near r. side of pit. Thrusts in pit; intermittent sticking, in pit. Gripping in region of pit, then flatulent pressure towards hypogastrium, > after collection of flatus, which afterwards was passed with difficulty, the sensation in hypogastrium returned constantly with tension of abdomen. Gnawing in morning, with twisting, ravenous hunger and collection of water in mouth, not > eating. Drawing pain beneath pit, as from a strain; D. pain transversely above pit, increasing and decreasing at intervals, with shooting into middle of upper arm as if pinched, with numb and paralyzed sensation, the pain in side < laughing, inspiration, pressure, and every step caused shattering.

Pressure in pit, even on touch; P. in pit after eating (bread and butter), as from undigested food. Oppression in pit. Constriction in pit, with inclination to eat, as if thereby it would be relieved; C. in pit as if she could not get her breath. Feeling in pit as if he had swallowed too much air, > empty hiccough, with uprisings to pit of throat and ineffectual efforts to eructate. Crawling about pit extending to throat, as if she had swallowed feathers, with necessity to hack.

Clinical.—Gastralgia, hysterical.

Abdomen.—Distention in evening; cramplike, in places, in other places spasmodic retraction. Tense after dinner. Movements. Gurgling in morning fasting, with gripping uneasiness. Emission of flatus during the day; E., with sensation as before diarrhœa; odorless; difficult, with desire for stool; short, abrupt, not easy without exertion of abdominal muscles. Jerking like thrusts in a spot externally. Sticking in morning; cutting S. suddenly through abdomen, then weariness of knees. Gripping on second day of menses, then pressure downward in groins alternately with pressure in genitals, with increased flow; paroxysmal G. here and there. Colic towards morning, < rising in bed. Constriction. Anxiety, then pain in it as after a fright, with urging as in diarrhœa, but a small, normal stool. Uneasiness at night as from taking cold.

Rumbling in upper A. in morning. Constrictive gripping beneath l. short ribs. Intermittent thrusts below short ribs. Sticking in r. side, when lying it extends forward into umbilical region and into l. side, < lying on l. side. Jerklike gripping in sides, > emission of flatus. Jerklike drawing in r., with arrest of breathing. Intermittent burning in a spot in l.; sudden burning shooting downward in r.

Umbilicus.—Sticking; deep above U. on rising suddenly after stooping. Twisting about U., with oppression of breathing and general tremulous sensation. Gripping in region, as in diarrhœa; after eating; flatus G. in region, extending downward, with cutting and with desire to pass stool and flatus. Gripping constriction in region, extending to back. Pain as from a thrust below U. Burning in region.

Hypogastrium.—Cutting as in menstruation, with drawing headache. Pressure during profuse menstruation, with ill humor; P., with nausea, as before menstruation; P. downward towards genitals, as during menstruation (Bell.), at times with desire for stool, extending through groins, above hips, towards small of back, where it pained a long time. Drawing from middle of groins towards both thighs, < touch and inspiration, with tearing; painful D. in groins, as before menstruation.

Clinical.—Lead colic, pains extend to back.

Rectum and Anus.—Discharge of much blood. Sticking in forepart of R. Sensation as in diarrhœa, extending up rectum, > emission of flatus. With the stool that was not hard great pressure, then sticking in anus, then spasmodic constriction of nates extending towards small of back, she must stop pressing on account of the pain. Urging, with scanty stool passed in pieces after pressure, with painful weakness and tight sensation in abdominal muscles; constant U.; ineffectual. Tenesmus in anus before and after a thin stool; crawling T. in anus as in diarrhœa every evening before sleep. Burning in rectum during stool, then itching. Crawling in anus every evening, with itching.

Stool.—Thin, sudden, forcible. Pasty, with threadworms; P., partly digested, somewhat bloody, then increased tension in l. hypochondrium and small of back. Indurated, as if burnt, preceded and followed by pressure. Forcible, noisy, after dinner, at first thin, then hard, with increased urging, in pieces, each of which he must press out, then shivering, < upper part of body, and after rising from stool pain and weakness about umbilicus. Constipation. Scanty, tenacious, glutinous, connected, with long pressure and exertion of abdominal muscles. Difficult, with cutting, burning and protrusion of hæmorrhoids. Every two days, with pressure and at times blood. A piece of tape-worm is passed, with desire for stool.

Clinical.—Constipation, from lead-poisoning or from traveling; frequent desire, but small evacuations with great effort. Obstinate constipation, with feeling of a load in rectum which cannot be evacuated.

Urinary Organs.—Micturition slow, but frequent. Urine red, with white clouds; pale yellow in morning, as clear as water in afternoon; became turbid and caused red color on sides of vessel.

Sexual Organs.—Sensitiveness and pressure, and in mons veneris, with internal shaking chill and external coldness (except in face). Voluptuous crawling, and in abdomen, with anxious oppression and palpitation, then painless pressure downward in genitals, with sticking in sinaput and exhaustion. Sore biting as if denuded on scrotum, so that he must often change its position, even in bed. Erections towards morning; in sleep, with amorous dreams; constant, at night, without emissions or lascivious dreams. Coition short and with little satisfaction.

Female.—Sticking in r. ovarian region; in the indurated uterus, with cramp. Leucorrhœa like the white of egg, only during the day, after micturition and after rising from a seat. Menses too early and profuse (Rhus); too early, lasting eight days, with drawing pain in abdomen the first day; too early, with diarrhoea. Much clotted blood the first day of menstruation. Painful urging to menses, > evening in bed, returns in morning on rising.

Clinical.—Satyriasis. Nymphomania, especially puerperal; in this morbid condition Plat. is indicated generally by the extreme sensitiveness or numbness of the external organs, sometimes even these sensations may alternate. Sexual melancholia in both sexes. Pruritus of the vagina. Fibroid tumors of the uterus, with constant pressure as before menses, menstruation always very profuse, great sensitiveness of the parts, internal chilliness and external coldness and numbness. Prolapsus, with constant pressure in the back and groins, especially with extreme sensitiveness to touch. Chronic inflammation of the ovaries, especially right. Ovaritis has been relieved, even after suppuration has taken place. Dysmenorrhoea, with extreme pressure, external sensitiveness, the pains increase to spasms and screaming, followed by excessive hæmorrhage. Sterility, with chronic ovaritis, internal soreness, etc. Menorrhagia, characterized by dark clots and extreme pressing pain. Very irregular menses, with the peculiar disposition, discharge of dark clots, bearing down. Women requiring this drug habitually have too early and too long-lasting menses, discharge dark and thick, increased sensitiveness and pressure, abnormal sexual appetite and melancholia. Albuminous leucorrhœa. Associated with uterine and ovarian troubles there is usually a large number of reflex disturbances, such as aphonia, cough, palpitation, numbness, spasms, sleeplessness, etc.

Respiratory Organs.—Constriction at bronchial bifurcation. Dyspnoea as if tightly laced, with heavy, slow respiration. Want of breath if she walks a little. Oppressed breath, with warm uprisings from pit of stomach to pit of throat, necessity to breathe deeply and hoarseness. Frequent deep breathing, without apprehension or oppression of chest. Sudden arrest of breath in throat, as on walking against a strong wind.

Clinical.—Nervous dry cough, with palpitation and dyspnoea.

Chest.—Cutting sticking in r. side, < inspiration; sudden S. beneath l. shoulder. Pain in a spot in upper part; neuralgic, in clavicular region; cramplike in l. side; intermittent cramplike, beneath r. clavicle; in shocks in l. half, partly beneath axilla, partly in middle of chest, not affecting respiration; strained. Thrusts in a costal cartilage, in l. lower part, near sternum; cutting T. upward in r. half. Beating like thrusts on a lower true rib. Hammering in a costal cartilage near pit of stomach, with throbbing. Cramplike constriction close to shoulder. Weight, causing deep breathing. Pressure on a l. short rib, and after pressure upon it bruised pain. Oppression, with anxiety and warm uprisings from pit of stomach to pit of throat. Drawing extending to groins, then constriction in genitals. Rhythmic burning between two l. ribs. Sensation of fasting, as after rising too early, lasting long after rising, gradually increasing, > towards noon, with nausea. Weakness as if respiration failed, she breathed deeply, but could not breathe deeply enough.

Heart.—Sticking and burning. Pressure in region of apex.

Neck.—Cramp in muscles, as from a hard bed, < motion. Cramplike pain in side on turning it towards shoulder. Tense numbness in nape close to occiput, as if bound. Nape weak, head sinks forward.

Back.—Smarting sticking in r. half. Pain as if broken, after walking an hour. Pain in middle and l. side, with intermittent thrusts; P. as from a plug in r. side, near middle of spine, and on pressure pain as in a wound. Sore, denuded sensation in l. side when sitting, with burning intermittent sticking. Intermittent sore sensation on outer margin of r. scapula. Jerklike drawing in r. scapula, extending to hand. Pressure on lower end of l. scapula, with cool sensation. Bruised, cramplike pain in sacrum on pressure. Pain in small of back as if broken, < bending backward. Numbness of coccyx when sitting, as after a blow.

Extremities.—Cramplike throbbing jerks here and there. Wavelike beating pain in spots on forearm and leg.

Upper Extremities.—Shoulder. Sticking, so that it jerked the arm and almost made it sink down. Pain as from a blow on top of l.; P. on top of r. as if he had carried a weight on it. Weakness.

Arm.—Bruised pain; in upper, < moving it; above elbow, increasing and decreasing in waves. Pain in l. as if flesh were torn off. Weakness of l., with drawing in it; W. as if she had carried a weight, > moving it back and forth, returned during rest, with drawing as by a thread from shoulder to hand. Heaviness. Paralyzed sensation in l., so that she must let it hang down, < leaning arm on a chair when sitting and when leaning against shoulder; sudden paralysis as from a blow, in a spot, now in r., now in l.

Pain in periosteum of r. elbow. Forearm, pain in r., with drawing inward of fingers on straightening out arm; cramplike pain on resting upon elbow; intermittent jerking pain in l. ulna, in tendons close to wrist; cramplike intermittent pressure on flexor surface of l.; cramplike rigid sensation in l., and in hand; paralyzed sensation in r., extending downward.

Hand.—Trembling of H. and fingers on holding them free. Cramp on exerting it. Cramplike rhythmic jerking below external condyle of wrist. Cramplike pain above two first fingers; on ball of l.; in r. metacarpal bones; in H. and fingers on grasping anything firmly, < joints.

Fingers.—Trembling of r. thumb in morning, with numbness as if bruised. Flexion on flexing arm, with painful drawing extending up arm. Jerklike cramp in thumb-joint and metacarpal bone, < violent motion. Burning sticking in metacarpal joint of index, recurring after scratching, which it compelled. Pain in first phalanx of index as if an ulcer would break. Jerking cramplike drawing in r. index and hand. Numbness of little.

Lower Extremities.—Staggering when standing. Muscular twitches after walking, < legs. Inclined to uncover at night, though they were not warm. Weakness as if beaten when sitting and standing, with tremulous uneasiness in them. Crawling as if asleep when riding one over the other.

Thigh.—Bruised pain; above l. knee; in upper part of l. when sitting; in middle, more when sitting than when walking. Cramplike pain on inner side of r.; posteriorly when sitting; pulsating, in middle when sitting. Pain as if broken when sitting with legs stretched out, with undulating cramplike shooting through limbs on drawing them up. Pinching tensile pain as from a blow just above hip-joint, increasing and decreasing at intervals. Drawing in upper part of l., so that upon stepping upon it she sank down; jerklike, above knees. Tightness, as if tightly wrapped when sitting, with weakness in them. Cramplike numb sensation as after a blow on anterior surface of r. Weakness when sitting, < towards knees, with tremulous uneasiness.

Knee.—Pain as from a blow in l. Burning prickling in r. Pressure on inner side of hollow of l. when sitting with leg drawn up. Drawing, then burning, and on stepping upon it pain as if dislocated. Tension in hollow of l. after rapid walking in open air. Weakness when walking, and in thighs when sitting; more when standing than when walking, < ascending steps; in and about them, more when standing than when sitting, with tottering; on inner side of hollow of l. when sitting, with numbness and pressure. Tremulous numbness as if tightly bound, extending to feet.

Leg.—Cramplike jerks extending down legs when sitting, < evening, with sense of rigidity, even in feet. Acute shocks on tibia, extending downward. Cramplike drawing through r. calf on sitting down after walking a little. Tension in r. calf when sitting, with beating, so that foot trembled. Smarting pulsation in middle of anterior surface of r. Tremulous crawling uneasiness when sitting, a numbness and rigidity, < evening and in bed. Weakness below knees when walking; below knees when sitting; after a short walk, with oppressed respiration, more when beginning to walk than afterwards, at last nausea.

Ankle.—Sprained pain. Sharp jerking pain at l. external malleolus, extending to hip and ilium.

Foot.—Cramp in soles at night on rising, with flexion of them. Painful twitching in r. sole when standing, and crawling pressure beneath it when sitting. Sticking in balls in evening after lying down till midnight. Tearing on back of l., with cutting transversely across it. Tensive pain in instep when standing, < inclining it forward. Tremulous pain as from external pressure in a spot on back. Hard pressure in r. sole near toes. Cramplike drawing in r. heel. Weariness when sitting, with numbness; W. in evening, with swollen sensation about malleolus, when sitting the W., with tension, extended into calves.

Toes.—Swelling of balls, with nightly tearing. Burning-crawling sticking beneath great. Tearing in r., < great, with throbbing, as in an ulcer. Pain in great as if tightly bound. Burning pain at night. Sore pain in ball of T. (that had been frozen formerly), < walking. Cramplike drawing, < great. Cramplike burning tension in l. great. Painful throbbing beneath little; intermittent cramplike throbbing in l. great.

Skin.—Blue spot on l. upper arm, becoming smaller and dark red. Sticking above ankle, not > scratching; jerking, on r. chest, recurring after scratching. Itching sticking over whole body, not > scratching; on back of hands, > scratching; on cheek, > rubbing. Burning pricking; here and there. Smarting above ankle. Biting on cheek, > scratching, but returning; sticking, in a spot on sole, he must scratch it; corroding, in lobule of l. ear; itching, < arms, hands and serotum, < evening on getting into bed, with sticking and burning tickling. Sore biting on chin, obliged to rub it; about malleoli, with smarting, pain as if raw on touch of clothes; about mouth, provoking scratching, as after shaving with a dull razor. Crawling on inner side of r. thumb; in l. finger-tips, with tickling; itching, on r. great toe; on hand, or a sensation of a cool wind. Itching over whole body at night; l. in epigastric region, ~ rubbing; on r. wrist, with biting, so that he could not scratch it enough; sticking, beneath great toe; tingling, on l. index.

Sleep.—Yawning; in morning on rising, though sleep had been long and refreshing; in afternoon, without sleepiness; in afternoon, causing lachrymation; violent, after eating, that makes cervical muscles painful; inclination to almost spasmodic. Sleepiness in morning after long and sound sleep; in evening, dreams of distant strange things on closing eyes, but immediate waking; so that she cannot follow her own thoughts. Fell asleep in evening when talking; in evening when reading, with frequent waking, afterwards sound sleep at night. Sleep late in morning.

Sleepless before midnight, then short sleep, with constant dreaming; S. till after midnight, with tearing in balls of toes; from midnight till morning, with fixed ideas to which he anxiously clung; after 3 A.M., comfort in no position. Starting up in evening on falling asleep when sitting. Waking about midnight and tossing about; W. about midnight, with despondency and thirst, but sleep after an hour; at 3 A.M., every morning, and sleeping again; every night very stupid and could not collect himself for a long time; in morning anxious and fretful, as if in sleep he had received an injury, and much crying.

Dreams.—Pleasant, remembered. Unremembered. Disconnected, in evening nap. Confused, of ordinary events, with inability to remember it exactly; anxious, of war and bloodshed. Anxious, and on sudden waking gloomy thoughts. Fires, she could not get ready to go to them. Of the death of a distant sister and wondered that he had had no intimation of it.

Clinical.—Sleeplessness, with extreme nervous excitability.

Fever.—Chilliness in forenoon, with sleepiness; C. in evening on undressing, with chattering of teeth; in evening before going to bed, with uneasy sleep and frequent waking, with anxiety, a tremulous sensation through whole body, nausea and headache; in open air, with shivering, flushes of heat, fretfulness and taciturnity; constant sensation as if he would be chilly, with frequent shivering down lower limbs, < warm, open air; frequent, extending downward over whole body, as if he would have gooseflesh; trembling, in evening; shuddering; shuddering, after stool and micturition, with shivering over head, chest and arms; shaking, over whole body, extending down to feet; shaking, creeping over her on going into open air. Shivering, < through lower limbs; creeping through whole body, after yawning.

Coldness on chin, beneath corner of mouth; on r. side of face, with crawling and numbness; feeling as if cold air entered r. ear; creeping over back; creeping in occiput, extending down to cheeks, where it was a burning pain, afterwards drawing in a hollow tooth. Sudden shivering in forehead, chest and arms after entering a warm room.

Burning at one time, at another prickling itching here and there. Sudden heat, she thought that she was very red, but her color was the same as usual. Heat in face, with burning and itching in eyes; in face every day from 5 till 9, with redness, thirst, dryness in mouth, headache and vibrations before eyes, causing vertigo, lachrymation; in face and head, a sultry sensation and a pain in forehead, she does not know what to do. Burning on head; in ears, with redness; in limbs, now here, now there; extending from r. shoulder to wrist; sore, on elbow, as if scraped or rubbed by woolen. Sweat in sleep.

Platinum Muriaticum.

This salt is dissolved in water for use.

Clinical.—This preparation of Platinum has been found valuable in caries of the bones, particularly of the nasal bones and of the tarsus. It has been used in syphilis after Mercury and Aurum.

Plumbum.

Pure precipitated lead is triturated with sugar of milk.

General Action.—It produces general interstitial inflammation characterized by proliferation of connective tissue (nerve, muscle and parenchyma of organs). The most striking effects of lead appear to originate from its action on the spinal cord and the nerves proceeding from it, namely, colic with violent contraction of the intestines and abdominal parietes; obstinate constipation. Paralysis, attacking chiefly the flexors of the extremities and finally becoming general; terrific pains in the extremities. The brain degenerates, epilepsy, various disturbances of the mental powers, even imbecility, result. Various organs undergo degeneration (sclerosis), kidney, heart, liver, etc.

Alies.—Thall., Cupr., Zinc., Ferr., Phos., Ars.; Lyc., Op., Con., Colch., Led., etc.

Generalities.—Emaciation; looking ten years older than he was; and if placed upright he fell over, no control over flexors and extensors of limbs, < upper; of the paralyzed parts, their shrivelled, dingy yellow skin seems loosened from the flabby muscles, hands blue and infiltrated. Anæmia; and condition analogous to paralysis agitans. Jaundice. Consumption. Great mortality among children. Ganglion. Secretions diminished. Anasarca.

Lies upon his back; with limbs relaxed and powerless; on side doubled up; on r. side, with legs flexed upon thighs and these upon abdomen; on side when quiet, generally on l., with thighs pressing against abdomen. Constant change of position; doubles himself up, but avoids lying on abdomen, pressure on latter aggravates. Sometimes with his head almost on the floor, feet tangled in bed-clothes, he keeps up a rocking movement. Fell back without consciousness. Blood-corpuscles diminished in number; but increased in size; abnormal number of white globules in blood. Serum of blood shows a yellow reflection. Muscles flabby and soft; F. and pale. Mucous membranes pale; of waxen hue.

Trembling; of limbs and face; < evening, when he is fatigued; < fatigue or excitement, and in the latter case it extended to lower limbs; < excessive drinking; sudden, < arms. Cramps; in various parts, < hands and feet when those parts were first moved after rest; < behind knee, when walking or even standing still, > pressure, increased motion and cold compresses, with lacerations and sleeplessness; painful, in paralyzed muscles.

Often puts hands to head, with convulsive movements of eyes, hands and feet. Spasmodic shocks shoot like lightning over face and limbs. Twitchings; of limbs and body; epileptiform, in all parts, then paralysis. Spasmodic flexion of arm and r. leg, with automatic movements of eyes, hands and feet. Spasmodic contractions of flexors and adductors, legs forcibly flexed on thighs and thighs on abdomen, sometimes one leg is drawn over the other, impossible to raise arms from chest, forearms and wrists forcibly flexed, head drawn down to chest and to one side, head occasionally jerked from side to side, with consciousness, but inability to articulate, involuntary groans, pain, rectus abdominis hard and prominent, muscles attached to ribs contract so forcibly as to draw them in and he often cries out that they are breaking, afterwards prostration.

Convulsions; of particular muscles; with unconsciousness; with cold, clammy sweat; then coma; of limbs, then general stiffness, he fell to the ground, with consciousness, but inability to answer, afterwards weakness; clonic and tonic; clonic, with involuntary micturition, preceded by a cry, pallor, then redness, sweat after the spasms; tonic, in arms, fingers, legs, abdomen and chest; sudden, tonic, < face, neck, trunk and limbs, at the same time head was drawn towards l. side, shoulder drawn up, l. arm and l. foot stretched out so violently that the joints creaked, lips closed and l. corner of mouth drawn downward, l. cartilage of nose drawn to l. side, the attack generally lasted two minutes and ceased suddenly, the clonic C. affected only face and usually occurred after the atonic C.; tetanic; tetanic, then prickings in hands, forearm, lower limb, then stiffness of limbs and convulsive clenching of jaws; sudden, with heavy breathing, eyeballs distorted, body and arms flexed spasmodically, scanty ejection of saliva ended many attacks; sudden, limbs alternately flexed and extended, body shaken, head bent backward, sensation lost, face injected, coma between convulsions; head suddenly inclines forcibly to r., limbs stretched out stiff and convulsed, also face, which turns blue, eyes wide open and rolled upward, pupils dilated, shocks over whole body, bloody froth from mouth, beats of heart and pulse tumultuous and strong, afterwards threatened with suffocation, inspirations deep and difficult, the dark red face becomes pale, only whites of the half-open eyes are visible, body cold, motionless, sleeps a little, pulse 140 and small, wakes, eyes fixed, countenance dull, ill-humored, will hardly answer, turns on l. side and sleeps; formation from r. thumb and index to shoulder, with pricking, at the same time fingers flexed into palm and covering thumbs, forearm flexed and held in forced pronation, wrists flexed, clonic spasm of whole limb, r. hand and arm red from stagnation of blood, with his l. hand he supported his r. forearm, which tended to approach trunk, head shook and was inclined to l., spasms of eyes, circular movement of lower jaw, mind not affected, but unable to speak, afterwards numbness of r. hand.

Epilepsy; face pale, then E. without a cry, clonic convulsions of diaphragm and larynx; in bed, one quick, loud cry, tetanic rigidity of neck and limbs, pallor, unconsciousness, respiration ceases for a moment, face blue, congested spots on forehead and face, facial spasms, clonic convulsions (movements concentric), bloody, whitish foam at mouth, then paralysis of limbs, coma, with stertorous breathing, roused to half-consciousness, drowsiness; fell down with a cry, pallor, stiffness, then contractions, involuntary micturition, afterwards prostration; tongue swollen, protruded and bitten; with biting of tongue, then frequent coma, delirium more generally after than before the epilepsy, pupils dilated; with unconsciousness, convulsions of limbs, tetanic stiffness of head and body, face livid, distorted, stertor, foam at mouth, spasms of eyeballs, then coma, he lay motionless, with half-closed eyes and open mouth, grunting and automatic movements of limbs; muscular contractions began in abdomen, extended to throat, jaws closed so violently that a tooth was dislodged, eyes rolled upward, lastly limbs affected, motionless for an hour after the convulsions, then restless and talked incoherently, three more convulsions, each lasting about a minute, all preceded by dark vomiting and followed by symptoms similar to those after the first fit; sudden, with unconsciousness, pallor, stertor, prolonged inspiration, pulse 112, arms and hands forcibly extended, pronated and convulsed. Epileptiform spasms; one-sided, with twitchings of face, then general epilepsy, with stertor and unconsciousness. (Compare Calcarea c.)

Opisthotonos; with uræmic convulsions, distortions of eyes, unconsciousness, puffy face, then slow respiration, pulse 36; and sometimes emprosthotonos and pleurothotonos.

Hysteria; with loud groans, sighs and weeping; symptoms resembling H., irritability, restlessness, after useless efforts to find an easy position they fell back in bed exhausted, with pain, respiration hurried, heart's action painful and violent, with tears, groans and sighs, often coincident with abatement of the suffering.

Shooting through body; superficial, in several parts; in knees, popliteal spaces, calves, soles, bends of elbows, metacarpal and temples, worse by paroxysms, > pressure, with great sensibility, < popliteal spaces and calves. Tearing; in r. jaw near chin, after rubbing it extends into r. lower ribs, then in the former place and corresponding teeth, later deep breathing causes sticking below r. scapula, then sticking in upper part of r. scapula; through limbs, back and walls of chest (during colic), worse in lower limbs, especially knees, forepart of thighs and in soles, worse at intervals, > pressure, < movement, but he assumes all sorts of positions. Boring; in r. upper arm, with tearing in r. lower teeth, later with sticking in scapula. Feeling as if bones were gnawed. Myalgia.

Pain in whole body; in trunk and limbs; in bones; cranial and other flat bones; l. side; lower part of body; muscles and joints, < r. side; neck, walls of chest, back and loins; limbs, shoulders, neck, face and head; knees, ankles, arms and in tendon of pectoralis muscle; at night, with convulsions, delirium and copious stool; everywhere on motion; in joints and muscles on movement; < night; < motion, but he constantly seeks relief by change of position; in joints, < of lumbar vertebrae and of shoulders, < movement and pressure and especially pressing together the bones which belong to a joint, > rest, joints of fingers, toes and jaws almost painless; < cold, forced movement and pressure; except when still in bed; > pressure.

Wandering pains. Pains rapidly changing in character. Neuralgic pains in all parts; < loins. Pain in paralyzed parts, sometimes lancinating, sometimes confusiv, < motion and pressure; crawling paroxysmal P. in bones, < above l. knee and in l. forearm; paroxysmal; benumbing; bruised, in affected parts, and sometimes gnawing; bruised, in paralyzed parts, or at times pricking and formication, then numbness, with sensitiveness to cold, which increases the pain.

Arthralgia; rheumatic pains (muscular); arthralgic and neuralgic pains about trunk and limbs; deep arthralgic pains, as if in bones, < flexors, then trembling of fingers passing into paralysis, paralysis of extensors of upper limbs, slightly of lower, arms when left to themselves hung dangling as if turning on a pivot, inability to raise hands or fingers, back of hands arched, fingers bent, rotatory motion of arms lost, all use of muscles attended with injury, they had lost their contractile power, abdominal muscles less affected, the A. pain greatest in parts not paralyzed, pain worse in inside of knees, l. intercostal muscles affected, preventing sneezing, thirst < afternoon and when fatigued, at one time highly nervous pulse, soreness in all the flesh except a spot in inner part of l. thigh, which was insensible, at times burning in soles, > pressing them against the bare footboard, at times pain between scapulae, nearer r. than l. shoulder, > lying on back and pressing on the part.

Hyperæsthesia of cutaneous nerves; intermittent, sometimes of one part, sometimes of another, < over bony processes, for example, spinous processes of dorsal vertebrae, but deep pressure relieved the pain; H. of muscles. Soreness of muscles. Compressions between the paroxysms, with burning. Tingling. Restlessness (Ars.); between the paroxysms. Pulsation in hands and feet after dinner, < head.

Weakness; in morning on rising, with lack of courage; at twilight, he lay down, felt the beating of pulse, burning spots in face, trembling of head and vertigo as if the couch moved, renewed by thinking of it, sensitiveness to noise, at last sleep for three hours, on waking prostration, > moving about, but there remained dulness in head and bruised feeling in small of back; on walking; after motion; < r. side; he lies down, feels beating in neck and abdomen and can sleep but little; r. side becomes weaker and weaker, mobility diminished, atrophy of posterior part of upper arm, limited extension of hand, anaesthesia of r. limbs, r. side of face and trunk, diminished sensibility of r. side of tongue, reflex movements in throat almost abolished, voice nasal and speech indistinct.

Nervous prostration. Faintness; in morning; on ascending stairs or on any undue exertion; always on rising from a seat; in a room full of people, with frequent dimness of vision; > food; with precordial uneasiness. Malaise. Collapse.

Immobility; of large dorsal and pectoral muscles, of shoulders, arms and hands, only difficult raising of shoulders by action of trapezius. Rigidity of limbs, spasmodic closure of jaws, inability to stand, afterwards chilliness; painful R. on movement. Movements difficult; in bed, so that he lies on back; and slow, painful. Movements slow and feeble. Want of co-ordination, so that she fell from her chair.

Anæsthesia; of affected parts; of scattered parts; of r. side of body; r. limbs, r. side of chest, abdomen and back, bounded exactly by median line; r. arm, extending over r. side of face and r. lower limb; of skin; of skin, with pain deep in limbs, thus paralysis may be accompanied by both anaesthesia and hyperæsthesia; of skin in hypogastric and iliac regions, penis, scrotum and upper two-thirds of thighs, pressure on hypogastrium causes pain, but not on other parts, pain is felt when a pin is thrust in deeply or muscles are pinched; to burning of whole r. side, but a blister in the middle of forepart of the insensible r. thigh caused pain; to pricking in r. upper limb (except shoulder), of r. foot, r. leg and lower third of r. thigh, diminished sensibility of r. side of face, r. shoulder and upper two-thirds of r. thigh, the line between partial and entire sensibility on thigh corresponding with the border of the shirt.

Diminished sensibility of r. side of body; r. side of trunk and on front of chest, corresponding to the part of the shirt worn during the work; to pricking; tactile in upper limbs, < r., of r. side of face and of r. lower limb, more on dorsal than palmar surface of forearms; electrical, on r. side; under electricity, difficult contraction of deltoid, pectoralis major, flexors and outer layer of muscles of forearm and posterior rhomboid, trapezius and longissimus dorsi. Analgesia of whole surface, sensitiveness to tickling diminished in palms, < l.; A. of r. half of body, < forearm and hand, l. cornea has little sensibility. Sensibility to temperature diminished; in r. side; in r. side, < upper limb; on r. forearm and l. side of face, which is the one most affected with anæsthesia. Sensibility perverted, pricking caused a sensation as if rubbed, and pinching a sensation as if touched.

Paralytic sensation extending from back towards hands and feet, < l. side of body, which felt asleep, inability to move, this paralytic condition disappeared with a shock, then spasmodic stretching of l. limbs, which seemed dead, l. fingers spasmodically closed, pronation of wrist and gradual extension of arm at elbow, extension of l. leg, this cramp returned at intervals, loud cries from pain, partial consciousness, short, indistinct answers, later these spasms in other muscles, head jerked to l. side, so that the chin rested on l. clavicle, next day frequent spasms and the pallor of the face of the first day changed to redness, on third day similar spasms in r. side with opisthotonos, then rattling in trachea and oozing of tenacious, frothy mucus from mouth, between the spasms jerking of facial muscles.

Paralysis; one-sided; l.-sided hemiplegia, with contractions of l. hand and distortion of face towards the right; dextral hemiplegia, < upper part of body; of r. side, with curvature of spine; (of r. upper limb and r. half of face including tongue); of extensors of forearms and on lower limbs, and symptoms of general P. of the insane, he could not lift the feet from the ground, then bilateral facial spasms, trismus, jerkings of upper limbs, the flexors of which were rigid, while lower limbs were rigidly extended; of all parts, with insensibility; in parts, with sensitiveness to cold; incomplete, < upper limbs, external muscles wasted and soft; motor and sensory, < r. side of body; beginning with numbness of the parts and trembling, ending in loss of motion and atrophy, also ending with loss of motion, and when the trembling parts are moved their muscles oscillate in their contractions, and the trembling parts are weak.

Two or three crises during the day, with prickings in skin, contractions of jaws and limbs, supraorbital pain, twitching and constriction in temples, that night spasmodic cries more frequent but less violent, tingling in limbs. Aggravation at night; and lying in bed, they caused such agitation and anxiety that he was often obliged to rise and walk about the house all night aided by some one, bent position when walking as well as when in repose, in the morning he was worn out by fatigue and suffering; A. from drinking; paroxysms renewed by drinking, thence though thirsty he dared not drink often.

Amelioration at night; A. from drinking; from fric- tion and strong pressure; from pressure during the paroxysms, but between their aggravation.

Clinical.—General anemia, mucous membranes very pale, persistent vomiting of food. Chlorosis, with palpitation and œdema of the feet. Invertebrate chlorosis, with extreme constipation. (It is said to follow iron well.) Epilepsy; one case always appearing with menstruation, associated with colic, obstinate constipation and sallow complexion.

Mind.—Delirium; with violent convulsions; with trembling of tongue and hands; when his attention was strongly attracted to anything what he said at first was rational; his facial expression does not correspond with the conversation he is engaged in or other external influences; nightly, alternating with sopor; tranquil during the day, furious at night; restless; violent, at night; violent, followed by morbid ideas; violent, with screaming and running about, after the epileptiform spasm; resembling delirium tremens; raging, with hallucinations of vision; raging, in paroxysms alternating with quiet; difficulty in putting him to bed, he tore the clothes and spoke incoherently; bites his garments and bed-clothes; impelling them to tear themselves and bite their own fingers; often getting out of bed and desiring to go home, sometimes not recognizing his family, thought they were conspiring to kill him; imagined that he was constantly followed, that he heard voices from the chimney, later was convinced that fiends in the building pursued him and sought his life; did not close his eyes all night, sometimes was silent and quiet, sometimes hurried out of bed, wanted to dress himself, talked incoherently, was abusive, when put into a strait-jacket he resisted, screamed and bit an assistant, later he was quiet and had an astonished look; sudden furious, with shouts and abuse against all who approached him, thought that he was in danger of assassination or poisoning and that every one about him was a murderer, he walked about briskly, knocking against every obstacle, face flushed, eyes sparkling and fierce, heat and strength increased, then coma, during which he lay stretched out, motionless, with closed eyes and pale face, then sudden return of delirium, thus alternations of D. and coma; sudden restless, in evening, hears everywhere threatening voices, officers come to arrest him, to seize the furniture and to expel him from his lodgings, voices come from the pillow, the mattress, they enter by the window, where he sees people, and they consult about him with closed doors, he gets up, looks for his clothing, wants to run away, next morning he sits at the edge of the bed, with eyes fixed on the window or looking about restlessly, recognizes every one, replies correctly, but cannot remember what he ate yesterday, etc., insists, but as if afraid to acknowledge it, on the reality of his hallucinations; talked incoherently at night, left his bed and wanted to lie in another bed, eyes projecting and fixed, face expressed astonishment, next day he was listless, at 5 P.M. he began to rave, chattering alternating with silence, face had a wild expression, worse at night, took part in all conversation he heard or fancied he heard; in sudden attacks in evening and night alternating with deep sleep, with the D. restlessness, railing and threats, next day face flushed and covered with sweat, eyes fixed and expressionless, bloodshot, lids swollen, pupils, < r., dilated, expression of face dull, frequent movements so that he had to be put into a strait-waistcoat; with sudden epilepsy, then slight coma, then return of D., eyes sometimes fixed, sometimes rolling, with unnatural expression of face, sometimes unexpected bursts of laughter, slight spasms of limbs and face, sometimes said that he was insane, at night incongruous disconnected talking, tried to get into the neighboring bed, wanted to strike the nurse, urinated in the middle of the floor, pronunciation rapid and incomplete; walked like one groping in the dark, sometimes incoherent, hurried talking in a trembling voice, more often was silent, got into bed and fell into a deep sleep, then began to behave in the same way again, made incongruous demands upon those about him, sometimes cried like a child, sleepless, the D. and restlessness < night; sometimes talks unintelligibly to himself, more frequently is silent, when his attention is strongly attracted he answers rationally at first, then utters some word without meaning or connection, then takes up again the thread of logical thought, he generally waits some time before answering, as if it required great mental exertion to understand what is said; talks like a child who has not learned to speak plainly, sometimes cannot get hold of the right words, especially substantives, then frets and sometimes becomes desperate, less trouble with adjectives; saw palaces and castles; fancied at times that he heard delightful music, which soothed his sorrows, he was never sleepy.

Delusions at night. Hallucination, saw her dead husband and child in a tree out of the window; erroneous ideas as to the identity of herself and those around her and her situation, a mild delirium arose and alternated with a different state, difficulty in finding language and before she could convey the meaning the idea fled, then a jumble of disconnected words, later apathy, with occasionally symptoms approaching catalepsy and ecstasy, on placing arms, for example, in any position they were fixed for some minutes, then slowly relaxed and sank down, at other times unconsciousness with fixed eyes; saw many colored figures in constant motion as soon as he closed his eyes.

Mind affected between the paroxysms, would leave home without knowing where he was going, became enraged with persons he met, generally remembered nothing, when brought home he would shut himself up till he got right again. On recovering consciousness the people in the ward seemed as small as dolls and the opposite side of the room seemed forty feet below his own level.

Wandering in speech now and then; and when he began to rave the facial muscles twitched, giving him a hideous appearance. Speech wandering, lay quiet with closed eyes, insensible to pinching, when limbs were placed in any position and left unsupported they remained there a few seconds, then oscillated and fell back on the bed, body rigid, so that he could not be made to sit upright, and his attention could not be aroused, suddenly a great variety of expressive gestures, tried to speak but was prevented by the liquid in his mouth, very sensitive to pinching, upper limbs too stiff to be moved, then quietude, thus alternations of repose and movement, then he indicated by a gesture that he wished to eat and drink, then he suddenly spouted the pisan which he held in his mouth over the surgeon, then quietness and unconsciousness, during which the limbs remained in any position they were made to assume, then gestures of varying significance, with his eyes shut and without speaking, at last he suddenly opened his eyes and called for drink, seemed to fall asleep while swallowing his pisan, but was easily aroused by being spoken to, rambled volubly from one incoherent idea to another, but answered questions rationally, at one time tried to get up, tried to strike and bite the nurses, remembered well what happened a month ago, but could not recollect what occurred a few days ago.

Talked all day, attempted to get out of his strait-waistcoat; T. all night, mostly about how he should destroy his fastening; babbled all night, now and then jumped out of bed, swore and blustered; T. to himself when alone, but was generally silent and quiet; T. at random all night. Answers at random; and in monosyllables. Language extravagant. Utters a few broken, disconnected words. When spoken to he looks everywhere but at the questioner. Quiet in bed, with constant, unintelligible words; Q. when left to himself, and silent. Silent generally, when he speaks his words are disconnected and voice broken, when interested he answers rationally, sometimes sits facing his questioner in silence without looking at him, at times he answers a simple question wide of the mark. Self-absorbed, answers rationally but briefly, pays no attention to his wife and children when they come to see him, when in bed keeps moving his hands, folds and unfolds the coverings, sometimes wanders about the room, now singing, now gradually quickening his steps, now stopping and turning about abruptly, gait uncertain. Searching about on the floor. Screams; frightful, with general convulsions; during the aggravations draws himself together under the bed-clothes, suddenly gets out of bed and gets in again and doubles himself up, etc.

Liveliness; in afternoon; and hallucination alternating with morose mood, disinclination to talk and attempts to escape. Active in afternoon, absorbed in knitting and thoughtful. Disinclination to work; and inability; D. to talk after dinner. Anguish. Grumbling during the intervals of quietude, closed his eyes and shrank under the bed-clothes. Weeping from slight causes. Manner frightened and nervous. Fear; of death if left alone; easily frightened. Avoids society. Melancholy; at the fear of death; and silent; and if a neighbor called to see him he burst into tears and was unable to speak for some time; has no desire to live, threatens to destroy himself, fault-finding with friends; and stupefaction, dulness of senses, drowsiness; religious. Despondency. Ennui; in afternoon, with quiet reserve. Discouragement. Discontented in morning on waking.

Anxiety; and sighing; with inability to breathe deep enough and increased palpitation; with difficult respiration so that he seemed almost suffocated from fright, could get his breath only when sitting. Apprehension. Distrust. Longing for a distant friend in evening before sleep. Irritable; in afternoon, all work frets her; whenever approached it cried, whined and would not play. Hasty temper. Apathy; and sopor alternating with difficulty of breathing and headache. Indecision. Nervous; and unwilling to be touched or have anything done for her.

Slow of perception, memory lost (Lyc., Phos. ac.); so that when talking he was often unable to find the proper word. Scarcely knew old acquaintances. Imbecility. Stupidity. Answers slow and stammering; slow and short; vague; says and does everything very slowly. Inability to fix thoughts. Reading is tiresome, he mistakes one word for another and skips lines. Intelligence and power of utterance vary curiously at different times.

Coma; with at times automatic movements of hands to occiput; alternating with loquacity; alternating with delirium. Lethargy. Unconsciousness; with falling on attempting to walk; with sudden falling backward; with falling twice, then coma alternating with loquacity, next morning he roused up suddenly, half opened his eyes, uttered many disconnected words, tossed about in bed, urinated on his pillows, put his head down, lifted his buttocks in the air, then relapsed into coma; occasionally, then epileptiform spasms, with bloody froth from mouth, then left-sided paralysis of motion and sensation.

Head.—Trembling. Turned to right, its rotation to l. being prevented by paralysis of sterno-cleido-mastoid. Shooting; here and there, < r. ear, < afternoon and evening. Aching; always immediately after colic, < frontal and parietal regions; < morning on waking; with vomiting; with heaviness of it and confusion of mind; with anxiety extending to forehead, dim vision and contracted pupil; with obscuration of vision and sleepiness; so that head could not be held up; contractive, and in cheek. Pressure beneath skull as from rush of blood. Dulness; with dimness of mind, so that he rubbed his forehead. Heaviness; when standing, with dulness; < occiput, with sticking in sinciput; it falls forward. Apoplexy; with paralysis of l. arm. Vertigo; on stooping or on looking up; > open air. Symptoms > hot-air baths.

Forehead.—Sticking in brain; in eminence; in sinciput at 9 p.m.; across. Tearing in afternoon, with internal heat in head and redness; T. and sensation of contraction; intermittent, in middle; back and forth. Pain; supraorbital; rather externally in evening; above eyes on moving them; and in temples; and in temples, < l. side; worse by paroxysms, with feeling of dislocation; with tearing in nape; heavy, in forepart of head. Heaviness after morning soup; H. above orbits.

Temples.—Twitching in r.; T. and constriction. Sticking in r., with external soreness; S., with compression as if in a vise; tearing, in l. Tearing in r.; and then in r. ear. Clucking in l. extending to ear. Throbbing.

Vertex.—Intermittent, lacerating pain worse by paroxysms, > pressure, and in face.

Sides.—Cracking in r. when sneezing, then fornication and numbness in whole r. side of body, with weakness of these parts. Sticking in r. in forenoon when walking and standing, with beating; S. in upper part of r. parietal bone, with tearing; inward in upper part of r. parietal bone. Pain in l.; anteriorly in l. parietal bone; in l. extending to l. side of face, < night.

Occiput.—Pain; at times extending to forehead; extending to ears and temples, beginning when asleep, so that he often rose, walked about the room holding his head with both hands, then somewhat relieved he lay down again for a short nap. Pressure towards forehead, > standing, with feeling as if eyes would close from heaviness. Heaviness as if its weight were increased.

Clinical.—Has been used for a form of headache with sensation of a ball rising from the throat into the head. This drug has occasionally been found useful in the form of cerebral paralysis, with blunted consciousness, deficient memory, impaired speech, more or less paralysis of the muscles of the face, throat, eyes and extremities; the patient is either unable to remember words or simply omits syllables and words.

Eyes.—Yellow. Surrounded by blue rings; and the rest of face dingy yellow. Large and red. Inflammation. Swollen, painful. Rush of blood. Livid, < inner canthus. Protruding; and glistening. Staring. Wild; and rolling; and shining. Sunken; and dim. Squinting. Strabismus, one turned towards nose and he could not turn it out, paralysis of external muscle, vision double when he looked with both eyes. Twitching. Distortions. White, watery discharge in morning, without other complaints in eyes, soon becoming thicker and agglutinating lids. Neuritis, papilla swollen, post mortem showed interstitial hyperplasia of connective tissue, sheaths of optic nerve distended by fluid, cerebro-spinal fluid increased, brain substance anæmic and the gray part yellowish; N., with normal field, dim vision, central scotoma and flickering. Sticking; in l. Contraction, < lids. Heaviness on moving them, with pain in internal muscle extending backward. Burning in r. as if tobacco were in it. Fatigue.

Lachrymation; acrid, contracting skin. Hypopyon. Disc prominent, opaque, bluish-white, its outline hazy, sclerotic ring invisible, vessels diminished in calibre. Sclerotics yellow. Sclerotics lead-colored. Sclera dirty bluish-gray. Fundus black. Varicose bloodvessels in cornea extending like a thick network to centre and obscuring it. Spasms of r. ball. Shooting through balls on closing lids firmly; S. beneath i. ball at 2 p.m., with burning. Jerking tearing in l. ball in forenoon. Pupils dilated; but in different degrees, also unequally in their respective circumferences. Pupils uneven, < l. Pupils spasmodically contracted, later dilated and insensible. Pupils insensible; and dilated; and contracted.

Lids.—Red. Swollen and sensitive. Dropping of upper. Violent closure. Agglutination in morning and evening, with a cloud before l.; A., with thick yellow mucus. Twitching of r. upper. Ciliary neuralgia of r., then dull vision. Tearing in morning after soup, with sleepiness. Sensation as if something were under them and as if balls were too large. Heaviness. Paralysis and insensibility. Itching of l. upper, > scratching; I. of l. canthus and pain on rubbing it.

Conjunctiva yellow; and livid; dingy yellow; dingy yellow, with a shade of blue; C. suffused with blood; pale; oedematous; dry. Much hair falls from brows. Fulness in orbits, with weight and excruciating pain.

Vision.—Dim; < r. eye; and confused; with frequent necessity to wipe eyes; several times a day, beginning with weakness in all limbs, with roaring in ears and vision of falling snow or showers of fire, he almost loses consciousness and has to lean against something. Weak. Diminished, the ophthalmoscope showed congestion, with sinuosities of vessels. Increase of nearsightedness; nearsighted in r. eye, perception of color feeble, field limited, vision of l. normal, dilated veins in fundus of l. V. and hearing better on r. side. Diplopia; except when close to objects; of r. eye, which is affected by strabismus. As if everything trembled and turned in a circle. Yellow; spots before l. eye, covering what is looked at, and at a certain distance things seem to jump. Dazzling. Eclampsia consequent upon uræmic poisoning with albuminous urine. Lost; suddenly; suddenly after an attack of headache and colic; suddenly, then sudden paralytic spasm, with unconsciousness; almost, in l. eye, which looks sound. Sees only one-half of an object.

Clinical.—Paralysis of the optic nerve, with greater or less cloudiness of vision. Hypopyon, with nightly pain.

Ears.—Sticking in lobule of r.; in r. in forenoon when standing. Tearing in region of r. after dinner; deep in; sticking, in r. extending to concha. Boring in r. after dinner. Pain in l. ear and meatus. Tension in region of r. and in r. cervical muscles. Scratching in r. as from a spear of grain. Ringing. Whizzing and humming. Roaring; every evening, causing deafness. Sensitive to slight noise. Hearing difficult; frequently in evening; after exposure to cold; with numbness; H. lost.

Nose.—Erysipelatous inflammation. Tearing in r. side of septum. Pain in tip; sharp drawing, in r. wing and in upper lip. Mucous membrane dry. Stoppage. Itching in l. nostril in afternoon, > scratching. Irritation and ineffectual sneezing. Sneezing. Fluent coryza; in afternoon; with watery mucus. Running out of water during dinner. Tenacious mucus which he must draw through posterior nares, where most of it accumulates. Bleeding; during convulsions; with the second attack of spitting of blood. Horrible smell; < l. nostril. Smell diminished, < r. nostril. Smell lost.

Face.—Sallow. Pale; and covered with sweat; and anæmic; puffy, and dark under eyes; and cachectic, lips dry, with sordes, mucous membranes pale; dirty, and peculiarly marked. Looks like a corpse. Yellow < night; Y. in spots; and haggard; grayish; dirty; livid; like wax. Lemon color. Dirty gray. Yellowish-gray and puffy. Livid. Red; with a shade of yellow; and warm, moist; cheeks, which were covered with sweat. Dusky. Swollen; < about eyes and lids; r. half, with earache, < swallowing saliva; and purple; with violent pulsation in carotid (apparently the result of retching); but anæmic. Œdematous. Cachectic. Emaciated. Sunken; cheeks. Long, shrivelled. Sharp, pinched. Wrinkled. Shining as if oily, and feeling oily. Skin changed in texture and appearance. Pasty, lustreless.

Expression anxious; and suffering; E. sad; as if silently imploring pity; fatigued; wild; of pain; as if the child suffered from pressure on brain; sardonic smiling; stupid; astonished; astonished, with thoughtful appearance, which was not borne out by his answers; indescribable; altered. Drawn; to l. side. Trembling; of r. side, then of l., and mouth drawn to r. Spasmodic contraction before the paroxysms of colic. Convulsions. Choreic. Almost immovable; except during paroxysms of colic, then expression of acute suffering. L. side fixed and devoid of expression.

Sticking in r. malar-bone; < cheeks, extending into ears, < movement. Pain. Hypalgæsia of r. side. Diminished sensibility; r. side. Anæsthesia of side; l. cheek. Paralysis of r. side. Paresis of nerves, when talking all facial muscles twitch.

Jaws.—Loud movement, with grating of teeth. Contractions. Trismus. Tearing in r. upper; in lower and in lower teeth; near chin and in corresponding tooth; in r. side of lower, with sticking; in l. lower, extending towards l. ear, > rubbing, when rubbing a beating in l. side of occiput. Boring in r. angle of lower; in l. lower and in three corresponding teeth.

Lips.—Bluish. Pale; mucous membrane of lips and throat. Desquamation. Covered with thick fissured scabs, and teeth and tongue. Covered with brown scabs. Dry and fissured. Moved as if smoking a pipe. Hair falls from moustache. Sharp drawing beneath r. wing of nose.

Mouth.—Teeth. Black; at their necks; < incisors and canines; yellowish. Brown; at base, yellow at tip; dark; greenish, < at their necks. Dirty gray. Bluish-gray, and gums. Yellowish. Covered with yellowish mucus; yellowish coat at root and a slate-colored border around several. Tartar. Sordes. Covered with dark incrustation. Covered with sulphate of lead, and gums. Decayed; and loose, edges of gums red and ragged, often bleeding, and a blue line; has an offensive odor and breaks off. Loose. Fell out. Chattering. Grinding; at night, with frequent waking. Tearing in two r. lower molars. Jerking pain in r. lower molars in morning, < cold. Aching in sound ones as after eating sour fruit.

Gums.—Blue; along margins; between teeth; a line along incisors; margins of upper incisors; line near a lower canine tooth; line opposite bicuspid; crescent over upper molars, towards roof of mouth; and bloodless; bordering on teeth, the rest light bluish-red; reddish, beneath l. lower canine, then beneath all lower incisors and canine; grayish, on border. State-colored; on border; and bleeding on slightest touch. Bluish-gray. Ashy-gray margins. Black. Dirty brownish-gray. Violet-red, then slate-colored. Pale. White and tense. Discolored and either thin or dwindled in extent, in the latter case the interdental partitions gradually disappear and the concavity of the gums is increased in consequence of molecular absorption, and teeth are laid bare, the gums thus form a projecting pad, sometimes marked by vertical incisions, the discoloration often disappears in proportion to the shrinking, gums more affected anteriorly, and lower more than upper, sometimes gum of only two or three teeth affected. Inflammation. Abscesses on r. Ulceration of superior alveolar border of both jaws, with discoloration of most of buccal membrane. A painful and hard pimple. Congestion, with bleeding on touch. Swollen; at roots of teeth. Soft. Spongy; and tender, and between teeth lead-colored elevations. Retracted; and covered with tenacious mucus. Tender.

Tongue.—Red; on margins; on margin, brown coat down centre; and coated white; and rather white on edge; on sides, whitish in middle; and dry, rather pale and moist at edges; and pointed. Bluish line on margin. T. and mouth slate-colored except a few scattered red points. Brownish. End covered with bluish-black spots, upper surface covered with ulcers as from Mercury, with pain in T. and lips and offensive salivation. Pale. White; and dry; yellowish, but moist. Inflammation. Flat and broad. Swollen; with saburral coat; with saburral coat in middle; and yellow; and whitish, moist. Flabby. Coated; brown; brownish down centre, edges red, indented, speckled, with enlarged red papillæ; brown in centre; whitish brown, clearing off towards edges, and moist; with black crust; covered with frothy saliva. Coated white; and moist; and swollen, margins and tip red; brownish. Coated yellowish-white in middle; about base, with partial paralysis on r. side; saburral, partly dry, edges of T. red and rough, with projecting papillæ. Yellow coat; in centre; posteriorly; on l. edge in morning, and mouth slimy; and greenish; brownish; dirty; dirty, and flabby, indented. Light yellow crust. Clammy. Blisters on frænum. Suddenly burning pimples on tip, painful, < talking, from 6 till 10 P.M. Dry; with dark streak in centre; and brown, cracked. Trembling; and lower lip; but no hesitancy in speech. Drawn forcibly to l. side and folded in the same direction. Burning in morning, and mouth; in tip as if he had bitten it, about 2 P.M. Heaviness. Partial paralysis, and of other parts. Cannot be put out. Insensibility of r. side. Articulation imperfect, sometimes only confused sounds. Speech slow; difficult; panting and puffing, as in diaphragmatic pleurisy; stammering; stammering, broken, shaking; hurried and abrupt; suddenly lost, with short, rapid respiration. Inability to talk.

Mouth drawn aside. Bluish spots; blue blotches or lines; various shades of blue. Slate-colored spots. Paleness. Redness of M. and fauces, with tenderness and soreness, all food except the mildest caused pain, heat and smarting. Froth. Mucus; tenacious, in morning on waking. Swelling of glands in M. and beneath chin. Aphthæ, and in throat. Ulcers, with an offensive odor, < sides, later they are yellow; perforating U. on inside of cheeks and under side of tongue so that he cannot eat or drink, he swallows hot drinks best, healed by direct application of alum. Constriction, < lips, often prompted to extend lips. Burning pain, and in throat and stomach. Dryness; and in nostrils; and on lips; drier in morning than in evening, but thirst, less. Sputa bloody; and lumpy. Saliva bluish, sweet; tenacious; alkaline. Salivation; dropping from mouth, > Merc. sol.; sweetish, slimy-tasting in forepart of M., with dryness at root of palate posteriorly and in fauces, > swallowing saliva. Breath fetid; and metallic.

Taste.—Sweetish; S. sour. Bitter; every morning; < night. Metallic. Coppery in morning on waking. Sulphurous and sour low down in throat. Styptic. Acid. Nauseous. Clammy. Flat. Pasty. Diminished; < r. half of tongue. Perverted; so that he did not recognize ordinary food.

Clinical.—Paralysis of the tongue, with indistinct speech.

Throat.—Swelling of tonsils; of submaxillary glands, with pain; parotids, l. painful, red and hot. Inflammation of uvula; of tonsils, with induration. Hawking of sourish mucus; easy, of frothy, transparent, lumpy, yellowish-green, tenacious mucus. Choking on swallowing.

Pain. Constriction; in pharynx; in pharynx extending to stomach before and after eating, with cutting; spasmodic. Drawing in pharynx when eating, as if œsophagus would be torn open. Rawness. Roughness in morning, with hoarseness. Globus hystericus. Sensation of a foreign body in r. side, with sulphurous odor, afterwards the sensation extended towards ear; sensation of a foreign body all the forenoon, provoking sneezing, on swallowing it extended far down, but immediately returned; as if a foreign body slipped downward, then tearing in r. scapula; when smoking, as if something moved suddenly to base of skull and thence to l. orbital region, where it became a sticking. Swollen sensation on swallowing, with choking; S. sensation that obliges frequent swallowing and does not disappear. Dryness; in fauces; in morning. Heat; in fauces, with tickling. Paralysis of pharyngeal muscles.

Œsophagus.—Crawling. Heat. Feels food descending and reaching stomach. Swallowing difficult.

Clinical.—Has occasionally been used for granular sore throat, especially with symptoms of paralysis of pharyngeal muscles, difficulty in swallowing liquids.

Stomach.—Great hunger; in evening; in evening before sleep, with nausea; in throat extending to stomach, returning after eating; for bread and cake all the time. Great relish for tobacco. Appetite lost; diminished. Aversion to food. Thirst; in morning; after dinner; < evening; but liquid was returned with straining as soon as taken; for cold water; for cold drinks; unquenchable; absent. Dread of all drinks.

Eruptions; worse at end of paroxysms of colic, with nausea and vomiting; with sensation in mouth as after eating sugar; sour; distressing; paroxysmal; nauseating; of strange taste; offensive; of offensive taste; tasting of the food; of tasteless water. Sweetish eructations; relieving temporarily; of water from an empty stomach; as if about to vomit. Empty eructations; after breakfast; in evening before sleep, with nausea; of bitter, fetid smell and taste. Ineffectual attempts to eructate, then yawning. Hiccough (Lyc.). Nausea; after every meal, with uneasiness; before the colic; with uprising as far as chest; with load at pit of stomach; anxious; fatiguing. Retching; with eructations of thin white mucus or greenish bitter fluid; almost convulsive.

Vomiting; in morning; soon after eating during the colicky spasms; with colic; constant (Cupr., Phos.); constant, with constipation; of food (Lyc., Phos., Ferr.); of everything taken into stomach; fecal; fecal, with colic and constipation; of lead-colored feces; blackish; of a brownish liquid streaked with blood; bloody; violent; difficult, also with anxiety; difficult, of mucus and bile; causing hard lumps in region of stomach, which were > friction; of a substance like corroded copper; like the white of egg; stringy; of clear, acid fluid or else bile; bilious; of matter tasting like liquorice; yellow mucus and bilious matter; yellowish, offensive, with colic; of bilious yellow substances like green vitriol; blackish-yellow. Greenish vomiting; < night and early morning, and watery; and watery, also with momentary relief; and bitter; and bitter, thick; and bitter, bilious; bitter, difficult (with the colic); of bilious fluid; and scanty, thick; dark, and difficult, bitter, depositing a copious, thick, slimy sediment; yellowish; grass; porraceous, æruginous.

Epigastrium tense and hard. Epigastrium depressed. Sticking; in pit extending to back; across S. and hypogastrium. Pricking in pit, gradually amounting to pain, worse at intervals, drawing him double. Tearing in epigastrium and umbilicus, worse by paroxysms, during which he is restless, lies on his belly, complains and screams, abdomen contracted and hard; T. in epigastrium, less at umbilicus and hypogastrium, worse at times, when with a shrunken, wild-looking countenance she threw herself into strange attitudes, uttered sharp cries and begged those about her to press upon her abdomen. Cramp. Enteralgia, with exhausting fever. Cardialgia. Gripping in pyloric region.

Sharp pain at epigastrium, worse at intervals, when there is laceration. Intermittent boring in pit extending into r. side; B. in epigastrium, worse by paroxysms, slight at hypogastrium, scarcely felt in umbilicus, acute in r. testicle, the pain > gradual pressure with the flat hand, < sudden and forcible bearing down on abdomen, pressure did no good unless limbs were previously flexed upon pelvis, pressure caused the pain to shift its place.

Pain; in pit; cardiac extremity; epigastrium; after eating; in epigastrium after eating, with fullness; at insertions of diaphragm during inspiration; < hot or cold drinks; in S., abdomen and loins, with internal heat; extending to loins and down limbs, < l.; extending over abdomen; in epigastrium gradually extending over abdomen; in pit gradually extending over abdomen; in pit extending to umbilicus; in pit extending to middle of chest; changing to ileus; irregular, about epigastrium; in epigastrium, worse at intervals; as from fasting, in morning, > rising; as from much undigested food, after a moderate dinner till late in evening, with heaviness in occiput, < moving head; heavy, in epigastrium, causing sensation as if abdomen were drawn towards spine; anxious, in pit.

Paroxysmal pain in epigastrium extending to chest, thence along external surface of upper limbs, he sits up in bed, with uneasiness, anxiety, palpitation, suffocation almost amounting to syncope, respiration 35 to 40, then prostration; P. pain in epigastrium radiating to all parts of abdomen, < night and eating, > pressure, later increasing to gripping and twisting, afterwards weight in abdomen, tenesmus and throbbing in epigastrium, sleeplessness, restlessness, though the pain prevented walking.

Twisting pain in epigastrium, worse at umbilicus, < pressure, > friction; paroxysmal, in epigastrium, > pressure, also at umbilicus, he lies on his belly, bends double, keeps changing position and face is pinched; paroxysmal, in epigastrium and umbilicus, with distortion of face, grievous cries, lies on belly, doubles herself up, ties handkerchiefs tightly around her, walks the room, etc., but no position relieves; worse by paroxysms, in epigastrium and umbilicus, with tearing in r. hypochondrium.

Sensitiveness to pressure; in epigastric region. Burning pain; at pit; in epigastric region; extending through abdomen, with cutting; worse at epigastrium than at umbilicus or hypogastrium, worse by paroxysms, > gradual pressure; constrictive, later in umbilical region at intervals. Heat; in epigastric region, also with pain that extended to region of heart. Sensation as of boiling water when cold drink reached it, then profuse vomiting of the color and consistency of coffee.

Constriction; in epigastric region; in epigastric region extending to pharynx when the colic is coming on, preventing drinking. Tightness; in epigastrium; in pit. Fullness; after eating. Feeling in epigastrium as if a ball ascended to throat, where it caused suffocation, preventing speaking and swallowing, with anxiety. Weight; in epigastrium; in epigastrium, with smarting pain and pain on touch. Sensation as if S. and abdomen were drawn upward and backward. Sensation as if it turned after swallowing liquids, aggravating the abdominal pains. Discomfort. Uneasiness after eating, with weight, digestion slow. Depressed sensation in pit, with distress. Emptiness.

Dyspepsia; with constipation and irregularly occurring pain or cramp in abdomen; with loss of appetite, usually clean tongue, sweetish taste, salivation, frequent nausea, pressure and heaviness in pit of stomach, sometimes with pain and confusion in head, malaise and prostration.

Clinical.—Gastralgia, pains sudden, violent, compelling hard pressure on the abdomen, > eructations. Periodic vomiting of brown or black liquid, with violent cramps. Periodic attacks of vomiting food (Ferr., Verat.).

Abdomen.—Retraction; with hardness and pain at umbilicus radiating to lumbar region and iliac fossæ so that he rolled on the ground and pressed the abdomen; with hard knots over its surface; < over median line, with tension of muscles; < along recti muscles, causing a sort of canal from ensiform cartilage to pubis; in spots, distention in other places, muscles distinctly seen through the skin; anterior wall on same plane with ensiform cartilage and pubis; tense; tense, < hypogastrium; feeling to hand on palpitation as if muscles were affected by cramps; with retention of stool and urine and cramps. Parietes seemed glued to spine, I could grasp the curvature of the spine and take hold of the descending aorta.

Distention; of A. and loins, with pain on touch; flatulent. Ascites, with at times violent diarrhoea. Muscles rigid. Hard; and flat; and uneven, sunken along the median line while the sides are elevated; and at times distended by flatulence, often spasmodically contracted. Hard lumps. Uneven swellings on various parts, < during height of paroxysms; movable flatulent S., in various parts. Doughy to feel. Rumbling; in morning after rising, with gurgling, later a stool at first formed, then violent purging; in evening, with movements. Gurgling; < pressure. Dull sound anteriorly on percussion.

Movement in afternoon, with desire for stool, but only flatus was passed. Flatulence; and movements, then soft stools; everything that he takes seems to turn to wind. Emission of flatus; offensive; offensive, after eating fish; hot. Ineffectual efforts to pass flatus in afternoon, which afterwards is accomplished by pressure. Spasms of intestines. Spasmodic contractions, < during hiccough, with tearing, > lying on A., sometimes body and limbs are jerked about, with chattering of teeth; S. contractions, with pain and sensitiveness so that he could not bear the pressure of the bed-clothes. Ulceration. Inflammation, with pain on touch, anxiety and burning in intestines and general twitching, then death; I. of intestines, mesentery and peritoneum, with ulceration and gangrene; of viscera and mesentery, with creeping fever, turbid, red and thick urine.

Lacerations; in evening; worse in epigastrium and umbilicus, < pressure; in walls, worse by paroxysms, renewed by bending head on chest when stretched out in bed; extending into back and loins. Paroxysmal tearing, worse at umbilicus, > pressure. Cutting; in morning, then emission of flatus; during soft stool, with cutting in anus; transiently > stool; flatulent, in morning in bed. Pinching. Gripping; in evening; in forepart rising paroxysmally towards stomach, which is sore, like a faintness, with rumbling after stool. Enteritis. Heus. Leucophlegmasia. Typhus abdominalis, with nephritis, nosebleed, enlargement of spleen and liver, without marked eruption, often with hypostatic pleuro-pneumonia. Intermittent boring, usually beginning in umbilical region, often extending to chest, threatening suffocation, to small of back. Kidney, bladder, lower limbs, always with constipation, abdomen usually retracted, pulse slow. Acute pain, then profuse diarrhœa.

Colic; after eating, with flatulent distention; then stool, with febrile movement, debility and drowsiness, later attacks of C. with constipation; < morning and evening; < night; < eating; < cold; < touch; < pressure; < slight pressure, > firm pressure (Coloc.); in front wall, < light pressure, > strong pressure; < sudden pressure, > gradual pressure; < pressure of hand, > lying on abdomen; > warmth; > during pregnancy; > emission of flatus, with painful flatulent distention below navel; most acute in hypogastrium, then in umbilicus and epigastrium; with pain in kidneys and lower limbs; with inflammatory symptoms; with tension, then bilious vomiting; worse in umbilical region, with tension and with hectic fever; with closure of jaws, convulsive movements of eyes and limbs, uneasiness and impeded micturition; with anxiety, retching and retracted testicles; with restlessness, delirium and paralysis of upper limbs; with bruised pain in forepart of thigh, in knees, calves, soles and loins, with loss of animal contractility in upper limbs; with nausea, vomiting and constipation; with tenesmus and diarrhœa; with diarrhœa; with diarrhœa, then constipation; with offensive stools; with paralysis; with paralysis of thighs; with paralysis of r. extensor communis digitorum; radiating to all parts of body; extending to testicles, > lying on abdomen; extending to lower limbs, < feet; so that she doubled up like a worm; alternating with pain in head and joints; causing uneasiness, confusion of mind and faintness; wandering; arthralgic; periodical. Paroxysmal colic; during micturition, micturition suddenly stops and the painful penis is retracted, when the fit is over the urine flows freely again, during and after micturition smarting along urethra; > pressure, but sensitiveness between the paroxysms; worse at umbilicus, > pressure; > stools, then uneasiness in A. causing him to press it, constipation and attacks of pain; worse at umbilicus, with burning which often changed to insensibility of abdominal walls; with restlessness; with watery stools containing much mucus; doubling him up.

Twisting pain. Paroxysmal twisting pain, worse at umbilicus, > pressure; worse at umbilicus, scarcely felt in hypogastrium, between the paroxysms compression, abdomen tense; worse at epigastrium, or compression, < pressure; worse at epigastrium, compressive pain between the paroxysms, the attacks > inflating abdomen and by pressure, he kept moving, screamed, rose from bed, struck his abdomen, face shrunken, eyes hollow and dim, between the paroxysms abdomen sunken and hard.

Sensitiveness to touch; < food; < below ensiform cartilage; < at stomach and r. side, with pain ascending œsophagus to throat; pain on pressure of two fingers, pressure with palm not much felt. Constrictive pain. Burning pain, < epigastrium, worse by paroxysms, with distended feeling. Tension. Sensation in afternoon as if full and stopped. Confused feeling. Uneasiness; with ineffectual urging to stool, but no excessive constipation, this U. or pain gradually crept around to lumbar region, where it became fixed, but by degrees spread over the system, < lower limbs, with general debility and indisposition to motion, later inactivity of bowels, gnawing, < lumbar region and abdomen, tired feeling in limbs, restlessness, relief from ineffectual stirring of bowels. Heat; rising into head; internally, with twisting about umbilicus, sticking in back and sensation as if something were lying on it, and pain in pit of stomach. Paralysis of intestines and bladder; intestines gradually lose the ability to expel their contents.

Upper A.—Gripping. Pain; acute, between epigastrium and hypogastrium, a less severe P. extending around hypogastrium; contractive, > eating, with increased appetite. Painless sensation as if something were torn off and fell down, then movements in abdomen.

Hypochondria.—Distended and tympanitic, with gurgling in various parts of abdomen on pressure, pain in umbilical region on pressure, retention of stool and suppression of urine. Lacerations as with arrows in different directions in H. and iliac region. Pain < touch; bruised, transversely across muscles below ribs and about navel on pressure, coughing and the like, < rising from lying.

Liver.—Enlarged. Contracted. Cirrhosis. Sticking in region; in region, anteriorly, then posteriorly. Pain; in region on pressure. Heat, and in spine.

Spleen.—Large. Diseased. Sticking in region, > rubbing; S. in region extending backward; inward in region, > rubbing, returning worse than ever. Tearing in region posteriorly towards back, where it becomes sticking, in afternoon. Pain in region. Sensitiveness in region; and in kidneys.

Sides.—Induration of muscles from l. false ribs to crista illi and from dorsal vertebræ to l. rectus muscle. Sticking in l. Tearing in flanks down to bladder, with regular exacerbations. Pain. Drawing towards back as from distention. Sensation as if something had fallen down in l. Creeping as of a mouse in l.

Umbilical Region.—Seems to adhere to spine; with pain involving chest; approximates spine, also anus drawn towards abdomen. Swelling in U. and hypogastrium, evidently from aggregation of intestinal folds, during acute attacks. Movements; back and forth below umbilicus, like a rough substance. Intermittent bubbling. Tense. Shooting to other parts of A., > pressure, so violent at times that he was almost wild, tossed about, pressed his fists into his abdomen, said he must go to stool, abdominal walls retracted, vomiting of greenish bile, breath offensive; S. extending to r. and l.; S. deep internally below umbilicus; and in pubic region. Intermittent tearing, > pressure. Cramp. Cutting during stool. Gripping in afternoon, > emission of flatus; G., then burning; then ineffectual desire for stool; > emission of flatus. Boring and constriction, and above it. Pain; above navel; and in back; on vomiting; > pressure; > gradual pressure, sometimes he can allow two or three persons to lie on his abdomen, at other times aggravation from slightest touch; then constipation; obliging him to draw up legs; extending to r. hypogastric region; extending towards hypogastrium; extending to hypogastrium, with nausea, vomiting and strangury; radiating over abdomen, < direction of recti muscles, with general uneasiness, the pain became lacerating, caused restlessness and moaning, with attacks of bitter, bilious, green vomiting, metallic taste, anorexia, lack of thirst, chilliness, cramp in lower limbs, sleeplessness and anxiety; periodically. Paroxysmal pain; > pressure; and in a circle all around abdomen and corresponding part of trunk, > hard pressure, < gentle pressure; as if bowels were torn out, extending to hypogastrium and testicles. Twitching pains, and in hypogastrium, pressure made them rise up to breasts. Twisting pain; shooting through to back and down limbs. Paroxysmal twisting pain, > pressure, also in hypogastrium and renal regions; > pressure, also in hypogastrium, epigastrium and base of chest, between the pains constriction, < pressure, with hardness of abdomen; and in hypogastrium, with rolling about, etc., face shrunken and expressive of anguish, abdomen, < about umbilicus, retracted and hard, pains < pressure, between the paroxysms constriction; < below navel, less in hypogastrium, with restlessness and rubbing of abdomen. Tenderness. Contraction transversely about middle of abdomen when sitting bent over. Constriction as from a cord around body. Feeling of a bar across under umbilicus, then pain rising towards stomach, sometimes extending into back and loins, > pressure on abdomen, < night, generally with yellow sclerotica, stool once in several days, or two or three stools in one day. Internal burning.

Hypogastrium.—Congestion of inguinal glands. Rumbling in r. iliac fossa. Movements in forenoon, with cutting. Sticking in transverse colon; in small intestines; in r. side in afternoon; in l. groin on stooping after dinner, and on rising S. in umbilical region, > stooping. Gripping; in transverse colon; > pressure. Crampy paroxysms every quarter of an hour, with pain and coldness, passing like lightning from groin to leg, without involving posterior part of thigh, if when the attacks come on he is leaning on a cane he falls to the ground, the pain feels as if in the bones, but is > strong pressure, between the paroxysms constriction in limb. Pain; in iliac region; and in renal region; along colon; in region of transverse colon, < pressure; > pressure; in a spot between tip of ilium and symphysis, with distention; myalgic, from fatigue of muscles after retching; twisting, and in testicles, at times excruciating; drawing, from pubic region to middle of spine. Sensitiveness to pressure in r. iliac region; to hard pressure in r. iliac fossa. Sounded well on percussion, but attempting to introduce the catheter aggravated the pains, entrance only affected during the remission and a few drops of red urine were drawn off. Paroxysmal constriction, with anxiety, nausea, eructations, small, rapid pulse, cold skin, later sensation as if two arrows were drawn through abdomen in opposite directions. Compression. < pressure, worse at intervals, with coolness there. Oppression. Sensation of incarcerated flatus. Dragging in colon, with ineffectual efforts to pass stool and flatus. In H. and low down in rectum, painful, ineffectual desire to pass flatus.

Clinical.—Colic, walls of the abdomen tense and hard; about the navel, with terrible tearing pain; with extreme distention of the transverse colon; with tympanic distention of the abdomen in circumscribed swellings as large as the fist; with complete obstruction of the bowels and frequent vomiting. Jaundice, with nausea and vomiting. Many cases of incarcerated hernia. Chronic inflammation of the liver, with constipation, vomiting of green mucus, pain from the liver to left side and to the back, or a feeling of a string pulling the liver backward.

Rectum.—Closed forcibly upon finger introduced into it during paroxysms. Injections cannot be retained more than five minutes, they are rejected hurriedly. Crawling and sticking. Weight. Tenesmus; and of bladder. Feeling as if he would pass a thin stool, but he does not. Urging to a stool that was scanty and consistent, with pressure. Sluggish desire at times, stool sluggish and tenacious; ineffectual D.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the rectum.

Anus.—Hæmorrhoids caused by violent efforts to evacuate. Drawn up; with constriction; with itching hæmorrhoids. Prolapsus. Fornication. Burning during stool. Tenesmus; with pressing boring.

Stool.—Watery; and frequent; at first, afterwards in small pieces, of penetrating odor. Diarrhœa; before colic; only during lead colic; with burning in rectum, preceded by tenesmus; with tenesmus; then constipation; alternating with constipation during pregnancy, black, small; yellow; yellow and copious; yellow, with pain; frequent, offensive; painless, with rumbling in abdomen. Sometimes thin, sometimes globular, sometimes triangular, nearly always dark, afterwards constipation. Dysentery; bloody, with fever, cutting in stomach and abdomen and eructations so that everything seemed turned to gas.

Constipation; with nausea and vomiting; with heat in abdomen; with pain in epigastric region and back; then diarrhœa, often involuntary; causing fissure of anus, although there was a stool nearly every day. Like sheep-dung, scanty; and only two in three days; like S., ashy gray; like S., white, with effort; yellowish, rounded, as the disease progresses they become softer, at last often watery. Hard in morning, with pressure and sticking, three soft ones in afternoon; H. and scratching; and difficult; and light gray, tenacious, difficult.

Blackish, scanty (Op.), painful, only once in eight or ten days; B., fetid; every other day, and thick; or green, in balls, often hard. Dark; and smooth. Lead-colored. Fawn-colored. Yellow, consistent, passed unconsciously. Pale. Indolent; and tough, at last streaked with blood. Bloody; and small; with tenesmus. Scybalous. Copious. Involuntary. Painful. Difficult; before colic; and indolent. Irregular. Twice since 5 A.M. Every other day. Once in two or three days.

Clinical.—Diarrhœa, particularly with a sensation of something pulling the navel backward, with actual retraction; one case of diarrhœa, following typhoid fever; colic, alternating with delirium. Constipation, with spasms of the sphincter ani, especially with the sensation of a string pulling the anus into the rectum; with terrible spasms of the anus, pains in the muscles of the thighs, etc.; with violent pain in the cæcal region, where there is a hard, sore swelling, with retraction of the navel; with most violent colic and retraction of the navel.

Urinary Organs.—Prostate indurated. Nephritis; with fever; parenchymatous. Bladder distended; pain in region; itching and burning pain in neck and in perineum; constriction towards neck, difficulty in introducing sound; sphincter did not permit urine to pass for more than thirty-six hours, so that bladder extended up to umbilicus, at times testes retracted into inguinal canal causing pain in back, loins, scrotum and perineum; inactivity, micturition difficult; paralysis of sphincter, which allowed urine to pass guttatin. Tenesmus; ineffectual, sometimes after an effort, which increases the pains, urine passes guttatin; frequent ineffectual. Desire in forenoon, with inability to urinate immediately; frequent D., urine always scanty; frequent D., micturition painful, urine often high-colored, depositing a lateritious sediment.

Strangury. Dysuria. Micturition difficult; and by drops; and a little at a time; and frequent, scanty; and painful; only affected by forcible contraction of abdominal muscles, which increases the pains; possible only during remission of abdominal pains. Micturition painful. M. rare; and scanty. Frequent M. of usual amount in afternoon. M. impossible at times. Involuntary M.; during epileptic spasms; between epileptic seizures. Ischuria; with inflammatory fever. Urine retained; suppressed; suppressed, only a few drops of bloody mucus in bladder. Urethra retracted; painful where it leaves bladder; smarting along U. at beginning of micturition; scalding on micturition, also still more so afterwards.

Urine.—Copious; at 4 A.M., then pain in abdomen as after taking cold, > emission of flatus, then sticking in abdomen; and pale; and watery, with a pellicle looking like spermaceti and leaving a greasy mark, reaction acid, depositing a flaky sediment, which showed a few mucous granules and one cell of renal epithelium, containing several fatty globules. Scanty; and dark, evacuated by drops; S. and deep red; and red, easily discharged; and limpid; passed only once in twenty-four hours; and high-colored, with decrease of extractive matters, urea, phosphoric acid, uric acid and chlorides, later with anæmia and double the quantity of normal excrementitious matter in the blood, lastly albuminuria, the amount of urine variable, sometimes almost normal but the density low, extractives diminished, and whether there is albuminuria or not there is no increase of uric acid in blood and no uric acid in serum of a blister. Dark; and turbid; and depositing many lithates on cooling. Red; brownish; and acid; soon decomposing and becoming thick with flaky clouds. Brown-yellow. Orange-colored. Dull yellow. Pale; pale lemon-colored, clear, alkaline, without sediment. Hæmaturia. Contained a little sugar and mucus. Alkaline, but not limpid. Acid. Dark brown sediment.

Albuminous urine; without œdema; without urea, sp. gr. 1002; urine scanty; brownish-red, turbid, acid, sediment flocculent, consisting of red blood-corpuscles and many short, thick, turbid cylinders beset with red blood-corpuscles, all the symptoms of acute, diffuse nephritis; sp. gr. 1030, yellowish-brown, acid, clear, with many granular cylinders; containing cells from kidneys; containing epithelial casts and traces of lead; color reddish amber, with much uric acid; and alkaline, with traces of lead; with amœbrosis and cerebral (usually epileptic) symptoms; with clonic spasms of face and limbs, unconsciousness, frothing from mouth and puffiness of face; with many casts, it had to be drawn with a catheter, two days afterwards anuria, trismus, opisthotonos, convulsions, during which the tongue was bitten, pupils contracted and indolent, then loss of mind, on following days the amount of urine (in spite of infusion of squills) was 600 and 700 c. cm., seventeen grammes of urea in twenty-four hours, pains in limbs, later urine and urea increased, albumen diminished, pus disappeared, mind became free, but death from erysipelas; yellowish-brown, scanty, turbid, sediment of many tubular crystals of uric acid, hyaline cylinders, to some of which adhered cells similar to white blood-corpuscles, to others fat drops.

Clinical.—Chronic interstitial nephritis. Chronic Bright's disease, with dropsy of the lower extremities, sensation of numbness, paralysis, etc. Hemorrhage of kidneys, with agonizing pain in the ureters.—Acute nephritis, with bloody urine, mental depression, etc. Paralysis of the bladder, with difficult micturition, or even with retention of urine.

Sexual Organs.—Weakness. Impotency. Penis flaccid; P. painful; sensation as if tied at its root or along its course. Erections in morning; frequent E., with spasmodic retraction of testicles and even with emissions during colic. Inflammatory swelling of scrotum and penis, with inflammatory dysuria, constipation, delirium, gangrene of all these parts. Constriction of scrotum; so that at times testicles were drawn up into inguinal canal, with pain in small of back, scrotum and intestines. Skin of scrotum and thigh sore to touch after the sweat.

Testicles.—Swelling; retraction at times. R. rose towards inguinal canal during the paroxysms. Shooting through them, almost causing faintness. Pain in l.; P. > suspending them with the hands; > compression; in T. and spermatic cord, with painful drawing in them and with contraction of scrotum; choking, in l., at times extending into spermatic cord. Constriction. Tension.

Jerking in spermatic cord in morning, in afternoon stitches where it leaves abdomen. Paroxysmal pain along spermatic cord into l. testicle, which is then retracted. Desire increased; diminished; lost; seminal weakness. Emissions; in morning sleep, with voluptuous dreams; with biting on frenum preputii; involuntary, causing debility; unconscious, in sleep after wine, with relaxed penis, next morning violent E. on slight provocation; scanty, during coition.

Female.—Vaginismus. Leucorrhœa. Inertia of uterus at delivery and post-partum hæmorrhage, the child was very slight. Stillborn infants. Premature births. Abortion; with abundant menorrhagia and colicky pains; then peritonitis; tired, heavy pain in lower limbs, < knees and about umbilicus and in groins, as if a cord were pulling down and extending to the very lower part of abdomen, same pain in upper limbs, feet, toes and back, < over tops of feet and hands, with the nausea of pregnancy, afterwards vomiting, with increase of these symptoms, ending in A. Menorrhagia. Menses absent; for fourteen months, then returned scantily; M. that had ceased for two days returned; disturbed.

Clinical.—Dysmenorrhœa, with the characteristic sensation of a string pulling the abdominal walls towards the spine. Vaginismus, associated with excruciating colic, etc. Threatening abortion (from lack of development of the uterus).

Respiratory Organs.—Spasms. Constriction of larynx. Voice loud; V. nasal; hoarse; hoarse, rough; hoarse, almost toneless; tone impaired; hollow; weak; lost its resonance, weak, like a woman's, articulation impeded, sometimes incomplete; weaker with each return of menses till it was a faint whisper, no approximation of vocal cords on attempting to speak and glottis was wide open, hence fatigue of muscles of chest; panting, stifled; lost. Dry mucus in upper part of trachea, with pain in chest on loosening it, with whistling in upper part of chest on inspiration. Bronchitis.

Cough; in morning from dry mucus in upper part of chest; convulsive; hacking. Dry cough; on deep inspiration; with vomiting; and short, nervous, fatiguing; later with expectoration of mucus, finally with fever. Cough, with purulent expectoration; C., with bloody expectoration; coughing up blood, later spitting of blood, without cough. Hæmoptysis; changing to suppuration of lungs (in a young man who had suppressed erysipelas with white lead).

Respiration.—Asthma. Suffocation; on drinking. Suffocative oppression during the colicky paroxysms. Asphyxia. Dyspnoea. Craving for air. < night. Anxious. Impeded. Difficult; compelling him to jump out of bed at night and open the window. Short; on walking, < ascending a height, with hoarseness and oppression in region of heart. < pressure. Wheezing. Heavy. Sighing; and slow. Intermittent. Slow, expiration stertorous on account of weakness of buccinators. Rapid; during the paroxysms, and short; during the paroxysms, sometimes interrupted and choking during attack of colic; inspiration R., incomplete and noisy during the paroxysms, as if checked by the pain; < during paroxysms of colic and arthralgia, with noise at entrance of nose and mouth; < during colicky paroxysms, and difficult, superficial; < during the paroxysms, and anxious, difficult, irregular; and embarrassed; and painful; and anxious; and irregular; and interrupted, panting; in short jerks; and incomplete, short, suffocating and a kind of jactitation; and feeble. Painful. Suddenly cut short. Arrested in afternoon when standing, sitting or moving r. arm towards the left, with sticking in sternum.

Chest.—Milk scanty. Suppuration of lungs. Gangrene of lungs. Tubercles in lungs. Consolidation in apices of lungs, with little cough, scarcely any rising of l. upper chest on inspiration, respiration harsh, almost bronchial. Mucus. Applied perpendicularly over sternum the instrument showed .75 mm. Labored movement of C. and diaphragm. Weak action, < l., dulness in l. apex, then in r. Râles at apices of lungs on auscultation. Vesicular murmur loud, with mucous râles, lungs congested. Friction of muscles, with other symptoms, so that it was difficult to satisfy myself that she had not pleurisy. Bronchial respiration was heard at apex of lungs.

Stitches in l.; in middle of sternum; in pectoralis major; in female breast; beneath mammae; below r. breast; deep in r. mamma; in l. mamma; in l. mamma, then in r.; in various parts of C. and shoulders; in and beneath mammae in morning, > rising; in l. in afternoon; beneath l. mamma near sternum in afternoon; now r., now l. side in afternoon and evening; in l. mamma in afternoon on inspiration; in upper part of sternum in afternoon during inspiration; in region of r. lower ribs in afternoon on turning body to right, < turning it backward, > rubbing; in l. upper part in afternoon, on rubbing it extended into mamma and then backward and upward under shoulder; in r. costal region after sitting down, > walking; beneath r. arm when standing, taking away her breath; in l., < inspiration, then tearing; in l. side near sternum, > rubbing; in breasts, with itching, and with suppuration about l. nipple and discharge of serous water, induration of r. breast, adherent towards outer part, livid, with red streaks, pain extending into arm and affecting its use, thin corrosive discharge (after lead ointment on rash of hands); in l. side in afternoon, extending through scapula; below r. breast, extending into r. scapula; in front and sides, worse at intervals; intermittent, in l., not affected by respiration; paroxysmal, in external subclavicular region, near brachial plexus, > pressure; in r. side, becoming twinging.

Pleurisy. Tearing beneath r. arm. Cutting in C. and throat as if scraped by a shell, later the sensation was felt in throat only at times and exhausted him. Sudden boring in l. mammary region extending into back, < pressure, with fever and dyspnoea obliging her to sit up in bed, beats of heart tumultuous, rapid and resonant. Oppressive cramp in lower part after physical exertion, with fatigue. Pain; behind sternum; in l. lower intercostal muscles; in anterior parietes, < above costal cartilages, < touch and respiration; dared not dilate C. lest he should increase the pains; intermittent, in r. pectoralis; intermittent, in l. side anteriorly and posteriorly; dragging, as if a string were stretched from it to groin. Sensitiveness of anterior walls and of costal cartilages.

Pressure; upon lower part of sternum; < behind sternum, causing anxiety and making respiration difficult, the anxiety < movement or pressure of hand upon l. chest; upon l. independent of respiration; as from a block of wood against l. anterior lower part, as if on surface of lung, from morning after rising till after dinner, < inspiration, laughing and after dinner when lying on the sofa, with drawing sticking in l. upper arm and at times sticking between scapulae, with pain in chest. Constriction; at base and all around. Oppression; in morning; intermittent. Tightness. Anxiety. Rush of blood when walking rapidly. Sensibility to temperature diminished in sternal region.

Clinical.—It has been prescribed in tuberculosis, hæmorrhage from the lungs, cough, purulent expectoration, etc.

Heart.—Change in muscular structure, without coincident disease of valves, with or without atheromatous degeneration of vessels, usually hypertrophy and dilatation of l. ventricle, sometimes with parenchymatous nephritis. Dilated, four beats heard instead of two, pulse vibrating as in insufficiency of aorta. Enlargement; and beats noticed over whole surface and in epigastric region, violent pulsation in the distended jugular veins, pulse small, rapid, with oppression and œdema of limbs, heart's sounds of indefinite double friction murmurs; so that it was impossible to lie on l. side, with pressure upon H., but it maintained its rhythm through the respiratory intermission, slower at the beginning of the period and falling to 100 or 105 per minute, holding that for a time, then increasing rapidly till he breathed, when every available muscle was exercised to give him air.

Sound.—First at apex sharp and metallic; first remarkably ringing, second dull, impulse strong, whirling, with pain under sternum. First short, defective, second unusually distinct, the impulse received in two intercostal spaces is jerky but not forcible, no murmur. Bruit de souffle at apex; in cervical vessels; humeral; during first action, more at apex than at base; anemic, at base and along large vessels. Anemic blowing in vessels of neck. Sonorous bruit at apex transmitted along carotids, the second beat of H. is heard under sternum. Cat's fremitus at apex. Double friction sound without enlargement; D. murmur in crural artery; D. souffle in subclavicular region but none in crural artery; D. rough blowing, transmitted along carotids, with swelling of limbs and albuminuria. Sounds over a large surface, instead of the valvular sound a double bruit, rasping, which is transmitted along carotids. Redoubled, second rude and like a pericardiac sound. Sound accompanied by metallic tinkling. Chlorotic. At one point a murmur in second sound. Soft systolic souffle at base. Dull on percussion, with prominence of præcordial region. Tremor in jugular veins on auscultation.

Palpitation; < ascending stairs or running too long; with dyspnoea, he felt the heart beating along neck and as far as vertex, with full, hard, regular pulse, heart's sound heard nearly all over anterior part of chest. Impulse violent, but pulse rhythmical. Action strong; and irregular. Action irregular; and hurried, shaking præcordial region, the beats seem stifled on auscultation. Action feeble; and slow; and second sound indistinct.

Jerking in præcordial region. Symptoms resembling angina pectoris. Sticking in præcordial region on inspiration, then anxiety with mounting of heat and redness into face. Sudden pain; P. with palpitation. Pressure in præcordial region. Oppression. Anxiety; with anxious respiration; with cold sweat.

Pulse.—Rapid; and jerking; and strong, also cordy; and full; and hard, also full; and hard, small; and tense, intermittent; and small, also weak and intermittent; and small, irregular; and irregular, also slender; and soft; and weak; and scarcely perceptible one minute, the next slow and large; by turns R. and slow, large and small; sometimes R., sometimes slow, soft. Slow; and full; and strong; and hard; and hard, vibrating, also large; and hard, tense; and large, tense; large and soft; and contracted; and soft; and small; and small, weak; and small, contracted, hardish, intermittent; and weak; and weak, irregular; and weak, soft, also easily depressed; and indistinct, intermittent and of irregular strength; irregular as to force, sometimes weak, sometimes vibrating; when recumbent, quickened by trifling exertion, weak. forcible beating in aorta shaking abdomen. Throbbing in carotids and crural arteries. Full and turgid. Hard; in temporal arteries; and tense; and full; and full, tense, vibrating. Intermittent. Tremulous. Vibrating. Irregular; in frequency and force; in frequency, and soft; and deep and easily compressed. Dicrotic. Small; and soft; and feeble; and slender, soft, easily compressible. Weak; and thready, sometimes imperceptible.

Neck.—Tearing in nape, > standing and rubbing, then it appeared in l. shoulder; T. from r. side into shoulder. Pain in region of last cervical and first dorsal vertebrae on pressure. Acute drawing in nape. Tension in nape, < r. side, extending into ear, on turning head sideways. Sensibility diminished. Stiffness. Paralysis of muscles.

Back.—Neuralgic pain. Pain in muscles; in spine extending into occiput; with lameness and weakness; with sensitiveness of spine to pressure; and in hips and down spine, occasionally extending up neck to occiput. Spinal irritation. Rheumatism of B., hips and lower limbs. Weakness; and of lower limbs. Locomotor ataxia, < shutting eyes, strength undiminished, leg cannot be bent upon thigh. Sticking in middle of spine; in middle of back in forenoon when standing.

Scapula.—Sticking; between S.; in r., with burning. Tearing in r.; in lower part of r.; in r., with feeling as if something rose up in it, then burning in abdomen, then sticking in r. scapula. Pain between S.; sprained, in r. Dorsal region of spine tender to pressure.

Lumbar Region.—Sticking in l. in afternoon on laughing; in r. in afternoon, > pressure; S. in afternoon, > rubbing, with sensitiveness on leaning it against a chair; in l. and in r. hypochondrium in afternoon on bending towards l., > rising and sitting erect; worse by paroxysms, > pressure, < movement, with cramps there. Tearing in l. in afternoon when standing; T. in renal region worse at the same time as the abdominal sufferings, and like them > friction and pressure. Pain; in sacro-iliac synchondrosis; < stooping; with warmth in it; usually lancinating, and in nates, posterior part of thigh, knee, sole and toes, equally severe on both sides, felt somewhat on inner surface of lower limb, with attacks of cramps; rheumatic, and in limbs, extending into knees; drawing. Dragging pain; and in epigastrium.

Clinical.—Spinal paralysis, rheumatic. Infantile paralysis. Symptoms of multiple sclerosis, posterior spinal sclerosis; if this drug has not actually cured this disease it has been found valuable for many of its distressing symptoms, especially for the violent sciatic pains, the colic, constipation, dysuria, etc.; (its ally Thalium, which is even more poisonous than Plumb., has been found to act well in the terrible neuralgias of this disease after Plumbum seems to have lost its effect).

Extremities.—(Edema. Emaciation; with sensitiveness to cold; of r. leg and l. arm, with increased sensibility. Bluish (Dilated veins on legs and feet, and on upper third of outer surface of r. arm a serpentine varicose vein, and on patella a patch of varicose veins.) Gout; in hands and feet; without redness or tumefaction, a tumor on dorsal surface of wrist, in some cases coincident with paralysis of extensors, extends along tendons, is not changed in color, consistence or mobility, it is caused by hypertrophy of tendinous expansions, never begins in joints. He always lies with them drawn up. Legs flexed upon thighs and forearms on arms, and body doubled together. R. fall back more easily than l.

Trembling; of legs and hands, < r.; after colic; > resting them against something; of l. lower, then l. upper, with pain and difficulty in moving them; of hands when stretched out, < r., r. ring finger semi-flexed, paralysis of extensors, < last phalanx, on l. hand only ring finger is paralyzed, grasp weak, < r. hand, lower limbs weak, cramps in last three r. fingers and in calves. Constantly thrust out of bed and then covered up again. Jerking. Contractions; of joints; spasmodic, < night, with pain. Spasmodic flexion of arms and legs, so that backs of hands rested on chest, then gradual relaxation till arms hung by the side. Convulsions; and of hands, with tightness. Cramps; in joints and surrounding muscles, with pain; hands and feet; hands and r. leg from lying in bed, < extending them; knees and arms, with pains; l. middle finger and successively in knees, popliteal spaces, calves, soles, etc., sometimes with pain.

Sudden shock so that he fell to the ground, with spasmodic flexion of legs, so that heels touched nates, on trying to extend legs cramp in thighs and calves, abdomen retracted and sensitive to touch, even of his shirt, with constipation, a week later a similar shock in arms with spasmodic pains, hands flexed and fingers spread apart, the pains lasted several weeks and during this time he could sleep only on his back with r. arm clamped between legs, afterwards use of r. arm impaired and fingers hanging down, next year l. hand similarly affected, skin of arms rough, dry and cracked.

Lancinations in arms, forearms and lower limbs; legs, arms and fingers; in elbows and knees; along inner surfaces, sometimes with cramps. Tearing; knees, calves, soles and palmar surfaces of forearms, < movement, > pressure, worse by paroxysms, during which there are cramps. Neuralgic pains.

Pains; arm and legs; hands and feet; joints; lower joints of r.; large joints, < knees; joints and muscles of elbow, wrist, fingers, and their tendinous sheaths, knees, popliteal spaces and insteps, spontaneous or excited by movement or pressure; during movement and pressure; on forced movement; in flexor muscles on motion; < muscular parts of thighs, then in muscles of arm; < knees, with weakness and lameness; < legs and l. arm, with swelling of l. knee, then weakness of l. knee; on inside, < about inner angle of elbow and knee; < night; < evening and night, so that he rubbed one foot against the other; in wrists and ankles, < morning on going to work, with stiffness, lameness and weakness of them; large joints, < heat of bed; in joints, with cracking on motion; hands and feet, with numbness of them; beginning in fingers and extending through elbows and upper arms, then beginning in feet and finally affecting whole body; across arms and legs; in joints extending through limbs; sudden; paroxysmal, so that he cries out, also > pressure, < movement; vague wandering; now in arms, now in feet, with drawing, removing their activity; as if broken.

Bruised pain; < lower; suddenly in lower, with pricking and formication on soles, walking aggravated the latter so that it was painful, < night, > daytime after getting heated at work, next weakness of upper limbs, at last upper limbs immovable and painful, arms hung down and seemed fastened to sides, when raised they fell like dead weights, shoulder depressed, elbow, wrist and fingers flexed, forearm and hand half way between pronation and supination, bruised pain, < movement and at night, in parts around shoulder, subclavian space, axilla and upper limb, when the arm was squeezed he cried out that the marrow was bitten. Drawing pains; tearing. Drawings in arms and legs. Tingling. Heaviness.

Weakness; of joints; wrists, ankles and knees; lower and hands in morning on rising; hands and feet, < calves, on waking at 4 A.M., > walking; < r.; calves and arms, < biceps; < l. upper, with emaciation and areus senilis; hands and forearms, later sudden pain in thighs when walking, lost use of limbs. Stiffness; of fingers, toes and insteps; with general cold sweat, the patient answered by nodding, later respiration stopped, rigidity extended over body, but heart continued to beat. Diminished sensibility of r. hand and foot; of forearm and thigh, < anterior surface. Numbness; of arms and legs; arms and legs < movement; in r., more in leg and foot than in arm; with torpor; arms and feet, with immobility of them; r. hand, r. leg and foot, with impaired power of motion of them; sometimes extending through whole system; in sudden attacks in arms and thighs, with heaviness and pain; gradually becoming paralysis. Insensibility to tickling in r. hand and r. sole.

Paralysis; of l.; arms and feet; hands and legs; hands and feet; both lower and r. arm; extensors; extensors, of upper and of one lower; a group of muscles, one muscle or a single muscular fasciculus; posterior muscles of upper limbs and anterior muscles of lower; with feeling as if weights were suspended from joints; with pain, < pressure and movement; with emaciation, their skin dingy yellow, flabby and as if fastened to bones; with emaciation, tissues soft and flabby and skin yellow and too loose; wrists and ankles, < extensors, with emaciation of ball of thumb; extensors of forearms, emaciation of lower part of forearm, < r., of hypothenar, deltoids and muscles of upper arms, < r., analgesia and anesthesia of arms, < r., the same symptoms in lower limbs, extensors of feet very little paralyzed; upper, and partial P. of lower, the hands, with palms turned inward, hung by his side and rather forward, powerless, swollen and livid, he could not move forearm nor rise from a chair, nor walk without assistance and then gait was tottering; incomplete, in upper, < extensors of fingers, the supinators, extensors, abductors and adductors of thumbs, with incomplete P. of feet, < extensors of legs, sensation of warmth not entirely lost.

Upper Extremities.—Emaciation; of flexors; extensors completely atrophied, space between radius and ulna sunken, skin dry, gray and rough, hands flexed at wrists, basal phalanges at r. angles with metacarpus, other phalanges flexed into palm, terminal phalanx of thumb at r. angle with basal phalanx, extension and separation of fingers impossible, pronation and supination almost lost, scarcely any power to flex or extend elbow, motion at shoulder free. Trembling; < morning, relieved for the rest of the day if he drank two or three glasses of brandy; rapid and uniform. Cramps; < deltoids, with pains.

Pain; in muscles and joints; neuralgic; lacerating; myosalgia, < where radial nerve leaves the spiral groove of humerus. Pressure, < elbows and fingers, sensitive. Weakness of flexors; r. extensors; < evening. Hypalgesia of l., < upper two-thirds of palmar surface of forearm. Sensibility diminished; to temperature in r. Insensibility; with formication and weakness, then paralysis; in r., and in l. hand, diminished sensibility of rest of l. upper limb.

On attempting to move them contraction only in fibres of deltoid. Extensors do not contract under electricity. Motor power of r. diminished, and posterior muscles of forearm wasted. Inco-ordinate movements, with analgesia. Want of power of motory co-ordination, < l. when his eyes are shut he cannot touch any particular spot on his face without feeling for it, analgesia to pricking and pinching in arms, < l. Paralysis; of extensors; P. and atrophy of extensor digitorum communis indicator, extensores digiti quinti et pollicis, extensores carpi (except l. extensor carpi ulnaris), abductor pollicis longus and brevis, interosseous muscle, deltoids, biceps brachiales interni and supinators.

Shoulder.—Depressed. Emaciation; of r. S. and arm, fingers flexed, tremors after attempting to use them, no power to raise arms, which hung uselessly by his sides, tenderness when they were moved. Sticking; inward in r.; beneath r., extending outward at S.; burning, on r. Acute pain, < l. and along extensor surface of forearm, on moving upper limb, pain on pressure on deltoid, < l. tremor on stretching arm. Pain; in region; in r.; r. on movement; < deltoids, which were paralyzed; extending to elbows, < over deltoids; in joints and flexors of upper arm so that he could not raise arm. Weight, and in finger-tips; W., more in elbows and most of all in hands; more in elbows and most of all in wrist, the pain < exposure of the parts to cold, with internal and external coldness of the limb, < dorsum of hand. Raising difficult; impossible. Numbness. Paralysis of joint and elbow, temperature in morning 39.4° C., in evening 41° C., pulse 126, respiration 28.

Arm.—Emaciation; < l. and < hypothermic eminenes. Moniliform dilatation of veins, and on back of hand, chiefly corresponding to union of veins, < muscular exertion, and dilated veins on calves; veins only slightly filled, but on compressing deep veins of upper arm they were swollen and had olive-shaped dilatations. Fixed in pronation. Always semi-flexed at elbow; A. and hand held midway between pronation and supination. Hanging down by his side, unable to raise them; hanging down as if fastened to his sides, when raised and let go they fall like inert bodies. L. laid against chest, it cannot be raised by action of deltoid, other movements natural; r. applied to chest, unable to raise it, its other movements natural, with pain in r. side of neck, r. shoulder, inner part of r. arm, bend of r. elbow, palmar surface of r. forearm and wrist, < movement, worse by paroxysms, during which they burn and between which they are cutaneous, skin of these parts insensible. Trembling; of r.; of r. during voluntary motion; < r., with a regular to-and-fro motion; < towards evening, < hands and forearms, but extending to upper arms on strong exertion. Convulsive movements. Clonic convulsions on attempting to use them, > walking for some time, r. arm fixed to his side every day up to 10 or 11 A.M., grasping power lessened. Tearing in r.; deeply-seated T., sharp one moment, dull the next, with trembling and occasional cramps. Pain; in joints of A. and hand; in r., with fornication; r., with sensitiveness to pressure, and with lacerations from shoulder to bend of elbow. Weakness; of extensors and flexors of A. and hands, < r.; < towards evening, with numbness, then trembling; < r., with numbness and alternately increasing and decreasing trembling, the latter < fatiguing work; with weight at posterior surface of middle part of A. and forearm. Numbness; from middle third down to finger-tips; < r., with analgesia. Sometimes held against the hottest parts of the stove, sometimes he wants them sprinkled with cold water. Paralysis; of extensors; painful; of l., he could flex and extend it but slightly, still the grasp was unaffected; of extensors, when he pronates the hand the wrist drops at right angles to arm and he cannot straighten it; beginning in extensors, gradually extending to flexors, < deltoid, hand remained midway between pronation and supination, with tearing in arm, < pressure and at night, heaviness in wrists and fingers, finally cold feeling in limbs.

Upper Arm.—Atrophy of deltoids. Veins large and knotted, varicose at points of union, but veins on extensor surface of forearm scarcely visible after compression of venous trunk. Twitching above l. elbow. Tearing beneath r. shoulder; in middle of r.; in lower part in morning; on inner surface of l. in forenoon; posterior surface of l., which on rubbing went into elbow. Sudden pain in A. and hands, then inability to use hands. Bruised pain in deltoid. Acute drawing in r. humerus; and in bones of hands and fingers. Diminished sensibility in r. Insensibility of external and anterior surface of region of l. deltoid. Deltoids did not contract under electricity. Unable to extend it laterally or raise it. Unable to raise elbow to the level of his shoulder. Immobility of deltoid while the surrounding fleshy parts are moving in different directions, all other movements of upper limbs slow, feeble and difficult.

Elbow.—Flexed. Boring, < at bend, extending to shoulder, hand flexed and cannot be straightened nor lifted, arm cannot be raised, uses both hands in carrying a glass to his lips, on trying to straighten the arm the supinator longus resists forcibly. Pain; in bends; in r., and in wrists and muscles of r. arm; twisting, in bends and in palmar surfaces of forearms, worse by paroxysms, > pressure. Weight; < l.

Forearm.—Dilatations of cutaneous veins like strings of pearls, < exertion and compression of venæ profundæ brachii, on F. and under surface of lower third of upper arm; on F. and hands. Arteries rigid and tortuous. Emaciated; extensors; < r. and thumbs; posterior surface, and flabby, also the skin there dried, a bony projection at carpo-metacarpal region. The superior part of outside is not on the same plane with the interior part, which is twisted inward. Muscles, < extensors, flabby, weak and tremulous. Palmar surface hard and tense during the worst paroxysms and affected by cramps, which are removed by movement. Fixed in pronation, with much effort they can be brought midway between pronation and supination. Semi-flexed and incapable of extension and supination; l. semi-flexed, incapable of extension. Trembling of F. and hands, < l. Cramps; of r. flexors. Lacerations from elbows to finger-ends. Boring from middle of r. to near shoulder-joint after breakfast; paroxysmal, in palmar surface, in bend of elbow and in axilla, > gentle pressure, < firm pressure. Pains; sudden, in radial nerves in the daytime, with pain on stretching out hand, only ring fingers and r. little finger could be extended, with uneasiness in elbow like fatigue, also felt in leg behind ankle. Weakness. Diminished sensibility; on extensor surface of F. and fingers. Electro-muscular contractility diminished. Anæsthesia; on back; < extensor surface, with analgesia; F. and hands insensible to pricking and burning, but pain on anterior surface of forearm. Supination impossible. Paralysis; of extensors; < r.; extensors, < r., coming on gradually during colic, with withering of the affected muscles.

Wrist.—Emaciation of r. Swelling, with paralysis of extensors of hands. Bony elevation on back from projecting heads of second and third metacarpal bones. Flexed; and fingers form a right angle with metacarpus; r. permanently flexed at a right angle with forearm; r. permanently flexed with W. and hand twisted outward; permanently flexed at a right angle with forearm, turned inward, so that radius projects. R. twisted inward, incapable of abduction, upon attempting to turn it back upon forearm the whole hand is thrown into adduction. Trembling of W. and hands from any emotion. Tearing on lower surface of r. extending to back of hand and fingers, in afternoon. Attacks of pain extending up arms. Weight. Weakness of W. and fingers after the colic; W., with burning pain in them and in forearms, < night, later paralysis of extensors of W., complete on l. side, partial on r. Insensibility; of l. Extension of l. W. and fingers slow and feeble. Wrist-drop; < on r. side; with numbness of fingers and muscles of back of arm, he could not pick up a pin though sensation was unaltered; with helplessness ness of W., but a comparatively good grip with his hands. Paralysis of r. extensors; of extensor carpi ulnaris; of W. and fingers, with tremor on trying to move them. Flexors of W. and fingers cease to act during supination of forearm and hand, so that they are extended by their own weight. L. cannot be extended; cannot be extended unless the hand is placed edgewise, it is with difficulty abducted or adducted at the same time that it is extended or flexed; W. and fingers can be abducted and adducted only by flexing them. W. is brought into abduction (never into adduction) when straightened out, during extension the action of the radial muscles is visible, but scarcely any in extensor carpi ulnaris. L. easily moved when the hand is closed.

Hand.—Back blue, clammy and infiltrated. Emaciation; of r.; with contractions of flexors and stiffness of finger-joints. Palm does not lie upon the bed, but looks the other way. Back convex, projections formed by heads of second and third metacarpal bones and by trapezium and trapezoid. Hard swelling of extensor tendons extending from wrist to middle or two-thirds of metacarpus, painful on pressure, and on back of hand a series of round digitations, with paralysis of muscles. Trembling; when he is fatigued; worse when anything goes wrong with him; worse in evening than in morning, and when he is intoxicated, spreading when he is vexed or fatigued over upper limbs; suddenly in r., later T. and paralysis of l. upper limb; then weakness of third and fourth fingers, so that they could not be fully extended, then second and fifth fingers were affected, then wrist, finally shoulders, arms hung down relaxed, balls of thumb, shoulders and arms. < deltoids, emaciated, T. of muscles on passive motion of hands and fingers, at other times fibrillar twitching, on attempting to raise arm the trapezius and sterno-cleido-mastoid contracted and raised shoulder three inches, then pectoral muscles drew arm forward, contraction of all muscles weak. Twitching; in back of l. Cramp of r. Sticking inward in back of r. Tearing in r. at place where the pulse is felt. Pain in l., with loss of motion. Weakness; < r.; r. < inner border, ring and middle fingers semi-flexed and paralyzed, with insensibility of these fingers and inner half of hand. Stiffness of r. and of l. fingers. Difficulty in closing l. Diminished sensibility; in r. palm; < r.; in r. < dorsal surface; of r. and lower part of forearm; of r. and wrist and lower third of back of forearm. Insensibility; of r.; r. palm; skin of l. palm; in night on waking and in morning sudden loss of power; of r. H. and wrist extending to lower half of dorsal surface of forearm, but only three or four centimetres above inside of wrist; extensor communis digitorum almost insensible to electricity. Paralysis; < r.; extensors; r. extensors, also fingers always semi-flexed; with relaxation, dryness, paleness, coldness, the backs raised by scabs, under which cavities are formed; incipient motor, of r., < index and middle fingers.

Fingers.—Nails bluish-gray. Atrophy of balls of thumbs; with pain up aris to nape and occiput; A. of thenar and hypothetical eminences. Flexed; r.; curled up into palm; < middle ones; upon one another without muscular contractions; index and little F. flexed by weight of middle fingers and by action of flexores communi digitorum; and when forcbly extended pain up to shoulder; l., with imperfect extension, abduction and adduction; l. little, it cannot be extended, separated, adducted or brought into opposition; thumb firmly F. and turned inward, it cannot be abducted, extended or brought into opposition; third finger and last phalanx of thumb spasmodically F.; two l. middle firmly semi-flexed. Jerking in l. thumb. Spasms. Cramps; on trying to grasp anything. Tearing in l. thumb; on side of l. index, between second and third joints in afternoon; in r. ring and middle towards tips, > rubbing, but returning. Pain. Painless sensation of tension in l. thumb. Weight; in tips; with swollen feeling. Weakness; of r.; extensors, < r.; r., < middle and ring; r. middle and ring, then index and little; extensors of fourth, then trembling of arm on exertion, then paralysis of arm; extensors of third and fourth when writing, then of fifth and second, then thumb, at last extensor carpi ulnaris, then W. and trembling of hands, later paralysis of arm (the patient was left-handed and the paralysis was < l. side); sudden, in r. fourth and fifth. Sense of touch weak; < r. Analgesia of r. < tips. Numbness; of r.; tips of r., with formication; tip of l. fourth, with fuzziness; < r., with formication, then pricking; of little and ring F., extending to styloid process of ulna and on inner surface of middle F. and third metacarpus, the F. move less nimbly than usual. Difficult to move. Inability to extend them; r. F. and l. middle and ring. Thumb and little F. cannot be placed in opposition. Adduction of r. thumb impossible. Fingers do not fall beyond thenar and hypothenar region, last phalanges flexed; middle F. do not fall beyond thenar and hypothenar region. Difficult to separate; when flexed; when hand hangs down; l. middle, and to approximate. Abduction impossible, in l. index; in F. except by flexing them; in thumb, abductor pollicis longus motionless; A. and opposition of thumb impossible; A. and opposition of thumb impossible when fully adducted; A. and extension of two r. middle F. impossible, with weakness of them; r. ring F. does not go as far down as the others when they are closed and it cannot be fully abducted nor adducted. Paralysis; of extensors of r.; of two last r., with numbness of them; partial, of extensors. Falling asleep of r. thumb.

Lower Extremities.—Oedema. Redness. Gait unsteady; and knees converged, and walking painful, long standing impossible, he drags his feet and can hardly go up and down stairs; G. awkward, he often fell in crossing the floor, it hurt him to walk, pain in feet, > soles. Trembling; when sitting, lying or lifting legs, < r. Cramp: with acute and paroxysmal pains. Neuralgic pains. Lightning-like pains (Thall.). Tearing: > popliteal spaces, calves and soles. Pain: > movement and pressure, with redness and inflammation; < anterior part of thighs and in calves, so that it was difficult to rise in bed; encircling them: paroxysmal, also > movement, > gentle pressure. Bruised pain, > soles and knees, worse by paroxysms, with at times cramp. Rheumatic pain on pressure: R. pain in knees and feet and in muscular part of thighs and calves, the muscular pains excited by movement and accompanied by cramps. Intense reflex excitability from pressure on the painful parts. > l. Weakness; in afternoon: when walking; with stiffness; (walking difficult, > in the dark, at times with lancements.) Paralytic sensation. Insensibility; and stiffness. Difficulty in walking; r. leg dragged; D. in moving r.; sudden D. in ascending stairs. Standing and walking impossible, when he tries to stand the thigh is flexed upon leg and leg upon foot, so that the balls and sole form a hollow. Paralysis; of r.; of peroneal muscles and extensors of toes.

Thigh.—Flexed upon pelvis from semi-flexion of leg upon thigh, caused by paralysis of triceps and anterior crural and contraction of their antagonizing muscles. Wasted in anterior part; gluteals and large extensor in front, while biceps and flexors from trochanter to tibia were very strong and contracted; W., with inability to stand upon leg, extend it or flex thigh upon abdomen, loss of motion in all muscles supplied by anterior crural nerve, on trying to raise leg it turned outward by action of biceps and in crossing leg over the other it must be lifted with the hands. Jerking in l. Spasmodic shaking above r. knee. Cramp. Crampy feeling after an hour's drive. Sticking; in anterior part; in posterior and inner parts; in region of r. hip in afternoon, then in r. hypochondrium, > walking; in r. hip in afternoon on moving r. arm towards l.; in r. when walking, then also in l.; from hips extending to knees; in forepart and in popliteal spaces and in tibial and peroneal surface of legs, < movement, > pressure, alternating with cramps in thighs; jerking, in inner and upper part of l. in afternoon. Tearing in middle of inner surface of l.; in forepart and in popliteal spaces; in forepart of T. and knees, worse at intervals, < movement; above l. knee in afternoon when standing, > rubbing, then sticking in r. hypochondrium after sitting. Pain; along r. sciatic nerve; in l. hip and r. knee; adductors of both and extensors of l., with pain on pressure; paroxysmal; (in hip-joints, < walking, it extended to malleoli, finally œdema, with pain on pressure and movement, afterwards mostly transferred to knees); paralytic, on ascending steps, and in knee and ankle; burning, in spots; bruised; in a spot in middle of l., a hand's breadth below groin, as if a tendon would snap, always at the beginning of a step. Drawing in r. hip-joint when lying. Weakness of r. T. and leg; W. in extensor and adductor muscles. Numbness over l. T. and buttock.

Knee.—Laxity of K. and ankle, so that gait was tottering. Jerking. Cramps; in popliteal spaces, calves, backs and soles of feet, temporarily > pressure and walking, legs and feet flexed, afterwards tearing. Lancinations; in r. in evening when standing, > moving it back and forth; through and through r.; extending to soles and intermittent heat in soles; intermittent, in K., calves and soles, > warmth of bed and pressure, between the paroxysms constriction; burning, in inner side of l. when sitting. Tearing in K. and soles, < movement, warmth of bed and firm pressure, > light friction, worse by paroxysms, during which there are cramps in feet; T. in popliteal space, calf and soles, < motion, > pressure, worse by paroxysms, during which there are cramps in feet; passing to soles, where they are the worst, also in backs of feet, toes and calves and popliteal spaces, varying in degree according to the order in which they are named, worse by paroxysms, < night and by walking, movement and heat, > rest, with burning, sometimes the cramps are felt in calves and soles, where there are pricking and formication, sometimes jerks through the whole body, < lower limbs. Pain; in bone in bend; popliteal spaces; deep in r. in morning on ascending steps; < inner part; in l., with effusion; paroxysmal; and under soles and between lower limbs, even in feet, making walking difficult; in zones in l. K. and ankle, with anaesthesia of legs, < l.; tearing jerking, preventing walking. Bruised pain; in popliteal spaces. Weight; when walking. Weakness; when he is fatigued; on ascending steps. Sudden bending when standing and walking, so that I fell. Stiffness. Inability to extend it.

Leg.—Enlarged veins on calves, with varicose dilatations; many reddish and bluish veins on calves. Swollen. R. flexed upon abdomen. Semi-flexed upon thigh, difficult to extend; r. S. upon thigh, extension impossible, thigh flexed upon abdomen, inability to stand upon r. limb alone; r. S. when left to itself while sitting or standing, when lying it is extended by mere mechanical movement; l. almost S., flexion and extension difficult. Trembling. Spasmodic contraction. Jerking in r. tibia. Cramp; in calves; r. calf; calves, < night; l. at night, ascending the whole body and affecting throat so that he could not speak. Sticking in calves. Tearing in l. towards instep in afternoon, on rubbing it extends into hollow of knee, then sticking in former place, > rubbing. Sharp pains in calves before the colic. Pain in l. in lower part; calves; r. calf; muscles of calves; at night, waking him often, > sudden jumping and hard rubbing; in tibia when walking; < night; in upper part of one, with swelling of principal cutaneous vein at back of r.; bruised, in morning after rising, > walking. Hyperæsthesia in muscles of calf. Throbbing in a spot on outside of r. calf when lying. Weakness; of r.; with flabbiness of muscles. Insensibility of posterior part of r. from two inches below knee to ankle, with a numb sensation. Falling asleep of l. Want of motor co-ordination, he strikes the ground with his heel when he puts his leg out, staggering if he walks with his eyes shut. Paralysis of r., with atrophy of r. thigh; P. of tibialis anticus and peronæus tertius.

Ankle.—Bony projection. Swelling of l., with pain in it; extending half way up legs. Œdema; and legs covered posteriorly with livid spots and superficial ulcerations. Pain; in malleoli; in l. extending to knee. Sprained sensation on outer side of r. in morning.

Foot.—Swollen. Œdema. Shortening, with paralysis and atrophy. Dorsum arched and sole hollowed. Twisted inward, abductors paralyzed, tibial region atrophied. Pointed downward, plantar surface hollowed, so that he can hardly stand, much less walk; l. pointed downward, toes firmly flexed, instep on the stretch, so that the heel is lifted high. Extended, it cannot be flexed, abducted or adducted; r., and it points downward, while the heel is drawn high up. When walking they are lifted like dead weights and when extended they strike hard upon the ground, by pressure against which they are flexed, he seems to move by skips and jumps; dragged along stiff when walking, inability to plant entire sole upon ground. One began to drag, and soon he could only creep, hand of that side soon affected. Cramplike contraction of muscles of l. sole during rest. Spasmodic working from side to side, and they often drew back out of the shoes, inability to draw on a boot, when sitting still the legs insensibly drew back till the feet got entangled under the chair, this drawing back of the leg made it difficult to ascend stairs, a man held the foot on the first step while a person behind assisted me to rise so as to place the other foot on the next stair, and the man held that foot in place, when descending stairs I straightened the whole limb before planting the foot upon the next stair. Cramp; in soles before the colic, with lacerations. Gout of l. Shooting from soles to hips when walking and standing. Pricking in soles; with fornication. Tearing in soles; extending upward in r. heel. Pain; in soles; after a mustard foot bath, which removed the headache; remittent; heavy, gradually extending to legs and bowels; bruised, in soles. Soreness in soles in morning, > exercise and warmth; S. of soles so that he dreaded to touch the floor, with shooting extending to loins. Soft sensation in sole on touching ground. Heaviness. Weariness; in soles, < sitting, with heaviness. Diminished sensibility of back of r. Numbness. Falling asleep. Difficulty in putting it to the ground, soles seemed dead, and when stepping felt as if round sausages were under them. Lateral movement impossible. Paralysis of F. and toes, with tenderness of F.

Toes.—Swelling of great, with redness and pain; S. now of one, now of another joint, with pains and sleeplessness, finally extending to ankles, heels, etc.; articular, in great, at the same time as the tendinous tumefaction, with redness, heat and pain. Great joints enlarged by tophaceous deposits. Strongly flexed upon soles, can be slightly separated in way of flexion, extension impossible; bent upon soles, can neither be separated nor approximated; r. great strongly flexed upon sole; r. strongly bent upon metatarsus, they cannot be flexed upon foot nor separated in this way, foot strongly bent upon leg, incapable of flexion, can be abducted and adducted by extending it and causing the leg to move the whole foot at once. Painful drawing inward of two larger r. when standing and sitting, then drawing in hollow of r. knee, then also in hollow of l. knee, where there was sticking, afterwards numbness of toes, > afternoon when sitting. Cramp. Gout in four attacks, first in metatarso-phalangeal joint of l. great, afterwards in corresponding joint of r. great toe, then in l. knee, then in r. knee. Tearing in two first l., > walking. Pain in great at night; P. in tips. Drawing by nail of l. great, on walking this extended into ball of foot, > continued walking. Falling asleep of l. extending into instep, with crawling. Cannot extend T. nor flex foot upon leg. Extensors paralyzed, abduction and adduction prevented by want of power in interosseous muscles.

Skin.—Yellow; with thick ecthymatous pustules over whole body; livid, < face. Dirty yellow, and eye; and albuginea oculi; and flabby, with desquamation; < face, or earthy color. Sallow, dingy; S., clammy; dry, traversed by larger veins. Pale. Cachectic color. Peculiar dead, waxy hue. Light ashen color. Lead color; dingy. Bluish; dusky. Pale gray in folds, and dry. Livid, and lips and gums. Dark brown spots over whole body. Discolored. Face and most of limbs and body covered with white-lead deposit. Flabby.

Red, swollen spots on fingers. Hard, movable elevations where external radial muscle attaches to metacarpal bone. Phlegmonous swelling of back of hand and forearm, then abscess. Eruptions; disgusting.

Scorbutic symptoms, with ulcer in lungs. Serous infiltration. Erythematous rash over whole breast. Inflammation, swelling, with itching vesicles that contain a yellow liquid, scabs, beneath which an offensive ichor exudes, and gangrene, with delirium and constipation; rapid l. from a small prick, rapid suppuration and rapid healing. Erysipelas in a wound on face (received in falling in epilepsy) spread rapidly over face and head, with nausea, vomiting, delirium, pulse 52, tongue coated white, headache, stitches. Petchiæ. Eczema in patches about face, neck and under arms. Red pimples on chest; that desquamate after twenty-four hours; itching P. containing clear water, on back of index and one on external condyle of l. wrist, with pain after scratching. Boil on outer side of r. thigh; sores somewhat like B. on back of thigh and somewhat above it. Suppuration comes to a stop and disappears. Pustules, with thick pus in angles of nose, that is red. Vesicles on legs, arms and face; forehead and nose. Gangrene. Bed-sores on sacrum and thighs.

Sticking; here and there on face; on soles. Burning in ulcers. Fornication, on forearms and fingers; lower limbs; feet; r. great toe; soles; limbs at night; soles and instep, < r., when standing; soles, it feels as if he were walking on nutshells. Sensitiveness; to air; to touch, < arms and lids. Itching; over whole body; on face; between r. thumb and index; on thighs; of a dry tetter on r. tibia that usually had no sensation; in evening; < night; in a spot on inner side of r. wrist, with burning, < scratching, and after long scratching numbness; between l. thumb and index, > scratching; on coccyx above anus, > scratching; sticking, between l. middle and ring fingers. Insensibility of skin of r. lower limb, but not of subcutaneous tissues.

Sleep.—Yawning; an hour after dinner, with sleepiness; and stretching; constant short. Sleepiness; early in evening, and sound sleep; > open air; with heat over abdomen and redness of face. Easy falling asleep when talking and knitting. Sopor. Sleeplessness; from acute pain; from nightly aggravation of spasmodic pains in abdomen. Sleep restless. Talking in sleep. Starting up on falling asleep. Waking with a start and awakened whenever he stirs by the acuteness of the pain. Nightmare. Dreams; in evening, with talking; distressing; confused, anxious; frightful, of falling; pleasant; lovely, after midnight, of a distant beloved person; of stealing fruit in a garden; voluptuous, afternoons, with erections, without emissions.

Fever.—Chilliness; from morning till afternoon; towards evening, then fever; in open air; before the colic; during the colic, with fever; at the end of the crisis; when walking in the house; < towards evening, head dull, dizzy, with thirst, redness of face, soft, rapid pulse, but in bed external heat, with internal chilliness, at last skin hot, dry, pulse frequent, without thirst, after midnight sweat on chest, abdomen and head, after 2 A.M. slept with confused dreams, next morning tongue coated, head dull, face pale, and on stepping sticking upward through head; as if liquid ice ran through his veins. Shivering; in limbs. Cold limbs; and face; nose; arms; hands and feet; hands, which are cyanotic; hands and forearms, with an asleep sensation; fingers; lower limbs; skin; as far as abdomen, as if seated in cold water, alternating with heat in abdomen; internal and external in paralyzed parts, < ends of affected limbs, < least draught of air.

Heat; after breakfast, with weakness of upper part of body, then weakness of hands and feet; in evening, with hot skin, rapid pulse and red face; with unquenchable thirst; with copious sweat; then sweat on knees; dry; internal, towards evening and at night. Flushes of heat; in afternoon, with redness of face and sweat on upper part on body; anxious, in afternoon, with sweat. Hectic fever. Inflammatory fever, with jaundice. Typhoid fever, with bilious vomiting, delirium and restlessness, afterwards epileptiform convulsion, then coma and death. Hot skin. Hot head, with coolness of rest of body, < hands; heat mounting to head, also with redness of face. Flashes of heat and sweat mounting to face; sudden heat in face and scalp, with redness of them while rest of body was cold and covered with cold sweat. Burning in tip of l. scapula; in limbs; in region of kidneys, diffused engorgement in l. loin, apparently perinephritis from calculus, with urinary fistula, but urine scanty and high-colored.

Sweat; during the colicky paroxysms; easy on exertion and at night, but afterwards dry skin; on face; contained urea; sticky; viscous, on paralyzed parts in morning; offensive, on soles; cold; cold, on forehead, hands and feet. Dry skin.

Podophyllum.

A tincture is made of the fresh root of the Podophyllum peltatum, L.

General Action.—An active cathartic, causing inflammation (and ulceration) of the whole intestinal canal, affecting chiefly the duodenum and rectum. It congests the liver and promotes the secretion of bile. It produces symptoms of dysentery and prolapsus of the rectum. Study also the symptoms referred to the uterus and right ovary.

Allies.—Chel., Iris, Sul. ac., Merc.

Generalities.—Sudden shocks of jerking pain. Nervous and crampy. Distress in evening after first sleep. Weakness; during the pain in stomach; with relaxed muscles and feeling as if body were bathed in sweat, which it was not. Faintness, with sensation of emptiness in abdomen after stool (Sul. ac.). Bordering on collapse, features pinched, limbs cold, pulse feeble. Stiffness on beginning to move. Aggravation from 2 till 4 A.M. of all symptoms except weakness in epigastric region; in morning, especially of abdominal symptoms, and amelioration in evening.

Head.—Aching in morning, with dulness and sleepiness; A. in morning, with heat in vertex; and fever; alternating with diarrhoea. Vertigo when standing in open air; V., with inclination to fall forward; with fulness over eyes. Frontal pain at 10 A.M., after stool, with feverishness and with dryness in forehead and eyes, transiently > bathing the parts with cold water; in l. protuberance, < afternoon; suddenly in evening, with sore throat; darting, obliging him to close eyes, with vertigo; heavy, with soreness. Pain in temples in forenoon, with drawing in eyes as if strabismus would follow; P. in temples and eyeballs, with heat and throbbing in temporal arteries; stunning, through T., > pressure. Pain in vertex in morning on rising.

Pain in occiput as if head were being split open for two minutes, then a throbbing ache and heaviness so that head could not be raised from pillow.

Clinical.—Headache preceded by a blurring of vision, then gradually increasing pain, especially in the occiput, with nausea and vomiting (Iris).

Eyes.—Glazed in morning, and motionless. Sunken. Inflammation; in morning; with heavy pain and turgescence of vessels of conjunctiva; of lids. Smarting. Soreness of l., < inner canthus, with discomfort there, conjunctiva of l. ball red, < inner canthus. Heaviness, with occasional pains on vertex. Superficial ulceration of each cornea, its base white in r. eye and looking as if lead had been used, with general conjunctival congestion.

Nose and Face.—Nose pinched. Soreness and pustules in nose. Face pale. Face and eyes red in morning and skin about them discolored, the discoloration extended over face, forehead and front of neck during the day, next night pain in eyes prevented sleep, next day the parts were yellowish-red, pupils small, eyes painful and sensitive to light (local effects). Jaw fallen.

Mouth.—Teeth covered with dried mucus in morning. Tongue white; coated white in morning, with much viscid mucus in mouth; coated white, except centre; T. and neighboring glands swollen; T. and mouth dry in morning on waking. Salivation. Taste bad; sour; sweet to everything; as of fried liver, at night; lost.

Clinical.—Difficult dentition, with grinding of teeth, rolling the head, disagreeable breath, diarrhoea, etc.

Throat.—Soreness extending to ears; S. on l. side, < morning and on swallowing liquids. Dryness. Burning.

Stomach.—Desire for something sour. Indifferent to food. Appetite lost; impaired in morning, with unusual thirst for cold water. Thirst; towards evening; after eating. Nausea; in morning after rising; in afternoon, with acidity; > in bed; with diminution of pulse; and retching. Vomiting of hot, frothy mucus; of contents of stomach, then of bile; of thick, dark green bile mixed with dark coagulated blood about every hour; of contents of stomach, then of bitter, dark green fluid, from half a pint to a pint at each attack, and exhaustion so that she felt as if dying, could not raise her head, with each attack a painless stool, first constipated, then watery.

Such rapid and hard contractions in efforts to vomit that the wrenching pain caused sharp screams. Epigastrum and abdomen tympanitic and tender. Gripping sticking in S. and abdomen at 3 A.M., transiently > pressure on abdomen, about 4 A.M. offensive, yellow, undigested stool mixed with mucus, about 10 A.M. burning, acrid stool, with tenesmus and bearing down during and after it. Pain at night, with thirst, burning and prostration; P. extending into abdomen after eating toast. Tenderness; and in abdomen, could scarcely bear the bed-clothes; and in abdomen, < motion. Throbbing in epigastrum, then diarrhoea. Oppression from cold water, with uneasiness, small quantities of the water were ejected, tasted bitter and burned oesophagus. Heat; as from hot steam, after breakfast and dinner. Hollow sensation in epigastrum. Empty feeling before supper, without hunger. Weakness in epigastric region from 2 A.M. till next morning.

Clinical.—Indigestion; food becomes acid. Hot eructations, violent efforts to vomit. Numerous gastric complications of uterine complaints.

Abdomen.—Distention in morning. Flatulence; in morning; in evening. Gripping; during stool. Pain; at daylight, > external warmth and bending forward while lying on side, < lying on back; with coldness, then heat and warm sweat; then frequent liquid stools; occasionally; wandering, at 5 P.M. Heat, with inclination to stool. Colon, rumbling in ascending; pain in ascending; pain in transverse at 3 A.M., then diarrhoea. Hypochondrium, fulness in r., with flatulence; sticking in r., < eating; twisting pain in r., with heat in it; sensation of flatulence in l.; dragging close under l. ribs. Cutting on sides of A., with desire for stool. Hypogastrium, bloating and tenderness; sticking above pubes and along spermatic cords; pain in H. and r. ovary in afternoon.

Clinical.—Chronic inflammation of the liver, with fulness and pain; the pains involve the whole right side, associated with jaundice. Gall-stone colic, with jaundice and twisting pain. Duodenitis, with jaundice. Catarrhal inflammation of the bowels, with hot, watery stools. Ulceration of the duodenum.

Rectum and Anus.—Aggravation of internal piles, protrusion of rectum after stool (Ign.), sudden motion, such as sneezing and mental excitement, sometimes prolapsed for days, owing to the swelling and congestion. Discharge of mucus. Too much bearing down at stool, as from inactivity of rectum. Ineffectual desire. Intermitting desire from after supper till going to bed, woke at 2 A.M. with the desire and sticking in abdomen, stool about 2.30 A.M., did not sleep well the rest of the night on account of sticking in abdomen, the pain > flexing thighs on abdomen.

Clinical.—Hæmorrhoids, frequently with prolapsus ani following confinement; associated with prolapsus uteri. Prolapsus of the rectum.

Stool.—In morning, with heat and pain in anus, and urging. With pain and nausea. Liquid, yellow, every hour; L., green, frequent, also with pain and gripping; L., with colic. Diarrhoea; in morning and through forenoon, then natural stool in evening; immediately after eating and drinking; alternating with constipation; frequent. Solid and small at 9 P.M., copious, loose one at 12 P.M., next morning two thin ones, with gripping and chilliness. Green in morning. Muco-gelatinous, small, infrequent, with flatulence and pain in region of sacrum. Frequent.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea; stools profuse, gushing, usually yellowish in color and very offensive; generally worse in the morning, either painless or preceded by violent colic; associated with prolapsus ani and sometimes with pains in the sacrum; in cholera morbus we may find this drug indicated even when there are cramps of the calves and of other muscles. Diarrhoea in hot weather; dentition. Diarrhoea worse from 3 to 9 A.M., then a natural stool towards evening. Constipation, with prolapsus ani and sinking sensation in the abdomen as if the intestines would drop through the pelvis. Dysentery; it has not infrequently been found to be an epidemic remedy, especially in the South, usually characterized by prolapsus ani, sinking feeling in the abdomen, nausea and efforts to vomit. Chronic dysentery, discharges like meat-washings, severe tenesmus, burning pain deep in rectum, extremely weak digestion. Diarrhoea, stools profuse, containing undigested food, extremely fetid.

Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Micturition frequent and scanty; M. painful. Urine red. Inflammation of scrotum or eyes, seldom of both; of scrotum, with pustules. Sensation in female genitals as if they would fall out when at stool. After-pains, with strong bearing down. Symptoms of prolapsus of uterus, with pain in sacrum, flatulence, infrequent, muco-gelatinous stools. Pain in uterus and r. ovary (Apis).

Clinical.—Nocturnal enuresis. Suppressed menses of girls, with great pressure, hæmorrhoids, etc. Prolapsus uteri, especially following parturition, with more or less prolapsus ani. A great weakness of the abdominal walls during pregnancy, generally > lying on the stomach. Ovarian tumor of the right side, pains extend to the shoulder or down the thigh. Endometritis; thick, transparent leucorrhœa. Prolapsus of the uterus and vagina after parturition, with ovarian pain, backache, etc. Numerous cases of acute and chronic ovaritis, right side.

Respiratory Organs and Chest.—Suffocating sensation at night on lying down. Short breath. Inclination to breathe deeply, sighing. Snapping in r. lung like the breaking of a thread, on deep inspiration. Pain in chest, < deep inspiration. Oppression of chest in morning, with inclination to inspire deeply, but prevented from doing so by constriction of chest.

Heart and Pulse.—Sticking in heart. Sensation as if H. ascended to throat. Palpitation in morning, with rapid, small pulse; P. from exertion or emotion; from physical exertion in persons subject to rumbling in ascending colon, with heavy sleep, and fatigue in morning on waking, then drowsiness in forenoon. Pulse rapid. Pulse slow; and weak and small, also with nausea. Pulse weak.

Neck and Back.—Pain in nape, < motion, with soreness. Stiffness of nape, with soreness of muscles of neck and shoulder. Pain under r. scapula (Chel.); between scapulae in morning; between S., < night and morning and by motion, with soreness; in loins when walking and standing, with sensation as if back bent inward; in loins, < night and motion, with coldness; in loins, < a misstep and walking over uneven ground.

Extremities.—Aching, < night. Tingling. Weakness of joints, < knees; wrists, with soreness on touch. Spasmodic sensation in r. thigh and leg. Pain in thighs, legs and knees, < standing; P. in l. hip like rheumatism from cold, < ascending stairs, with weakness of it. Cracking in knees on motion. Pain in l. knee, leg and foot. Heaviness of knees and stiffness as after a long walk. Pain in r. leg in afternoon, with cramp. Sharp pain in outer and upper part of l. foot.

Skin.—Rubefacient and vesicant effects. Scabs on arms and legs. Minute vesicles filled with serous fluid, which soon changes to whitish or yellowish pus, with superficial inflammation, the pustules usually slow in healing. Itching on body and arms, and on scratching blotches like hives.

Sleep.—Sleepiness; in daytime, < forenoon, with rumbling in abdomen; early in evening. Sleep too heavy. Difficult waking in morning. Unrefreshed in morning on waking. Restless in forepart of night. Moaning, with half-closed eyes. Rising up in bed without waking.

Fever.—Chilliness; in afternoon, then fever and headache, next day fever and headache. Shivering and prostration. Cold feet. Intermittent, quotidian, tertian and quartan fever. Heat; in afternoon, with occasional coldness, not > heat of stove, but > warm covering in bed; in flashes up back after stool; passing over face and head. Sweat, so that it dropped off finger-tips; S. of feet in evening; cold S.

Clinical.—It has been found useful in some cases of remittent fever, with numerous "bilious" symptoms.

Polyporus Officialis.

A tincture is made of the fresh fungus.

Generalities.—Shuddering, nervous rather than from chilliness. Various forms of blepharitis and blepharadenitis always > the cool, open air. Tumors of the lid (Staphys). Pustular conjunctivitis. Epilepseritis. Iritis (occasionally). Hyperemia of the choroid. Retinitis. Progressive cataract.

Ears.—Redness of outer, with swelling and heat. Discharge of matter from l. Sticking; in r.; deep in l.; itching, in middle. Pain as from something forcing outward. Pressure in bone above r. Jerking; in outer, then heat in it; tearing, through ears. Itching deep in; in r. in afternoon and in evening. Air penetrates on blowing nose, as if ear were distended thereby, with sticking extending to eye. Rush of blood. Stopped sensation, with distant roaring; frequent stoppage of r.

Hearing difficult, as if ears were stopped; every other hour, with trembling and sweat on back. Words seem too loud on waking, they vibrate shrilly. Ringing; in r. then in l., with agreeable tickling in region of drum; tremulous tingling, as from the beating of an iron bar. Cracking on moving head or body. Whistling in r., with diminished hearing as if air were forced outward. Twittering as from a cricket in morning in bed. Humming. Buzzing. Sound of wind or rushing of water after 4 P.M. Noise like a bursting. Roaring disappearing by an electric shock that extended from head down across chest, with sensation before eyes as of the bursting of a soap-bubble. Murmuring rhythmical with pulse.

Clinical.—Inflammation and swelling of the external ear, the concha is swollen and red, frequently with profuse discharge of thick pus, with pains worse at night. Earache relieved by cold applications, pain darting and tearing, involving sometimes the face and teeth and even extending to the throat and preventing swallowing. Otorrhœa; the discharge is purulent, sometimes bloody, generally not exorbitant. Deafness following scarlet fever. Deafness, with feeling as though the ears were stopped, or sometimes with pulsation in the ear as from a pulse. Catarrhal inflammation in the ear from a suppressed cold in the nose.

Nose.—Pain in root; P. in bones as if they would be forced asunder; jerking; (as from an ulcer in root on stooping). Sensation of an ulcer in l. nostril. Ticking. Stoppage in evening on going to bed, and blowing out of thick, yellow, opaque mucus in morning (Kali bi.). Sneezing; in morning in bed; in evening in sleep. Offensive mucus, as in old catarrh. Green, offensive discharge. Purulent discharge from r. nostril. Coryza; with loss of smell and taste (Nat. m.); occasional. Stopped; stopped, with ulcerated nostrils. Bleeding; with stopped catarrh; blowing out of blood in morning. Smell as in old catarrh; in morning. He smells tobacco and coffee, even in open air.

Clinical.—Nasal catarrh; it is one of our most frequent remedies for an ordinary cold in the nose. There is usually more or less soreness of the nose, which is sometimes swollen; the discharge is profuse, and does not excoriate the nostrils, it is generally thick but sometimes thin, usually with loss of smell, rarely loss of taste; occasionally indicated when the discharge alternates with a dry stoppage of the nose, especially when it is stopped in the evening. A form of ozena, with offensive discharges. Catarrh of the antrum, with orange-colored discharge, especially from the r. nostril discharge of a urinous odor. Occasionally called for in chronic catarrh, with yellow discharge, especially worse evenings. Catarrh, with loss of smell and taste, occasionally indicates this drug, but if the aggravation be in the forenoon, Nat. mur. is indicated.

Face.—A painful gland between tragus and joint of jaw. Pale. Redness; every evening, with heat; and heat, then immediately pallor; sudden, with shivering on feet and anxious trembling. Twitching of cheeks. Sticking in parotid gland. Boring in l. malar-bone. Aching; in bones of r. side. Feeling as if mumps were coming on, with sense of threatening deafness. Tearing (drawing) pain in lower jaw. Constrictive pain in jaws as from an acid, with shivering and cold sweat on face. Lips fissured; swelling of lower, which is cracked in the middle, with tensive pain; peeling down to the raw flesh, on outer margin; twitching of lower.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the face involving the whole left side, worse in warm room and bed. Pain usually associated with chilliness. Erysipelas of the face (occasionally). Infraorbital neuralgia of the left side, with profuse secretion from the left nostril.

Mouth.—Teeth. Loose in morning. Sticking, > vinegar; S. in last molar from 2 till 6 P.M., < opening mouth. Sticking digging in lower, then in upper, beginning at 2 A.M., changing from root of one T. to another, so that he could not lay his head in a cool place in bed, returning at noon when eating. (Sticking throbbing about 4 or 5 P.M., < cold water.) Tearing. Aching as soon as anything warm is taken into mouth (Graph.); A. on chewing and biting; < wind; as if they would be forced out. Jerking pain from picking them, < morning, > when cold water taken into mouth becomes warm; J. from 6 till 11 P.M., preceded by heat in head and followed by sweat; in molars, with swelling on gums; drawing, < cold drinks.

Gums.—Sticking gnawing, < towards evening and by warmth of bed, > uncovering, a draught of cold, open air, > evening nap. Pain as if sore; as if inside were eroded. Throbbing rhythmical with pulse, < warmth of stove. Feels swollen posteriorly, but it is not, and on taking anything cold or warm into mouth there is burning.

Tongue.—Covered with a tenacious mucus as with a membrane. Painful blister on side of tip. Sticking. Tearing, then heat. Sensation in middle as if it had been burnt and were insensible at night and in morning. Edge feels sore as if scalded. Biting in tip. Dryness in morning; on waking, and in palate and lips, then much tenacious mucus. Sense of "gathering" under it. Seems broader than natural.

Mouth and pharynx dry in morning and covered with insipid mucus, with offensive breath that is not perceptible to himself. Much mucus; covered with offensive mucus in morning on waking. Sensation as if roof of palate were covered with tenacious mucus and were swollen. Pain in side of palate in morning when touched on talking, as from a blister or pimple, with dilated pupils. Acid sensation in palate as if raw on swallowing. Salivation; sweet; with scraping extending low down in throat and into œsophagus, and heat in stomach; tenacious; discharge of watery saliva, also like waterbrash. Offensive odor in morning; in evening after lying down; at night.

Taste.—Bitter bilious, after eating and smoking. Bitter; in morning, > eating; in morning fasting, continuing even when smoking; at 6 P.M.; in evening after beer; after eating, and good appetite; after vomiting; after coffee, < morning; < morning and after eating and drinking, though food has a natural taste; with desire for citric acid; to food; to food, then chilliness and cold sweat; to bread, rolls and meat; to bread, with aversion to bread; to black bread, which disgusts him; to beer in morning, afterwards a sour taste; to wine; (and slimy, salt, in morning, not without appetite). Slimy; in morning, with nausea; and sweetish. Foul, clammy, insipid. As of bad meat, with nausea; as of bad meat on hawking, < morning. Disgusting in morning, with white tongue; D. sweetish to bitter beer. Nauseous from smoking tobacco; N., as of fasting, as if one had risen too early, in morning. Filthy, and tongue coated, appetite lost. Burnt (emphyreumatic). Bad to fresh meat. Purulent at times, < morning. Sour after eating; to bread, and it seems too dry. Herby posteriorly in throat. Flat, as if he had eaten earthy things. Too salt to all food (except black bread) and after eating a scraping salt taste constantly rises into throat. Diminished to all food. Little or none to bread, butter and beer (only plum marmalade has a perfectly good taste), with some appetite. Lost to meat; to milk in morning; when smoking tobacco in morning.

Clinical.—Neuralgic toothache, ceasing entirely in the open air, < in a warm room, always relieved when walking about. Toothache in pregnancy, temporary > holding cold water in the mouth, always < the evening until midnight.

Throat.—Submaxillary glands, boring; pain; drawing tensive pains. Covered with tenacious mucus in morning. Sticking; sticking posteriorly, > swallowing. Cutting. Pain as if raw posteriorly with drawing pain in cervical muscles. Rawness and scraping, with dryness of mouth. Pain on swallowing as if submaxillary glands projected into throat and as if they were sore and raw. Pressure on swallowing, with tension. Constriction. Fulness. Sensation as from sulphur fumes when coughing. Soreness, with dysphagia, feeling as if she would be choked. Dryness in morning; in morning, with rawness and soreness when not swallowing; after midnight; > swallowing, with clawing, scraping and rawness, as after violent vomiting; with scraping, causing paroxysms of cough; extending as far as tip of tongue (without visible dryness), with thirst, he can drink but little, because it distresses him and causes nausea.

Swollen sensation on swallowing, with rawness in trachea; S. sensation posteriorly on swallowing, with constriction; in uvula on swallowing. Swallowing difficult, as from paralysis of pharyngeal muscles. (Esophagus, sensation of a worm creeping up; attacks of constrictive or retching pain, as if one had swallowed too large a morsel of fresh bread; burning after swallowing; swollen sensation, at times in upper, at times in lower part.

Chinical.—Pharyngeal catarrh, with varicose condition of the mucous membrane, sometimes with stinging in the throat.

Stomach.—Appetite at an unusual time; increased in evening; ravenous; but he knows not for what, also he relishes nothing; (desires no warm food, only bread, butter and fruit); lost; lost on account of tastelessness of food and fulness in stomach. Aversion to smoking; to meat and stale bread; to butter, it tastes bitter; to milk in morning, though he immediately relished it.

Thirst in evening as soon as he lies down in bed, sweat between 2 and 5 A.M., with thirst, drinking always increases the sweat; for water in evening; (at midnight); during the heat; < morning, especially for beer; for alcoholic drinks; for something invigorating; for beer, which however has an unpleasant taste; lost.

Eructations tasting of food (Lyc. Phos.); then nausea; of gas; bilious, in evening; bitter, at night; of a bitter fluid; tasting of rancid tallow after eating cakes; as of bad meat after dinner, the taste remains, with nausea; loud; sour in morning; of sour liquid after coffee; ineffectual. Hiccough when smoking; at night in sleep; inclination to, after drinking.

Nausea; in morning after milk; in morning, with slimy mouth, changing to an acid taste; in morning, with pressure in pit of stomach; towards evening after walking in open air, with salt or sour vomiting; at night during menses, with retching and waterbrash; during suppression of menses, with good appetite; when he wishes to eat; when eating, so that food was repulsive; from solid food, bread, meat; from the accustomed smoking; when sleeping, with persistent appetite, even for black bread; in epigastric region, < eating and drinking; only in throat, > swallowing; with waterbrash and disagreeable risings; with heartburn; with rumbling and gurgling in hypochondria; with chilliness; with obscuration of vision and pallor; with peculiar aching in stomach; with salivation; with fear to eat lest she should vomit; rising into throat; rising into mouth; as from drinking oil; as from heat of body.

Vomiting at night, with sticking drawing pain in back extending towards scapulae; (a little before midnight, almost without nausea); of food that had been eaten long before (Ferr.); of food in evening, then bitter taste and teeth on edge; short bilious; violent, of green, slimy, watery substance, of sour odor, burning the esophagus, evenings after eating, when lying down to sleep.

Distention (Lyc.); hard, with flatulence. Jerking extending to larynx, > eating, with tense pain in throat, anxiety and internal heat. Sticking in pit on a false step. Sensation in pit as if something were torn loose, then pressure, with rising of a liquid into mouth. Cutting at 5 P.M. Gripping in pit; in epigastrum. Pain; an hour after eating; in pit on inspiration; sudden; extending to umbilical region and pelvis, then jumping to l. side beneath ribs, pains < retracting walls of abdomen; in pit, at first pressive, then jerking; drawing, in pit in morning, changing into sticking in side of chest, at last into tearing in back. Pinching or choking pain in pit, impeding respiration in afternoon. Constriction and pinching in epigastric and hypochondriac regions, < eating, then changing into chest and impeding breathing.

Scraping like heartburn, and in esophagus. Cardialgia during menses. Gnawing like ravenous hunger. Clawing in morning on rising, as from long fasting, > eating. Tension in region in forenoon, > moving about; in region of S. and pit, extending into breasts. Anxiety in epigastric region. Pulsation in pit; P., perceptible on laying hand on it. Sensation as if one had eaten too much, food rises into mouth as if one would vomit. Seemed to burn over on coughing and as if he would vomit, the cough presses tears from eyes. Heaviness as from a stone in morning on waking. Symptoms as if disordered.

Chinical.—Very frequently called for in disorders of digestion; with pain between the shoulders and heavily furred tongue. Great distention of the abdomen, not relieved by warmth; dyspepsia characterized by regurgitation of food, more or less nausea and vomiting. With the dyspepsia there are usually loss of appetite and thirst, bitter taste, vertigo on rising up, chilliness, and, above all, constant aggravations from eating fat substances (Cycl.). Gastric catarrh, with thickly white coated tongue, dry mouth, nausea, especially when the distress or regurgitation of food takes place a long time after a meal; distress in the esophagus, as if food were lying there (Abies, China, Bry.); dyspepsia from ice-cream or from too much ice-water; indigestion from buckwheat cakes. Atonic dyspepsia, digestion very slow, the food is tasted or regurgitated a long time after eating. In a general way the distress of this drug comes on only an hour or more after a meal. Gastralgia, with profuse sweat of the face, nausea and vomiting. Vomiting of pregnancy, especially vomiting of food in the evening or at night. General craving for acids and aversion to meat, and fat or rich food.

Abdomen.—Distention; after eating, with intermittent colic and rumbling; flatulent, after eating (Lyc.); hard, with tense pain and sensation as if abdomen would burst (with swelling of backs of feet). Rumbling; and gurgling; in evening, or colic; < evening in bed, with gurgling, gripping and moving of flatus from one part of intestines to another; with gripping pinching and frequent diarrhoea; with working and pinching, then up-risings into throat. Offensive flatus after eating.

Shooting into penis. Cutting in morning, with emission of flatus; when she moves; every other day. < evening; as from flatulence in evening before eating. Gripping; with shooting into penis, frequent thin stools and thirst for "braunbier"; with sensation of fasting and bubbling, as from fermentation. (Pinching in morning, with chills and heat.) Drawing tense pains like labor-pains. Tormina, > loose stool.

Pain; in evening after drinking; after drinking; after stool; on touch; on touch after purging, with thirst; when walking; in muscles when sitting and on coughing; with diarrhoea; in A. and lower chest, forcing her to bend forward; sharp, > loose stool; as if diarrhoea would ensue, but stool normal; (spasmodic and almost burning, during menses). Flatulent pain in morning after waking, flatus rumbled and moved about painfully, < upper A.; F. pain in evening after a meal; here and there after midnight, not > emission of flatus, with general heat, without thirst; after supper, with painful rumbling.

< upper A.; after supper, with pressure in stomach, then nausea; after stool; moving about, in evening in bed.

Heaviness like a stone just before menses; during menses, and in sacrum, with inclination of lower limbs to fall asleep when sitting, and with ineffectual desire for stool. Chilliness extending around to lower part of back. Tension as if everything were too full, hard and immovable, as if he could pass neither stool nor flatus, though a slow, not hard stool passed and flatus continued to pass with difficulty in small quantities. Feeling of diarrhœa. Constant desire (in remote intestines) for stool, without straining in rectum or anus, without sufficient stool. Sensation as if eviscerated.

Drawing and drawing tensive pains in upper A., extending through spermatic cords into testicles, which hang low down. Gripping sticking in upper A. in morning, with flatulent colic. Pain in upper, with sensation of tense distention. Jerking in hypochondrium, extending into sacrum, with sticking as from an ulcer. Drawing tensive pain in hypochondria. Sticking in side as from incarcerated flatus. Cutting above umbilicus as before diarrhœa. Tense, prominent, painful ring about umbilicus when walking.

Hypogastrium.—Painful lumps in groins; (swelling of inguinal glands and of a bubo on disappearance of a venereal ulcer). Cutting low down in abdomen, penetrating into pelvis (Cham.), < retracting walls of abdomen, with urging to stool; C., extending round to loins, with dragging making her faint; low down in A., as if one would vomit, towards 5 P.M., after supper, > stooping, disappeared about 9 P.M., when lying curled up. Colic more cutting than gripping, with soft stool. Gripping low down in l. side of A., necessity to bind up A. Bruised pain in parietes when yawning. Constriction as from a stone extending to bladder.

Clinical.—Intestinal catarrh; in children colic and diarrhœa; colic about the navel, with chilliness, nausea and vomiting, worse in the evening; colic from taking cold, with diarrhœa, or from fruit, ice-cream, pastry, etc.; flatulent colic in the evening or at night; colic during pregnancy or from suppressed menstruation. Intestinal catarrh, with much burning in the bowels, stools covered with mucus. Menstrual colic.

Rectum.—Sticking as from incarcerated flatus. Burning during stool. Feeling as of piles. Desire as if diarrhœa would occur. Pressure after stool.

Anus.—Hæmorrhoids, with itching stitches. Blind hæmorrhoids; with itching; in evening, with itching; in morning, preceded by pain in small of back; in evening till 9 P.M., with sore pain in anus, < motion; with sore pain; and painful, protruding. Bleeding; during stool; hæmorrhoidal (with relief of chronic sacral pain). Frequent evacuations of only mucus, with colic, before every stool, also after forty-eight hours. Acrid discharges with the stools. Sore pain after stool. (Tearing extending into anus when sitting.)

Clinical.—Hæmorrhoids; they usually bleed easily, especially after the stools; frequently associated with gastric derangements.

Stool.—As soon as she drinks. Watery at night. Diarrhœa (in morning); D. of green mucus (Merc. dulc.); as green as bile, once or twice at night, with movements in intestines before every stool; at first green, then slimy; not exhausting; without colic; slimy, every morning immediately after rising; involuntary, at night in sleep, and D. three or four times during the day; bloody, frequent, and on least movement, with pinching in abdomen, and with nausea and faintness before and at each stool, and with necessity to keep her bed. Soft, mixed with mucus, frequent; soft, acrid biting, in morning. Acrid, slimy, during watery micturition, with weakness in loins. (Thin in form and seem pressed out flat.)

Constipation. Hard (with pain in hæmorrhoids). White. Of only yellow-white mucus mixed with blood. Like chopped eggs, preceded and followed by cutting, < morning. Bloody. Difficult, with pain in back; D. in morning, then two soft ones during the day. Frequent, with grayish pale face (sickly expression) and faintness.

Clinical.—Diarrhœa from fright; from pastry or ice-cream; the evacuations greenish, mucous, generally worse from being in a warm room, preceded by colic and pain in the small of the back. Occasionally called for in dysentery, with pain in small of back, constant desire for fresh air, stools mucous and bloody. Dysentery, stools bloody and mucous at night, with burning like fire in the anus. Alternate constipation and diarrhœa.

Urinary Organs.—Bladder. Sticking in neck, as from incarcerated flatus. Pain in region on touch. Sharp (almost cutting) pressure upon neck, as from flatulence, when walking in open air, without desire to urinate. Pressure before urinating; constant P. in evening and night, without compelling micturition; only when lying on back, and he is soon obliged to urinate; as from incarcerated flatus, towards morning. Tenesmus. Frequent desire; and almost ineffectual, with acrid urine and cutting when urinating. Burning in neck, as if it would compel micturition in evening before lying down.

Micturition involuntary at night in bed (Ferr.); I. when coughing or emitting flatus; dribbling when sitting or walking. Frequent M. (Strangury.) Gonorrhœa of the color and consistency of semen, < after urinating, with burning. (Dropping of blood in gonorrhœa, from which he had already suffered.) (Discharge of offensive liquid, gonorrhœa?) Urethra, sharp pressure as with a finger-nail, after urinating; crawling pain in orifice after urinating; drawing pain when not urinating; burning in orifice during and after micturition, brick-colored sediment in urine; burning anteriorly after passing brown urine; contraction, micturition in a thin stream. Urine profuse. Hæmaturia. Urine brown; brownish-red; red; dark red; colorless; with red sediment; with brick-colored sediment (Lyc.); with violet-red sediment; (gelatinous sediment); with violet ring of froth above the sandy sediment.

Clinical.—Incontinence of urine, at night; also during the day when coughing or when walking. Catarrh of the bladder, with spasmodic pains extending to the hips and thighs. Catarrh of the bladder, with incontinence of urine, profuse sediment, etc. Vesical catarrh after exposure to cold, urine very turbid. Vesical catarrh, particularly during pregnancy. Frequently called for in acute symptoms of the bladder and urethra, with enlarged prostate, the feces are flattened. Hæmaturia. Sometimes called for when the urine is loaded with urate of ammonia, especially in young children. Suppressed gonorrhœa, with vesical catarrh. Gonorrhœa, with profuse, slimy discharge.

Sexual Organs.—(Sticking near.) Glans, constrictive pain behind; pressure after urinating, with crawling; agreeable tickling, then discharge like prostatic fluid. Erections day and night; in morning for a long time after waking, not without desire; frequent, with discharge of prostatic fluid. Prepuce, itching biting on inner and upper part; sticking itching in evening when sitting and lying; sticking itching beneath P.; biting itching under P. Drawing pain in spermatic cords. R. side of scrotum swollen. Itching of scrotum morning and evening.

Testicles swollen; T. hang low down; l. hangs low down, while r. is drawn up and swollen, and spermatic cord swollen, with tensive pain; tearing; soreness, so that trousers seem too tight, unpleasant when sitting. Itching in region of seminal vesicles in morning in bed, causing inclination for an emission, almost without erections and without amorous thoughts. Desire in morning on waking. Emission at night, without dreams; at night, with amorous dreams; twice in one night, next day lassitude and heaviness of limbs.

Female.—Burning (sticking?) in vagina and labiae. Cutting in orifice of uterus. Drawing pain extending towards uterus towards morning, with nausea. Contractive pain in l. side of uterus like labor-pains, forcing her to bend double. Leucorrhœa, with burning pain; painless, thickish, of the color of milk, < lying down; milky, with swelling of pudenda; thin, acrid; milky, painless; like cream, painless.

Menses suppressed; delayed, with coldness of body and chilliness and trembling of feet; only during the day when she walks, very little or none at night; thick, black, discharged paroxysmally, only two or three times a day; too early; appearance of the delayed; (increased, profuse, in a case of chronic ophthalmia, with formation of matter in eyes); flow like M. in a girl of four years, with pain in back and thighs.

Clinical.—Orchitis. An extremely valuable and frequently indicated remedy for epididymitis; the inflammation and swelling extend from the testicle upward, pains not > warm applications, generally associated with pains in the small of the back, chilliness, nausea, etc. Neuralgia of the testicles. Hydrocele. A remedy very frequently indicated in disorders of women. Dysmenorrhœa, menses too late and scanty and too short, with colic. Dysmenorrhœa from getting the feet wet. Amenorrhœa at puberty, with numerous concomitant symptoms, especially with nosebleed (Bry.), headache, colic, backache, gastric catarrh, tearful melancholia, general chilliness, vomiting of food. Leucorrhœa, from delayed menses, discharge thick, bland, with swollen pudenda, rarely thin and acrid, when concomitant symptoms demand Puls. Prolapsus of the uterus, < lying down and heat, > walking in open air, with weeping mood. Irregular labor-pains; it not infrequently restores a harmonious contraction of the uterus and determines a natural presentation of the child, testimony on this point is so strong that its power to rectify abnormal presentations seems undoubted. Uterine inertia, especially with palpitation, suffocation, must have fresh air (compare Casticeum). Phantom tumor, even the breasts contained milk. Disorders of pregnancy, of various sorts, nearly always with desire for fresh air, aversion to meat and fats, nausea, etc.

Respiratory Organs.—Tickling and scraping in larynx, causing lachrymation and dry cough. Scraping in epiglottis, as in hoarseness. Tickling in region of thyroid cartilage, causing short cough. Hoarseness, inability to speak a loud word. Constriction of trachea in evening, when standing, so that he could not get his breath.

Cough; from dryness in trachea; caused by itching from pit of stomach to epiglottis; from scraping in trachea; from constriction in larynx, < after eating, with vomiting and nosebleed; (after eating a morsel); with oppression of chest, without expectoration; with pain in chest; (in a child), then much hacking; efforts to C. caused by inspiration. Constant, in evening after lying down. At night, causing dryness of throat; at night, preventing sleep and causing exhaustion; at night, causing stitches in side; at night, causing stitches in shoulder. Hard, towards evening. Shaking the child very much.

Dry, at night, > sitting up, returning on lying down; D., with difficult expectoration; with scraping and rawness in larynx; at first, later C. with easy expectoration of much mucus from anterior part of trachea. Cough, with expectoration; of yellow mucus; in morning after rising, with oppression of chest; bitter E.; bitter, bilious-tasting mucus; mucus of a biting, burnt taste, almost like the taste of crab's broth, or the juice of an old pipe; black clotted blood till evening; (salt, nauseous, in morning); violent C., with difficult, scanty E. of tenacious mucus. Expectoration of blood.

Respiration.—Dyspnoea; in lower part of chest in morning; in evening; then slumber, then waking with a paroxysm of suffocation, hacking cough, tearing in forehead extending through eyes, crawling on tongue, cold feet, cold sweat on face and eruptions; when lying outstretched on back, with vertigo and weakness of head. Difficult in morning from anxiety in chest. (Asthma on smoking as usual). Short after dinner. Want of, on attempting to breathe through nose. Spasmodic inspiration and expiration, changing to suffocation.

Clinical.—Aphonia, reflex, rarely catarrhal. Bronchitis, > open air, < warmth of bed and drinking cold water, the cough is frequently dry, > sitting up in bed, or there may be thick yellow expectoration, sometimes streaked with blood. Night-cough, with feeling as though something were torn loose in the chest. Asthma, especially of children, with a shattering spasmodic cough. Cough dry at night, loose during the day (Calc. c.). Catarrhal pneumonia. Whooping cough, occasionally indicated by itching in the chest and attacks of suffocation, with intense desire for fresh air. Threatening tuberculosis, with soreness under the clavicles, especially < lying on the painful side, involving also the muscles about the shoulders. Hemorrhages from the lungs, suffocation in the chest, hacking cough, with soreness of the lungs, > morning in open air.

Chest.—Swelling of breasts, with tensive pain as if milk rushed into them and caused pressure, while nursing. (Lungs ulcerated, eroded, with hectic fever and bloody and purulent expectoration, when given in fever with cough, rawness in throat, acrid catarrh and stitches in side.) Sticking beneath ribs; in sternum and l. wall; in l. side in evening after lying down; in middle pectoral muscles from towards evening till morning, on raising arm; on moving body; in side on lying down; on breathing during menses; before and during menses, on moving arm, breathing and talking loud, so that arm felt paralyzed; in side, with tearing; sudden, through C.; sudden, in l. wall when sitting; beneath l. margin of ribs, extending to l. wall of chest.

Cutting here and there; compressive C., almost like a stitch, in a lower rib when lying on r. side, > stretching or lying on painful side. Cramplike sensation through C.; C. pain in r., then l. side, then in C. Spasmodic pain across. Pain in side when coughing and on rising; in side during menses, > sweat; in l. wall, preventing respiration; in a spot in region of sternum as if the breath pressed against it; in sternum, as from an internal ulcer, before midnight, with pain in forehead; jerking, in l. side; weary, in region of short ribs, as from a long-continued cough, from slight cough. Drawing, tensive pain in sternum; in one or other side, < breathing. Spasmodic tension in lower part. (Drawing in region of sternum, extending to region of stomach, with burning and clawing.)

Constriction; spasmodic, in r., with orgasm of blood and internal warmth; cramplike, at times, preventing breathing. Pressure and soreness; P. on middle; above and upon clavicle. Soreness under clavicles; (S. of ribs when grasped). Anxiety, with rapid pulse. Jerking sensation in pectoral muscles, < morning after waking. Rush of blood to C. and heart at night, with anxious dreams (for example, of being immured), starting up and anxious cries. Painful stiffness of pectoral muscles in morning on deep breathing and on moving chest, after rising.

Heart.—Sticking in precordial region, > walking, with pressure and anxiety impeding respiration. Catching pain, temporarily > pressure. Anxiety in evening, with impulse to commit suicide and with nausea in pit of stomach. Palpitation; from talking; after dinner; rapid, if she lies on l. side, with anxiety and want of breath; and anxiety, forcing him to throw off his clothes. Action feeble and irregular.

Clinical.—General sluggish circulation, with chilliness, soft pulse, palpitation, suffocative attacks and a tearful disposition. Phlebitis; in disease of the veins, especially of the lower extremity, the characteristic is coldness of the part, with chilliness, with the other symptoms of the drug; it is very frequently useful in varicose veins. Varicose ulcers, with smarting, stinging pain, < warmth, the leg sweats constantly.

Neck.—Swelling of glands; of nape as far as carotids and on touch pain as from an internal ulcer; on r. side, with sensation on moving and touching it as if torn and tense or as from an internal ulcer. Painless cracking in first vertebra on moving head. Sticking in nape; drawing, in nape, between scapulae and in back. Pain in l. muscles, with stiffness; P. in nape at night, as if he had lain in an uncomfortable position; rheumatic, in nape, with weariness of feet; drawing tensive, in nape. Drawing-like rheumatism in nape in afternoon, he could only move it with difficulty.

Back.—Sticking; and across chest; when coughing. Tearing. Sensation as if spine would come out. Pain extending up B. Drawing during stool, rarely at other times. Throbbing tickling. Painfully stiff.

Scapulae.—Cracking in morning on motion. Sticking at night; between S.; between S. on motion, impeding respiration. Pinching in r. when sitting. Pain between S.; < inspiration; as from heaviness; as on rising after long stooping, > walking.

Sacrum.—Sticking in S. and abdomen, with cutting colic, impeding respiration; S. in loins in morning in bed, on bending forward; afterwards extending to abdomen, where it became a cutting and sticking and took away the breath, later a crawling in head, heaviness and drawing, with vanishing of sight and hearing, then chilliness as if dashed with cold water. Sprained pain on motion. Labor-like pain, as if a band passed through S. and everything were constricted, taking away her breath, < morning. Pain as if suppurating or as from a band, when lying, with stiffness. Pain after sitting, can scarcely rise; after sitting, can scarcely stoop; in fourth lumbar vertebra, < walking; on stooping, > rising or bending backward; on rising and on bending backward, > bending forward; as from fatigue in evening; pressing out, in evening; drawing tensive, in loins; drawing, in loins on inspiration, extending to pit of stomach, where it became a sticking; as from long stooping in evening, < standing and sitting, > bending backward and walking, with weariness in feet forcing him to sit down.

Clinical.—The backache of Puls. generally involves the sacrum and hips, and extends towards the small of back, < lying on back, > lying on sides, but is usually > change of position, this occurs during many affections calling for the drug, and especially is a symptom during pregnancy. Spinal irritation, stiffness, small of the back feels bandaged.

Extremities.—Trembling and tearing; of l. arm and foot; (trembling of hands and feet on moving about); anxious tremulous sensation. Drawing sticking, < joints, which are painful to touch as if beaten. Drawing tearing in one or another, with chilliness. Pain in morning in bed, < joints, forcing him to stretch, with general heat. Feeling as if beaten. Bursting pain in muscles of thigh and upper arm. Heaviness and drawing in legs, less in arms. Weakness; in morning after rising, with relaxation, without feeling weary. Stiffness of knee and second joint of thumb as if they had been sprained and as if cracking would ensue. Falling asleep of those upon which he lies in sleep, with crawling on waking; crawling falling asleep of forearms, hands and legs when lying, > motion.

Upper Extremities.—Hard glandular swelling in r. axilla, painful and throbbing. Stitches in r. deltoid; (in axilla when sitting).

Shoulder.—Sticking caused by cough; S. in joint on rapid motion of arm. Sticking rheumatic pain in joint in morning on moving arm or bending head sideways. Tearing in joint obliging him to bend arm, in morning on waking and half an hour later, then disappearing of itself or on lying on painful arm. Pinching in joint, with heaviness. Sprained feeling from r. joint to wrist, except in elbow; in joint on bending arm backward. Pain in r. joint; in joints in evening; on attempting to raise arm; in joints so that she could not hold a cup; drawing, extending into fingers all night, with falling asleep of fingers; intermittent drawing, to wrist; jerking, in joint. Jerking sensation in joint. Bubbling, a kind of trembling sensation on r. in afternoon. Weight in joint on attempting to raise arm, with paralyzed sensation.

Arm.—(Cramps of muscles on A. and hands during night-sweat.) (Sticking here and there in a case of rheumatic paralysis of l.) Jerking tearing. Feels broken and dislocated, < pressure and movement. When she raises the arm she cannot get it down in the same way, it is a sickening pain. Tearing drawing at night, < fingers. Drawing tensive pain in inner part, extending to wrists. Burning pain in evening, with dry sensation in fingers. Heaviness during the day, with tearing in elbow on bending it; H. on raising it while holding anything with it or working with it, with numbness. (Feeling as if it would fall asleep on holding anything in hand.)

Pain as if beaten in middle of humerus, extending into thumb, so that she could not use it. Upper arm, sticking; tearing in muscles; pain on touch. Elbow, pain on moving it; on stretching it; tensive, in tendons of bend on moving arm; bruised, in morning on motion, with dilated pupils. Shooting low down in r. arm when coughing. Forearm, swollen veins; attacks of drawing tearing in bones during the day and evening; pressure in l.; jerking sensation extending to wrist, < morning after waking. Wrist, sprained pain in bones in evening, < motion, then in arm; on motion pain like stiffness, with sprained feeling in hand; stiffness of r., even if hand is not moved.

Fingers.—Sticking in tips of r. Sprained pain in second joint of thumb on motion. Tearing in extensor tendons. Pressure between l. Pain in first joint of l. index at 5 P.M., > moving fingers; in index, as if a panaritium would form on side of nail; drawing in thumb on moving it, with stiffness. Tension in last joints in morning. Falling asleep in morning in bed; at night.

Lower Extremities.—Reeling in evening when walking, as if head were dizzy, without dizziness; dizzy, < evening, with internal heat in head and pallor; as from the side. Trembling in morning. He must lie with l. bent or else he has no rest. Bruised feeling. Drawing as far as knees in evening, with more chilliness than during the day. Stiffness when walking in open air.

Thigh.—Twitching of some muscle-fibres in evening in bed. Sticking anteriorly in l. extending to knee and from r. calf to heel, when lying. Pain in hip-joint as if dislocated. Drawing pain in muscles at night, forcing him to move, with sleeplessness, tossing about, even when there is no pain, and general coldness. Pain in hip at noon on bending back. Bruised sensation in bones and muscles; in femora when pressing upon thighs, inability to bend knee, it seemed as if bone would break; in gluteals, or pain as from internal suppuration, after sitting. Jerking, almost sore pain extending from hip-joints to knees in morning in bed, > walking. Drawing in T. and legs in evening, with tension. (Tension when walking and stooping.) Soreness externally on nates where the fissure begins, with smarting. Sudden paralytic weakness on beginning to walk after long sitting. Stiffness in r., but on grasping it soreness like a sticking.

Knee.—Painless swelling; swelling, with tearing. Cracking. Trembling, with weakness of legs. Tremulous sensation in K. and legs in evening after lying down. Tearing pain-like jerks. Tearing and drawing pain; T. extending to hip when sitting. Bruised pain in a spot on one side; in and below K. at night if she moved the affected thigh and leg. Tension in hollow. Paralytic pain in K. and heel on beginning to walk after sitting. Pressure on inner side of r. Weariness on rising from a seat. Give way when walking. Stiffness of r. when walking, whenever thigh is stretched out straight.

Leg.—Swelling, and of feet; of calves, with pain. Bleeding of varicose veins. Cramp in evening after lying down, with chilliness. Jerking in one part of r. calf in morning in bed, not without an agreeable sensation. Stitches upward in shaft of tibia, with external burning pain and erysipelatous redness. Tearing in forepart of r. Pain; in bones; in l. tibia; in tibia on touch; if he allows it to hang down; in bones, like pressure upon a suppurating spot, on long walking, < afternoon, > pressure and sitting, but most by resting at night; in flesh, as if suppurating, < evening after lying down, > pressure; in calves, like a cramp, when walking; paralytic, on rising from a seat, > walking. Bruised pain in tibia; in T. in afternoon; in T., < lifting foot. Tensive pain in calves; drawing, in calves. Drawing pain in evening. Drawing in l. calf; on inner side of calves on sitting down in the house after a long walk. Heariness during the day; H. < forenoon. Weariness on rising from a seat. Seem asleep on rising from a seat.

Ankle.—Sticking in r. internal malleolus all day when walking, with drawing pain. Tearing in morning on moving foot, with dilated pupils; in internal malleolus, < walking. Boring above r. internal malleolus. Sudden sprained pain when walking. Intermittent pain in r. external malleolus when sitting.

Foot.—Swelling; of back; above malleoli. not below;

of one in evening; and varicose veins swell up; of back, with tensive pain; hot, as far as calves; red, hot, with tensive burning pain, which on standing changes to sticking; red, hot, with itching crawling as if frozen. Red, inflamed, painful. Tearing across back to heel in morning and evening. Burning pain on back. Bruised feeling, as after a long walk. Sensitiveness in morning on first stepping on it, with crawling, as from accumulation of blood. Drawing pain to knees as after a long walk, > morning. Drawing downward into F. in evening in bed. Tension after slight overloading of stomach at breakfast. Tingling when standing, > walking, with grumbling. Inclination to stretch during the day when sitting. Weakness. Seem insensible towards evening, yet heavy, they tremble when walking.

Heel.—Sticking in morning, > rising; burning, in ball, with itching, as if frozen; boring. Boring towards evening. Cutting in evening in warmth of bed. Pain.

Sole.—Sticking during rest, and in tips of toes; crawling, as if asleep, when standing. Tearing, and above knee; extending above knees and into back. Pain as if beaten; burning P.; in hollow, as from swelling or internal suppuration, on stepping, with stitches extending into calves; as if congested or ulcerated, on stepping; numb, in S. and balls of great toes, as after a great jump and as if deadened, on standing after long sitting, > walking, a pain in periosteum on pressure, with insensibility of skin and muscles.

Toes.—Tearing jerks in great. Sticking in r.; S., < great; in tips of r. in evening; burning, in balls of second and fifth in evening on becoming warm in bed, with itching, as if frozen. Cutting; in r. Pain in great, < evening, > lying down to sleep; P. as if pinched by a shoe; numb, in ball of great; (burning, extending to groins, in a paralyzed leg, coincident with improvement in power).

Skin.—Reddish spots on different parts; the redness about an ulcer becomes hard and glistening. Swellings painful to touch beneath skin above elbow; hard red S. in front of r. ear, with burning constriction; red, painful S. on back of foot, with pricking sticking as if an ulcer would form. Scurfy eruption on tragus, with burning biting pain, watery exudation and glandular swelling farther down neck, which is painful to touch. Pimples on forehead, face, shoulders, chest, and lastly on back; (in hollow of knee); painful to touch, below chin; red, in region of zygoma; (red, as from burning nettles, with itching biting pain); itching, < evening on undressing, on scapulae and as far as middle of back; itching, on side of neck, the l. not > scratching; containing water, between fingers, with sticking when touched or moved; oozing moisture, on legs, with burning pain.

Pustules in groins, with burning sticking. Abscess at root of nose, near inner canthus, as if a lachrymal fistula would form. Ulceration externally of wings of nose, and oozing of watery moisture; ulcer that had existed is inclined to bleed. Boils here and there. (Blisters on paralyzed arm that filled with matter and desquamated.)

Sticking upward in an ulcer on one foot, and burning in an ulcer on other foot; S. in an ulcer, that causes shuddering through whole body, with sticking that often changes to burning about ulcer. Itching sticking; in feet and toes, that seem inflamed, < close to nails, as if limbs had been frozen, penetrating whole body, before midnight. Pain in an ulcer is aggravated when about to eat; P. on touch on face and lips; on touch in a place that had been burned but was now healed. Biting in an ulcer on foot morning and evening just before dressing it; sticking, in an ulcer, with itching about it; burning, in region of a scab of an ulcer in morning in bed (with dry cough). Itching crawling in toes as if frozen, in evening.

Itching in evening in bed; on back and across loins; on forearm, < back of hand and between fingers; in backs of feet and between breasts in morning in bed; (in the paralyzed arm at night); in region of chin, < evening; of r. nipple, not > scratching; on neck and cheeks, on scratching pimples appear; burning, over whole body before midnight, on becoming warm in bed, < scratching, preventing sleep, less during the day and only after becoming heated from walking or after rubbing; about an ulcer, as if it would heal; crawling, in and above umbilicus, painful after scratching; tickling, under an ulcer on foot. Biting itching here and there; on tip of elbow; on upper part of sternum in evening, not > scratching; on side of neck after shaving off beard, not > scratching, but it pains.

Clinical.—Measles, dry cough at night, must sit up in bed, with earache, usually indicated after the fever has subsided. Occasionally indicated in erysipelas, which changes its location.

Sleep.—Yawning. Sleepiness; late in morning or early in evening; can scarcely keep awake in evening, but not weary; during dinner; constant, dreamy. Irresistible sleep in afternoon; at noon, in the middle of a meal. Sleep too long, at first it is only a nap full of dreams. Stupefied slumber full of visions and thirst for beer and sweat all night.

Late falling asleep in evening and early waking in morning. Sleeplessness in evening; on account of anxious heat; before midnight, from a fixed idea, for example, a melody constantly recurred, but sleepiness prevented activity of memory and fantasies; before midnight, then sleep only when sitting with head bent forward or to one side; till 2 A.M.; all night, except the first hour and a half, obliged to turn over constantly; with restlessness; with rush of ideas; as from orgasm of blood. Restless sleep, necessity to throw off covers on account of heat, with internal warmth of hands, without sweat; R. and stupid sleep. Light sleep. Waking before midnight and dreaming much, quiet sleep only after 2 A.M., next forenoon weariness; W. at night as if frightened and dazed, did not know where he was and was unconscious; frequent, on account of vivid dreams, for example, that he was falling; frequent, at night, and sleepiness during the day; wide awake every three hours during the night; easy W. before midnight.

Jerking of limbs or whole body in sleep; of arms and starting up in fright; of one or another limb on touch when falling asleep; in head and whole body on falling asleep in afternoon. The child drew its mouth back and forth, opened its eyes, distorted them and closed them again and twitched fingers. Fright and starting. Screams and starts up, frightened by a black dog, a cat, and tries to drive away bees. She frequently sprang out of bed because she felt better out of bed. She sat upright in sleep, with staring eyes, and said "Drive that man away." Talking; about tritles that seemed to float before him after midnight when half awake. Snoring in afternoon nap while sitting.

Dreams.—Confused. Of disconnected subjects, to each of which the dreamer attaches words in thought, though the names do not correspond to the subjects of the dream, hence disconnected loud talking. Vivid, of what had happened or been spoken of the previous day; V. after midnight, causing weariness, almost constant recurrence of same subject till he woke; V. after midnight, with stupefied slumber and sweat. Frightful, with starting up; F. and disgusting; for example, that he would be beaten and was unlucky, he sobbed and wept aloud and on waking the dream was so vivid that he was forced to sigh; and he was forced to get up. Anxious in morning, the anxiety continued after waking. Of quarrels. All about men, dread of men, she fancies that a naked man is wrapped in her bed-clothes and rolled up under her bed, while she has only a sheet to cover her. Amorous, with emission; A. in evening and morning, almost without sexual excitement.

Fever.—Chilliness; all day, and three times flushes of heat in face; in morning on rising; morning and evening; at noon, after dinner; every day about 1 P.M., with hot ears and hands; thirst about 2 P.M., at 4 P.M. chill without thirst, with coldness of face and hands, with anxiety and oppression of chest, later lying down, drawing pains in back, extending to occiput, thence into temples and vertex, three hours later heat of body without thirst, skin burning, sweat only on face, trickling down in great drops, sleepiness without sleep, restlessness, next morning sweat over whole body; in afternoon; in afternoon, then heaviness and heat of head; towards evening; towards evening, without sensation of being cold, mingled with heat. C. in evening; all the E. before bedtime, even when walking; in E., with pain; with external coldness, without thirst, in morning heat as if sweat would break out (which does not), without thirst and without external heat, though with hot hands and with aversion to uncovering; after lying down, after lying heat; in evening, after a few hours heat rather external, with weakness, the heat during the night was internal, without sweat till 5 A.M., then confusion of head, in a few hours bloody expectoration, later it was of the color of liver. C. before menses, with yawning and stretching; on going into cold air; on taking off her clothes, but she was too warm with them on; after stool, < sacrum (with pressure in region of stomach); during most of the pains; with trembling, returning after a few minutes, then heat without sweat; with pallor and general sweat; mingled with warmth, then heat in face and rest of body; without thirst, thirst during the heat; then heat in head and hands, with full, slow pulse; then internal heat with shivering, then heat with rapid pulse, rapid respiration and deathly anxiety.

Shaking chill, then general heat and sweat, with drawing jerking pains in shafts of bones of limbs. Shivering; in afternoon, in evening heat, thirst, starting up preventing sleep, labor-like pains, pain in whole body so that she could not turn over in bed, and watery diarrhoea; < open air, with redness and burning of r. cheek, heat of r. hand, confusion of head like intoxication and fretfulness; almost without chilliness, so that hair bristles, with anxiety and oppression; as if sweat would break out.

Shivering on one side of face. Chilliness over upper abdomen and upper arms after dinner. Chilliness along back; with cold hands; shivering up B. all day, without thirst; shivering on B., extending into hypochondria and especially into anterior part of arms and thighs, about 4 P.M., with coldness of limbs and feeling as if they would fall asleep; sensation as if cold water were poured down B. Coldness in arms as if they would fall asleep. Shivering creeping over arms, with heat of cheeks, the room seems too warm. Coldness of hands and feet, they seem dead; C. of one hand, with heat of other; of hand and foot of one side in evening and night, with redness, the other side hot; (of hands and feet during rest, when sitting). Internal C. of lower part of body in afternoon, without external coldness, with warmth of upper part of body. Chilliness on thighs towards evening, with external coldness of them; on thighs and legs at 6 P.M., without thirst, with heat on chest and between scapulae; (of knee at night in bed); internal, in leg.

Heat; in morning in bed, with sensation as if sweat would break out; for an hour in afternoon; at 7 P.M., with inclination to wrap up and thirst for beer; every evening, with red face; at night, without thirst; at night in bed, with uneasiness; at night, and on turning over in bed shivering; with desire to be covered, he licks his lips and does not drink, moans and groans; intolerance of external warmth, enlargement of veins; with thirst; then shivering; then chilliness; waking him; in flushes; sudden, with sweat of face, trembling of limbs and faintlike obscurity of vision. Dry heat of body in evening, with distended veins and burning hands, that seek cool places; D. at night in bed; night and morning. Anxious H., as if dashed with hot water, with cold forehead; A. over whole body, hands mostly burning, with tearing in occiput. Internal H. without thirst; I. in afternoon, with thirst.

Heat of whole body except hands, which are cool, with headache above orbits and anxious lamentations. Heat in sinciput; in outer ear, with sweat on it; in face; in face in evening; sudden, in cheeks, < evening, with redness of them and warm sweat on forehead, during and after the heat of face shivering in back and over arms, boring outward headache, with stitches and with attacks of anxiety; running from shoulder down through arm at night; of hands and feet; feet; feet during rest, < walking; soles; near or above an ulcer on foot, in morning.

Sweat; inclination to during the day; in morning; in morning in sleep; at night; offensive, at night (in a case of chronic syphilitic ulceration and bone-pain); on r. side of body; on l. side of body; r. side of face; face and scalp; pouring down back all day; on hands in morning after rising; on feet every morning in bed (curative?), after cure of swelling of feet.

Clinical.—Occasionally useful in intermittent fever, chill without thirst, with distressing desire for fresh air, followed by fever and sweat; during the fever there are frequently heat of one part and coldness of another, perspiration usually profuse during the night. It is also said to be useful in ague without sweat. Usually in febrile disorders it is indicated by predominating chilliness.

Ranunculus Bulbosus.

A tincture is made of the entire fresh plant.

General Action.—The "butter-cups" seem to typify the acrid properties of the Ranunculaceae in general; their pathogeneses are remarkably free from the mental symptoms found in most of their botanical allies. Vesicular eruptions which are very painful, and violent neuralgic pains without these eruptions characterize these plants.

Allies.—Aconite, Cimicif, Clem.

Generalities.—Twitchings; in abdomen and arms. Epilepsy. Pain in posterior part of thigh, in wrist, thumb and scapula. Bruised feeling, < hypochondriac region. Rheumatic pains; here and there. Smarting of eyes, nose and fauces, running from eyes, inability to see, whites inflamed, mucus running in torrents from nose, fauces painful during inspiration, less during deglutition. Uneasiness. Weakness; all day, with sleepiness; all day, head feels as if he had not slept enough, but he performs his occupation with ease if he chooses; during afternoon walk, with trembling of limbs; with heaviness; with trembling; sudden, in morning when writing and standing; in sudden attacks in afternoon when sitting, arising from head, with feeling as if his senses would vanish. Many symptoms caused by change of temperature, for example, going from a warm room into cold air, or the reverse. Aggravation morning and evening.

Clinical.—Rheumatic neuralgia, < damp weather or change of temperature.

Mind.—Ill humor; in afternoon, when with a patient. Vexed, quarrels and scolds. Quarrelsome and disposed to scold in forenoon, in evening desponding, apprehensive, sensitive, discontented, next day inclined to be provoked by innocent jests of his friends, etc. Gloominess. Anxiety, with headache and faintness. Fear in evening, she does not wish to remain alone, she is afraid of ghosts. (Dread of labor.) (The objects of his feelings, for instance, chagrin, occupy his mind long in forenoon, one sees that he is thinking of those things, he talks to himself, gesticulates in his anger.) Absentminded and talking to himself. Knows not where he is. Obtuseness of senses during the herpes, even the painful herpes did not affect him as vividly as it ought to have done. Thought vanishes when reflecting, he stares at one point.

Clinical.—Delirium tremens. Effects of intoxicating drinks in general.

Head.—Aching in morning; A. when eating, with anxiety and weakness. Confusion; in forenoon, with weakness of it and of body. Heaviness. Distended feeling. Congestion when walking in open air, < vertex. Rush of blood. Vertigo; when walking; on going into open air (Clem.); deep in brain when walking in open air, with stiffness in r. tarsal joint and whole r. leg; making it difficult to think.

Forehead.—Pain, and in eyes; above r. eye; in eminences in morning on entering house; in morning after a glass of wine, with nausea, pressure in upper part of chest and stitches in l. side of chest; in F. and eyeballs in morning, > rising, whereas pain in chest increased; over r. eye in evening, with disposition to weep and mental oppression, which seemed to emanate from chest; in F. and parietal bone from a slight blow upon nape; over r. eye, < lying down, > walking and standing, with heat in face and cold hands; in sinciput in afternoon, as if filled with blood; sore, in hairy part in afternoon, per se, not when touched; drawing, in front of F. and upper part of frontal bone after supper, with sensation as if hair of sinciput stood on end. Pressure outward in afternoon. Vertigo, then pressure.

Temples.—Superficial stitches in l. then stitches in l. ear and tearing in l. side of occiput. Tearing. Pain in region where r. malar and temporal bones unite, about noon; where l. temporal and frontal bones unite, before dinner; in evening when walking, with drawing, pressure and with feverish restlessness and difficulty in breathing; sudden, in T. and nape in evening on entering house, with vertigo deep in brain.

Tearing in vertex; in morning when writing while standing. Pain in vertex as if pressed asunder in evening on entering house, with pressure in eyeball at outer canthus. Migraine; on r. side. Occiput, drawing, sticking; tearing in l. side as far as nape, in evening, later along l. lower jaw, from behind forward; pain in morning after slight chagrin; pain (beating?) in r. side when sitting, with general debility; beating; beats, not like pulsations, but at longer intervals, in l. side; sudden vertigo when walking, then tearing in r. temple. Scalp, burning prickings in outer and r. side, with sensation as if blood rushed into brain and vanishing of thought; crawling in evening in bed; crawling and stiches, with stupefaction of senses.

Clinical.—Neuralgic headache in forehead and vertex as if forced asunder, < evening or coming into warm room. Headache, < change of temperature. Herpes frontalis, with violent pain.

Eyes.—Inflammation. Pain; sore; as from a hair, > rubbing. Smarting in r.; S. as from smoke in evening. Itching in afternoon in the house, with stretching and yawning, later eructations. Pupils insensible. Pain in balls; r.; < l.; now in one, now in other, in morning; pressing out, with vertigo in forehead. Pressure downward as with a dull point in r. ball. Balls sore on moving them. Burning soreness in r. lower lid in morning. Swelling of l. outer canthus, with redness and painful soreness. Smarting in r. outer canthus, with sore feeling. Pain in region of r. brow in evening during moderate mental effort. Vision misty.

Clinical.—Herpes of the forehead, involving the eyeball, with intense ciliary pains, iritis, etc.

Ears.—Stiches; in region of r. tympanum; in l. in evening; through r. into parietal bone in evening. Cramplike feeling in l. middle and outer in evening.

Nose.—External redness and swelling, with internal tensive pain and dryness and with scurf in r. nostril. Pain in region of root when seating himself. Tingling internally pressing upward from tip to root and from r. brow to temple. Crawling internally; pushing upward in region of lower turbinated bone, another paroxysm of painful crawling in lower part of nostril, with a sort of pressure, frequent necessity to blow her nose, during which she discharged blood, the C. and pressure > blowing, then stoppage of r. nostril, > open air, returning in the house. Stoppage; in evening, with painful soreness extending deep into nose. Profuse tenacious mucus.

Clinical.—Hay fever. Smarting and burning in the eyes, nose stuffed, < towards evening, pressure at root of nose, especially tingling and crawling in the nostril, patient tries in every way to reach this sensation by hawking and blowing the nose.

Face.—Stiches near r. corner of mouth. Pain; in r. zygoma. Spasmodic paralytic sensation in jaws in evening after lying down. Spasms of lips.

Mouth.—Sensation in r. sound and lower molars as if a foreign body were between them and forced them asunder. Teeth sensitive. (Toothache in morning on waking.) Burning scraping in palate. Scraping burning in velum palati. Salivation; white, tasting like copper; with sweetish taste on tip of tongue. Taste burnt; T. bitterish, pungent, in morning during and after dry food, which tastes natural; bitter-sour before dinner; flat in morning, with white-coated tongue; (too sweet to butter).

Throat.—Mucus; in afternoon, with frequent hawking. Tenacious mucus; evenings; with roughness. Scraping burning, < during inspiration and by smoke of tobacco. Spasmodic feeling ascending pharynx and oesophagus.

Stomach.—Hunger in morning, with grumbling in stomach. Thirst in afternoon. Eructations; in evening; before dinner, with great hunger, still he eats less than usual; empty; hicoughing, after dinner. Hiccough. Nausea; towards noon, with eructations; in afternoon, sometimes with headache; in evening, with pressure upon sternum, breathing labored, frequent and deep; in evening, < smoking tobacco as usual, > eating; with drowsiness. Pain in pit; and transversely across lower part of chest. Soreness in pit in morning on touch; burning S. in pit. Burning in pit; in region of cardiac orifice, with anxiety about heart.

Abdomen.—Rumbling; in evening when lying down, with movements; in evening after lying down, with colic; and movements. Fetid flatus. Cutting in evening. Pinching all day, sometimes alternating with pain in chest; P. in walls after dinner, with pain in them on touch and with shivering; with pain on touch in groins and pit of stomach. Pain, and in back; P. during digestion, with faint sensation; before stool; subdued, in all intestines when walking, with pain on pressure; as from subcutaneous ulceration, when pressing it against sharp edge of table, then pinching below umbilicus; now concealed, now sharp, with pinching and with burning sore feeling below umbilicus, sometimes with stiches in side of abdomen, and on pressure pain in intestines as from subcutaneous ulceration. Sensitiveness when walking, with pain. Cramplike paralytic sensation in A. and upper A. in evening after lying down.

Hypochondria.—Sticking in region of last r. true rib in morning when walking after sitting, with pressure arresting breath and with stiches and pressure on top of r. shoulder. Pain, with pain in region on touch; P. in hepatic region; deep in hepatic region when standing, < pressure; external P. Bruised pain; in evening, and in lowest ribs; < motion, and in back. Periodical pulsation in l. (Compare this section with Aconite.)

Sticking in r. side; in l. side in forenoon when walking; in l. side after supper, with sore pain. Pain in l. side in morning. Pinching in umbilical region at noon when walking; below umbilicus after dinner, with sensation as if bowels would fall out, the P. spreads to sides as a drawing aching and then rises to pit of stomach. Colic around U., with coldness creeping up back and arms. Drawing below and around U. in evening when going to bed and moving about, with pinching. Sticking in groin, near anterior superior spinous process of ilium, when walking. Pinching in hypogastrium; after a meal; deep in two hours after supper; then emission of flatus. Pain deep in hypogastrium; from spinous process of r. ilium to flank on stretching body.

Rectum and Stool.—(Profusely flowing hæmorrhoids.) Sticking in anus. Pinching and pain internally in rectum, periodically all day when touched and alternating with each other. Stools frequent and easy. Stools twice daily. Hard stool every morning after several urgings, a natural one in afternoon; H. and scanty, dark brown; and delayed; and painless, though apparently larger than anus.

Clinical.—Dysentery, with violent inframammary pains.

Sexual Organs.—Frequent erections towards morning, with vertigo. Emissions towards morning; at night, with slight erections. Leucorrhœa increased and changed from mild to acrid.

Chest.—Jerking in region of l. short ribs. Sticking; in r.; in l., and in spleen; all day, < r. side, in evening pressure on middle of sternum; in r. almost all day, with pressure in middle of C., and with painful inspiration; above l. nipple in morning on waking, < touch and motion, with bruised pain in chest; above l. nipple, near axilla, in morning when rising, he dares not move arm or raise trunk, he has to stand with head and chest forward to l. side; in region of l. fifth and sixth ribs in morning when walking, with sensitiveness of that spot to touch and debility; in r. side in morning on walking in open air; in region of r. fifth to seventh ribs, in morning when walking after sitting, arresting breath, with stitches and pressure on top of r. shoulder; in region of r. fifth and sixth ribs in forenoon; anteriorly in middle of l., in forenoon during inspiration; in region of last l. true rib in forenoon when walking and standing, with pain as if bruised or as from subcutaneous ulceration; in l. in forenoon when talking; in l. in afternoon and evening, < motion, with sensation of subcutaneous ulceration, and in evening pain in r. scapula; in l. side in evening, with burning and with short heavy breathing and frequent necessity to breathe deeply; in upper and l. side in evening, with pressure upon chest, breathing and contact painful; now in r., now in l., first in outer part, then extending deep in, in evening when walking and standing, < moving, stooping or inspiration, with pressure and tightness across lower part; in l. side of sternum on ascending a hill, with bruised sensation; in l., with sensation of subcutaneous ulceration; in interior, in region of l. nipple, then pain below r. true rib (splenetic stitch?); extending from r. into l., being felt in both sides at the same time, in forenoon, but ability to breathe deeply when bending forward. (Compare above with Acnite and Bry.)

Pinching, rather external, impeding breathing only when walking. Sharp pain in upper part of l. Sexual Organs.—Emissions.

Respiratory Organs.—Cough, with expectoration of mucus; dry C. in evening. Dyspnoea, on taking a deep breath the chest cannot expand sufficiently, as from a weight below throat.

Chest.—Yellow, bitter milk in a nursing woman. Sticking; in r. side; in nipples; sudden, below last ribs during inspiration and expiration. Aching in nipples, caused by flatulence in abdomen; tightening, across sternum, with at times stitches; burning, in l. side of sternum. Contraction. Audible crackling bubbling, as of vesicles, in l., then in r. pectoral muscles. (Oppression.)

Pulse.—Rapid.

Back.—Tension. Cutting in lumbar vertebrae, < stool; C. in l. lumbar region. Cutting drawing in lumbar region, beneath l. short ribs, and in l. side of hypogastrium above pubis, a digging in intestines. Stiffness in sacrum and hips, with inability to walk straight.

Extremities.—Pain in all joints during motion. (Fatigue.) Falling asleep of those upon which he lies.

Upper Extremities.—Sticking in arms. Tearing in upper arms and finger-joints. Elbow, twitching sensation in r.; gushing gurgling sensation. Forearms, muscles seem contracted, with tremulous motion of hands; tearing; sensation in lower side as if about to fall asleep. Hands, swollen veins; involuntarily stretched above head before falling asleep; tearing across from thumb to little finger. Sticking tearing in thumb.

Lower Extremities.—Thigh, twitching of various fibres on posterior part when muscles were extended while sitting and on drawing up knees while lying; weariness. Knee, sticking in l. when walking; drawing-down weary pain in hollow of l. when standing; tensive pain in hollow of l., extending to heel; painless gurgling in hollows, extending to heels; gushing gurgling sensation in hollows; weary tension in hollow of r.; stiffness, with pain on motion.

Intermittent burning pain between inner malleolus and tendo-achillis. Gurgling extending down leg, with stitches. Legs go to sleep when riding one over the other. (Sprained sensation in l. ankle in morning on stepping upon it.) Tearing transversely across instep, with sticking. Sticking in l. sole above little toe. Gushing crackling sensation in ball of l. great toe.

Skin.—Itching rash on forehead and arm. Sticking itching in hollow of sole; in root of little toe, almost as after being frozen.

Sleep.—Yawning. Sleepiness. Raving in sleep, afterwards he walked about in an unconscious state, half dreaming, half waking; R. in evening, tossing about and heat. Snoring. Hands stretched above head. Restless; with moans and bending backward of head; in a child, it often begins to cry out and says tremulously "There are men." Child seems to be quarrelling, with convulsive drawing of fingers, facial muscles and of eyelids and pallor. Dream vivid, sad, anxious; anxious, of dead relatives; vexatious, offensive.

Fever.—Chilliness; (in morning); C. and heat alternately, with weariness, anxiety and aversion to everything. Shivering without external coldness. Coolness of face, with heat of hands and feet. Heat; and uneasiness; without thirst; about nose; in cheeks; in palms. Sweat on forehead and scalp after slight effort; in palms when hands are closed; cold, on face, < about mouth and nose; cold in palms while rest of body was warm; yellow, smelling of rhubarb.

Rhododendron.

Allies.—Its botanical relatives Led. and Kalmia; Rhus l., Clem., Lyc., Aur.

Generalities.—Lies on back, with feet crossed. Twitchings. Tearing in different parts, < l. elbow and in affected limb. Sprained sensation. Bruised feeling; in whole body in morning, disturbing sleep, with digging, drawing pain in back, shoulders and arms. Drawing now here, now there, < joints, with jerking sensation; D. as if in marrow, < bad weather. Tingling in gony parts and abatement of pains. Discomfort in affected parts, with sensation as if a worm were creeping through them. Sensitiveness in windy and cold weather. Weakness; from a short walk, with bruised feeling in limbs. Insensibility of affected parts. Almost all symptoms reappear with rough weather (Rhus L.). Most comfortable in bed with limbs drawn up.

Clinical.—Rheumatic pains, especially in the periosteum of the bones, < cold weather, > moving (Rhus L.); these pains may affect nearly every part of the body, and are frequently associated with coldness of the extremities, especially of the feet, but the general indication is aggravation before a storm. Chronic rheumatism of small joints (Led.). Rheumatoid arthritis.

Mind.—Delirium; and he tosses his head about and reels, then falls asleep upon his knees, tries in vain to rise but is overcome by sleep, during which he starts continually and appears terrified, but awakes cheerful. Frightful visions. Fits of anxiety. Peevish. Gloomy, indifferent. Phlegmatic. Averse to everything, especially earnest occupation. Stupefaction. Loss of sense. Forgetfulness of what he is talking about; F. and sudden disappearance of thoughts, he omits words in writing.

Head.—Sticking, < forehead; burning, through H. Racking sensation when walking as if brain were shaken from all sides, especially from above. Aching; towards evening; in evening; with sensation in head as if everything would fall out of forehead; almost depriving him of senses in morning (the day after a glass of wine), > rising; beating; as if brain pressed against skull; as if catarrh would set in. (Oppression of brain as from lead, in morning after a glass of wine.) Confusion; in morning on waking, with obstruction of nose and humming in ears; after rising; < open air, with drawing towards eyes; < frontal region, > laying head on table and by exercise in open air, with pain in l. temple; with heaviness; with want of attention; with drowsiness. Affection as from brandy. Feeling as if he had been revelling all night. Intoxication. Vertigo; at night; when sitting; in bed; when writing, > motion in open air; with dullness in forehead; as from strong tobacco; as if head would fall backward, when in bed, with anguish.

Forehead.—Drawing tearing in direction of temples and eyes, < moving about in the house; close to bone, like a forcing, < wine. Aching; in l. side; in l. half, spreading towards l. temple, < wine; (drawing, over l. eye the day after a glass of wine); beating, > rest, with pressure in head as if everything in head would come out there. Pressure in l. bone as with a thumb; P. outward in region of r. bone. Drawing in l. bone, then shuddering across face. Tension in l. bone; T. in front part, with pressure. Beating in l. region. Dullness in sinciput after rising, with heaviness; D. in sinciput, and on moving head pain in forehead.

Temples.—Sticking in l. Tearing boring in l. Drawing pain under l. bone; under r. bone, pressing outward. Pain in l. Pressure in bones; painful, in l. bone; inward in l.; outward under l. bone. Cold crawling above temple.

Vertex.—Pain; suppurative, on touch.

Half.—Shooting in l. Tearing in r. Beating pain in r. Sore pain in l. hemisphere of brain when lying; in r. hemisphere of brain and cerebellum when sitting.

Occiput.—Pain in morning; deep in evening; deep in r. side, with paroxysmal drawing upward; in r. half as if a foreign body had been forced into it; contusive, in a spot externally in r. side, alternating with drawing in direction of ear.

Scalp.—Pain on touch. Biting in various parts. Itching; evenings; evenings, changing on scratching to burning.

Clinical.—Rheumatic headache, < wet, cold weather, involving the forehead and temples. Headache like a tearing of the bones of the skull, < wet, cold weather, > warm wraps and from moving about, also < wine (Lyc.).

Eyes.—Shooting from centre of r. to inner corner. Periodical smarting in r. Burning pain, and on reading or writing heat in eyes; B. pain in evening when reading, with dim vision. Burning all day; when looking at daylight before rising from bed; when looking intently; < evening, with dryness; and pressure; dry; periodical, in morning. Weak feeling when reading and writing. Itching. Lachrymation; (in raw air). Contraction of pupil; of l, with dilatation of r., with pressure in l. ball; r. smaller than l. Hot sticking outward in r. ball. Lids swollen and red; twitching of upper; agglutination, with moisture of eyes; suppurating at night. Canthus, pressure in r. inner as from sand; burning in inner in morning, with pressure and increased mucus. Pressure around margin of l. orbit, with sticking and with spasmodic contraction of l. lids. Sensation of a gauze before eyes.

Clinical.—Threatening glaucoma, always < the approach of a storm, > after the storm broke, patient strongly rheumatic. Muscular asthenopia, with darting pains through the eye, < before a storm. Ciliary neuralgia.

Ears.—Sticking in l.; pinching S. outward in r. Darting pain in l. ear and temple. Tearing in and about r. Periodical boring or drawing pain in or around ears. Pain in r. outer nearly all day. Pain in r. as if pressed asunder. Sensation as if a worm were creeping in l. Beating in l. Tickling in l. external meatus, changing to pain on boring in with finger. Humming before ears, with ringing; H. before ears in evening in bed, with ringing. Buzzing in l. in forenoon, < whistling; B. and sensation as if water were rushing into them, loud sounds re-echo long. Whizzing in l., < whistling.

Clinical.—Otalgia, tearing pain, with roaring and buzzing.

Nose.—Stoppage in morning; S. of l. nostril; of l. mornings; of l. near root, in open air, with sore pain in r. and sensation of mucus; of l. near root, < morning before rising, alternating during the day with stoppage of r., > open air. Dryness. Itching in nostrils, with creeping. Sneezing in morning on rising, with heat of face; S. in forenoon, with increased discharge of thin mucus. Increased mucus; in open air; with stoppage of one or other nostril near root. Fluent coryza, with headache and roughness of throat; F., with diminution of smell and taste; alternating with obstruction of one nostril. Dry coryza, with sneezing. Bleeding from l. nostril. All things smell and taste alike.

Face.—Sudden (prickling) biting in cheek. Drawing from l. half into l. ear, leaving behind a pressure in eye. Pain in l. lower jaw and teeth all night, now >, now < pressure, with otalgia, r. side of head less affected. Vesicles on inside of lower lip and lower side of tongue, causing biting when eating. Lips dry; and burning.

Mouth.—Teeth. Sticking in a l. upper hollow. Prickling in incisors, with biting. Tearing in hollow; in upper molars towards evening, < warm food and staying in a warm room; occasionally in first anterior molars, now upper, now lower, now r., now l., with grumbling. Pain, < damp weather and before a storm. Drawing pain before a thunder-storm or cloudy, windy weather, with cutting, connected with a pain in ear; D. in l. molars; in r. lower T., > eating; in a l. molar, with pricking and intolerance of touch. Pain as if swollen and sore between r. lower gums and cheeks. Itching of gums.

Tongue, greenish coat, with bitter taste; painful, swollen spot on one side of root of T. and gums; pricking; burning during inspiration. Contractive sensation along l. Stenonian duct. Burning posteriorly in mouth, as if catarrh would set in. Dryness. Salivation; sourish, in morning. Taste sourish; T. flat, bitter; putrid bitter posteriorly on tongue; putrid in morning; sourish salt in morning, and nausea on swallowing saliva; of straw all day; all things taste alike.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia, involving both dental nerves, pains drawing, tearing and jerking, < change of weather, > warmth and eating. Neuralgic toothache, > while eating, caused by cold.

Throat.—Hawking up of white and tenacious mucus. Stitches in uvula; drawing S. from l. submaxillary gland towards cheeks. Pain in posterior surface in evening on swallowing bread. Scraping when walking, with sensation of mucus in trachea, which he cannot cough up; S. in fauces and sensation as if lined with mucus. Roughness in morning. Contraction, with burning taste; C. in fauces, with burning. Burning in T. and palate in forenoon after bread.

Stomach.—Appetite unusual, before a meal; good, but speedily satisfied; lost. Satiety, then weakness. Thirst. Eructations; empty; of oppressive wind after dinner, causing burning through chest extending to dorsal vertebrae; of bitter liquid; (of rancid fluid, causing scratching in throat). Nausea; when stooping, > eructations; with salivation; with pressure in stomach; with indication for stool; with paroxysmal drawing pain in upper abdomen. Vomiting; after fluid, < cold water; of a green bitter substance.

Superficial sticking here and there in pit and region of short ribs, < l. side, with pressure. Pinching in pit. Clawing pain in pit, sometimes spreading into hypochondria and impeding respiration. Sharp pressure in pit an hour after dinner. Pain; in pit and epigastric region; in pit at night in bed; after drinking cold water; in pit before, during and after dinner; in epigastrium after dinner; deep in pit an hour after dinner, with cramplike drawing; in pit when stooping and when pressing inward; deep in, < afternoon when standing, with alternate drawing and sticking along union of short ribs, often increasing to oppression of breathing, anxiety and heat in face. Contractive pressure in pit evenings when walking, with tight breath. Creeping in region.

Abdomen.—Painful distention. Rumbling; and gurgling; after eating and drinking, then painless diarrhoea; < morning in bed and in evening, with heaviness, distention, full feeling, empty eructations and fetid flatus. Incarceration of flatus in morning fasting. Tense, as if distended by flatus, > emission of flatus. Stitches. Pinching; then loose stool; as of flatus. Bruised pain in integuments. Pain now in one part, now in another, > emission of fetid flatus. Digging, with full feeling. Full feeling without actual distention, > eructations and emissions of flatus; fulness caused by breakfast, > eructations. Weight and lassitude, not as from food. Discomfort after a meal. Grumbling. Empty feeling after stool, then pinching. Occasional feeling of looseness as if diarrhoea would set in.

Sticking in r. hypochondrium in evening; in region of spleen in evening during rest, arresting breathing. Pain in hypochondria as from incarcerated flatus; and in small of back. Pain in l. hypochondrium on stooping, with tension. Cutting in upper A. after a meal, then pain. Pinching transversely across upper after supper. Pinching in r. side; P. in umbilical region after a meal. Intermittent sticking outward above crest of l. ilium. Drawing pain in rings when walking, < r., with tension. Drawing from l. groin into l. thigh.

Clinical.—Neuralgic colic in various parts of the abdomen, < l. hypochondrium. Chronic pain in the left side under the short ribs, > eating.

Rectum and Anus.—Sticking in R. extending under ribs. Spasmodic pain in R. as from incarcerated flatus. Drawing from R. to genitals. Tenesmus, with papæsent stool. Urging, with hard and difficult stool; U. as for diarrhoea, but a natural stool, with much pressing; frequent, then natural stool, with much pressing, it occurs in evening instead of in morning; sudden, but only flatus is emitted after pressing. Frequent ineffectual desire; then papæsent stool. Anus, beating pain; biting, with oozing of liquid; crawling as of ascarides. Creeping from perineum to penis, then erections.

Stool.—Fluid, spurting. Diarrhoea; in morning on rising; after a meal; in damp weather; from food or drink, without colic; from fruit, with weak feeling in stomach, with nausea when walking; which does not cause weakness; food passed undigested. Loose, but sluggish; L. and difficult, also twice a day; and yellowish, sluggish, insufficient. Papæsent, brown; P. delayed; and frequent; at regular periods, the latter part loose and leaving smarting in rectum. Constipation. Copious, black, fetid. Fermented. Difficult, not very hard, with sensation as if contractive power of anus were diminished. Delayed.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea in wet, cold weather; after fruit, with general rheumatic pains.

Urinary Organs.—Drawing in region of bladder and groins in forenoon, with desire to urinate. Frequent desire. (Dribbling after micturition, causing burning pain in urethra and shuddering through body.) Urethra, twitching in orifice when not urinating; sticking after micturition; sudden pricking in orifice in evening; pain as if suppurated and engorged with blood, at night; pain in orifice when not urinating; burning before and during micturition. Urine somewhat increased, pale, of offensive acid odor; U. bloody; brown-red, offensive; clear, with greenish tinge; cloudy; hot; copious; U. and stool copious; scanty.

Clinical.—Catarrh of the bladder, with frequent urging to urinate and drawing pains, urine offensive.

Sexual Organs.—Burning sore pain between genitals and thighs, < walking. Itching crawling behind prepuce. Pinching jerking pain in glans. Beating pain in glans in evening. Want of the usual morning erections.

Testicles.—The swelling, which had been painless heretofore, enlarged to the size of a hen's egg. < l., with sticking and tearing in both. Drawn up, swollen and painful; D. up and when walking contusive pain. Painful drawing in the swollen, hard T. (Clem.), extending as far as abdomen and thigh, < r. side (Aur.). Sticking in r.; in r. in evening when sitting; drawing, in r. and in spermatic cord, > motion, sometimes a pricking beginning in r. T. and spreading in a zigzag manner along perineum toward anus and arresting breathing. Pain on touch, < epididymis. Contusive pain, with alternate drawing, < one, now other T. Crawling pain.

Scrotum shrinks easily, < walking or standing; when air becomes cool; itching and increase of heat about S. Emission at night in sound sleep, then long-continued erections. Desire increased, erections easy (later action). Aversion to coition and want of erection.

Menses too early; M. that had ceased two days before reappeared; that had been suppressed six months reappeared for two days, with intermissions; that had been suppressed six months returned with febrile excitement and headache.

Clinical.—Hydrocele, several cases. Orchitis, testicle inurated with a feeling as though it were being crushed.

Respiratory Organs.—Trachea dry in morning. Cough from tickling in throat; scraping C., disturbing sleep, with expectoration of mucus. Dry cough in morning; in morning, from roughness in throat; in attacks from tickling in trachea; fatiguing, morning and night; scraping, in evening. Breath suppressed, suffocative sensation. Breathing accelerated by anxious, undulating sensation arising from abdomen.

Chest.—Sticking in middle of l. as far as under scapula, < motion; below l. ribs, extending towards dorsal vertebrae during rest. Tearing in region of lower end of sternum. Cutting in middle of l., < turning upper part of body from l. to r. Feeling as if a knife were plunged through l. and out at back when bending to r. side and backward. Pinching transversely through C.; P. under short ribs in morning, with dragging and with full feeling in pit of stomach and oppression of breathing; periodical, in outer part during motion, < in house. Pain almost like splenic stitches extending to l. hypochondrium, when walking fast. Pain in muscles, < touch; P., with tightness of breath; deep in, in afternoon, arresting breathing; periodical blowing, under short ribs; sprained and bruised; beating paralytic, along l. clavicle; oppressive burning, below ribs, with anxiety, not impeding respiration.

Shocks in the side, across lower part of spine, or rather pressure as with a dull point. Scraping, rough feeling, with heaviness, forcing him to hawk. Constriction; more externally. Oppression; in evening, from tensive feeling in pectoral muscles; in sleep, a sort of nightmare; and pain when stooping or sitting bent; as if sternum were pressed upon. Congestion. (Undulating sensation.)

Heart and Pulse.—Warm undulations at H. Strong beating of H. Pulse slow; and feeble, small.

Neck.—Pain in muscles; P. as if outer part were swollen; drawing, in r. side towards shoulder; tensive, in l. muscles; (tensive, in outer muscles, at noon); tensive, rheumatic, in r. outer side, with drawing extending to behind ear; as if nape were stiff. Stiffness of nape in morning in bed; of nape in morning after rising, with rheumatic pain.

Back.—Pain; drawing, in r. side, < scapula, waking him in morning, > turning on other side. Scapula, pain in l. as from taking cold after a sprain, in morning on turning over in bed; rheumatic pain between S., hindering motion; rheumatic drawing pain in l. Lumbar region, drawing tearing on bone; bruised pain, < rest and in rainy weather (Rhus t.); sprained pain; pain when sitting as if back had been bent too long, and as if one had been lying upon it too long. Pain in lumbar region; in l.; in l. side of vertebrae during rest; when sitting; when sitting, > motion, with anxiety; < stooping.

Extremities.—Trembling at night. Joints affected by gout become red, swollen and painful. Erratic tearing. Pain; in bones or periosteum, mostly in spots, on change of weather; joints of l., < motion; drawing, in l. wrist and in r. leg. Cramplike drawing, < forearm and leg down to fingers and toes. Pressure downward in lower limbs and fingers. Creeping causing uneasiness, < rough weather, and < arms during rest. Sticking crawling in r. foot and hand when walking, as if asleep. Go to sleep easily. Insensibility; and paralysis. Affected in morning in bed, stretching all the time and throwing himself about.

Upper Extremities.—Drawing digging in joints, < l., during rest.

Shoulder.—Tearing in morning in bed; in r. evenings in bed and disturbing night's rest. Tearing boring in l. joint, with falling asleep of arm and pricking in tips of fingers. Pain in l. joint all day; paralytic rheumatic, in r. in morning when resting upon it, sometimes extending below elbow; boring beating, in r. joint; beating and drawing, in r.

Arm.—Sticking. Tearing in periosteum of r. A. and elbow during rest. Pain in r. as if dislocated all day, so that it is difficult to hold anything in hand. Spasmodic contractive pain in l., with paralytic feeling, so that it is difficult to lift it. Drawing pain in r. in rough weather, < rest. Drawing in r. A. and l. hand, with jerking. Weakness of l., with drawing in muscles of l. upper; W. of r., with pricking in tips of fingers. Heaviness of l., < rest, with feeling as if blood ceased to circulate and weakness; H. of r., > motion, with weakness; of r., > motion, with tremulous paralytic weakness.

Upper Arm.—Sticking coming deep out of l. Pain in periosteum on inner side of l.; in muscles as after great exertion; drawing, along. Drawing. Pulsation.

Elbow.—Tearing close to bone of r., extending upward and downward on posterior surface of arm. Pinching in tip. Drawing pain in l. Drawing in r. Forearm.—Tearing in r.; T. in l. at night in bed. Darting pain in l. Sensation as if circulation ceased, < rest, with distention of veins of hands, pleasant warmth spreading through hands and prickings in single fingers as if asleep. Weakness of l., with paralytic feeling.

Wrist.—Sticking in r. in evening. Tearing in l. when walking in open air. Digging in l. in evening during rest, with painful drawing; digging, < rest and rough weather, with drawing. Digging drawing pain, with increased warmth of hands. Sprained pain in l.; S. pain during and after motion; during motion, in r., then l.; with heat; in r., impeding motion, in rough weather, < rest. Clawing pain in r. as if sprained. Pain in l. moving towards hand, with difficulty of motion. Drawing pain in single carpal and phalangeal bones. Weariness in l. during rest.

Hand.—Puffiness. Trembling. Burning stitch in r. Tearing in r., < thumb and index, in evening; paroxysmal in r. in evening; paroxysmal, in direction of little finger in evening, with twitching. Pain in metacarpus of l. index; in a spot in metacarpus as if a bursa would form. Weakness and heaviness, with drawing in spots in bones.

Fingers.—Jerking in l. index in evening. Sticking in l. index in evening in bed. Darting pain in l. < little; in l. phalanges. Digging in second joint of r. index in afternoon in rough weather, with tension in joint on moving it. Sprained pain in joints of l. thumb. Pain in joints of l. thumb, < motion; in middle joint of l. little finger impeding its motion; bruised, under nail of r. index all day; paralytic, in l. thumb; drawing paralytic, now in one, now in another, now in metacarpus, now in forearm. Numbness in r. little, then fornication.

Lower Extremities.—Tottering. Occasional contusive pain in some muscles in evening when sitting. Weakness of r., with heaviness.

Thigh.—Sticking in region of neck of femur; tearing, in outer side of l. during rest. Digging in r. hip in evening when lying upon it. Sprained pain in r. hip; when walking. Tensive pain in inner surface of r. Acute drawing in r. Sore feeling near genitals. Burning soreness between T. and perineum. Weariness of T. and legs, < l., in morning; of muscles of r. on walking. (Heaviness); on beginning to walk, > continued walking.

Knee.—Tearing close to bone; T. in r., > motion. Tensive, sprained pain in r. when bending it during rough weather. Bruised pain on inner surface of r. patella. Drawing in r. at night in bed, then tearing; D. in hollows when walking; in r. when at rest. Jerking sensation in r. Threatening to give way after the siesta, with indifference and low spirits.

Leg.—Swelling of legs and feet, < r., < unusual exertion. Tearing in r. tibia; in periosteum of l. tibia, beginning in knee. Tearing drawing in r. Boring beating pain in r. fibula. Pain in tendo-achillis when stepping. Drawing along anterior surface. Uneasiness of l. in evening, as if tired from walking. Give way on descending stairs. Weakness of tibiae. Rigid feeling in l., with crawling.

Ankle.—Acute drawing pain deep in externus malleolus, extending along leg, in rough weather, < rest. Sharp clawing pain in tarsal joints.

Foot.—Stitches through corns; in corn at night in bed; sudden, through l. heel. Tearing in r., < outer malleolus. Pain in r. heel; in r. sole as from a corn. Uneasiness, forcing him to turn from side to side all night. Tingling, < balls and heels; in l. as if asleep.

Toes.—Pain in outer border of r. great during rest; in joints of l. great; as from chilblains, and in balls and hollow of foot.

Skin.—Red blotches on inner surface of thighs; red spot on nose sensitive to touch; dark red spots on inner side of r. thigh causing sore pain when walking. Eruptions. Pimples around l. corner of mouth; painful to touch over outer part of l. brow and under r. corner of mouth. Pustules on forehead; on back and shoulders; on r. forearm; painful, on forehead.

Pinching above r. brow; on dorsum of nose; itching, on r. brow. Prickling here and there. Formication on r. thumb; l. leg; affected parts; (in those limbs which had been affected by gout); sudden, in single fingers or other places of hands and feet; burning F., pricking in limbs. Itching; and pains of all sorts; of nose; on inside of thighs; in different parts evenings on going to sleep, with gnawing; of r. middle and ring fingers, with erysipelatous redness; behind l. ear, extending down nape; between l. index and middle finger, waking him at night during rough weather; of l. fingers, then burning, > washing with cold water.

Sleep.—Yawning. Sleepiness; in daytime; during day and deep sleep at night, later the reverse (in a woman who had rheumatic pains); in afternoon; in afternoon, with burning in eyes. Deep sleep in evening immediately on lying down. Restless sleep; disturbed by indifferent dreams. Waking frequently towards morning and tossing about; W. early, then restless sleep; early every morning at a certain time, as if called, and afterwards inability to fall asleep. Sleep full of dreams, greater weariness on rising than on lying down. Dreams about fire, with indifference; anxious, about fire. Lascivious dreams, with copious emission; L. after coition, with emission and long-continued erections; vivid, towards morning.

Fever.—Chilliness all day, the least current of air makes him chilly; C. < morning in bed; alternating with heat (on appearance of menses which had been suppressed six months), with headache, drawing in limbs. Shuddering in lumbar region when sitting. Coldness of three r. middle fingers; in parts of lower limbs, with gooseskin; in l. knee extending along thigh in forenoon; in thighs in evening on rising from bed, with rigidity. Cold undulating sensation above knee, extending to top of knee. Cold feet; < evening, disturbing sleep; at 6 p.m., with heat of head, without thirst, with pressure outward in head, burning in eyes, dryness in nose, burning in nose on inspiration, debility and bruised pain in limbs and weariness of mind, restless, almost sleepless night, dry heat of body, slumber towards morning, during slumber sweat, which alleviated sufferings.

Heat; with thirst; of hands; in face and on body down to thighs; of hands, < tips of fingers, with sweat; in upper part of body on entering house, with anxiety there; in r. cheek under eye, with prickling; paroxysmal, in face in evening. Sweat; at night; easy, on walking in open air, with tired feeling; on lower limbs in morning in bed; fetid; fetid in axillæ; often smelling of spice, with itching and fornication.

Rhus Aromatica.

A tincture is made of the fresh bark of the root.

Clinical.—Diabetes. Incontinence of urine; both diurnal and nocturnal. Hematuria, with general debility. Catarrh of the bladder, with excruciating pain on urinating. Sometimes useful in enlarged prostate. It has been found useful in the summer diarrhoea of children, with weakness, pale tongue, general moisture, etc.

Rhus Toxicodendron.

A tincture is made of the fresh leaves of the "poison ivy."

General Action.—The contact of this poisonous plant produces in sensitive persons the most violent dermatitis, with (1) vesicular eruptions (eczematous), (2) erysipelatous inflammation of the deeper layers, with bullæ or boils, or with an extensive phlegmonous infiltration leading on to formation of abscesses and even septic infection; with these there may be diarrhoea, with or without ulceration of the bowel, dysentery, nephritis and cystitis. Some of the phases of this dermoid inflammation simulate closely forms of scarlatina and typhoid fever. The rheumatoid pains it produces are like multiple neuritis and inflammation of the fibrous sheaths of muscles; its numbness like the effects of neuritis. A low type of fever accompanies the development of its symptoms.

Allies.—(Anac., Ailanth.), Puls., Lyc., Caps., Euphorb., Ferr., Con., Dulc., Viola tr.

Generalities.—Fell down unconscious, no pulse, feeble but ineffectual efforts to vomit, offensive odor from body, pain in epigastric region, frothing from mouth, inflammation of lips (after suppression of erysipelatos inflammation by vinegar and water), later pustules returned and developed into furuncles, then patient recovered. Trembles and reaches out hastily. Twitching; in various parts, except joints; across abdomen and of limbs, and when the nervous influx passed to limbs it caused pain in brain so that he exclaimed violently, when asked where his pain was he could not mention any place, but that his limbs were as if forcibly stretched, < after sleep. Convulsions of different parts, with delirium. Extreme mobility in afternoon, with physical activity.

Pain in affected parts causing moans, when sitting; in back at noon in cold weather, then in l. eyeball, then on dorsal side of fourth r. metacarpal bone, extending subsequently to wrist, with lassitude and disposition to stretch, pain at ulnar edge of l. metacarpus, then in radial edge of r. forearm and ulnar edge of r. metacarpus, then < ulnar edge of l. metacarpus, then in l. ring finger, near nail; tearing-drawing, at 3 P.M. when sitting; tingling, in r. hip and rectum; tingling, in l. hip and rectum when lying on l. side; burning, semilateral, above zygoma and in same side of occiput at 3 A.M.; (biting, as from salt in an ulcer, when walking in open air and waking her at night); (crawling, in face, spine and sternum).

Rheumatism after too hot a bath, < legs, a stiffness of all joints on first moving them, with pain in joints and lame feeling in legs. (Twinging on backs of fingers and outer part of arms and on occiput, with pinching.) Soreness in every muscle, > exercise. Can lie only on back at night. Restlessness; at night. It seemed as if something forced him out of bed at night.

Weakness; on waking; before stool; (after eating); after eating, with dizziness; < walking in open air; < sitting (Caps., Con., Dulc., Lyc., Puls., Viola tr.), > walking, with stiffness on rising from a seat (Puls., Lyc.); with difficulty in thinking and aversion to talking; as if deprived of sleep; as if bones ached, with constant desire to sit or lie. In morning he did not wish to rise and dress. Desire to lie down; in church. Faintness; with dizziness; sudden, at 9 P.M., with perfect consciousness, could feel the beat of the heart, coldness, quiet mood, but could scarcely walk.

Stiffness, < knees and feet; S. on rising from a seat; on descending a hill, > walking on a level. Paralysis of whole body, in all joints, < attempting to rise after sitting and towards evening (Lyc., Puls.). Aggravation at 2 A.M., then gradual improvement till about 10 A.M., and aggravation towards evening; A. about 6 P.M.; after drinking cold water; in cold weather and during northeasterly winds; cold air or taking cold (Dulc.); on going from cold air into warm room, < pit of stomach; from slight vexation, for instance, discharge of coagule after menses had ceased, etc. Symptoms of poisoning which had lasted eight years, > after a typhoid fever, which continued thirteen weeks.

Clinical.—Valuable for effects of strains on muscles, especially from lifting or from working in water. Muscular and neuralgic pains, > moving about. In muscular rheumatism, generally useful when there is not much inflammation or fever, every part seems sore, general aggravation from cool air; especially valuable for ailments resulting from checked perspiration. Neuritis of almost every nerve in the body, characterized by the peculiar symptoms of the drug, especially numbness and paralytic stiffness. Rheumatic paralysis from getting wet or lying on damp ground. Generally indicated in low types of diseases or when acute diseases assume a typhoid type. Generally indicated in cellular inflammations, which assume a purulent character. Hemiplegia of the r. side after apoplexy. Chorea. General aggravation during wet weather, at rest, on rising from a seat and cold; amelioration from motion, warmth.

Mind.—Delirium. Thought that an enemy wished to poison him. Sadness; and weeping without knowing why (Lyc., Puls.); with anxiety as if a misfortune would happen or as if all about her were dead, or as if she had bid farewell to a near friend, < in the house, > walking in open air (Puls.); with dislike to being spoken to, nervousness, starting at every noise; with love of being alone. Grief and inclination to weep.

Apprehension at night, cannot remain in bed. Fear on account of sad thoughts, which she could not get rid of; F. from a trifle on falling asleep, as if he had dreaded misfortune. Anxiety at night, he would flee from bed and seek help on account of indescribable distress; < after midnight, with weakness as if he should die; when sitting, she was obliged to take hold of something because she did not think she could keep up on account of the bruised and drawing pains in limbs; with trembling; with pressure at heart and tearing in sacrum; with hot skin; with mental uneasiness and dryness in throat; as if he wished to take his own life towards evening. Discouragement; in evening, and dissatisfaction with the world; and apprehension, then short cough from tickling and irritation behind upper half of sternum, after a siesta, from noon till 3 P.M.

Restless mood, with anxiety that clawed at pit of stomach and with difficult breathing. Impatience and vexation at every trifle, intolerance of being talked to. Satety of life, with desire to die, without sadness. Ill humor; in open air, he could fall asleep when walking. Disposed to criticise and find fault from 7 till 9 P.M. Cannot be satisfied, indifferent to society. Averse to labor.

Forgetful (Anac.). Confusion, he thought that he should die. Mathematical and mechanical calculations. If disagreeable thoughts came into her mind she could not free herself from them. Ideas slow. Inaptitude for mental labor from 9 till 10 P.M., then itching from middle of l. leg to ankle. Exhaustion. Loss of thought; when walking after a meal; with dizziness; though he seems to be thinking; like a swimming before eyes, often like a vanishing of objects. Coma.

Clinical.—During low fever there is frequently delirium, rather mild, especially with fear of being poisoned. Usually there is extreme nervous restlessness, both mental and physical; it is sometimes difficult to say whether the mental anguish or the physical suffering causes the restlessness.

Head.—Swelling. Twitching in spots of part on which he was lying at night. Sticking outward. Sticking digging. Tearing; throbbing. Aching; mornings after rising; in forenoon; in forenoon, with sleepiness; after eating; after beer; with constipation; reeling, and when writing vanishing of thought and memory; bursting, < motion; throbbing, with burning; intermittent throbbing; as if stupefied, with tingling in head; like a crawling, after walking in open air; (as from a disordered stomach). Throbbing in brain, with compression.

Dulness; in morning, with intoxicated feeling; on turning eyes, with heaviness of it, even the eyeballs hurt; with disinclination for literary work; with weight in r. temple and above and behind r. orbit; as if intoxicated, when sitting, on rising vertigo even to falling forward and backward (Bry.). Heaviness so that she must hold it upright to relieve the pressure forward into forehead; H., and on stooping sensation as if a weight fell forward into forehead and dragged head downward, whereby face became hot; H. and fulness, with sensation on stooping as if brain fell forward; and fulness, with ringing in ears, with at times sticking outward in l. temple.

Weakness, on turning it unconsciousness, and on stooping it seems as if she could not rise again; W., with stupid feeling; sudden, when standing after dinner, with vertigo, so that he thought he should fall forward. Affected so that she could not hold herself up. Unsteady feeling. On shaking head sensation as if brain were loose and hit against skull. Swashing in brain at times. Rushing sensation on ascending, she felt every step in it. Sensation as if something in it turned around when walking in open air, without vertigo. She seemed intoxicated on rising and thought that she would fall forward. Swaying sensation in brain when walking. Vertigo; in morning; in morning on rising; in morning on waking, > rising; after eating; on walking or stooping; when walking, so that he did not see men in front of him; on lying down, with fear that he should die; when sitting, as if he were elevated; as if everything whirled around with her, > lying; as if she would fall forward when walking.

Forehead.—Shooting inward in l. side, with throbbing; S. outward above eye when eating, then nausea and fulness and warmth rising internally. Sudden pain behind eyes as if brain were torn to pieces, as after intoxication by brandy, on opening eyes after sleep, < moving eyes, then bruised pain in cerebellum, with pressure outward in temples. Tearing in region of brows and in malar-bones, with drawing. Pain; in l. side; at l. angle and in l. temple; in r. superciliary ridge; over l. brow; over r. brow and in region of r. hemisphere of cerebellum; at junction with r. temple in morning; at 6.30 and 7 A.M., and in temples and occiput; over r. eye in forehead after mental labor; at 11 A.M., < region of causality, with fulness and impatient desire to accomplish several kinds of business, chiefly intellectual; over l. brow at 1 P.M., with depression of spirits, yawning and lachrymation; intermittent, above brows, in latter part of forenoon, > afternoon, returning in evening, also depression of spirits, disinclination to conversation and weakness of legs; burning, above l. brow after washing hands and rinsing mouth with cold water; as with a dull point, on violent motion of arm; as if eyes would be pressed out, with yawning and chilliness; pressing forward behind l. eye. Pressure upon bone, constantly increasing and suddenly ceasing. Tension in sinciput after eating; painful in cerebrum at 6 A.M., on waking, with languor and coldness. Drawing on l. side, extending through cheek and down lower jaw through muscles and teeth, as if toothache would develop.

Temples.—Sticking inward in r.; in l., with throbbing; S. from temples and nape to vertex, and head feeling too large. Sticking jerking extending into jaws and teeth at 7 P.M., with general weakness and with bruised pain in l. temple, he yawned, but could not fall asleep immediately for fear the pain would return. Tearing in r. Pain; in r., with remittent burning bone-pain through middle phalanx of r. little finger, waking him at 5.30 A.M.; radiating upward into r. in evening in bed, < rest, forcing him at one time to sit up and at another to rise; burning, in r. bone. Compression in brain. Heaviness.

Upper Part.—Tearing after eating, with external soreness and at times drawing pain through whole head. Heaviness after walking.

Side.—Tearing from side to side from 5 P.M. till going to bed, < stooping. (Pain in l. side and in occiput as if sore, extending into teeth.) Beating in r.

Occiput.—Stitches on stooping. Pain in l. side; in r. hemisphere of cerebellum and over r. brow; in morning on waking; in r. hemisphere of cerebellum at 11.30 A.M. after intellectual labor; in r. side, with constipation; > bending head backward; jerking, in afternoon; burning, at times, in forehead at times; drawing, in O. and temples at 4.30 A.M., with pressure in eyes, driving him from bed.

Scalp.—Scabby pimple above l. parietal protuberance. Tearing transversely across. Pain on touch; and on stroking hair backward; P. in l. side, with drawing, both extending upward; as if contracted or as if she were pulled by the hair. Pressive drawing in l. side. Crawling; in a spot on occiput as if it would suppurate, in afternoon. Itching; anteriorly at 10 P.M. on walking in open air with head uncovered.

Clinical.—Headache < in wet weather. Headache < morning from lying and from cold, > heat and motion. Neuralgic headache only > walking rapidly. Occipital headache, with rheumatic stiffness in nape of neck (Dulc.). Meningitis, with stiff neck, generally > lying upon something hard, restlessness, etc. Most eruptions on the head, formed in crusts, offensive, itching < night. Eruptions, with great sensitiveness of the scalp, < warmth of bed. Erysipelas of the head, with vesicles.

Eyes.—Inflammation. Redness in morning, with agglutination; redness of white in morning, with burning pressure in it, eyes seem to protrude. Soreness around r. Dull. Sticking below eyes; S. alternating with itching and redness. Periodical cutting, with difficulty in opening lids in morning. Sharp pains running into head. Aching; on exerting vision; as from dust; as from inflammation in l. in evening, with redness in inner canthus and agglutination; pressive and contractive, in evening; burning, in l.; burning, from evening till morning, > rising. Swollen feeling in l.; and bruised sensation, upper lid swollen and itching. Biting in r.; B., and in morning agglutination. Lachrymation; in evening, with burning pain; in cold wind. Pupils dilated. Pain in l. ball; in ball on turning eye and on pressure. Itching in ball.

Lids.—Inflammation. Agglutination, with purulent mucus in morning. Swelling; of r. upper, > open air, with pressure; with relaxation of them and with hot, flushed face; closing l., with feeling as if glass or sand were in eye; hard, red, like a sty on lower towards inner canthus, with pain. Closed; l.; nearly; in evening, as from sleepiness, with dryness. Twitching, with dryness and with febrile chill; T. sensation in l. upper; sensation consisting of T. and contraction in r. lower. Heaviness, about 8 P.M., with stiffness, like paralysis (Kalm.). Dryness, < inner canthus. Soreness in cold air, as from salt biting tears. Biting on inside of lower. Itching, with drowsiness; biting l. on r. upper, > rubbing.

Jerking near r. inner canthus. Pain in l. inner canthus and in side of root of nose at 9.30 A.M.; P. in r. outer C. on pressure and on closing lids. Swollen sensation in r. inner C. Burning in l. inner C. at 6.30 P.M., with stinging; in r. inner before 8 P.M. Itching of r. outer C. Pain in l. brow. Sharp pain from l. orbital region through head to nape, > pressure. Bruised pain on inner side of orbit towards nose.

Vision dim, and objects look pale. Confused from 8.30 till 9.30 A.M., with (< r. half of field) irregular wavering lines and with tendency to hemiopia (and presbyopia?). Double, and sometimes only one-half of an object could be seen, and objects appeared to be at half the real distance. Objects do not appear of the right color.

Clinical.—This drug is valuable for numerous affections of the eye, in a general way characterized by great external swelling of the lids and sub-mucous cellular tissue. Paralysis of the upper lid from cold. Erysipelas of the lids. Pustular conjunctivitis. Scrofulous ophthalmia in general, intense photophobia, yellow, purulent discharge, pains < at night. Affections from getting wet. Conjunctivitis and iritis. Granulated lids, with saclike swelling of the conjunctiva and heavy feeling of the lids. Panophthalmitis, suppurative, with much swelling externally. Orbital cellulitis; one case of most rapid progress had destroyed one eye in forty-eight hours and attacked the other, was making rapid progress, immediately checked by Rhus t. Occasionally useful in glaucoma.

Ears.—Swelling on lobule. Shooting inward behind l., with throbbing. Tearing behind l. Aching; sudden, as if a thread were drawn through them. Painful throbbing at night. Sensation as if something were blowing into r. or stopped it up. (Itching crawling as from something alive in them.) Ringing in r. when walking. Singing like a locust, < cold air, > afternoon. Squeaking like young mice. Cracking in l. as if drum burst, on going to sleep at noon, so that he started up and trembled. Sound in l. like a cascade or like heavy rain striking the ground. (Roaring.)

Clinical.—Inflammation of the middle ear; inflammation of the external ear, with thick, yellow discharge. Erysipelas of the auricle.

Nose.—Tip red and painful to touch, as if it would suppurate. Median edge of r. nostril inflamed, then a tough and irritable pimple at upper part. Pointed. Sharp pain extending into cheek-bone. Sore sensation in nostrils; in l. Feels abraded. Tension beneath r. nostril. Sensation of hardness and swelling below N., > touch. Dryness. (Obstruction, > open air.) Sneezing; during the siesta, with fluent coryza; violent. Involuntary discharge of mucus in morning after rising, without coryza. Bleeding; in morning; at night; almost only on stooping; on hawking and clearing throat.

Clinical.—Nasal catarrh, with severe aching in all the bones, caused by dampness. Catarrh, with green discharge, offensive. Frightful attacks of sneezing all night.

Face.—Swelling; and tension. Sunken, with sickly expression and with blue rings around eyes; S. and drawn, l. side feels drawn up shorter, r. side feels elongated. Redness and sweat; erysipelatous R. of l. side, beginning during stool. Yellow and brown. Sallow. Pale.

Stitches in zygoma, with pressure; sudden S. in r. cheek. Cutting at a point in cheek, then itching and sticking, > scratching. Cutting contraction in r. cheek; burning contraction in r. cheek, with pain in crowns of upper molars. Burning cramp in r. cheek in afternoon, as if everything would suppurate, skin of cheek hot and rough, necessity to rise from bed, and thirst. Pain in a gland under angle of jaw, with digging.

Cracking in joint of jaw on moving it, even when drinking; on moving it back and forth in morning. Cramplike pain in joint of jaw; close to ear, > hard pressure and by warm food. Pain in joint as if it would be dislocated in evening during spasmodic yawning. Pain in joint as if bruised or as if it would break on moving it. Lips dry, cracked and covered with a red crust (Ailanth.). Clusters of vesicles filled at first with watery substance, on lower lip, near corners, with salty biting and soreness to touch. Soreness in corners. Pinching point in r. side of lower lip in morning on rising, with sensation as if bleeding.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia, with chilliness, < evening. Rheumatism of the jaws, feeling as though they would break or crack always on chewing; the jaw dislocates easily. Facial erysipelas.

Mouth.—Teeth. Looseness, with intermittent painful crawling in them, as in a limb asleep; L. of lower incisors, she cannot bite upon them; of lower incisors, the gum recedes, it can be pushed off and touched without pain except while the teeth are painful; of incisors, with pain from cold and warm drinks; of lower incisors, two first molars and canines, with crawling pain in gums. Tearing, > hot applications. Sticking digging. Cutting and sore pain. Sharp pressure in lower molars, with dull pain in them and with sensation of a mouldy smell in mouth. Pain in lower molars; in incisors on touch of tongue; in evening in a hollow tooth, which became elongated and loose, then also in other teeth partly sticking and partly crawling; as if too long and loose on biting and chewing; drawing, after dinner; in r. upper as if they were drawn into their sockets by the roots. Jerking pain in hollow; J. pain in canine in evening, with sticking; at night (about 10 P.M.), extending into head, > cold hand; upward in a nerve, transiently > a cold hand. Sensation of a tenacious substance between r. Numb sensation in upper molars.

Gum.—Pinching on both sides of lower, with musty taste. Sore pain at 2.30 A.M., with burning extending into roots of molars, forcing him to sit up in bed, with heat in body, < head, with sweat on forehead. Pressure on outer part, over lower molars; P. moving here and there on inner side of incisors, and in periosteum of teeth.

Tongue.—Soreness, with redness at apex (Phyto.). Blisters, Yellowish-white at root. Coated; reddish-brown, except near edges, in morning on rising. Brown mucus, except on edges, in morning on rising. Dark brown mucus on it one morning, coated yellow another. Salt mucus in morning. Burning and smarting, with increase of saliva. Dryness on waking at 8 A.M.; D. provoking drinking; dry sensation at tip without visible dryness.

Mouth in General.—Inflammation and vesicles. Mucus; grayish, in morning. Cutting throbbing pain as from an ulcer posteriorly on palate where teeth end, and on touch sticking as in an ulcer. Soreness of upper and back part of palate. Dryness and thirst.

Coldness as from a wind, when closed, with roaring in l. ear. Sudden heat, and in gullet. Inclination to spit, as from salivation. Salivation; in morning, with nausea and hunger; during afternoon nap; running from mouth during afternoon nap when sitting; after the customary smoke; with burning pricking in tongue and sore feeling at tip of tongue; salt, in morning in bed. Spitting of saliva and mucus all day, with sour eructations; spitting of tenacious mucus. Breath fetid.

Taste.—Bitter (all day, even to food); in morning, > eating; waking her at night, with dryness in mouth; (to acids); (to bread); and rough to bread; and acrid, sour. Bloody when coughing; B. in nose and mouth, then bilious, bitter taste. As of bad meat in forenoon, > eating. Sour; after milk. Coppery, with scraping extending into throat. Slimy, mouth seems coated with mucus; S., forcing her to spit much. Fatty, but natural to food. Flat. Bad, in morning after waking and after eating.

Clinical.—Toothache, < cold, > warmth; (occasionally relieves a jumping toothache, momentarily > a cold hand). Sometimes useful for inflammation at root of a tooth, with pain, < night from cold. The tongue is dry, red and cracked, in fever.

Throat.—Hard swelling of submaxillary and parotid glands. Swelling of submaxillary glands, with sticking on swallowing. Mucus, and in posterior nares; M., < rinsing mouth; hawking of M. in morning; tenacious, > hawking, but leaving roughness. Sticking on swallowing and yawning; on swallowing if throat is dry, but when moist pressure in it on swallowing; near epiglottis, beginning dull and ending sharp, > swallowing.

Pressure on swallowing, < empty swallowing. Throbbing pain posteriorly. Soreness, with burning extending to stomach; S. and apparent smallness, causing difficulty in swallowing. Swollen sensation, with bruised pain, and on swallowing swollen pain and sticking. Sensation in pit as if stopped and constricted in trachea, transiently > eating and drinking. Rawness in l. tonsil on swallowing, with soreness. Roughness provoking hacking cough; R. in throat and trachea as if chest were raw and sore. Dryness; after getting into bed. Coldness on expiration, as if a cold breath were exhaled. Burning; about noon, and in chest near oesophagus, with burning pain in back. Inability to swallow drink, on every swallow the drink chokes her as if epiglottis were paralyzed, with dryness posteriorly in throat. Pricking low down in oesophagus behind sternum. Burning in oesophagus in forenoon.

Clinical.—Sometimes used for sore throat, with oedema of the fauces, great restlessness, swelling of the parotid glands. Occasionally useful in diphtheria, with bloody saliva, swollen parotids, restlessness, etc. Mumps.

Stomach.—Appetite, in morning, but on going to the table indifference to food. Great. Ravenous, > sitting, with emptiness in stomach, with loss of appetite in palate and throat; ravenous, yet mouth seemed soapy, everything tasted like straw and was eructated, appetite disappeared after slightest food and he felt full. Frequent, sudden, for dainties. Desire for cold milk, he swallowed it hastily; D. for raw oysters; for cheese, sometimes for hearty food. Food is relished in evening, except bread, that seems rough, dry and scrappy; F. was relished though he ate without desire; ate with relish at noon, though he was indifferent to food; food is relished tolerably, but she has no real desire for it and her stomach seems constantly full (Lyc.). Little appetite, yet a hunger, with a sensation as if hunger affected chest. Satiety if he eats a little, yet hunger (Lyc.); S. after a glass of wine, aversion to wine, with heaviness of head. Lost; at noon; with flat, slimy salivation; with constipation; and after swallowing a morsel a putrid taste; for tobacco; beer is not relished; and neither food, drink nor tobacco tastes good. Aversion to meat and broth; to bread and to eating generally; to coffee.

Thirst; in morning; from 2 till 5 A.M., then sweat; in afternoon and after midnight, from dryness in mouth; at night, without desire to drink, with slimy mouth; for water or beer.

Eructations.—At 1 P.M., with shooting in r. side of epigastrium and in r. axilla; whenever urinating. Empty, in evening, then hicough; E. towards evening, with bloating of abdomen; after eating and drinking; tasting of food. Burning; rising from pit of stomach into pit of throat, almost taking away her breath, in evening; remaining in r. side of chest.

Nausea; in throat; in chest in morning after rising; in morning after rising, > open air, with anxiety; in morning after rising, with warmth, N. > lying down; in evening on lying down, with tossing about; in chest and stomach in evening in bed, > sleep; after eating and drinking; after eating and after coffee, with salivation; when sitting; < stooping; in chest, > eating, with ravenous hunger; > eating, returned with hunger, without appetite; with pain at l. quadratus lumborum; with burning pain in stomach, dizziness, feeling as if stomach were too large and hanging down, then chills running from feet to head, then flashes of heat, chill from 2 till 3 A.M. every day during the inflammatory stage, pulse full, rapid; beneath short ribs, impeding respiration; causing shivering.

Vomiting; of the partially digested fruit, later of a tenacious wine-colored fluid.

Sticking in r. side towards stomach; in pit; in pit near r. hypochondrium; in region, impeding deep breathing. Rending pain in diaphragm, < lying. Cramp in pit like a fullness. Gripping above stomach, below diaphragm, later lower down in stomach; in pit and thence suddenly in a spot in hypogastrium. Pain; in epigastrium; in pit; at 7.15 P.M., and in abdomen, lasting in abdomen through the evening and remaining next morning; on coughing; in pit on moving about; when about to fall asleep; then loose dark brown stool, before the stool pain at symphysis pubis, and during it burning in anus and proclitiana ani; in pit and diaphragm so that he could not lie in bed; (in pit during dinner, delaying sleep); in pit as if everything were swollen, making breathing difficult; after eating as from undigested food; in pit, as from swallowing too large a morsel; pressive and burning, on swallowing cold water; as if closed and being split open with a knife, preventing lying. Contractive pain in r. side, extending towards stomach.

Fullness in morning so that food will not go down; after a moderate meal, with eructations; after a glass of wine, aversion to wine, with heaviness of head; as if overloaded after a moderate meal, with great appetite. Sensation of a lump after a meal, < standing. Oppression towards evening, as if everything in region of pit were contracted. Throbbing in epigastric region; below pit. Crawling, > lying, with eructations, both renewed by rising.

Abdomen.—Distention; all day, and sensation of fermentation in it; after eating; > eating, with fermentation and hunger; on rising from stooping, with warmth in chest; flatulent, < eating, with apprehension; painful, after a meal, with colic as from incarcerated flatus. Rumbling and griping; R. and gurgling, with thrusts towards mons veneris. Fermentation. Flatulence in evening; before 8 A.M., with pain in region of ascending colon, < gradual pressure and more by sudden pressure and percussion, often worse at a distance from the part pressed or struck than at the part itself. Offensive flatus; easy emission of flatus that appears only in rectum. Jerking caused by flatulence. Internal shaking on every step.

Shooting at noon. Cutting, < motion, with tearing and griping; C., then sticking in r. side of abdomen. Griping in forenoon when walking in open air, with incarceration of flatus; G. during normal stool; when sitting, with oppression mounting upward; and jerking; almost jerking, in various parts. Digging and twisting pain as if a worm were moving in it. Pain at night; P. > stool, but returning and causing other stools; with contraction so that she must walk bent over; as if ulcerated in morning on stretching after rising, and skin of abdomen seemed too tight; as in diarrhoea; as from pressure, when sitting, > lying; like a heavy lump; in a spot, as from incarceration of flatus, on violently turning body. Sensation of water bubbling under walls. Crowding as if intestines were pushed towards heart, when sitting. Heaviness when sitting, with emptiness and hunger. Burning, with thirst.

Hypochondria.—Shooting from hepatic region to r. shoulder. Griping below r. ribs when sitting, as from worms, soon extending to umbilical region. Pushing below l. ribs. Crowding forward when sitting bent over, with anxiety as if death were imminent. Pressure drawing forward in l., with anxiety and nausea in chest.

Griping in upper A. after eating and drinking. Cramp-like pain in r. side in morning from slight cold, with moaning, timorous and disconsolate mood. Cutting in r. side of A., then sticking. Digging in r. side. Drawing pain in l. side during respiration. Cutting in middle in forenoon, with frequent but natural stools, > bending body, < walking. Contraction transversely across above navel, so that abdomen above and below the line was distended, hard and tense.

Umbilical Region.—Flatulent distention and griping. Sticking at 3.30 P.M.; S. above umbilicus; to l. of U.; extending to præcordial region with every pulse; to anus, first from below and to right of U., then from below and to left of it, towards evening. Cutting in l. during expiration while sitting. Griping in r., with creeping chilliness over upper arms. Drawing pain extending towards pubes. Cramp-like drawing. Bruised pain below umbilicus.

Hypogastrium.—Swelling of inguinal glands. Griping burrowing waking him about midnight, with exhaustion and emptiness in pit of stomach and nausea. Pain in region of ascending colon, and in r. wrist and middle of l. radius; in pubic region; in region of ascending colon at 10.45 A.M., on rising after stool; at 2 P.M., with flatulence, then pain in r. chest; in region of r. quadratus lumborum muscles at 2.30 P.M. on rising from lying; in inguinal glands at night on moving; labor-like, as if menses would appear; rheumatic burning, between spine of ilium and ribs in evening; in ring, as if a hernia would protrude; contractive, in

l. groin; drawing, in r. side when sitting, with sensation as if abdomen were covered with a cobweb. Drawing transversely across above ring when sitting. Pressure outward in r. groin, with ravenous hunger and gurgling in abdomen. Sensation in l. flank as if a hernia protruded. Stretching in r. flank as if a hernia would protrude. Tension in l. flank, with sticking; T. in l. groin by hip as if skin were too tight. Heaviness as if a boil were hanging on l. flank, when walking.

Clinical.—Peritonitis and enteritis, with restlessness, dry, red tongue, patrid, slimy diarrhoea, sometimes involuntary. Typhlitis, painful swelling of the whole r. side of the abdomen, < lying on l. side, > lying on the back and by gentle pressure from below upward. Colic, > bending double and moving. Numerous inflammatory symptoms of the r. side of the abdomen, with feeling of heavy weight pressing in the groin, could not stand.

Rectum.—Procidencia. Pain; at 3 P.M. when urinating. Burning before stool. Crawling as of thread-worms. Deep-seated itching. Frequent desire, yet he accomplished but little. Constant urging and straining at stool; constant U., with nausea and tearing in intestines, the U. often ineffectual, sometimes scanty, watery discharge.

Anus.—Painful, sore, protruding, blind hæmorrhoids after soft stool. Sore pain when not at stool. Smarting during and after stool, with burning. Burning at 10.30 A.M., soon with burning at end of penis. Itching pain as from hæmorrhoids. Pricking itching between 3 and 6 P.M. when walking.

Clinical.—Hæmorrhoids, hind, protruding after every stool, with backache and pressure outward in the rectum. Fissure of the anus, with sore protruding piles. Inflammation of the cellular tissue around anus, especially traumatic.

Stool.—Liquid, with mucus, red and yellow, gelatinous; L., brown, occasionally with pain before getting up from stool; almost L., frequent, with flatulence. Diarrhoea; in morning, with colic and cutting in abdomen; with griping before each stool; as if chopped; tinged with blood, preceded by lassitude; dark brown, with procidencia ani; dark greenish-brown, with eysipelatous redness of l. side of face lasting an hour; frequent, gelatinous, yellow and white streaked, without colic; sudden yellow, frothy, scarcely at all offensive, without previous colic, the first drops involuntary; frequent; (frequent, then ineffectual tenesmus). Soft, whitish-yellow.

Constipation; with pain in r. side of occiput; with headache and loss of appetite; with continual urging, ineffectual stool, with flatulence and rumbling in abdomen, ineffectual desire after eating; then dark brown stool. Stools mixed with blood. (White.) With gelatinous substance; frequent; and sudden, offensive, at first thick, afterwards watery, mixed with flatus, with griping and digging in hypogastrium. Child cries before every stool, afterwards it is quiet.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea of thin, red mucus, or of bloody water like meat-washings, sometimes a jelly-like mucus, with lumps of transparent mucus, sometimes involuntary; it may be without odor or very offensive, frequently associated with tenesmus and tearing pains down the thighs; this may occur during typhoid fever or may result from getting wet. Dysentery, with many of the above symptoms; craving for cold milk said to be very marked.

Urinary Organs.—Stitches from both sides upon bladder while urging to urinate. Obligated to urinate three times at night; every minute during the day. Micturi-tion frequent, urine scanty, red. (Micturition in a double stream.)

Urethra.—Cutting when urinating; anteriorly when urinating, with burning and smarting, and after micturition burning and smarting, with irritation and heat in rectum; anteriorly during and after micturition, with burning pain, the last part of urine milky, after micturition heat in rectum. Burning during micturition; with scanty, high-colored urine; posteriorly at root during micturition. Biting in forepart during and after micturition, < rest.

Urine.—Dark; and scanty, irritating; and soon becoming turbid. Hot. Turbid when passed. Whitish, becoming more turbid the longer he urinates, the last drops like flakes. Like water, with snow-white sediment. Yellow, occasionally frequent desire, at other times seldom, but copious, sometimes transparent, sometimes smelling salish, at others sulphurous. Profuse.

Clinical.—Pain and soreness over the region of the kidneys, with symptoms of inflammation, œdema, etc. Paralysis of the bladder. Inflammation of the bladder, with tenesmus. Oxaluria.

Sexual Organs.—Swelling and tightness; tympanitic S., < scrotum, with itching. Frightful eruption, with closure of urethra by swelling. Mons veneris, red, sore spots caused by ruptured vesicles; swelling; distended sensation when walking in open air; pressure.

Glans.—Swelling in morning after rising, with pain on touch and with biting in urethra during and after micturition; S. of glans and prepuce, and around root and in prepuce itching, burning, prickling and cutting, with transparent swelling from prepuce to scrotum, < l. side, with vesicles discharging a transparent fluid, prepuce looks and feels as if scalded. Vesicle beneath prepuce; V. oozing moisture at top of G. Pain on account of swollen prepuce, causing paraphimosis. Erections after waking at 1 A.M., without desire; E. at 2 A.M. in sleep without amorous dreams, then mathematical and mechanical calculations; towards morning, with frequent desire to urinate; frequent, at night, with frequent micturition.

Swelling of prepuce; close to its union with glans. Prepuce dark; red spots on inner surface of P., near frenum; sticking itching on inner surface of P. Scrotum felt like thick hog's hide; thick and hard, with itching, extending especially towards perineum. Scrotum and penis red at 2 P.M., scrotum flaccid and hanging half way down to knee. Moist eruption on scrotum, with swelling of prepuce and glans; M. eruption where scrotum touched thigh and in perineum. Cutting drawing in l. testicle. Emissions at night; irresistible inclination to E. after 3 A.M.

Female.—Sticking in vagina. Sore pain in vagina in evening; in evening after touch. Labor-like drawing extending down to uterus when standing. Bleeding from uterus at new moon, without pain, in a pregnant woman. Menses caused biting pain in genitals. Menses profuse, they had been long absent.

Clinical.—Erysipelatous inflammation of the penis. Persistent painful erections, > lying on the back, with tenderness in the spine, apparently the result of a strain. Erysipelas of the external genitals, moist eruptions. Eczema of the pendula, with great swelling, intense itching, < night on undressing, followed by soreness and smarting. Prolapsus uteri. Ovarian cyst. Leucorrhœa. Retroversion. Erosions of the cervix, resulting from distended follicles. Membranous dysmenorrhœa, always < dampness. Puerperal fever of a typhoid character.

Respiratory Organs.—Burning rawness in larynx at 6 A.M. on waking. Hoarseness from scraping rawness in larynx; H. low down in trachea. Tickling irritability in air-passages, as if it would provoke cough, that makes breath short, > moderate exertion.

Cough night and morning; about 3 A.M., < after waking; at night, preventing sleep; (after eating); (in open air); < after waking; with tension in chest; in evening, causing vomiting of food; short, from tickling and irritation behind upper half of sternum, then discouragement and apprehension; short, anxious, painful, waking him often before midnight, with short breath; hacking, in evening after lying down, with bitter taste in throat till he falls asleep, and in morning similar cough and taste till rising; tickling, causing dryness in throat, < evening; short, dry, at 11 A.M., from tickling behind upper half of sternum when sitting bent forward, with aching in mammary region; dry, hoarse; dry, before midnight, causing sticking in one loin; spasmodic, shattering head; shattering chest, as if everything in it were loose; with expectoration and coryza; (< morning, with black, glutinous expectoration); fatiguing, day and night, with white mucous expectoration.

Respiration.—Choking sensation at times. Oppressed and anxious. Difficult after walking a little. Obligated to breathe deeply, as if she would suffocate, < eating, and inability to sit up. Short at night; S., < going to stool. Hurried.

Clinical.—Paralysis of the muscles of the larynx. Cough racking, < before midnight in wet weather, with pains in the back and limbs, restlessness. Typhoid pneumonia. Hæmoptysis.

Chest.—Milk disappears from breasts. Hot vapor from lungs. Sticking in side; r.; below r. nipple in morning in bed, with itching in front of chest; near middle of r. side after 1 P.M., when lying on that side; below l. ribs in evening, lasting till midnight; in l. when coughing; in l. when talking and on deep breathing; in side when walking in open air; deep on sides of sternum when sitting bent over; at third rib, about three inches to l. of sternum, on inspiration when sitting at close of supper, at which the principal drink was ice-water; tearing, from r. side of C. to l. side of abdomen in evening; pulsating, above precordial region in evening when sitting; boring, in one of last ribs when standing. Boring in l. side in evening in bed.

Pain in r.; l.; near middle of sternum, on l. side; two inches to l. of nipple and at lower angle of l. scapula, then at l. scapula and l. shoulder-joint; at insertion of a muscle near middle of sternum in morning, then sensitiveness on pressure; two inches to r. of middle of sternum at 1.30 P.M.; in r. at 2 P.M., with flatulence and pain in hypogastrium; in l. side midway between sternum and angle of ribs at 7 P.M. when walking; at l. clavicle on waking from nightmare; in l., midway between sternum and angle of ribs, soon extending to shoulder, arm and forearm. Burning and pressive pain at middle of lower side of l. clavicle on swallowing cold water; B. and pressive pain behind upper half of sternum at 11 P.M., with excoarication and with short cough excited by tickling in same part. Scraping and burning.

Oppression; at night, with sticking, < breathing; sticking, in sternum, making respiration difficult, with short cough, without expectoration; as after violent weeping. Weight on lower part, with anxiety, so that she breathed with difficulty and sometimes deeply, when it was easier, pulse at one time slow, at another rapid. Pressure inward on sternum in morning, > rising. Constriction; with nausea; in sternum, with sticking jerking in it. Pushing in l. side not far from pit of stomach when sitting bent. Tension in evening, with short breath and weakness in limbs. Drawing down l. side when breathing. Fulness, with hunger, without appetite; F. below sternum, with sensation as if appetite had vanished forever. Weakness, so that talking was difficult, after walking in open air. Heat when walking in open air. Numbness.

Heart.—Anxiety more in afternoon than in forenoon, sleeplessness half the night on account of anguish, and anxiety so that she perspired. Weak sensation, with trembling of it. Palpitation when sitting still, so that the body moved with every pulse.

Clinical.—Palpitation from over-exertion. Hypertrophy of the heart in a rheumatic diathesis. Rheumatism of the heart from getting wet, violent palpitation, pains extend into the left arm.

Pulse.—Rapid. Slow, at times irregular; S., full and strong, afterwards rapid, small and compressible. Felt in occiput.

Neck.—Stinging in upper and lower part of neck and in upper part of back at 4.40 P.M., after drinking cold water. Pain in muscles of nape as if asleep or as after lying in an uncomfortable position towards evening. Pressure in muscles on bending head forward; P. in upper part of nape, with numbness. Drawing over one side of nape when stooping. Weight on nape so that he could not rise again, with rush of blood into brain. Stiffness; of nape; of nape, with tension on motion; rheumatic, of nape (Dulc).

Back.—Sticking in evening when stooping; worse when walking than when sitting, also on stooping, but < rising again. Burning pain about noon, with burning in throat and region of œsophagus. Drawing pain when sitting, > walking; D. pain in evening, forcing him to sit upright. Drawing downward, with tension and pressure in rectum, as if everything would press out.

Scapulae.—Twitching in l. side by S. when sitting; rumbling T. in some parts of S. and above r. knee, with contractive sensation. Tearing between S. and at the same time they were drawn together. Tensive cutting across. Pain in l. and in shoulder-joint; under r.; below l., with drawing upward; rheumatic, between S., > warmth, < cold; as from pressure of a finger upon l. Pressure upon r. Drawing beneath r., with pressure, impeding respiration. Constriction of dorsal muscles when sitting, > bending back, < bending forward.

Lumbar Region.—Sticking jerking in sacrum when walking. Drawing jerking stitches in coccyx. Cutting in sacrum when standing and bending backward. Pain in region of l. kidney, < lying down at midnight; P. behind r. sacro-iliac symphysis and in l. shoulder; above l. sacro-iliac symphysis; in sacrum when sitting, as after long stooping. Bruised feeling in sacrum; when sitting, with heaviness; in S., > moving; in flesh on grasping sacrum; and in r. side of lumbar vertebrae. Stiffness of sacrum; with pain on motion.

Clinical.—Muscular rheumatism in the back, especially umbago, great pain on attempting to rise, > warmth, < cold, > bending backward. Muscular pains in the back from strain. It seems to have cured locomotor ataxia.

Extremities.—Swelling of hands and feet. Readily sprained. Contraction of l. arm and leg, with stiff feeling. Twitching. Unsteadiness during a chill. Trembling after exerting them. Sensation similar to trembling in arms and legs, even at rest. Sticking; in a spot, < lying; in joints when the limb is lying at rest, not when stretching it out, not on touch and not when lying down at night. Aching on ulnar side of upper phalanx of l. middle finger in morning in bed, then in posterior phalanx of l. fourth toe on beginning to walk and on pressure, between 6 and 7 P.M.; A. in joints, < open air. Bruised pain in limbs and joints on which he does not lie in morning; B. pain in flesh, < touch. Drawing when lying.

Weakness. Stiffness (Caut., Lyc.); on first moving it after rest; during and after walking, with paralyzed feeling in them and with weight upon nape; rheumatic, in joints, with pain shooting through knees from side to side, wandering pains, sometimes on one side and then suddenly on the other, pricking in feet and fingers, flesh feels as if it would drop from limbs, the pain is deep-seated, < gentle friction, > hard rubbing, desire to move limbs frequently, which relieves the rheumatic pains. Falling asleep of those upon which he lies, < arm.

Upper Extremities.—Painful swelling of axillary glands. Stitches in shoulder when lying, > moving; drawing stitches from shoulders down through arms; S. inward in l. shoulder, with throbbing. Tearing in shoulder-joint and on top of scapula. Pain in r. shoulder; at top of l.; in l. in forenoon when riding; in r. at 6 P.M. when walking; when lying, > moving; rheumatic, in l. S. and arm in region of deltoid; burning, in l. at 1 P.M. when walking. Weight on shoulders; upon l. by clavicle. L. shoulder seems paralyzed.

Arm.—Swelling and pain. Trembling after moderate exertion of it. Jerking sensation in l. Shooting through them; extending downward in l. and out at finger-tips, with drawing. Tearing, < lying still. Drawing in l. at night, with paralyzed sensation. Sensation as if something were rolling down in it from shoulder to hand. Falling asleep of the one upon which he rests his head in sleep.

Upper Arm.—Sticking in l.; inward, on r.; burning, beneath l. axilla; boring, when standing. Tearing, < work, forcing one to let arms hang down, with pain when in bed, and on taking hold of them pain in bone. Sprained pain in l. at 2 and 3 P.M. when arm is carried far upward and backward. Pain in l.; in l. deltoid at 6.30 A.M. on exerting it; about middle of l. at 7 A.M., with itching on back and chest; on r. side of l. about noon after lying down. Tension in l. in open air. Drawing from below l. axilla to middle of upper arm, on raising arm.

Elbow.—Jerking tearing in E. and wrist, > motion. Pain in l. between 2 and 3 P.M. after drinking ice-water, then in r. scapular joint, < lower angle of scapula, beginning when pulling; burning itching P. in l., > scratching. Drawing extending into wrist, with tearing; cramplike, in l. on moving it. Tension on stretching arm, with difficulty in raising arm. Throbbing in l.

Forearm.—Pain in middle of l. radius; in region of l. biceps; region of r. biceps flexor, then in ulnar edge of r. metacarpus; l. biceps and phalanges of l. fingers about 6 A.M.; middle of l. ulnar at 1 P.M.; in r. biceps when at rest; bruised, in l.; burning, in biceps in bed, < l. Weakness in upper part of r. on motion and sprained pain in wrist on grasping anything. Stiffness and weakness of F. and fingers; S. of l., with digging in bones on motion and jerking in r. wrist.

Wrist.—Tearing sticking in l. Sprained sensation on upper surface of l. on bending it. Pain in r.; l.

Hand.—Swelling. (Twisting between r. thumb and index.) Pain at ulnar edge of r.; before midnight, > movement; rheumatic P.; drawing, in r. palm; throbbing, in l., extending to elbow; intermittent throbbing, in l.

Fingers.—Twitching inward of thumbs on laying hands down; (T. inward of fingers). Sticking; in tendons on back of index. Tearing in joints. Pain in middle joint of l. index; in middle joint of r. ring; in middle phalanx of r. little; in metacarpal joint of l. index and in middle of r. upper arm; midway between joints in evening; on motion, on account of swelling. Crawling in tips as if asleep (Sec. c.). Falling asleep sensation in l. index. Index and middle numb and asleep in morning.

Lower Extremities.—Staggering in morning on rising, with inability to stand upright; S. to the right when walking; S. without vertigo. Limping in afternoon. Pain, and in knees; burning, and in knees. Weakness, < rest; W. of joints; so that they feel bruised. Paralysis; and walking difficult, slow and shuffling. Cramplike contraction in r. nates. Pain in tuber ischii after rising from a seat; drawing P. in r. nates, just below sacrum, > pressure; cramplike, in l. nates when standing.

Hip.—Lameness of l. during first part of a walk. Tearing extending to knee when walking and standing, with drawing. Pain, and in knees; in l. at 5 P.M. on bending trunk to r.; when lying on side, and in sacrum when lying on back (Nux v.); in joints on every step, and paralyzed sensation in anterior muscles of thighs; in r., consisting of tension and drawing. Tension in l. joint when sitting; in l. joint, extending down thigh.

Thigh.—Twisting, with trembling of knee. Cramp in l. T. and nates. Sticking extending outward; boring S. when standing. Tearing in middle of outer part when sitting, > motion; jerking T. above r. knee. Tearing dragging in muscles of l. Cramplike pain below r. groin when sitting. Sensation near r. groin like that felt when fingers are spread apart when wrist has been sprained. Pain in l.; along l. rectus femoris from 4 till 8.30 P.M., < beginning to walk, transiently > continued walking; in anterior muscles on touch, < l. the posterior part of which was painful on walking the preceding day; in tendon above patella on walking; bruised, in r. rectus cruris on pressure; drawing, on rising from a seat and when standing, forcing her to bend up; bruised and drawing, in r. Tension on posterior surface when riding on leg over the other. Heaviness from above knees to ankles, so that she could not stand, > walking and sitting. Inclination to stretch T. and leg in morning in bed.

Knee.—Sticking on inner surface of l., then r. when walking; in hamstring just above calf on violent motion, on rising from a seat and on touch; across, on standing up after sitting; outward in side when walking. Tearing in K. and ankle, < rest; T. to ankle, with drawing. Pain; under knee-pan; in upper part of l.; in l. in morning on beginning to descend stairs after sitting; on l. side of upper end of r. patella at noon on rising from a chair; at outer edge of l. patella in evening on descending stairs after sitting some time; rheumatic, extending to ankles; hot, running to groins; intermittent sore, and in legs; drawing. Drawing in hollow of c. or bending knee. Tension in l. on rising from a seat; T. as if too short; T. in tendons on inner side of r., with pulling, causing uneasiness in foot; in tendons on inner side of r., with crawling. Tingling in K. and hollows on sitting down after walking, with buzzing. Heaviness in hollows and in calves, so that he could not move legs.

Leg.—Cramp in one or other in forenoon in bed, > pressure against sole. Sticking below r. knee; at head of l. fibula after drinking ice-water, then pain there on stepping; in lower part of tendo-achillis, < touch and after lying down. Aching, with inability to rest in any position; A. above l. tendo-achillis at 2.15 P.M. on ascending stairs; alternating with cold feet; (sudden throbbing and crawling P. at 6.30 P.M., < motion and touch, with cramplike pain, both disappearing suddenly). Throbbing. Weakness; in forenoon; at noon, with desire to lie down; in afternoon when walking in open air, with heaviness and bruised sensation; between 5 and 6 P.M., with pain at anterior tuberosity of l. tibia on first walking, then behind l. outer malleolus, then superficial pain at inferior occipital ridge. < exerting muscles whose tendons are inserted there; when sitting, > walking; in legs and ankles, with pain; with pain above superciliary ridges. Heaviness; when sitting, with tension, but only weariness when walking. Stiffness in forenoon, with staggering to r.

Tibia.—Tearing sticking and weariness. Stinging below inner side of head of l. after drinking cool milk. Tingling pain in shafts at night when feet are crossed, with constant necessity to move legs, which prevents sleep. Sudden sprained pain at insertion of ligamentum patellæ into T. on rising from a chair, with pain on pressure. Pain at inside of head of l. at 9.30 P.M. on sitting after walking; cramplike, in l. on bending knee, then burning. Pressure on r., then burning.

Calf.—Jerking. Cramp after midnight in bed and when sitting after walking, > bending knee; C. when sitting. Pain in l. at 7 A.M. on descending stairs; in l. at 2.30 P.M. at each step; in inner, lower, and posterior part when heel was raised by action of calf on beginning to walk, > continued walking; in l., > more neat; tense, in r., with burning. Tension when walking, with sensation as if hamstrings were too short; T. on skin, with sticking in when sitting. Drawing internally in r., at sitting uneasiness in feet; cramplike drawing upward in l. to hollow of knee. (Throbbing on outer side.)

Ankle.—Sticking in l.; in r. inner malleolus on rising from a seat; cramplike. Deep-seated pain in outer at 8.30 A.M. on pressure. Drawing in r.

Foot.—Swelling in evening. Spasmodic contraction in inner side of sole, > stretching it out and bending sole. Sticking in heels in morning on first standing; in soles in evening; in heel when stepping upon it; in l. heel after walking in open air; burning, on back of r., with warmth. Intermittent pain in heels like burning soles under skin. Sprained pain in morning on rising. Pain in hollow; P. after walking in open air, thighs on immovable, > sitting; in soles, with tension; in r. sole near ball, as from pressure upon a painful spot; burning sore, in a corn, from pressure of shoe; in heels as if benumbed, when stepping upon them. Drawing like a paralysis when sitting; D. extending outward in l. heel, with burning. Throbbing on back. Weakness as if she had walked too rapidly, so that she cannot easily ascend stairs; as if blood settled in them, when sitting. Debility of r., with numbness.

Toes.—Spasmodic contractions. Sticking in l. fourth; in l. great; in ball of l. great; from great to middle of l. chest when standing; burning, between fourth and fifth in evening when walking and at night in bed; jerklike, as if a boil were about to break, in affected ball of great, in the evening throbbing in it. Pain in several at some distance from joints, then about hips and small of back, then in l. gluteals, then at connection of l. tendo-achillis with calf, the last three early in a walk; drawing, in r. great, with warmth.

Clinical.—Loss of co-ordination in lower extremities. Various forms of rheumatism and rheumatoid pains.

Skin.—Hard and like leather; then desquamation; H. on back of hand, and stiff, cracked and hot. Hands seem coated with nitrate of silver. A black welt, which becomes sore, cuticle sloughs off and leaves a circular cicatrix. Yellow and sunken between knuckles. Blue color of scars when exposed to cold air. Inflammation at inner side of l. nates, with excoriated feeling; a wound becomes inflamed and surrounded by vesicles.

Redness of whole body at 2 P.M.; R. as far as four fingers' breadth above umbilicus; extending downward from scrotum, becoming striped at middle of thigh; in a hot spot on r. hip, with burning pain; in round spots on upper part of arm; (in round spots in ball of foot); erysipelatous, of l. side of face, with burning and smarting.

Swelling of nose, ears and neck; head, neck and chest as far as umbilicus; every year, with itching, burning and vesicles; of whole body, eyes closed and penis so swollen that he could not urinate; of lips and nose, and then pale S. of face, later with burning pain in face, lids closed by swelling, lachrymation, face covered with vesicles full of yellow water, S. lasts longest below chin and then fine desquamation there; of face, lids and lobes of ears, with itching; of face, with redness, then scarlet exanthema over whole body, with itching biting, later backs of hands and legs covered with blisters that burst and slowly desquamated; of face, with itching and burning on forehead and about eyes, difficulty in opening lids, vesicles filled with watery fluid; r. side of face, with inflammation, itching and burning; of face till eyes are shut, with inflamed vesicles covering neck, hands and arms, inflammation of skin and symptoms resembling those of "milk sickness;" of face, with heat, itching and stinging; of face, which was blistered and mottled, lids swollen so that she could not see, burning smarting over face and head and fever; erysipelatous, of face and neck; erysipelatous, of face and lids, and finally phlyctenæ over whole body; of face, neck and throat, with rash resembling measles; of face, ears and neck, with erysipelatous redness of them, hands swollen and blistered; sudden, of l. cheek, upper lip and lids, next night S. of forearm, skin leathery, with itching and heat, after four days pustules on hands and forearms, bursting and discharging clear liquid; hot, of face and hands in evening; red, in a fan shape from root of nose towards scalp, becoming hot, next day face swollen, eyes closed, on r. temple a red, itching and burning circular elevation, in afternoon the circular blotch was covered with minute vesicles and vesication had begun on other parts, later the vesicles appeared milky whitish, on back of r. hand and back of several fingers vesicles limpid at their apices, the fluid was transparent, changed blue limbus to deep blue, which faded after drying and left no discoloration; red, of face, hands and fingers, with itching, then heat, pain, vesication and fever, the vesicles on inside of fingers were large and added to the pain by pressing against each other; lurid red, of face and ears, and vesicles dripping with fluid, neck, chest and abdomen red, with patches of flattened papules and vesicles and moist excoriations, genitals swollen and scrotum running with serum, swelling of arms and legs, with vesicles, itching and irritability so that no clothes could be worn, sleep impossible without powerful anodynes. Hard swelling under l. ramus of jaw, causing chin to rest on r. shoulder. Swelling of head, limbs, eyelids and cervical glands, the last sore to touch, with smooth red eruption over whole body, and burning, then vesicles, which ran together in places, later desquamation and itching. Swelling of lids and lobules of ears, with burning, itching and pricking. Dark red swelling of l. eyelid, exuding yellowish-white pus from tarsal margins, anterior part of r. forearm covered with minute vesicles, burning and stinging, next day r. eye involved, later blisters on fingers, which discharged a yellowish-white serum, yellowish-brown scab on arm, then peeling of cuticle of r. arm and fingers. Swelling of l. ear, with itching and bursting of skin of lobule of r. ear. Swelling of l. side of trunk from axilla to below ribs, with pain. Swelling extending to groin and inside thigh, pubes and abdomen, as far as navel, with itching. Swelling on arms and hands, with erysipelas, pustules, burning and itching; of arm, with vesicles containing yellowish fluid, then on other parts; tense, of l. arm and both legs, with strong resemblance to a denuded blister in a suppurating state; of forearm, with sudden roughness, itching and heat; of forearms, with redness and small transparent vesicles like eczema, arms stiff, face swollen and erythematous, penis and scrotum red, swollen and painful, with inflamed elevations on inner side of thighs, the inflamed parts painful, sometimes numb, sometimes stinging, the pain < night owing to heat, and < forearms, later the red patches extended up arms and down legs, afterwards at margins of the large patches were reddish spots as at the outset of measles, the large patches resembling the redness of scarlet fever, later the redness extended to back and clavicle, except region of sternum, while the eruption was spreading on lower half of body the upper half was recovering; S. of l. hand, increasing to bursting of skin, with itching; hands, wrists, penis, scrotum, hypogastrium and part of thighs, prepuce swollen and distended by fluid, almost transparent, phimosis, hiding the glans; hands and wrists, with itching and pimples, then vesicles, which became filled with yellowish serum, swelling of head and eyelids so that he could not see, the itching spreading over body, < scalp and privates, desquamation of wrists, which had exuded much serum, and he was cured of a dartre which he had had on wrists for more than six years; S. on little finger, later another on thumb, increasing till it covered lower joints of thumb and finger, changing to a callus, which fell off as a scab; on tibia and loins, with induration.

Erysipelas, with high fever; E. appearing below l. eye at 1 P.M.; that burst and secreted a slimy liquid; on face, the inflammation spread over forehead and into scalp, eyes closed, ears, cheeks and lips swollen and pitting on pressure, features not recognizable; on limbs and face, sometimes on whole body, with pruritus, tingling, smarting, with stinging and burning vesicles and blebs crowded together upon a red and swollen base, when these broke and dried, then eczematous crusts, sufficient irritation caused ulceration; of face, with sweat of face; a sort of phlegmonous E. of face and head; vesicular, on face and hands, with fever.

Eruption about mouth and chin; near l. corner of mouth; scurfy, over body; scurf on face; crusty, near l. wing of nose and below nose; burning itching, on hands; painful, burning, itching, < scrotum, prepuce, eyelids and eyes, with swelling of these parts and yellowish blisters that here and there become confluent and discharge, also vesicles on arms and loins, many of these large pustules or ulcers slowly suppurate, are surrounded by red areola, become extended and heal slowly, the small confluent pustules rapidly dry and desquamate after a few days. Tetter around mouth and nose, at times with jerking and itching, burning pain. Red phlegmonous patch over l. hip. Pemphigous eruption followed the eschar, such as might be caused by nitrate of silver. Eruption similar to urticaria. Desquamation of face; from cheeks, then heat and roughness; from affected parts, with itching of l. hand.

Pimples below lower lip; on r. side of chest and half of back, with pain as if sore and raw and sticking extending outward; hard, on hands, with burning-biting itching; inflamed, above middle joint of ring finger, with itching burning pain, that sometimes changes into a slow stich, not > rubbing and scratching; like the itch, on inner surface of wrist and lower part of cheek, with burning itching and smarting after scratching; coalescing into blisters filled with yellow watery fluid, with itching, < after midnight, only > rubbing with something rough till blisters are opened; miliary, on scalp, forehead, face and mouth, with biting itching; red and warm, on hand, itching next morning, then vesicles, a cluster of vesicles on cheek, scratching aggravated the inflammation and caused watery discharge; itching red, behind ears and on neck, next day eyelids and face red and swollen, cervical glands tumid and tender, syncope, later the rash extended over face and hands and between toes and thighs, with burning itching, later the papules became vesicles, which coalesced on face and burst, emitting an acrid serum, which formed a crust so dense that movement of facial and buccal muscles was painful, nose, lids and lips swollen, afterwards unusual irritability (to flannel, etc.) of skin and hypersensitiveness to cold air. Tough pimple at bend of r. elbow; above l. nipple; and deep-seated and irritable to touch, above l. nipple, scratching caused redness, burning and smarting. Deep-seated and irritable to touch on upper lip, opposite l. posterior bicuspid; on median side of nates; on nates, < median line, near as coccygus; on dorsum of l. hand, over smallest metacarpal bone, preceded by stinging.

Vesicles below lower end of r. ulna; on fingers, wrists, bare arms and back of hand; in centre of red spots; between fingers, then over whole hand, with swelling; on cheeks, with itching burning; on hands and wrists and about eyes, with itching burning of skin, < morning, with smarting and redness of eyes, photophobia, obscured vision, headache through eyes and temples, dulness, sleepiness, urine copious and pale, next day tongue furred, appetite not good, and after midnight colic, rumbling and griping during repose, with sulphuretted eructations and discharge of flatus, rheumatic pain in lumbar region and through hips, nausea, loathing of food in morning on rising, amelioration after moving about during the day, later new spots of eruption while the rest was drying up; on different parts, then desquamation; on inner sides of knees, with red burning spots and stripes; some containing milky, others clear fluid, becoming confluent, then desquamation; containing yellowish serous fluid, on r. cheek, with swelling, inflammation, itching and burning, repeated next spring; yellowish, on palm, with itching, then soreness to touch; watery, below border of lower lip, with smarting and prickling around mouth; watery, on l. hand, with swelling; as in chicken-pox, after too hot a bath; filled with opaque matter, on r. hand; dark, with thick cover, on back of a finger, next day one on l. wrist, later burning and itching, afterwards one of irregular shape on back of last phalanx of r. thumb, with so thick a roof as to be almost transparent, as if the effusion had taken place in lowest layer of rete mucosum, later vesicles on other parts of hands and fingers, all itching and burning, in flat, dark brown patches; exuding a turbid serum, beginning at r. mastoid process, spreading over face, neck and upper part of chest, then on hands and fingers, with burning and itching, < scratching, and with swelling, not pitting on pressure; in a thick mass, on a pale red base, on r. wrist, some brownish, glistening from the dried exudations that were pressed out as limpid water; discharging a clear lymph that dried to a yellow glistening pellicle, in a band around arm, the V. more isolated towards hand, some on outer margin of hand were clear and without areola; V. and papules in a red stripe above and below knee, a group of papules on chin, a few of which had reached the vesicular stage, skin beneath one eye pulled and red; burning, about mouth and nostrils; burning, filled with water, with redness of whole body, except scalp, palms and soles; itching, on chest; itching, on an elevation in l. palm, discharging serum.

Heart.—Stinging in region in afternoon, extending to apex of l. scapula, with frequent desire to inspire deeply, which increases the pain. Pain; in region, with pain and heaviness in l. upper arm and < elbow; sharp and deep, in l. side; heavy, in region on deep inspiration; burning, in region at times. Sensation as if it suddenly ceased to beat, then throbbing through chest. Action increased by ascending stairs. Palpitation after supper and after conversation.

Pulse.—Rapid.

Neck.—Pain in nape; cramplike, in l. side of nape.

Back.—Pain; in afternoon and evening; running down; in middle; in scapula; under scapula; under and below apex of l. S.; near inferior angle of r. S.; between S. when standing; near dorsal spine; in l. side of dorsal spine, extending half way to spine; sharp, at l. scapula. Shooting from dorsal spine half way to l. side; midway between dorsal spine and l. side on beginning to walk in the room, then in a spot immediately below it, in loin. Pain in loins; at dorsum of l. ilium; with fatigue; burning, in a spot near top of r. sacro-iliac symphysis; sore, at junction of sacrum with l. ilium, < stooping and rising, later pain in loins and lameness as if strained, < sudden motion of body, the lameness > 2 P.M., then pulsation in muscles of nates.

Extremities.—Twitching of r. arm and leg. Pain in

r. arm, thumb and knee; r. arm and legs; r. arm, thumb and leg, and in l. foot and ankle; l. arm, thumb and leg; l. arm and foot; elbows, arms and l. knee; r. arm, hand and knee in afternoon; rending, anteriorly in ligaments of ankles, running down insteps, alternating with gnawing in internal condyle of l. humerus, then when riding aching, heaviness and crawling through lower limbs.

Upper Extremities.—Pain in shoulders and scapulae; in r. shoulder on waking, > rest; in l. shoulder and along arm to elbow. Arm, pain at inner side; in l., and in hand and thumb; in l., and in l. fingers; remittent, near insertion of r. deltoid; bruised feeling in l.; feeling in r. as if muscles were glued together and sore to touch; numbness in l. after lying down in bed, with crawling. Upper arm, stinging on inner side of r.; aching in l.; pain at inner side just above r. elbow; strained sensation in l.

Aching in elbows; in l. wrist; in ulnar half of r. wrist; rheumatic, above back of wrist late in evening. Pain in l. hand; at ulnar side of dorsum of hand; in l. fingers. Numbness of r. hand.

Lower Extremities.—Weariness in afternoon, with aching in bones; W. < moving, > lying, with aching in calves as after long walking or standing. Crawling-tingling. Aching in r. hip-joint when walking, causing lameness. Sticking at inner part of r. knee on stepping. Rending pain in flexure of l. knee when standing. Sharp pain in knees, running down l. leg, on rising from a seat.

Legs.—Pain in r. and in toes; at inner side of l. at each step, then sharp pain at inner side of r. knee at every step; muscular, < pressure and in thighs; drawing, almost a cramp, in r. calf. Rheumatic pains all day, with aching in them; R. pains in afternoon, < r.; anteriorly in tibia; in anterior surface of tibiae in evening. Weakness through the day, < ascending and descending stairs; in evening on ascending and descending stairs. Heaviness in r. calf as if flesh would fall from bones.

Pain in l. foot, with insensibility of leg; P. in l. instep, at upper anterior part of tarsus, at night. Tenderness of feet; with sensitiveness and shooting in corns. Pain in r. little toe, < corn on outside of it.

Skin.—Vesicles on neck near jaw; on r. side of neck, near jaw.

Itching; in face and r. ear; in whiskers on l. side of face; l. upper eyelid, groins and various parts of trunk, limbs, face and neck; abdomen, near l. side; between scapulae; between spine and l. scapula; anteriorly on l. shoulder and anteriorly on l. loin; at right of middle of sternum, then at l. scapula, then on r. side of face; bends of elbows and to left of sternum, over fifth rib; posteriorly below elbows; backs of hands; legs in evening; lower limbs in evening, on undressing and afterwards; calves at night and in morning; at night when awake, > scratching, which produced burning; buttocks before and after getting into bed; limbs, < night on retiring and in morning after rising; about knees, and < on calves, at night on undressing, after scratching minute red pimples, later pustules, afterwards almost the whole surface from thighs to feet covered with this nettle-rash; of legs when exposed to air on undressing and on rising in morning, > warmth of bed, after scratching redness and little sores which heal rapidly, on calves and about knees, < posteriorly; in a spot, suddenly changing to another locality; stinging; stinging, in various parts; pricking, on buttocks when exposed to the air during stool.

Clinical.—Prurigo, < cold, > warmth; excessive itching on undressing. Chronic urticaria. (Compare Rhus tox., Caust.)

Sleep.—Yawning. Sleepiness at 11 A.M.; in afternoon and evening after eating heartily; with desire to lie down. Sleep restless, disturbed, with short naps and unpleasant fancies even when awake; R., with many kinds of absurd dreams, constant magnifying of trifles disturbed him; R., broken and unrefreshing or disturbed by vivid dreams, he jumps and tumbles in bed, walks about the room and talks in sleep. Restlessness latter part of night; in bed at night, with discomfort. Woke about 2 A.M.

Dreams.—Of being made angry. Of vexatious conduct of a strange servant. Disagreeable; about 6 A.M.; of burglars after 4 A.M.; and sleep unrefreshing. Solicitous, in morning. Of danger from floods; of D. and of disagreeable and wicked persons. Of fear and of hostile conduct of strangers towards each other. Horrid, of dead persons returning to life. Terrific, of autopsies, murdered men running about naked, falling, being drowned, etc., afterwards pleasant. Of murders at 5.30, just before waking. Indistinctly remembered in latter part of night; indistinctly remembered, of being in a beautiful country, of being disappointed. Of seeing Queen Victoria. Of seeing friends. Of loving. Of hope and of friendly conduct of acquaintances towards him.

Fever.—Sensitive to cold during the day. Chilliness; down back on motion; running up and down back and down calves in afternoon on motion; of lower limbs in forenoon; feet during the day, while face felt hot and pulsated.

Heat; towards morning; in morning on waking, with frontal headache, heat of skin, full and rapid pulse, tongue coated white, then coldness; in cheeks; l. cheek; r. side of nose and adjacent part of cheek; in palms; palms in evening; back and face, with smarting in face, then chilliness, < back, with pain in abdomen, nausea and shooting near middle of chest anteriorly.

Sweat in morning on waking; on lower limbs in latter part of night; cold, clammy, on legs at night, then symptoms of severe cold, as scraping in throat, with tenacious mucus, cough, headache and obstruction of nose.

Ruta.

A tincture is made of the fresh plant of Ruta graveolens, L.

Allies.—Its rheumatic and skin symptoms are closely like those of Rhus tox.; compare also Arn. and Puls.

Generalities.—Looked intoxicated, eyes and face red. Bruised pain in all parts on which he lies (Arn., Cic., Dros.); on touch of painful parts, < hips and bones of legs. Nervousness. Restlessness; evenings, with headache and heat; in whole body after dinner, with pressure upon brain and great activity of nervous system; so that he does not know where to lay his legs, with heaviness (Rhus t.). Sensation as if he had not slept enough. Weakness; in morning; in afternoon, > walking, with sleepiness; in evening after playing with children; on sitting down after a short walk, > rising and walking (Rhus t.), with bruised feeling in limbs and pain in sacrum and loins; after a meal, > open air, with heaviness and sleepiness; when sitting, with indolence; with heaviness. Faintness.

Clinical.—General feeling of soreness as from a bruise. General lameness after sprains, especially of wrists and ankles. Peritonitis, the result of bruises. Neuralgias; sciatic and other forms. Pains, especially in the wrist, in cold, wet weather, > motion (Rhus t.).

Mind.—Fretful; in afternoon and evening, melancholy, dissatisfied with life; and mistrustful; and irresolute. Dissatisfied, especially with what he did himself, and inclined to weep. Inclined to contradict. Quarrelsome, inclined to anger and vexation. Anxiety, despondency and fear; A. all day as if he had done something wrong, if only the door opened he feared that some one had come to arrest him. Indifference; with discomfort and disinclination to work. Stupefaction. Confusion of ideas. Thought and memory slow. Frequent loss of thought, he did mechanically and at the wrong time things that had become easy from frequent repetition.

Head.—Pain in brain in morning after rising; P. from reading a little; tensive, in brain; stupefying burning compressing, externally; confused. Oppression. Dulness; with heaviness and with tension in forehead; a kind of loss of memory. Heaviness. Uneasiness. Vertigo as if he would fall forward in morning on rising; as if he would fall to the right when walking in open air; sudden, when sitting, then heat of cheeks.

Forehead.—Sticking in l. eminence; in l. bone when reading; < coughing; above l. brow, with pressure; intermittent boring, in r. when sitting. Gnawing. Pain above root of nose; drawing, in r. side; sticking drawing, extending from frontal to temporal bone; rhythmic, in sinuipit; stupefying, in sides, with cramplike tearing on malar-bone. Dulness in brain in evening before sleep, < morning on waking from sleep that was too sound, with throbbing pain. Heaviness.

Tearing in temporal bones. Pain as from a fall in periosteum of temporal bones, extending to occiput. Sticking drawing externally on vertex. Tensive drawing pain as from a blow or thrust, externally on sides. (Tearing on r. parietal bone, > evening, next morning a boil painful to touch as if suppurating.) Pain in occiput; with heaviness and tension; beating in side.

Biting-itching ulcer on l. side, and one towards nape. (Sticking in scalp, with tearing, then a pimple, at first painful to touch.) Itching behind l. ear, > scratching, with soreness; biting l., < l. side and occiput, > scratching, but returning.

Eyes.—Staring, with contracted pupils. Pain in r. like a pressure, with obscuration of vision as if one had looked too long and intently. Pressure on inner surface of l. in open air, with lachrymation. Weary pain when reading. Fatigue as after reading too long. Heat in evening by the light, with aching while reading. Lachrymation (Senega).

Pupils contracted. Cramp in lower lid, then lachrymation. Itching in lower lid and inner canthi, that after rubbing become biting; (l. in lids in evening, with biting). Mucus in canthi in morning. Sticking in canthi in morning, with biting as from dust. Burning in outer canthi, with smarting. Pressure on balls, with spasm of lower lid, which was sometimes drawn upward and sometimes towards inner canthus. Bruised pain in orbicular cartilages. Twitching of brows; of lower part. Pressure deep in orbits; on upper margin, with tearing in ball. Vision weak as if eyes were strained mornings; dim; (V. of fitting points).

Clinical.—Valuable in weakness of accommodation, especially in near-sighted people when there are heat and aching in and over the eyes, eyes feeling like balls of fire. Asthenopia from sewing and reading.

Ears.—Itching sticking within r. Scraping pressure as with a blunt piece of wood. Pain as from pressure. Ticking, hot pressure, < inserting finger. Sensation as if something in it rolled back and forth on shaking head.

Nose.—Pain in upper part as if a plug were forced transversely through it, with scraping and pressure. Sharp pressure on root. Sneezing; with yawning and shivering. (Bleeding); (blowing out of blood).

Face.—Pinching in l. cheek. Biting, goutlike pain in cheeks. Pain as from a blow below mastoid process. Numb pain as after a blow, in bones, extending into teeth and lower jaw. Papules on lips. Itching in corners of lips.

Mouth.—Digging in lower teeth. Bleeding of gums on brushing or picking teeth. Pain on inner surface of r. upper gum as if sore and swollen, < touch, with drawing sticking. Tongue red and swollen; red on margin. Pain in hard palate, < when not swallowing. Soreness of velum palati when swallowing, with pressure. Dry; and glutinous at times. Salivation. Taste wooden to food.

Throat.—Cutting extending to chest when walking, < clavicle and axilla, < walking rapidly. Pain.

Stomach.—Little appetite; for dinner. Aversion to meat and vegetables. Thirst for cold water in afternoon; unquenchable, for cold water in afternoon, he drinks much and frequently without being distressed thereby. Eruptions; odorless; empty; tasting of food after eating and drinking. Hiccough during the customary smoke; with nausea. Nausea on stooping; on beginning to eat; in pit of stomach, with desire for stool, momentarily > emission of flatus; with scraping and gnawing in umbilical region; with stupefying headache, < r. side of forehead, and heat in face. Violent vomiting, with vomiting of blood; violent, painful V., with spasmodic distortion of head, trunk and limbs.

(Stitches in pit.) Sticking tearing in pit. Gripping in r. side of epigastric region after bread and butter. Pain. Tension, > drinking milk (Rhus t.). Gnawing and emptiness; G. in pit at night and in morning; burning G. Epigastric region sensitive. Uneasiness. Warmth.

Clinical.—Dyspepsia resulting from straining the muscles across the stomach. Dyspepsia, every attempt to eat meat is followed by distress and eruption like nettle-rash (Puls.).

Abdomen.—Distention in evening. Rumbling and gurgling. Emission of flatus, with sensation as if stool would follow; easy emission; offensive. Sticking extending upward on sitting down. Gripping in morning on rising, with eructations. Pressure, then emptiness. Sick sensation, then two stools, soft, but difficult on account of relaxation and inactivity of rectum. Heaviness. Agreeable coolness, and in chest. Burning.

Tense oppression in upper A. and chest as if satiated, as soon as he eats anything. Gnawing in hepatic region. Pressure anteriorly in hepatic region near pit of stomach, causing restlessness. Pushing cutting gripping as from flatus, in sides. Corrosive burning in l. side. Sticking jerks from below umbilicus to mons veneris on expiration, taking away the breath, > hard pressure. Sticking in muscles of umbilical fossa, obliging him to retract abdomen. Tensive pressure extending from umbilicus through hypogastrum as if menses would come on, at night, < pressure. Coldness internally in umbilical region, with sensation as if something were becoming loose. Rumbling in hypogastrum. Pinching in hypogastrum, with aching and discomfort, as from taking cold. Sharp burning pressure in r. groin.

Rectum.—Evacuation of blood during stool. Tearing stitches when sitting. Tearing when not urinating, and in urethra. Frequent urging, with prolapsus and emission of flatus, stooping and still more crouching down caused protrusion, later constant protrusion. Constant desire for stool, which is soft, then dragging and urging.

Clinical.—Prolapsus of the rectum. Pruritus of the rectum.

Stool.—Soft. Large and difficult, as from loss of peristaltic action of rectum. A few hard feces, almost like sheep-dung. Delayed.

Urinary Organs.—Pressure in region of neck of bladder like a painful closure of it, after micturition. Full sensation in bladder on every step after urinating, with feeling as if it moved up and down. Urging, with pain over kidneys; U, but scanty micturition, then dragging as if more should pass, but it does not; U, even if there were only a drop, during and after micturition burning in genitals and long-continued pressure; U, only before daylight. Frequent and copious micturition. Urine deep yellow. Urine scanty, after micturition dragging in bladder.

Clinical.—Irritable bladder, constant urging to urinate, forcible retention seems to paralyze the bladder. Incontinence at night (Puls.).

Sexual Organs.—Emissions at night, without amorous dreams. Desire increased. Violent pain in evening, then discharge of blood from vagina and miscarriage. Bearing-down pains in womb. Miscarriage, then slow recovery; M. of dead children at about seven months, uterus well contracted, after two days fever, delirium and spasms, then exhaustion and vomiting of bile, for five days partial intoxication, with contracted pupils, swollen coated tongue, slow pulse, delirium, spasms of arms, vomiting, painful tension in epigastric region, abdomen soft and painless, uterus contracted though lochia soon ceased, later lochia returned, long-continued slowness of pulse and weakness. (Compare Tanacetum.)

Respiratory Organs.—Bruised pain in larynx. Hacking cough waking him about midnight, with scraping in upper part of chest and with slight, infrequent expectoration. Forcible cough in evening after lying down, with expectoration of stringy mucus, C. several times in night, when most violent it seemed as if stomach turned over and as if he would vomit. Respiration impeded, with sensation as if whole body were pressed full. Dyspnoea and shortness of breath; from fulness of chest.

Chest.—Tremulous twitching in last r. true rib. Stitches in sternum on motion; S. on ascending steps, with arrest of breath, causing anxiety; between l. nipple and axilla, < inspiration; internally in l. nipple, < inspiration; oppressive, in sternum, on inspiration and expiration when sitting; burning, like pains in an ulcer, in morning, < beneath sternum. Dull thrust in l. side. Pain beneath l. short ribs at night on waking, < pressure and arresting breathing; P. as from a burning-biting ulcer under r. axilla. Gnawing in l. side; in r. side, with biting and burning; intermittent G. or picking on one of the costal cartilages, above ensiform cartilage, at night. Pressure on sternum internally and externally; on sixth true rib, < expiration and touch; on last ribs at night, dream that some one was encircling him tightly, which woke him. Painful throbbing or picking beneath l. short ribs. Corrosive biting drawing in l. side. Internal heat.

Pulse.—Rapid. Slow and small.

Neck.—Tension and pressure in nape and shoulders. Drawing in nape. Stiffness in morning.

Back.—Stitches in spine when sitting, with sudden anxiety. Tearing pulling-sticking. Pain; in evening, > exertion, with heaviness in limbs (Rhus t.). Pain in spine as if beaten and like lumbago (Arn.). Bruised pain extending along back when sitting, < l. side; in l. side when sitting, > standing and walking; in spine when sitting and walking, arresting breath; drawing, in spine, often arresting breath.

Scapulae.—Sticking at angle, extending to back, with pressure; drawing S. on tip on moving it, so that he must let arm hang down. Pain; between S. in afternoon; in dorsal vertebrae, as from a fall; drawing, arresting breath. Pressure internally on r.; on r., with shivering.

Lumbar Region.—Painful jerking in spine opposite pit of stomach, < pressure, when there was aching beneath last short ribs extending into abdomen and impeding respiration. Tearing waking him at 4 A.M., > 9 A.M. Digging as if bruised, just above sacrum when sitting after a long walk, > continued walking, returning when standing still and sitting (Rhus t.). Bruised pain in vertebrae; in coccyx, extending to sacrum; when sitting, with tension across hypogastrium. Pain in posterior process of ilium like a forcing forward, > pressure, with sensation as if something were pressed outward. Drawing pain opposite liver, < inspiration; in region of kidneys extending along loins, when sitting. Pressure on l. lower part of sacrum; on l. side of os innominatum, near spine. Beating on posterior margin of l. ilium, extending over hip to inner surface of thigh and almost to knee, after a long walk, > pressure upon ilium; intermittent, in anterior spine of l. ilium; intermittent painful, above l. ilium, > pressure, but returning.

Clinical.—Rheumatism of the dorsal muscles.

Extremities.—Constant, not convulsive motions. Cramplike tearing, now in upper, now in lower. Bruised pain in joints and hip-bones so that he cannot bend. Weakness when sitting, when hands lie upon lap they are so comfortable that he does not wish to raise them; W., with heaviness and aversion to work; of hands and feet, she could hold nothing firmly and when walking could not stand firmly; of lower, with heaviness of them, and with painful jerks, beginning in middle of upper arms, when the pain reaches the elbow it extends down fingers and seems to be in shafts of bones. Heaviness.

Clinical.—Rheumatism of the wrists and ankles, with puffiness. Dislocation of the bones of the wrist and of the tarsus. Synovitis from strains. Ganglion on flexor tendons. Bursa of the wrist. Glanglia on wrist (Benz. ac.).

Upper Extremities.—Sticking in shoulders. Sprained pain in r. shoulder; in shoulder-joints, > drawing and turning arm upward, returning on letting arm hang down or lie upon anything. Tearing in bones of arms. Tearing in r. elbow and neighboring parts, extending to lower end of humerus, on stretching out arm it is a rather pressive pain. Pain in elbow, < stretching arm; in l. as from a blow, with weakness of arm. Cramplike drawing in biceps. Shaft of ulna seems bruised. Forearm, cramplike tearing in l.; paralytic pressure on outer part of r.; painful drawing in middle of anterior surface of r.

Wrist, tearing in r., < violent motion; pain in l. as if broken; bruised pain in bones of wrist and backs of hands. Veins of hands swollen after eating. Cramplike pain transversely across hands. Fingers, tearing in l. middle, < middle joint and middle phalanx; sore and ulcerative pain in l. ring; bruised pain during rest; pressive drawing in middle joints of three r. middle; painful drawing in last joints of two last, at night.

Lower Extremities.—Gait unsteady. Falling from side to side when walking, legs will not support him, no power or steadiness in thighs. He cannot walk at first on rising from a seat, he falls back again, bones seem broken, thighs refuse their service on account of weakness and pain. Weakness, walking difficult, and weight in legs (Rhus t.).

Thigh.—Sticking as if ulcerated, above r. knee when walking and standing. Bruised pain on stretching lower limbs; posteriorly above knee on motion; in bones about hips on motion; in middle of femora on motion; on anterior surface, with pain on touch; so that he could hardly walk. Cramplike throbbing pain in middle of r., then in both, then on outer side below l. knee. Burning pain on upper and inner surface when sitting, worse on waking in bed. Pain at night as if grasped. Pressure in middle of outer part of r. (Contractive and spasmodically drawing pain extending from middle to hip-joint and thence to sacrum.)

Knee.—Trembling, with weakness of feet. Spasmodic contractions in hollows on rising from a seat. Weariness of l. after walking a little; sinking down on rising from a seat and on beginning to walk. Paralytic heaviness, > walking, with necessity to move feet.

Tremulous heaviness of legs. Pressure in middle of outer part of l.; on upper and inner surface of l. Legs give out on ascending and descending stairs. Pain consisting of throbbing and hacking, as in an ulcer, anteriorly on l. ankle. Cramp in l. sole. Slow stitches from back of foot up tibia; stitches in l. then r. heel when sitting. Pain in l. sole when sitting; in bones of feet so that he cannot step heavily, with heat; burning and biting, in bones of feet during rest. Toes, cramplike sticking in r. little when sitting, < moving toes; burning tearing in l. great, < pressure; burning pain as after a bruise, where a foreign body had been forced in; painful drawing.

Skin.—Inflammation, with swelling of hands. Red swollen stripes from root of nose to frontal eminences. Redness of hands, with warmth and sensation as if scalded, later covered with water blisters. < finger-tips, later between the vesicles dark redness with bluish tinge, afterwards the swelling spread posteriorly over arm to elbow, afterwards epidermis of hands peeled off, even where there had been no blisters (Rhus t.). Erysipelas of hands and forehead. Corroded and blistered.

Stitches in arms changing to biting itching, with heat and redness. Fornication on thigh upon which he was not lying. Hot tickling prickling in sole. Sticking-itching tickling in l. palm.

Itching over whole body, in morning on rising, > scratching; l. on one side of face; l. upper arm; sticking, between scapulae, not > rubbing; l. on hands, with redness, then vesicles with red areola and filled with transparent liquid, most v. between fingers, somewhat like itch-pustules, the itching < night, vesicles became confluent, large phlyctenules formed, then desquamation, then vesicles in palms, itching on great toes and vesicles like those on hands, next year the effects of contact again with the leaves were more intense, hands looked as if they had been boiled and were completely excoriated, with fever (Rhus t.).

Sleep.—Yawning, < noon, even after dinner; with stretching, then sleepiness; with stretching of legs and < arms; with fever; incomplete and not satisfying. Sleepiness in forenoon; after dinner; overpowering, with heaviness, and head seemed befogged. Sound sleep immediately on lying down, so that it was difficult to arouse her.

But little sleep, with restlessness. Sleep, with partial consciousness when reading after eating, he woke with a cry of fright on slightest touch. Starting up in fright during afternoon nap, with jerking of feet. Restless sleep, with fretful dreams; R. sleep, with copious micturition three times; with waking every hour and difficult falling asleep again. Frequent waking as if it were time to rise; F. waking, with restlessness, nausea, painful twisting about umbilicus, at times it seemed as if something arose to pit of throat and as if water would accumulate in mouth. Awake a long time in night from confusion in head. Unrefreshing sleep from 3 till 4 A.M., then sleeplessness, with heaviness of head. Dreams vivid; and confused; constant fatiguing D.

Fever.—Chilliness; creeping, < up back; internal, which she always had just before menstruation; shaking, with gooseflesh, yawning and stretching. Shivering frequently during the day; S. of whole body, with coldness of hands and feet, internal and external warmth of face, dulness of head, as in catarrhal fever, with thirst which was > drinking once; over back and chest. Coldness from spine downward; running up and down back; creeping over half of head and face; of limbs; hands and feet; internally in arms; (internally, almost like a falling asleep, on inner side of legs).

Heat; in afternoon, < face, with feverish restlessness, anxiety as if he would die, that took away his breath, white coated tongue, that seemed rough and dry, without thirst; with yawning; in flushes. Heat in head; about 11 P.M., with feverish restlessness of whole body and anxiety; beneath l. eye; below l. ear about 10 A.M.; in face, with redness; in feet; beneath external malleolus when standing.

Sweat in afternoon when walking in open air; general after walking; on vertex; on back of nose, with heat of nose and cheeks and redness of face, without thirst; (cold, on face in morning in bed, with redness of cheeks).

Sabadilla.

A tincture is made of the seeds of (Veratrum Sabadilla, Schl.), Schœnoaulon officinale, A. Gr. (Cevadilla seeds).

Allies.—Like its near relative, Veratrum album, it is an acrid emetic and cathartic, with a very decided action on the nose; it seems to lack the violent thirst of Verat. and in some respects more resembles Puls. (Relief in the open air is a strongly marked character throughout the symptomatology.)

Generalities.—Convulsions. Jerking of upper lip, then of hands, fingers or thighs, < l. side, and always from r. to l. Starting at the least noise. Trembling. Sticking, now here, now there; S. under skin, < about fingers and toes; burning crawling, here and there; beating, in several parts, almost like pressure, sometimes pinching, returning after four or seven beats of pulse. Pain in all bones, < joints, as if scraped and cut, all day (see Ph. ac.); < r. arm, < cold, transiently > moving arm rapidly and in warmth and at night. Boring behind l. ear in parotid, lower jaw and sub-maxillary glands. Bruised pain in various parts; B. feeling, she would like to lie all the time, walking and standing are very distressing. Many pains are felt in r., then l. side, or extend from r. to l., for instance, headache, pain in side, pain in limbs.

Indisposition without pain. Discomfort towards evening and falling asleep, worried in sleep by all sorts of strange thoughts, no images in his dreams. Pulsation in all vessels in evening before sleep. Anxious restlessness. Weakness; in morning on waking, with pain as if she had lain on blocks of wood; in forenoon while sitting, till he falls asleep, when disturbed he starts up in fright, then heaviness of head; > lying down, with heaviness; with desire to lie and sleep all the time; sudden, with closure of eyes; sudden, in the street after a short walk, with dulness of head as if he had taken liquor, and closure of eyes. Aggravation in last hours of forenoon, especially pains in joints, weakness and drowsiness; of pain by cold, with discomfort. Amelioration when lying.

Clinical.—Convulsive symptoms, especially in children with worms. General aggravation at the same hour each day. General sensitiveness to cold, which aggravates.

Mind.—She lay almost speechless and unconscious or else sprang up with anxious restlessness and ran about the room, pulling at the pit of stomach and at neck, face sunken, pale and anxious. He imagined strange things about his own body, that it had shrunk like that of a dead person, that his stomach was corroded that the scrotum was swollen, etc., but he knew that it was all fanciful. Mind excited, but disposition cold, afterwards understanding depressed, he comprehends with difficulty, but disposition is more easily excited. Rage. Vexed; and inclined to be vehement. Gloomy, as if he were the greatest criminal. Absorbed in reverie all day. Indisposed to work. Cheerful. Thought difficult and caused headache, otherwise inclined to laugh at everything, afterwards indifferent.

Clinical.—It has been found useful for imaginary diseases, that is to say, a mental condition in which the patient imagines he has various troubles.

Head.—Sticking, < forehead. Pain from fixed attention; P. < walking, on returning to the house screwing pain beginning in r. side of head and extending over whole head after going to bed; with heaviness so that he could scarcely raise it; itching, < forehead; in different parts of brain as if pressed against sharp corners, in evening when reading; pressing asunder;

P. inward from all sides. Dull and heavy, as if he must hold it all the time. Confusion. Stupefaction. Vertigo; in morning after rising, greater when sitting than when walking; in afternoon till after dinner, > resting head on table, with nausea; on going to bed; < rising from a seat; greater when sitting than when standing; as if he would faint, with obscuration of vision.

Forehead.—Sticking in l. eminence; tearing, externally on l. side. Pain; above l. eye, then also in temple; in sinuiput, > pressure of palm on forehead, heat in F., then coldness in hairy scalp, even the hair felt cold to hand, as if cold water had been poured over head; in sinuiput and temples, with dizziness and occasional stitches in back, then drawing; in skin, ascending to vertex, with vertigo in F.; tensive, with pressure; above eyes, as if brain would fall forward; as if a thread had been drawn from middle of F. to occiput above temple, leaving burning; beating, in r., then l. side; beating, in r., afterwards more in upper part, then headache all day; like heaviness, next day in whole head, > staring or reflecting. Heaviness in forepart of r. side, extending towards l. side and finally over whole head, < motion, when it is a sort of vertigo. Stupefying oppression, causing a reeling sensation and making him stagger. Dull sensation as from a blow, not exactly a pain, with heaviness of limbs.

Temples.—Sticking; in r.; externally in l.; and in scalp. Pain; in l.; pressure towards r. bone; P. outward in r.; downward in l.; P. extending towards vertex and thence to lowest part of occiput. Painful beating in l.

Pain in r. side of vertex. Pain in r. hemisphere, extending to l. lower molars. Sticking in r. side of occiput, in region of lamboidal suture, when walking in open air. Pain as if something were thrust from upper part of occiput through brain to forehead. Pressure forward in O., with vertigo. Pain in l. side of O. as if a wound were pressed. Burning pain in scalp. Tension of scalp, < during fever. Itching of scalp; on vertex; when perspiring during a walk, with crawling; crawling, > scratching, with burning.

Clinical.—Sudden vertigo on waking at night, sometimes when rising from stooping. Headaches > eating.

Eyes.—Surrounded by blue rings. Painful drawing upward in r. E. and temple. Intermittent corrosive burning in l., returning after a few pulsations. Lachrymation as soon as pain is felt in any part of body; L. when walking in open air, when looking at a bright light, coughing or yawning. Pressure upon balls, < looking upward, > looking down. Hard mucus in external canthi about noon. Margins of lids red and sensation in eyes as if inflammation would arise.

Vomiting of a clear, slimy liquid. Sticking in l. side of pit. Digging on l. side above pit, with pain on touch. Intermittent pinching in middle of epigastrium, between pit of S. and vertebrae. Pain, with bloated sensation; P. as if a sore spot were pressed, below pit, on pressure and inspiration. Sensitiveness of epigastric region to touch, with pressure as from a stone. Pain in S. and abdomen as from a stone, with digging in abdomen. Tightness in pit and chest, < inspiration. Sensation just below pit as if S. were turning inside out. Indications of heartburn. Burning pain; corrosive, when walking. Burning; in region of S. and liver; after waking, with suffocative breathing, she thought she was relieved by pressing chest with hands, but she was not; extending to pit of throat. Emptiness.

Clinical.—Cardialgia, with distention. The gastric symptoms are generally characterized by absence of thirst and longing for sweats, general relief after eating. Cutting colic, especially from worms. Vomiting of round worms, feeling of worm in pharynx.

Abdomen.—Rumbling; with movements; with emission of flatus, then urging and stool, in half an hour another stool; with urging, then scanty, difficult stool, after half an hour a copious, painless stool; with burning in it and tip of tongue and throat, then stool mixed with blood and burning in anus, then weakness and slumber for quarter of an hour, upon waking he felt extremely well; with pinching and stiches in region of bladder; then loose stool, after ten minutes again R., then copious loose stool; as if empty; intermittent R. and grunting. Pinching, then urging, but only flatus passes. Pain, and in anus. Burning; after stool, and in rectum; with ineffectual desire for stool; extending to mouth, with pyalism, the saliva appearing to be as hot as the heat in A., but it is not. Shuddering.

Hypochondria.—Sticking in r., < deep inspiration; sudden, in r. in afternoon when sitting, with lachrymation, he rises and twists in every direction, when the pain suddenly attacks l. side and the pains meet in the middle of the abdomen, > sitting down, stretching, bending the back forward and pressing hands into sides. Digging in r. lobe of liver, extending to l., with paroxysms of painful drawing transversely, and when pressing upon it pain as in an old sore, at the same time digging in forehead, > pressure. Scraping in hepatic region. Warmth in r. not far from pit of stomach.

Spasmodic contractions of l. side, with burning pain, he bent towards l. side. Sticking in l. side when sitting; S. in r. side, < hepatic region; in l. side as from a sore. Pinching around umbilicus, then sudden copious stool, which was soon followed by another, later fetid flatus. Burning around umbilicus. Intermittent sticking in l. groin in evening. Boring in hypogastrium, < one place in r. hip.

Rectum.—Pinching tearing. Crawling as from ascarides. Urging, then scanty difficult stool, then headache; U., with jerking drawing in pubic region, as if coming from spermatic cords and extending to hollow between thigh and scrotum, later noiseless emission of flatus, then shuddering across back; with croaking like frogs, after sitting a long time emission of much flatus, then enormous stool, then a second mixed with blood, then burning pain in abdomen for eight days, then itching which on rubbing changed into burning; sudden ineffectual.

Clinical.—Thread-worms. Numerous symptoms of worms, especially in children, with irritation of the external genitals.

Anus.—Burning pain before stool. Itching, then burning after scratching.

Stool.—Fermented and brown diarrhoea. Frequent, after a large dose, none for four days after a small dose. Difficult. Delayed. Omitted for several days, then first part hard, difficult at first, afterwards scanty.

Urinary Organs.—Urethra, dragging as far as tip when urinating; scalding when urinating; burning between micturitions, with urging. Constant desire to urinate, with burning in urethra, the urging < emission of a few drops, with drawing backward in urethra, this symptom > Pulsatilla. Urine like muddy water. Urine increased, mixed with blood. U. scanty.

Sexual Organs.—Drawing, beating, sticking, intermittent pain towards tip of penis. Painful erections in morning, without desire. Slow undulating motion in testicles all day, sometimes tingling from thighs to testicles, after which the undulation begins again and is more violent. Intermittent bruised pain in l. testicle towards evening. Insensible to excitement, he is nauseated by amorous caresses. Desire lost, later he can scarcely rid himself of voluptuous thoughts though the penis is relaxed.

Menses one day late, profuse and lasting one day longer than usual, three or four days before they appeared bearing down as if they would come on; M. which had just begun decreased, they reappear irregularly and more or less profusely.

Clinical.—Ovaritis, with cutting pain (Coloc.).

Respiratory Organs.—Hoarseness. Wheezing in trachea during inspiration when lying. Cough dry, at night, leaving him no rest, with heat and sweat; short, dry, from scraping in throat; short, in paroxysms, with lachrymation; violent. Breathing rapid; sud-

Fever.—Chilliness; all day; at 5 P.M., coldness over back as if dashed with cold water, chattering of teeth, the chill > only warm stove, then general warmth and sweat, < forehead, lower limbs simply warm, in night sticking in chest and cough; at 9.30 P.M., so that he went to bed, then shaking chill, later alternate heat and coldness, then oppression with sweat and chilliness; sensitive to cold; with goosekin and moderate thirst; then warmth and sensation as if creeping would set in, < thighs; internal, with internal heat of head; general, with shuddering over back; alternating with flashes of heat all day, < forenoon; shaking, waking him at 1 P.M., he feels warm, with prickling in forehead. Shuddering; intermittent, afterwards sudden heat, < face, feeling as if a hot breath came out of mouth and nose and heated neighboring parts, without thirst, with clearness in head and general comfort, the paroxysms of heat less frequent but longer than the shuddering. Chilliness over body, < limbs, with burning in face. Cold limbs; feet; forehead, with sudden heat in cheeks, without thirst.

Heat, with redness of face and heat in forehead, without thirst; H., especially internally, at night and in morning on rising, only hands, forehead, lips and cheeks felt hot, hands dry and rough, mouth dry and sticky in morning, moderate thirst, desire for juicy food; in flushes, with redness of face; febrile condition, sick feeling, restless anxiety, easy startings, short, hot breath, trembling, orgasm of blood, eyes weak and unsteady, irresistible sleepiness, yawning, shivering, nausea. Heat in various parts of skin, < face, < stooping, > washing with cold water, with pain, later tension, < l. side of face. Burning in l. temple and r. ear, without redness; corrosive burning point on vertex; internal heat in head and face as from wine; in face after warm drinks; external, in face, with redness; in face in flushes, with redness of cheeks; here and there in face towards evening, with stinging itching; burning in knees.

Sweat after midnight; S. on soles; on head and face, which were hot to touch, while rest of body was cold; on chest and in axilla towards evening after walking, with itching about nipple; cold, on forehead.

Clinical.—It has been used for intermittent fever, which recurs at the same hour; chills in evening, commencing in extremities, running up the body; heat in head and face, interrupted by chills; sweat commencing during the fever; hot sweat on the face.

Sabina.

A tincture is made of the fresh tips of the branches of Juniperus Sabina, L.

Allies.—Bell, Ipec., Millefol., Calc. c.

Generalities.—Jerklike sticking in anus and in forepart of thighs when walking. Burning pain in the swollen periosteum. Rheumatic pains. General sick feeling, as if he had danced and revelled several nights, with whimsical mood. Discomfort without ability to state what or where he suffers. Prefers to lie on l. side at night. Blood agitated in evening in bed, obliged to change his position constantly and cannot fall asleep. Restlessness in evening in bed, with anxiety, chill and gooseflesh, preventing sleep. Pulsation in all vessels, almost like a jerking. Weakness from a short walk; W., with trembling, drowsiness, yawning and giving way of feet; with sleeplessness after midnight, necessity to stretch and move feet. Heaviness and indolence of body, forcing him to lie down. Symptoms cease on going into open air, they return on entering house.

Mind.—Anxiety. Irritable nerves, > exercise in open air, music was intolerable, it penetrated marrow and bone, with pain in occiput, weakness and inclination to sweat, < on back. Vexed and weeping aloud. Ill-humored and hypochondriac; L., and sensation as if he had taken cold; and indifferent to a jest; and indisposed to speak, timorous, joyless, and all limbs weak. Indisposed to talk in morning when walking. Indifferent. Confusion of ideas. Memory weak. Insensible.

Head.—Sticking through brain, with pressure. Digging boring. Aching; through the day; < forehead, with dullness, as after intoxication; with congestion of conjunctivæ; drawing; beating, with heaviness and stupefaction. Pressure outward like a wind which rushes in suddenly and disappears slowly. Dullness; after dinner; < forehead, extending towards nose, in which it became a sort of drawing, causing sensation as if l. nostril would bleed. Heaviness till she goes to bed; H. as if she had taken much spirits, in forenoon. Semi-intoxication. Vertigo on rising, she was obliged to lie down again; V., with obscuration of vision; with stupefaction; with orgasm and heat in head; with weakness as if he would fall over and as if his eyes would close; as if he would fall; as if he would fall forward, when standing.

Forehead.—Smarting stabbing in r. eminence, deep into brain. Boring behind r. eminence, in coronal suture. Pain in l. side; above r. temple; in r. side of sineiput; in r. eminence, with tearing; raging; stupefying; as if skin were fast to skull, on motion, she could scarcely wrinkle it; drawing, then in occiput; drawing, in F. and temples, only in the daytime. Sudden pressing asunder in r. eminence and temple, disappearing gradually, recurring frequently. Painful pressure in l. eminence, affecting eyeball, which feels compressed. Sudden pressure inward in l. eminence.

Temples.—Pain; circumscribed; extending outward in l. Painful stricture. Pressure inward in r., with sticking in l. frontal eminence, coming and going suddenly. Pressure outward in r. Drawing from r. to forehead; painful, in l. on closing eyes, with painful pressure on l. upper eyelid.

Pressure under vertex at dinner. Vertex sensitive to touch and when touched pain in head. Sticking darting into l. hemisphere. Tearing in r. hemisphere from occiput to forehead. Pain in morning as if mastoid processes were pressed towards each other. Pressure in l. side, with heaviness, sometimes sticking darting through l. hemisphere.

Occiput.—Tearing externally in l. bone extending to l. side of frontal bone, in a curve across l. temporal bone, < touch. Pain in r. side. Pressure on sides. Sensation as if a sharp wind penetrated l. side, then boring. Heaviness, > strong pressure upon a hard cushion; H., and in nape descending to small of back.

Clinical.—General rush of blood to the head, with alternating flushes to head and face.

Eyes.—Surrounded by blue rings. Pain and smarting lachrymation. Tensive pain, sensation on looking up as if internal and inferior muscles were too short. Heat. Sensation as if clouds were rising before them, > open air, with tremulousness. Pupils contracted; slightly dilated. Conjunctivæ congested.

Twitching in upper lid. Lids shut. Pricking below cartilage of lower lid. Tearing in l. brow.

Ears.—Sticking behind E. Tearing in l. Deep-seated pinching. Pressure externally above r. (Trembling in front of them when hearing music or sad news, with threadlike drawing extending to brain.) Hearing hard.

Nose.—Dry coryza; in r. nostril. Sneezing.

Face.—Turgid. Flushed. Pale, and eyes lustreless. Aching in l. malar-bone, < touch; paralytic A., in r. zygoma. Lower lip dry. Jaw, jerks through l. lower into a hollow tooth when walking in open air after a meal; sticking in l. lower; sticking from lower into malar-bone; pain behind l. angle when touched and pressed upward; drawing pain in r. angle, in masseter muscles, < touch.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia, > open air.

Mouth.—Teeth. Tearing in roots of molars, < gums. Aching, beginning in a hollow tooth, almost only on chewing; A. in lower as if gum were swollen and as if teeth were elongated and loose, when chewing, worse afterwards; pressing outward, in evening and night, waking him, > rising, < drinking and smoking, intolerance of the warmth of bed. Drawing pain in all; in root of a hollow T. on eating or drinking cold or warm things, and when breathing through open mouth. Incisors on edge.

Gum.—Ulcer painful to touch over an incisor. Swollen around a hollow tooth, whitish, painful to touch, in morning on waking, with heaviness in tooth and jaw. Pain around a hollow tooth on touch.

Tongue coated yellow in morning, < posteriorly; C. white and brownish, with flat taste. Pricking in tip of tongue. Foaming at mouth. Scraping in palate and uvula, < swallowing saliva. Mouth and throat dry. Saliva white, and becomes frothy when talking. Salivation; with frequent yawning. Offensive breath. Taste bitter; after milk; to food, milk and coffee; T. bloody, greasy, and saliva reddish; T. disgusting, like old catarrhal mucus, < hawking.

Throat.—Drawing pain externally. Hawking in morning, the mucus is loose but does not come up. Stitches during rest. Sensation as if he had to swallow over a foreign body. Sore pain in afternoon on swallowing. Contractive and pricking pain extending backward, when not swallowing. Pressure on swallowing saliva. Choking in l. side when not swallowing. Dryness, with drawing pain. Crawling.

Stomach.—Desire for acids, especially for lemonade; for milk. Appetite poor; lost. Eructations; after every meal, with acidity in stomach, then heartburn; empty. Nausea in morning, > rising; after breakfast; after eating; after miscarriage, with vomiting; with salivation; with cough; with painful fulness; with pain in abdomen; with pain in umbilical region; in attacks; as when fasting. Retching. Vomiting (the gall-bladder had burst); V. of bile; of green matter looking like bile; of food eaten the day before, the milk thrown up is curdled and sour; violent.

Distention of epigastric region. Sticking from pit through to back. Sticking tearing in epigastric region. Pain; in region of S. and liver; in epigastric region, and on pressure pain internally as if beaten; in a spot near r. side of pit, with pinching; in region of pylorus. < before a meal, with anxiety, oppression and sensitiveness to hard pressure; in pit, then stitches; in region as if distended by air, when sitting bent, sometimes > eructations of gas, < remaining in that position, when it descends into l. side of abdomen, > sitting erect. Sensation as if she had eaten too much, with rumbling in abdomen. Oppression of pit. Heartburn. Heat; in cardiac region, > eructations; and weight.

Abdomen.—Rumbling; with cutting; in a fine, high tone in evening. Parietes tense. Distention; and pain; and drawing pain. Flatulence. Inflammation. Gripping in morning in bed, < l. side. Pain; in track of colon, with free stool; intermittent, as from taking cold; as if he had taken cold and would have diarrhoea, > emission of flatus. Bruised feeling in muscles in evening in bed. Constriction.

Anxious bubbling in angle beneath pit of stomach on bending forward, as if cartilages were bent outward and as if cartilages and muscles were raised. Intermittent writhing in umbilical region, with pinching and with sensation as if vomiting would come on, without nausea. Gripping above umbilicus; twisting, about U. Pain above umbilicus.

Hypogastrium.—Sticking inward in evening in bed. Compressive pain in l. side. Painful drawing in r. side, towards genitals. Drawing pressure towards genitals as if menses would appear. Heaviness, < pressure, to which she was accustomed on first day of menses.

Rectum and Anus.—Discharge of bloody mucus. Hæmorrhoids, painful, < morning. Biting sore stinging in anus at stool. Pain in rectum during stool. Pressive, almost paralytic pain in sphincter, a kind of ineffectual urging, almost all day, only after a long time he is obliged to go to stool, the first part quick and liquid, the second slow and hard. Creeping in anus.

Stool.—Liquid, slimy, frequent. Diarrhoea and much flatus; D. after miscarriage; painless D., with rumbling. Soft at first, then hard. Hard and painful, then discharge of blood from anus, which is painful to pressure; (H., with tenesmus). Too early. Frequent and bloody. None during the day; next day slight urging several times, then towards evening a scanty, thick, pasty stool.

Urinary Organs.—Burning pain in vesical region. Inflammation of urethra, with pain and purulent gonorrhoea. Smarting in urethra during micturition. Urging; but scanty urine, then feeling as if she would pass more. Frequent micturition; even at night he wakes to urinate, urine often turbid when passed; twice in an hour, slight increase in amount. Retention of urine, with burning and dribbling discharge. Urine increased, dark yellow; scanty, but often high-colored.

Sexual Organs.—Glans, dark redness; hard swelling on dorsum of penis not far from glans, the skin over which is movable, the S. feels like cartilage, is flat towards the median line, with a swollen border, is harder and more manifest during erection, with dull, tensive sensation; burning sore pain in G. and figwarts, < touch; pressure backward through whole penis, with sticking; stinging itching in morning. Violent and frequent erections day and night. Frænum swollen and tense. Paroxysmal pain in frænum. Pain in foreskin, he cannot draw it back. Intermittent drawing pain in r. spermatic cord. Couted pain in r. testicle. Intermittent tensive sensation in l. testicle, with pressure. Figwarts sensitive. Desire increased; and slight excitement causes violent and continuous erections, with aversion to coition.

Female.—Os tincta is open, discharge red, profuse and paroxysmal, < motion. Sticking extending backward deep in vagina. Leucorrhœa, with itching of pudenda; milky L. causing itching. Hæmorrhage from uterus; at the period of the menses. Contractive pain in region of uterus. Menses profuse for nine days; P., she passes clots of blood after rising; violent M. returned three days after menses had ceased, with colic and labor-pains, the blood partly clotted, there was less discharge of red urine, with strangury, and discharge of a slimy fluid from vagina; miscarriage, metrorrhagia; miscarriage at three months and a half, preceded by thin, black blood. Desire increased and consequent gratification.

Clinical.—Uterine pains, pressure towards the groins, extending into the thighs. Dysmenorrhœa, pains shooting down the thighs; pain in the small of the back, extending around the pelvis, drawing, aching pains extending through from sacrum to pubis. Uterine hæmorrhage, bright red flow, < every motion, pain extending from sacrum through to pubis. Uterine hæmorrhage in plethoric women; the hæmorrhage sometimes ceases on walking about, especially with the characteristic pains from the small of the back to genitals and down the thighs; adapted to gouty temperaments. Occasionally called for in dark hæmorrhage, with the characteristic pain. Irregular menstruation, becoming almost incessant. Threatening miscarriage, with pains from back to pubis. Amenorrhœa, especially with pain in extremities, etc. After-pains, with tendency to hæmorrhage. Acrid leucorrhœa, with much biting and itching, during pregnancy. Offensive leucorrhœa after profuse menstruation.

Respiratory Organs.—Crawling and tickling in larynx, exciting cough and slimy expectoration; C. as if something were crawling out of larynx. Dry, hacking cough, with tickling in trachea, next day expectoration streaked with blood. Asthma increasing to arrest of breath. Breathing labored and stertorous. Breathing short.

Chest.—Hæmoptysis. Swelling of breasts. Trembling in substance of lung behind r. border of sternum, often during the day, sounding like rattling or snapping, as of electric sparks, somewhat like the creaking of new ice when walking over it. Sticking in l. nipple; in l. side; on l. side, below manubrium of sternum; posteriorly in l. side, in region of two last ribs; in region of r. last true ribs, towards sternum, on inspiration; below sternum, < inspiration, sensation as if breathing were difficult from tightness of chest; intermittent, in clavicle; inward in l. nipple; burning, in l.; sore, in xiphoid cartilage, < deep inspiration and touch, > rest. Tearing above l. nipple, < touch, and in l. axilla. Cutting above pit of stomach.

Pain near l. nipple; in sternum on touch; tensive, in middle of sternum, with pressure; in sternum, as if it encroached upon chest and curved inward, < inspiration; spasmodic, in front above pit of stomach, extending across chest like a band, after a quick walk, < inspiration. Pressure rushing into it like a wind, chest feels dilated and yet oppressed. Oppression, with desire to inspire deeply, which relieves the O., later inspirations are difficult, they cause sticking on l. side behind union of cartilages of short ribs. Fulness, with cough. Burning in r. lower false ribs, with pressure. Crawling in nipples, with pleasurable sensation.

Heart.—Beats stronger, sometimes more rapid, fuller and felt over a larger space, afterwards weaker after the siesta. Beating increased and more violent in afternoon, alternating with pulsations through abdomen, accompanied by drowsiness, but inability to sleep.

Pulse.—Strong; and full. Tense, at times rapid, at times slow. Feeble.

Neck.—Tearing in muscles; T. between l. mastoid process and angle of jaw, with pressure. Pain in l. muscles; intermittent, in a spot in r. side when walking in open air, < pressure; bruised, in muscles and vertebræ. Frequent rheumatic drawing in l. muscles.

Back.—Labor-like pain, extending along Poupart's ligaments down thighs, then bloody, slimy discharge from vagina. Sticking in dorsal vertebræ; in region of dorsal vertebræ, < inspiration. Pain in a spot below l. scapula, > moving arm; in soft parts above border of l. scapula during rest, > evening during motion; paralytic, in muscles of l. S., with burning, gradually extending over l. side of thorax.

Lumbar Region.—Sticking darting into it when stooping, then tension as if parts were torn, obliging him to remain bent for some time, later in bed chill without thirst. Tearing in lumbar muscles, lowest dorsal vertebræ and in adjacent parts of ribs, < bending body, with pressure. Drawing pain extending into pubic region. Uneasiness and dragging forward like weak labor-pains. Pain obliging him to bend inward, when there is voluptuous pain in the same; intermittent pain in r. renal region; paralytic pain, > bending backward, with desire to stretch; paralytic, < l. side. Painful drawing, < bending backward, such as she is accustomed to feel before menses.

Extremities.—Convulsions. Cracking of joints. Tearing sticking in joints, with swollen sensation and with drawing sticking through long bones. Arthritic pain in r. great toe, which was red, shining, swollen, with boring sticking, inability to move foot or toe or bear least pressure upon it, later this pain appeared in r. wrist and hand, hand was stiff, unable to grasp anything, afterwards it changed to l. hand. Drawing pain in bones, < walking, < tibia, extending to feet; in bones, beginning in middle and spreading to joints, where the pain was worse, > open air. Paralytic pain in joints, < exertion; intermittent, internally above l. knee, drawing upward, once also above r. wrist. Weakness, with despondency.

Clinical.—Chronic arthritis and gout, > open air, < warmth, with general depression; the pains involve the shoulders, elbows, hips and knees; often accompanied by pulsation in different bloodvessels. Arthritic nodes.

Upper Extremities.—Shoulder, sticking like electricity, extending to tip of elbow, and at the same time from wrist to elbow; sprained pain in r. joint; pain in l., with drawing; rheumatic pain in l. joint; pressure in joints. Tearing in r. arm when lying, so that he stretched it out. Weakness of l. arm. Upper arm, paralytic tearing along r. to hand; stinging extending inward near elbows; pain extending inward near elbows, < motion and touch; pain extending inward in muscles, < touch. Drawing paralytic pain from head of l. humerus to elbow. Paralytic drawing in head of l. humerus during motion, with weakness.

Sticking in outer condyles of elbows; in outer side of l. E., > motion. Paralytic pain in and around l. elbow, < leaning arm on anything. Pain in r. radius, < motion or touch. Forearm, sudden prickings when sitting; tingling weakness in l.; heaviness on flexion after coition, with bruised feeling and anxiety, obliging him to move arms often.

Wrist.—Sprained pain in l., increasing till he could not move hand. Paralytic drawings in l. Stiffness of l., with luxation pain, later the pain changed to tearing sticking and distention, with weeping and being beside herself, she had to move the painful hand from side to side with the sound one or keep it straight, hand could not hang down, the pain > Aconitum.

Hand.—Tearing in r. carpal bones; drawing, from middle of r. carpal bones to wrist, with pressure; burning, in third l. metacarpal bone. Drawing pain in l. metacarpal bones; D. pain in palm, extending through fingers. Spasmodic contractive pain in l. palm, worse on stretching hand than on flexing it, upon stretching it out it flexes involuntarily. Sensation as if palm would be spasmodically constricted. Weakness when writing, inability to hold the pen, with chilliness.

Fingers.—Sticking in tip of l. thumb; burning-tearing, in muscles of first joint of r. fourth. Tearing lancinations in muscles of l. index and middle. Tearing in joints; in knuckle of l. little; in second and third joints of r. little, and in third joint of r. fourth; drawing, in r. fourth; paralytic, in l. index. Painful drawing in middle phalanx of r. index. Ring F. goes to sleep.

Lower Extremities.—Thigh. Sticking in region of l. hip on inspiration; sudden, down r. thigh to knee, where it is most violent, when sitting; intermittent, in inner surface. Tearing in soft parts above l. knee; tensive, in anterior surface of l. when walking, obliging him to limp. Bruised pain in middle of anterior surfaces when walking on level ground and when descending, but when sitting and drawing up legs tension and pain in T. on touch. Smarting as of a wound in and around r. hip-joint, < moving thigh, > sitting and lying. Pain in region of r. hip; in r. hip-joint in morning on rising, at first she could hardly step, the pain > walking; rheumatic, in l. T. during rest, then down l. tibia, and thence into l. forearm; burning, extending downward and inward; tensive, in tensor muscles as if too short, so that he cannot sit or crouch down. Tension in inner muscles of l. Pressure inward in middle. Pushing and drawing in T. and knees.

Drawing pain in l. knee. Sticking from lower part of tibia to toes in evening in bed; in lower part of calves, as after dancing, < morning. Sticking tearing in tibia below knee. Tingling-drawing tearing in lowest part of tendo-achillis during rest, with occasional darting sticking. Clawing pain in r. tendo-achillis, becoming tearing. Tensive pain in dorsum of tibia, above ankle, when sitting. Drawing to and fro in l. calf, down to malleoli. Heaviness a hand's breadth above r. malleolus, extending into foot.

Foot.—Sticking in heels extending outward; S. in r. heel, by sole in night; tingling, on outer side of r. sole when sitting. Tearing in l. little and fourth metatarsal bones; in dorsum, < touch; in metatarsal bones, with pressure; burning, in r. sole during rest. Pain in l. metatarsal bones; intermittent P. in lower part of l. heel when sitting.

Toes.—Jerks in l. Sticking in great; in ball of l. great; tickling, in ball of l. great, shocking the whole body, when sitting. Tearing in last joints of r. Painful drawing in phalanges of r., < walking. Burning pain in l. fourth.

Skin.—Jaundiced appearance. Exhaled the odor of the drug. Red areola on cheeks and about nasal wings, swollen and painful on pressure. Comedones that can be easily pressed out in cheeks and about nose. Elevations on elbows, without redness, with itching, < tips of the pimples, preceded by paralytic pain. Pimples on cheeks near mouth, and on temples, with sore pain, < touch; P. containing a hard substance between chin and lower lip, after squeezing out their contents they form ulcers. Spot on inner side of l. leg scratched raw and ulcerated, in morning, this ulcer was again painful and itching, next morning the scab was scratched off leaving an impure base, in evening a painful itching areola. Painful and stinging boil on upper part of natis. Vesicles about root of nose.

Creeping in nape extending over back. Sticking itching. Itching of legs towards morning, > scratching; I. on calf, transiently > scratching; now on l., now on r. calf, on the scratched places pimples causing smarting; in l. heel and sole, with sticking, after scratching burning almost as in frozen feet; < night, > scratching, the places scratched raw burn, pain and ooze water, then scabs and ulcers; in a red spot on outer part of r. leg below middle in morning, after scratching excoriation with burning pain and oozing of water, after three days a thick scab which lasts eight days, itching in border of scab and when this is scratched off bleeding, then a red cicatrized skin painful to pressure, similar spots in upper and inner part of l. ear.

Sleep.—Sleepless almost all night. Restless sleep; with orgasm, heat and sweat; and he says many commonplace things in sleep and snores on expiration; and dreams about several things which he had begun; with confused dreams, frequent waking, after which he must toss about long before going to sleep again. Dreams towards morning, with reflection and mental exertion; in morning that men fell dead from a height; constant D., full of invention and mental exertion; anxious, waking him frequently, < towards morning; that she is disputing with some one, this wakes her in tears.

Fever.—Chilliness all day; in evening on lying down; < towards evening, then heat, then sweat at night. Cold feet; and hands, with hot face; r. leg, as if standing in cold water.

Heat; after walking in open air; internal, after dinner, with restlessness, constant necessity to move limbs, without thirst; wherever the affected part is touched; in ears in evening; internal, in border of l. ear and lobule, with slight redness; in face, with fulness in vessels; in face, with flushes; in face in flushes, with frequent chilliness in rest of body.

Sweat at night; on feet extending above malleoli in morning in bed.

Salicylicum Acidum.

Pure Salicylic acid is triturated for use.

General Action.—Very few observations concerning this acid are recorded, nearly all experiments having been made with Sodium or Potassium salts. It acts, however, as an antipyretic, similarly to Quinine, reducing temperature and causing profuse perspiration.

Like Quinine it causes headache, deafness and blindness; it also paralyzes the third nerve, more or less, causing ptosis and squint. It is eliminated by the kidneys and causes albuminuria.

Generalities.—Rheumatic pains, < walking out of doors. Discomfort, with disinclination for mental or physical exertion. Dulness on waking after a good night's rest, with nervousness, ringing in ears, < l., and fulness in head. Weakness; > open air. Nervous prostration after mental labor and nervous excitement. Feeling as if I had walked far; in evening. Symptoms return in evening.

Mind.—Delirium; it was difficult for him to collect his ideas, then he laughed without cause, talked incessantly and disconnectedly, often looked about him. Excitement; after walking. Gloomy, don't know what to begin. Unconsciousness, with loud groans.

Head.—Aching; in morning, > during the day, < evening, > next morning; with dull, bruised feeling in r. side of head; agonizing; threatening of nervous. Bruised feeling. Dulness; with general oppression. Buzzing sensation in interior of brain as if blood were forced through a contracted vessel. Rush of blood. Vertigo; and confusion, a sensation on rising suddenly after lying a long time, soon afterward he thought he heard music, this often woke him, later sounds as of a swarm of bees or the buzzing of flies, with sweat. Pain above r. eye; above l. side of forehead, changing to l. ear; in l. side of head; in r. side of head in afternoon; drawing, back of r. temple; in a spot in vertex, as if struck by a hammer, in night. Itching, with feeling as if hair stood on end.

Clinical.—Vertigo, tendency to fall to l. side, surrounding objects seem to fall to the right, headache.

Eyes.—Burning and dryness. Itching of r. upper lid; of canthi, with burning. Bruised pain in bones below l. eye. Boring in l. brow, with tenderness when pressed. Dim vision.

Ears and Nose.—Stoppage of ears; < l.; in l. after removal of wax, with pain; when walking, > drawing breath strongly through nostrils, but returning. Roaring in ears; with difficult hearing. Ringing in ears. Deafness. Dryness of nostrils, with itching. Sneezing.

Clinical.—Meniere's disease. Nasal catarrh, with persistent sneezing.

Face.—Pain in l. lower jaw, with pain in parotid on touch, affecting side of throat. Soreness at r. corner of lips.

Mouth.—Mucous membrane white. Sore feeling on sides of jaw under tongue in evening. Burning, and in epigastric region; in M. and pharynx, with dryness; in M. and throat, with scraping; on tongue, with scratching. Taste disgusting; T. bitter, bilious; bitter, tenacious saliva hawked up with difficulty.

Throat.—Hæmorrhagic pharyngitis, with difficulty in swallowing. Scraping in l. side; S. causing cough. Pharynx dry. Burning; after a plain supper. Swallowing difficult; and violent effort to swallow waking him at night, afterwards the difficulty confined to r. side of throat, with pain and with sticking along Eustachian tube to within ear, swelling of r. tonsil, perceptible externally below angle of jaw, with sensitiveness to touch and heat in vicinity, mucous membrane of throat and posterior palate red and swollen, and small ulcers, later expectoration of a cheesy lump of strong odor, with bluish-red blood.

Stomach.—Vomiting. Erosions and ulcers, and in abdomen; (ulcers, with ecchymoses). Weight after salad. Burning in epigastric region.

Clinical.—Flatulent dyspepsia, with hot, sour belching. Indigestion, with headache and putrid fermentation.

Abdomen.—Rumbling. Flatulence in evening; F., with inability to expel it. Bloating feeling towards noon. Pain in evening, < pressure, with discomfort; P. in groin when coughing; in hypogastrium and bladder without urging to urinate and only small discharge; at one time in hypochondrium, at another in hypogastrium, with feeling of incarcerated flatus, with constipation; strained, in r. groin.

Anus and Stool.—Constriction in anus after stool. Itching in anus and ineffectual attempt at stool, six hours later slimy, insufficient stool. Stool tedious and insufficient. Constipation.

Clinical.—Dysentery, stools like green frogs' spawn. Putrid diarrhoea in children.

Urinary Organs.—Micturition difficult in morning on rising; D., slow and less in quantity. Urine red, with copious sediment.

Sexual Organs.—Emission of semen (or prostatic fluid), somewhat bloody, at night, and on waking pain in genitals as if overstrained. Excitement; more physical than mental.

Respiratory Organs.—Cough returns every day from 3 till 5 P.M.; C. on lying down, as if mucus flowed from Eustachian tubes into throat, causing scratching; hacking, with scratching in throat and hawking up of small pieces of thick yellow phlegm, with occasional sneezing and discharge from nose. Dyspnoea, respiration very deep, so that the lower margin of the lungs is moved 4 to 5 C.M., auxiliary muscles are set to work, expiration is more active, number of respirations unchanged or slightly increased, sometimes complaints of air-hunger, such D. may appear without preceding surring in ears, in some cases the D. disappears during the night and increases after every dose in the daytime, sometimes the symptom is noticed only on certain days.

Chest, Heart and Pulse.—Aching in l. clavicle; at side of sternum, with feeling as if bone were sore. Oppression of chest. Palpitation; after moderate exercise, with intermittent pulse. Rapid pulse.

Back.—Stiffness at night on waking; S. in muscles of middle, with pain; in muscles along spine in afternoon when lying down, with aching.

Extremities.—Rheumatic pains. Pain in fingers and little toes; drawing, in l. calf, extending into thigh, then transferred to l. arm. Soreness and pain in r. deltoid and r. gastrocnemius, changing next day to l. wrist and forearm, with soreness to touch and soreness on moving limb, third day some pain on palmar surface of l. index, when the pain appeared in one part it disappeared in the previous one. Strained pain in r. shoulder in morning. Pain in knuckles of r. hand; in sinews of l. forearm, extending into third and little fingers, then tingling; burning, in inside of joint of r. thumb; rheumatic, in lower limbs and feet at night, and burning in ball of great toe. Stinging in a r. toe.

Clinical.—Sciatica, with burning pain, < night.

Skin.—Swelling under skin of fingers, with burning itching on inside of l. hand. Itching pimples here and there, one on r. cheek; red P. here and there, and small whitish ones, the latter in groups, itching and filled with water. Exanthema bullosum. Pustules on face and head; watery itching, between r. fingers; itching, < l. arm, skin becomes rough when scratched. Itching vesicles in a group on l. little finger. Itching after undressing, > in bed; I. on back, below jaws and under chin; of r. toes; < over breast and stomach; voluptuous, at night, > scratching, then a pimple, sometimes burning of skin after scratching.

Sleep.—Yawning in evening. Night restless, longing to sleep, but unable to do so. Amorous dream, with bloody emission, then erections in morning.

Fever.—Heat of skin. Burning in ball of great toe. Sweat.

Sambucus.

A tincture is made of the fresh leaves and flowers of Sambucus nigra, L.

Generalities and Mind.—Dropsical swellings. Most pains occur during rest and disappear during motion, only a few are caused by motion. Starting at things to which he is accustomed. Periodical delirium, saw frightful things on the wall. Fretful.

Head.—Aching at night; stupefying A., as in catarrh; stupefying, as from intoxication. Pressure outward to all sides. Vertigo in morning on rising; and < forenoon; V. on moving head, with tensive sensation as if water were in it; with obscuration of head. Pain in forehead and a sudden painful jerk through brain from one side to other. Tearing in upper part of forehead, with pain streaming down into eye; T. in bone over l. temple on stooping; intermittent, in temples, < bones. Pressure outward in temples. Burrowing in vertex. Intermittent tearing stitch through l. half of occiput, with dulness in the place during the intervals.

Eyes, Ears, Nose and Face.—Pupils contracted, then dilated. Sticking in r. ear, with cramplike pain. Itching and crawling in ears and throat, somewhat > in throat by tongue. Pressure forward in tip of nose, with heaviness, as if it would bleed. Face flushed. Tensive pain as from swelling in cheek, with numbness. Tension in l. cheek, with gnawing pressure upon upper jaw. Painless pustule, with red areola, on l. side of lower lip.

Clinical.—Suffocating nasal catarrh in children, with sudden starting up.

Mouth.—Tearing in teeth extending into incisors, with stitches, later the pain extended to eye, with sensation as if cheek were swollen, which was not the case. M. and throat sore. Dryness of palate without thirst.

Stomach.—Thirst, though drink has not a pleasant taste. Hiccough; during and after eating. Incipient nausea in and below pit of stomach. Vomiting; tinged with blood. Pressure in epigastric region. Sticking just below S. when sitting, < pressure.

Abdomen.—Rumbling. Spasmodic tearing in muscles in evening after lying down, < moving them. Gripping; if it leans against a sharp corner; as after taking cold, with emission of flatus. Tormina every half hour. Pain if it presses against anything, with nausea. Bruised feeling internally. Tenderness, and distention. Gripping in muscles of r. hypochondrium. Tearing in l. side. Stitches in l. oblique muscle when sitting and standing; S. over l. hip, with rhythmical pulsation.

Stool, Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Several thin, slimy stools, with much flatus, then renewed urging, distention of abdomen, pressure in stomach and umbilical region, then no more symptoms. Itching in orifice of urethra. Frequent desire to urinate, with copious discharge; with scanty discharge. Obligated to urinate at night. Micturition in a thin stream. Frequent M. of dark yellow urine. Emission after midnight.

Clinical.—Urine becomes changed in character and deposits a heavy sediment; Bœnnighausen emphasizes the increased watery urine. It is found clinically that the American Sambucus (and also the European) is of great value in acute inflammation of the kidneys, with dropsy, especially for vomiting of bile, distress in stomach after eating. Profuse urine, with dry heat of the skin.

Respiratory Organs and Chest.—Hoarseness from much tenacious, glutinous mucus in larynx. Intermittent cutting in front, on third false rib, < moving trunk. Cutting gripping in last ribs towards spine. Sudden internal clawing in both sides, about fourth rib. Oppression below l. nipple, with stitches; O. beneath sternum, with pressure, and with pressure in pit of stomach and epigastric region, nausea and weakness.

Clinical.—Suffocative respiration, with stitches in the chest. Laryngismus stridulus, starts up in great suffocation, cannot exhale the breath, face grows purple (compare Chlorine). Acute laryngitis, with spasmodic cough and attacks of suffocation. Croup, with spasm of the glottis, wheezing respiration, < after midnight. Violent dry cough, with hoarseness and tough mucus in the larynx, < night. Whooping cough, with suffocative spasm, expectoration of tough mucus during the day; cough, < after midnight or from lying with the head low.

Pulse.—Rapid; and small. Slow; but full.

Neck and Back.—Cutting stitches deep in muscles on sides of neck, < moving neck. Heaviness in nape, making motion of head difficult. Pain in middle of spine. Sticking outward in inner surface of r. scapula during rest; cutting S. in scapulae during rest; pulsating S. beneath r. scapula when sitting. Cutting thrusts in sacrum, < bending forward, with tensive pain. Drawing pressure in sacrum extending to muscles on inside of ilium when standing.

Upper Extremities.—Pinching in axilla. Sticking in middle of inner side of upper arm. Upper arm feels as if it would break as soon as he supports himself upon it. Paralytic heaviness of elbows. Sticking in outer condyle of wrist; cutting S. in wrists, rhythmical with pulse, > motion. Drawing pain in bones of wrist during rest, and along radius. Hands tremble when writing. Tearing in finger-joints.

Lower Extremities.—Drawing sticking through anterior muscles of upper part of r. thigh during rest. Tearing around above hip-joint on walking: Cramp-like drawing in thigh at insertion of large gluteal muscle when walking. Hamstrings tense and seem too short so that standing is difficult. Deeply piercing sticking in inner side of tibia, somewhat > motion. Dead sensation, as if asleep, in middle of r. tibia when standing, with coldness. Weariness of legs when standing, with sensation of a cold wind on them. Tearing in r. external malleolus in evening in bed, and in muscles on side of leg.

Skin.—Red spots here and there on cheeks, with burning. Sudden painful drawing over surface of body when sitting. Itching on forehead, > rubbing; I. on back of nose, with numbness; on patella, with rough scraping, a sensation as if eruption would break out; sticking, on inner sides of thighs, changing to burning after rubbing.

Sleep.—Sleepiness, without sleep. Frequent waking. Restless sleep, on sitting up in bed it seemed as if the symptoms extended downward and she felt easier. Starting out of sleep, with anxiety, suffocation and trembling. Slumber, with half-open eyes and mouth, on waking could not catch his breath, obliged to sit up, when the breathing was rapid, with whistling in chest, as if he would suffocate, he beat about with his hands, head and hands bluish and puffy, with heat without thirst, when the attacks came on he cried out, aggravation at night, from 12 till 4. Dreams; vivid, unremembered; lascivious, with emission.

Fever.—Chilliness, with warmth of face; C. creeping over whole body, < hands and feet, which are cold to touch, though the latter may be warmly wrapped up; shaking, before sleep. Shivering in attacks; S. over whole body, < from feet to knees, with sticking crawling here and there, and cold hands and feet. Cold feet; with internal heat in face, without thirst; hands; fingers, with crawling in them.

Heat; when waking; soon after lying down, without thirst; in flushes in afternoon, after half an hour sweat on face. Dry heat; with dread of uncovering, it seems as if he would take cold and have colic. External H., < palms and soles; E., without thirst. Heat in head and neck; flushing, in face. Orgasm of blood in evening after lying down, with trembling sensation.

Sweat when awake from 7 P.M. till 1 A.M., without thirst, after sleep he was more hot than sweaty, without thirst; S. at night on waking; after midnight, but not on head; first on face, several hours after the dry heat had disappeared.

Clinical.—The suppression of the ordinary perspiration during sleep is very marked; the skin becomes perfectly dry and burning when the patient falls asleep, but he breaks into profuse sweat immediately on waking.

Sanguinaria.

A tincture is made of the fresh root of the "blood-root," Sanguinaria Canadensis, L.

General Action.—An irritant of the mucous membranes of the stomach and air-passages, causing vomiting as well as nasal and bronchial catarrh. Its remarkable power to cure migraine is fully substantiated by the provings.

Allies.—Ipec., Squills, Nat. m., Rumex, Iris v., Bry.

Generalities.—Tremors. Involuntary motions of muscles. Tetanic rigidity of whole body. Pain over upper part of l. side of head, < eye, with pain in l. foot; in superficial bony parts (not in flesh nor in joints) at 10 P.M., > touch, but suddenly appearing in other places; on touch in head, breasts, loins and other parts where pain had been severe, in afternoon; rheumatic, in nape, shoulders and arms; neuralgic, in various parts; racking and burning. Nervous thrill through whole system. Pulsation through whole body. Weakness; in morning; in morning on waking, with disinclination to rise; in afternoon; in afternoon, with qualmish sickening feeling all over body; and sensitiveness; and stupidity. Torpor and frequent yawning. Faintness. Insensibility. Constant change of symptoms. Aggravation morning and evening; A. from a long ride in the country.

Mind.—Anxiety; before vomiting. Irritability; in morning, she could break things to pieces without cause; in afternoon, with impatience and dyspnœa. Inability to fix mind in afternoon. Inability to attend to business during the fever. Stupor.

Head.—Enlarged veins. Aching; in morning; in morning on waking; in evening, with tickling in throat; when lying; < stooping and moving about; with nausea and chilliness, then flushes of heat extending from head to stomach; with fever; with bitter vomiting; with erache; with stiffness of limbs and rheumatic pains; paroxysmal; as if head would burst in afternoon, < r. temple, > walking in open air. Throbbing pain, < motion; < stooping (Bry.); with bitter vomiting. Cerebral functions excited by small doses. Sensation as if it would be drawn forward. Confusion, > eructations. Heaviness of brain. Fulness. Determination of blood, with whizzing in ears and transitory heat, then waterbrash as if vomiting would occur, but instead there are cutting drawings in abdomen, then stool. Vertigo; in morning; in morning on rising quickly from stooping or turning head quickly (Bry.), with faintness; in afternoon and inability to turn quickly without fear of falling (Ipec.); on rising from a seat; with heaviness in stomach; with singing in ears; with singing before ears.

Forehead.—Sticking. Lightning-like pain in r. side of F. and temple at 5 and 7 P.M., and at 11 P.M. pain like an electric shock through forehead. Dizzy tearing above r. eye, extending to r. temple, in afternoon, after an hour sensation like driving a nail into brain alternating with boring. Burrowing in upper part of sinuciput. Pain; and through temples; over eyes; in morning, < exercise, sympathizing with stomach, like sick headache; over eye on waking, lasting all day; on rising from a seat, with vertigo; pain and sore feeling in F. and temples, with strong pulsation in temporal arteries; extending into cheek-bones; as if it would burst, with chilliness and burning in stomach; in sinuciput like a fulness in afternoon; like a pressure in r. side when standing still. Bandlike constriction above brows in afternoon. Pressive drawing.

Temples.—Periodic sticking in l. Sharp darting from one to the other through brain. Pain in morning; in afternoon, with occasional darting pain through head; in l. in morning, at times like a nail driven into brain, with violent throbbing in temporal arteries. Feeling as if pressed together, with darting pain over upper part of eyeballs. Dulness < r., with inclination to ache.

Pain in l. side; and in l. foot; in vertex. Vertex feels as if cleaved from base of head. Pressure on vertex in region of anterior fontanelle, > walking. Pain in occiput and nape in afternoon, gradually extending to region of kidneys, where it is severe, dull and heavy. Scalp loose on one side on raising eyes, with drawing in it; r. side loose; S. sore to touch; pain on moving it.

Clinical.—Extremely valuable remedy for headaches of various sorts; periodic neuralgia, pain commencing in the occiput and settling over r. eye, with nausea and vomiting, photophobia, etc.; the attacks commence in the forehead and vertex of r. side, begin in the morning and last till evening, < every motion, > sleep, passing off with profuse flow of urine. Headache at the climacteric, with rush of blood to the head, buzzing in the ears, nausea and chilliness, sometimes vomiting of bile, shivering, > open air and sleep.

Eyes.—Staring and protruding. Sunken, dull, burning, injected. Dim in afternoon, and feeling as if hairs were in them. Shooting into inner corner of r. and thence to forehead. Pain. Sensation as of acid fumes at 2 P.M. Feel weak in morning, and lids smart on closing them tightly, lachrymation if open, balls tender to touch. Lachrymation of r., which is painful to touch, then fluent coryza, with flow of clear water from r. nostril, > evening by diarrhœa twice; L., with burning in eyes.

Pupils dilated; and insensible. Sticking in upper lid. Pain in r. ball in afternoon, < attempting to roll it outward or upward; in balls on motion; on touch. Balls sore, with darting through them and dim vision. Vision dim; in afternoon, it requires effort and rubbing to see distinctly, a feeling somewhat like snow-blindness. Twitching before eyes.

Clinical.—Conjunctivitis, especially of r. eye. Blepharodentitis, with dryness under the upper lid, neuralgia about the eye.

Ears.—Sticking in l. Pain in r. at every stroke of a blacksmith's hammer; deep in l. during the pain in forehead. Throbbing under E. Cracking in r. on stroking r. cheek with finger-tips. Humming, with determination of blood. Beating whizzing in l.

Clinical.—Polypus of the ear. Humming and roaring in the ears, with painful sensitiveness to sudden sounds, in women at the climacteric.

Nose.—Pain about root (Nat. m.); at root in afternoon, with tingling like coryza; heavy, at root, with dizziness, somewhat like effects of alcoholic stimulus, with lassitude. Heat. Sneezing; with tingling. Coryza, with heavy pain at root of nose and stinging in nose; painful C. during the fever; dry, as from a sudden cold; alternately fluent and dry; fluent, with frequent sneezing; watery, acid. Odor of roasted onions in nose. Aversion to the odor of syrup. Smell and taste lost (Nat. m.).

Clinical.—Gelatinous tumor of l. nostril, polypus. Nasal catarrh, with pain over the root of nose, sore throat, dry cough.

Face.—Redness; with heat; with puffiness and stiff feeling. Pale. Haggard. Jerking in bones extending towards eyes. Pain in cheek-bones. Feeling of fulness. Jaws stiff. Lips dry. Lips swollen towards evening.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia spreading all over the head, bends over and holds head tightly towards floor to get relief (Ign.).

Mouth.—Teeth. Looseness; with salivation. Boring in molar, ending in gnawing. Pain in upper; in incisors and hollow molar; in a r. lower hollow molar mornings after cold drinks; when picking them; in a hollow one, < touch of food; in a r. upper hollow on waking, with pain in r. side of forehead, extending into ear, the toothache < cold water and hot drinks, but > warm water.

Tongue.—Coated yellowish-white; with bad taste; C. yellow in morning; white, with loss of appetite. Sticking in l. side. Prickling in tip; in tongue and hard palate, almost as from Mezerium (he had tobacco in his mouth). Burnt feeling. Crawling in tip on waking, then rough sensation extending over tongue. Dryness in r. side in morning after waking, extending over whole tongue, with raw sensation as from something acid.

Burning in mouth and fauces. Clammy and feverish; C. in morning, with disagreeable taste, abundant accumulations about teeth and fetid breath. Taste impaired; fatty; slimy; bitter to cake, then burning in fauces; disagreeable in morning on waking.

Throat.—Feeling as if he had swallowed something sharp. Swollen sensation on swallowing; < r. side, < swallowing, with pain; sensation as if closed by swelling, with pain on swallowing, as if he would suffocate, and with loss of voice. Spasmodic constriction beneath jaw in afternoon. Rawness in T. and mouth, with difficulty in swallowing, at 12.30 P.M. mouth, fauces, etc., sensitive, as from holding hot water in mouth, making it difficult to chew food. Tickling in evening, with hacking cough and headache. Irritation in fauces. Dryness, in afternoon, with dry, teasing, hacking cough; D., with tickling cough; not > drinking. Burning in pharynx; in fauces in afternoon, < soft palate, extending to centre of sternal region; from 6 till 7 P.M.; in fauces after eating sweet things; in fauces, < soft palate, with relaxation.

Clinical.—Soreness of the roof of the mouth, extending through the pharynx, feeling as if it had been burnt or scalded, sore throat on r. side, pains extending to the ear and to the chest, with burning of the stomach, nausea and vomiting. Rheumatic soreness of the muscles of palate after influenza. Ulcerated sore throat, with dryness, loss of smell and taste, etc.

Stomach.—Appetite craving; in morning. Longing for spiced food; for indefinite things, with loss of appetite. Appetite poor; in morning, A. lost; for breakfast; for breakfast, and heaviness in stomach after eating a little. Aversion to butter, which leaves a sweetish taste. Thirst. Empty eructations; spasmodic; then tickling in throat, provoking cough. Hiccough on smoking.

Nausea; at breakfast; in afternoon, with eructation, heaviness in stomach and feeling of indigestion; after eating; on stooping; not > vomiting; with salivation; with headache (Ipec.), chill and heat; with chilliness; with pallor and offensive eructations; with urging to stool; with weakness; then headache, with rheumatic pain and stiffness in limbs and nape; intermittently; periodic; sudden, as if she would faint when in church, where she was surrounded by various odors.

Vomiting; with desire to eat in order to quiet the nausea; with diarrhœa; with weakness; violent; of bitter water.

Jumping as of something alive in epigastric region. Pain; in epigastric region; after eating; extending downward to S. and abdomen in afternoon, causing rumbling. Soreness in epigastric region in morning; in E. region, < eating. Discomfort. Uneasiness in epigastrium. Heaviness as from indigestion. Burning; in evening; with weight. Burning pain in epigastric region, with soreness in chest on full inspiration. Emptiness in morning, with faint, feverish feeling; E. soon after eating. Digestion weak. Agreeable sensation. Amelioration from eating, though food lies like a load. Digestion is excited by small doses.

Clinical.—Gastric derangements, with nausea, not > vomiting. Nausea during pregnancy, with salivation, constant spitting. Ulcer in the stomach, vomiting, burning pain, > vomiting, tenderness, flushes of heat rising into the head; the characteristics were the rising of heat into the head and the amelioration from vomiting.

Abdomen.—Flatulency. Discharge of flatus, then of excrement, with abatement of nausea, etc.; frequent emissions of offensive flatus, afterwards in evening hard stool. Cramp extending from place to place. Shooting through A., extending to lower limbs, in afternoon. Cutting, then watery stool. Cutting drawing. Griping, then semi-solid stool. Digging at night, with pain in small of back. Pain; and in sacrum; paroxysmal; extending to rectum and causing sharp spasmodic pain low down in rectum; as before menses; as before menses, all night. Throbbing.

Pain in upper A. in morning, then diarrhoea. Gripping in umbilical region; at 5.30 P.M., with flatulency and fulness in head. Pain in region of spleen; in morning on waking; with soreness on pressure. Pain in hypochondria; r., and r. side of chest; l. H.; burning in r. H. and r. side of chest in morning.

Hypogastrium.—Cutting from r. to l. iliac fossa, thence to rectum, and then causing sharp spasmodic pain. Twisting pain midway between pubes and crest of l. ilium, < sitting, standing and bending towards r. and on pressure, > walking erect, afterwards it shifted to l. hip and behind short ribs, < bending to right.

Rectum.—Spasmodic cutting low down in evening. Desire for stool, with emission of flatus; frequently. Ineffectual desire, with sensation of a thick mass in anus; I. desire, then vomiting.

Stool.—Diarrhoea, with much flatus; frequent D. Soft, on latter days hard. At first of wind, then of scanty faeces, relieving the desire for stool. Constipation. In hard lumps. Undigested. Contained bright yellow bile. Frequent. Scanty, twice in one day.

Clinical.—Has been used for dysentery from taking cold, or for diarrhoea especially associated with cough (Ipec.).

Urinary Organs.—Pain in bladder. Constant desire to urinate, but no increase of urine. Urging and micturition every hour, but scanty each time. Frequent micturition; at night, always much watery urine; quantity normal, dark yellow; and copious. Difficult micturition. Urine copious; more C. in evening than in daytime, high-colored, sediment reddish. Scanty, red urine in morning.

Sexual Organs.—Burning pain in glans. Emissions two nights in succession, after which he felt very well. Uterine hæmorrhage. Menses too early and black; M. profuse, with less pain and weakness in small of back than usual, but with pain in r. side of forehead and side of head and sensation as if eyes would be forced out of head, < r.

Clinical.—Polypus of the uterus. Metrorrhagia, with cough, sick headache, flush of the face, etc. Delayed menstruation, or amenorrhæa, with cough, periodical neuralgia on r. side, with flushing of face. Sore, painful nipples.

Respiratory Organs.—It sometimes promotes the excretion of mucus or muco-purulent matter in bronchi and sometimes restrains it, according to different circumstances.

Cough; from tickling in larynx, with expectoration of thick, tenacious mucus; paroxysmal, in morning. Hacking cough; evenings after lying down, from tickling in throat (Rumex, Puls., Hyos.); < after eating; dry. Dry cough, with tickling in throat-pit and crawling extending beneath sternum, the C. caused pain beneath upper part of sternum; D. cough waking him, > sitting up in bed and discharging flatus upward and downward.

Dyspnoea in morning, with sighing; D. and inclination to inspire deeply. Respiration hurried.

Clinical.—Croup, with a whistling cough. Swelling of the larynx, dryness of the throat. Aphonia. Laryngitis, with soreness, dryness, swelling, sometimes expectoration of thick mucus. Whooping cough, < night, with diarrhoea. (Edema of the glottis, great dyspnoea, respiration sawing or rasping, voice lost, cough dry and harsh, < lying down, scanty, glairy expectoration. (Compare Rumex).

Chest.—Sticking in r. side; near r. nipple; beneath sternum; in breasts; near l. axilla; in l. side in region of short ribs; in l. side near last ribs; in breasts in morning; in l. side on moving; l. lower part, extending to shoulder. Sharp pain beneath r. nipple in afternoon, with difficulty in inspiring deeply and dyspnoea. Sharp myalgic pain midway between sternum and r. nipple, with tenderness of surface to pressure.

Pain; beneath sternum and in r. breast; in side; under fifth rib; under l. nipple; beneath præcordial region; in l. in morning; in breasts in morning; under l. clavicle in morning on waking, with as tired a feeling as when I retired; in breasts in afternoon, < r.; under l. nipple, < deep inspiration; and in back; in upper part, with heaviness and with difficult breathing; from l. breast to shoulder; in breasts extending to r. shoulder; in r. breast, extending to shoulder, in afternoon, so that it is difficult to put hand on vertex; in r. breast, extending to stomach and causing nausea and lasting all night. Burning pain between breasts in afternoon, < r. side; tearing B. pain through breasts beneath sternum during the fever. Peculiar pains, deep but not as sharp as I supposed pleuritic pains to be, never on both sides at once. Soreness during inspiration; sore pain beneath r. nipple, < touch; nipples sore and painful. (Compare chest symptoms with Bry., Kali c., Squills).

Constriction of breasts, with inclination to inspire deeply, which aggravates the C. and causes tearing through breasts, < r. Sickening sensation from r. breast to stomach, causing nausea, in afternoon. Burning under sternum; below r. arm and clavicle, streaming down to hepatic region at 4 P.M.

Clinical.—Not infrequently indicated in pneumonia of a sub-acute type, > lying on the back. Typhoid pneumonia, face livid and dark red. Particularly valuable in hypostatic pneumonia (compare Verat. viride). Phthisis, with hectic fever, burning in the chest and sensation of congestion, soreness of the muscles. Ulceration of the lung, with hectic flush, circumscribed redness of the cheeks, hæmoptysis.

Heart.—Palpitation.

Pulse.—Rapid; and full, strong; and tense, but not full; and weak; in morning, and weak; and small; and small, tense; and diminished in fulness and force; and irregular; and irregular in fulness and force, from nausea; afterwards slow. Slow and irregular; and feeble. Irregular. Suppressed.

Neck.—Pain in l. side of nape. Strained pain in r. side. Stiffness of nape.

Back.—Pain, < lumbar region, and then down limbs, to feet; P. under scapula, with chill; along inner border of r. scapula, with heat and chills alternating, and extending to kidneys, where there are heat and pain. Lumbar pain; in morning; in morning, and down limbs; > bending forward, with weakness in lower limbs; in kidneys, penetrating into r. iliac fossa, then shooting through to sigmoid flexure of colon, then extending to rectum; sore, on touch; heavy, across kidneys in morning, urine high-colored and not quite as easily voided as usual.

Extremities.—Convulsive rigidity. Pain in morning; P. in r. arm and l. foot; in r. hand and arm when warm and quiet in bed, and on top of l. foot, then in heels, then in toes. Rheumatic pains.

Upper Extremities.—Pain in shoulders; on top of r.; in r. and down scapula in morning; in l. in evening; in upper part of joint on motion; rheumatic in r., < forenoon after holding arm long in one position, extending to elbow; sudden rheumatic, in joint. Rheumatic pain in arm and hand; in r. forearm in evening. Hands red and burning. Pain in r. hand in morning; ulcerative, in r. palm close to index. Sticking in tip of r. little finger; from r. thumb to symphysis menti during the day. Cutting in second joint of l. middle finger. Pain in ball of r. thumb; ulcerative, in root of nail of r. thumb, then l., then extending to all fingers, one after another; rheumatic, in r. ring finger, just above second joint.

Clinical.—Rheumatism in r. arm and shoulder, < night in bed (Mag. car.).

Lower Extremities.—Rheumatic pains; wandering, in afternoon, < r.; and so severe in r. ankle and toe-joint as to cause lameness, with swelling of great toe-joint. Weakness when walking. Rheumatic pain in l. hip. Pains through hips and extending down r. limb, goutlike in metatarsal joint of r. great toe. Bruised pain in l. hip-joint on walking, < rising from a seat. Knees and legs weak in evening when walking. Stiffness in hollows and sides of knees, with tension. Cramp in l. calf, with crawling. Drawing in calves extending into heels, < r. Sticking in r. ankle; below r. outer malleolus. Sharp pain in r. ankle and great toe-joint. Sticking in heels in morning in bed. Pain in corns.

Skin.—Ulcers about the nail. Increased itching on an old tubercle-like eruption.

Sleep.—Yawning; with disposition to lie down; disposed to Y. and deep inspiration, which cause tearing in r. breast, in afternoon. Sleepiness; when reading. Waking late. Waking early; in night in fright, as if falling. Sleepless. Restless night; till towards morning, when sweat broke out and relieved most of the pains. Dreams frightful and disagreeable; troublesome, with tossing about all night, painful sighing and dyspnoea; that he helped dissect a corpse; of a sea voyage two nights in succession though he had never been at sea.

Fever.—Chills; at 2 P.M., then hot flashes, pulse 95, then burning fever, with exacerbation of all symptoms, fever and pains abating at 10 P.M.; in evening in bed, with shivering in back as if he had gooseflesh; on motion, with shaking and pain beneath scapulae; and shivering suddenly alternating with heat; with nausea. Cold skin, < limbs. Cold wrists, with sweat on forehead.

Heat; in morning; every day between 2 and 3 P.M., > between 8 and 9 P.M.; with flushed face and hot hands; always with the pains, whether in head, chest or stomach; in flushes, then chills; flying from head to stomach; in palm; in soles and palms in forenoon; in soles, < night; through r. shoulder and clavicle to r. breast, extending to stomach and bowels. Sweat; cold.

Sanguinaria Nitrate.

This preparation should be triturated for use.

Generalities and Mind.—Discomfort as from a severe cold, affecting whole body, at 9.30 P.M., awoke frequently with dry mouth and throat from breathing with open mouth, nose being obstructed, woke at 6 A.M. in sweat, feeling better. Irritable.

Head.—Pain, with soreness. Fulness and inclination to ache. Fulness, waking him in morning, > discharge of thick, yellow mucus. Vertigo. Discomfort, < night. Pain in forehead and eyes, partially > discharge of mixed watery, clear, stringy, thick, yellow mucus from nose, tinged with blood; burning pain in forehead and root of nose. Fulness in forehead and over eyes and at root of nose. Pain in l. temple. Drawing in l. temple. Pain in l. side of head, with heat extending to parietal ridge and mastoid process, with stiffness of muscles of l. side of neck and top of l. shoulder as from exposure to a draught of cold or damp, raw air.

Eyes.—Swollen, red and painful to touch. Smarting. Aching. Burning; and sore pain. Lachrymation. tears flow down r. cheek. Pain in l. ball extending over orbit and l. side of head. Sore pain in balls; < pressure; in l., extending to supraorbital region, then across forehead and deep above root of nose. Burning in balls, > night, with pressure, leaving fulness and soreness, as in ordinary catarrh. Lids and conjunctiva red; conjunctiva red, with smarting and burning at l. inner canthus, eye sore to touch. Aching, in orbits, extending into forehead and to l. side of head.

Nose.—Sensation as if he had taken horse-radish, causing gush of tears from eyes, which soon became blurred as from a film of mucus. Dryness of nostrils, forehead and bronchia, with soreness and rawness. Obstruction. Burning; extending into forehead and probably frontal sinuses; in l. nostril, later extending to r. nostril, forehead and eyes, with smarting of eyes, lachrymation and pain in eyes, the pain > sneezing, then watery mucus from r. nostril, then heat and fulness through nasal passages, woke at 3 A.M. with pressure, heat and fulness in forehead, extending to root of nose, restlessness and but little sleep till morning, on rising nostrils plugged with mucus, which on moving about was discharged, was thick, yellowish, that from r. nostril tinged with blood, after discharging for ten days it left posterior nares and soft palate feeling stiff, sore and cracked.

Sneezing.

Discharge of sweetish yellow mucus; D. thick, yellow, tinged with blood; from posterior nares, < l. side. Watery discharge; trickling of water from r. nostril; trickling from l. nostril, when lying on l. side; with frequent sneezing, lachrymation, dim vision, redness and soreness of inner canthi, which feel swollen, later increase of secretions of nose, eyes, mouth and throat, with burning in these parts, without thirst (compare Euphrasia).

Clinical.—Sang. nit. has been used quite extensively for polypos of the nose, chronic catarrh, with sneezing and burning, laryngitis, hoarseness, dry, hollow cough. Soreness behind the sternum, violent convulsive cough. Irritation at the bifurcation of the bronchi, with expectoration of blood-streaked mucus; also in general for catarrhal inflammation of mucous membranes, with great irritability of them. Rawness and soreness in posterior nares and hawking of thick yellow, sometimes bloody mucus.

Mouth.—Acrid burning on tongue. Tongue, palate, tonsils and pharynx feel sore, raw. Roughness of tongue; as if burnt; extending to fauces and tonsils and rising to posterior nares, with rawness and soreness; in M. and throat, with dryness and with constriction of throat. Burning. Taste bitter; and acrid; T. acrid, soon extending to pharynx and posterior nares; T. dry to everything, coffee did not taste natural.

Throat.—Red irritable spot. Uvula swollen and elongated, palate and upper part of pharynx red, swollen, mucous follicles enlarged and bright red, the whole surface covered with white tenacious mucus. Pain in r. tonsil. Soreness of r. tonsil, with roughness and rawness, difficulty in swallowing, obstruction of Eustachian tube, difficulty in distinguishing sounds, roaring in r. ear. Burning in œsophagus and stomach.

Stomach and Abdomen.—Little appetite, wanted something succulent, not pungent, but soothing to mouth and throat, which felt hot, dry and raw. Eructations of putrid-smelling gases at 10 p.m., though she had eaten nothing since morning. Borborygmi, with colic as before diarrhœa; B. at night, with cutting in abdomen as if stool or flatus would be discharged.

Urinary Organs.—Micturition three times at night, urine high-colored, bright yellow sediment; M. nearly every hour at night, weighing twenty-eight ounces, and depositing a white sediment.

Respiratory Organs.—Air-passages feel as if lined with thick, stiff mucus or pus. Burning in air-passages; in nostril, forehead, eyes, throat and bronchi, then trickling of watery mucus from nose, lachrymation, watery coryza, with burning pain in posterior nares and trachea, then tension, burning and mucus behind sternum, mucus in bronchia and throat.

Cough short, hacking; harsh C., leaving soreness and rawness in throat and chest, with scraping rawness in pharynx; deep and rattling C., mucus came up easily. Expectoration of thin, frothy, tenacious mucus; easy E. of clear mucus, becoming thick and yellow towards evening; of thick, yellow, sweet mucus; thick, yellow and greenish mucus. Desire for fresh air.

Chest.—Soreness. Pressure behind sternum, spreading to lungs and increasing the sense of suffocation. Tightness, > coughing up thick, yellow, sweet mucus, with fulness and soreness; T. causing short, hacking cough. Heat behind centre of sternum, with tension.

Sleep.—Restless; from feverishness and irritable condition. Poor, on account of pressure behind centre of sternum and soreness, with raw and rough feeling in r. side of throat. Bad, from frequent desire to urinate and obstruction of nose and bronchi, as soon as she moved she raised thick, yellow, sweetish mucus, this lasted all day, with apparent dryness of nose and throat. Sleeplessness.

Fever.—Heat in forehead, > warm bathing.

Santoninum.

A solution is made with alcohol (1 to 99).

General Action.—A narcotic poison, producing unconsciousness, generally with convulsions, collapse, feeble respiration and pulse, free perspiration and sudden heart failure. The remarkable colored vision has been thought due to a coloring of the vitreous rather than to a specific action on the nerve fibres.

Generalities.—Trembled; and found it difficult to keep on my feet. Cramps. Convulsions; of limbs and face; beginning in face and extending to limbs, also affecting respiration, the irritation seemed to be in third to seventh nerves, pupils dilated; with unconsciousness, head hot, face purplish; unconsciousness, head hot, face bloated and violet, eyes rolling convulsively, pupils dilated and insensible, foam before mouth, jaws drawn together, snoring and convulsions of limbs; general, with unconsciousness, staring eyes, red, hot face, pupils dilated, < 1., and insensible, pulse rapid, weak and irregular, limbs and face constantly convulsed; more like tetanus, throwing head back, eyes rolling, face distorted, body sometimes nearly curved, with legs turned back, in the intervals grasping at everything, gnawing of fingers; clonic, without warning, beginning at l. angle of mouth and spreading over l. side of face, then similar spasms in r. arm beginning in fingers, later in l. side of face and l. arm, leaving fibrillary twitching of l. angle of mouth and eyelid, two more convulsive attacks on the same evening, in one of which respiration threatened to stop though the heart was beating strongly and pulse was normal, two or three similar fits daily for the next four or five days; clonic, of side of face at 4 p.m., beginning with twitching and distortion of corner of mouth, and then going into l. orbital muscles, at first simultaneous twitching of both bulbi, the convulsion turning to the left, pupils dilated, < 1., after a few minutes clonic C. of l. arm beginning in fingers and going up whole arm, voice quavering at beginning of fit, stopped after ten minutes, after fifteen minutes a second C. of l. side of face and arm, later only fibrillary twitchings at l. corner of mouth and l. eyelids, l. pupil dilated longer than r., then contraction of both and then normal state, after the fit complete euphoria, at 5.30 a similar attack, at 7 p.m. spasm began in l. side of face and l. arm, then l. leg, voice quavering and indistinct, eyes staring towards the left, with dilated pupils, voice gone, at 8 p.m. twitchings of abdominal and thoracic muscles, then r. side of face convulsed and eyeballs turned towards r., trismus, heart's action strong, stridor, artificial respiration, without it breathing was uncertain and at long intervals, spontaneous stool, then vomiting, then short clonic fits of r. leg, while spasms of l. leg was slighter, spasms repeated next day.

Malaise. Restlessness; as soon as the child lay down at night; with moaning, afterwards coma. Necessity to lie down. Weakness. Faint feeling. Collapse in morning. Partial paralysis of one side of the child, the hand appearing like induration of cellular tissue of the hand of an infant, the whole side blue, increasing till death. Amelioration in air and on motion.

Clinical.—It is said to have cured epilepsy.

Mind.—Delirium; during restless sleep. Excitement and inclination to laugh and dance. Hysterical laughter. Depression, with irresolution and lack of self-confidence, beginning with dullness and heaviness. Irritable, and restless, next day wanted everything, satisfied with nothing. Coma. Unconsciousness.

Head.—Turning and twisting, restless. Aching; in forehead. Dullness. Vertigo. Fulness in temples.

Eyes.—Surrounded by blue rings. Immovable and injected. Distorted. Rolled convulsively. Inclined to roll upward and have a sluggish motion. Pressure. Pupils dilated; and insensible; P. insensible. Pressure in supraorbital region.

Photophobia and lachrymation. Visions. Vision flickering. Objects seemed to totter and dance, and the child saw various figures, cherries, animals, etc. Vision yellow; to light-colored objects, afterwards light and dark objects became yellow-green and red seemed violet; yellowish to the gas flame, chandeliers, fire and all white objects strongly illuminated; and misty. V. green; of the blue sky in the twilight; bright; yellowish; yellowish, to the white glass-globes and writing paper. V. violet. Could not recognize violet. The fire had a curious red color and the light outside a peculiar yellow. Carmine red looked fallow, brick-red bronze, Berlin blue-greenish. Red and blue are seen in their complementary colors green and orange. Yellow egg-soup looked red and had a peculiar smell. The colors in some people's dresses were most vivid and shot up perpendicularly, and I had to quicken my pace to pass them.

Clinical.—Hyperæsthesia of the retina, then the sight becomes suddenly dim. Amblyopia. Retinal anemia; after eating, the eyesight becomes suddenly dim, rubbing clears the eye for a few moments. After diphtheria, flashes of light, etc.

Ears and Nose.—Earache. Hallucinations of smell.

Face.—Pale; around mouth, < afternoon. L. cheek red; and r. white. Yellowish. Swollen and purple. Pinched about mouth and nose in morning, with drawing in of lips over teeth. Twitching; < lips and lids. Lips red and swollen.

Mouth.—Teeth clenched. Frothing. Tongue deep red; T. dry; T. stiff. Stomatitis ulcerosa. Apparently burning pain, as she forces everything into her mouth. Hallucinations of taste.

Throat.—Swelling of glands beginning nearly under centre of chin and spreading both ways, < towards l. parotid, increasing so as to nearly prevent swallowing.

Stomach.—Appetite deficient. Thirst; continual, for ice-water, which she swallowed greedily, in morning. Eructations. Nausea; > cold water, with deathly feeling and thirst. Vomiting; with profuse diarrhœa; with purging and abdominal pains; with pain in stomach and abdomen; with pain in epigastrium; with epigastric pressure, colic and diarrhœa, face sunken, bluish circles around eyes, body cold and covered with sweat; of yellowish, slimy mucus from 11 p.m. till forenoon. After a spoonful of nourishment he choked, vomited blood and pus and died without a struggle. Pain in pit.

Abdomen.—Tympanitic. Swollen, but soft. Rumbling. Commotion, waking him at midnight, with general sick feeling and desire for stool, stool with urging. Pain; every night before stool. Sensitive. Hot, full.

Stool.—Tenesmus. Watery, flaky, offensive, every ten to fifteen minutes, diminishing at 10 A.M., then only three till after noon, but copious, grayish and smelling putrid.

Urinary Organs.—Urging, and during micturition irritation and smarting, urine saffron-yellow, staining like bile, scanty, sp. gr. 1028, urea increased. Frequent micturition; efforts at, but only a few drops each time. Ischuria. Dysuria. Painful micturition on account of burning in urethra, with constant desire, only a few drops staining intensely yellow. M. involuntary and copious towards morning; involuntary, by drops, urine deep orange-colored, becoming blood-red by admixture of azotic acid.

Urine.—Pale, copious, alkaline. Yellowish and scanty. Intensely yellow. Dark. Orange-colored. Saffron-colored and increased. Dark lemon-yellow, scanty, depositing dark yellow crystals of uric acid, nitric acid caused transient brownish-red color, alkalis caused an amaranth red color. Sulphur-yellow, thick, depositing a sulphur-yellow sediment, the urine above which was slightly greenish. Pinkish-red after standing. Turbid when voided, frequent and painful desire, urine scanty, dysury. Greenish; yellowish-green; light green and stained linen so that it could not be washed out; greenish-yellow, liquor ammonia caused a clear, red tint; green, becoming transiently purplish from nitric acid, but when sulphuric acid is added by drops it becomes reddish-brown, if a globule of potassium be dropped on the urine a bright red track is left, if a few drops of liquor ammonia are poured down the side of the test tube a red zone will mark the junction of the two liquids, but potash is a more delicate reagent, the red alkaline fluid is not altered by boiling, but the color is destroyed by any acid, the subsequent addition of an alkali restores the color as before, bicarbonate of sodium causes no immediate change, but on boiling some time the reddish tint gradually develops and is discharged by continued boiling, carbonate of sodium gives similar results, except that it requires longer boiling before the color is discharged, phosphate of sodium gives no results, the red stratum soon subsides to lower part of test tube, carried down by the phosphates, prolonged exposure to light in contact with excess of alkali bleaches the color and chlorine at once dissipates it, when the red liquid is examined with the spectroscope the red, orange and yellow rays are transmitted, while the blue end is absorbed, in a more dilute state the red and blue rays are transmitted. Cherry-red when caustic potash is added, but no sugar is obtained with the copper test. A pint was treated with neutral acetate of lead and then filtered, to the filtrate, neutralized with potash, basic acetate of lead was added as long as any precipitate was formed and it became colorless, neutralized, filtered and washed, the yellow precipitate was transferred to a beaker and decomposed by dilute sulphuric acid, spirit of wine was added, and after twenty-four hours filtered, removed excess of sulphuric acid by barytic water, filtered, the clear fluid now gave the pink reaction with potash, but ammonia had no effect, the red alkaline filtrate gave a bulky precipitate with alum, and when this precipitate was filtered off neither the precipitate nor the filtrate afforded any color with potash, the liberated coloring substance did not combine with nitrate of silver, was not affected by corrosive sublimate, sulphocyanide of potassium, chloride of gold or bichromate of potassium, with persalts of iron it gave a rich, brown color.

Clinical.—Chronic inflammation of the bladder, with incontinence of urine, or dysuria, emission of only few drops at a time, urine has a peculiar green color.

Respiratory Organs.—Cough all night from tickling in larynx and windpipe. Respiration stertorous and broken; R. embarrassed; rattling; rapid and sighing; rapid and catching; rapid, afterwards irregular and stertorous; light and at long intervals, and there was no desire to respire. Snoring. Symptoms of paralysis of lungs.

Pulse.—Rapid; and feeble; but easily compressed. Slow and small, also soft. Lowered. Gone on l. side, thready and soft in r. radial artery.

Extremities.—Flaccid. Spasms. Jerking of upper; of fingers; of hands and feet. Trembling. Gait tottering.

Skin.—Blue. Subicteric color. Urticaria, with œdema of skin of nose, lips and lids; U. over greater part of body, with vomiting, after second dose a white wheal on nose, surrounded by an erythematous blush, and similar eruption rapidly covered the body, lips greatly swollen and viscid saliva issuing from them, eyes almost closed from swelling of lids, oedema and rash, > a warm bath.

Sleep.—Sleepy; and tired. Grating of teeth in sleep. Sleep restless. Disturbed, and I awoke unrefreshed, with sickness, frontal headache and deficient appetite. Troubled dreams.

Fever.—Coldness; with blue lips and ears and white face; cool skin, < limbs; cold feet; feet and legs; limbs in morning, the clammy coldness creeping upward during the day. Fever all the afternoon; F., with rapid pulse, skin hot, face puffy, eyes red, brilliant, fixed. Hot head; < every afternoon and evening. Hot sweat on occiput, more clammy in front. Cold sweat; and viscous.

Sarsaparilla.

A tincture is made of the dried root of the Smilax officinalis, H. and B. (from Honduras).

Generalities.—Trembling of whole body, with anxiety; T. of hands and feet in forenoon, with tearing in forehead and pinching in abdomen. Mobility of whole body, hands and feet feel very light. Racking effects. Stinging now in head, now in r. ear, now in l.; in forehead and l. side of chest, mornings on walking out-doors. Lightning-like tensive pains here and there in body and about head. Sensation in all bones as if breaking. Drawing pain in scapulae and legs. Pain partially waking her at night without knowing where, but in morning she thought it must have been in abdomen (the day before menstruation). Feeling of strength. No exertion seemed to tire. Weakness; in forenoon, > a meal; < thighs, knees and feet, also during menses; with torpor, which induced him to lie on the ground, with unwillingness to move. Faintness in evening during stool. Aggravation from vinegar. Amelioration out of doors; A. from smelling camphor.

Clinical.—Bone-pains following gonorrhoea, or after the use of mercury, < dampness. Marasmus, with sore mouth, white sand in the urine, emaciation and shrivelled skin.

Mind.—Cheerful. Lively and happy. Merry; all day, and full of fun. Changeable mood. Ill humor; all day, > evening; in morning, with heaviness of head; in forenoon, with inclination to weep; in afternoon; with disposition to work; with indisposition to work and heat in face; without disinclination to work. Easily vexed and cannot forget the cause of the vexation. Silent moroseness. Aversion to everything in forenoon. Inclination to work in afternoon. Anxiety, with fear and palpitation; A., with constriction in throat; A. in head in forenoon, then in whole body, with trembling, < feet. Sadness; on account of pains, with moans; with sluggishness; and absorbed in himself. Thinks that she cannot bear the headache. Inactive and awkward. Absent-minded. Inaptitude for mental application. Stupor, with weakness of head.

Head.—Sticking so that he shudders. Pain like lightning. Tearing here and there, < motion and walking; T. deep in brain on talking and walking. Hammering pain evenings. < night, with nausea and sour vomiting. Pain; < touching or walking; with unconsciousness and inability to speak; with blackness before eyes; with flickering before eyes; with cough; or lightness; slowly increasing and decreasing, < upper part; as if screwed together at 2 P.M.; externally, like compressions and incisions. Throbbing till towards noon. Tingling as if a large bell had been struck, towards noon. Heaviness at 11 A.M., with stupidity, sometimes as if temples would be compressed together; H. < moving it, with tension in r. side of neck; with inclination to sink forward; with toothache. Dulness in forenoon, with stupidity; D. after sitting long, with mist before eyes, lassitude of limbs, stoppage of nose and gloomy mood; D. > towards evening; with flatulency. Weakness as after a fever, with stupor. Waving sensation at 2 P.M., with dull tremor. Vertigo frequently in forenoon; V. on gazing long at an object; when sitting and walking, with inclination of head to drop forward; when standing at a window he fell back unconscious, with swelling of throat, sour eructations before and afterwards, with pressure upon chest, and at night sweat; with unsteady gait; with general heat as from close air (on a cold, rainy day).

Forehead.—Sticking in middle; in l. side; on l. protuberance; in forenoon, > open air; in r. protuberance at 7 P.M.; in l. protuberance in evening; in r. protuberance, with pain; pulsating. Tearing; at 6.30 P.M. Pain in l. side; P. in forenoon and after dinner, with heaviness; and in occiput; in l. protuberance, then stinging. Throbbing in r. side on walking in open air. Heaviness.

Temples.—Sticking in r. at 1 P.M.; S. < touch; from r. to lower teeth at 2 P.M.; at root of r. mastoid process, > touch; burning, on l. bone. Stinging drawing from r. mastoid process to l. frontal protuberance. Drawing pressure on r. bone and on cartilage of ear. Heaviness in l.; in l. till noon; H., with desire to lie down.

Vertex.—Sticking on r. side, with pressing; tearing S. on l. bone.

Sides.—Sticking; in l. in morning, with pressing; from l. to nape; tearing, in r., so that he shudders. Stinging drawing on r. parietal and temporal bones. Pressure-like tearing in l. Pain in l., < temple; deep in r. half in morning, with itching; cramp-like, in one, beginning with flickering and blackness before eyes, he seems unconscious, must lie down and cannot speak, because every word reverberates in his head. Sensation as if screwed together after breakfast. Throbbing deep in r. side of brain; in forenoon, with sounding.

Occiput.—Twitching on l. side. Stinging in l. side; drawing S. towards forehead, with pressure in r. temple.

Scalp.—Sensitiveness to touch, with falling out of hair. Itching of r. half; on posterior part; > scratching; not > scratching; pricking.

Clinical.—Nervous headaches in the occiput, extending to the eyes, syphilitic or mercurial. Shooting headache from left ear to root of the nose; base of the nose and eyes swollen. Neuralgic headaches of r. side, pulsative and stitching, starting from the occiput.

Eyes.—Stinging on closing them; and pain when the closed lids are pressed upon, with a red stripe from cornea to outer canthus, the inner corners blue and are swollen. Sensation as from sand, > open air; as from sand in l. Pain on looking at anything in the daylight; P. on reading by candle-light, paper looks red; in l., then r., with dim vision; alternating with burning. Affected by all objects in morning. Lachrymation every other day; L. when gaping. Pupils dilated. Pressing in ball in evening when reading by candle-light, with red shine on paper. Lids inflamed and dry; quivering of r. upper; agglutination in morning and lachrymation in daytime; then agglutination in morning on waking, with burning; burning, sometimes alternating with pain. Vision dim; in l. eye in afternoon.

Ears.—Swelling of a gland under r., with inflammation and suppuration. Sticking deep in r. in forenoon; beneath and in front of l. in morning. Tearing in cartilage and external meatus of r.; in r. mornings; upward behind l. in afternoon. Ulcerative pain deep in l. in morning, and around anterior part. Constriction about r. external; in r. Compression up into temple, with pressure. Drawing in lobule of l., with twitching, later in either r. or l. Itching in l. external meatus at 6 A.M., not > scratching. Ringing in l. Tolling of bells in l. in afternoon.

Nose.—Eruption in l. nostril. Pricking in tip. Burning on blowing it; with dry cough. Stoppage in forenoon; of r. nostril on waking. Sneezing in morning after rising; only in morning, with fluent coryza; fails in the attempt to sneeze. Coryza, < r. side; C., with cough; with nausea, prostration, necessity to lie down, inability to move, pulse retarded; stopped. Thick mucus. Bleeding; from r. nostril; from l. nostril on blowing nose; each time she vomits; with feeling as if small bubbles burst in nose; light-colored, from r. nostril in evening on blowing nose.

Face.—Bruised pain about inferior orbital margins in morning on pressure, when waking. Stinging on lower inner edge of r. lower jaw on touch and on bending head back. Drawing stinging, tearing in r. masseter muscles, which are spasmodically contracted. Pain as if jaws would break. Tension in masseter muscles and joints of jaws in forenoon on motion, with stiffness. Limpid vesicle on r. side of lower lip. Tetter on upper lip, with sticking. Twitching of r. side of upper lip.

Mouth.—Teeth. Stinging in forenoon in one that had been painful for a long time. Tearing from a draught of cold air or cold drink. Retching. Vomiting; sour.

Distention after eating a little. Gripping in pit extending towards sacrum; during menses. Spasmodic twisting; after dinner, with ineffectual inclination to eructate. Spasmodic sensation in pit. Pain in pit in evening when singing; P. then vomiting of breakfast; in epigastrium and under ensiform cartilage, < touch; in region, with soft stool. Heaviness and indigestion. Weak feeling. Burning; after a mouthful of bread, as after spirituous drinks.

Abdomen.—Distention; after eating or drinking. Rumbling; after eating, with pinching, later passing up l. side towards stomach, > doubling up; with emptiness; with emptiness and clucking; with growling. Loud quacking, as in spasms, > eructations. Rolling; from 5 P.M. till midnight, with pinching, preventing sleep; during diarrhœa, with fermentation and offensive flatus. Motion, with coldness; M. with burning; all day, as before diarrhœa. Emission of flatus; all day; offensive; offensive, evenings.

Stinging an hour after dinner, and under r. ribs.

Cutting at 5 P.M., then semi-fluid stool; C. waking him after midnight, > morning; with scanty stool; with consistent stool. Gripping during menses. Pinching; during menses; then painful contraction of sphincter ani. Pain in morning; at 10 A.M. on pressure; with frequent diarrhoea. Constriction; in forenoon, then rumbling and grumbling, now around umbilicus, now towards chest, now downward, as before diarrhoea. Pressing drawing as after cold. Spasmodic sensations. Emptiness after breakfast, with feeling as if disembowelled. Feeling of inactivity. Internal chilliness. Burning.

Stinging in l. hypochondrium in forenoon, < bending towards r. Pain in hepatic region in morning on waking, > walking. Bruised pain in l. hypochondrium at 1 P.M., with throbbing. Stinging in l. side; now r., now l.; in l. in morning when sitting, > walking. Cutting in l. side on a line transversely towards back, then rolling in abdomen. Pain in l. Pressure inward in a spot in l., < deep inspiration, with pinching.

Cutting in a spot above umbilicus in morning; around U. in forenoon, then movements in abdomen, > emission of flatus; around U. on gaping. Moving in hypogastrium all day, as after a purgative. Pinching in l. groin. Straining constriction in hypogastrium in evening and forenoon, > passage of flatus. Tension in r. groin. Soreness in r. groin before menses, so that she can hardly walk; S. in bend of r. groin on appearance of menses, with urging to urinate.

Rectum.—Cutting and tearing. Acridity during diarrhoea. Urging during stool, with straining; U., then stool, scanty, soft, difficult from contraction of rectum; with contraction of intestines and pressure as if contents of abdomen would be pressed out, at last something passes with a jerk, with tearing and cutting in rectum, then immediate U. as if rectum would be pressed out; frequent, with scanty discharges and then tenesmus; ineffectual.

Anus.—Ulcer bearing a black pustule, opening with pain. Soreness waking him at night, then changing to burning itching, lasting all day. Burning after fluid stools. Itching on r. side, > scratching. Tenesmus after stool; after soft stool.

Stool.—Fluid evenings, then burning in anus; semi-fluid towards the end. Diarrhoea twice. Soft; and copious. Hard; and frequent micturition; at first, then soft; first part, last soft, then burning in anus. Constipation. Consistent, twice in one day. Pithy, sticky. Hurried before breakfast. S. and micturition delayed; and infrequent, scanty.

Clinical.—Obstinate constipation, with violent urging to urinate, pressure as if the bowels would be pressed out.

Urinary Organs.—Constriction of bladder without urging. Urging nearly all day, but scanty urine; U. waking him every morning; on appearance of menses; > perfect discharge of menses; frequent, with scanty discharge and burning. Strangury, with pressure in bladder, yet urine will not come, and when it comes cutting; S., as in case of stone, with discharge of mucus and of white, acrid, turbid matter. Micturition without sensation in the passage; M. frequently stops, scanty, with straining and burning; in a thin, weak stream, also urine pale, with flakes in it; but once during the day, with burning during the discharge, but in sufficient quantity; omitted in forenoon, then three times in afternoon and pale, then again omitted.

Wakes at night to urinate. Frequent micturition; and copious; and copious, urine pale; copious, two or three times at night, at first with burning; copious, pale, growing turbid on standing, like clay-water; and urine deposits a cloud.

Urethra.—Discharge of yellow pus, with redness and inflammation of glans and fever in evening, with rigors. Cutting. Scraping during micturition. Burning during micturition; with copious watery urine; with discharge of elongated flakes.

Urine.—Copious; in morning; during menstruation. Scanty and turbid like clay-water as soon as it is passed; S. and red mornings; and red, clear, with urging; with straining. Urine passed towards the end is mingled with blood, then with blood and pus, then the pain when urinating abates. Fiery, but without burning. Deep yellow, depositing a thin cloud. Turbid when passed, with burning; T. on standing, with much clay-colored sediment. Iridescent pellicle. (Compare with Chima-phila.)

Clinical.—Inflammation of the bladder, bloody urine, characterized by pain in neck of the bladder at close of micturition and chill running up the back from the bladder. Excess of gravel in the urine, especially in children. Fermentation in the bladder, as shown by the discharge of gas with urine.

Sexual Organs.—Intolerable odor. Glans red and inflamed. Tearing from glans to root of penis; after micturition, with burning and itching. Erections diminished. Herpes on prepuce. Itching on scrotum and perineum, and after scratching pimples oozing moisture. Emissions at night; with restless sleep; frequent E. several days, with inclination for coition; painful, nearly every night, with lascivious dreams. Inclination to coitus, with restless sleep. Slimy leucorrhoea when walking. Menses too early; too late; scanty, intermittent, acrid, with burning in inner part of thighs, so that she cannot approximate them on account of pain.

Clinical.—Swelling of the spermatic cord, with soreness, especially following sexual excitement. Nocturnal emissions followed by backache, dim vision, etc. Has been found useful in some conditions of secondary syphilis. Dysmenorrhoea characterized by retracted nipples.

Respiratory Organs.—Sticking in thyroid cartilage. Hoarse; every other day. Cough in forenoon, without expectoration; C., with nausea, vomiting of bile and diarrhoea; hard, in daytime, from tickling ulcerative secretion in fauces; dry, in forenoon, from roughness in throat; dry, with burning in nose on blowing it. Asthma, he is often forced to breathe short. Short breath; from slightest exertion; after dinner, and heavy; with pressure on chest. Difficult breathing; when working. Frequent deep inspiration after dinner. Stoppage of breath in evening and morning, with oppression of chest; S. as by an impediment in lungs or a spasm, with constriction in throat and anxiety.

Chest.—Nipples soft, insensible and not irritable. Stinging under last true ribs; in middle of sternum in morning; in r. breast at 1 P.M.; in r. side in afternoon on motion while standing; in r. side at 8.30 P.M., with tearing on upper surface of l. upper arm extending to wrist; in l. costal region, doubling him up in evening when sitting; in l. side when walking; in r. side, not affecting respiration; in middle, beside sternum, not affecting respiration; drawing, from r. clavicle into hyoid bone.

Pain; at night and in morning, with tightness; in centre, with inclination to keep still in order to relieve it; tense, externally, as if too short, on straightening up and walking erect. Tension about clavicle next to sternum. Constriction alternating with sudden expansion. Intermittent sensation as if screwed together when breathing and walking, so that he must loosen his clothes. Tightness, with dyspnoea and exhaustion so that he must loosen his necktie. Oppressive mornings, impeding respiration. Pressure at 11 A.M., with tearing from l. shoulder to tips of fingers; P. in afternoon; on sternum, worse during palpitation. Heat.

Heart and Pulse.—Palpitation; during the day. Pulse febrile. Pulse slow.

Neck.—Swelling of r. side of N. and throat, with pain on touch. Sticking in muscles, < touch and motion. Tearing in nape passing thence across vertex towards r. side of forehead in afternoon. Pain in nape in morning on moving head; wrenching, in a tendon in l. side on moving head. Tension in nape on moving head, with stitches. Chuckling in l. side, or else pulling.

Back.—Pain as if something were sticking fast to it on deep inspiration. Sticking between scapulae; from r. scapula down beside spine to last rib, < inspiration, with tearing, and on deep inspiration arrest of breath. Drawing in scapulae. Stinging under l. ribs, in lumbar region. Pain in lower part of back and sides; in lower part in forenoon on stooping and afterwards; in lower part, passing around sides of pelvis towards genitals, < night and motion; in lumbar region, < protracted stooping, so that walking is impeded, > rest when sitting or lying, reappearing as stitches on slightest turning of body, > afternoon. Bruised pain in sacral region evenings. Tensive pain from sacrum across l. hip on least motion, interfering with walking.

Extremities.—Mobility. Tearing at night, then headache; T. now here, now there, in all joints of body. Weakness.

Upper Extremities.—Shoulder. Cracking in r. joint on moving it. Stitches on raising arm. Tearing from r. joint to wrist in afternoon; from joints into elbows; intermittent, from l. into fingers in afternoon. Pain as from a thrust or blow on moving arm, > rest; in r. joint as from a thrust or blow on moving arm. Pain in r. joint, somewhat laming, in afternoon on moving arms, till lying down.

Stiffness of arms on motion after rest. Stinging above and in front of humerus; pulsating S. in arms near shoulder-joints. Pain in elbow as if tendon had snapped from place, on rapid pronation of forearm. Paralytic weakness of elbows. Twitching of forearms. Sticking in muscles of ulnae; tearing S. upward above l. wrist; stinging-drawing, on inside of r. forearm. Tearing on ulna, sometimes extending to metacarpal bones; T. across above wrist, with drawing-tearing stitches towards fingers; paralytic, in forearms near elbows, < rest. Tearing in l. wrist at 2 P.M. Sprained pain in r. wrist, drawing towards ring finger. Hands tremble. Intermittent sticking in metacarpal bone of r. index. Pain in hands. Stiffness of hands, > motion, with itching, burning, and swollen veins.

Fingers.—Inflammation of thumb, < night, with throbbing and burning. Sticking in first joint of r. little; in muscles of l. thumb; in first joint of thumb, later pain on touch. Tearing on backs of l. towards tips at 1.30 P.M.; drawing, through bones of r. ring, < motion. Cutting under one thumb-nail at 7 A.M., then under the other. Pain in tips on pressure, as from ulceration or as from salt in a wound. Numbness (going to sleep); N., < third and fourth.

Lower Extremities.—Lassitude.

Thigh.—Stinging on r. ischium; near l. patella; in l. popliteal space, then tearing. Tearing upward and outward near knee. Pressure on inside near l. knee; on r. above popliteal space when sitting. Hip-joints lame, bruised and tired. Weariness during menses. Heaviness in l. when sitting and walking. Stiffness in r., as if contracted, in popliteal space and calf, with swollen feeling under toe-nails.

Knee.—Swelling, with stiffness and stinging, so that he could hardly move it sideways. Sticking on inner side; S. about r. Tearing in l. at 2 P.M.; in r. when gaping while standing; intermittent, about l. from evening till midnight. Weariness all day.

Cramp in calf; at night; from tibia down into toes, has to try to find an easier position. Tearing in muscles of r. leg; T. down r. tibia at 1 P.M.; deep in l. tibia at 3 P.M. Pain in calves as after cramp. Drawing upward above r. tibia. Legs weak; in forenoon; during menses. Cracking in l. ankle on every motion.

Foot.—Swelling; of r. tarsus, < afternoon, with redness and pain. Tearing in l. sole from heel towards toes after midnight, then itching, and after scratching sticking through heel into dorsum of foot. Sole sensitive. Drawing in sole, with itching; painful D. on dorsum of r. foot changed into twitching. Painful throbbing on inside of r. sole when sitting, with pressing and pricking, then on whole sole. Tensive feeling in tendons and toes of l., as if toes were drawn inward, in morning; T. feeling in r., as if swollen. Swollen feeling, > exercise, with itching and heat in soles. Tired when standing.

Toes.—Tearing in l. great, more towards tips, evenings; T. in r. great, with drawing. Aching about nails as if swollen.

Skin.—Warts. Red, rough elevations on forehead. Itching eruptions under nose. Tetter on all parts; on hands. Red herpetic spots on calves, with itching. Nettle-rash on neck, chest, eyelids, hands and whole body, with burning after rubbing. Eruption itching, burning and moist after rubbing, three days before menses. Inflammation like a run-around, around nail of r. index, then on l.

Pimples on face; fingers; rashlike, on going into cold air from a warm room; red, on r. knee, with itching at first; red, on back and thighs, with corroding itching in warmth, > scratching; itching, on chin; itching P. and pustules on sides of chin; itching, on cheek, inflamed far around, with burning, ending in a thick scab and causing tearing burning pain in open air.

Cracks on r. thumb, with burning pain. Herpes phlyctenodes on l. side of neck in one case, in two others irregular patches on face and l. arm, with pustules on hand wherever skin was abraded. Pustule in middle of forehead; on face; r. side of nose; dorsum of r. foot; r. side of nose, r. dorsal side of foot, l. gluteal region, sometimes with stinging on touch; itching; P. which have been scratched open leave ulcers suppurating for a long time. Ulcerations running around ends of fingers. Boil on l. buttock, stinging on touch; B. or pimples on face, < cheeks. Itching blister under chin. Clear vesicle on inside of r. wrist, behind little finger, itching, then burning, after opening the V. discharge of watery fluid, increased burning, inflammation and a scab, itching < night.

Scab on lobule of ear, with burning pain, then itching. Thick, dirty, yellowish-brown crusts, with inflamed areola and suppurating border, beneath labial commissure, extending towards mesial line of chin, afterwards the patches united and covered chin, with occasional pustules around the borders, with patches and pustules on l. hip, extending from anterior superior spine upward and backward towards lumbar region, the crusts were removed by the clothing and the eruption appeared like herpes zoster, a new crop began by small pustules on an inflamed base, later the eruption covered cheeks, with pustules on nose, forehead and neck, and the patch on hip extended to spine, with itching, disturbing sleep.

Pricking in calves; over r. external malleolus; outward, < about neck, with heat on chest, back and face. Fornication in sacral region in forenoon; on l. foot at 5 p.m. on raising it and putting it down.

Itching, now here, now there; I. on l. side of nose and around eyes; about nipples; on hand and back of fingers; on outer edge of r. foot in evening, he has to scratch the ankle till it bleeds; at night, preventing sleep; towards hand and on inside above hollow of knee, < evenings in bed; every night, > in bed. I. < scratching, before and after lying down; here and there, < evening before and after lying down. I. > scratching, in r. flank; on hips in forenoon; on abdomen in evening; I. on top of r. foot in afternoon, after scratching it appears on l. tibia, > scratching. I. not > scratching, here and there; on face; in l. ear; on r. wing of nose; around umbilicus; on r. hip; under knees, and in front above them; in front of wrist in forenoon; on back in afternoon. I. returning after scratching; on forehead; above l. knee afternoons; on r. buttock evenings. I., with vesicles, or with pimples after scratching. I. on chin, then small pimples; I. on r. calf in evening, then pimples; on tendon below calves in evening and morning, and burning after scratching; on thighs, and after scratching pimples; on inside of r. forearm, and after scratching vesicles; in hollows of knees afternoons and mornings, after scratching little vesicles; on outside and front of l. thigh in afternoon, after scratching little vesicles. Burning I. on abdomen, over thighs; over whole body, with rigors. Pricking I. from 5 till 7 p.m. over whole body, and in morning on rising; in face and scalp, about neck and shoulders, with warmth in these parts, on scratching it begins in another place.

Clinical.—Eruptions like roseola, with itching. Moist eruptions, with exoriating discharge. Eruptions during hot weather becoming ulcers. Syphilitic eruptions.

Sleep.—Gaping; in forenoon, with crawling. Sleepiness; in forenoon, with sluggishness; with internal chill. Falls asleep in evening, with starting; and with dreams of falling, slipping, etc. Finds himself lying on his back on waking at night and in morning. Sleepless almost all night; before midnight from restlessness in body and soul, and mobility in limbs; for a long time after 2 a.m. Little sleep, with starting up. Starting up in fright five times in one night, with difficulty in falling asleep again; started up hurriedly, scratched above her knee unconsciously and then slept again immediately. Sleep restless; with dreams of disaster; with inclination to coitus, emissions and twitching in forearms; and unrefreshing. Sleep interrupted. Waking as if frightened by a sound.

Dream of relatives long dead. D. towards morning that white spectres come into his room and near his bed, he was frightened at first, but he struck them down with both fists, after which his nose bled and he woke, and he thought he had struck himself on his nose. Horrible, in a deep sleep; horrible, for instance, of a big soldier. Heavy, frightful, unremembered. Of vexation. That she was sleigh-riding, the sleigh upset, she started and woke. Of the business of the day before. Of what was talked about the day before. Lascivious without erections; but waking him.

Fever.—Chilliness; frequently during the day, with blue nails; in morning in bed; in forenoon; in forenoon, then till evening warmth and sweat; in evening; in evening on lying down, > in bed; in evening, with fever; at night, on waking; at night, waking her frequently; at night, in bed, with cold feet and heat in face and chest; from below upward over whole body; running over her in forenoon; running over her on going into open air; internal, with sleepiness. Shaking chill at night; before dinner, > "wasser soup," with chattering of teeth; without external coldness; with gaping, internal coldness and external heat, or both mixed, thirst, cough and vomiting. Cold hands, < towards tips of fingers; on arms, thighs, back and inside abdomen.

Heat; all day, with thirst; at 10 a.m.; after breakfast; in evening, with mirth and feeling of strength; in evening in bed, an hour before sleep, blood boils, heart beats and sweat stands on forehead. Heat in face; and scalp, neck, shoulders, with prickling; and chest and back, with frontal sweat and with prickling outward, < about neck. Heat in head during dinner, with sweat on forehead. Sweat; at night; on forehead; on hands; on forehead in evening in bed; on joints at night on waking.

Secale Cornutum.

A tincture is made of the fresh fungus, ergot of rye.

General Effects.—The chief interest in the action of ergot centres about its power to produce tonic contractions of involuntary muscle fibre; the arterioles are violently and persistently contracted, causing dry coldness of the surface and even gangrene of the lower extremities; the peristaltic muscles of the bowels are affected and the gravid uterus contracts violently. Convulsions are liable to occur. Anæsthesia and paralysis result, particularly tremblings and paraplegia.

Allies.—Tabac., Ars., Phos., Ustil., Carbo v., Sabin., Verat. a., Plumb.

Generalities.—Emaciation. Consumption. Secretions diminished. Gangrene of stomach, lungs and liver, preceded by inflammation. Unsteadiness of whole body. Trembling; from every effort, even stretching out of tongue. Painful stretching. Irregular movements, < limbs. Voluntary muscles responded irregularly, with occasional spasms of limbs and back. Cramps in legs, arms and chest. Tetanic cramps; with stiffness of limbs, so that she often fell when walking. Tetanic contractions of face and limbs, > hot baths.

Twitchings; of limbs and face; under skin; here and there, similar to epileptic ones, then contractions of flexors, fingers strongly bent into palms, pulse small, not frequent, irregular. Twitching tremulous sensation in single muscular fibres and in whole muscles, in face and hands.

Convulsions; from excitement, then weakness and sopor; at every excitement, < forenoon, then weakness, sometimes stiffness of joints, the patient > rubbing and stretching limbs; < night, gradually > towards noon, with sweat from anxiety; of all extensors, and puerperal convulsions; with cold sweat; without previous unpleasant symptoms; sudden vertigo and blindness, entire or partial unconsciousness, falling to the ground, contractions of joints, twitching of limbs, trembling, ineffectual retching, elbows pressed against chest, wrists flexed, fingers doubled into hands, heels drawn upward, toes bent under soles; ending in sweat; then tetanus; then distortion of limbs, dilated pupils, unconsciousness, delirium, weakness of mind or insensibility, in which they kept to themselves, stared at by one who spoke to them, answered nothing, others felt paralyzed, were unable to stand or walk; then insensibility and paralysis of parts affected; then insensibility, fingers and hands numb and lips pale; then anesthesia, loss of sight and hearing and coma; periodic; tonic; clonic, with pain, preceded by crawling, becoming tonic, then tetanic; often changed from clonic to tonic, even to tetanus and trismus; clonic, that in some parts changed to tonic or alternated with them. Epileptiform spasms; in children; with unconsciousness; at intervals of about a month, during which she lost her memory, became foolish and spoke with difficulty. Epilepsy; especially in children; then gradual idiocy. Opisthotonos; with tonic contractions of muscles, anxiety and loud cries. Emprosthotonos.

Wandering sticking tearing. Gnawing boring in flesh, < night, preventing sleep. Pain, < heat applied to any part (Sabin., Carb. v.), and if on a cold day any additional covering was laid upon him while asleep he woke almost instantly and threw it off, in the coldest weather he lay in bed with only an old cloak over him; P. over whole body, < back and small of back; in every nerve, with emptiness in head, then swelling of palpebrae, lips and fauces, lachrymation, coryza, difficult breathing through nose and injection of conjunctiva, lips and palpebrae livid, power of deglutition nearly lost, voice feeble, jaws fixed and difficulty in answering; sudden P., so that he cried aloud and ran about as if mad; periodical; every ten or twenty minutes, with contractions of limbs.

Drawing and crawling changing sometimes rapidly, sometimes slowly into pains and spasms, limbs flexed and skin covered with sweat. Soreness all over body, could not lie with ease and could not be moved without taking hold of her hands. Tingling all over body in morning on waking, sometimes painful. Discomfort. Restlessness; with wailing or screams. Typhoid symptoms. Indolence; then stupefaction, coldness and insensibility of limbs, then gangrene.

Debility; all day; after sleep; from moving or speaking; on walking across the room, with vertigo; with depressed temperature; with slow, feeble pulse; with numbness and occasional insensibility of limbs; with inability to move lower limbs and but little control over upper; then limbs painful, cold, rigid, almost insensible, with internal pain, < heat, somewhat > cool air, the pain gradually extended from toes to legs and thighs and from fingers to arms and shoulders, till sphacelus supervened, the affected parts dead, black and dropped off. Faintness.

Loss of voluntary motion and even power of utterance. Inability to move though not very weak. Rigidity and soreness of muscles, < lower limbs; R. and loss of sensation and pains, < warmth, > cold, but in its place coldness of whole body. Heaviness. Senses benumbed. Paralysis; so that he could not stand, with weakness in small of back and trembling of feet. Paralytic symptoms; < during daytime. Aggravation on appearance of menses. Amelioration from vomiting; from vomiting of mucus or worms; from sweat; from extension of the flexed limbs; of the paroxysms at night.

Clinical.—General tendency to spasm of extensor muscles, hysterical. Paralysis of flexor muscles (Plumb.). Paralysis, with internal heat and external coldness. In general, indicated in diseases of putrescence, with threatening collapse; the pulse, however, is flighty and rapid. Collapse, with blue rings round the eyes, sometimes with unnatural appetite and thirst. The characteristic aversion to being covered and to heat seems to be associated with a sense of burning up internally.

Mind.—Delirium; in children, with red face and thirst; with violence; then heavy sleep and snoring, she could be aroused to low muttering wanderings; he understands nothing and makes no answer; she abandons her relatives and does absurd things; muttering; muttering, with restlessness and fear of death; raving, and patient difficult to restrain, then vomiting, then deep sleep, then vertigo and exhaustion. Raving; with attempts to jump into the water. Sensorium disturbed at night, could not get rid of the impression that there were two sick persons in the bed, one of whom recovered and the other did not. The room appeared like the "foaming of a troubled sea." Illusions of sense. Excitement and confusion; E., with wild look and impaired vision.

Jolly. Anxiety; with fear of death (Acon.); with difficult respiration. Fear. Moaning; and swaying of arms to and from head; sighing; plaintive, changing to loud screams. Sadness. Rage. Irritability. Obstinaey. Ill at ease, stupid, sleepy. Strong desire to recover. Loathing of life, despair. Disinclination to work. Disinclination to answer. Desire to be left undisturbed. Apathy. Stupor. Thought and speech difficult. Thought disturbed. Imbecility. Foolish. Memory weak. Consciousness till the last breath, and just before death it seemed as if he would improve. Insensibility. Coma; incomplete.

Clinical.—Occasionally useful in puerperal mania. Delirium, with restlessness, throwing off the clothes, etc.

Head.—Pendulum-like movements. Sharp pain, > diarrhoea, with dizziness after the chill, the pain returned next morning after the diarrhoea had ceased. Aching; with delirium; burning. Dulness. Stupefaction. Throbbing. Agreeable sensation, then heaviness and confusion, < occiput, and general exhilaration. Heaviness; and uneasiness; sometimes H. and throbbing, sometimes lightness and vertigo. Oppression, with incapacity for mental exertion. Lightness, < occiput. Vacant, with feeling as if something whirled around in it. Emptiness, and the lowest word reverberated through head and passed through every nerve of body. Discomfort. Congestion. Apoplexy. Vertigo; on moving; < eating bread.

Forehead.—Throbbing pain. Burning pain day and night; B. pain, so that he would willingly die, with a sad expression, mouth drawn and filled with saliva from submaxillary glands, which were swollen. Heaviness of sinciput.

Pain in l. side of head; in occiput; lightning-like in occiput, extending down nape. Hair fell out; and dry and gray. Sensation as if hair were pulled. Biting on head.

Eyes.—Sunken; and surrounded by a blue margin. Cataracts (two cases of hard, twelve of soft, nine mixed), with headache, vertigo and roaring in ears. Glistening. Yellow. Retina and discs pale, < r. Staring; and blind; and wild, with dilatation of pupils; and wild, with redness of face, inarticulate moans and movements of head to and fro, arms rigid and immovable, hands drawn over to chest. Squinting. Rolling. Spasmodic distortion. Pain. Conjunctiva yellow; C. and sclerotic yellow and injected. Pupils dilated; and sluggish. Pupils contracted; spasmodically. Pressure in balls. Photophobia. Vision dim; < rising or moving in bed; and blurred; and confused, then double, then blindness. Vision troubled. V. double; and triple. V. flickering. V. of sparks. Blindness. Everything looks black on rising in bed; on moving head.

Ears.—Stopped sensation. Roaring; with difficult hearing. Surring. Deafness.

Nose.—Dryness. Bleeding (Carbo v.). Smell acute.

Face.—Drawn. Sunken; and often discolored. Pale; in morning, and collapsed; and sunken, hippocratic; and haggard. Anxious. Risus sardonicus. Ashy. Livid. Yellow. Red; and warm; dark. F. and head suddenly became purplish after stimulants and warmth were applied. Swollen. Distorted. Suffering expression. Stupid expression. Trismus. Lips bluish. Lips distorted; retracted, so as to expose teeth.

Mouth.—Teeth. Loose and fell out. Sordes; bloody. Gnashing.

Tongue.—Clean. White; and tremulous, heavy, difficult to protrude between the immovable teeth, so that speech was almost unintelligible; coated white at noon, dry and brown at tip, next day coated brown and pointed at tip, third day coated brown, dry at tip, edges stiff and swollen, fourth day brown and dry, fifth day dry, brown at tip and lead-colored at root, sixth day brownish lead-colored coat in centre, red at tip and edges, seventh day clean, dry and red at tip, eighth day dry, glazed and stiff, ninth day clear, red, pointed, tenth day red and dry, eleventh day red, dry, cracked and bleeding. Coated whitish-yellow in morning, and dry. Covered with mucus. Creamy. Brown, at last black. Scarlet at edges, crimson and black in middle, and dry. Swelling; and twitching, with suffocated voice and salivation. Bitten; during the convulsions. Prickling. Crawling, with pain; painful C., with spasmodic movements of tip. Speech difficult; S. slow and weak, with feeling on every motion as if there were resistance to be overcome. Inability to speak distinctly. Stammering; and hesitation in answering questions.

Mouth spasmodically closed or drawn. Flow of frothy, bloody mucus. Froth bloody, yellow or green.

Sore and bleeding; sore as if salivated. Scalding, and in throat and stomach. Dryness; not > drinking. Constant inclination to spit. Expectoration of bloody saliva. Salivation; sour-tasting. Frequent running of water from mouth. Breath fetid. Taste bitter in morning; bitter, spoiled; nauseous, bitter; nauseous; fetid; flat, disagreeable; as if he had smoked tobacco long or taken ethereal oil; blunted; inability to taste or bear food.

Throat.—Hawking up of tenacious mucus all the forenoon, with pain in r. tonsil. Soreness and tightness; S. at 10 A.M., with difficulty in swallowing, oesophagitis, and at 8 P.M. inability to swallow when lying. Dryness; with irritation and injection, and on l. side of soft palate a dark patch looking like an effusion of blood beneath mucous membrane. Crawling. Burning; in fauces, extending down oesophagus to stomach. Tearing in oesophagus and bronchi.

Stomach.—Appetite unnatural, even when dying from exhausting stools. Appetite ravenous; especially for bread; especially for acids. A. lost. Aversion to food; and drink; with occasional coldness in stomach, that thence pervaded the whole frame; to everything except sour drinks. Thirst; with dryness of mouth and throat, with burning and tingling of tongue; for sour drinks; for undiluted wine at dinner; but inability to drink much because it distressed the stomach; unquenchable.

Eructations; offensive; sour. Singultus. Nausea; all day; after eating; with debility and scanty vomiting of coffee-grounds fluid; with sinking at stomach; alternating with heavy confusion in head. Sensation similar to seasickness. Retching, with pressure in pit of stomach; ineffectual R.

Vomiting; at 8 P.M.; soon after bread, < a hearty meal, without diminished appetite; with spasmodic constriction of stomach; easy; violent; in sudden attacks at night, with pain over whole body; of food; of all food, drink and medicine; of blood; brownish water streaked with blood; of coffee or chocolate-colored matter; hardened black bile; dark, bilious matter; raw, offensive, bilious substances; shreds of mucous membrane; sour, dark green matter; sour, dark green mucus, containing shreds of disorganized membrane; sour matter or tenacious mucus; dark brown mucus and everything taken into stomach; tenacious mucus in morning fasting; slimy substance and frequently round or thread-worms.

Cramp. Pain; in pit; in epigastric region; in morning, with pyrosis; with soreness; with water-brash; obstructing respiration, with great appetite. Epigastrium tender. Oppression; in epigastrum; in pit; and distress. Cardialgia; in pit, without loss of appetite. Constriction in epigastrum. Uneasiness. Prickling, almost agreeable, > open air, recurring in a warm room. Heartburn. Burning, with pain in abdomen; B. in epigastric region, also with excitement.

Clinical.—Hicough. Vomiting of blood, sudden, violent, with cold sweat. Extreme pressure and contraction in the stomach, followed by vomiting. Terrible distress in the stomach and abdomen, with burning, accompanied by vomiting.

Abdomen.—Distention. Tympanitic. Tense; and hard, painful to touch. Very soft. Rumbling. Sticking when coughing, suddenly extending into r. testicle. Pain as if a hundred knives were drawn through parts down to womb, ovaries, urethra and vulva. Gripping, with stools. Pain; in morning, with urging to stool, > normal stool; with inability to stand erect; every fifteen minutes; extending into testicles, > stroking, with drawing; flatulent; convulsive. Spasmodic tension. Soreness. Coldness, and in back. Heat, < epigastric region. Paralysis of intestines.

Liver torpid. Pain in liver. Tenderness in r. hypochondrium. Painful contractions in upper abdomen. Pain in hypogastrum; occasionally; burning; sudden circumscribed, after delivery; extending into scrotum evenings, with dragging as from flatus; from l. groin to calf, then legs and feet swollen, covered with phlyctenæ and gangrene on lower third of legs, descending towards feet and ascending to upper part of legs.

Rectum and Anus.—Anus wide open (Phos.). Hæmorrhage from bowels (Phos.); the blood does not clot, is thin and almost black. Cutting in rectum; stinging, with irritability of sphincter, with spasms. Excruciating pains in hæmorrhoidal veins. Pain in r., with spasm. Ineffectual desire; frequent. Paralysis of r.

Stool.—Diarrhœa; > hot baths; exhausting; pernicious; offensive; frequent, brown, slimy, next day fetid and dark; dark gray, looking as if meal had been stirred through it, and of sickly odor. Thin, olive-green, for the second time in forenoon, then burning extending high up in rectum and itching in anus; thin, involuntary. Watery. Constipation. At first mucous, then mucous or sanguinolent. Contained disorganized mucous membrane, as in dysentery. Evacuation of worms; in children.

Clinical.—Watery diarrhœa, sudden, with unquenchable thirst, drinking and vomiting, suppression of urine, shrivelled skin, icy coldness and an aversion to heat, would not be covered. Dysentery, particularly valuable in the collapsed stage, stools involuntary, grumous; with these conditions it has saved many apparently hopeless cases. Asiatic cholera, particularly with the icy coldness and intolerance of being covered (of first importance).

Urinary Organs.—Bladder and ovarian region sensitive. Paralysis of bladder. Frequent urging, not without effort; ineffectual U. Inability to urinate. Micturition frequent and copious; involuntary M.; rare, dribbling and without relief; difficult, with constant desire. Urine retained. Did not urinate at night, contrary to habit, and no desire in morning, but much clear urine passed vigorously during stool. Spasm of meatus urinarius. Cutting in urethra on attempting to urinate, with smarting. Burning in urethra during micturition.

Urine.—Copious. Scanty, watery, clear; S. and dark, next day "prune-juice" colored, third day suppressed, on introducing catheter a gill of prune-colored urine, full of gritty sediment and of disagreeable odor, afterwards urine contained mucus and albumen, later involuntary mixture with blood and albumen. Pale. Clear like water; but at times turbid. White sediment like cheese. Thick red sediment.

Clinical.—Suppression of the urine. Hæmorrhage from kidneys or bladder. Albuminous urine, after scarlet fever, with dropsy.

Sexual Organs.—Numerous erections, even after coition. Dragging in spermatic cord, so that testicles seemed drawn up to groins.

Female.—Gangrene of vaginal mucous membrane, with a dark slate color. Discharges almost black, fluid and fetid; D. of the color of prune-juice. Vagina hot. Pain in vulva; with soreness and throbbing. Vulva tender. Sensation of boiling water running from vulva up to mouth.

Uterus.—Hæmorrhage (Ustil., Carbo v.); and apparent death of a new-born child. Irregular stormy contractions. U. and r. ovary congested and sensitive to touch, sphincter vaginæ and vagina relaxed. Os wide open (before delivery), thick and soft. Os tinea open, sensitive to touch, hot and engorged, with profuse flowing. Descended so that it almost protruded from labia, was hot and painful, os was open, with urging to urinate and labor-pains, > wet bandages or by pressure upon abdomen, the woman went to the eighth month, when she miscarried. Expulsive pains. Labor-pains. Pain, and in ovaries. Cessation of lochia, with fever, inflammation of uterus, later an abscess that opened through vagina. Retention of placenta due to hour-glass contraction of uterus and subsequent sterility. Puerperal state. Abortion; at two months, mass perfectly black; at six months, after discharge of placenta, vomiting, jactitation, precordial pain, pallor, cold skin, uterine contraction at irregular intervals, then unconsciousness, strabismus and death; between seventh and eighth months; then tearing in limbs. Death of fetus.

Metrorrhagia. Menses suppressed; too profuse, congestion of blood to uterus, metrorrhagia, contractions of uterus so that it seemed ready to burst, all symptoms worse previous to menses.

Clinical.—It has cured various tumors of the uterus and appendages, with profuse menstruation or hemorrhage thin and black, often fetid, with expulsive pains. Uterine displacements. Subinvolution of the uterus. During labor or uterine hemorrhages it should be used with great discretion; it is extremely dangerous when there is albuminuria, for it is liable to bring on convulsions; if used too freely during labor it is extremely apt to cause puerperal metritis. Menstrual colic, with coldness, intolerance of heat, forcing pains. Lochia offensive, greenish and purulent. In puerperal fever it has made some brilliant cures when there was danger of putrefaction, with putrid discharges, tympanitis, chills, coldness, intolerance of covering, suppressed urine, tendency to collapse.

Respiratory Organs.—Voice weak, unintelligible, stammering. Cough, with easy expectoration of much tenacious mucus. Expectoration of blood during violent efforts to breathe. Asthma after suppression of itch, > reappearance of the eruption. Respiration difficult; as from a weight on chest, so that he must take deep and forced inspirations (Phos.); from contractions of diaphragm. Sighs. Anxious respiration (Phos.). Respiration slow; and small. Costal respiration.

Clinical.—Cough, apparently from spinal anæmia, pain all through the chest caused by pressure on the spine.

Chest.—Milk suppressed. Pleurospasmus, with suffocative, catarrhal loss of speech and twitching of muscles. Pain; in sternum and l. upper part; sharp, in sternum. Oppression.

Clinical.—Hæmorrhage of the lungs, dark venous. Gangrene of the lungs (Phos., Caps.).

Heart.—Pain in precordial region. Precordial anxiety. P. anguish and dyspnoea. P. tenderness. P. discomfort. Spasmodic throbbing. Beating rapidly at times during the day, in the earlier part of which she lay motionless. Palpitation; with contracted, frequently intermittent pulse. Action slow.

Pulse.—Rapid; and small; and small, contracted, often intermittent; and small, hard; and small, feeble; and fluttering, depressed; on least exertion, and feeble; and weak; and weak, intermittent, variable. Slow; and full, tense; and at times full, at times small and tense; and small, suppressed; and small, weak; and small, thin; and small, soft; during the spasms, and small, at times intermittent and scarcely perceptible; and weak. Weak, depressed. Small; and contracted.

Neck and Back.—Stiffness of nape; of muscles of r. side of neck in morning, with pain on turning head. Pain in back; > stooping, with dragging and pressure in hypogastrium; in lumbar region.

Extremities.—Pale, cold and wrinkled, as if they had been long in hot water. Swelling, sometimes with rash, vesicles, furuncles, ulcers and exanthema. Nails purple. Falling off of nails from thumbs and fingers and from one of l. toes, the denuded parts covered with flabby granulations secreting a fetid discharge. Trembling; < exertion; and pain.

Cramps, with excruciating pains and fornication; C. of hands and feet, which are painfully contracted. Arms and legs semi-flexed and semi-pronated and rigid, pain on attempting to straighten limbs. Alternately flexed and extended, with irresistible desire to stop the spasm by the will, which he was imperfectly able to do. Convulsive movements; several times during the day, in the intervals fingers numb and often contracted. Spasms and twitchings; tonic S. Contractions of hands, feet, fingers and toes; sudden periodic C., with tensive pain; C. till they became cold and immovable, with pains in various muscles, in some cases becoming tetanic, with trismus and opisthotonos or epilepsy, then weakness of memory, the attacks often occurred suddenly in the night; of flexor tendons, as if we would hop about. Distortion, even fingers bent backward; D. of hands and feet; of hands and feet, < in children, with slow panderulations. Jerking so that he could not move or bend fingers.

Tearing. Pain; and bruised sensation; with cramps in flexors; spasmodic; spasmodic, and in gum; spasmodic, in hands and feet, changing from place to place, with constant crying; periodic drawing, extending downward in knees and elbows, with insensibility, coldness of skin and difficult movement. Drawing, < arms; in hands and feet; with crawling; and tearing; in hands and feet, with tearing; D. or tearing in limbs or joints, sometimes with crawling, < limbs. Tingling; of fingers and feet.

Weakness; < upper. Heaviness; with pain in calves. Insensibility; of fingers and toes; of tips of fingers and toes; and coldness. Fuzzy feeling (Phos.). Sensation as if asleep, with fornication. Stiffness; after the spasms. Paralysis.

Clinical.—Cramps in the legs, with coldness, cold sweat. Paralysis of the extremities, with cramps, numbness and fornication.

Upper Extremities.—Tonic spasms. Tearing in r. shoulder and upper arm as from a string around it, then pain in muscles. Pain in l. shoulder. Falling asleep of arms. Paralysis of arm. Paralytic symptoms of arm (with drawing and tearing), with rigid flexion of fingers and acute pains. Spasms of fore-arms, hands drawn inward and approximated to chest, pain > attempting to extend the flexed part. Hands contracted. Hands weak. Soft, painful, watery swelling of wrists.

Fingers.—Contractions. Flexed tightly into hands. Bent backward, difficulty in carrying hands to mouth and distortion of eyes. Cramps, especially in children.

Pain in tips; then lymphatic swelling extending up arms, then loss of ends of fingers. Prickling in tips, with sensitiveness to cold, then suppuration, then falling of nails leaving an unhealthy granulating surface. Drawing. Rigid, cold, shrivelled, painful to pressure, dry, hands covered with red erysipelatous spots, scales and cracks. Numbness; of tips (Phos., Tab.); crawling.

Lower Extremities.—Reeling. Flexed, they could not stand upright and reeled. Twitching. Spasmodic contractions so that they could walk only on tips of toes. Convulsions and pain. Pain and weakness. Weakness, with painful rigidity; W. so that gait was stumbling. Walking difficult; impossible. Paralysis. Creeping insensibility anteriorly in thigh and calf during the day. Cramp in legs and feet; in calves. Pain in calves and feet. Weakness in legs, then pain, < night. Weight in calves and ankles; in legs and feet, with want of tone. Swelling of feet; dropsical. Inversion of feet. Cramp in feet, with weakness. Feet asleep and stiff. Anæsthesia of soles. Cramp in toes.

Skin.—Swelling and pain without inflammation, then coldness, blue color, cold gangrene and death of the limb; S. of hands and feet, with gangrene, black and suppurating eruption; emphysematous S. Discolored; on fingers and toes, then gangrene, then dropping off of limbs. Purple color of hands, feet, ears and nose, and much of skin mottled; ends of toes purple, suppurated and fell off. Echymoses. Red. Yellow; muddy, and dry. Jaundice of a child when born. Yellowish-brown, hot and dry. Lead-colored, wrinkled, disappearance of vessels and insensibility, so that she could be cut and pricked without pain and without bleeding. Soft, flabby. Dry; and rough; and withered. Capillary action slow. Capillaries seemed empty. Spots like flea-bites on feet. Livid spots over body. Exhalations of a vinous odor; fetid E.

Gangrene of fingers and toes; of feet and legs; of limbs, they suddenly become cold, lead-colored and insensible; of limbs without pain when pricked or cut, though often motion is not entirely lost; with separation of the part from the body; the dead part separated at the joint; in toes and legs, and dropping of joints, ending in death or fatuity; of fingers and toes; with separation of soft parts, general weakness, paralysis, desquamation of affected parts, stools thin, involuntary, then apoplexy and death; of limbs, with coldness, legs came off without loss of blood, all dead parts were dry, hard and black. Cold gangrene of limbs; of nose, fingers, hands, arms, feet, tibiae and thighs; C. and dry; C. and painless, so that fingers and toes drop off. Hot gangrene that eats the flesh and bones. Lost both feet and most of his fingers.

Eruptions; changing to gangrene, on fingers and toes, spreading rapidly over limbs. Anthrax changing into gangrene of limbs. Petechiæ. Desquamation. Boils; on neck; on neck, discharging yellow matter, with burning pain; on lower limbs, with petechial exanthema, outer parts of limbs, < fingers, dark blue, gangrenous and dead and fell off; on back, nates and abdomen, with cutting, surrounded by erysipelatous redness and becoming gangrenous, the gangrene extended over trunk and thighs, with separation of epidermis and cadaverous odor, then bloating of abdomen, hicough, coma and death. Blood ulcers. Blisters covering the swollen hands and feet; gangrenous B.; painless, on l. index, discharging ichor, the base of the sore blackish, all fingers insensible.

Sticking here and there, > scratching, but returning, with heat in the scratched places. Burning, torpid, prickling sensation over whole surface, with difficulty in moving limbs, with sensation as in a limb on pressure upon trunk of a nerve, when we say that the limb is asleep. Pain. Disagreeable sensation. Formication; under skin; on face, gum and other parts; face, arms and legs; limbs; hands and arms; tips of fingers, hands, neck and other parts; hands and feet; limbs, with tearing stinging; tips of fingers, with partial loss of sensibility; < upper lip and at times all about mouth, with prickling; extending into forearms, with insensibility; jerking, under skin. Itching all over body; on lower limbs like formication.

Clinical.—Senile gangrene.

Sleep.—Sleepiness. Stupefied slumber for days. Sleep profound; and long-continued. Sleeplessness; nearly all night, with exhilaration; with restlessness, fever and agitation. Restless sleep; with heavy dreams; interrupted by anxious dreams. Sudden waking with a wild, staring look; S. waking, with wild, frightened look, then palpitation. Anxious dreams.

Fever.—Coldness; with gooseflesh; sensitive to cold; then diarrhoea; then nausea, > diarrhoea; then nausea, sharp pain in head, vertigo and partial blindness; then heat and unquenchable thirst; then heat, < internal parts, with anxiety so that many lose their reason, with thirst; shaking. Shivering; sudden; in limbs. Coldness in different parts as from cold water or snow. Cold skin (Ars.); < face; < limbs; and dryness. Coldness of face, with pallor; C. over back and abdomen; in back, abdomen and limbs, with horripilation; creeping over limbs, later chill over whole body; C. and anesthesia beginning in tips of fingers and toes and extending over whole body.

Heat; with dulness of head; with thirst; in internal organs (Ars.); internal, during pains in stomach, abdomen and limbs, with anxiety and thirst; as if sparks fell on different parts; in hands and feet; hands and feet, < fingers and toes, which were bent and stiff. Hot skin; and dry.

Sweat; over whole body except face; on forehead; from head to pit of stomach; cold; cold, clammy (Acon., Ars., Verat. a.); cold on limbs; clammy, then epileptiform spasms and death.

Selenium.

The pure metal is triturated for use.

Ally.—Phos.

Generalities.—Emaciation, < face, hands, loins and calves. Tearing in l. side of trunk and head, with stiffness in nape and cervical muscles, impeding turning of head. Intolerance of slightest draught of air, he takes cold therefrom and then has tearing in limbs. Weakness; after coition, with irritability (Phos.); after eating, with desire to lie down, but sleep prevented by pulsation in all vessels, < abdomen. Irresistible desire to lie down and sleep, then aggravation of all symptoms. Obligated to lie down during the heat of the day and remain half asleep, even his imagination was relaxed; suddenly obliged to lie down when sitting and working, with no other effects than that it was impossible to do anything. Aggravation after sleep, to which he is much inclined; < hot days.

Clinical.—Occasionally indicated in the prostration following typhoid fever. A remedy particularly adapted to old age; easy exhaustion, mental and physical. Useful for debility following exhausting diseases.

Mind.—Talkative when excited, < evening; T., light-hearted, excited. Fretful, sleepy, lazy, with frequent vomiting and stretching. Dread of people and of his occupation. Exhaustion after mental work late at night. Unfit for work, though he constantly begins he is obliged soon again to leave off. Forgetful, especially about business, but when lying half asleep everything recurs to him.

Head.—Sticking internally; deep. Aching every afternoon; A. after tamarind water; after lemonade and wine, and sometimes after tea. Dulness, < evening. Vertigo in morning; in evening; in evening when riding in a carriage; on standing up; with staggering, attacks of faintness, pale and distorted face and anxious sweat, and when riding in a carriage after lunch he was obliged to turn back to the house, where he vomited and was so weak that he had to go to bed; so that he must close his eyes, < motion, then nausea and anxious sweat over whole body, then vomiting of all food, then vomiting of water and mucus, at last of sour water, the paroxysms < an hour after breakfast and dinner, then weakness, with thirst for cold water, which was always vomited, taste flat, stool large, soft, colored with bile, stitches in forepart of chest as from incarcerated flatus, feeling of a board before forehead, then feeling as if head were pressed against the pillow by a warm hand on forehead, hicough, eructations, stupefaction of head, inability to collect his thoughts and frequent lying in a doze, urine scanty, red, symptoms > emission of flatus, these attacks returned every half to one hour except at night, most relief from spirits of camphor taken alternately with black coffee, when he was obliged to hawk up much mucus.

Sticking in forehead, temples and eyes in forenoon and evening after going from cold air into warm room. Pain in temples; in occiput on standing up, with vertigo. Heaviness in occiput, at times waving in brain, fluttering in ears, twitching and pressure in eyeballs. (Drawing in occiput, with ringing and stoppage in ears.) Hair falls out on combing.

Clinical.—Headache from tea drinking. Neuralgic headache over left eye, < the sun, strong odors, and especially tea and strong acids. Headaches of drunkards, sometimes > liquor, for which there is a craving.

Eyes.—Inflammation. Lachrymation, with pressure in l. Blisters on inner margin of lid, with itching and pressure as from a grain of sand. Twitching of lids, with indistinct vision. Burning on margin of r. lids, with itching. Twitching in l. ball. Pain deep in orbits. Falling of hair from brows. Vision obscured. Myopia increased.

Ears.—Wax increased in the l. deaf ear, it is harder and in r. softer than usual. Throbbing in r. Stopped as from a membrane in front of them, moderately > shaking head and boring finger into ear. Distant rumbling in l. in evening in bed, with sensation as if ears were stopped.

Nose.—Pain in septum as if a pimple would form. Itching in nostrils; on septum. Frequent involuntary boring into it. Coryza; with distressing dry cough; then fever, next evening headache, and in upper part of middle of forehead, extending towards vertex, a pain that lasted all the next day, the hat annoyed him, heat in the painful part, the hand felt pleasant, with bruised feeling and heaviness in all limbs so that he could scarcely walk, and during the headache he woke at night with cough; fluent every evening; sudden fluent, disappearing suddenly. Yellow, thick, lumpy mucus. Gelatinous mucus, at times containing small yellow masses. Loss of smell.

Face.—Twitching. Red cheeks on waking. Cracking in lower jaw. Crack in lip; in middle of upper.

Mouth.—Teeth. Free from mucus, smoother and harder, so that on rubbing they cracked, with thickly-coated white tongue. Boring in hollow. Pain as if decayed internally, obliged to pick it till it bled. Pain in a hollow one as if it were being drawn up, > taking cold water and cold air into mouth, by eating, drinking and smoking, with coldness extending into cheek, the pains < evening in bed, with throbbing extending into l. eye, l. temple and jaws, > olfaction of Bryonia.

Tongue coated white; in morning. Pain in region of root of T. Burning on tip of tongue woke him at night. Stammering so that he misplaced syllables and could not articulate many words. Mouth full of tenacious mucus after midday nap. Dryness of M., fauces and pharynx on waking in afternoon and night, was obliged to drink much water, then sweat. Salivation. Disagreeable sweet taste on lips when smoking.

Throat.—Hawking of lumps of transparent mucus every morning (Argent.); of bloody mucus in evening; of mucus, with a spot of blood on it. Tickling, with scraping and necessity to raise mucus. Dryness; < towards evening.

Stomach.—Hunger immediately in morning; in middle of the night, when he happens to rise; H. increased; little in morning. Desire for brandy; late in evening; D. for salt things, then aversion to them. Thirst in evening. Hiccough from smoking before eating, with eructations. Nausea; then drawing sticking in a l. lower molar. Very sick after sleep. Cramp. Pressure as if cramp would occur.

Abdomen.—Rumbling before eating. Cutting in evening, > emission of flatus, repeated in the night. Splenic sticking between tip of l. ilium and umbilicus when walking, so that he could scarcely move. Pain in r. side around under last ribs, < inspiration, extending to region of kidneys, which were sensitive to pressure.

Clinical.—Enlargement of the liver, and stitches < motion and pressure, soreness over the liver, white tongue, loss of appetite, < morning.

Stool.—Tenesmus; with frequent semi-fluid stools. Pasty, then sensation in anus as after a hard stool. Constipation. Hard, with blood at the end (Alumina); H. and accumulated in rectum so that it could scarcely be evacuated. Difficult, at the end slimy. Containing threads like hairs.

Clinical.—Constipation from paralysis of the rectum.

Urinary Organs.—Dribbling after urinating, especially after stool; D. when walking (Phos.). Frequent micturition at night. Always obliged to urinate some time after stool. Obligated to wait a long time when urinating. Discharge from urethra of fluid before micturition; D. of watery, sticky substance just before stool and soon afterwards; of a drop of prostatic fluid when sitting, with disagreeable sensation. Dribbling of prostatic fluid.

Sensation in tip of urethra as if a biting drop were forcing its way out. Twinging forward along urethra, with sensation as if drops were passing out. Red urine; in evening. U. dark and scanty. Urine had the odor of violets. Brick-dust sediment. Red sandy sediment.

Genital Organs.—Erections, with itching in urethra; violent E. in morning on waking, without voluptuous sensation; incomplete E.; weak E. during sexual excitement. Impotency, with lascivious thoughts. Something thicker than natural and stony behind l. testicle. Jerking pain in r. testicle in evening. Itching of scrotum. Semen thin and odorless; dribbling of S. in sleep; discharge of S., with rheumatic pains. Desire mentally, not physically, erection slow and incomplete, too speedy emission, but long-continued pleasurable sensation. Menses delayed.

Clinical.—Nocturnal emissions, with sexual dreams followed by weakness in small of the back; seminal discharge thin, without odor; seminal discharges when walking; ejaculation too easy; neurasthenia from sexual excess.

Respiratory Organs.—Hoarseness when singing, especially at the beginning; H. alternating with necessity to clear his throat (Phos.). Cough in morning, slight, but affecting whole chest, and expectoration of lumps of mucus with blood; C. from deep in chest, with expectoration of opaque mucus and blood. Oppressed breathing in evening when lying, from raw pain in l. side of chest and here and there in small of back; O. in open air, with stitches in side. Frequent deep breathing as when sighing. (Compare Phos.)

Clinical.—Paralysis of the vocal cords; hoarseness from singing or talking. Cough, with scraping of chest and bloody expectoration. Very valuable for the hoarseness of singers, especially when it is frequently necessary to clear the throat of clear, starchy mucus (compare Stann.).

Chest.—Blood in breasts. Sticking in l. side at night, > next day, but in evening stitches in sides and stiffness in neck, then quiet sleep, next day stitches in sides in morning and evening, and when walking in open air oppression of breathing. Pain in middle on raising arm and on pressure. Oppression, and about heart; O., with stoppage of nose, dryness of throat, alternations of heat and cold, thirst, cough and sleeplessness.

Neck.—Cramp. (Drawing sticking in l. side of nape extending into l. eye every half hour, with lachrymation.) Tearing through l. side and down posterior surface of l. leg. Pain in glands above l. carotid, < pressure, with at times tearing along neck.

Back.—Paralytic pain in small of B., > lying on abdomen, < bending backward. Soreness in tuberosities of ischia, in a lean person. Lame feeling in lumbar region in morning, without pain.

Extremities.—Pain in joints. Pain as after taking cold. Stiffness and cramps; S. as if beaten in morning, < wrists. Increased cracking of wrists when stretched. Internal twitching in l. hand, on side of little finger. Tearing in hands at night. Tearing down posterior surface of l. thigh through half of leg. Cracking of knee on moving it while lying. Cramp in calves, heels, ankles, malleoli and flexor tendons of great toe in evening when lying. Pain in calves and toes. Swelling of ankles. Cramp in soles at night and towards morning on motion, when lying. Stitches in corns. Pain in feet, with seminal emissions.

Skin.—Fatty on face. A piece separates from sides of nails till it becomes sore and painful. Lump in skin to inner side of r. tendo-achillis. Swelling of glabella as if pimples would form; hard S. on back. Rash on forearms; red itching, in hepatic region. Pimples behind ears. Itching pimples on hands; on back; on nates; on l. calf, he must scratch it till sore, the spot is moist a long time. A plug of mucus escapes from a comedone near nose, then pus, then inflammation of the spot. Flat, painless pustules on l. inner malleolus becoming ulcers. Ulcers; herpetic, on feet. A vesicle that has been rubbed off in morning, on middle joint of second l. toe; V. about ankles scratched sore were moist several days, then very sensitive. Itching vesicles on eyebrows; on ulnar margin of l. hand; between thigh and scrotum, with smarting.

Biting in all parts, < palms. Crawling in spots about mouth, cheeks and chin, > scratching. Itching about ankles; on inside of wrist; in a spot between third and fourth fingers; between tendo-achillis and malleolus; of soles; of soles in evening; on balls of fingers, after scratching a white spot with red areola.

Sleep.—Sleepiness early in evening, necessity to lie down and immediate falling asleep; S. early in evening, then only partial sleep with much waking, in the middle of the night quite awake, after reading sleepy again, sound sleep only towards morning; (S., with yawning). Could hardly arouse himself in morning. Sleep as if dead all the forenoon.

Sleepless after 3 A.M., and feeling well. Late falling asleep; and early waking. Jerking in whole body in evening on falling asleep. Waking at every noise; W. early in morning, and lively; early, always at the same hour, however late he may fall asleep; from a sound sleep full of dreams in afternoon, at the minute he had determined upon. On waking he was at first unconscious, then indolent, but all the more wide awake after washing. Sleep full of dreams, with calculations. Disposition to sweat. Sweat towards morning; on forehead in evening. Skin dry and scaly except in morning, when she sweat freely. Skin dry and nails brittle.

Senega.

A tincture is made of the dried root of Polygala Senega, L.

General Action.—It presents imperfectly two important phases: (1) Laryngo-bronchial catarrh, with numerous characteristic indications, and (2) paralytic symptoms everywhere, but most pronounced in the eye and larynx. Closely allied to Causticum, partly to Phos. and Spongia.

Generalities.—Weakness, with trembling of upper limbs (Caust.); W., stretching of limbs, confusion, heaviness and beating in head; with yawning; with mental indolence and bruised pain in muscles of thighs; even to nausea; physical and mental. Faintness in afternoon on walking in open air. Amelioration from sweat.

Mind.—Cheerful; and childishly playful, but a slight cause made him mad and vehement; (and disposed to work). Hypochondriac and irritable; H. in evening. (Fretful in forenoon.) Anxiety; with accelerated breathing. Phlegmatic, inclined to quarrel and to give offense. Suddenly remembers unimportant regions which he saw long ago and which never made a deep impression upon him.

Head.—Boring stitches. Aching; in morning; > cold; beating, with pressure in eyes, diminished appetite, bruised feeling and malaise. Dulness; with pressure and weakness of eyes. Heaviness. Emptiness. Rush of blood on stooping, < eyeballs, where there is painful pressure. Vertigo; in morning, with flat taste; with roaring in ears; as if blood ceased to flow and as if ideas were arrested.

Forehead.—Tearing in l. half. Pain; over orbits; over l. eye; in r. half; after dinner, and in orbits, < l. side of head, > open air; in sinuiput and occiput every day, < sitting in a warm room, with pressure in eyes, which did not bear touch, on the fifth day nausea after dinner, the pain > leaning head on arm, but exercise in open air gave the greatest relief, with sensation as if diarrhoea would come on, which was not the case, after the nausea a peculiar but not unpleasant sensation in parotid and external pain in præcordial region. Beating pain in evening. Painful drawing.

Tearing in temples extending into face, with drawing pain. Pain in temples; r.; towards forehead, in forenoon. Pain in occiput; afterwards extending to temples and finally to whole head; stupefying, towards evening. Itching on scalp in morning.

Eyes.—Staring, with sensation as if it were difficult to move eyes. Pressing; towards evening, with burning; in evening by candle-light; as if it would be pressed out of the socket in morning, then dull feeling; as if a fluid pressed into balls and distended them, on stooping. Dryness, with smarting as from soap; D., with sensation as if balls were too large for orbits. Burning when reading or writing. Drawing changing into coolness, then lachrymation. Lachrymation in open air; and sensation as if threads were hanging before eyes, < r.; l. on looking intently, with trembling of eyes. Pupils contracted and sluggish.

Lids.—Swelling; with burning and pain; of r., < towards inner canthus, with inflammation and pain. Pimple on margin of r. lower. Vesicle on margin of l. upper, causing pressure in eye, on being opened it discharged clear fluid. Lashes full of hard mucus in morning. Jerking; of r. upper; of lower, causing lachrymation. Lower spasmodically drawn towards nose. Pressure in r. upper, towards inner canthus; burning P. in margins in morning. Burning when writing. Pulsation in r. lower. Crawling, with sensation of sand in them.

Much mucus in Meibomian glands; hard, tenacious mucus in canthi at night. Twitching in r. outer canthus. Pain in orbits; in balls; r. ball; now r., now l. ball; in balls, with drawing and diminished vision; sharp, deep in l. ball.

Sensitiveness to light; with tension in eyes. Weakness; when reading, with lachrymation on exerting eyes too much; on continuing to read or write, with flickering; when reading, with flickering, obliging one to wipe eyes often, but which were aggravated thereby; with burning and lachrymation. Objects looked shaded. Vision dazzled; when reading. Flickering when reading, with running together of letters. Illusions. When walking towards the setting sun and looking down he saw an oval smaller sun hovering below the other, > bending backward and closing eyes. A shining spot on wall at side of eye at noon, > looking directly at it.

Clinical.—Opacities of the vitreous. Valuable to promote absorption of fragments of lens after operation. Paralysis of the l. oculo-motor nerve, with double vision, > only by bending the head backward. Partial paralysis of the upper lid. Catarrh of conjunctiva. Muscular asthenopia (Caustr.).

Ears.—Pain in r.; in r. when chewing. Warmth in r. Coolness often extends through l. Hearing painfully sensitive. Humming, with stopped sensation.

Nose.—Dryness; with discharge of a few drops of blood. Itching in nostrils. Sneezing; and tickling in nostrils; causing heaviness of head and vertigo, then flow of much watery mucus from nose. Coryza. Smell before nose as of a malignant ulcer.

Face.—Paralytic feeling in l. half.

Mouth.—Burrrowing in l. upper molars. Pain in teeth and jaws. Lower incisors sensitive on inhaling through mouth cold or damp air. Tongue coated white; coated yellowish-white; slimy in morning, with unpleasant slimy taste; creeping under T.; dry in middle; burning in tip. Mouth and fauces burnt. Smarting burning in palate as if skin were detached. Tension in palate extending to articular fossæ of lower jaw. Astringent acidity, and < uvula. Dryness; in morning and forenoon, and in larynx; and in throat, with tenacious mucus in throat; then salivation. Salivation; with prickling and stinging in mouth; with contractive sensation in mouth; watery, when smoking. Viscid saliva. Putrid smell. Taste metallic; T. of urine; bad, with rumbling in stomach; acid, < fauces; nauseating sweetish in throat; flat in morning; diminished.

Throat.—Inflammatory swelling of fauces, < uvula. Hawking, easy of white mucus; H. up lumps of gray mucus in morning, with irritation in larynx inducing hacking cough; of mucus from trachea; of small lumps of tenacious mucus from larynx. Tenacious mucus; in fauces in morning; whitish. Constant inclination to clear T. and to swallow. Scraping; in fauces; with roughness and tenacious mucus; and in back part of tongue, with salivation; with dryness, making it difficult to talk and obliging him to cough; obliging hawking; in fauces, obliging one to clear the throat often and to swallow saliva; burning, obliging frequent swallowing; tickling, in evening.

Pressure on swallowing food. Soreness. Roughness in forenoon; in evening, with dry cough and oppression of chest; in morning on waking, with dryness; with dryness and dry cough. Rawness when clearing it. Constriction; in fauces. Constrictive irritation in fauces. Burning; in fauces. Dryness, which makes speech difficult; D. of fauces, < uvula, with stitches.

Esophagus.—Irritation; and roughness. Sensation as if membrane had been abraded. Burning, with discharge of mucus from trachea. Disagreeable sensation.

Clinical.—Catarrhal inflammations of the throat and fauces, with scraping, hoarseness, etc.

Stomach.—Gnawing hunger below pit in morning. Appetite diminished; lost; lost at breakfast. Thirst; with dryness of palate; with roughness and dryness in fauces. Eructations; of air. Nausea; after dinner; during the siesta; with salivation. Retching; fatiguing, with vomiting and discharge of much watery mucus. Vomiting, with diarrhœa; V., with anxiety; copious; violent, all night, with violent purging and profuse sweat.

Digging below pit after supper, with discomfort in whole body. Pain; in pit; all day; almost cramp-like, disturbing sleep every night at 3 A.M. Oppression. Burning; changing into fatiguing retching and vomiting of much watery mucus. Emptiness. Digestion disturbed.

Abdomen.—Rumbling; and motions. Emission of flatus. Cutting extending to pit of stomach. Gripping, with inclination to stool. Pinching, > liquid stools. Colic; during dinner; > diarrhœa. Burning.

Rumbling in l. hypochondrium. Boring in l. hypochondrium in evening. Upper A., cutting; digging towards evening, with disposition to flatulence and sudden outbreaks of ill humor; pain towards noon; gnawing before a meal, without appetite; oppression during inspiration, with warmth. Rumbling in l. side, with pinching. Sudden pressure in r. side of A. and chest in evening when sitting. When walking, drawing as of a foreign body between integuments on r. side. Shifting boring in umbilical region. Pain in umbilical region; in afternoon, < evening and rest. Pressing in hypogastrium, then emission of flatus.

Anus.—(Beating) pressure after stool.

Stool.—Watery. Diarrhœa; copious, light-colored, spurring away almost without sensation; indications of D., which did not take place. Papescent; with rumbling and emission of flatus. Constipation. Hard, large and difficult; H., scanty, rare; H., scanty, then pressing in rectum. Delayed. Frequent. Increased.

Urinary Organs.—Micturition frequent and increased; frequent, but less urine at a time and lighter colored; frequent, urine grayish, depositing a cloudy sediment. Involuntary micturition at night in sleep; when dreaming (he did not urinate before retiring). Sticking along urethra in morning after emission of dark yellow urine. Burning when urinating; in morning, with sensation as if urine had to open a passage; in evening, with pressure; B. pain along urethra after micturition.

Urine.—Copious; every time that he drinks; and acid; with pressure in urethra. Diminished. Frothy and dark; F. in a patient whose chest was affected. Orange-colored, clear, becoming turbid when standing and depositing on all sides of vessel a white sediment. Mixed with threads of mucus, after cooling it was thick and cloudy. Turbid in morning as soon as it cools; T. after standing, and depositing a reddish sediment mixed with mucous floccs. As soon as it cooled in morning it deposited a thick sediment, the lower layer yellowish-red, the upper yellow, flocculent.

Clinical.—Urine greatly diminished; loaded with shreds and mucus; with scalding before and after urinating.

Sexual Organs.—Cramplike pain in glans. Tickling in prepuce and glans. Burning in glans when urinating. Erections at night; painful E., and desire increased, then diminished.

Respiratory Organs.—Sudden hoarseness when reading. Tearing and stinging in larynx and trachea. Cough; from sudden tickling in throat; at breakfast. Dry cough; from tickling in throat; with concussion of whole chest. Hacking cough from irritation in larynx; H. cough in forenoon from mucus in larynx, < open air and walking fast; in open air; from mucus in throat. Cough, with expectoration of tenacious mucus. Expectoration; desire for. Frequent and deep inspirations. Short breath on ascending stairs, with oppression of chest.

Clinical.—Loss of voice in singers, with severe burning and hawking. Catarrh of the larynx, the voice is very unsteady, and the vocal cords are partially paralyzed, sometimes expectoration of tough mucus (Caut.). Laryngeal catarrh, with cough, < before breakfast. Bronchial catarrh, with soreness of the walls of the chest, much mucus, great oppression of breathing and sensation of weight in chest (Phos.). Bronchial catarrh, cough < evening and night, in warm room and lying on r. side (Spong.). Bronchial affections in cold weather, in the aged, much difficulty in raising tough, profuse mucus, with hard, loud, accelerated breathing and anxiety (Ammon.). Whooping cough, tough expectoration, like the white of egg.

Chest.—Shifting twitching in various parts. Sticking through l. half; under l. short ribs; in a spot in l. side in evening, with sore pain; in l. half in evening when lying on r. side, with burning pain; on inspiration during rest; in a spot in l. when walking; when walking in open air, then oppression, with debility in lower limbs, sweat and almost faintness; in a spot in l. during rest, with burning pain; in r. lower intercostals, more internally; in l. half, < sitting or lying; l. upper part, < rest, with burning pain; deep in a spot in l. half, < cough and various motions; in middle, > deep inspiration; r. upper part, with clawing; intermittent, in middle; shifting, with tightness, difficult breathing, shuddering over back and occasional pain here and there about head.

Pinching. Boring in l. side, < region of heart; in lower half, < above heart; B. becoming seated in region of heart, whence it shoots to l. axilla. Clawing in different parts; in l. half in afternoon, alternating with pulsations; in l. half, < lying on r. side; < l. half, with restlessness and anxiety during rest. Racking as if everything in it were sore when stepping hard or running.

Pain; below sternum; in morning on waking; in front in morning on touch and during inspiration; in afternoon after smoking tobacco; at night on waking; below sternum when sitting erect; in sides of lower part when sitting; beneath sternum when sitting, next day it increased and descended towards pit of stomach; through middle on concussion, < along dorsal vertebrae; in walls, < touch, > deep inspirations; < pressure; < rest; in middle, < rest; superficially in pleura, < rest; < l. half, whence it proceeds; under upper part of sternum on bending head forward, gradually changing into colic; sudden, in a spot in r. side when walking; shifting; beating, at a spot below short ribs, < inspiration and < r. side.

Sore pain in l. side; S. pain on bending forward, with pulsations, but vertigo on bending backward; between third and fourth l. ribs, < pressure or increased to sticking; as if it would burst, on sneezing, though sneezing relieves chest; pulling backward (as if in mediastem) on stepping hard, walking fast or running, making every movement difficult; burning, under sternum, < motion and deep inspiration (Caut., Sang.). Burning pain; in a spot in l. in afternoon, with disagreeable mood; in l. half in evening when sitting; in l. in evening when lying on l. side; in l. in evening, with anxiety in chest.

Oppression; < rest; < open air and during a walk, with pain through chest towards scapulae; in l. side, increased almost to pain. Tightness; in upper part, with crawling; on certain movements, < stooping, with disposition to expand chest by stretching, this leaves soreness. Compression; in upper part, < rest; from sides towards front towards evening. Pressure outward. Tension in lower part during deep inspiration. Drawing extending to axilla; deep burning.

Crawling; in spots in pleura; in upper part, < rest, with twitching; in lower part, with prickling. Orgasm of blood in afternoon, with oppression of chest, flushes of heat in face and frequent pulse; orgasm of blood towards evening when at rest, with creeping; with stitches; when sitting, almost causing faintness. Burning; under sternum, extending to back. Pulsations. Sensation of stagnation in upper part of lungs, < rapid walking.

Clinical.—Congestion of lungs, with great dyspnea. Edema of lungs, with rattling in chest. Pneumonia of r. lung, violent stitches, rattling of mucus in chest, etc. Hydrothorax. Great soreness of walls of chest from coughing, pressure, sneezing or moving arms. Very valuable for exudations in pleura after Ery. has ceased to act.

Heart.—Boring in region; more on outside. Pain in region during deep inspiration; in region when walking, with oppression and difficult breathing. Violent beating, shaking the whole chest.

Pulse.—Rapid; and hard; and full; and full, irregular; and soft, unequal; afterwards slow. Slow.

Neck and Back.—Drawing in cervical glands. Pain in back; in region of sacrum; under l. scapula when sitting, < evening; between scapulae, < stepping hard or by any movements that concuss chest; drawing, along base of l. scapula.

Extremities.—Tensive pain in joints, < knees and ankles. Paralytic drawing downward in l. arm. Paralytic pain from l. elbow to little finger, with drawing. Sprained pain in r. wrist. Sticking in l. palm; in palms, with crawling and prickling. Painful drawing in metacarpal bone of l. thumb; in finger-joints. Lower limbs weary. Bruised pain in thighs and gluteals. Sprained pain in hip-joint on turning thigh when standing. Pain in hip, knee and ankle as after a long walk. Pain in l. ankle. Weariness of feet, < forenoon.

Skin.—Pimple painful on touch; pimples burning and itching when touched, on upper lip, near nose and l. corner of mouth. Itching between nates, > scratching; of legs, < evening in bed, scratching causes burning.

Sleep.—Sleepiness in evening. Stupefying sleep. Sleep sound, full of dreams, with confusion of head on waking. Anxious jerking of upper arm during siesta. Sleep restless; and full of dreams; with unremembered dreams; and interrupted, owing to oppression of chest; and frequent waking on account of sticking and tightness in chest.

Fever.—Shivering, with weakness in feet; S. over scalp. Febrile excitement, with shuddering over back, heat in face, weak, burning eyes, beating headache, difficult breathing, sticking in chest, general bruised feeling and frequent pulse. Heat in l. half of face. Heat of skin; under skin of back, < between scapulae, with itching. Sweat.

Sepia.

Triturations should be made of the pure Sepia (the inky juice of the cuttle-fish).

General Action.—It produces general relaxation, fatigue and exhaustion, with loss of power of upper lids, extremities, abdominal muscles, etc., etc. Many symptoms point to an inactive, even congested liver. Weakness of the female sexual organs seems to be its most prominent feature. The indications of herpetic eruptions are marked and have proved very useful in practice.

Allies.—Nat. m., Puls., Sulph., Lyc.; Pod., Lil. tig., Murex, Carbo v.; Rhus t., Graph., Berb.

Generalities.—Swelling of whole body, face, abdomen, legs and arms to wrists, with shortness of breath, fever every two or three days, chills alternating with heat, sweat with the heat. Unpleasant exhalation from body after getting warm in bed. Trembling; anxious, with cold sweat on forehead. Jerking here and there, with sticking; J. sensation here and there in body, also in head, r. and l. sides. Spasms as from nervous weakness, pulse sometimes weak, sometimes spasmodic.

Paralytic sticking here and there, then immobility of the part. Pains in various parts; P. on l. side; in all parts on which she sits or lies; in muscles of abdomen and limbs on waking; sudden; wandering; burning, in different parts, < lower part of l. hypochondrium. Burning constriction in shoulders, chest and throat evenings. General drawing, even in bones of arm; cramping, in r. shoulder and whole r. side. Lame sore feeling all day. Sensation of a heavy cold. Symptoms of catarrhal fever, with weakness in lower limbs and drawing in arms. Feeling as if she could easily strain herself. Fulness about 1 or 2 P.M. in l. axilla, then r., then in groin. Pulsation through body, < in whole l. chest; in head and limbs, < night; sensation as if heart filled all cavities of body, with labored, muffled beating. Wavelike sensation through body and down arms and legs, then sudden interruption of wave and expansion, with sharp rheumatic pain. Excitement of whole body. Restlessness; he must rise at night and walk about; during menses, with drawing pain in lower limbs and abdomen, with rumbling, so that she must remain in bed two days, in second forenoon palpitation and dyspnoea.

Goneness, especially in stomach. Weakness; in morning during menses; in morning; in morning on waking; in morning on rising; in morning, with uneasiness in abdomen; at 9 A.M.; about breakfast time; in forenoon; in afternoon after sleep; at 7 P.M.; at 9.45 P.M.; from continued speaking; after an emission, with sensitiveness to damp air, vertigo, turbid urine and constipation; with short breath; with stupid feeling in head and tightness on chest; as from nausea, in morning on waking; from walking half an hour, so that he was nauseated and could not breathe, air-passages seemed drawn together as far as pit of stomach.

Indolence; in afternoon after a meal, with sleepiness; after a meal; of mind and body, with difficult Digging, with contraction and emission of flatus.

Pain; at 6 A.M. on moving, with sudden urging to stool, which was thin, yellow and scanty, with tenesmus; in muscles at night on motion; every night, waking him at 2 A.M., with at times pain above and around umbilicus, with trembling of heart, which can be felt outwardly (without palpitation), full pulse, nausea, weakness and dryness of mouth; during supper, then three stools, with urging; before stool; before menses, with faintness; a few days before menses, then soreness in perineum and swelling of pudendum before menses; < eating, with dulness of head and tension of skin of forehead; > stool; with many gelatinous stools; so that she must bend double; flatulent, before stool, with groans and sobs; as if intestines had been beaten to pieces.

Soreness as if menses would appear (Sulph.). Smarting after a thin stool. Tension in morning; drawing T. Heaviness; during motion. Emptiness; after stool (Sul. ac., Pod.). Beating here and there. Uneasiness; as before diarrhœa. Weakness after two hard stools, with loss of appetite. Burning when walking in open air; when sitting, > walking.

Hypochondria.—Gurgling in r. Sticking; in hepatic region; in hepatic region in evening, with pain on touch and with constipation; when coughing; in r., with short, dry, evening cough; passing under H. transversely through epigastrium; tensive, impeding motion, < walking; cutting, in gall-bladder. Pinching in hepatic region, > eructations and emission of flatus; paroxysmal P. in liver. Jerks in liver. Pain in hepatic region (Pod.); in gall-bladder; deep in a spot over spleen from 2 till 3 P.M.; in l., > lying; in liver when walking; drawing, in hepatic region in evening. Sore pain in hepatic region (Pod.); at noon in location of a former congestion, felt next day on turning or reaching, and afterwards on sudden movement; when riding over rough roads, obstructing breathing. Full sensation in hepatic region (Pod.). Beating in hepatic region.

Sticking in transverse colon, beginning in splenic flexure and passing to hepatic flexure, after stool, < walking, > sitting; intermittent S. just under pit of stomach, radiating obliquely up into l. side. Pain in transverse colon; in upper A. in afternoon; in upper A., at times > internal fermentation, with tension and with pressure and sticking in umbilical region.

Sides.—Grumbling in l., with emptiness. Sticking in l.; in r. muscles, with twitches; then difficult breathing; transversely through from r. to l. Pain in r.; attacks of contractive, in r., < morning, then constriction in stomach extending to chest, > eructations; as from a stiff body or plug, making stooping painful or impossible; drawing. Burning in r. when walking far.

Umbilicus.—Sticking extending to pudendum when coughing and gagging. Smarting boring to right of U. Pain in region, < coughing and stooping; P. extending to pudendum, < touch; in centre of abdomen as from a lump from afternoon till bedtime, extending upward towards evening, with sleepiness, but inability to sleep at night; drawing, in region, then discharge of mucus from rectum, with urging and sticking, then congestion of blood to chest, with anxiety and restlessness, which after dinner changed to alternations of internal heat and chilliness, with sweat on head from 1 till 4 P.M., then headache, then pain in nape, next day the same condition; burning, to left of and below U. Sore spot in wall to right of and below U., next day tender to pressure and from movements of muscles in walking, afterwards on sudden turning.

Hypogastrium.—Swelling of l. inguinal glands, painful on walking. Fulness in r. groin when walking; F., with aching in ovaries, heaviness in head and sleepiness. Gurgling over l. hip. Sticking; in sides; in l. in morning; transversely through just over hips; upward in l. groin during stool. Sticking tearing in groin, extending into thigh on stepping. Cutting during breakfast, with urging to stool; C. in afternoon, with jerks; then free, loose stool. Griping, > 10 A.M.; G. all day in quarter-hour attacks, with hard daily stool. Pain in l. side; in r. side of front; in r. groin near Poupart's ligament; in place of a hernia during violent laughter; with bruised feeling waking her at night; across; across at night on lying down, > micturition; across, extending down inside of thighs, with soreness of abdomen and thighs on touch, at times inability to stand, with piles and constipation; in pelvis, beginning in sacrum and passing forward and down to r. knee at 7.30 A.M., > pressing against something hard, the pelvic pain > crossing limbs, but the pain in knee aggravated; flatulent, deep in r. side after a meal, later only on moving and bending forward. Pressing downward; during menses (Bell.); > knee-elbow position, which caused eructations and sleep; in pelvis at 9 A.M., < forenoon, with sick feeling, and < 4 P.M. on waking, with gloomy feeling, > supper at 6 P.M., the P. returned at 9 P.M., next day at 9 A.M. Pressure as if contents would issue through genitals. P. as if bladder would fall out over os pubis, partially > hard pressure, the pelvic distress always felt at night on waking, > transiently by lying on side with legs flexed on thighs and thighs on abdomen, returning third morning on stirring, during the day sensation as of an overdistended bladder, < sitting and lying, > walking and supper, fourth day P. as if uterus would issue through vulva, > from supper till 9 P.M., on eighth day pelvic symptoms < 4 P.M. after sleep, a week later P. all day, with dullness in head and desire to sit or lie still with eyes closed, amelioration after supper. Pressure outward low down in pelvis, with twisting and contraction; undulating P. outward in r. groin. Pulling pain in r. iliac region near crest at 10 P.M. Drawing above r. hip, extending to ribs and towards kidneys, > emission of flatus. Spasmodic contraction in r. side. Sudden distress in pelvis at 9 A.M., < forenoon, with sickness. Singular feeling in pelvic region at 4 P.M., a weakness about small of back, pubic bones, and around anus a dragging. Burning in r. flank.

Clinical.—Enlargement of the liver, with heaviness in the hepatic region. Torpid liver, with aching, weight and soreness, involving even the right shoulder, with occipital headache, sallow complexion, and especially a yellow stripe across the bridge of the nose.

Rectum.—Prolapsus (Pod.). Sticking; at night; in perineum, pressing towards rectum, in evening when sitting. Cutting during stool, with discharge of blood; C. in afternoon, drawing towards hypogastrium, then ineffectual urging. Pain during stool and when sitting afterwards; tensive P., and in anus. Contractive pain before and during hard stool; C. pain extending into vagina and perineum. Smarting after stool. Weak feeling in evening in bed, causing restlessness, so that he cannot sleep. Itching. Burning all day; during latter part of a soft stool; with hard stools. Urging, with pain in lumbar region; constant U., but scanty stool; at 6 A.M., stool in hard lumps and with bleeding, then free stools at 7 and 10 P.M. Ineffectual urging; towards evening, next morning stool hard and lumpy; passes only wind and mucus, with sensation of a plug in rectum.

Clinical.—Inactivity of the rectum, which feels constantly full, even after a stool; even a soft stool is expelled with difficulty. Hemorrhoids, with bleeding at stool. A distressing feeling as of a lump in the rectum (Anac.).

Anus.—Hemorrhoids; bleeding when walking; seem indurated. Protruding H.; during stool; when walking; after stool, of a humid, painless one; and itching. Painful H.; when walking; after stool; on touch, with intermittent sore pain pressing outward, < between stools, even when lying.

Swelling of margin, with heat. Congestion after dinner. Expulsion of ascarides. Discharge of bloody mucus after stool. Painful contractions. Sticking; from after morning stool till afternoon; < retracting it and by pressure; and tearing. Cutting at night, and in rectum. Sudden aching during constipation, > walking fast, ceased when feces began to pass. Soreness; with intermittent tenesmus. Raw sensation during stool. Scraping during stool. Contractive sensation, > after fermentation in abdomen; C. pain during stool, then extending forward and upward into abdomen. Tension after stool. Burning; during stool. Itching; with creeping in rectum.

Clinical.—Hæmorrhoids, with bleeding at stool; distress when walking about.

Stools.—Watery, yellow, with pain and flatulence. Diarrhœa; after milk; after boiled milk; then constipation; exhausting; almost like grits; slimy, with discharge of round and thread-worms; acrid, three times a day, then protrusion of hæmorrhoids, which ooze moisture and which pain on sitting. Pappy, sour-smelling, evacuated very quickly. Soft, thin-shaped; difficult.

Constipation: causing bleeding, weight and pain in rectum. Hard, with cutting in rectum; H., then soft; at night, and difficult; and large, difficult; and difficult, mixed with mucus; and knotty, insufficient; in small lumps, unsatisfactory, with feeling as if I had lost the power of expulsion. Whitish. Brownish, scanty, difficult, but not hard. Bloody; but not hard. Scanty, with loss of power to expel it; S. and difficult in evening, next morning a small soft one. Frequent; with pain and tenesmus during stool; natural, about every two hours till afternoon, towards night diarrhœa with tenesmus before and during stool, burning in anus after stool and bearing down in region of anus. Difficult. Putrid, sourish.

Clinical.—Diarrhœa; green, mucous, especially from boiled milk, in children during teething, with turbid, offensive urine and reddish sediment adherent to the vessel, rapid exhaustion and emaciation.

Urinary Organs.—Bladder. Spasm. Sticking through B. before micturition. Pinching. Aching at neck after urinating. Sensation as if drops came out, < during rest. Burning, without desire to urinate. Distended feeling. Pressure on B. (Lil. fig.) and frequent micturition and tension in hypogastrium; P. in evening, with burning after micturition. Urging; in morning, with bearing down in pelvis; in morning, but micturition only after waiting several minutes; in neck of bladder; continual; frequent; frequent, with scanty discharge alternating with retention of urine; ineffectual, at 11 A.M.

Frequent micturition; during the day; in afternoon; at night; as often as he woke at night, with thirst; with uneasiness, as from fulness in bladder; with pressure on bladder, but he must wait long before the urine comes, if he endeavors to retain the urine he is attacked with anxiety and pressure on bladder.

Urethra.—Discharge of moisture after micturition; milky D. after micturition; of prostatic fluid after micturition; of prostatic fluid, with difficult stool. Sticking; and cutting. Tearing; in forepart. Smarting; near meatus; in orifice; during micturition; astringent, in forepart in morning on waking. Tingling; in meatus; in meatus between 1 and 2 P.M.; for about an inch back from head of penis at 9.30 A.M. Itching. Burning; in forepart; in forepart after emission.

Urine.—Copious; and water-colored; next day scanty. Scanty; with red deposit; and deep red, no desire to urinate; with constant desire; with much thirst. Thick, slimy, offensive, depositing a yellowish, pasty sediment next morning. Turbid; and clay-colored, with reddish sediment (Berb.); when passed, as if mixed with mucus, and dark; after standing, and offensive, with white sediment; with red sandy sediment (Lyc., Berb.); and offensive; and acid, with bile pigment. High-colored, soon becoming turbid and staining bottom of vessel. Looks like powdered brick. Blood-red. Pale yellow. Fetid; with much white sediment. Acid, deposit of white adherent film, sediment at bottom of tube pinkish, the sediment readily dissolved on slight heat (not by nitric acid), showed amorphous particles, and on standing forty-eight hours crystals of uric acid appeared. White, filmy, adherent sediment. Brick-dust sediment (Lyc., Berb.), and vessel covered with a white substance and looking like ground glass. Deposits blood. Yellowish-red, adherent deposit.

Clinical.—Chronic cystitis, with slow micturition, but with constant desire and a bearing-down sensation above the pubis. Very slow micturition from atony of the bladder. It has been found valuable to relieve the distressing bearing-down feeling of cystocele. Nocturnal enuresis, especially in the forepart of the night. Chronic urethritis. The characteristic urine of Sepia deposits a red sediment which adheres tightly to the vessel.

Sexual Organs.—Sweat on male; on scrotum. Glands, red spots; red, almost sore indurations coming and going on inner side of G. and prepuce, tickling on touch; on lower part a purulent fluid having a sourish salt smell, with itching; itching inflammation, increasing the excitement during coition; sticking; burning during coition; heat and itching, with soreness of prepuce; heat, with pale red and at times itching eruption. Ulceration of prepuce, with itching. Sticking in prepuce and frænum, with smarting raw feeling and congestion of the integument.

Erections after coition and after nocturnal emissions; after coition, then weakness of thought, vertigo, discouragement, relaxation of body, and in evening low-spirited and inclined to start; persistent, at night; painful, when sitting after the siesta; strong, but short, with quick emission during coition; insufficient, with coition; wanting.

Pinching tearing in testicles. Cutting in testicles. Rheumatic drawing in testicles and along side of thigh. Heat in testicles. Emissions nightly, with sexual dreams; imperfect E., with lascivious dreams; weak and watery; suppressed by his waking. Sexual thoughts without erections. But little pleasurable sensation during coition. Desire increased; D., with rapid emission, but slight voluptuous feeling, then tension in hypogastrium extending to spermatic cord.

Female.—Dilated feeling before menses. Soreness of labia, perineum and between thighs, with redness; S. of labia, with inflamed feeling. Sticking in pudendum; extending almost to umbilicus. Burning in pudendum before menses. Vulva feels enlarged.

Vagina.—Sticking in orifice; intermittent S.; extending into body of uterus, > bending double. Jerking upward in morning after a dream. Dryness after menses, and of vulva, causing discomfort when walking (Nat. m.). Leucorrhœa; after micturition; with itching in vagina; with eructations, retching and pallor; yellow; acrid, before menses, with soreness of pudenda (Lil. fig.); like milk (Puls., Calc. c.), only by day, with burning pain and excoriation between thighs (Puls.); looking like pus (Calc. c.); lumpy, fetid, with drawing pain in hypogastrium; as clear as water; excoriating, causing pain when walking. Discharge bloody, slimy (Murex); of a few drops of blood fifteen days before time for the menses; of blood after coition; of blood when walking; greenish-red, during pregnancy.

Uterus.—Beginning to prolapse, congested, and yellowish leucorrhœa pouring from it (Lil. tig.). Pro-lapsus, with inclination of fundus to l. (Puls., Mæx. r. side), causing numbness in l. lower half of body, with pain, and the same pain in pelvic region, > lying, especially on r. side, tenderness of os uteri. Sticking; upward; spasmodic through U.; from cervix to fundus and then to r. ovary, causing nausea. Cramps all night during menses and next day on moving about; before and at beginning of menses. Pain, and in l. ovary; P. passing into vagina. Feeling as if clutched and suddenly released, at 7 P.M., causing nausea. Pressure as if everything would issue through vulva (Lil. tig. [Cap.]), in afternoon; P. downward as if everything would fall out, with oppression of breath and pain in abdomen, she must cross her limbs to prevent protrusion of vagina, yet nothing protrudes, but there is increase of gelatinous leucorrhœa. Painful stiffness in region.

Ovaries.—Sticking through l. (Graph.) at 4 P.M., next day at 4.30 P.M., and through acetabulum. Darting pain in r. (Pod.), next day pain as of a tight thread running to uterus. Sharp pains, with urging to urinate, the pain > micturition, later in the day heavy pain in l. ovary. Pain in r. (Pod.), < afternoon; in r., < inspiration; in r., with pain in back, next afternoon in r., with soreness on pressure after sleeping, felt too badly to move (Pod.). Heaviness; with urging to urinate; in lower part, with urging to urinate.

Menses.—Too early; and scanty, appearing only in the morning; and scanty, lasting only one day; and scanty, dark, fetid. Too late; at the full moon; (after-effect). Reappeared in an elderly woman after they had been absent several months; with drawing from teeth into the swollen cheek. Increased and brighter colored. Scanty, pale, acrid; S., dark, clotted, painful.

Clinical.—Chronic dry catarrh of the vagina, which is painful, especially on coition. The symptoms of pressure as if everything would protrude, and the feeling of emptiness in the stomach and abdomen have led to the very successful use of this drug in displacements of the uterus, especially in simple prolapsus; there is a feeling as if everything would protrude from the pudenda and the woman even crosses her legs to prevent protrusion. Induration of the neck of the uterus. Chronic endometritis, with tenderness over the uterine region, constant desire to urinate, etc. (Aur. mur. nat.). Disorders of menstruation, amenorrhœa, dysmenorrhœa, with scanty flow, nervous palpitation, sinking at the epigastrium, morning nausea, etc., threatening abortion, with the extreme pressure of the drug. Flushes at the climacteric period. Tumors of the breast, with sharp pains.

Respiratory Organs.—Mucus in larynx, difficult to cough up but easy to swallow, even with deep inspiration. Frequent pressure in larynx in morning, without pain. Dryness of trachea; of larynx in morning. Hoarseness; in evening; with weakness and chilliness; sudden; inability to speak aloud. Voice as in coryza, in evening.

Cough every morning till 9 A.M., with coryza and with sneezing in bed; in evening; at night preventing sleep (Puls.); at night waking him; < evening after lying down; < evening in bed, with vomiting (Puls.); on going to sleep; with sticking in back; with sticking in hypochondria; spasmodic; irritation to C. so sudden that he cannot breathe quickly enough, and it causes spasmodic contraction of chest; causing pain in pit of stomach, day and night; affecting chest and stomach; harsh, distressing, < going from cold air to warm room, and vice versa, lungs are sore; scraping, it seems to have settled on chest; tickling scraping, and again loose, phlegmy. Dry cough towards morning, from tickling in trachea; D. in evening in bed, with vomiting of bitter fluid; after a meal; from tickling in larynx; from tickling in throat; > lying, but when lying at night dry coryza; with stitches in r. chest; as if from stomach and abdomen, or from constipation, or as if something lodged in stomach; and hard, concussive; and short, in evening, with intermittent sticking in r. hypochondrium; often dry, whooping and choking, with pain in pit of stomach and scraping, raw, sore pain in larynx, > swallowing food, the C. does not wake her, but is worse after waking, at times rattling in trachea, ending in mucous expectoration; and tickling, > morning, with spasm of chest. Hacking cough in evening after lying down (Sang.), with expectoration of pure coagulated blood. Loose cough, < night. Cough, with expectoration; day and night, C. wakes her at night, with sensation as if chest were hollow and sore; C. from 8 till 9 P.M., > expectoration; only before midnight, as soon as he gets into bed; C. with almost loss of breath if she cannot expectorate; of blood every morning; scanty E. evenings in bed, but mostly with bitter vomiting; purulent E., with oppression of chest, rattling in throat, the slightest motion takes away her breath and she is exhausted; gray and yellowish E.; C. in sudden attacks, E. full and easy only after breakfast; violent C., with much E. of white mucus.

Expectoration.—From chest without much cough. Salt (Lyc.) from chest. Of white mucus. Yellow, tasting like rotten eggs. Blood-streaked, after a meal. Putrid-tasting, with putrid breath. Scanty, with wheezing rattling in chest.

Respiration.—Asthmatic attack at night, lay with head bent forward, then cough with expectoration of tenacious saliva; A. during mental exertion, worse during palpitation. Breath lost on slightest motion; when standing still. Dyspnoea; in morning on waking, lasting four hours, with sweat; with mucus in chest difficult to loosen. Short; when walking; as if chest were full, when walking. Oppressed in evening by pain under short ribs, which prevents motion; O. towards evening from pressure over pit of stomach. Snoring inspiration. Inclination to sigh. Inclined to take a long breath.

Clinical.—Whooping cough < before midnight, followed by expectoration which is generally thick, greenish-yellow and salty, with relief; the cough seems to come from the abdomen. Whooping cough, with violent retching, frequent desire to eat, < especially the forepart of the night. Chronic bronchitis, < morning on waking, particularly with hepatic symptoms, pale yellow face. Sepia has proved itself valuable, certainly as an intercurrent, in chronic pulmonary diseases (phthisis), particularly when there are soreness in the chest, flatness in the stomach and other symptoms; more frequently called for in women.

Chest.—Gurgling. Rattling till the expectoration is coughed up; R. of mucus, then cough and expectoration causing raw and sore pain in throat. A cold from riding in a railway car, voice hoarse, deep and unnatural. Sticking in one mamma; in r. side; deep in; in r. side in morning after a half sleep; in r. towards evening during inspiration; in l. on coughing; in r. when walking in open air; in r. during expiration; in r. side and scapula during inspiration and cough; on inspiration, he dared to take only a short breath, from this the head became affected; in r. mamma, < cold when riding or walking; in region of

r. lowest ribs towards pit of stomach, > eructations, in l., with palpitation; in l. without relation to breathing; occasional, in l. lung on expiration.

Tearing in r. lower ribs; near l. shoulder-joint, > eructations, but returning. Paroxysmal piercing pain in lower lobe of r. lung. Sharp pain near heart in middle of afternoon and about 10 P.M.; in a spot in ensiform cartilage, as if a nerve were tense, < inspiration and ascending stairs. Pain; in upper lobe of l. lung; in r. fourth and fifth ribs, near sternum, returning from 12 till 1 P.M.; in l. at 5 P.M.; in evening in bed; in r. upper on retiring at 10.45 P.M., then boring in point of l. testicle, these symptoms came and went till sleep; in upper part of sternum when coughing; in tendons of pectoral muscles, near head of humerus, on bending arm backward and from touch; < certain movements; in r. side, < stooping and lying on r. side; near l. axilla, < strong expiration, and on touch bruised pain; in sides, passing around between scapulae.

Burning pain in sternum when drinking beer. Soreness of lungs; of mammae on touch; of mammae on touch, < moving, turning or stepping; burning, in upper part of l., even from touch. Rawness; from cough and expectoration.

Oppression morning and evening (see Ferr., Phos.); in evening, < lying, with difficult breathing and flickering before eyes; < walking; anxious, in upper part. Pressure on l. lower ribs on walking; P. on stooping and deep breathing; on l. lower ribs, even from touch; paroxysmal, on r., > empty eructations; tensive, < l. side. Contraction in morning; in morning on waking; at night on waking, with oppression, he had to breathe heavily and deeply, and on waking in morning some C.; with oppression, and on deep breathing sticking; with tightness; with fullness, interfering with breathing; around lower part, so that he cannot breathe deeply. Tension in attacks; T. as from a cold, posteriorly at l. side. Pressing drawing on r. false ribs, towards back, > motion and rubbing. Dragging in r. side. Weight; on upper part of sternum; necessitating deep breathing. Bubbling in l. Beating in l.; in C. and abdomen as if heart occupied the whole body. Burning in sternum. Orgasm and congestion as if hæmoptysis would follow. Tickling in lower part. Crawling causing irritation to cough, Heart.—Sticking in afternoon; through H. about noon. Impulse increased and rapid, < inspiration. Convulsive beating, with anxiety and trembling of fingers and lower limbs. Intermittent beating after dinner; < a meal; with anxiety. Palpitation, in evening; in evening in bed, with beating in all arteries; > walking far and fast; with anxious feeling, which necessitates deep breathing, without influence on the spirits.

Clinical.—Sympathetic affections of the heart, palpitation and a tremulous feeling, with flushes, in women. Occasionally used for cardiac dropsy.

Pulse.—Rapid; if he thinks of past troubles, with failure of breath; with rash. Slow. Irregular.

Neck.—Stretching out, with distortion of face. Jerking in nape, with shaking of head. Sticking in nape, with drawing, arresting breathing. Pain, then cramplike pain in lower jaw; P. in r. side in evening, > dinner; sore, in lower cervical vertebrae in evening when walking in open air; drawing and expanding, in side; drawing, in r. side, < bending head to l.; contractive, in nape, < r. side. Tension; in one side as if swollen. Swollen sensation in nape. Stiffness of nape; from easy straining during work, with tense feeling.

Back.—Tearing during menses, preventing sleep, with chills, heat, thirst and contraction of chest. Aching; in afternoon; when sitting; when sitting bent over at writing; on walking, arresting breath; dragging, and in sacrum, < between lumbar region and crista ili, more on r. side, at 6 P.M., with strained feeling when walking, afterwards the pain caused nausea and when standing faintness; burning, in spine; sudden hammering, > pressure against a hard substance, with sticking tearing, so that he felt as if he would sink together and lose his breath. Tired feeling, with pain in small of back, and on sitting down he had to sit very straight. Heaviness in morning on waking, almost as if asleep. Stiffness > walking; S. after a second stool, with hardness, and with tightness in pit of stomach and oppressed breathing.

Scapulae.—Sticking; in l.; between S.; extending into side of chest when sitting and walking fast, < evening and afternoon; from r. through ribs during inspiration, > walking in open air. Tearing in l. after slight exposure; in l., as from a cold. Pain between S. and down back; under r. shoulder; in a spot between upper parts; between r. and vertebrae; in upper part of back in morning if she laces herself at all tightly; between S. and under l., extending into l. wing, < expiration. Sprained pain under l. shoulder-joint. Drawing pain above r.; near l., near spine, at times drawing to neck; under r., at one time more in back, then in side, < sitting with arm held out free from body. Drawing between S. and in upper chest; D., with jerks. Tension between S.; in l. towards evening; under r., < lying on l. side.

Lumbar Region.—Gurgling in r. Sticking in kidneys and liver; across coccyx before stool; extending to l. lung; posteriorly over r. hip, so that she could not lie on r. side, and on touch pain as from subcutaneous ulceration; sudden, when lifting, he had to walk bent forward and had stitches if his foot struck against anything. Sprained pain over hips in evening in bed and in afternoon. Rending over r. hip, extending backward. Sharp pressure on and below sacrum. Pain; in kidney region; in sacrum; in l. side; in afternoon when walking; in sacrum in evening, > pressure, on waking from a nap at 7.30 P.M., < l. side, pain in lumbar region all night; across loins, < moving; intermittent, over r. hip. Tired pain; in lower part of spine from walking, so that it feels broken; causing nausea, and a faint feeling when standing. Pressure on spine above lumbar region, with rheumatic drawing in neck. Pressive drawing in l. Deep-seated tension. Heavy pulling in r. at 3 P.M. Heat in kidney region on taking a long breath. Stiffness of lower part of back.

Extremities.—Swelling at wrist, bend of elbow and around malleoli in evening, > next morning, but parts were painful to touch. Jerking at night; J. on moving them; intermittent, of r. leg during the day, then trembling of r. hand. Tearing in elbows and knees; drawing, extending upward all day during rest, with weakness. Pain, < hips; of all kinds in long bones, < their ends, when walking in open air. Bruised pain in thighs and upper arms at night during sleep, with exhaustion of them. Sticking smarting in l.

knee and on inside of thighs and arms; intermittent, along inside of l. arm and leg when sitting or at rest, > from 5 p.m. till late in evening. Drawing pains in r. forearm and thigh. Drawing; arthritic, in knee and finger-joints. Anxiety. Uneasiness; at night. Purring in arms, hands and lower limbs. Weakness in morning on waking; W. in joints, < knees; with chilliness. Heaviness. Go to sleep easily.

Upper Extremities.—Axillary glands. Swelling; of l., with suppuration. Soreness. Full sensation in l., then r.

Shoulder.—Tearing in l. joint; in joint, as if it would tear off, > belching; drawing, in joint, as if sprained. Sprained pain in joint when resting arm while writing. Pain; in the one which was higher than the other from disease, also on touch; in joints on lifting the slightest weight or when resting elbow in an elevated position, with trembling of hands; as if excoriated; intermittent bruised, in sockets, extending to elbows, generally in only one arm at a time. Weary pain in l. joint; in r. and in muscles of nape. Drawing pain in joint in morning. Drawing at top during rest. Tension in l. joint, > moving it, with drawing. Pressure at night, with sprained feeling and sensation as if asleep. Stiffness of l.; of r., with lameness.

Arm.—Jerking in l. biceps in evening; J. upward in r., then trembling of hands. Shooting along inside of r. Drawing extending to fingers. Weakness on waking; W., they go to sleep during rest. Stiffness, with internal coldness. Paralytic sensation in l.; P. sensation, then throbbing. Falling asleep when resting head on it; F. asleep of arms and hands, < when under covers, in which case there is painful stiffness in them.

Upper Arm.—Jerking. Tearing in a spot above l. elbow. Bruised pain; in l.; during motion. Creeping tingling pain extending to shoulder-joint, and causing uneasiness in arm, < motion and stooping, > rest and lying in bed. Drawing pain in one, then other.

Elbow.—Sticking; in tip at night during frequent waking. Tearing at bend of l. Bruised feeling in l., in region of ulnar nerve. Tension as if too short.

Forearm.—Cramp when walking. Tearing near wrist, now r., now l.; drawing, in lower part. Pain in r. Tingling.

Wrist.—Sticking tearing in l. Tearing extending to shoulder, so that he could scarcely move arm, > during the day and when at rest, on letting arm hang down it was blue and rigid. Darting pain, and on dorsum of r. hand to between first and second fingers, then on corresponding part of palm. Drawing pain in r. Weakness of r.

Hand.—Jerking in palm, with sticking. Tearing. Tearing drawing from outer side of l. to elbow. Smarting on outer side of r. Weakness. Numbness if he holds anything tightly or carries anything, with falling asleep of it. Falling asleep at night.

Fingers.—Flexion of index, he could not straighten it. Thumb immovably bent towards little finger. Sticking in middle joints; in tip of little; in tip of l. thumb; in inner sides of tips; in l., with drawing. Tearing in first phalanx of r. thumb; in first phalanx of r. index; under nail of r. index. Sharp tingling pains in tips. Sore feeling in last joints on clenching fist, if pressed they are painful. Tension in metacarpal joints, < during flexion. Arthritic drawing in joints. Painful tickling under nail of r. thumb; almost painful, under nail of l. index. Numbness of r. in evening.

Lower Extremities.—Jerking in l.; upward of l. in forenoon when sitting. Bruised feeling, she desires to sit down and when sitting feels as if she must stand up; B. feeling, > dancing, with pain in every nerve, pain on touch. Uneasiness in one in evening, as from internal imperfect itching. Sensation in l. as if a mouse were running up and down. Weakness. Stiffness extending up to hip-joints; S. after sitting a short time, with falling asleep and crawling. Numbness of one when standing, with sudden paralytic sensation. Falling asleep when sitting.

Thigh.—Trembling, and of knee, with jerking in thigh. Jerking, and in buttock; J. when walking. Cramp when walking; in inner side when walking. Cramping pain in hip-joint, > walking; sudden tearing, in hips extending to feet, when walking. Sticking in l. when walking; tearing, in l. during rest, then ulcerative pain; tearing, when walking, almost paralyzing lower limbs, with chilliness. Tearing in r. on walking, with pain on touch; T. after dinner and supper, < knees; from hip-joint to foot at night, preventing sleep; burning, at inner part of l. buttock. Pain in posterior muscles when sitting; in hip.

walking; in femora when sitting, she must change her seat often; in r. hip-joint, close to body, beginning and ending gradually; in r. every evening after lying down, so that she could not move; in nates, so that he could scarcely sit; undulating, in upper part of femur. Bruised pain on touch, with tension when walking; in r. hip-joint when lying on r. side; in hip-joint, < rising from a seat, > continued walking, with weakness. Pulling pain in hip after moving. Pain drawing upward in femora; intermittent D. pain over r. buttock. Drawing; from r. hip to seat all day. Soreness between T., with burning pain. Tension in l. as if asleep, extending to sole; paralytic, in r. when walking, and in hip-joint. Weight.

Knee.—Painful swelling, with tension; numb S. of patella, and when kneeling the knee is unyielding and tense. Cracking. Sticking; under patella on walking fast; in hollow, with cutting; tearing, between K. and patella. Tearing in r. as soon as she grows cold; around K. and malleoli when sitting and lying. Twisting in r., with drawing pain on inside above r. knee. Boring in l. during rest. Pain in r.; from K. to toes, > walking, with drawing. Bruised pain in K. and tibia, more when sitting than when walking. Lame feeling. Drawing pain; in evening; on walking and rising from a seat. Arthritic drawing. Tension; when walking in open air; in tendons over K. on ascending stairs. Weakness; after coition.

Leg.—Swelling; between tibia and calf; < sitting and standing, > walking. Cramp in calves at night after a cold; in calves at night in bed on stretching legs, afterwards tension in calves as if too short. Tickling sticking on lower part of r. tibia. Tearing anteriorly under r. knee; between l. knee and calf; now above, now below r. calf; in tibia during dances. Aching, and in ankles; A. in afternoon, and in feet; in tibia, next day between 12 and 1 p.m. in lower part; in tibia and fibula, < malleoli, as if bones would be forced apart; cramplike, in calves, with shooting in ankles; in lower part of r. calf, as if cramp would set in; sore, in tibia during motion. Bruised pain in tibiæ; in calves and hamstrings; in legs, with lassitude, she unavoidably sank into a slumber full of anxious dreams. Tensive pain in calf; in tendo-achillis. Drawing pain deep in r. extending over malleolus; in leg to heel, where there was stinging. Uneasiness in evening, with cramp in them. Heaviness as if they would fall asleep. Sudden paralyzed feeling in one.

Ankle.—Pain in tendons about r.; in l. as if foot were too tight; sprained, when walking in open air; as if tendons were too short, when walking. Compression after walking in open air. Tension in bend as if too short, when walking; drawing T. from malleoli to knees like cramp in calves.

Foot.—Fetid odor of (the generally sweaty) feet. Swelling; from much walking; with burning and dryness. Inflammation of corns. Sticking on inner side of l. after going to bed, and beneath toes; in dorsum, < walking on pavement; in corns, < knocking against them; in corns, with burning. Tearing in lower part of r. Clinical.—It has been prescribed for intermittent fever, with the general symptoms and debilitating sweats. Partial sweats.

Silica.

Pure silica (Silicic acid) is triturated for use.

General Action.—It produces a well-defined irritability of the nervous system, with extreme sensitiveness (Nux v.); the spine is sore and pressure on it causes remote pains, the sphincters are irritable and close spasmodically; painful parts are extremely sensitive, and must be wrapped up warmly. Its tendency to suppurative processes, especially to fistulous burrowings, is very clear and useful. It is adapted to some forms of deeply-seated scrofulous cachexia, and occasionally antidotes septic infection.

Alies.—Fluoric ac., Phos. ac., Pic. ac., Mur. ac.; Hep. s., Merc., Nit. ac.; Calc. c., Sulph., Kali c.; Nux v., Op., Arn., Hyper., Ruta.

Generalities.—Emaciation; with pale, suffering expression. Trembling when writing. Actions unsteady and confused. Coldness of l. side of body, then slumbering and starting up as if she would go away with- out knowing whither, then she spoke unintelligibly, recognized no one, was so weak that she could not turn over alone, then convulsions, with staring, distortion of eyes, twitching of lips, lolling of tongue, stretching and distortion of head and limbs, then roaring, dropping of tears from eyes, frothing at mouth, then general warm sweat and slumber.

Epileptic attack at night, about the time of new moon, the body was stretched out, then tossed about, without cries and without biting of tongue. In evening after slumbering he unconsciously began to thrash about with hands and feet, and to jerk, with closed eyes and snoring, froth from mouth, then he lay as if dead, and if one attempted to arouse him he became stiff, opened his eyes that were fixed and began to mumble (epileptic attack?).

Loss of appetite, pale, suffering expression, every morning sweat (Phos. ac., Mur. ac., Calc. c.), heaviness and weariness of lower limbs, forcing her to lie down, nausea, chilliness every evening before sleep, sticking here and there, in sides of chest, in abdomen, limbs, so that sometimes she started in fright, pain beneath sternum on inspiration, itching on arms and lower limbs, with pimples. Paroxysm, became pale, quiet, lost her appetite, complained in a weeping manner of sticking in ear, vomiting, weakness of hands.

Sticking in different parts, < r. side of head and r. hand; in l. side, so that she cannot lie on it; in various parts of l. side of body, < chest, < deep inspiration; in different parts, with tingling. Feeling as if knives were running into her. Pain in all parts; in whole body in morning before waking, < r. upper arm and l. shoulder, > rising; in all muscles on motion; as if ulcerating, in whole side on which he was lying, with shivering on slightest uncovering (Hep. s., Nux v., Rhus t.), thirst and flushes of heat in head; acute, here and there in bones, < morning on rising.

Bruised pain in whole body (Arn., Hep., Ruta); after coition; at night, as if he had lain in an uncomfortable position (Rhus t.); < morning, on stooping or turning suddenly, < small of back and r. side. Drawing in ears, jaws, hands and tibie. Sensation as if divided in half and as if l. side did not belong to her. Easily strained by lifting, which causes sticking in pit of stomach and vomiting at night, often cutting in hypogastrium, with accumulation of flatus. Painless shocks through whole body. Took cold easily; and had a cough therefore (Kali c., Nux v., Dulc., Hep. s.). Restlessness; after sitting a long time; with excitement. She feels in head and limbs every change of weather (Merc.).

Indolence in afternoon, walking was irksome. Weakness; in morning after waking; in morning on rising; at noon, before dinner; in evening after walking, with trembling; at night, even to faintness; when walking, on the approach of a storm, with sleepiness, heaviness and heat; with desire to lie all the time; with stupid feeling; with tension in eyes and forehead; so that she could not keep out of bed, with sensation as if whole body had been broken; sudden, when walking in open air, with sleepiness; like that of ravenous hunger, > eating again (without relish). Stiffness at night, as if asleep, with anxiety, so that she could not fall asleep. Symptoms mostly occur at time of the new moon. Aggravation of pain from motion (Nux v., Hep. s.).

Clinical.—Epilepsy, the aura begins in the solar plexus. Bad effects from foreign bodies penetrating the flesh, splinters or needles. General bad effects of changes of the weather to dampness (Hop. s., Merc.). In diseases of the bones it may be compared with fluoric acid. Caries of bones, especially of long bones, with stabbing pains. Enchondroma. Loss of power like paralysis, in rickets. Diseases of joints, especially the hip-joint, with acute pain extending to knee. General aggravation at night, from open air, cold and wet, lying on painful side, wine, pressure, change of weather; general amelioration from warm wrapping.

Mind.—Sensitive (Nux v., Ign.), even lachrymose; S. to noise and anxious therefrom. Annoyed by loud talking. Easily startled. Gloomy; and irritable; felt as if she would die, and lost her memory. Excessive conscientious scruples. Excitement; with easy orgasms of blood. Longing for home. Anxiety at night after an anxious dream, with audible beating of heart; woke in A. about midnight, was unable to move, imagined that thieves were breaking in, became quiet on rising, A. returned after lying down; on waking, with stupefying vertigo; on waking, > moving about the house, with incarceration of flatus, without emission of flatus; from a start; with tightness of head and chest; about himself; in attacks, so that he could not remain sitting.

Peevishness; in forenoon. Anger. Whimsical and faultfinding. Irritable, though lively; I., and skin sensitive to touch. Obstinacy in a child. Waywardness when free from fever (in a child), with crying when touched or spoken to. Quarrelsome in evening. Discontentment. Loathing of life.

Activity. Facility of thought and fluency of expression. Thought difficult. Attention difficult to fix. Distraction; in forenoon, with uneasiness in head and pit of stomach. Mistakes in talking; M. and confusion, half knowing what she is about but unable to control herself. Indolence. Inability to read, write or think, < from noon till 6 P.M., > evening after eating. Memory weak; lost. Senses lost.

Clinical.—Occasionally suitable for chronic effects of fright and nervous shock. Great irritability (the general mental and physical characteristic of the drug), constant restlessness.

Head.—Stitches at 11 A.M., sometimes like tearing, < r. frontal eminence; through H.; extending upward in brain; confused, with depression of spirits and peevishness; jerking, extending over temple to l. ear, with sticking extending from l. ear to root of nose. Tearing; in afternoon, with stitches; < stooping and motion, < parietal bones; sudden, frequent, in evening in bed; jerking; intermittent, < forehead, with pain in forehead and temples; like a pulling up of scalp, < r. temple, extending to vertex. Pinching when walking.

Aching; from 3 till 5 P.M., then weariness and sleepiness; at night; at night, with inability to remember where she was, everything turned around, with throbbing at heart; from hunger; with unconsciousness, groans and cries for help; < sitting and walking, < middle of forehead, with vertigo; < l. side, with stitches; in brain, with weakness of body; with ill humor and heaviness in limbs; with nausea; which seems to come from stomach, heaviness in forehead, with tearing that drew head sideways; waking him at night; bursting; extending into eyes in morning, with chill in afternoon, nausea and weakness as if she would faint, pain in eyes on turning them sideways or closing them, and when closed the pain was < touch; alternately in different parts, for an hour in sinciput, then in whole head, tearing in r. temple, occiput, then in l. temple, about 1 P.M.; tearing throbbing, with eructations.

Pressing asunder, with tension; P. as if brain and eyes were forced outward. Shattering in brain when stepping hard or knocking foot against anything, with roaring. Sensitiveness as after violent aching. Sensation as if everything in it were alive and twisting about. Jerking through H. in evening in bed; ending in sticking in occiput; painless J. Feeling as if falling off, causing straining pain in nape as if head were hanging by a piece of skin at nape. It seems as if she could not hold it up. Heaviness; of brain; in forenoon, stitches in temple towards forehead in afternoon; in afternoon till night, with fulness; of brain, < from forenoon till night.

Compression of brain. Dulness; from a little conversation, with general exhaustion; with suffering in sinciput; as from too much blood. Weariness. Stupefaction. Feeling as if water-pipes were bursting in it. Rush of blood at night; at 4 P.M., with burning in the red face; waking him at 2 A.M., with heat and sticking; on rising from a seat, with fulness in brain; with sticking in occiput; with jerking and starting in sleep; with throbbing in vertex and forehead and heaviness of head.

Vertigo; all day while stooping at work; in morning, with forgetfulness; in morning on rising; in morning on rising in bed, so that she must fall back again, with nausea; in morning fasting; in morning when walking and sitting, < stooping, with headache; at noon when eating; in evening when sitting and standing; in forepart of night; at night when lying on l. side; at night in a dream, with nausea; about midnight in sleep, with heat in head; on rising up; on rising, > riding in open air, with dizzy stupefaction of head, nausea and vomiting, returning on entering house; when walking; when sitting, < riding in a carriage, when he suddenly lost consciousness; on raising eyes; while eyes are closed, after the usual smoke and snuff; with pain in sinciput; with dim vision; with ringing in ears; with nausea; with nausea, water is regurgitated; then heat in head, then sweat and weakness; even to falling, on rising from bed; waking him at night, < rest, especially rising after stooping, lasting a part of next day; in attacks, rising from back through nape, so that she did not know where she was, and was inclined to fall forward; in attacks towards evening in open air, < reflection; stupefying, in morning on rising; as if head would fall to left during breakfast, with heat in face and sweat on forehead; as if something moved to and fro in head, > lying; as if he were being raised up; as if he were walking backward, when walking forward; drawing her to the right in morning when walking, < afternoon, with nausea.

Forehead.—Sticking; in r. side; in morning, with throbbing; in r. side at 9 A.M. on stooping; from 8 till 11 P.M.; extending from one side to other, alternating with pain; sensitive, in l. extending to r.; drawing over brows and in vertex. Tearing; in sinciput every day from 4 till 7 P.M.; at times extending to vertex; extending towards parietal bone all day, < towards evening and by motion; lancinating, in sinciput; sticking, in sinciput, then in r. temple, then in l.; arthritic, in sinciput and r. temple; tingling, extending to vertex and temples. Boring. Bruised pain above eyes, so that he could scarcely open eyes, at first in l. side, it was a sticking extending towards other side by eye, < opening eyes. Pain; in sinciput in side; in middle; in a spot over l. eye; in morning after rising; from morning till evening; at noon; from slight mental work; in sinciput, < forehead and eyes, < motion; with tearing extending towards sinciput; above eyes so that he could scarcely open them; wandering; tense, above eyes; as in coryza, and in eyes; in anterior part of brain as from pressure, increasing from 12 till 2 o'clock. Jerking pain in middle, renewed by suddenly turning around, stooping or talking; J. pain < night. Throbbing pain in afternoon; T. pain in l. side. Weight over eyes; W. in morning after rising and in afternoon; above eyes before menses. Dulness; and in nose, extending into upper teeth. Numbness. Rush of blood. Vertigo at night.

Temples.—Stitches; in r. in evening; with pain as if head were open. Tearing in r.; in r., with various kinds of headache; through T. Pain; in l.; in r. in afternoon; after a slight cold, and over r. eye; in r. after a soft stool, with pressure, then eructations of gas; extending across forehead and towards vertex, < forehead; in l., sometimes throbbing. Fluttering, with pain in occiput. Rush of blood to r.

Vertex.—Sticking. Tearing; as if it would burst, extending through head, with throbbing and chilliness, necessity to lie down and tossing about the bed, > binding head tightly. Bruised pain. Jerking pain extending deep into brain; J. like electric sparks. Pressure on it in evening, extending into eyes; P. as if a weight fell on it, on coming into the dark.

Sides.—Sticking in l., with frequent contraction of forehead. Pain in r.; sickening, in l., < pressure or movement. Paralyzed sensation in r. after coition.

Occiput.—Stitches. Tearing in protuberances extending upward and forward over sides of head; T. extending upward and forward through r. side of head; rheumatic. of back; in sacral region; in os coccygis on rising, with pain on pressure (compare Ph. ac.); in lower part of spine, extending sideways and upward; down legs. Pain in coccyx as after a long carriage ride (Pic. ac.). Bruised pain at night; in lumbar region and hips, < stooping. Pain; in r.; beneath r. ribs (in region of kidneys) in evening; at night, and in shoulder on which he was lying; on stooping; on rising from seat, with stiffness; with tension; as if lame in region of sacrum; as if lame in morning on rising. Lameness. Desire to stretch. Drawing extending from ilium to feet, with tension, as from chilliness.

Clinical.—Spinal irritation. Diseases of the bones of the spine; in Potts' disease, with curvature, abscess, emaciation, night-sweats, etc., it has proved exceedingly valuable. In nervous affections following injuries of the spine, epilepsy, chronic neuritis, etc., particularly when pressure upon the spine causes pain in remote parts, especially in the head. Posterior spinal sclerosis.

Extremities.—Nails gray, dirty, as if decayed, when cut scattering like powder and splitting into layers. Hands and feet seem dead in morning. Trembling, < hands; < arms, they seemed paralyzed in morning. Sticking in middle of r. thigh, then in one or other foot and in arms; in joints; tearing, in l. foot and heel at 10 A.M., then in r. shoulder, so that he must let it hang down. Tearing in l. leg and posteriorly in upper arm; in l. calf towards bend of knee, in evening in bed, with chilliness, then T. in l. shoulder; in shoulders and arms in evening in bed, then jerking pain from hips to ankles till 4 A.M., with restless sleep; in joints and soles, with jerking of feet as in chorea, causing sleeplessness; in hips, extending along outside of r. thigh to knee, where there was a stitch, > sitting, returning on moving, with inability to walk from stiffness of knee, afterwards sticking and tension in second phalanges of l. fingers.

Spasmodic pains alternately in thighs and arms from 10 till 11 P.M. Biting; in arms and legs; in arms and legs in evening, < in bed. Drawing pains, < l. side, now in leg, now in upper limbs, < l. knee and l. forearm. Drawing, partly cramplike, partly sharp. Bruised feeling, she cannot lie long in any position on account of pain. Lame feeling on rising from a seat, > continuing to walk. Uncasiness in joints when walking and sitting, with lameness. Weakness; of joints; < upper. Heaviness. Paralyzed feeling; after subsidence of fever. Paralytic pain on outer condyle of humerus on motion, and on inner side of thigh. Stiffness; with numbness, inability to use his hands and inability to walk without falling.

Upper Extremities.—Axilla. Swelling of glands. Biting pain. Drawing pain in glands.

Shoulder.—Sticking; on top of r.; in joint in morning; in r. joint, with tearing; extending to hand; back and forth from r. to elbow. Tearing in r.; T. on moving it; extending to wrists; and in wrists, with inability to lift anything; arthritic, in r.; throbbing, in l. Sharp pain in r. joint. Pain in r.; in r. extending to elbow on uncovering and becoming cold, < night; like a pressure, extending to hand, with sensation as if she could lift nothing heavy, though she could use the hand as usual. Jerking in r. joint; painful, in r. joint in evening, throwing arm high up. Drawing pain in l.; in S. and upper arm. Drawing. Weakness, and of upper arms.

Arm.—Twitching. Trembling of l.; of r., with uncasiness. Sticking. Tearing; jerking, extending into thumb. Pain in l. as if in marrow. Bruised pain in bones on deep pressure. Biting. Drawing extending into little finger. Throbbing in r. after eating; in r., so that the jerking could be felt with the other hand, thereupon arm seemed paralyzed, and it returned if he held the arm high up. Rush of blood when at work and stooping, with swelling and trembling. Weariness in morning in bed. Heaviness. Rheumatic stiffness of l., < motion. Numbness in r. like pins and needles. Falling asleep when lying upon it.

Upper Arm.—Sticking in upper part; posteriorly in r.; in upper and anterior part of l.; in l., with drawing pain. Tearing on inside and lower part of l.; on lower and posterior part of l.; arthritic, in r.; in middle of l. as if in marrow, at 9 A.M. Pain on inner side and lower part of l.; in lower part of l.; P. on pressure; drawing, in lower part of l.; jerking, in upper.

Elbow.—Sticking; through r. A pain between drawing and sticking. Drawing pain as if in marrow. Sensation of bursting bubbles in flexor surface of l.

Forearm.—Twitching of l. Sticking in r.; S. in lower part. Tearing in l. ulna near elbow; T. in upper part of l. during the day, at times the pain was sticking; arthritic; arthritic, in l.; paralytic, in l.; drawing, in l., the pain was at times constrictive when near wrist, while in forenoon it was near elbow. Bruised pain in l. Jerking pain in l. Drawing pain in r.; D. pain in middle of ulna. Painful drawing; in lower part of l. ulna in forenoon, then drawing pain in l. ulna near elbow and sudden stitches in radius near elbow, also sticking and tearing in upper part of forearm, at times a drawing tearing. Drawing in l. Paralytic pain in extensor tendons. Conscious of pulsations in ulnar artery.

Wrist.—Trembling. Sticking in r.; in r. when writing. Tearing; and in ball of hand; and in palm; in r., and in thumb; in region in forenoon; in l.; with drawing; and on motion and touch pain as if it would break; in l., with pain in l. middle finger and swelling of fingers; in l. extending to shoulder; in r. extending to elbow and then into shoulder. Pain in r.; sprained P. Constriction in r. Lameness in morning. Weakness.

Hand.—Cramps when writing. Cramplike pain after slight exertion, with lameness. Stinging in ball of r. Drawing; D. pain in r. Lameness of r. so that she must often lay down the pen when writing. Sensitiveness, with coldness. Weakness. Numbness, with pricking in arms; N. and pricking. Falling asleep at night; of r.

Fingers.—Nails rough and yellow. L. middle flexed and stiff and on bending it pain along extensor tendon in back of hand. Sticking in flexor surface of one; S. in r.; in little; in r. little; in tip of l. index; in l. middle; in thumbs; ball of thumb; last phalanx of thumb; deep in inner surface of middle joint of r. ring, at 9 A.M., with burning pain on outer part; as if asleep, now in one, now in another, then in arms; jerking, in l. middle; pricking, in r. Tearing; in middle; in r. middle; in thumbs; in joints of P. and thumbs; in second joint of r. middle, with trembling. Sensation in tips as if suppurating. Pain as if a panarium would form on l. index. Cramplike pain in joint of thumb. Jerking pain in index. Drawing in l. little; paralytic D.; in joints of r. as if they would be pulled out of their sockets. Dryness of tips in afternoon. Burnt sensation on back of one. Weakness of r. thumb. Stiffness of little at night. Numbness of one as if it were thick and the bone enlarged.

Clinical.—Finger-nails are yellow, brittle and crumpled.

Lower Extremities.—Gait shuffling, heavy. Twitching of l.; T. together, then sensation as if head were shaking, with bristling of hair. Trembling, with nervousness. Tearing here and there in l. at 11 A.M.; in l., becoming seated in posterior part. Weakness; in morning; from a short walk. Heaviness; when walking in open air. Falling asleep of r.; F. in evening when sitting, then stiffness till she moves them again.

Thigh.—Jerking in middle and upper part of r.; periodical, above r. knee. Sticking; in posterior part; in upper part of r.; in l. when walking; with drawing pain. Tearing; in r., afterwards extending to malleoli; back and forth above l. knee, as if in the marrow, then in knee, > standing; throbbing in l.; arthritic, in l. Pain in hips; in l. hip on stooping; bruised in femur when sitting, walking and lying, even in morning on waking; twittering; jerking, in muscles of r.; drawing jerking, in r. hip-joint preventing motion; drawing, in lower part of l.; P. between drawing and sticking, below groin. Drawing extending to feet; D. in r. Dragging from r. hip to toes. Biting; on inner and posterior surface. Pulsation in r. Sensation of bursting bubbles in r.; sensation in l. as if a bladder arose under skin and suddenly burst. Weakness. Falling asleep when sitting.

Knee.—Sticking; through r.; intermittent, at night; deep in when walking. Tearing when sitting, > motion; about r., extending to foot, < forenoon; sticking, in l., with drawing pain. Pinching in l. K. and tibia. Pain as if tightly bound. Tensive pain when walking. Drawing pain in bones, extending along outer side of thighs to hips like a tight cord; sticking, in l. Drawing in l. Soreness of l. patella. Sensation of bursting bubbles in hollow of r. Weakness; extending to middle third of thigh. Stiffness when walking and standing.

Leg.—Swelling; of calves, with numbness. Cramp in r. calf in morning in bed. Calves tense and contracted; calves tense as from cramp when walking. Painful contraction in r. calf. Sticking above calf when walking in open air; in tendo-achillis when walking in open air; in legs and feet, < standing, with drawing; in calves on stepping. Tearing, < malleoli; in middle of tibia; in r. from 2 till 5 P.M.; < warmth and sitting; in legs and feet, < walking, then in l. foot, < calf, with spasmodic contraction of it, that continued even when sitting; in l., with drawing pain; drawing, in tibia; arthritic, in r., afterwards extending to shoulder. Boring in a sore spot. Pain; in l. tibia; in l. calf; in one, with numbness of other; as if in bone, from middle down to ankles and along backs of feet, < standing and walking and causing uneasiness in feet, which made it necessary to rest them. Sleep.—Sleepiness; during the day, with weakness; during the day, then sleeplessness at night before midnight, then sleepiness in morning and late rising. Sleep but three or four hours out of the twenty-four, but no suffering therefrom, afterwards could sit up all night and not suffer from loss of sleep. Vivid dreams. Lascivious dreams.

Fever.—Chilliness, with chattering of teeth, shivering and shrunken features. Heat, with stitches in skin; H., < down spine; as from hot water in bloodvessels, > when nausea came on, also with sweat. Sweat, < forehead and upper lip; S. from least exertion, mental or physical, and from external heat.

Spigelia.

A tincture is made of the freshly dried herbs of the "Pink root," Spigelia Anthelmia, L.

General Action.—The action of this drug on the nervous system has been utilized principally for the cure of neuralgic pains which affect every part of the body, but chiefly the head, chest and heart. Its febrile symptoms are not marked and it seems not to be useful for inflammatory affections, more than as palliative of the pains accompanying such conditions. It has none of the mental anguish of Aconite, Arsenic, etc., etc.

Allies.—Bry., Puls.; Bell., China, Nux v., Sulph.; Rhus t., Kalm., Arn., Cact.

Generalities.—Convulsions, then death. Stitches in many parts on ascending stairs after a moderate walk. Sensitiveness to touch, the slightest knock causes pain and shuddering about the place, even on stepping shattering in body; if he knocks against any part there is sudden painful crawling through whole body to head (Arn., Bell., China, Nux v., Puls.). Everything hurt him as if he were bruised (Arn.), and on rising from a seat he was dizzy and unsteady in his legs as if reeling. Sick in evening in open air, with anxiety and internal heat. Discomfort in whole body, with heaviness and lassitude in limbs and disinclination to work.

Weakness; in morning; in morning on waking; in morning, from confused busy dreams; in morning on rising; in morning, and overpowering sleepiness when sitting soon after rising; after walking; after slight exertion; when hungry; soon after beginning to walk in open air, < thighs, with anxious pressure upon chest so that he would be glad to eructate but cannot, then desire for stool and emission of flatus, with relief in abdomen; < ascending stairs; with trembling of hands on taking hold of anything; of mind and body, < standing.

Aggravation from 10 A.M. till 12 M.; from 10 till 12 morning and night, amelioration at 3 or 4 P.M.; in afternoon; at 8 P.M., with red burning cheeks, cutting low down across abdomen, settling in lower limbs and back. Amelioration about 3 or 4 P.M., then stupor.

Clinical.—The Spigelia patient is worse from any motion of the arms and from lying on the back (Bry.).

Mind.—Joyful. Lively, contented and trustful mood alternating with palpitation and anxious oppression of chest. Earnest, vexed if any one jokes with him. Talks unwillingly. Anger. Peevish; in evening, he could kill himself, with chilliness of body. Unable to enjoy himself with others though he was not sad. Sad and peevish; and red in face; S. and fearful; S., then cheerful, then S. again in afternoon. Anxiety about the future; with inclination to peevish, indolent mood. Uneasiness and apprehension, inability to remain anywhere. Deep thought about his future. Sits lost in thought and stares at a single point. Inattention. Mental exertion difficult. Loss of memory; and mental indolence. Memory more active than before.

Head.—Burrowing tearing in brain towards evening, < l. parietal bone, on motion, on walking, < a false step. Cutting, waking her after a short sleep, with general restlessness and nausea, slept towards morning, on rising listlessness and languor, urine scanty and high-colored. Thrust inward in one point towards middle of brain at every step in open air. Neuralgia flying from one part to another, < r. side, and settling in cervical vertebrae, with feeling of imperfect support. Pain in brain on shaking head, with vertigo (Bry.); P., < stooping (Bry.); < open air; < lying, > walking; on shaking it, with heaviness; with pressure above r. orbit; flying; like a heaviness, on drawing facial muscles it seems as if skull would burst at the top; like confusion. Soreness as if bruised, and in eyes. Pressure outward on speaking loud or coughing; in brain on stooping. Sensation in brain as if head were tightly bound. Fullness, and in eyes, causing redness of eyes, lachrymation and vertigo.

Dulness; in evening; with pressure outward in forehead; so that reflection was difficult. Stupefied as after smoking strong tobacco. Swashing sensation in brain when walking; and he feels every step. Vertigo; if he looks down he thinks that he will fall over; if he turns his head when walking in open air; when standing; when sitting, with emptiness of head; when walking; (> lying), head sinks backward, with nausea at palate, discomfort in abdomen and thorax, in abdomen pinching, with urging to stool, whereupon he loses consciousness; with staggering to the left; as if the sidewalk were rising before me when walking; as if he would fall forward on looking in front of him.

Forehead.—Shooting through F.; behind and above

r. eminence; in front of head and in eyes, with sore compressed feeling through balls, nausea, dread of motion or noise, face red, hands and feet cold; pulsating, from evening till morning, with hammering before ears. Tearing externally on bone; in F., occiput and temples; from l. eminence to occiput; tensive, < beneath l. eminence, extending towards orbit; thrust-like, when sitting and standing, < r. eminence, causing staring. Boring. Burrowing in F., occiput and l. side of vertex, < motion, loud noise, speaking loudly or opening mouth, > lying, with burrowing tearing. Burrowing pain in l. bone; in F. and l. temple; in r. side, extending to eyes, so that he could not turn them without pain (compare Bry.). Pain; in sinciput; above orbits; in cerebrum and cerebellum, causing vertigo; heavy, beneath l. eminence; confused, and in temples, with compression forward in sides. Pressure outward; in l. side; in r. eminence; on stooping; > pressure of hand. Pressure inward internally and externally in l. eminence. Shaking and swashing. Confusion in upper part, with emptiness, scalp is sensitive to touch and hair seems to bristle.

Temples.—Sticking as from electric sparks in l. Tearing thrusts in r. Pain; in r., gradually extending more and more; frequent drawing, in l. Pressure inward, < r.

Vertex.—Pain; in a spot. Pressive drawing in r. side of V. and occiput.

Side.—Jerks in l., with thrusts. Tearing sticking in l.; intermittent contractive, in a spot externally in parietal bone, < posteriorly. Pain in l. half of brain; deep-seated, in r. side, involving r. eye, in morning in bed, < motion, even < straining at stool, and on suddenly turning head the brain seemed loose; pressing asunder, in r. Dulness in r.

Occiput.—Sticking in a point in l. side. Boring in O. and vertex, as if it would draw head backward. Jerks when walking in open air, and then in temples on every step. Pain, < lying upon it; P. in O. and nape about 3 or 4 A.M., > rising and dressing, with stiffness; P. as after a blow; as if arteries were beating against obstacles; bubbling, > leaning backward while sitting, < lying horizontally and at first by walking, afterwards by slightest motion. Pressure inward in l. side, < stooping unless he pressed hard against the spot. Drawing dulness in evening when walking in open air. Heaviness.

Scalp.—(Covered with milium pimples.) Sore to touch; < moving scalp. Pain as if ulcerating in region of vertex, with intermittent sticking jerking penetrating into brain. Seems contracted and tense. Itching crawling in l. side of vertex.

Clinical.—Neuralgic headache, generally beginning at one point and radiating in different directions, pains burning, jerking and tearing, < stormy weather, sometimes ending with vomiting, sometimes beginning in the morning and ending in the evening, at times a feeling as if the head were opening.

Eyes.—Surrounded by yellow rings. Sparkling, as before eruption of smallpox or measles. Look dim and weak. Hardened mucus. Redness of whites, with injected vessels; R. of white in morning, with inflammation and with heaviness of lids. Seem distended. Burrowing stitch in middle of eye and in inner canthus, pressing upper lid downward. Pain; on turning them (see Kalm.); with sensation and vision as in lachrymation, without lachrymation; on motion, as if too large for their orbits (Conoel.); as from sand

Burning in l. towards temple; B. pain forcing him to close them, with anxiety as if he could never open them again, on opening them after the pain had disappeared vision was prevented by a sea of blood-red masses rising up, with lachrymation and dilatation of pupils. Pressure inward at side of r. Dry heat in afternoon. Crawling. Weakness, apparently with an internal impediment, wherever he turns them they remain and he does not know what he is looking at, like one whose vision has vanished. Lachrymation; acrid, trickling.

Balls.—Sticking in r.; on moving it; itching, in r., returning after rubbing. Pain; < turning eyes, and on attempting to look with eyes turned vertigo, forcing him to turn the whole head; tense, in l.; contractive burning, in r. Itching in l., > rubbing.

Pupils dilated; with relaxed and paralyzed lids. Burning pain in r. external canthus. Ulcerating and biting soreness of margins of lids. Sticking beneath lids; in l. lids; in margin of r. upper; in r. inner canthus. Cutting on margin of l. lower lid. Burning pain beneath r. lid. Pain as if upper lids were hard and immovable, with difficulty in raising them (Rhus t.). Sensation as if a hard substance were under r. upper lid, > rubbing. Swelling on temporal side of orbit, with pain and soreness on touch. Pain in l. orbit near malar-bone, then swelling of bone, sore to touch. Pressure downward in l. orbit. Burning pain in l. brow. Farsighted. Vision dim, or sensation as if feathers or hairs were in the lashes, < rubbing eyes; dim, and when writing he must make a great effort, as if water were in eyes. Vision vanishes when he fixes gaze.

Clinical.—Ciliary neuralgia, the pains radiate in every direction and are extremely severe. Ptosis, with sharp pains and hot lachrymation. Rheumatic iritis, indicated by the ciliary pains. Asthenopia.

Ears.—Twitching in r. auricle. Itching-sticking in l.; boring-sticking in r. Boring sticking jerking, at times shooting through Eustachian tube to throat. Jerking pain extending to eye and lower jaw. Pinching on posterior part of r. auricle. Thrusting tearing in r. Boring back of ears, < confining eyes, as in reading or writing. Pain in l.; in margin of l.; in r., extending to malar-bone and r. molars; as from a plug in l. Drawing pain in l. antitragus; in l. ear, extending to malar-bone. Burning pain in auricle. Pressing asunder in r.; P. inward in auditory canal. Jumping sensation as from swashing of water, on stepping suddenly. Beating in l. Itching prickling in r. Itching crawling in r. Stopped sensation; on blowing nose, > boring in with finger, with loss of hearing; in l., without difficulty in hearing; as with a finger, when wind blows into them; in evening, as if something were in front of drum, which seems contracted.

Hearing difficult, as if ear were closed by a finger, with fluttering noise in it. Sensitive to loud noises. Distant ringing, with sensation as if loosely stopped or as if a mist were before it; R. when talking, with re-echoing through head. Sudden crackling and buzzing before them extending into forehead, > holding hands over eyes, with wavelike pulsation in them. Sound in l. as if a wind blew rapidly across it. Humming, < evening, with bubbling. Roaring before ears. Fluttering as of a bird, then moist discharge and very clear hearing.

Nose.—Tetter-like eruption in and on r. nostril. Itching boring in r. nostril forcing him to sneeze.

Burning in wings provoking rubbing, but not relieved thereby. Sticking crawling in nostrils, transiently > scratching. Itching in nares. Stoppage; of anterior part, with discharge through posterior nares; at root. No irritation from tobacco when snuffing. Sneezing; in morning, with discharge of bloody mucus. Discharge of mucus, at one time white, at another yellow, with discharge of mucus from mouth; D. only through posterior nares, on blowing nose violently only a little tenacious yellowish mucus is discharged, forepart of nose is always dry. Fluent coryza; with hoarseness, external heat, prominent eyes, headache and weeping mood. Dry catarrh after eating; sudden C., dry, then fluid.

Clinical.—Frequently useful in nasal catarrh, especially of the posterior nares.

Face.—Redness, then pallor; R., sometimes of one cheek, then of both, sometimes upper lip hot and swollen, as if my breath scorched it. Sallow after flushes. Yellowish after pain in heart. Swelling on waking from midday sleep, with pallor and sickly look, S. again next morning after waking, more about eyes; muscles seem swollen and distorted in morning on rising. Sticking in l. cheek. Tearing in l. zygomatic process, and as the pain became a little better dullness as from swelling; jerking T. in r. zygoma. Burning pain in r. malar-bone; in l. cheek. Pressure on zygomata.

Jaw.—Drawing sticking from r. upper to vertex. Tearing in lower, extending to ear and about it as far as nape, < moving head; pain in r. lower as if it would be torn out of joint when chewing, at other times dull pain in articulation. Pressure on r. angle of lower. (Tensive pain in articulation.)

Lip.—Blackish painless pimple in red of lower. Burning in r. side of upper, even when moved. Burning tension in upper during rest. Burning in upper.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia, pains radiating in every direction, shooting, burning, tearing.

Mouth.—Teeth.—Sharp and brittle. Throbbing tearing, < cold water, > lying. Gnawing in hollow T. Aching in evening from the customary smoke; A. in l. molars; at night preventing sleep and driving him out of bed, not during the next day except just after eating; cranplike, in upper, so that when mouth was closed the lower jaw seemed spasmodically pressed against them; like a pressure outward, < lying on r. side, > eating and drinking, but it began immediately afterwards, it often woke him at night; throbbing, in a l. molar; drawing, in a hollow T. Intermittent jerking through both rows, < a hollow tooth; intermittent J. in nerve of a hollow T., < afternoon, < water or drawing air into mouth, > tobacco-smoke. Coldness of upper, with sticking jerking in them.

Tongue.—Full of cracks, as if it would scale off. Blisters, with burning on touch, now on T., now on palate. Coated white; dark brown. Sticking in r. side; boring, extending forward in r. side, with acid taste in mouth. Sensation as if swollen posteriorly; when chewing.

Mucus at one time white, at another yellow, in mouth and fauces in morning. Burning pain in palate. Dryness in morning on waking, it seemed as if mouth were full of pins and needles and as if it stuck together, without thirst, even with much saliva. Salivation white, frothy; S. posteriorly in mouth, with excessive hunger in chest. Offensive breath. Taste bad; insipid. Does not relish his tobacco.

Clinical.—Neuralgic toothache of the most violent shooting character, < cold water.

Throat.—Discharge of mucus from fauces all day, most from posterior nares; D. of mucus from posterior nares so that he must hawk it up to avoid suffocation, waking him at night. Accumulation of saliva in fauces. Swelling on l. side of fauces and sticking when swallowing. Sticking in region of larynx, > swallowing, but returning; in r. side, and on swallowing S. in parotid and within ear, something between an earache and a throatache. Soreness, with cold on lungs and in head. Tingling in back part. Tickling itching in œsophagus, with sensation as if a semi-fluid substance would rise into fauces, hollow cough, waterbrash, anxiety and fear that he would faint. Inability to swallow saliva because he always brought it up again as by nausea, necessity to spit it out.

Stomach.—Appetite and thirst great; ravenous A., with nausea. Loathing of food, especially sweets. Aversion to smoking and snuffing tobacco; to smoking tobacco and to coffee. Thirst; late in evening; great, with loss of appetite; unquenchable, while face is red and hot. Eructations; sour; of gas; of gas after eating. Nausea; in morning and lasting into afternoon; rising into throat.

Sticking in pit, < inspiration, with oppression of chest; in pit during expiration, > lying; in pit and above it and between pit and where beat of heart is felt, with oppression of chest; intermittent, to left of pit; intermittent burning, near l. side of pit. Pain. Weight in pit; as of a lump, > pressure with hand and changing to pressure and tension in chest. Pressure in pit as if he would eructate and be relieved thereby, but no eructations till he has swallowed air. Chilliness in pit, spreading to abdomen and lower limbs, and at times to back.

Abdomen.—Distressing fulness after a moderate meal. Rumbling; before stool, that occurred twice in morning and once in evening, thin; like croaking of frogs. Flatus of the odor of bad eggs. Pinching sticking, with emission of flatus, then desire for stool. Pinching. Gripping when lying; G., then difficult, soft stool, that constantly became thinner; as if intestines would be constricted, causing anxiety and making respiration difficult; extending like a stitch to chest, with emission of flatus; wandering, every day about 3 p.m., > emission of flatus. Burning, with tasteless eructations, as if mingled with water.

Sticking in hepatic region on walking rapidly and jumping, > walking quietly; rhythmical, deep below r. ribs, > breathing deeply, returning on expiration. Rumbling in l. side, then in r. Cutting in sides, extending towards middle, in morning in bed, with emission of flatus. Sticking to left of umbilicus on inspiration; to left of U. when walking. Umbilical region, cutting every day from 5 till 6 p.m., with chilliness, diarrhoea and much micturition; gripping in l. side; pain as from a hard swelling in evening.

Hypogastrium.—Rumbling here and there, now and then painful. Sticking in groin; in region of os innominatum when walking, > thirty or forty steps; above groins, with stitchlike oppression of chest; in region of ring, with cutting, the intestines protruded like a hernia (which formerly was seldom the case), the spot sore to touch; from pelvic region down limbs; intermittent, in l. side just above ilium; boring, in ilium; tenseive, in r. groin when walking; burning, posteriorly on margin of l. ilium on every inspiration; itching biting, in muscles of l. os innominatum. Cutting on sitting down, > rising from a seat, with burrowing, as from incarcerated flatus. Boring digging in r. groin. Tearing drawings through H. Gripping; alternating with rumbling and gurgling, and during every paroxysm of pain desire to urinate, which was unchanged though much urine was passed. Pain as if it would burst, < evening before a soft stool, then slight relief. Pain in groin and thigh towards perineum as after a long ride on horseback. Tensive pain in r. groin on touch. Sensation as if a weight fell down, < inspiration.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the bowels. Frequently useful in pains associated with worms in children.

Rectum and Anus.—Discharge of pieces of thick mucus, it seemed as if flatus passed, stool like sheepdung and enveloped in mucus. Boring stitch in perineum. Itching in anus, > scratching; in A. and coccyx, with difficulty > scratching. Crawling as of thread-worms. Sensation as if a thin stool passed during emission of flatus, which did not occur. Pressure in rectum when not at stool. Cramplike urging. Ineffectual urging; after complete stool.

Stool.—Watery. Diarrhoea; frequent, mixed with tenacious, yellow mucus. Constipation. Nodular, with pressure. First part hard, then thin, then thrusts outward in forehead. White. Omitted, next day hard, difficult.

Urinary Organs.—Prostatic fluid passes out. Urging; with burning stitch in urethra; constant, urine bright straw-colored and smelling strong. Frequent micturition; and profuse; at night, with copious urine and pressive pain upon bladder during micturition. Difficult micturition at night, then burning. Sudden involuntary dribbling in afternoon on rising from a seat, with burning in forepart of urethra. (Spurting of urine on external pressure upon bladder.) Urine watery. Urine high-colored and scanty; almost blood-colored, on standing the lower part became gray, by shaking it all assumed that color. Large deposit of uric acid. Whitish sediment.

Sexual Organs.—Swelling of half of glans. Itching stitch extending forward in penis and r. testicle; I. stitch in l. testicle; burning S. in penis and r. testicle. Crawling about glans every day. Frequent erections without internal physical sexual excitement, though with voluptuous thoughts. Quivering of scrotum. Emission in morning, with lascivious dream, without subsequent exhaustion.

Female.—Heat in vagina, with fulness and pressure, < standing; H. in uterine region, with pain and pressure, with dislike to move. Tendency to leucorrhœa. Menses too soon, profuse, dark clots of disgusting odor; too soon, copious, bright red, of foul odor, with pressure, fulness and tearing in uterine region and stinging extending into limbs, after menses brownish leucorrhœa; too soon, with giving out of osseous, muscular and nervous systems, ending in a relaxed condition of system; fetid, bright red, with pain, making face and feet cold, beginning with depressing headache.

Respiratory Organs.—Cough in morning after coryza had mostly disappeared; at night, with catarrh; sudden violent, on getting water into trachea; suffocative, as from water running down into glottis; short dry, in open air, causing soreness of chest; dry, violent, hollow, taking away the breath, from irritation low down in trachea, < stooping. Slow and deep sighing.

Chest.—Enlargement of mammæ and pain originating from centre of lobes deep in and proceeding to surface, causing irregular flashes of heat in head, eyes, neck and shoulders.

Sticking at the point where the beat of the heart is felt; S. in r. side; in r. side during inspiration; in l. during inspiration and expiration; with drawing together so that he could not get his breath; beneath l. ribs in evening, bending him over; extending outward, unconnected with breathing; extending outward transversely through C., < sternum; towards l. clavicle in evening, preventing respiration; rhythmic with pulse at the point where impulse of heart is felt, or rather more externally; intermittent, extending inward above l. nipple when bending over at writing, suddenly > becoming erect; jerking, below axilla; sudden drawing, near sternum, extending downward; pinching, in l. side of diaphragm, taking away his breath and forcing him to remain standing; beneath heart, changing to crawling, then to sticking again; itching, beneath clavicle; itching, in l. pectoral muscles; boring, in r. side, in region of diaphragm, during inspiration and expiration; tensive boring, in l. side during expiration; tensive drawing, in r. true ribs during inspiration and expiration, < pressure. Tensive sticking in r. false ribs during expiration; in l. side, < expiration; in r. side, < inspiration and expiration; in r. side of C. and abdomen during inspiration and expiration, < walking.

Cutting tearing beneath l. nipple, extending to region of scapula and upper arm, < inspiration and deep breathing. Tearing boring extending outward beneath r. nipple, extending to sternum and becoming a tearing, sticking pinching extending outward beneath r. nipple, < inspiration. Sudden jerking as from electric sparks in forepart. Sprained pain in upper and l. side on turning body to r. side, making a false step or on turning l. arm. (Pain after hawking and clearing throat); intermittent P.; bruised, in first four l. ribs when straining at stool; ending in gastritis, aggravated by stricture in œsophagus an inch and a half above cardiac orifice and about middle of the tube, at latter place the pain passes through to back below inferior angle of r. scapula, the P. at these points < swallowing and by frequent sour, acid, clear, bitter and frothy vomiting, especially in morning fasting, œsophagus spasmodically contracted so that I could not rest nor sleep without the almost constant use of ice, with pain in chest, trembling of stomach and beating of heart.

Pressure beneath l. clavicle; upon middle; towards evening; when standing, with drawing; above ensiform cartilage when standing. Suffocated feeling; constricted. Cutting constriction, with anxiety. Tearing constriction in pectoral muscles when standing; T. constriction above pit of stomach, with oppression, then the same pain below pit of throat, with palpitation.

Clinical.—Intercostal neuralgia. It has been prescribed for hydrothorax.

Heart.—Stabbing through H. on deep inspiration. Spasmodic pain through H., frequent stoppage, appar- ently of heart, the blood merely gurgling through it, which produced no fear, a listless, disgusted indifference towards everything. Heavy aching in region of apex, with feeling as if a dull pointed knife were slowly driven through it.

Palpitation (Ars., Puls., China, Nat. m., Sulph., Cact.); in morning when sitting, with anxious oppression trembling of heart; < sitting down and bending forward; on deep inspiration and on holding breath, with increase of anxiety, the palpitation was felt by the hand at pit of stomach. Violent beating in morning as soon as he sat down after rising, with weight upon chest above the point where the beating was felt, with cutting and digging in hypogastrium as from incarcerated flatus, which lasted longer than the palpitation. Irregularity of action, with suffocation. Beats audible and visible through the clothes; audible, < lying, with pain, causing desire for fresh air (Cact.).

Clinical.—Inflammations of the heart, both pericardial and endocardial, with violent irritating action, severe pain. Pericarditis, with profuse sweat, sticking pain, palpitation, dyspœna from lying on the back, dry cough. Inflammation of the heart and aorta, pain under the sternum, with numbness of the arm, irregular pulse. Neuralgia about heart, extending to arm; angina pectoris. Frequently useful for irregular and tumultuous action of the heart, nervous.

Pulse.—Rapid. Slow during the morning fever; S. and feeble. Weak and irregular, now rapid, now slow.

Neck.—Swelling of glands. Intermittent drawing in muscles of nape and up to occiput. Pain in nape as if he could not raise head after stooping; P. in nape as if asleep in morning after rising, > motion. Paralyzed sensation in l. side.

Back.—Twitching of dorsal and costal muscles. Bruised pain in spine even during rest. Sticking opposite heart; in upper dorsal vertebrae; extending to l. side when walking; periodical, in r. scapula; boring in l.; itching, in r. dorsal muscles; S. in sacrum when sitting, < inspiration and expiration. Bubbling sensation in l. scapula, as if blood were dropping through a valve. Tired aching over crest of ilium and down into pelvis, < r. side, with general languor and desire to lie down, later the tired aching < morning and forenoon.

Extremities.—Trembling; of lower, then of upper. Nails brittle and many white spots on them. Shooting through all at a false step. Tearing in bones near joints, as if scraped. Uneasiness at night preventing sleep. Fatigue, < walking, with bruised feeling in spine. Heaviness, and after ascending stairs difficult breathing; H. so that writing and walking were difficult.

Hand.—Pale yellow. Involuntary drawing in tendons of l. so that all fingers were bent, with spasmodic pain in hollow of hand. Rhythmical tearing in joints of l., at times extending into metacarpus, then cramplike tearing in palm. Cramplike pain in l. metacarpus extending from side of thumb to that of little finger, as if hand were squeezed. Drawing pains transversely through bones. Crawling as if asleep on compressing hand. Falling asleep when at rest, > wetting them and taking firm hold of anything, with crawling in tips of fingers.

Fingers.—Sticking jerks near proximal joints. Itching sticking in tips; throbbing S. in tips, as if they had been frozen. Tearing in phalanges of r. thumb; in tip of l. little; in metacarpo-phalangeal joints; rhythmical, in phalanges of r. Burning pain on back of proximal phalanx of little finger; on joint of l. thumb. Paralytic pain in r. index. Painful drawing in metacarpal joint of thumb.

Lower Extremities.—Weakness, < thighs. Heaviness; with tingling and with difficulty in walking.

Thigh.—Itching stich on l.; tensive sticking in l. when walking, > standing, returning when sitting; intermittent burning S. in muscles below neck of l. femur, in a spot externally and posteriorly, when sitting, slightly > rising, on sitting down again worse than before. Drawing tearing in r. when sitting; tearing outward in l. extending from knee to os innominatum, as if in periosteum, < pressure on bone. Boring above r. knee during rest. Pain above r. knee when sitting; in r., < pressure; bruised, in anterior muscles when walking; drawing, in muscles and in hip. Tension in r. when sitting; in muscles in anterior surfaces when walking; in l. gluteals when walking. Sensation of gooseflesh on r., without chilliness. Movement downward, almost like chilliness, caused by sneezing.

Knee.—Sticking through middle on bending it, momentarily > walking; deep in r. patella when sitting. Tearing in l. as if sprained when walking, so that he limped at times, since he could not bend knee as usual. Digging in l., with uneasiness preventing sleep. Jerking in patella. Bruised pain on touch; on inner surface on bending it. Tearing tension on outer side of l. at every step on ascending stairs. Compressive pain, < walking, with drawing and sticking.

Leg.—Cramp in l. calf. Sticking jerks above ankle. Sticking in calf and pulsation in patellæ if knees are held stiffly outstretched; tensive S. in l. tibia during rest. Digging on inner side of r. calf, < walking; itching, in l. tibia below patella during rest. Burning pain above r. inner malleolus. Drawing extending downward, with sensation as if warmth had penetrated them, and warmth of feet; tensive D. in l. calf when walking. Bubbling sensation in r. calf, as if blood were dropping through a valve. Heaviness in r. when sitting.

Ankle.—Boring sticking in r. malleolus during rest. Acute pain in l. in morning when stepping on it. Cramplike pain as if tendons were too short on bending foot up and down. Pressure as from a stone when standing, with drawing in it. Smarting drawing, with soreness.

Foot.—Sticking in l. sole when sitting; in l. sole as if too short and tense when stepping on it; itching, in r. sole during motion; itching boring, on back of r. during rest. Jerking tearing on back; intermittent tearing in l. above toes; intermittent, in l. metatarsal bones. Suppurative pain in sole in morning on first stepping on them. Burning pain in back of l. Digging in r. above toes during rest.

Toes.—Itching stich in second r.; boring-itching S. in balls of second and third. Tearing in muscles of l.

Skin.—Swelling on l. side of chin, which itches during midday nap. Wartlike growth on second l. toe, with biting pain, pressure of boot caused burning pain as in a corn, it left a thick white scar. Elevations like hives on lower limbs after scratching. Pimples red and sore to touch, on neck. Pustules on chin; on r. middle finger exuding yellow pus on pressure.

Biting pain on l. side of forehead. Tickling on back of nose as if the hairs there were lightly touched or as from a wind across it. Crawling in calves; in tips of r. toes during rest; boring, in a spot in r. palm; itching, on r. sole.

Itching in r. auricle; externally in ears; over whole side of nose; in l. groin; in axillæ, < l.; r. forearm; more on thighs than on legs, returning after scratching; on l. scapula, not > scratching; on back of l. foot during rest, not > scratching; biting, in thighs, not > scratching, > night in bed; as if palms and tips of fingers had been frozen; crawling, on forehead; crawling, on r. thigh, > scratching. Burning itching in middle of palms; in r. eyebrow, > scratching; in a spot in l. palm, next day a hard red pimple, with burning itching.

Sleep.—Yawning; in forenoon, with irresistible sleepiness; without sleepiness. Sleepiness. Irresistible sleepiness; in morning; in evening so long as he was up, but late falling asleep after lying down. Sleep heavy and stupid. Sleep long at midday and on waking he could not persuade himself to rise and kept falling asleep again.

Sleepless before midnight. Late falling asleep; on account of mental activity, then uneasy sleep disturbed by vivid unremembered dreams, and after midnight frequent waking, tossing about and a half waking condition. Sleep unrefreshing. Restless sleep; with frequent waking, full of frightful dreams, for example, that lightning had struck off his shoulder; with vivid dreams of fire and quarrels and about 1 A.M. he thought it time to rise. Dreams anxious; vivid, anxious, of fire and ghosts; vivid, of well-known past occurrences, long dreams of one subject; indistinctly remembered; voluptuous, with emission without erection; lascivious, with emission.

Fever.—Chilliness in morning, without thirst; every morning after rising; every day at 7 A.M., on rising, then at noon heat, < trunk and face, with redness, without special thirst; in afternoon, then heat and thirst for beer; in evening on going to bed, then offensive sweat; in evening on lying down, then heat, then sweat nearly all night; in evening, with cold hands and distended abdomen, without thirst, afterwards in night when lying on back bruised pain in all joints, vivid, fatiguing dreams, talking in sleep, dry heat of body, with dryness of mouth, nose and eyes, without thirst; waking me between 2 and 3 A.M., then paroxysms of labor-like pain, < lying on back, menses bright scarlet; on slight motion; after dinner, obliging him to lie in bed; sensitive to cold air.

Shaking chill in morning without thirst, with lightness of movements of fingers and mental activity. Shivering towards evening in open air, with tensive pain below l. ear, next morning glandular swelling in that spot, hard and painful to touch, with sticking in l. side of throat on swallowing, swelling of gum and difficulty in opening jaw, the sticking on swallowing > pressing the swollen glands inward, with sweat two mornings. Creeping shivering; with heat, without thirst; intermittent, starting from chest; over whole body except arms, with sensation as if hair bristled.

Intermittent chilliness every morning after rising. Internal chilliness with external warmth, < chest. Alternations of chill and heat all day, with redness of face; alternations of C. and heat, C. < back, heat in hands and face.

Coldness of finger-tips; hands and feet; arms and shoulders; in back extending to umbilical region; extending through limbs all day, without thirst; in arms, with gooseflesh, did not dare to bring arms against body on account of shivering; hands seemed cold when held against face, while to touch they seemed warmer than usual, only clammy in palms; of hands, with heat of face, without thirst; hands, with cold, clammy sweat, < inner surface; chills nights after retiring, beginning about region of heart, causing restlessness and hyperaesthesia of nervous system, which sensibility lasted longer than chill; internal C. and heat alternately in l. side of forehead; intermittent, every morning, extending upward from feet; intermittent creeping, in morning, starting from pit of stomach and extending over trunk, head and upper limbs, with external heat, without thirst; sudden creeping, every morning, at one time in feet, at another in head and hands, at another in back or chest and abdomen, at another over whole body, without thirst.

Heat; in evening, < face, yet longing for warmth of bed; (while eating cold food); after slight exertion, with sweat, < head, without thirst; on moderate exertion, < in face, on more violent exertion general sweat; with thirst for beer; in paroxysms, with red lips and cheeks; internal, in forenoon; internal at night, with dryness of mouth, without thirst.

Heat in head; in skin of r. temple near eye; in skin in front of r. ear; externally in l. temple; over spine; in cheeks and lips, with redness; of lower limbs at night, without sweat or thirst; internal, in face and hands, while hands seemed cold when held to face and face seemed cold to hands; flushing, in face, without redness; flushing, over back after supper.

Sweat on slightest uncovering.

Spongia.

A tincture is made of Turkey-sponge, toasted brown.

Allies.—It is interesting to observe that both the pathogenesis and our clinical experience emphasize the similarity of this substance to Carbo v., Iod. and Brom.; compare also Phos., Stannum, etc.

Generalities.—Bruised feeling on waking; B. feeling in upper part of body. Intolerance of tight clothing about body, < region of stomach.

Weakness after slight motion, with orgasm of blood in chest, heat of face, body began to glow, vessels hard and distended, and breath left her; W. of mind and body; with sleepiness; with sleepiness, dull look of eyes and swelling of eyelids; with headache, loss of appetite, sleepiness and fretfulness; with dulness of head, unfitting him for mental effort; < arms; sudden, after exertion, chest especially affected, she could scarcely talk (Carbo v., Stann., Sulph.), heat in face and nausea, after a few hours heaviness of head; sudden, after moderate motion in open air, with swaying about upon the chair, anxiety, nausea, pallor, short, panting respiration, surging from heart into chest, as if it would force out upward, with involuntary closing of eyes, almost spasmodic, with forcing out of tears between the closed lashes, she was conscious but unable to make the will act upon the limbs.

Heaviness when walking in open air, so that he must sit down on the ground. Numbness of lower half of body. Feels best when lying.

Mind.—Joy and irresistible desire to sing, then distraction of mind and disinclination to work. Alternately lively and lachrymose, and peevish, quarrelsome mood. Pert, witty. Fretful, scornful, obstinate; F., he talked unwillingly; F. and lazy, little inclined to talk. Taciturn and discontented. Dissatisfied with what she accomplishes, she cannot help herself at work, does not succeed. Anxious, as if he foresaw a misfortune to himself. Fearful and tormented by a frightful image of a past sad event. Easily frightened, it seemed to shoot into her feet, and then heaviness of them.

Head.—Aching from staring at one point, with lachrymation. Feeling as if everything would press out at forehead. Dull and stupid; D. and staggering when walking. Heaviness; all day; on raising it from the table; < stooping, with fulness. Rush of blood; with external heat of forehead and perceptible pulsation in arteries of neck. Vertigo; with tendency to fall backward; when sitting, as if head would fall to one side, with heat in head.

Forehead.—Sticking transversely in l. side; S. alternately in F. and occiput on motion, with heat extending from behind ear over occiput to nape; jerking, < walking; boring outward, in l. side when walking in open air. Pain; in l. side; externally above r. eye; from above eyes to occiput and nape, till sleep; as if F. and occiput were pressed towards each other at noon; extending outward in r. eminence. Pressure outward in l. upper part when sitting. Sensation of accumulation of blood.

Temples.—Stitches externally in l. extending to forehead. Tearing in l. close to orbit, causing aching in l. half of l. eye. Pressure outward in r.; sharp, externally. Throbbing in l.

Pain in vertex; drawing. Jerking through sides of head, < temples, extending to vertex on moving arms or stooping. Pain in r. half of brain on entering a warm room from the open air; drawing down in r. side of head and neck. Pressure outward in r. parietal bone when lying. Whizzing in region of whichever ear she lay upon, like pulsation, with a double beating.

Occiput.—Pain in l. side as if it would burst. Paroxysmal heaviness on walking; H. in afternoon on turning head, with stitching in it, heat of face, hands and feet, chilliness of rest of body, inclination to coryza, weakness of body, bitter taste, then in evening after undressing shaking chill, then in bed heat except on thighs, which were numb and chilly, at night sweat.

Scalp.—Gnawing pain on vertex. Sensitiveness, < moving it. Sensation as if hair on vertex were bristling, or as if some one moved it, < motion of body.

Eyes.—Sunken. Redness of white. Suppuration. Sticking; in evening, then pain; in r., with pressure. Tension of l. by temple. Lachrymation. Tensive sticking in l. external canthus, < moving eyes, > touch. Drawing together of l. lids in morning in bed. Pain around about beneath lids; burning, on outer surface of l. lower lid. Heaviness of lids. Itching of lids. Burning about l. ball. Sudden sticking drawing in outer angle of l. orbit, extending around eye towards inner angle. Difficulty in recognizing distant objects.

Ears.—Sticking outward in r., as if through drum. Cramplike pain in l. when walking in open air; sore P. in cartilages; drawing P. in r. middle; tensive, in a swelling at entrance of meatus, with crawling as if it would break into an ulcer, and intermittent sticking. Pressure and forcing. Constriction. Burning in orifice of r. Ringing; in r. Hearing difficult.

Nose.—Crawling stitches in l. bone. Tearing. Contracted sensation over root. (Stoppage.) Coryza and sneezing; C. and cough; stopped. Bleeding at dinner, from slight blowing of nose (Carbo v.).

Face.—Pallor. Redness of cheeks, with usual warmth. Swelling of cheeks. Sticking in cheek; beneath lower lip. Tearing in r. malar-bone. Suppurative pain on l. side of chin as far as corner of mouth, on touch. Jaw, swollen gland beneath l. lower, painful to touch; swollen glands beneath r. lower, preventing motion of neck, with tensive pain on touch; sticking transversely through l. upper; jerking sticking from behind r. upper into inner ear in evening in bed; cramplike pang from l. joint to cheek in evening when eating; cramplike pain in l. upper; pain in lower on touch.

Mouth.—Stitches in upper incisors. Pain in teeth as if he had bitten something between them; (burning) pain in l. upper molars; P. in r. lower molars as if gums and teeth were swollen and the latter elongated. On chewing, sensation as if molars were on edge and loose. Itching of teeth. Gum swollen and painful on chewing. Blisters on margin of tongue, with sore pain; B. on margin of tongue and inside of cheeks, with burning stinging so that she could eat no solids. Salivation. Taste sweetish; T. rancid in mouth and fauces when smoking the usual tobacco; bitter; bitter low down in throat.

Throat.—Hawking of mucus. Sticking internally morning and evening, < eating, and on neck sensation as if something pressed outward. Scraping. Pain as if glands near larynx and trachea were swelling. Tension in l. side near larynx on turning head to r. side. Relaxed sensation in pharynx and stomach as if he had drunk too much warm water. Burning in T. and larynx, then in ears.

Goutre (Iod.).—Sticking; in lower part; on swallowing, at other times aching. Pressure. Sensation of working, distention and pressure, as if everything would force out. Sensation as if it were loose, < swallowing, and as if everything were moving about in it. Jerking aching over whole side on which there was a G., a throbbing in head extending into cheeks and neck as a tearing.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; diminished. Thirst after smoking; T. for cold water in evening. Eructations; empty; bitter; sour. Hiccough. Nausea; when smoking as usual; with accumulation of water in mouth. Pain in epigastric region in forenoon; in pit in evening. Constriction in l. side below S. when sitting, < lying on r. side. Internal coldness in pit, with fulness.

Abdomen.—Tense. Rumbling; before stool, with stitches in anus. Emission of flatus and soft stool. Cutting in morning after eating, forcing him to bend up, with urging to a scanty stool. Cramps. Gripping; > emission of flatus. Difficulty after eating, with fulness, as if digestion stopped. Heat extending into chest on smoking, with chilliness of rest of body.

Cutting in upper part in morning after eating. Tensive pain in upper when sitting; in upper when walking, < stooping. Sticking in hepatic region; externally in umbilicus. Strangulated sensation in l. side, < pressure of hand.

Hypogastrium.—Swelling of a gland in r. groin, with tensive pain when walking. Burrowing stitches in l. side on expiration, < stooping. Tearing in rings when sitting. Cutting extending into l. chest in evening after eating. Gripping, with rumbling; G. when sitting, > standing bent over, with urging to stool. Burrowing as of something alive under skin above l. hip in morning when lying upon it. Cramp-like pain in l. groin when sitting. Tensive pain from middle down to anus. Pain in groin as in a hernia. Strangulated sensation, > emission of flatus, soon becoming worse.

Anus.—Passage of thread-worms daily and crawling in rectum every evening. Sore pain during stool. Bruised, almost sore pain. Tenesmus with every stool; T. during stool, as if diarrhoea would occur.

Stool.—Frequent diarrhoea, with qualmsiness in abdomen; white D. (First part hard, the second soft.) Hard, delayed.

Urinary Organs.—(Pain in neck of bladder like a warning to urinate.) Frequent micturition. Micturition in a thin stream. (Inability to retain urine.) (Urine frothy like yeast.) Clear, bright yellow urine, depositing on standing a yellow sediment. Thick grayish-white sediment.

Sexual Organs.—Drawing stitches in body of penis, out through glans. Itching on scrotum and body of penis, with burning; voluptuous I. on tip of penis. Spermatic cord swollen, painful (Puls.). Testicles, painful swelling (Ars., Clem., Rhod.); pinching (Clem.), bruised (Rhod.), squeezing pain in T.; sticking extending into spermatic cords; pain; pain on touch. Menses too early and profuse.

Respiratory Organs.—Region of thyroid gland seems indurated (Con., Iod.). Jerking sticking externally in region of larynx. Pain in region of larynx, when singing; P. above thyroid cartilage, < touch. Scraping in larynx, with burning and constriction. Dryness in region of larynx, < hawking (Bell.). Sensation in region of thyroid and cervical glands on breathing as if air forced in and out. Hoarseness (Iod., Brom.). (Cough at night, with fretful look); C. from low down in chest, where it pains as if sore and bloody, from coughing (see Sang.); dry C.; dry, day and night, > eating and drinking, with burning in chest (Carbo v.); hollow, day and night, with expectoration.

Respiration difficult as if a plug were sticking in larynx and the breath could not get through on account of constriction of larynx (compare Lach.). (Dyspnoea.) Rapid panting after dancing. Respiration slow, deep, as after exhaustion.

Clinical.—Goitre; hard, with suffocative spells at night, sometimes with hoarse cough or staring eyes. Laryngitis, harsh, croupy cough, with suffocative spells rising from sleep, larynx sensitive to touch, < turning the head; (in croup Spongia is always indicated by the suffocative attacks, resembling Brom.); it is not useful in the acute febrile stage, but it follows Aconite; it is possible, however, now to prescribe Iodine or Bromine, as occasion demands, with great accuracy, and thus avoid the necessity of giving Spongia (which combines in a feeble way some properties of both these drugs). It has been used for phthisis of the larynx and for diphtheritic croup. Chronic hoarseness, especially if the voice gives out in talking or singing (Phos.). Oppression of breathing, > eating a little. Bronchial catarrh, with wheezing asthmatic cough, > eating or drinking, < cold air; sometimes in bronchitis, with profuse expectoration and suffocative attacks, < lying with the head low and in a hot room, > eating. It has been prescribed with success in the dry suffocative cough associated with aneurism or with enlarged bronchial glands. Occasionally useful in whooping cough, < midnight and cold air.

Chest.—Sticking in l. side, with pressure; S. in r. side, and on rubbing the place sensation as if a weight were drawing downward under skin; in muscles of l. side of C. and back, with sudden pain as if a broad pointed substance were forced up; intermittent, in l.; outward, in r.; boring, in r. costal muscles during inspiration and expiration; drawing, beneath l. second ribs when walking; drawing, in l. side when sitting with back bent, < deep, slow inspiration.

Cutting in l. side on deep inspiration. Pain when coughing, and in trachea, with rawness in throat (compare Caust., Stan.). Painful pressure beneath short ribs on coughing. Pinching jerking outward in l. side. Sticking-pinching crawling in region of l. sixth and seventh ribs, < external pressure.

Clinical.—Occasionally prescribed in pneumonia (see Iodine); in pneumonia, when the patient cannot lie down. It has also been prescribed in pulmonary consumption, particularly the form following pneumonia, characterized by the suffocative spells of coughing, < dry, cold air.

Heart.—(Pain about heart, palpitation, with dyspnoea, cyanosis and fear of death.)

Clinical.—Rheumatic endocarditis, inability to lie down, wakes with suffocation, etc.

Pulse.—Rapid and full.

Neck.—Jerking in r. muscles when lying. Cracking in nape on stooping. Sticking in l. side; in r. muscles on waking, > swallowing, but returning; drawing, through l. side. Cramp in muscles, which drew jaw downward, after opening mouth wide and biting teeth together hard, with heaviness in joint of jaw as if dislocated. Frequent cracking pain in nape close to l. scapula. Intermittent pressure in r. side as if skin were pressed between fingers, and pain on touch in region of jugular vein. Sensation as if glands were swollen. Tension in muscles, < r., on bending head backward. Stiffness; in l. side on turning head to right.

Back.—Pain, then palpitation all day, before menses; pain extending up and down through spine when sitting erect. Sticking on r. scapula; in scapula, with soreness; in r. lumbar muscles; in sacrum. Tearing from r. side of sacrum to l. and upward when sitting. Pain in sacrum when walking, < stepping with l. foot; at union of sacrum and r. ilium when standing; flatulent, in lumbar region during stool. Numbness of sacrum and nates.

Extremities.—Stretching. Jerking like drawing pressure in hollow of l. knee on bending knee, alternating with similar sensation in axilla. Weakness, < muscles of lower, with bruised sensation.

Sticking in axilla when sitting. Stretching of arms. Sticking drawing through upper arm. Stitches in elbow on motion; in tip on flexing arm, then tearing in joint while arm was bent. Pain in tip of l. elbow. Forearms and hands tremble; boring outward stitches in internal muscles of r. F.; cramplike pain below elbow, < leaning on arm, with slow bubbling; drawing pains; pain in l. as if bones were compressed; heaviness. Wrist, stitches in r. during rest; tensive pain in l.; drawing pain upon r.; drawing in l.; tired sensation in and above them.

Swelling of hand, with inability to bend fingers. Pinching drawing inward in middle of palm. Middle joint of l. middle finger was thick, red and stiff. Sticking in distal joint of thumb, with sore pain. Cramplike pain in ball of r. thumb all day, and on moving hand extending into thumb; in ball of l. thumb all day on moving hand. Pain in proximal joints of r. fingers. Painful drawing in proximal phalanx of l. thumb extending into forearm. Tips of index fingers insensible.

Lower Extremities.—Weariness. Stiffness. Sudden jerking in muscular fibres of r. nates. Sticking in inner side of r. thigh; above r. knee when sitting, with pain; pulsating, above r. knee in morning in bed; drawing, below l. groin, < walking; boring outward, near r. hip. Tension in upper end of thigh, as if a muscle were too short, on every step, with sticking. Pressure extending backward on inner side above r. knee. Drawing in thighs and legs during menses.

Knee, sticking in l. in evening; pain in external tendon of flexor of r. popliteus, < walking; drawing in l. at night, then sweat; weakness when walking; heaviness when walking. Sticking in r. calf when walking. Tearing in tibia all the afternoon. Uneasiness in legs. Tearing heaviness in l. tibia close to ankle. Sensation in lower part of l. tibia as if a weight were hanging upon it when walking rapidly. Falling asleep of r. leg after a nap at noon, then of l., with spasmodic drawing of l. towards thigh when walking and sitting.

Tearing in malleoli, with heaviness of feet extending into tibia; drawing T. extending from r. ankle to knee. Heel, (sticking when sitting after a long walk); S. extending out of r. when standing; extending upward in r. when sitting; intermittent, extending outward in l. when standing, > motion. Pain in r. heel, < walking. Drawing pain extending from r. foot into thigh.

Skin.—Eruption on tip of nose and on lips. Itching eruption and itching red spots. Red swelling of r. antitragus, with a pimple discharging like an ulcer, ear painful to external pressure. Pimples painful to pressure beneath chin. Inflamed node in l. concha at entrance to meatus, at last covered with a scab and painful to touch. Boils painful to touch on l. ear. Blisters on r. forearm. Yellow crusty eruption, painful to touch, on l. eyebrow.

Sticking externally on chest and arm; in various parts, provoking scratching; itching, here and there, not > rubbing. Crawling on neck; in l. foot; in different spots, then redness and heat, then biting itching, then urticaria-like blisters, < scratching.

Itching on l. cheek; on ball of l. thumb, not > rubbing; if he scratches the itching spot the l. occurs in many other places; as at the outbreak of sweat, in morn- ing on waking, recurring after rubbing; voluptuous, of backs of r. toes in morning on waking; tickling, on l. thigh close to groin; burning, at night, < back, he only slumbers and tosses about constantly, with thirstless heat over whole body, < towards morning. Sticking itching in l. cheek; on chest towards l. shoulder; beneath l. eye, somewhat > rubbing. Prickling itching in l. axilla when sitting; in hollows of knees when walking. Biting itching on chest, < cold, on pit of stomach, on back, lower part of upper arms, at other times only on feet, the biting < rubbing, then redness of the spots, then blisters.

Sleep.—Sleepiness in afternoon, with yawning, without inactivity. Talking in sleep. Frequent waking as from fright. Sleepless till midnight; almost all night, and frightful dreams of death and murder; and as soon as he fell asleep he was full of fancies, his forehead seemed thick and sore to touch, pain over eyes, < stooping, as if everything would press out at forehead, with chilliness. Dreams interrupting sleep; fatiguing D.; sad; vexatious and lachrymose, anxious; many, before midnight, then sleeplessness on account of uneasiness, on closing his eyes while awake vivid images passed before him, > opening eyes, at one time it seemed as if a battery were discharged, at another everything was enveloped in flames, at another scientific subjects crowded upon him.

Fever.—In morning pain in head and abdomen, then shaking chill, with cold blue hands and thirst, then when lying dry heat, with thirst and restless slumbering, for thirty-six hours, throughout the night on waking and moving nausea and vertigo, at intervals of twelve hours sweat, when from time to time the heat moderated, afterwards tearing and sticking in l. eye and l. cheek and eruption on lips. Coldness of hands; lower limbs; in back in region of last ribs; in back, not > warmth of stove. Shivering, < back, without thirst; on back in afternoon, alternating with heat on forehead, without thirst.

Heat with thirst; H. of whole body, with coldness, paleness and sweat of face; sudden apprehensive, over whole body, with heat and redness of face and sweat; in several attacks daily, with pain in precordial region, anxiety, weeping and inconsolable, she longed to die on the spot; internal, in whole body in evening when sitting, with cold sweat on face. Burning in r. side of scalp; on l. shoulder; in arms and hands; feverish in limbs, with inclination to stretch; in one side of face, renewed by thinking of it; flushing, in face and blood, with nervous excitement; beneath r. corner of mouth, as if an eruption would appear, < making skin tense; internal, in forehead, with hard, rapid pulse.

Sweat in morning on waking.

Squilla.

A tincture is made of the fresh bulbs of Scilla Maritima, L.

General Action.—This acrid drug irritates the mucous membranes of the air-passages and digestive tract; for diseases of the former it is frequently prescribed, rarely for those of the latter. It stimulates the secretion of urine; it may cause bloody urine or even suppress it altogether.

Allies.—All. cepa, Sulph., and the Kalis (Caut., Kali c., and Tartar emetic).

Generalities.—Twitching; from nervous weakness.

Convulsions. Sticking now in one part, now in another. Pains over whole body; rheumatic, > rest, < motion. Discomfort. Weakness; in morning after waking and rising, < thighs and region of hips; on walking far; more from a sleepless night than from diarrhœa, head confused yet he is cheerful and good-humored; after dinner, with sleepiness. Heaviness as from weakness.

Mind.—Lively, joyous (probably curative). Courage, sedateness. Ill-humored; at every work, he was cool to people and did not answer; and averse to mental work. Whining on account of pain in stomach. Vexed; about trifles. Anxious; and fearful of death. Indolent in morning and averse to mental work. Disinclined to think and write; to think, and depressed.

Head.—(Tearing, which does not prevent mental work.) Tingling aching in morning after rising. Heaviness; in morning, with confusion of it and quiet sleep; as if he could not hold it still when sitting. Weak and dreamy. Stupefaction every morning, with sensitiveness of vertex. Swashing on shaking it. Vertigo, with nausea; cloudy V.; as if he would fall sideways in morning on rising.

Forehead.—Sticking extending into r. side of F.; in r. eminence, extending to nose; drawing, extending into r. ear; from l. to r. side, with drawing. Piercing thrust in l. eminence. Burrowing. Pain in a spot in l. eminence; drawing P. Dulness in sciput and occiput as after intoxication, with pressure.

Temples.—Drawing stitches in r., constricting half of brain; twitching S. in r., extending to forehead. Drawing in r., ending in sticking. Contractive pain.

Heaviness of whole upper part of head in morning after waking. Vertex sensitive. Pinching in sides. Occiput, drawing sticking when sitting; tearing; pain; drawing from l. side to r.

Eyes.—Staring. Contractive sensation in r. Itching of l. They seem swimming in cold water. Lachrymation and sneezing. Pupils contracted; dilated. L. upper lid swollen and hanging down. Canthus, sticking in l. external; tickling in l. external; burning in external. Tearing behind ball and in eyes.

Nose.—Sore sensation on margins of nostrils. (Sneezing at night.) Coryza, with ulcerated nostrils; C. and eyes have a dim, weak look and are full of water in forenoon; fluent, in morning; fluent, and constant violent sneezing; biting, with frequent sneezing; dry. Acrid mucus (compare Allium cepa.)

Face.—Red and burning. Drawn, tense, with large eyes and dilated pupils, staring and redness of cheeks. Varying expression, now dejected, now lively.

Mouth.—Sticking upward in upper canine teeth, as if cold sharp air penetrated them, when eating and drinking cold or warm things. Vesicles on tongue. Roughness far back on palate, with scraping. Burning in palate and throat; scraping, similar to heart-burn, in palate. Mouth sticky and slimy. Salivation. Taste bitter; (bitter to everything, and sour); unpleasant, with whitish-yellow tongue; disgusting, sweetish to all food, especially meat and broth; burnt in palate except while swallowing food; blunted; lost when smoking tobacco.

Throat.—Pain in submaxillary glands.

Stomach.—Hunger ravenous; insatiable when eating what tastes good, yet stomach seems full; diminished; lost; partly on account of fulness, partly because food tastes burnt, partly because food has no taste, for example, broth and meat, also on account of disgusting sweetish taste, as bread and butter. Thirst; in evening, with chilliness.

Eruclatations; empty; short; sour; of disgusting taste. Nausea; in back of throat, with salivation; in epigastric region; in pit of stomach, alternating with symptoms of diarrhoea in lower abdomen, but more indications of diarrhoea; after dinner, with eruclatations tasting of the food; with eruclatations, retching and colic. Retching. Vomiting.

Gastric and intestinal catarrh. Sticking in l. side of pit. Pinching in pit. Cardialgia. Pain; intermittent; as from a stone. Discomfort. Indigestion. Warmth.

Abdomen.—Distention. Rumbling and gurgling. Flatulence. Emission of flatus; on touching abdomen; short, abrupt; offensive; offensive, noisy, only temporarily relieving abdomen. Enteritis. Gripping. Pain; intermittent; drawing, < walking. Tension; though it was soft. Tenderness so that no covering could be borne. Emptiness as if hungry. Warmth. Tearing through A. below umbilicus. Gripping in umbilical region. Stinging in muscles of l. side. Pain in sides as if intestines were forcing through when coughing and walking. Gurgling bubbling in muscles of r. side.

Hypogastrium.—Paroxysmal rumbling above pubic region, < walking and standing, > eating, with rattling. Incarceration of flatus and cutting. Gripping renewed next day at the same hour, > emission of flatus. Cutting gripping. (Acute pain as from flatus, or as from a purge, or as before diarrhoea.)

Clinical.—Abdominal dropsy, with scanty urine.

Anus.—Sticking when walking. Itching.

Stool.—Almost liquid, smelling of sulphuretted hydrogen, with pain in small of back and tenesmus, then relief of gripping in abdomen. Diarrhoea; from 2 till 7 A.M., at last watery, almost without flatulence; copious brown, slimy, offensive feces, without pain or tenesmus, with spluttering of flatus, with thread-worms and white unformed fibres. Soft; and frequent, with burning in anus. Pasty. Constipation. Hard; and scanty. Colored with blood. Diminished at first. Sluggish.

Urinary Organs.—Strangury after micturition though there is no urine to pass. Urying (the prover was in the habit of urinating moderately only twice a day); and copious urine looking like water; with scanty urine; and on urinating a thin stool without colic; at first with profuse urine, especially of urine as clear as water, or at least watery urine, not profuse, then the opposite condition; constant ineffectual; infrequent desire and scanty urine.

Unable to retain urine because the amount was too large, it would have passed involuntarily if he had not hastened. Waking at night to urinate. Frequent micturition without increase of urine; F., urine as clear as water, the desire sudden. Micturition seldom and scanty, but urine not dark. Sticking in urethra while pressing at stool; S. in orifice and farther back.

Urine copious. Scanty; and watery. Bloody. Reddish, with reddish sediment, with little desire to urinate. (Hot urine and offensive stool, with undigested portions.)

Clinical.—Cystitis; tenesmus, frequent urging, urine scanty, dark. Atony of the bladder, urine is discharged involuntarily with cough (Caust.).

Sexual Organs.—Sticking in glands causing anxiety. Compressive pain in testicles. Hæmorrhage from uterus.

Respiratory Organs.—Tickling beneath thyroid cartilage, irritating to short dry cough in four or five shocks; T. in region of thyroid cartilage, provoking cough, which increases the tickling. Irritation to cough in upper part of trachea, with hawking. Cough, with pressure outward in chest and painful contraction of abdominal muscles; C. even to retching (preceded by rattling); violent, dry, causing shattering in abdomen and dryness in throat; at first with expectoration; C. in morning, with profuse slimy expectoration; sudden violent C., with expectoration in morning, with sticking in side at every C. (Kali c.). Constant expectoration of mucus. Dyspnoea, with stitches in chest, < inspiration (Kali c.); D., with rapid respiration and anxiety. Difficult respiration. Frequent necessity to take a deep breath, which provokes cough. Heavy, slow respiration.

Clinical.—Bronchitis, acute and chronic; cough brought on by drinking, generally with much mucus in the chest, which rattles and causes violent spasms of cough, with involuntary micturition; the patient generally coughs a long time before a little mucus is raised, which affords relief. Violent paroxysms of cough, with sneezing and lachrymation. Whooping cough. (Compare rattling mucus in the bronchi with Tartar emetic; Squills has less prostration and has almost always severe sticking pains in the sides, especially l.; Tartar emetic has profound prostration and sweat, but no pain.) Occasionally called for in the latest stages of pneumonia. Violent spasmodic cough, ending in a choking, almost explosive; cough from a sort of spasm in the pit of the stomach, quite dry, but always followed by the need to clear the nose (worse 5 till 7 A.M.)

Chest.—Sticking in true ribs; in l. side (Sulph.) ; in middle of ensiform cartilage; in scapular end of clavicle during inspiration and expiration; extending downward near sternum, so that breathing was difficult; recurrent in side; jerking, in sides not far from sternum, on inspiration; broad in last l. rib, waking him in morning; broad, beneath last ribs on both sides during expiration; drawing, from last true rib to shoulder; contracting, beneath last rib from rapid walking. Pleuro-pneumonia. Compressive pain in r. side ending in a stitch. Drawing pain. Oppression as if too tight. Pressure (tension?) extending to lower part of abdomen on expanding chest during inspiration. (Pain below r. arm, and on stooping throbbing pain, when touched pain as if flesh were loosened.)

Clinical.—Occasionally useful in pneumonia and pleuro-pneumonia.

Heart and Pulse.—Palpitation. Pulse rapid in one, slow in another, normal in a third; slow while vomiting; small, contracted; small, hard, tense.

Neck and Back.—Painful jerking above l. scapula. Pinching in cervical muscles, with drawing. Rheumatic pain in muscles on sides of neck. Stiffness of nape; of l. cervical muscles. Painless drawing on l. scapula. Bubbling sensation beneath scapula, in back and l. upper arm.

Extremities.—Pain. Uneasiness. Weakness and trembling. Falling asleep of hands when resting head upon them during the day and in lower limbs when crossing legs. Twitching of l. arm when standing; of upper arm, with pulsation. Jerking pain transversely through wrists. Stitchlike drawing from l. wrist to fingers. Sticking in joints of hands; in middle of l. metacarpus. Soreness between lower limbs. Jerking in thighs and legs when sitting. Thighs, sticking; bruised sensation; drawing pain in muscles; intermittent drawing pain when sitting and walking; bubbling extending in a streak from upper part to toes; weariness. Drawing pain in leg. Constrictive pain in hollow of l. knee when standing, forcing him to bend knee. Burning pain in ball of r. foot as after freezing.

Skin.—Eruption not unlike purpura hæmorrhagica, with collapse. Scirhus. Pimples on neck, painful when rubbed; P. in a group between scapulae, with tickling (crawling) itching, which changed after scratching to burning-sticking itching, then crawling itching. Red spots over whole body becoming itch-like pustules, on hands, between fingers, on feet and abdomen, with burning itching after some days. Red pustules on back, with sticking itching and after scratching burning-sticking itching, next day a crust on each one. Cold gangrene. Ulcerations, with fever, and inflammation may be expected. Moist eruption, biting like an ulcer, above middle of upper lip, with sticking itching. (Blisters on hands from handling fresh Squills.)

Sticking extending from shoulder to middle of upper arm. Neck sensitive to rubbing of neckband, with red, almost denuded spots; S. across back from one hip to the other. Itching from handling Squills, with burning; sticking, on neck and jaws, momentarily > scratching; crawling, below r. arm, momentarily > scratching; biting, on forehead and chin, as if eruption would appear, momentarily > scratching.

Sleep.—Yawning without sleepiness; but with stretching of upper limbs. Sleepiness in evening. Restless sleep. Sleepless. Waking frequently and tossing about; W. at 1 A.M., with nausea, anxiety and deep respiration. Merry dreams. Vivid dream that his body was excessively swollen.

Fever.—Chilliness; then heat; internal, in evening after lying down, with external heat; internal, in night, with external heat, without thirst. Shivering, with coldness of skin. Cold hands and feet; feet every afternoon, with heat of body, without thirst; feet, with heat in head; feet, with heat over whole body as from hot drinks, without thirst or sweat; back and arms, even when walking in a warm room, > sitting.

Heat without redness or thirst; H. on slightest exertion and on talking, with redness, < face; internal, when coughing, talking, or on slightest exertion; dry, without thirst; (dry, then internal dry heat, both without thirst); in face, more internally, < motion of body, without thirst, with chilliness of rest of body on slightest uncovering.

Sweat in axilla; on toes.

Stannum.

Precipitated metallic tin is triturated for use.

General Action.—Its sphere of action is not well known; it, however, seems to produce derangements of the nervous system (convulsions and paralysis) in a way somewhat similar to its ally, Zinc. Its curative power in bronchial and pulmonary diseases is well established. It was formerly supposed to be a vermifuge.

Allies.—Caust., Phos., Cina.

Generalities.—Emaciation and consumption. Trembling of whole body, hand trembles more when resting it lightly upon anything than when grasping anything tightly. (Epilepsy in a boy who often had convulsive attacks, < morning fasting. Tin was given to destroy the worms which were supposed to be present, thereupon the fits increased to epilepsy.) Sticking gripping alternately in different parts. Many pains, especially the drawing, begin slight, increase slowly, become severe and slowly disappear. Uneasiness; at 1 A.M. after waking from deep sleep, with burrowing on tibiae.

Weakness; during the day, with necessity to lie down, but inability to sleep, and when he slumbered vertigo, vanishing of senses and dulness of mind; when walking, especially in the sun, with giving way of knees and sweat of weakness on face; < ascending steps; < walking slowly, so that he must walk fast; > walking fast, but felt all the more afterwards; and when about to sit down he falls upon the chair because he has not the power to sit down slowly; and sleepiness; as if limbs were beaten; of mind and body, with irresistible sleepiness, but frequent waking with indifferent dreams; sudden, so that she could scarcely breathe, when dressing after rising; so that she could scarcely breathe, after descending steps.

Heaviness now in one, now in another bone. Sensation of agreeable lightness on deep breathing. All symptoms except weakness > walking, but returning during rest, the weakness < walking.

Clinical.—General nervous weakness. Anæmia.

Mind.—Joyful. Talkative. Quiet, good humor. Quiet, absorbed in himself, with discomfort in body; quiet, absorbed in himself, solicitous for the future. Disinclined to talk. Fretful; all day, > open air; and he answers unwillingly and abruptly; and indolent, with heat in face, he would do everything but really does nothing. Anger; transient. Sad. Anxious for a week before menses, > appearance of the flow, with apprehension. Discontented. Discouraged. Aversion and dread of people. Restless and distracted, not persistent in work. Fruitlessly busy as if a rush of ideas prevented him from completing his work at a certain time. Inclination to do no work and inability to think. Dulness of mind, with indifference to external objects, pallor and darkness about eyes. Want of memory in morning on waking.

Clinical.—The mental symptoms may be compared with Puls. and Nat. mur., especially the hypochondriac and tearful mood.

Head.—Pain in morning on waking, with heat in it; P. every morning, with loss of appetite, nausea and fretfulness; suppurative, externally; cramplike, as if constricted by a band; as if screwed inward frequently, with jerks or drawing pressure here and there at times; as if brain were forced asunder and tense; as if brain were loose and beating against skull, on shaking head; dizzy. Heaviness; all day; in evening; now here, now there; sometimes only on top; sometimes only in forehead or temples; < evening, with dulness; with tearing. Sensitive stupefaction, with sudden jerks on upper margin of r. orbit and in other parts. Dulness as before coryza, with sneezing. Discomfort. Tingling, with resounding of noise. Weakness, with sleepiness. Vertigo; when sitting; with vanishing of thought; in sudden attacks when sitting; as if objects were at too great a distance; as if he had not slept enough, in morning on waking from a long sleep; stupefying, when walking in open air.

Forehead.—Jerking, alternating with pressure; sudden jerking in l. F. and temple. Sticking in middle; in l. eminence; in l. side; deep in brain above arch of l. orbit; from anterior part of brain to r. side; and on stooping pressure outward. Tearing; and in l. parietal bone; and in vertex and occiput, afterwards wandering about, sometimes affecting whole head, < forehead; intermittent, in r. half, < stooping; jerklike drawing, externally above l. brow. Intermittent cutting in l. anterior part of brain. Pain; all day, < noon, cold and motion, as when riding, > warmth, rest and pressure; < bending backward, > pressure; > pressure, and in temples and vertex; in F. and vertex, with drawing through them; in middle, extending deep into brain; as from a crashing; sharp jerking, in r. anterior lobe of brain, above orbit; stupefying, in brain above brows; burning, in one-half all day, and in nose and eyes, with external heat in the parts, necessity to lie down, nausea and retching. Pressure outward; > pressure, with sleepiness. Drawing in half of F. and in one temple, causing confusion. Burning tension in scalp above r. side of forehead.

Temples.—Pulsating stitches, with heat in head, chilliness of body, weakness of head, so that he almost loses his reason, with slumbering and insensibility. Boring in l. all day; in r., > pressure. Sharp pains, < l.; intermittent, in r. Pain in r. when lying upon it; outward in r., almost as if external; throbbing. Pressure inward in l., beginning slight, then increasing and again diminishing; P. inward all day. Compression, and in occiput.

Vertex.—Burning stitches; sudden S. in r. side. Tearing in l. side. Pain in V. and occiput in evening; after lying down. Constriction in whole upper part of head, slowly increasing and decreasing, with sudden pressure. Sudden sharp pressure, with sensation as if hair moved. Heaviness near forehead; intermittent H., with now and then shootings in r. parietal region.

Sides.—Dartings at times in l. or in occiput. Tearing in r. half; through r.; in sides of brain extending to top of skull. Boring stupefying pain on l. surface of brain. Pressure outward in r. Drawing pressure from parietal bone to orbit. Heaviness in l. half of brain, with emptiness.

Occiput.—Shooting in l. side. Tearing in l. bone; in l. side. Pressure outward in l. side. Constrictive pain in r. side. Compression below vertex. Heaviness; in bones, with boring.

Clinical.—Headache, as from a hoop; the pains gradually become worse, < motion, then gradually diminish until they disappear; the gradual increase and decrease of the headache and other pains are said to be characteristic of the drug. Neuralgia about the eyes; in one case pains extended to the vertex, feeling as though the head would burst from internal blows, great sensibility to noise; this recurred several days, beginning at 10 and lasting till 4, being worse at noon.

Eyes.—Dim; and weak, sunken. Prominent and painful as after weeping. Jerking; in l. Burning sticking in r. towards outer canthus. Pain; in l. as from a sty on lid; as from rubbing with a woolen cloth, also > moving lids. Burning. Pupils contracted, then dilated. Ball, shooting in l. in evening; tensile stitching in l., < moving it; dartings in r.; itching in l., somewhat > rubbing.

Nightly agglutination, with weakness during the day. Lids, burning stitches in r., < towards outer canthus; sensation of a hard substance behind r.; pain in upper; burning pain in l. lower; constriction, with redness of whites and burning; itching of upper, with swelling. Canthus, pustular swelling on l. inner, like a lachrymal fistula; sty in r. inner; twitching in r. inner; pain in r. inner; pain in l. inner as from a sty, with lachrymation; sticking burning in l.; itching in inner. Itching in r. lachrymal caruncula. Orbit, shooting in upper part of r., extending backward into brain; sudden thrusts in outer side of upper margin of l.; drawing pressure in upper margin of l. A rainbow around candle-light.

Ears.—Shooting in cartilage of r.; drawing, in upper part of l. concha. Tearing in r. meatus; gripping, through lobule of l., with at times sensation of a cold wind in it. Boring in r., with cold feet. Cramplike pain in r. Drawing pain in l.; in outer. Drawing internally and externally in r., < moving lower jaw. Pressure externally on bone behind ear. Stopped sensation in l. in morning after rising, > blowing nose, with deafness. Itching in l. Ringing in l. Screaming when blowing nose. Creaking in l. and in front of it as of a door, in evening. Noise as of the rustling of a grasshopper in l. Rushing as from a stream of blood. Painful resounding of the jar of his steps.

Nose.—Stoppage in morning; S. from congestion of palato-nasal mucous membrane; in upper part, with heaviness; of l. nostril, with external swelling, redness and pain on touch. Sneezing; in evening. Coryza; of l. nostril; all day; alternating with stoppage of nose; fluent, with sticking headache, < l. side of forehead; stopped, can get air only through r. nostril. Bleeding in morning on rising; in morning on waking; blowing out of blood in morning.

Face.—Pale, sunken, sickly, features elongated. Cutting sticking in forehead of chin; burning itching S. on malar-bones. Tearing in malar-bone, extending into lower jaw near corner of mouth. Gnawing in l. side, < malar-bone. Pain in malar-bone on touch before menses, during menses bruised pain even on moving muscles of face; stupefying P., < forehead; paroxysmal drawing, in bones of r. side, < malar-bone and orbit; cramplike, in muscles on l. malar-bone; burning cramplike, in l. cheek in evening, then swelling of cheek, with cutting on drawing up face, as if splinters of glass were between cheek and teeth; burning, beneath r. eye. Constriction internally beneath r. cheek, with pressure; in bones of face and teeth of r. side, as if they would be drawn up shorter. Pain in upper jaw, with swelling, with redness of cheeks and sticking in them. Sticking tearing in a spot in lower lip.

Mouth.—Teeth, looseness; jerking pain after eating, > open air, with heat in face; tingling in roots of lower incisors; seem too long. Ulcer on l. gum, with painful swelling of l. cheek, the pain preventing sleep. Tongue yellow; coated yellow; burning in morning; itching in tip; itching of anterior third. Talking irksome; difficult on account of weakness. Tenacious mucus. Mouth and fauces corrugated, he could scarcely swallow. Acidity in velum pendulum. Sensation in velum pendulum and in posterior nares as of a foreign body or of mucus which cannot be swallowed nor hawked up. Sensation in velum pendulum palati as from snuff, which by strong inspiration is drawn down to throat, in evening. Salivation. Acid saliva runs from mouth in morning on waking. Bad odor. Taste bitter, sour; bitter to food; stale and acid-bitter to beer; herby to beer; sharp and dry to tobacco when smoked; insipid.

Throat.—Painful swelling of submaxillary glands. Bad odor. Mucus; difficult hawking of thick, viscid blood-streaked; hawking of thick gray-green, mixed with blood; adherent, and efforts to raise it excite vomituration; thick adherent, with nausea on attempting to raise it; a mass of thick viscid, bloody, efforts to expel which caused nausea; expulsive efforts to detach thick, grayish and bloody, causing nausea; inclination to hawk up M. in evening, then sore pain. (Compare Argent. met.)

Sticking in upper part of fauces causing dryness, > swallowing; boring, in fauces extending to cervical muscles. Cutting in pharynx on swallowing. Rawness; in morning; < deglutition, with dryness, without thirst, and efforts to raise adherent thick grayish or greenish mucus causing nausea; with dryness, without thirst, also in morning; in r. side, with dryness and ulcerated sensation, without thirst. Scraping in morning; in evening. Scraping roughness below pit. Pain as if swollen, with sore pain, and after hawking of mucus the voice is much higher than usual. Dryness; in r. tonsil, > hawking and swallowing, with sticking provoking cough; in r. side, with ulcerated sensation; with soreness like swelling and drawing tense pain; (in larynx?) with tickling crawling compelling cough.

Clinical.—Chronic catarrh of the pharynx, with hawking up of hard lumps of mucus.

Stomach.—Hunger, with distention of stomach; insatiable H.; lost; lost at noon, with emptiness in stomach; the child leaves the breast of the mother who has taken Tin and will not drink. Thirst increased.

Eruptions bitter after eating; empty; sweet; of flat taste; like bad eggs in morning, then of gas; acid, when walking in open air, then rawness in pharynx; acid, five hours after a meal, with uneasiness in epigastric region as from slow digestion. Hiccough; when smoking as usual after eating. Nausea; in pharynx; in fauces and pharynx; after eating; after soup, with bitter bilious vomiting; with bitter taste; with spasmodic griping in stomach and about umbilicus, and anxious uprisings to pit of stomach; shuddering, with nauseating fulness in pit of stomach. Retching; in evening, then sour, then bitter taste; then vomiting of undigested food. Vomiting of blood; sour V.; of mucus; of thick dark green mucus.

Swelling under skin in epigastric region when walking, with griping in abdomen. Digestion slow, acid water comes up to throat long after dinner. Cutting. Pain; in epigastric region; in forenoon; after soup, with discomfort; beneath cartilages of l. lowest rib, > pressure; in pit, with obstruction, and on touch pain as if suppurating; tense, in pit; anxious, in pit, as if gush of blood would occur, when lying, > pressure. Sensation in pit as if disordered.

Clinical.—Chronic gastralgia, characterized by gradual increase and decrease of pain.

Abdomen.—Distention; after eating; painful, with sensitiveness to touch; in evening, with frequent desire as for diarrhoea, griping and painful movements as from taking cold, thrusts in l. side as from a child in the uterus, then thin stool, then urging and colic till she went to bed. Rumbling, on stretching body; when lying after a meal; when a morsel is not far from orifice of stomach; after stool, with distress; with intermittent griping as before diarrhoea. Bubbling. Flatulence. Incarcerated flatus. Griping movements as from incarcerated flatus.

Sudden sticking as with a knife through from l. to r. side on breathing. Griping, < umbilical region, with pressure and with urging to stool. Digging before stool. Pain, and in rectum; P. at 4.30 P.M., > passage of wind, later P. increased till 7 P.M., then profuse whitish, frothy and offensive stool, with burning in anus, then empty feeling; with fetid flatus; extending to stomach and to sides beneath ribs when pressing upon umbilical region; paroxysmal; wind colic during the day; wind colic in morning; as if suppurating, on touch, with shortness of breath; smarting; burning; drawing here and there; tense, < towards small of back, < stooping. Soreness, < touch. Emptiness after eating much; E. (without hunger), > eating much, with weakness of body.

Upper A.—Griping between pit of stomach and umbilicus, as if muscles were pinched. Digging above umbilical region and on pressure pain as upon a sore spot. Burning beneath diaphragm. (Hysterical and hypochondriac cramps in region of abdomen and diaphragm.)

Hypochondria.—Boring stitches in l. when walking. Cutting in r., < sitting bent over. Pain in hepatic region; in upper part of liver; then thrusts from l. to r. side, < pressure upon r. side; cramplike, in l., now better, now worse; burning, in hepatic region after stool; bruised, in l.

Sides.—Sticking in r., < coughing and breathing; in r., then drawing in r. shoulder, necessity to lie down, with sweat on face and arms, then creeping chilliness. Burning pain in r. Crawling in r. as from a purge.

Umbilical Region.—Griping cutting. Griping as from taking cold. Pain in r. side; spasmodic, above and below umbilicus, > lying over a table.

Hypogastrium.—Rumbling. Sticking; in l. symphysis pubis; in r. groin on stooping, as if he had sprained himself, > rising. Cutting transversely across; drawing C. close to r. ilium. Griping in l. groin. Pinching above l. ilium on stooping, as if intestines were overstretched. Sensation as if stretched in muscles above r. anterior spine of ilium. Pain here and there, with urging to stool; P. in inguinal glands, with swelling; as before menses, < pressure. Sensation in l. groin as if a hernia would protrude. Jerking pulsations in r. inguinal cord. Burning.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the bowels, with nausea and retching, even vomiting of blood. Colic of children, > hard pressure or by being carried over the shoulder.

Rectum.—Sticking; at end; at base, extending to anus; itching. Pain. Pressure after stool. Frequent urging; but scanty stool, at times only of mucus; sudden U., the first part of stool natural, then pasty, at last thin, with shivering downward through whole body and drawing through small of back down through thighs, when he attempts to rise it seems as if he had not finished; ineffectual; frequent, ineffectual.

Anus.—Pimple like a hæmorrhoid in l. side, with soreness on touch. Soreness after stool, with smarting and sticking. Corroding pain when walking and sitting. Itching. Burning.

Stool.—Soft, in forenoon, and in afternoon a thin

one; S. in evening preceded by colic for a moment before the urging, also with fetid flatus. Dysentery; stools at first loose, with urging and termina, then discharges bloody and mucous with tenesmus. Evacuation of mucus after stool; E. of mucus in the form of worms. Constipation. Hard; in lumps; in one piece, with pressure; and seems slippery, but is not; and large, with cutting. Difficult, not hard, as from insufficient power of intestines to expel it. Scanty; and greenish. Delayed.

Clinical.—Helminthiasis.

Urinary Organs.—Pain in neck of bladder after urinating, and along urethra, it seems as if more urine would pass and some drops follow, when the pressure is worse. Desire to urinate only like a fulness in bladder, urine scanty, offensive and infrequent; frequent D. even at night, then infrequent micturition and scanty urine. Blister on margin of meatus. Soreness in tip of urethra. Burning in forepart of urethra, < urinating, he had urging every minute and passed much. Urine retained.

Sexual Organs.—Jerking in penis almost as when evacuating semen. Sticking in glans; burning. Burning pain in glans, then desire to urinate. Erections at night without lascivious dreams; E., on following days want of E. Emissions without lascivious dreams; E. when sleeping on back. Burning as in excessive irritation to discharge semen. Voluptuous excitement in whole body, even to emission of semen.

Female.—Prolapsus of vagina, < hard stool. White transparent mucus from vagina. Itching of vulva. Profuse menses.

Clinical.—Leucorrhœa, transparent and yellow, with great debility; at times thin and watery, with bearing down. Prolapsus uteri. With the uterine symptoms we find particularly a weak drawn feeling in chest (Sepia in the pit of the stomach).

Respiratory Organs.—Hoarseness on beginning to sing, with weakness and emptiness in chest, so that she must stop constantly and take a deep breath, at times the H. > expulsive cough (compare Ph. ac., Caust.). Voice husky and hollow. Rawness in larynx. Mucus in trachea in forenoon easily expelled by forcible cough, with weakness of chest as if eviscerated, with weakness of whole body and of limbs, in which the weakness extended upward and downward, every morning. Irritation to cough on breathing as from mucus in trachea, with neither loose nor dry cough, felt more when sitting bent over than when walking. Constriction in trachea causing inclination to cough. Tingling in trachea in evening, provoking fits of dry cough.

Cough.—Shattering, deep. Short, weak, hoarse, as from weakness in chest. Fatiguing, paroxysmal, so that epigastric region was painful as if beaten (Dros.). Tickling, as from soreness deep in trachea, with scraping extending upward into throat. Hacking, in paroxysms; constant inclination to H. as from mucus in chest, with scraping and rattling. Inclination to cough before midnight, with scanty expectoration. Scraping, from irritation low down in trachea, with greenish expectoration of offensive sweet taste (Calc. c.), < evening before lying down, with hoarseness, and after every cough soreness in chest and trachea (Caust.). Frightful, with expectoration and spitting of blood.

Expectoration.—Of a globular, grayish lump of thick mucus, containing a clot of black blood and appearing to come from throat. Yellow, of foul taste from trachea.

Salt, from chest. Of viscid, thick mucus, which seems to come from velum pendulum.

Respiration.—Short, difficult, from weakness of respiratory organs, with emptiness in stomach; short in evening, with anxiety, necessity to breathe rapidly for a long time, > deep breathing. Dyspnœa, > opening clothes; on motion, with want of breath; in paroxysms in evening, with short breath and anxiety.

Clinical.—Acute bronchial catarrh, with aggravation from noon till midnight every day. Acute and chronic bronchial catarrhs; the cough is generally dry the forepart of the night, during the day there is greenish salty expectoration or expectoration of balls of mucus having a sweet taste; cough < talking, laughing, lying on r. side (Cina), or from warm drinks; expectoration of small, hard balls of sweetish mucus that will roll on the floor is quite characteristic; with the cough there is sense of great weakness in the chest, can only speak a few words at a time.

Chest.—Twitching near l. axilla; in muscles of false ribs. Sticking in clavicle; in wall in a line with apex of heart; in last r. true and in l. false ribs; in ensiform cartilage after eating; on breathing, and in shoulder-joints; in C. and sides preventing respiration forenoons, in afternoon distention of abdomen; sudden, in l.; sudden, a hand's breadth beneath l. axilla; cutting, extending upward and outward in forepart of upper ribs, not affected by respiration; burning, in l. when walking in open air, < expiration. Tensive sticking in l. during respiration, < stooping; in sternum during respiration; in r., almost taking away his breath.

Tearings at inner surface of sternum, in a line with fifth and sixth ribs, extending into l. chest. Cutting in r.; pinching, in r. on inspiration when walking; tearing, in l. when walking and standing. Pinching when sitting, < inspiration. Gnawing internally in a spot in l. forepart; boring, sometimes before, sometimes behind l. scapula. Burrowing extending into abdomen, with desire for stool. Sore pain starting from throat. Bruised pain. Aching, < inspiration, < above pit of stomach. Wandering pains and drawing; W. pain near l. scapula in night, with sweat on chest.

Sudden drawing beneath l. breast on rising in bed, then sticking extending into clavicle towards shoulder, where it persisted, and in l. side extending into hypogastrium, < bending inward, pressure and especially by inspiration and hacking, which caused a painful shock; D. from l. clavicle into axilla. Drawing pressure on the conjoined cartilages of last left ribs.

Oppression when coughing (Phos.); O. in upper part, with frequent necessity to breathe deeply and emptiness in pit of stomach (Ign.); as if something rose into throat and took away his breath. Constriction in evening, with anxiety; C. beneath r. arm, and on moving about a sticking; C., with sensation as if the inspired air were very dry. Sudden compression beneath true ribs. Weight in lower part. Tension across upper part in morning on rising, with pressure. Pressure outward beneath r. nipple. At times feeling as if dilated, with anxiety, as in palpitation. Sensation of mucus, with rattling when breathing. Intermittent sensation in a spot in r. side as if a liquid dropped rapidly into a vessel, all day.

Clinical.—Intercostal neuralgia. Phthisis, with great weakness of the chest, expectoration characteristic. Pleurisy, with knife-like stitches, < bending forward, mostly in l. side.

Pulse.—100. Slow. Indistinct and fluttering.

Neck.—Cracking in vertebræ on shaking head suddenly. Nape drawn upward, with stiffness. Sudden sticking in lower part of nape; itching stitches in nape in morning in bed. Pain in nape on bending head forward; on touch, in muscles near their insertion into occiput; raising or bowing head caused pain in muscles involved in these movements; rheumatic, in fibres of r. trapezius, < night. Weakness as if she could not hold up the head, with pain on moving head.

Back.—Sticking extending outward; jerking S. in l. side and in l. thigh. Sticlike tearing upward in l. side when standing. Pain in B. and lower limbs as if beaten in morning on rising, with general weariness.

Scapule.—Sticking extending outward in spine between S.; intermittent S. in middle towards spine; burrowing, in r. dorsal muscles during respiration; burning, in upper part, transiently > rubbing; burning, in a spot in middle of back. Drawing tearing in l., partly towards back, partly towards shoulder. Sudden sprained pain between S. on lifting a weight, < l. side, with sticking on slightest movement, breathing or yawning, and on bending backward intolerable pain. Pressive drawing in spine below and between S., < motion, especially turning body.

Lumbar Region.—Sticking inward in kidney region. Dull thrusts, with sensation of external coldness against him. Sticking griping by false ribs. Tearing from both sides of vertebræ into region of kidneys, < motion of trunk. Acute pain in r. loin in morning. Pressure downward above l. hip. Wavelike shock above l. ilium.

Extremities.—Bruised pain; and above small of back; with coldness. Weakness of arms and lower E. Heaviness, with weakness of chest and alternating anxiety. Paralysis of l. arm and foot from fright, > night.

Upper Extremities.—Itching stitches in and beneath axilla. Shoulder, burning stich in top of r.; burrowing stich in r. deltoid; tearing on l.; paralytic tearing in and beneath r. joint, < motion; sharp pain in fibres of r. trapezius in night, < lifting arm and by touch; sudden acute beating on r.; compression; drawing in l. deltoid as from weakness.

Arm.—Jerking now in arm, now in hand, now in a finger, as after a blow. Tearing deep in l., < upper arm; paralytic, in l., < wrist, < motion. Sprained pain in joints, < bending arm. Weakness from moderate exercise, so that he lets everything fall; paralytic, if he holds a light weight only a short time (Caut.); paralytic, < r., chiefly in upper arm and joints, < motion, with heaviness and at times dyspnoea. Arms and fingers almost immovable.

Upper Arm.—Twitching above elbow during rest; internal, in l. when resting arm on anything. Tearing in anterior and upper part of r.; posteriorly and internally in middle of l.; in middle of r. suddenly appearing and disappearing; intermittent. Bruised pain in lower part of l. Intermittent pain as if l. humerus were crushed. Paralytic sprained pain beneath shoulder-joint, transiently > motion. Pressure in outer part and drawing as from a weight on l. shoulder and extending from elbow to deep-lying muscles of forearm, > in the house.

Elbow.—Drawing extending to upper arm. Tension in tip, < bending arm, with soreness.

Forearm.—Paralytic tearing in f. Pinching on radial side above wrist. Sprained pain in l. styloid process. Pressure on r. towards anterior and outer part. Cramplike stiffness of r.

Wrist.—Tearing in r., < motion. Pain in r.; sprained, in l.; intermittent sharp, in r. in evening, at night and towards morning, sometimes extending into forearm. Sudden intermittent drawing from radial side to hand.

Hand.—Swelling in evening. Trembling of l., with heat in it; T., < lying on table and when writing, with weakness of them. Jerking in l. above joint; wavelike drawing, as if in nerves, at night after waking. Intermittent tearing in bones of H. and wrist and in first finger-joints. Acute thrusts in second l. metacarpus, as if a tense nerve were struck by a hammer, and in other parts of hand. Sharp pain in first l. metacarpus and in r. wrist; in first r. metacarpus every few minutes. Cramplike pain on back between l. index and middle fingers. Jerking pain between thumb and index when holding a pen. Intermittent pain in posterior surface of l. metacarpus in evening. Cramplike contraction in l. palm. Sticking burning on outer margin of l. fifth metacarpus.

Fingers.—Cramp. Sticking in tips; in tip of l. middle; in second joint of l. middle; from metacarpal joint of l. index to tip; drawing, in first joint of l. index, towards tip. Tearing in first phalanges of r., < motion; in first joint of index, > moving hand; jerklike, extending into hand. Cutting in ball of l. little, < bending it up. Pain in middle joint of l. middle; near metacarpal joints of index; at inner surface of posterior end of first phalanx of l. index; sharp, in second joint of l. ring; sprained, in l. index. Cramplike drawing pain in l. middle, with jerking; sharp drawing pain in second joint of l. ring. Drawing in first phalanx of l. thumb and below wrist; sharp, in second joint of l. middle.

Lower Extremities.—Uneasiness in evening. Weakness; when standing, with tottering; after walking, with heaviness; on descending steps, and on ascending them bruised pain; of r., < femur, so that it was painful when standing and he was forced to rest upon l. limb. Heaviness; paralytic, < thighs and knees, with weariness.

Thigh.—Twitching in l. natis. Sticking on inner side of l.; in muscles of r. when standing; itching, in l. natis near anus; itching, high up in inner side. Tearing in forepart of r. joint, extending inward and beneath patella; drawing, in l.; drawing, in femur from knee to middle of thigh when sitting. Cutting in l.; on inner side of l. Pain in ischii when sitting; in muscles of hip on raising thigh; sharp, in upper part of r. above crural nerve at night; intermittent sharp jerking, anteriorly in r., then l.; sprained, beneath hip-joint when walking; sprained, in r. hip when walking; paralytic, in hip-joint when walking. Pulsating pressure on inner side of middle. Drawing in l. hip; in outer side of r. thigh when resting over l. while sitting; in inner side of l., in groin, from ascending ramus of ischium to back part of thigh, then from hip over small of back to r. side, with at times grumbling in ischium. Weakness.

Knee.—Itching twitching beneath patella. Sticking in r. when sitting, and in hollow; on outer side of r. when standing, > moving limb, and when sitting. Tearing in ligaments in inner side of l. Burning scraping on outer side of l. Pressure in r. Drawing from hollow of r. to calf; jerklike D., < standing, with weariness in feet extending up leg, < l. leg, and with sore pain in soles. Tensive pain in hollow of l. Weakness, with inclination to slumber. Stiffness in hollow of r.; sudden S.

Leg.—Cramp in calves almost all night. Lancinations in outer surface of l. tibia near femoral joint. Cramplike tearing in r. when walking; drawing T. when sitting. Pinching in upper part of inner muscles of calves. Bruised pain in calves and hollows of knees in evening, as after a long walk. Pressure in r. calf; below l. calf; pulsative, in r. tibia. Painful drawing on outer side of calf. Tension in l.; on inner side of l. calf when standing. Sensation as if tightly bound. Uneasiness in evening preventing slumber. Pain as if a weight were hanging upon l. when sitting if it rests over the other leg and hangs down. Heaviness in outer muscles of l. calf when walking.

Malleoli.—Sudden swelling in evening. Itching stich beneath l. Tearing in r. extending to toes when sitting, > standing, with jerking, but when standing tearing extends upward from toes.

Foot.—Red swelling, < about malleoli, with sensation as if feet were tightly bound. Sticking in tarsal bone below r. ankle; in outer side of r. heel extending to calf, when stepping, > raising foot. Tearing in r. heel; in heels in evening in bed; drawing, between two last bones. Pain from above malleoli to soles when sitting, > standing and walking; cramplike, in r. sole when sitting; sharp, transversely across r. sole when sitting. Crawling as after a long walk or as if they would fall asleep, gradually extending into legs.

Toes.—Shooting in tip of r. great; in metatarsal joint of r. great; in metatarsal joint of r. second; in second joint of r. middle.

Skin.—Round yellow spots on l. leg. Red spots on backs of hands. Chilblains on hands in mild weather. Itching eruption over whole body. Itching hives below wrist through the day, the itching < rubbing. Swelling, with a red point on tibia, with pain on touch as if flesh were loose from bone. Red elevation on forepart of neck, with a white painless pimple in the middle of it. Burning pimple on l. eyebrow, with pain on touch; itching P. on l. thigh; itching, on face, with soreness on touch or on washing. Red, sharply circumscribed pustule on middle of sternum, with itching evenings. Red boil in r. angle of lower jaw, with drawing pain, < touch. Ulceration in the hole for the ear-ring. Painful hang-nails on fingers.

Sticking over whole l. side of body, next day on r. side; itching burning, over whole body, < rump, < morning in bed. Crawling in small of back. Itching of nipple; on back of l. foot; biting, over whole body on undressing; sticking, on outer side of thigh, transiently > rubbing; stinging burning, on back of hand, not > rubbing.

Sleep.—Yawning; when walking in open air, with oppression as from a cord about chest; with stretching of arms; inability to yawn sufficiently however wide he opens his mouth. Sleepiness; after walking in open air, < music, and a vivid dream on closing eyes. Early falling asleep and late waking. Deep sleep.

Sleep restless and interrupted by pain; R. and full of dreams about business. Frequent waking, as if he had slept enough. Starting up as from fright. The child moans, cries, begs and is frightened. (Talking about the uselessness of an external remedy for an internal trouble.) Woke lying upon back with r. leg stretched out and l. drawn up and half uncovered.

Dreams.—Of a loud noise. Of fire. Confused, unremembered. Of earthly splendor and greatness, which kept her in good humor after waking. Anxious, of quarrels, strife and battles; A., about neglected business. Vivid, anxious; V., full of terror; and confused, half-remembered; confused, in which many things go wrong with her, sometimes she talks aloud, tosses about, wakes often and always finds herself sitting up in bed. Lascivious, with emission, without erections; with erections, without emissions; with physical enjoyment, without emission.

Fever.—Chilliness; in whole body, with bruised pain in limbs; < along back; in knees and feet. Gooseflesh over arms, with chattering of teeth, with slight coldness and moderate shivering. Shivering several days about 10 A.M., with coldness in hands, deadness of fingers and insensibility of their tips; S. in l. arm, with jerking up of it; in l. foot extending half way to thigh in evening.

Heat; every day from 4 till 5 P.M., with sweat, then chilliness, thirst during and after the heat; < evening, < head and forehead, with redness of face and thirst; anxious, on slightest movement, with sweat; intermittent anxious, as if sweat would break out. Internal heat; after walking in open air, < chest and abdomen, without thirst; < chest and back, with sensation as if hot sweat were running down, without external heat. Hot and dry skin. Heat in forehead; in hands and feet; thighs and back; in small of back, somewhat to r. side; in feet, < internally; flushing, in face; flushing, in feet.

Sweat every morning after 4 A.M.; in morning, < neck, nape and forehead (Calc. c.); at night; cold, clammy; hot, even on slight movement, with exhaustion.

Staphisagria.

A tincture is made of the seeds of Delphinium Staphisagria, L. (a European Larkspur).

Allies.—Its closest allies are the Ranunculaceæ, Puls., Clem., Cimicif., Acon.; also Lyc., Sulph.

Generalities.—Sticking in face and other parts of body; itching, in various parts. Drawing tearing here and there in all muscles when sitting (Puls.). Bruised sensation when walking, < calves. Pain in all bones; drawing (?), in joints of shoulder, elbow, wrist, fingers, back, knees, on moving them, > rest, especially in evening. Paralytic drawing in various parts, < joints, if limbs are kept long in an unusual or uncomfortable position.

Weakness in morning; in morning in bed, limbs pain as if bruised and as if there were no strength in them; in morning on waking; in afternoon when sitting, with sleepiness; after eating, with sleepiness and need to lie down, wakes confused and heavy in limbs and dreads to walk, on continuing to walk, which is irksome, < ascending a hill, he feels more active and lively; when walking, < knees; < motion, with bruised pain.

Clinical.—Chronic cough, with nodosities. Neuralgia after operations. Frequently an antidote to the chronic effects of Mercury.

Mind.—Peevish in morning, he wishes to throw away everything which he takes in his hands; P. and disin-clined to mental work; and restless; and quiet, vexed at things which do not concern him; at every word, she cries if any one only speaks to her. Quarrelsome and yet lively. Lachrymose; and she wraps up her face and will not hear about anybody or anything. Sad; and fears the worst results from slight causes and cannot quiet himself; and her mind seems dead; and apathetic: everything seems indifferent to him, he would rather die. The most attractive things make no impression upon him. Indifference to his surroundings, with mental exhaustion. Earnest, quiet, busy with himself, speaks but little.

Anxiety; and fear; so that he cannot remain in any place, but without complaints; and past events came before him, causing anxious sweat, then blackness before eyes, he did not know whether the images were real or illusory, then everything seemed indifferent and he lost all desire to live; (when walking rapidly, as if some one were coming behind him, and he is constantly obliged to look behind him).

Alternations of mood, at first joyous, then anxious, at last quiet and contented (the first is a transient reaction from one of fear and depression, then the primary action is noticed in anxiety, then the reaction is seen again).

Memory weak; disturbed by fantasies. Ideas vanish on attempting to grasp them; if any one interrupts him or suggests a different subject from the one of which he is thinking. He does not know whether the things presented to him are from out his memory, are real or whether he is dreaming of them, from 5 till 7 P.M. Dulness keeping him from work. Disinclination for earnest work.

Clinical.—Violent temper, throws things into the fire, ravenous hunger, very irritable mood, these attacks may alternate with rush of blood to the head. Has been found useful for bad effects of anger. Patients generally are extremely sensitive and feel acutely the slightest wrong. Sickness from wounded pride or chagrin.

Head.—Falls forward almost involuntarily on bending forward while sitting. Sticking all day; in evening, < stooping and walking, with tingling. Tearing in brain in morning on waking, > spasmodic yawning; T. extending through cheeks into teeth, with pulling. Pain, stupefying, < forehead, < moving head and standing; alternately stupefying and boring; like a tingling; on stooping, as if everything would come out at forehead; as from too much blood in brain in evening, < occiput towards bones; as if brain would fall out, on motion, and even during rest sensation as if brain were pressed together and lying loose within skull. Compression of brain, < forehead, with paroxysmal roaring in ears, which ceases sooner than the headache.

Dulness; in morning, with constriction in vertex; when standing and talking, as if vertigo would occur; with vertigo in forehead; intermittent; as in coryza. Heaviness; > resting it upon the hand; with weakness of cervical muscles, he must lean head back or to one side. Vertigo; in forenoon on rising from a seat, with pallor and falling to one side as in a faint, a similar attack about the same time the next day; in evening in bed; < sitting, > walking; and he runs against a door; as if stupefied, > open air; as if everything turned in a half circle on stooping and suddenly turning head.

Forehead.—Sticking in l. side, with drawing pain; sudden, in upper part of frontal bone; boring, extend- ing outward in l. half, waking him twice in morning; burning, externally on bone. Tearing in evening when sitting, and on stooping a sticking, > walking; drawing cutting, in side. Pinching, > walking, returning on sitting and standing, and stitches in temples. Pressure above r. eye and a drawing upward; hard P. in r. side; as from something hard behind r. brow; intermittent drawing. Pressure outward in l. half, with pressing asunder; P. outward, at times sticking, afterwards in l. eminence, > rest, < motion. Dulness in a spot anteriorly in middle, like a stupefaction, on the street he does not know whether he is going to the r. or l. Heaviness above r. orbit in open air; H. as from a ball of lead which would not loosen, in a spot in the middle, on shaking head; upon cribriform plate of ethmoid bone, like a compression on both sides.

Temples.—Sticking in l.; burning, in l.; internally, and externally as if bones would be pressed out, < touch; pulsative drawing-tearing, in l. bone, on following days now in l., now in r. temple, then in l. frontal eminence. Burning tearing close to r. eye. Pain internally and externally in l. as from pressure of a finger.

Vertex.—Stitches extending from skull into brain, with external soreness, < touch; burning S. externally; boring, extending outward. Hard pressure, and in r. temple; sharp P. at times. Constriction and pain.

Sides.—Burning sticking in l. parietal bone. Tearing through l. half of brain, < forehead, gradually increasing and gradually diminishing. Burning pain extending inward in bone above l. ear. Soreness of r. parietal bone on touch, preventing lying on it at night.

Occiput.—Burning stitches, on first days extending from r. to l., afterwards from below upward. Compression internally and externally. Pressing asunder when walking in open air. Painful drawing on and beneath O. on motion of head; rheumatic D. beginning at articulation on bending head forward.

Scalp.—Itching scurfy eruption above and behind ear. Hair falls out (Nit. ac., Sep., Graph., Sulph.). Tearing externally in head and in teeth. Painful drawing externally in places on head, < touch. Itching biting, < rubbing. Itching; with scurf and moisture; biting, on occiput, < scratching (Nat. m.); biting, on upper part of occiput, and sore pain, recurring in evening; sticking, with fine papules towards forehead.

Clinical.—Neuralgic headache, with sensation of a ball in forehead or of a lump which cannot be shaken off. Moist fetid eruptions on the back of the head and behind the ears; painful sensitiveness of the scalp.

Eyes.—Sunken, with blue raised rings around them. Inflammation of white, with pain. Dim and so hot that the eye-glasses were dim. Stitches on exerting them. Pressure, with frequent necessity to wink. Burning pain about l. Dryness all day (Nat. m., Lyc.); in evening, with pressure; in morning on waking, with pressure in them so that she cannot open them unless they are moistened. Biting when writing, < afternoon and < light, with burning and with biting discharge. Feeling as if full of sleep. Biting lachrymation in morning. Pupils dilated; contracted. Sticking thrusts in ball, as if it would burst. Pain in upper part of r. ball. Pain in upper wall of r. orbit, pressing the eye outward.

upper; constriction in upper, forcing out tears; itching of margins (Sep.); itching of margin of upper in open air, recurring after two hours in other eye, > rubbing. Canthi, agglutination in morning; dry matter during the day; dry matter at night and in open air, and upon lashes; tense stitch in r. outer; tearing in outer and in region of lachrymal gland; biting smarting in inner; hard pressure in r. inner; pain in l. inner, more biting than itching; paroxysmal burning in r. outer extending behind eye towards ear; itching in inner, < open air.

Vision.—Dim; as if eyes were full of water, with itching and sticking in inner canthus. Of a pillar of fire when in bed in a dark night; of black lightnings like a flickering, on looking in open air; small black lightnings before the letters when reading and then whole lines vanished. Of a white veil over objects, making them invisible. Halo around candle-light in evening. Illusion, on rising from a seat he seems to himself larger than natural and everything beneath him seems too low down.

Clinical.—Extremely valuable for the cure of tumors of the lids; chalazion; steatoma (Bar. c.). Scrofulous ophthalmia, styes in lids, edges inflamed and hard.

Ears.—Sticking in l.; deep in r. in evening; deep in l., then r.; tensive, in l. Cramplike burning pain posteriorly on l. concha. Pinching in l., with twinging. (Drawing pain.) Coldness streaming into r. meatus. Ringing on moving head; R. in l. Reports as if wind blew into them.

Clinical.—Deafness, especially after the use of Mercury.

Nose.—Soreness internally, with a scab deep internally. When touched, pain on septum in l. nostril as if it would suppurate. Smarting in one nostril as if ulcerated. Itching in l. nostril, > touch. (Stoppage in evening.) Sneezing; without coryza. Coryza; and cough; with tickling in nose and sneezing, discharge now profuse, mild, watery, now thick, mucous, afterwards thick, slimy substances (Puls.); sudden, at 2 p.m., lasting a quarter of an hour, with catarrhal voice; first discharge of thick mucus, then of thin water (Puls.); fluent, with stoppage of one nostril, sneezing, lachrymation and cracked lips.

Face.—Haggard and hollow-eyed. Swelling of cheek over lower jaw; S. as from coryza. Induration anteriorly beneath chin by symphysis, with pain on swallowing, on touch and when rubbed by the neck-band. Sticking in l. malar-bone; burning, in r. cheek-bone; itching burning, in l. cheek; itching (biting), in cheeks. Tearing in l. malar-bone, affecting teeth. When yawning, pain in l. cheek as if suppurating. Drawing in malar-bones; cutting, in l. malar-bone. Tension as if a pimple would form anteriorly on chin below margin of jaw. R. jaw is apt to get out of joint when yawning, with sticking. Pain in joint of jaw when yawning.

Lips.—Pimple covered with a scab in red of upper, with burning. Vesicles on margin of lower, with sticking burning on touch. Ulcer, with gnawing-drawing pain; U. discharging pus, then greenish water; on margin of lower, with red shiny look, sticking-drawing pain, with at times a not disagreeable itching, then sticking; scurfy, in middle of upper. Sticking extending outward in upper. Cutting as if cracked. Burning on outer margin of upper, almost in the middle.

Mouth.—Teeth. Black (Merc.), she must clean them twice a day and still there are black streaks across them. One that had long been a little decayed rapidly became more hollow. A piece scales off from posterior surface of an incisor. Tickling sticking in r. lower molars. Tearing first in roots of hollow ones after chewing, then extending into crowns, < open air, with pressure on the crowns extending towards the roots, and on touch of finger the other teeth begin to pain; T. after chewing or cold drinks, < motion, especially in open air; in roots, with drawing in muscles of face, first to one, then to other side; in roots of all, with feeling as if an edge when biting on them. Cold drink penetrates T. as if they were hollow. Hollow T. sensitive to touch and if food remains in cavities pain extending into roots, and the gum becomes sore. Aching from drawing air into mouth; on eating, they wabble about when touched, he cannot chew properly because when they touch each other it seems as if they were pressed deeper into gum, and gum is white. Drawing pain in a hollow one in morning; in r. from cold water; with swelling of cheek, headache in same side and heat in face; biting, in a hollow one (in incisors a pressure) after eating, < open air; piercing, in one that becomes hollow and in corresponding one on other side, in morning; as after Mercury, in anterior ones, < towards morning. Intermittent tugging, then throbbing in gum. Throbbing even when chewing; T. and pressive pain extending through face into eye. Biting pain in lower incisors, < night.

Gum.—Bleeding on cleaning teeth and on pressure (Merc.). Pale and white. Eaten away. Swelling, with heat in cheek; S. of inner surface, with pain. Pimple, painful when pressed by anything hard. Vesicle on inner side, changing to an ulcer, with sticking drawing pain. Spasmodic contraction of r. so that she cannot separate teeth on account of pain. Tearing in gums of lower incisors and their roots when eating. Pain on touch. Painful drawing in gums of molars and in their roots; in gum of r. incisor and canine teeth and in their roots, extending into muscles of lower jaw.

Tongue.—Coated white. Stitches in tip; on margin when pressed against palate, > eating. Sore pain anteriorly. Dryness, with stoppage of posterior nares by tough mucus; D., with collection of sour water in mouth and hard mucus stopping choanae.

Mouth in General.—Constant accumulation of mucus. Blister. Sticking in palate in evening when it is dry; in palate extending into brain. Palate raw and scraped, but moist. Burning scratching in palate. Smarting posteriorly on palate when not swallowing. Salivation. Bloody saliva. Taste disgusting, bitter; to food; biting T. on smoking tobacco; sour to bread; qualmish, insipid; watery; none to food, but he has an appetite.

Clinical.—Spongy excrescences on the gums, which bleed readily and are painful. Dental fistula. Carious teeth which crumble. Teeth grow black and become brittle. Valuable for decaying teeth in pregnancy. Toothache shooting into the ear and temple, < open air or cold. Menstrual toothache. Hard pressure frequently relieves the toothache, which may be aggravated by light pressure. Aphthous sore mouth.

Throat.—Submaxillary glands swollen, preventing swallowing; swollen, and tonsils; painful; painful as if swollen and bruised. Roughness when talking and swallowing. Scraping in fauces behind nares as if one had drawn snuff through. (Scraping, disagreeable taste from drinking beer.) Painful drawing extending from hyoid bone deep into throat, < touching side of neck. Dryness, < evening before sleep, and on swallowing sticking.

Stomach.—Ravenous hunger; with salivation. Great desire for milk. Apparent hunger, as if stomach hung down relaxed, yet without appetite. Thirstless. Eructations; empty; tasting of food; mucus from upper part of throat; scraping, affecting larynx and causing cough (scraping heartburn); of tasteless liquid after eating. Waterbrash after eating. Hiccough, when smoking as usual; H. after eating; half an hour after supper; with nausea and stupefaction of head. Nausea; in morning; in mouth and pharynx from eating; with pressure like soreness above pit of stomach; with collection of water in mouth and short isolated eructations as from an emetic which would not act; with salivation and tension in abdomen as if he had eaten too much and then pressed upon abdomen. Vomiting every morning. Pinching in pit, > sitting and bending forward. Burrowing. Tensive pain in epigastric region. Fulness in pit, with pressure and sticking. Weight in morning after waking. Heartburn during the usual smoke.

Abdomen.—Rumbling; and gurgling; and cutting; after dinner, like forming and bursting of bubbles. Emissions of flatus; with griping; hot; offensive.

Cutting in morning before stool; C. < eating and drinking, with nausea so that water collects in mouth, with weakness, after the pain heat in face and rush of blood to head, even veins on hands swell up; with urging to stool, then thin scanty stool with internal chilliness in head, tenesmus after the stool; spasmodic, during the day on motion, < after urinating, with trembling of knees, in evening C. even when not moving, > bending up. Griping transversely across, with drawing in sides, in muscles, as if diarrhoea would occur; twisting G. here and there. Pain, heaviness and tension. Bruised pain. Drawing pain transversely through; D. pain as from flatulence. Heaving sensation and intimations of diarrhoea. Compression causing tightness of breath.

Upper A.—Griping in morning as if diarrhoea would occur, though he could not go to stool. Cutting and digging in upper and lower, with desire for stool, then thin scanty stool, then renewed desire and cutting, but without stool in spite of every effort, a kind of tenesmus, which with the colic was > rising from stool.

Hypochondria.—Rumbling in l. Sticking in r. on beginning to walk in open air. Pain as from incarcerated flatus. Constriction, oppressing chest and impeding respiration. Tension transversely across in morning in bed while fasting, causing anxiety and dyspnoea.

Umbilical Region.—Sticking, < expiration and pressure; rhytmical pinching, to left above umbilicus. Paroxysmal cutting externally in evening in bed. Hard pressure in r. side beneath umbilicus.

Sides.—Pinching stitch in l. viscera; tensive S. in l. muscles. Drawing extending downward, as if menses would appear.

Hypogastrium.—Incarceration of flatus. Rumbling and drawing. Swelling of inguinal glands, most noticed when walking and standing. Sticking in l. groin, < pressure, > inspiration and expiration; drawing-burning, extending from r. ring, as if in spermatic cord, into r. testicle, when sitting, standing and walking, < stooping (compare Puls.).

Clinical.—Atony of the stomach and abdomen, feeling as if they hung down relaxed. Colic from cold water, < heat.

Rectum.—Pain when sitting; sore P. after stool; bruised, deep in after a hard stool. Ineffectual urging after stool.

Anus.—Itching when sitting; I., with pimples.

Stool.—A thin one passes unconsciously, with sensation as if flatus would pass (Aloes); several thin ones. Diarrhoea mixed with flatus; with colic, the last part slimy; in morning, preceded by cutting and nausea, the last stool only of mucus. Soft; but difficult, as from constriction in anus, as from hæmorrhoids. Constipation. Hard, next day omitted, H. again on third day; H., mixed with flatus; in morning, then immediately a thin, copious, yellow one; and scanty, with burning cutting in anus; and scanty, thin-shaped, with pain in anus; and scanty, frequent, with pain in anus as if it would split. Difficult, first hard, then softer, with distress and straining as if rectum were constricted, with continued but ineffectual effort, then tenesmus. Delayed by want of peristaltic action in large intestine; D. and in small pieces.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea, evacuation hot, odor of rotten eggs, < after drinking cold water; particularly valuable in children whose teeth become black and crumble, and who have fetid eruptions on the scalp.

Urinary Organs.—Pressure upon bladder, on waking, copious urine and after an hour renewed urging. Urging, scarcely a spoonful was passed, mostly dark yellow-red, in a thin stream, at times dribbling of urine, then sensation as if bladder were not empty; frequent U., with copious discharge. Urine spurted from her on coughing. Micturition at night, with erection, at last only dribbling, with burning in neck of bladder and ineffectual desire for stool, relief from lying bent up. Micturition frequent and copious; frequent, watery at first, afterwards dark yellow; frequent, scanty, dark; frequent scanty; scanty every quarter of an hour, afterwards the usual amount of dark color every hour.

Discharge of prostatic fluid during hard stool. Cutting in urethra during micturition, worse afterwards. Sprained pain in upper part of urethra after micturition. Burning in urethra during micturition; in middle when not urinating; far back when sitting. Biting-burning crawling in orifice of urethra when not urinating. Urine scanty; copious, red.

Clinical.—Occasionally useful in enlarged prostate, especially with piles, pains over the kidneys, etc.

Sexual Organs.—Moisture on corona glandis beneath prepuce. A soft moist growth on corona glandis and one in fossa behind it, in both itching from rubbing of shirt. Sticking in r. side of glans when standing and walking. Erections all night without emission; and without lascivious thoughts. Pain in l. testicle when walking and after rubbing, < touch. Drawing (tearing) in r. testicle as if compressed. Painless bubbling in scrotum. Itching of scrotum somewhat > pressure and rubbing; voluptuous, < rubbing, so that it becomes a superficial sore pain, while the deeper I. continues and at last causes an emission. Emission every night; without dreams; with lascivious dreams; in afternoon sleep, in an old man. Great desire, then reaction.

Female.—Biting vesicle posteriorly within r. labia majora, with sore pain on touch. Sensitiveness, it hurts to sit down. Spasmodic pain, and in vagina. Biting. Sticking itching. Menses that had ceased for a year reappeared at the new moon, with cutting colic and rumbling (did not return on following months).

Clinical.—Occasionally indicated in secondary syphilis. Soft excrescences, which are moist and offensive on the penis. Orchitis, with burning, stinging pain, metastasis of mumps (Puls.). Often called for in the effects of masturbation, peculiar melancholia. Ovaritis. Prolapsus uteri, with feeling as though the abdomen would sink down. Irregular menses, with aching around the hips, loss of power in the legs, etc., especially following love affairs.

Respiratory Organs.—Vocal organs weak. Mucus in larynx, which he cannot loosen by coughing. Cough during the day from tickling; from irritation in larynx after eating; which threatens to tear open larynx, as from constriction of trachea, without special previous irritation; sharp, after eating, with accumulation of water in mouth; it seems as if this water would force through pharynx and causes cutting in it; with expectoration of mucus; with tenacious expectoration, after lying down in evening and at noon; with yellow expectoration like pus, < 9 A.M. till noon. Easy expectoration of much mucus by hacking. Dyspnoea towards the end of coition.

Chest.—Adherent mucus mornings, during the day easy expectoration. Sticking in r. side when sitting, on bending obliquely forward and to r. side; in cartilages of last ribs on stooping, and soreness on touch; on attempts to eructate S. and pressure extending into chest; < expiration; in intercostal muscles when sitting, < leaning backward and persistent during inspiration and expiration; in l. costal cartilages, with sticking cutting; intermittent, in l.; intermittent, extending outward in region of fourth costal cartilages, without relation to breathing; itching, in sternum beneath pit of throat; boring, in l.; beginning in posterior part of r. ribs and extending in a serpentine course to the cartilages; tensive, in l. side when lying and on moving, worse during expiration than inspiration, < ascending steps, at last sticking that almost took away the breath.

Pinching beneath r. short ribs; below sternum, to left of ensiform cartilage. Pain in l. side, not affected by respiration; P. externally on touch; when sitting, > walking, with heaviness; as if suppurating, behind sternum when coughing; as if beaten, in pectoral muscles in morning on moving in bed and during the day on crossing arms. Soreness behind sternum; in middle of sternum, < rising and stretching body, with pain on touch like a tension and pressure, at times taking away the breath. Scraping, then cough, with expectoration of blood. Constriction causing slow and difficult inspiration, > expiration and walking, < sitting, with anxiety and uneasiness. Uneasiness; driving him about in afternoon, with oppression. Weakness, with something adherent in trachea that compels hacking cough. Sticking itching between costal cartilages.

Heart.—Palpitation on waking from afternoon nap; on motion; when walking and when listening to music.

Neck.—Tensive stitches in l. muscles; jerklike S. almost behind ear in evening. Tearing in muscles. Rheumatic pain like drawing and stiffness at its union with shoulder on bending neck forward; R. pain like a drawing in nape and between scapulae mornings preventing motion of arms on rising, could not turn neck in forenoon, with general weakness till noon; R. drawing pain in side on bending it forward. Pressive drawing on r. side. Tension in side; in muscles of nape and l. shoulder, with pressure; in l. side of neck and occiput at night, waking him often, preventing his lying on either side. Pressure downward. Stiffness of nape.

Back.—Stitches extending upward. (Pain like a beating and jerking from evening till 5 A.M., taking away his breath, with slumbering.) Sticking between last cervical and first dorsal vertebra. Tearing on head of l. scapula, < motion. Burning pain beneath r. scapula close to spine, with heaviness in r. side of chest. Hard pressure in l. dorsal muscles near spine. Drawing pressure in two first dorsal vertebrae, with soreness. Paralytic drawing in spinous process of first dorsal vertebra.

Sacrum.—Sticking during rest, > walking, with sprained pain; itching S. in region of kidneys; drawing, when sitting, at times jerking. Pain less when walking than on rising from a seat, turning in bed and on every motion sideways; as if broken in morning in bed, and on rising she could raise nothing from the ground till 8 or 9 o'clock, then lunge, then cutting in abdomen and diarrhoea, which at last was slimy; extending downward, worse when stooping than when standing erect, > sitting; as if beaten all night, waking her about 4 A.M., > rising; bruised, in loins, extending to umbilicus, on stooping and on touch.

Extremities.—Internal trembling in morning if held long in one position. Intermittent deeply-piercing sticking in various parts. Feet beaten and painful as after a long walk, below shoulders and below hip-joints. Fatigue more in forenoon than in afternoon and pain everywhere, in muscles on touch and in joints on motion. Stiffness of joints in morning on rising in bed, < shoulders, sacrum and hip-joints.

Upper Extremities.—Pressive drawing here and there, < touch. Stitches in l. axilla; itching, in A.; itching, in r. Pain in r. axilla.

Shoulder.—Sticking in joint, < touch and motion; S. extending upward in r.; drawing, in l. joint, < moving arm towards chest. Pain in l. joint; sprained, in r. on motion. Pressive drawing in joints in morning, < motion. Paralytic drawing in joint, and at times in whole arm when lying under head in bed. Weight when sitting; loose, when walking, with pain on touch as if flesh were loose.

Arm.—Pain in bones during motion; paralytic, < motion and touch. Weakness after a nocturnal emission, with heaviness.

Upper Arm.—Tearing in muscles close to l. elbow; in l. deltoid when sitting, > motion; stitchlike, in muscles near r. elbow. Paralytic pain in l., < motion and touch, the arm is weak. Pain in periosteum of r. humerus, < touch. Pressive drawing in r. in evening in bed; in deltoid. Pressure inward on r., < touch.

Elbow.—Sensation near bend, more towards forearm, as from an eruption or as if it were irritated by a needle, a kind of feeling of gooseskin, somewhat burning, painful on touch. Paralytic weakness in region.

Forearm.—Jerking in l. during rest. Stitches in middle. Sticking tearing in l.; drawing T., < moving arm and hand. Drawing like a pinching on outer side of radius, beneath l. elbow. Pressive drawing in muscles, and on back of hand.

Wrist.—Sticking tearing in l. Cramplike pain about r., > stretching out fingers, returns on bending them up and then associated with a tearing stitch extending to shoulder. Pressure extending transversely across, < motion.

Hand.—Tingling stitches in palm. Intermittent pain in first l. metacarpus, < touch. Drawing pain through bones on back, < motion. Pressure on second l. metacarpus, < touch and motion.

Fingers.—Convulsive movement up and down when outstretched. Cramp, and in various parts of limbs. Sticking in middle joint of r. index and in joint next it, persistent during motion; burning itching in l. thumb; tensive, in tip of l. thumb. Tearing in muscles of ball of l. thumb, > motion; jerking, in muscles, < tips; jerking, in muscles of thumb, < tip. Cramplike pain in ball of r. little finger on moving hand. Pain in middle joint of r. middle, extending forward; paralytic drawing, in metacarpal joints, < motion. Painful drawing in r. phalanges; in middle joint of r. index. Sensation in tips of l. as if a hard skin were over them, touch suspended. Crawling as if they would go to sleep.

Lower Extremities.—Thigh. Sticking on inner side above l. knee; in middle of l., towards outer part; itching, on inner side; burning, in posterior surface of l.; almost scraping, internally above r. knee. Boring in l. gluteals when sitting. Pain when walking, < l.; in nates after sitting; about hip-joints when walking and sitting; sprained, in middle of l., < walking; sore, on upper and inner part; bruised, in muscles when walking rapidly; paralytic, like a drawing in middle anteriorly. Tension in large outer muscles when walking. Weakness, and in leg, < knee, necessity to drag his leg, with sticking tearing in calf and pain in sacrum; W. transversely across when lying, with bruised feeling, with stiffness in joints and trembling and uneasiness in them. Numbness in l. hip when standing, extending to abdomen.

Knee.—Jerking above r. patella. Sticking on inner margin; in r. in morning after rising, < motion; on outer side when stepping and on touch; near patella, changing on touch to pain. Drawing stitches in r., < motion; in l. when sitting, at times jerking in it. Drawing tearing beneath l. patella. Pain (sprained?) in r. when walking and on moving foot. Drawing up in hollows on lying down, a kind of voluptuous uneasiness in them, forcing him to rise; paralytic D. like weakness in r., when walking and afterwards, and in heads of muscles of calves. Weakness in morning after rising; sensation in hollows as if they would give way, on rising from a seat, a trembling, irritable drawing up.

Leg.—Cramp on waking, < upper and lower part of calf, < thinking of it, not > stretching nor bending up leg; of the calf and sole of the side on which he was lying, waking him from afternoon nap. Burning stitches on outer side beneath l. knee, sometimes in par-osyems; boring S. in r. tibia during rest; itching S. in r. calf when walking and standing, > scratching. Tearing in muscles of one or other when sitting and standing; sticking in and beneath r. calf and above l. heel. Pain in calves in evening in bed, preventing sleep and forcing her to move them constantly, the same when she rose in the night, and on lying down again. Pressive drawing on tibia when sitting. Tension in calf, with heaviness. Paralytic pressure outward in muscles of r. calf, < touch.

Ankle.—Drawing pressure transversely across, < motion.

Foot.—Swelling of back; of metatarsal bone of r.

little toe, with pain on touch. Tearing in l. metatarsal bones close to ankle. Pain on inner side of l. sole during rest. Crawling and prickling as if asleep in the sole of the leg which rests over the other. Constrictive heaviness in l. metatarsal bones close to ankle.

Skin.—Tetter on thighs and legs; on hands, itching in evening and burning after scratching; itching only at night. A kind of goeseskin on thighs and legs, without chilliness, especially red and white pimples on them, with whitish pus at tips. On forearm a red elevation in the middle of which is a pustule, with burning pain during rest, and on touch pain like a boil. Skin of ulcerated leg becomes covered with a thin crust, from which yellow water exudes, with jerking and pricking pain.

Rash on chest, when warm it was red and itching. Pimples about the inflamed eye; on neck; on elbow and towards hand; itching, on nape; itching, on body and thighs, when scratched off they are moist and then have a burning pain; small (itching?) on face; on legs, with burning itching pain; on face, forehead, cheeks and about mouth and wrist, causing drawing itching, transiently > scratching and returning as a sticking; small, thick, red, on lower ribs, with burning-itching sticking and after rubbing pain, with creeping chill over the part and over upper abdomen; fine, on face, forehead, cheeks, and near corners of mouth, with sticking itching and on touch pain as if suppurating; on face, causing tensive sore pain, and when touched pain as if suppurating; large, with white papules on top of it, in fossa behind lobule of ear.

Tearing jerking in an ulcer. Sticking here and there. Tearing about ulcers in morning and evening, > walking, with jerking. Burning pain in ulcers in evening after lying down, preventing sleep. Biting in an ulcer, as from salt; burning-itching, on nates as if woolen were drawn over skin in evening in bed, on scratching changing to another place. Crawling on inner surfaces of toes, as if they had been asleep; C. on thighs and legs (that had been swollen, hard, elastic, for many years), with sensation as if parts were internally hot, would burst and were heavy.

Itching on cheeks; on nape; on tendo-achillis; on r. tibia above outer malleolus, not > rubbing; on leg in evening in bed, and after rubbing a painful flat ulcer; salty biting, in an ulcer; creeping, going from place to place, < morning, with crawling; tickling, in l. palm. Sticking itching in gluteals and in several places on body; above r. outer malleolus; on r. great toe. Burning itching on r. inner malleolus; on inner side of two toes, as if they had been frozen; in little toes in evening, as if they had been frozen, with redness and pain on touch; in r. little toe as if it had been frozen, in evening, with pain on slight pressure.

Clinical.—Eruptions, moist, offensive, itching, after scratching the itching reappears at another place. Scorbutic ulcers, with burning; spongy, bleeding gums, fetid breath. Eichen, violent itching. Herpes zoster, with shooting pains, extending down the thighs.

Sleep.—Yawning; and stretching, she cannot stretch enough; forcing tears from eyes. Sleepiness in afternoon; from 2 till 4 P.M.; during the day, and falling asleep whenever he sat down. He cannot reach the bed in the evening before he falls asleep and he falls asleep as soon as he gets into bed. Sleepless all night; till 11 P.M., then waking about 4 A.M., several nights; till midnight, then as soon as he fell asleep vivid dreams of strife and quarrels. Jerking of whole body as if some one suddenly tickled arms and legs, with heat, but without thirst or sweat. Sleep restless; and unsound, with half waking every hour; and he could lie on neither side, before midnight he was full of various thoughts; in a child, and it calls its mother constantly. Fever.—Chilliness in morning in bed; in morning in bed, then heat and disinclination to rise; in evening; waking him frequently at night, with inability to collect his senses; an hour later heat in face, without thirst; shaking, in evening before sleep; shaking, in whole body, with warm forehead, hot cheeks, cold hands, without thirst. Shivering every day about 3 P.M., > open air, with gooseflesh; S. all night; when eating, without thirst, two hours before the heat; over whole body, without thirst or immediate subsequent heat; then slight heat; with sleepiness and dryness of mouth; internal, about 3 P.M., with thirst; over back and arms in morning after rising, towards nape, and over head and face; down back after eating. Chilliness in back; cold feet in evening in bed.

Heat in afternoon when sitting quietly, with sweat, without thirst; H. towards evening in open air, with headache; at night, < about forehead, preventing sleep after 3 A.M., then shaking chill about 9 A.M.; with orgasm of blood and thirst. Heat here and there in limbs; externally on lower part of sacrum; about head in morning in bed, with sweat on forehead; of hands and feet at night; over back three hours after eating; in tip of r. great toe during rest; internally in r. hand, with redness and with tearing in middle joints of its fingers; paroxysmal, creeping over lower part of back; sticking, here and there in skin; on forehead, as from a warm breath against it, at times also a cold breath, with redness of cheeks and external warmth of body.

Sweat; at night; after midnight, every night; of the odor of bad eggs towards midnight; of bad odor at night; on abdomen, feet and genitals at night on waking, though moderately covered, on uncovering so cold that the sweat disappears and he thinks he has taken cold.

Sticta Pulmonaria.

A tincture is made of the fresh lichen (that growing on the maple seems the best).

Burning biting-sticking all over body, increasing in intensity all day. Weariness. Feeling of dulness. "Feel the medicine all over me." Inactivity of mind, inability to collect thoughts. Dulness of head, with heavy pressure in forehead and root of nose, increasing in intensity during the day; D. of head, with sharp darting pain through vertex, side of face and lower jaw.

Heavy intermittent pain in forehead at noon, < 2 P.M., < r. supraorbital region, < 4 P.M., when it extended through brain, < r. side of head. Darting pain in temples increasing all day. Intermittent shooting in r. temple at 7 A.M., < 8 A.M., when it extended through frontal and r. parietal regions deep into brain, the pain < 11 A.M., when it was heavy and intermittent, < r. supraorbital region, almost intolerable at 5 P.M. and extending through brain. Scalp feels too small or as if drawn too tight.

Eyes feel heavy. Burning in eyelids, increasing in intensity all day, with soreness of balls on closing lids or turning eye. Fulness at root of nose. Dull oppressive pain in cardiac region. Fulness in l. hypochondrium. Pain in r. hypochondrium. Oppression of lungs. Lancinations in second joint of middle finger, increasing in intensity all day. Darting pains in muscles of arms, then in finger-joints and shoulders, next in thighs, knees and toes.

Clinical.—Headache, with violent pains in the eyes, which are sore on turning them. Earache, with noise and beating in the back of the head. Nasal catarrh, with profuse discharge of bloody pus, distressing cough and oppression of the chest, cough < evening and night, becoming almost incessant, < lying down. Nasal catarrh, dryness of the nose and palate, they feel as stiff as leather, with occasional discharges of scabby mucus, < evening and night. Catarrh, with constant blowing of the nose, but no discharge. Hay fever, incessant sneezing, with fulness in forehead and root of the nose and tingling. Nasal catarrh for many years, sneezing, with green discharge, frontal headache and occasional bleeding. Diarrhœa, with much mucus, associated with cough. Cough, incessant, dry, spasmodic, < evening and night, sometimes with feeling of hard masses in chest, pressure at root of nose. Hacking cough in nervous and hysterical patients, particularly such as are subject to sick headache. Cough dry, racking, with splitting headache in forehead; cough caused by inspiration, < lying down at night. Cough, with hoarseness, nightly expectoration. Very noisy coughs, often spasmodic, like whooping cough; frequently suitable for the incessant cough of measles, which prevents sleep at night, with stuffy and dry nose. Hysterical chorea, < evening and night, constant jumping about, feet and legs feel as if floating in the air.

Inflammatory rheumatism of small joints, intense pain in the neck and head. Rheumatism of the wrists. Rheumatism of the knee. Housemaid's knee.

Stillingia Sylvatica.

A tincture is made of the fresh root.

Generalities.—Distress, miserable feeling all the forenoon, headache, eyes inflamed and watery, soreness of all muscles, feeling as if he had taken a severe cold. Malaise; about bedtime, > after sleeping all night. Weakness; with feeling as if emaciated; with sleepiness, heaviness < legs, soreness of whole body, disinclination to move, desire to go where I will not be annoyed, the duties of my profession are irksome, head heavy, relaxation of muscle of neck, brain feels too large for skull, difficulty in keeping eyes open. Aggravation from exposure of the parts to cold or even to the air, amelioration from covering with flannel or by getting into bed. Amelioration after a good night's rest.

Mind.—Gloomy forebodings. Spirits depressed. Stupid.

Head.—Aching; < forehead and vertex; running from anterior part of temples. Dizziness; and throbbing. Shooting in r. frontal bone running down to eye. Darting pain in sinciput extending to occiput; over l. eye, with lachrymation, < r. eye, more profuse when reading. Pain in forehead; like a current running from median line to occipital process and l. cerebellum, also in evening; as from a weight on brain, the pain became darting and almost unbearable; heavy. Pain in temples; through T. and forehead; intermittent; darting, in l. Pain in r. side of head. Darting pain in r. occipital protuberances.

Clinical.—Moist, brown excoxiating eruption on the scalp.

Nose and Face.—Abscesses in side of r. nostril. Discharge from nose at first watery, then muco-purulent, nostrils sore inside. Sharp burning in r. nostril at 6 A.M. on waking. Stinging-darting pain in face. Pain under malar-bone, extending transversely through face.

Mouth.—Spells of neuralgia in teeth. Tongue coated; white; yellowish-white. Tongue feels rough and sore. Heat in mouth, fauces, œsophagus and stomach. Rough, dry feeling. Salivation. Taste salt; T. bitter in morning.

Throat.—Inflammation of fauces; of l. tonsil. Choking resembling globus hystericus, > Nux. vom. and Chelid. Sensation of a ball preventing sleep till after 1 A.M. Smarting and stinging. Rawness in fauces. Soreness of pharynx. Irritation of fauces. Tickling, with hacking cough; T. in fauces, with dryness and hacking cough. Dryness of fauces. Burning in fauces; increasing till throat became very sore; in throat extending to stomach, as if deprived of epithelium, < swallowing.

Stomach.—Appetite increased; lost. Regurgitations of food and vomiting of ingesta. Pyrosis every day from 2 P.M. till bedtime; every day from 3 P.M. till bedtime. Nausea. Vomiting. Cramps. Gripping in epigastrium, then diarrhoea; G. in epigastrium at 6 P.M., then diarrhoea, with much flatus, next day feeling of impending diarrhoea. Distress in epigastrium. Burning. Faint, empty feeling.

Abdomen.—Rumbling; > escape of flatus and smoking. Darting pain; in l. hypochondrium, beginning in ascending colon and passing through descending colon, then escape of flatus. Cramps in hypochondria. Pain in umbilical region; heavy, in hypogastrium.

Anus.—Piles. Pain in sphincter during stool, and in rectum. Bruised pain in sphincter. Burning during stool, with tenesmus; B. during stool, with tenderness, afterwards uneasiness in rectum.

Stool.—Loose, with tenesmus and burning in anus; L. and bilious; L., two near together, with tenesmus and burning in anus, which lasted half an hour; L. and irregular, afterwards constipation with nausea, and when lying down slow and irregular pulse, afterwards sensation of impending diarrhoea. Acid, frothy, bilious, copious, twice in one day, with tenderness and burning in anus. Six within two hours, three copious, the last three scanty white, resembling dysentery, then another, white and resembling curds. Urgent immediately after breakfast. Delayed; and during the evacuation pain in rectum and sphincter.

Clinical.—White, pasty, fetid stools.

Urinary Organs.—Pain in urethra; during micturition; smarting burning, < micturition, with difficulty in voiding urine and pain in region of kidneys. Scalding in urethra during micturition, with uneasiness at neck of bladder as if inflamed. Urine increased; and scalding and high-colored, inclined to foam; and containing brick-dust sediment, also high-colored; and thick, milky, containing much chloride of sodium. White sediment. Dark brownish sediment (before the proving the sediment was flocculent mucous.)

Sexual Organs.—Sharp pain in glans extending up urethra during micturition, causing sweat, next day sharp pain on walking. Drawing up of r. testicle. Heavy pain in l. testicle. Pain in ovaries.

Clinical.—Syphilitic eruptions. Secondary syphilis, especially bone-pains, scatica, particularly of l. side. Bone-pains, with nodosities on the skull and long bones (Asaf, Sil, Merc.).

Respiratory Organs.—Constriction of larynx. Bruised feeling in trachea on pressure; B. feeling, with irritation in bronchi. Lame feeling in cartilages of trachea. Uneasiness in trachea and bronchi on going to bed, < next morning on rising, with tickling. Cough, hacking; C. dry in evening, from tickling in trachea, C. afterwards loose and deep; dry spasmodic, towards evening, from tickling, next day deep and loose.

Clinical.—Laryngitis, with sensation of lameness of the cartilages, feeling of constriction and soreness.

Chest.—Pain in l. clavicular space; sore, along l. clavicle in evening, and in shoulder. Darting pain through chest; and through shoulders. Raw feeling in sternum. Oppression.

Heart and Pulse.—Boring in region of heart. Pulse rapid. Pulse irregular; in morning, and full; and rapid, weak, but regular during the heat and sweat.

Back.—Pain in evening, extending down thighs and legs; in r. scapula, running up to neck; in r. kidney; across region of kidneys; shooting forward in l. loin when sitting. Darting pain in l. kidney on waking at 6 A.M., then in r., with heavy pain in l. testicle.

Extremities.—Pulsating pain in r. elbow and r. leg in evening, with soreness. (Aching in bones and muscles, with increase of the soreness caused by severe exercise and felt before the proving.)

Upper Extremities.—Shooting from middle third of humeri down to fingers. Aching in humerus, on and above olecranon, with soreness. Pain in r. elbow, forearm and wrist, < motion; sharp, in bend of l. elbow, < hanging down; in l. elbow, extending towards shoulder and hand, as if bones were sore and would separate, < l., temporarily > change of position, with aching in l. carpal and metacarpal bones. Shooting in upper third and inner side of forearm at 9.30 A.M., < letting limb hang down and > pressure. Pain in finger-joints.

Lower Extremities.—Aching in evening; in r. hip and l. foot; in hip-joint when riding, < bending backward or forward, and walking, with stiffness; on outside of r. thigh and leg, running down to foot; heavy, in r. thigh and leg; drawing, in l. knee, affecting gastrocnemius and biceps. Stabbing in r. knee. Sensations in popliteal spaces. Pain in r. leg; in calves; in tendo-achillis; in leg and sole in morning; in lower anterior third of l. leg in afternoon when driving; posteriorly in r. leg after retiring. Dull feeling in calves. Pain in external malleoli; darting, in outer part of r. ankle. Aching in foot over r. instep; < standing and attempting to walk. Uneasiness of l. foot. Pain in third r. toe when in the house, in metatarsal joints of toes when walking, extending to heels.

Skin.—Smarting from rubbing on it the juice of the root, with irritation. Itching below knees; burning, below knees, < exposure to air.

Clinical.—Enlarged cervical glands. Tubercular eruptions, which tend to ulcerate.

Sleep.—Sleepiness early in evening; by spells during the day.

Fever.—Coldness on going to bed, but soon sweat and heat. Feeling as if the room were too warm by spells during the day, with sweat. Heat in face like catarrhal fever. Burning in l. ear at night before sleep, next morning vesicles upon it. Sweat.

Stramonium.

A tincture is made of the seeds of Datura Stramonium, L.

General Action.—Stramonium acts like other plants of the Solanum family in producing cerebral excitation, particularly delirium, which here assumes a peculiar form. Its scarlatina-like eruption is similar to that of Belladonna. Suppression of urine is one of the peculiarities to be noted.

Allies.—Hyosc., Bell., Merc., Secale c., Verat. alb.

Generalities.—Suppression of all excretions (Secale c.).

Wildness of manners. Inarticulate cries. Lying on their backs; upon stomach, boring head into pillow; prostrate and helpless; on the floor, cold, senseless, weak, and breathing feebly. Muscles hard. Contraction of muscles; except sphincter of bladder. Relaxation of voluntary muscles. Sat upright on a lounge supported by an assistant on each side and refused to be placed recumbent. Falling over when sitting, especially towards r. side, making a circular sweep. Threatens to fall on rising. Sways to and fro like a drunken man. Tottering so as to almost fall from its chair. Imperfect control over voluntary motions. Inability to perform co-ordinate movements. Loss of voluntary motion. Inability to take food, to see, hear, speak or feel.

Trembling of whole body (Arg. n., Gels., Cimicif., Merc.); with rigidity of trunk and limbs, constant moans, occasional shrieks, appeared as if terribly frightened, could not stand and would not lie down, pupils dilated and insensible, the least noise startled him, holding a candle before eyes caused convulsions of limbs, especially a drawing backward and increased rigidity, a nervous effort to swallow, inability to articulate, loss of voluntary motion; < abdomen, on becoming warm in bed, with prickling over whole body, mind timid and restless, preventing sleep, aggravation of every symptom after paregoric, with clammy sweat, on closing eyes hideous, menacing spectres, and the bed seemed suspended and tantalized like a feather between the two floors.

Constant restless movements (Hyosc., Merc., Rhus t., Bell.). Subsultus tendinum (Hyosc.). Chorea-like movements; and features continually changing, at times laughing, at times expressing astonishment, lips moved as if trying to speak, sometimes puckered as in whistling, mouth often opened and snapped together, tongue often run out rapidly and licked about cheeks, head thrown backward and forward, spasmodic twisting of spine and whole body, limbs in constant motion, not jerking, anxiety and restlessness, rubbing nose and mouth, pulling at lips, groping about, fidgeting the bed-covers, scratching face or throat, at times the arm suddenly sank down relaxed for a moment, whole body exhausted, then the spasms would begin anew (see Merc.).

Twitching; and inability to swallow or talk (Hyosc., Op.); of limbs and neck; of jaw, lips and limbs, r.

side; of jaw, lips, l. arm and r. lower limb; of head from side to side, then general T., trismus, spasms of neck, difficult swallowing, stupefaction, then he lay unconscious on his back, when he was raised the neck and spine bent backward, limbs in constant convulsive motion and frequent shaking of body as from electric shocks; changing to movements as if the boy were acting in pantomime, but at times convulsions, after a bath he moved his mouth as if he wanted to speak, he seemed in an ideal childish world, all his ideas seemed reproductions.

Convulsions; at sight of a lighted candle, a mirror or of water; < being touched or loudly spoken to, and when a cup of drink touched their lips; < arms, face and neck; beginning in face and extending to other parts; with blowing or hissing expirations; with screams; with flushed face and full, slow pulse; with hot head, dark red face, red limbs, dilated pupils, salivation, grating of teeth and trembling; of every muscle, he beat his breast, jaws set as in tetanus, moans, stertorous breathing, occasional rattling in throat, limbs cold, pulse nearly obliterated, cold, clammy sweats, face hippocratic; then paralysis of lower limbs; with shrieks and hoarseness, alternating with torpor; alternating with rage, during the latter he beat and bit those who attempted to hold him; alternating with excitement of mind; alternating with opisthotonus.

Opisthotonus. Bent backward as in opisthotonus, muscles of limbs very active, he grasped at his mouth and face, tried to get out of bed and made efforts to grasp small objects, but had no spasms. Tetanus. Hysterical symptoms. Cramps.

Pain and anxiety. Aura running swiftly from r. heel to occiput, all along posterior r. side, when walking in the street, and I was occasionally suddenly arrested as if tripped up by a backward thrust in popliteal space, causing knees to give way and causing dead stops. Hyperesthesia; to touch, and every motion aggravated. Restlessness; and calling for water, swallowing difficult (Hyosc.); with itching; with yawning and sleepiness; with moans, tossing about the bed, throwing about limbs, < arms, frequent opening and shutting of hands and many motions of fingers; and stretched himself at full length, threw his limbs about and sometimes seized his neck with both hands. Great strength.

Weakness; in morning on waking, also went back to bed several times; in afternoon; at 5.30 p.m.; when walking; from least exertion; and loss of sensation (touch, taste, etc.), diminution of sensorial power; sudden, with violent beating of heart. Desire to lie down. Dislike to moving about and inability to sit straight any length of time. Faintness; in paroxysms; with trembling. Collapse. Stiffness of whole body. Motionless. A boy did not feel a whipping. Paralysis of various parts; of l. side; muscular, with retention of urine. Aggravation in forenoon. Relieved for a few seconds by drinking. Sedative, anodyne and cooling.

Clinical.—Chorea, with the peculiar fright of the drug, with constantly changing spasms; chorea, particularly of the muscles of the face, which assume all kinds of expressions (rarely useful for chorea, which persistently attacks certain muscles). Hysterical convulsions, with frothing at mouth, distorted features. Convulsions resulting from fright, especially from being frightened by animals.

Mind.—Delirium; noisy; frightened by strange objects that obtrude upon his fancy; under the impression of danger, clinging to the person who held him in her lap; he sees more horrifying images at his side than in front of him; he seems at times to be chasing or fleeing from imaginary objects; her gaze was fixed and she tried to reach towards something which she saw; staring about, then fixed gaze, with startings of limbs, low mutterings, then sudden and furious screaming; biting, scratching and tearing with hands and kicking; picked the bed-clothes, saw bugs, etc.; large dogs, cats and other horrible beasts seem to grow out of the ground at his side and he springs away from them in terror; he saw a long train of bedbugs and after them a procession of beetles, then a host of cockroaches crawled over him, he shrank back in alarm, then said "I believe I know they are not really bugs, but except once in a while they seem real;" he saw black objects, spoke  black people and black clouds and grasped at the air; symptoms resembling hydrophobia; rage on attempting to administer liquids, like hydrophobia, spasm of pharynx so that anything taken choked him and was regurgitated; at first looked stupid and gave incoherent answers, afterwards looked like an idiot, afterwards bit a man's hand, sometimes cried out that she saw cats, dogs and rabbits at the top, sides and middle of the room, at other times caught eagerly at imaginary objects and declared she saw persons who were not present; he saw an executioner standing before him, yet he was lively, talkative, laughed and made jokes about his hallucination, but it seemed to him a reality; walks about the room absorbed in himself, with fixed, sparkling eyes, surrounded by blue rings, solely occupied with the objects of his fancy.

Delirium, with sexual excitement (Hyosc.): D., with incoherent talking; with restlessness, constant incoherent talking, dancing and singing; violent; intermittent; pleasant, incoherent; muttering; raving; sudden, with ridiculous gestures; he converses with absent persons as if they were present, and addresses inanimate objects by the names of such persons, but observes none of those standing about him; talkative, complained that a dog was tearing and biting the flesh of his chest; unintelligible muttering, looked around wildly, could not be made to do what he was told, although he apparently understood all that was going on, tried to clutch at imaginary persons, but could not use his arms; caught at the bed-clothes and everything around her; picking at bed-clothes and frequent, violent laughter; picking at imaginary objects; confused talking, grasping at the air and scratching on the bed-covers; grasps at things quickly and thinks he has seized a thing before touching it, and if he does not hold the object he does not feel that he has got it; constant tremulous reaching forward and upward of arms, while lower limbs were motionless and paralyzed; she began to cry when her mother took her up, and she became furious and began to scratch and bite; desire to escape; jumped, danced about the bed and knocked against the wall, with incessant and disconnected talking, laughing and starting; wild, ran about the room, jumped, talked nonsense, saw chickens and cats, spoke to them and to their toys; joyful; joyous, made known his wants by gestures without speaking, and ran about; lively, alternating with dread of an approaching monster and piteous appeals for help; laughing, making faces, behaving like an intoxicated person or a fool, pulling his clothes, staring; laughing, grasping with his hands, rolling and creeping around in bed; sings, talks, fancies there are dogs in the room, which he describes and attempts to chase, suddenly springing to his feet and as suddenly toppling over, talks of the events of the day as if they were taking place; constant motion of limbs, co-ordinate only as far as they related to the corresponding limb, constant motion as if picking something from the clothes or bed-clothes, and paroxysms of laughter, ceasing suddenly, at times smiles; laughing, crying, singing, dancing, no correct estimation of distances or size of objects, they tried to pick up the nail-heads in the floor, which they thought to be money, a boy caught a hat, thrust his foot into it, pulled the brim and fretted because he could not "get on his trousers"; thought she was falling; imagines that he is abandoned in a wilderness, animals jump out of the ground at his side, so that he moves quickly to the other side, where others start up and pursue him, so that he runs forward; difficult to hold in the lap, it threw out its legs wide apart and stiffened them, arms constantly thrown out as if trying to reach something, and sometimes it seemed as if something had been secured and was fumbled in the fingers, pupils dilated, eyes wild, screams, froth from mouth, skin hot; sudden starting as if in terror, with outstretched arms and staring eyes, difficulty in holding her, incoherent cries, then a calm with laughter, grasping at imaginary objects, conveying her hands to her mouth as if eating berries, pointing at something on the floor, etc.; eyes following an imaginary object, then striking at it, screaming, sobbing, starting back and frightened look, afterwards she struck at, pushed or attempted to bite every person or object near her, afterwards coma, then return of excitement without ocular spectra or spasms; sometimes she appeared for a moment free from anxiety, sat silent, with eyes fixed on the ground but picking at whatever was before her, then starting as if in fright with a shriek, distortions and apparently pain and anxiety, at other times in the interval of ease singing and laughing, but would not utter a word or notice anything said to her, with aversion to fluids.

Delirium alternating with insensibility, voice squeaking, staggering and falling to the ground; fury and running about; periodic raving, he attacked people and tried to bite them; symptoms resembling delirium tremens, and struggling to get out of bed, rolling from side to side, unless supported she fell forward to the ground; he tried to get out of bed at night, but uttered no sound, preceded and followed by insensibility; jumped from bed at midnight, ran about the room, caught at every one as he passed them, said a man was chasing him, said repeatedly "You shan't have me"; on waking the child held out its hands as if it wanted a glass of water, then brought them to its mouth and sipped as if drinking, bit its own fingers and its mother's if she put them into its mouth, and screamed incessantly; one would blow up a feather in the air, another would dart straws at it in fury, another was sitting naked in a corner like a monkey, grinning and making mouths at them, a fourth would fondly kiss and paw his companions and sneer in their faces; busy D., < women, then sopor, then weariness, pain in limbs and disinclination to think; often lay down upon his knees, stretched out his arms and groped about as if seeking something; grasping outward, at times at nose or head; caught at the blaze of the fire in a singular way and fell to the floor as if paralyzed on one side; motions so fast that finally he cannot move any more and all turns black before his eyes; recognized no one, paid no attention to calls, constantly turned head from side to side; their attention could not be aroused and they resisted interference, with piteous cries and violent struggles; imagines that he is tall and large and that surrounding objects are too small; after waking all things appear to him new, even his friends, as if he had never seen them; the boy said repeatedly that there were "big sores" on him; thought that one side of him was alive and the other buried; thought that he was dying, was glad that he was and prepared for his funeral, with otherwise perfect reason and without feeling remarkably sick; with the facetious leer often seen in drunkenness; he dances at night in a churchyard; happy, incoherent talking, tottering and falling down; chatters nonsense, and when his friends set him right he excuses himself, saying they have suggested them to him, and begins to speak on the same subject; the apartment seemed all on fire; saw objects that did not exist and saw lightnings; thought that she was engaged in her usual vocation; at one time he was off to hitch up his team, at another he gathered sticks and placed them together to build a fire, then motioned as if he would scrape lice and bugs together, shake them out of hats, pull paper off the wall to get them out, pick them off himself and tramp on them, tried to catch rats, talkative, did not know his wife nor where he was, wanted to go home, etc. They tried to walk around each other on their hands and knees, heads forcibly inclined to the right, with disposition to manège if left alone, the mother muttering incoherently, the boy at intervals of a few minutes uttering a low whispering scream.

Mind clouded, I upset everything I touched, a person talking to me seemed a figure in a vision or as if talking out of a cloud, I subsided into bewilderment when he ceased talking, my writing was an almost unintelligible scrawl, vertigo, aching on vertex, could not realize anything, my wife sitting by my bed seemed like a phantom, before this I was forgetful, used wrong words, speech was thick.

All motions hasty and forcible, he is anxious if he cannot finish them at once. Apprehension. Starting up in fright; shuddering and fright. Imagines that he is alone and is frightened. Fear of sudden death. Sadness in evening in bed, with thoughts of death and violent weeping; S., with tears; and indisposition to converse, next day buoyancy. Anxiety. Despair. Crying and almost convulsive agitation. Inconsolable after the fall equinox, affected by trifles, disposed to weep, sometimes easily vexed, sometimes neglects her duties, sometimes thinks she is not fitted for her position, aggravation from the darkness, being alone and in the morning, she wants sunshine and company.

Talking much, but speech difficult; continued incoherent T.; talks little and utters single, broken words with a higher voice. Quarrelsome. Passionate and feeble. Furious anger; A. when pinched or tickled, with incoherent muttering, turning upon his face and kicking backward, with alternate movements of feet. Peevishness; and pacing up and down the room; when spoken to, and he answered by a sharp cry or said sharply "let me alone," all his words being curtailed; then disposition to laugh. Would not answer. Variable humor. Laughing and whining; L. for an hour, then crying; alternations of L., weeping and singing. Inclined to smile and jest. Disinclination for real work. Dread of cold water, but warm water relieved the symptoms. Watchfulness.

Memory lost; from inward uneasiness; M. diminished. Absence of mind. Confusion of intellect. Always mis-called the same things; > sound sleep. Misplaced words, called his head his foot, his arm his leg. Difficulty in speaking the right word when answering. Answered in a disconnected and lolling manner. Stammered disconnected words and shed tears. Mistakes in spelling when writing and when speaking puts words in the wrong place.

Stupefaction; from which he at times started up wildly, opened his eyes, which were partly closed, but could not keep them open, spoke disconnectedly, quarrelled with his mother, whom he did not know, face red, cheeks hot, dry heat over whole body, at times moved his lips and tongue, called for liquid, throbbing in carotids, full, rapid pulse, rapid respiration, pupils dilated, insensible, swallowing difficult; < drinking coffee, > vinegar, with anxiety, convulsions of limbs and involuntary weeping; then insomnia, and in one case delirium tremens; drunken, with restlessness, twisting his fingers and catching at imaginary objects or grasping the bed-clothes, tongue rolling, pulse quick, he often shrank as if suffering from creeping over body.

Unconsciousness; and limbs fell flaccid and lifeless when lifted; with stupid and wild appearance, when aroused she looked around vacantly; half U., sitting with upper part of body bent backward, gagging and pushing out of his mouth white froth, lips bluish, swollen, lids closed, eyes dim, pupils dilated, thirst and weariness, amelioration the next day after vinegar. Coma. Sopor; alternating with delirium.

Clinical.—Raving, with attempts to escape; talking, laughing or singing; especially with symptoms of terror, thinks he will be killed or that wild beasts are chasing him. Mania, wild delirium, with terrifying hallucinations. The child screams in fright or an adult is horrified or loquacious, is particularly afraid of the dark. Hallucinations; he particularly imagines that he is surrounded by black insects or by small animals of a dark color. The locacity of this drug may be compared with that of Hyos. and Lach.; Stram. is persistent in being confined to one subject; he imagines he is talking with spirits or absent people. Very frequently useful in delirium tremens, with visions of animals from which he attempts to escape. In delirium of fever, characterized by an abnormal sense of the proportions of his body, it is similar to Bapt.; the Stram. patient is apt to imagine that certain parts are of unnatural size, or that they are double. Hydrophobia; of all drugs known to us this seems most nearly a specific for this dreadful disease, and some cases supposed to be genuine have been cured.

Head.—Swelling and internal fulness as if it would burst. Raised frequently from the pillow. Moved to and fro. Spasm to either side after a swoon, with redness of face. Dartings in different directions through it, extending to eyeballs and down r. side of nose. Aching; in evening; deep in brain; < over eyes, with heaviness; with vertigo and heaviness of head, alternating with lightness and disposition to faint; squeezing; throbbing. Deep-seated throbbing. Fulness. Heaviness; heavy pain in morning on waking. Lightness, with weak feeling. Confusion; with hollow feeling and sensitiveness to every sound and inability to think much. Stupid feeling. Rush of blood. Apoplexy. Drunkenness; in morning; and heavy feeling in body.

Vertigo; every morning after rising, with want of thought, weakness of memory and vision as through a gauze; at 8 P.M. when writing by gaslight; when standing; when sitting and standing in a room; on raising head from pillow; when walking, with unsteady gait and faint feeling; with nausea; with staggering; with flickering before eyes; with numbness of head; with feeling as if head were drawn backward, also with sleepiness; with loss of senses, sleepiness, sleep with more or less open eyes, when disturbed she jumped up in rage and said a few unintelligible words, when others sang she danced, pulse slow and full, mouth dry, this state lasted twenty-four hours, without eating or drinking; sudden, at noon when reading in open air and walking, with staggering as if he would fall forward and to the left.

Forehead.—Wrinkled. Stitches. Pain; in r. side; in morning; in r. side in morning; in afternoon, < walking in open air, > resting indoors; in the room at 4.45 P.M.; at 11 P.M.; on waking and during the morning; sudden, over l. eye at 10 A.M. when walking in open air, and in opposite part of occiput. Tingling as if pins and needles were in it. Throbbing, and in vertex and eyeballs; over r. eye; painful, in evening after mental work; sudden attacks of painful, in l. side in evening indoors. Confusion in incipit, with vertigo.

Temples.—Sticking in r. from 8 P.M. till falling asleep at 11 P.M.; S. to occiput, with thirst. Pain in r. Throbbing, < r.

Vertex.—Pain, making me unwilling to get up till 4 or 5 P.M. Pressure every day, late in afternoon and evening and waking me about 4 A.M., always woke nearly on back, with inclination to r. side, and arms, < r., stretched up and bent across vertex, so that muscles of upper arm felt strained and bruised. Sudden attack of throbbing in r. anterior part, repeated in evening when indoors.

Occiput.—Pain in r. side, occasionally throbbing; P. in l., occasionally throbbing, at noon and 8 P.M.

Clinical.—Vertigo when walking in the dark. It has been prescribed for congestive headache, with fear of going mad from the violent pain. Boring frontal headache, preceded by obscure vision; it has been noticed that when the sight of one eye is blurred the pain is on the opposite side of the head; hydrocephalus. Cerebro-spinal meningitis.

Eye.—Staring; and wild; alternating with unsteadiness. Prominent; and wide open, pupils dilated, insensible, with injected conjunctiva, as if vessels were filled with dirty fluid (Bell, Hyosc.); and half closed. Swelling, with dilated pupils and contortions of balls. Glistening; and restless, wide open, staring, with a peculiar intoxicated look; and restless, suspicious and roving. Dull and heavy; D. and dark. Sunken. Redness; about r., with swelling; < near inner canthus. Inflammation, < r., with lachrymation. Rolling. Surrounded by a blue margin. Pricking. Pressure and tension; P. in l. Feeling in r. as if water twitched about in it.

Lachrymation; with sensitiveness to daylight. Pupils dilated; and insensible; contracted; contracted after drinking vinegar; insensible. Balls feel sore on turning them; feel enlarged and as if protruding; throbbing at 11 A.M., < l., with lachrymation. Cornea very bright. Conjunctiva injected; and bluish. Redness of whites and of margins of lids, with lachrymation. Sclerotic coat pink at 9 P.M., < l.

Lids.—Squinting; of r. Closed; and swollen; half C. and eyes listless. Agglutination at night. Drooping; as from cramp of orbicularis. Swollen and inflamed. Pressure as if swollen, which is the case, or as if oppressed with sleep, hence sleepiness. Quivering like live blood in r. upper at midnight. Paralysis.

Vision.—Complained that it was dark and called for a light. Lost; almost, afterwards pressure outward from middle of ball at every change of light. Dim; in afternoon when reading print; and things seem dissolved and too distant. Amblyopia. Weak, with pressure in eyes. Better at the beginning of twilight. Presbyopia. Impaired. If the hand was held before the eye he felt for it at varying distances. On descending stairs he takes two steps for one and falls. Dazzled by rays of sun. Things appear smaller and at a greater distance, as if dazzled. Smoky appearance to the atmosphere. Things look blue and smoky, and at times he can see only half an object. As if through coarse linen, only by pieces, for instance, of a face he saw only a nose. Confused; when reading. All things appear oblique. Dark and flickering on beginning to read. Photophobia to gaslight. Illusions. Black things seem gray. A reddish-gray border around white things. Double; and confused; at other times only parts of objects can be seen; and things awry, he sees small objects at their places, but a little higher up and sideways a second image; black letters seem gray and as if a second light gray one were placed sideways or above it. Objects appear multiplied, diversified and variously colored. Of black spots; moving with the eye by daylight and by gaslight; and fiery sparks. Of a bright spot when reading by gaslight; when looking at the gas flame. Before l. eye in bed in the dark. Of a bright bar directed upward and to the right on looking at the cloudy sky by daylight. Bright green tremulous spots low down in field, before closed eyes. Bright blue spot before l. eye. Dark blue spot in a dark room. Fiery. Of sparks; occasionally entering at a high point and disappearing in lower point of field. Of balls of fire rolling over the counterpane. Luminous vibrations before l. eye at 8.30 A.M. Sheet-lightnings in the dark.

Clinical.—Strabismus.

Ear.—Shooting. Tearing in r., with shooting through forehead and vertex. Pain; in l., pressing down to cheek. Dryness in r. Eustachian tube. Deafness. Hearing obtuse at times; very acute. Hallucinations. Ringing; < l. Roaring, and hearing almost lost.

Nose.—Stopped; feels S., but he can get air enough through it. Dryness; and redness, with loss of smell; of r. nostril, r. posterior nares and r. Eustachian tube. Itching. Sneezing; from dryness of nostrils. Coryza from 10 A.M. till noon, nostrils stuffed, but not much flow. Mucus diminished in morning, increased in evening. Blowing out offensive yellow mucus, becoming fluent. Black hæmorrhage, then warm sweat and general relief.

Face.—Redness; of cheeks; at 1 P.M., and of forehead; and of eyes; with heat; without heat of head; and swelling; and lips swollen; and of lips, with swelling about lips and eyes, swelling of neck beginning under l. angle of jaw and extending around to right; of cheeks, with bloating, but upper part of face looked contracted and gloomy; purplish, with swelling. Pallor; at 5.30 P.M. Brown; dark. Swollen; below eyes; on l. side; and hot. Expression of terror (Atropine). Anxious (Secale c.). Wild (Bell). Vacant, bewildered. Idiotic. Besotted appearance. Risus sardonius. Sunken. Drawn. Distorted as by anxiety, with furrowed and wrinkled forehead. Furrows from inner canthi to cheeks and from nasal wings to corners of mouth, knitting of brows, eyes sparkling, afterwards eyes dim. L. side feels swollen, afterwards redness of l. cheek.

Jaw hanging down; clenched; tetanic spasms. Lips and teeth separated; swelling of lower lip; deep redness; bright red (afterwards almost black), feeling stiff and hard and trembling; stick together and have a yellow streak along their red part; dry; dry and sticky; sore, parched, chapped, then peeling.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the face, with twitches, delirium, etc.

Mouth.—Teeth. Grinding. Throbbing in l. lower T. and jaw; in l. lower molars and in submaxillary glands of same side; as if some teeth would fall out.

Tongue.—Swollen and stiff. Protruded; and swollen; and flabby. Red; on edges and thin, but white in centre. Whitish, with red dots, and tip redder than usual. Papillæ enlarged and projecting through white fur. Furred; white; white, with dryness, burning and scraping in mouth and fauces; yellowish, with disgusting bitter taste. Felt blistered. Boys scratch them with their finger-nails. Dryness, and on palate; D. and swelling of T. and fauces; and white color; and redness; at apex, and redness; and black color; and its tip curled up; except on edges, and tremulous; and stiff and felt as if its edges rolled up as hard and stiff as sole leather; and felt spongy; and of palate, without thirst at first; so that it glistened, with redness, and with dryness and redness of fauces. Heaviness. Immovable. Paralyzed and trembled if she put it out. Stammering (Merc.); and talking between his teeth. Speech difficult and unintelligible (Merc.); D. and whispering; indistinct, incoherent and rapid; faltering; thick as in quinsy; impeded, as if tongue were too thick or slightly paralyzed; impossible; impossible, apparently from paralysis of tongue. Dumb.

Velum palati drawn down, food and drink pass with difficulty and with scratching in velum. Mouth feels raw and sore. Dryness; of palate; at night, and in throat; of M., throat and nostrils from 1 till dinner at 5 p.m.; so that he cannot spit, though tongue looks moist; so that swallowing of dry food is difficult, at dinner obliged to sip frequently to help down the food which seems arrested in œsophagus. Foaming; thick; bloody; bloody every morning. Black frothy mucus issued. Dribbling of glairy saliva (Merc.). Drooling (Merc.). Salivation. Bitter taste; in forenoon; to food. Taste pasty; like sand to food, and it balls up in œsophagus and threatens to suffocate her; like leather to water, like sulphur to eggs; flat after sunset and next morning; like straw to food; lost; lost to rice-water, which feels like apple-cores in stomach.

Throat.—Externally swollen as in mumps. Difficult hawking of tenacious mucus. Blush one-third the extent of pharynx and œsophagus, a band of vascularity half an inch broad at junction of air tube with pharynx, larynx less injected, rima glottidis thickened and turgid. Grasping at throat. Spasm on attempting to swallow, as in hydrophobia. Constriction; of muscles on attempting to swallow; of fauces after a meal; of fauces, making respiration difficult; spasmodic, with paralysis. Choking; in fauces; so that the child could scarcely vomit; on attempting to swallow the first bite of food, C. like a dry stripe extending to stomach, which he was trying to swallow but could not get down.

Stitches in pharynx. Soreness; and in fauces. Scraping; on swallowing. Pain; drawing, in fauces; constrictive burning, with sensation as if a ball were sticking in it. Burning; as if a hot stone were in it, and thirst not diminished by drinking. Feeling as if boiling water rose in it. Dryness; of fauces; of fauces, with redness and difficult swallowing; of fauces, which are almost white; not > water, with difficulty in swallowing; < swallowing saliva; of fauces, but he would not swallow when water was forced into his mouth; with saliva like stiff froth mixed with cotton-wool. Uneasiness, with shivering. Feeling of mucus at back; after sunset; > hawking; causing swallowing; causing hoarseness and hawking. Paralysis of pharynx.

œsophagus.—Seems drawn together. Constriction and spasm (Merc.). Swallowing difficult; of water; with stinging in throat; with pain in submaxillary glands. Swallowed drink hastily (Merc.). Swallowing impossible; of bread and milk; during coma, from paralysis of the parts that had been affected by spasm, with stertor from a similar change in larynx.

Stomach.—Hunger, with tearing in abdomen, but inability to take food. Appetite increased; diminished; poor at breakfast; lost; lost for breakfast; lost, with oppression at pit of stomach. Great desire for acids (Verat.). Thirst; not > water; with drooling; with the headache; for sour drinks. Eructations in evening; sour E.; odorless; offensive bilious, in evening. Hiccough.

Nausea; at 5.30 p.m., with retching, causing pain in stomach, and vomiting of whitish fluid; with discomfort in middle line of chest (in œsophagus?); with inability to vomit and then dizziness, faintness and difficulty in swallowing and breathing. Retching; ineffectual. Vomiting; of mucus at night; of sour-smelling mucus; bilious, after least motion; of a dark greenish substance mixed with food; difficult, of food mixed with nearly black clotted blood, soon after eating and causing shooting at stomach pit, retching before and after the vomiting.

Sticking in region. Shooting inward in l. then in r. side; in pit; in pit and r. side of abdomen. Pain; in pit; in epigastrium; in region of S. and bowels; on pressure; (towards the heart, < external pressure); corroding; intermittent burning. Epigastric tenderness. Smarted and felt ragged, as if full of sores. Distress at 7 p.m. Anxiety; in pit; in pit, with difficult breathing. Sourness. Irritation. Sensation as of sparks of fire rushing to eyes. Weak feeling as if everything were gone.

Abdomen.—Spasmodic retraction. Distention; < region of pit of stomach; with burning; with anxiety in pit of stomach, cold sweat, chilliness of limbs, confusion of mind, stupefied half slumber and anxious evacuations upward and downward. Meteorism. Tympanitic. Hard. Tense; and hard; and retracted. Rumbling and growling; R. and pain. Rolling during micturition, with rigors. Gurgling. Emission of flatus.

Tearing, > brothlike stools. Gripping; with shooting and looseness. Twisting before stool, during stool colic, distention, rolling in abdomen, vomiting and pallor. Writhing before every stool, blackish diarrhœa every hour. Pain; sudden, in evening, with fainting and shivering; as if abdomen were puffed up, pain even when touching side. Feeling as if a living animal were moving in it. Sensitiveness. Sensation as if expanded to the extremest degree.

Tearing as if umbilicus would be torn out, the pain then goes into chest. Drawing in direction of transverse colon changing into tearing, with hunger, but inability to eat. Pain in hepatic region; in lower colon. Shooting backward in hypogastrium after dinner. Gripping in pubic region; during stool; in centre of hypogastrium.

Rectum and Anus.—Hæmorrhoidal flux. Discharge of coagulated blood. Ineffectual desire. She seemed to have a motion to stool and passed a living lumbricus teres, fourteen inches long, with a little water, but without feces or relief of symptoms.

Stool.—Watery, preceded by cramps in abdomen; W. and large; and frequent; and brown, several times from 3 till 7 P.M., preceded by pain in abdomen, sometimes brownish-yellow and frothy, full feeling in rectum, during the stools scalding in anus. Diarrhoea; with flatulence, borborygmus and occasional sharp pains; with and followed by shooting downward in rectum; chocolate-brown; feculent dark brown at night and all next day, with gripping across hypogastrium before stool, straining during stool, and straining with the urine at the same time. Two in one day, next day relaxed stool when straining on bladder, third day relaxed, dark brown. Constipation. Hard. Difficult, painful, the last part could not be evacuated by straining, but came easily after the straining ceased. (Bloody.) S. and urine suppressed. Decreased.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea during typhoid, black, putrid, with loquacious delirium, desire for light, fright, etc.

Urinary Organs.—Bladder empty. Paralysis of bladder. Retention of urine, with muscular paralysis. Micturition only after twelve hours. Micturition dribbling; M. by drops, urine warm and sensation as if a cylinder were pushed through urethra, after vinegar a thin stream and less frequent desire. M. stops except when straining; but frequent and copious. Frequent M. at night; F. by drops, the emission delayed for a minute before it came, yet much was discharged in the forenoon. Involuntary M.; and copious; and involuntary bloody stool. M. without effort, he was able to retain the urine, but felt as if he had not the power to retain it and to close the neck of the bladder; at the same time sensation as if urethra were too narrow and unable to expand. M. painful and urine alkaline. M. difficult and urine high-colored. Urine increased; and almost watery; and clear, like spring water. Urine dark and of strong odor. U. thick and turbid.

Clinical.—Suppression of urine, especially in typhoid.

Sexual Organs.—Constant uncovering (Hyosc.). Priapismus. Testicles retracted, penis erect as in chordee. Scrotum œdematous. Energy lost. Excitement; insatiable in women. Discharge of black blood from uterus. Menses increased and in large clots. Menorrhagia, with drawing pains in abdomen, thighs and other limbs.

Clinical.—Dysmenorrhœa. Puerperal convulsions. Puerperal mania. Nymphomania, either puerperal or menstrual, with great violence.

Respiratory Organs.—Suffocative spasms of glottis from vomiting. Pain in region of larynx. Voice hoarse; and croaking; V. high, squeaking and out of tone, speech unintelligible; lost, she could only utter a hoarse croaking sound that alternated with a sonorous, croupy, barking cough, and inability to swallow from spasm of muscles of deglutition; weak; loud and harsh.

Cough, with palpitation, anxiety, constriction of chest and convulsions; spasmodic C., < evening and next morning; dry; dry, rasping, loud, from dryness in throat; loose rattling, in morning, with expectoration. Expectoration of white, frothy liquid; of thick mucus, without regard to where it fell; of blood.

Respiration.—Suffocation. Stertorous; and slow, deep; and blowing at each expiration. Difficult; and rapid; and slow; and slow, deep. Oppressed, with tightness across chest; O., with desire for the open air. Unable to inspire a sufficient amount. Expirations blowing or hissing, forcing reddish saliva through the closed lips, during the convulsive movements. Gasps and sobs. Sighs. Moans. Rapid; during coma; and at times gasping and choking. Slow; and irregular.

Clinical.—Spasmodic suffocative cough, with jerking of the extremities. Asthma, desire for open air. Spasmodic asthma (very important), < talking, hardly able to inspire. Most violent paroxysms of whooping cough, with suffocation almost convulsive, the child starts up in fright. Occasionally useful in pneumonia, with (the peculiar) delirium.

Chest.—Sticking in a spot in vicinity of fifth and sixth ribs. Cutting in sternum in evening after lying down, > emission of flatus, but returning. Pain from talking, and in sternum; sharp P. about junction of middle and lower third, l., then r. side, < walking, > warmth. Hard pressure on cartilages of third and fourth ribs, with difficult breathing. Tightness at night, obliging me to take frequent deep, forcible inspirations. Feeling as if something in it turned around; then heat in face. Dryness; with girding across it.

Heart.—Pressure in region. Uneasiness in region, with faintness. Palpitation; in afternoon on slight exertion. Violent beating; waking her from deep sleep. Action feeble; and intermittent. Pulsation slow.

Pulse.—Rapid; and full, strong; and hard; in evening, and hard; and soft, feeble; and feeble; and feeble, faltering, intermittent; and intermittent; and contracted; and small; and small, compressible; and small, and heart's action irregular; and small, soft, also could not be felt at r. wrist, nor the beating of the heart; afterwards slow, with prostration. Febrile. Strong, tumultuous. Hard. Tense and intermittent; T. in morning and unequal. Heavy beating in arteries at 7 A.M., < head and chest. Full; and hard; and irritable. Slow; and heavy; and full; and small. feeble. Intermittent. Irregular, a few rapid beats following some slow ones; l., sometimes hurried, fluttering, sometimes tense and strong, often indiscernible. Weak; and small; and tremulous, unequal, sometimes intermittent. Almost imperceptible, but during the coma it returned, was quick, small, sharp and thready. Imperceptible; afterwards rapid and strong, then rapid, unequal and intermittent.

Neck.—Swelling. Spine sensitive, the slightest pressure caused outcries and ravings. Stiffness.

Back.—Drawing tearing, and in upper abdomen. Pain in a spot. Pain as if beaten, and in shoulder; in B. and abdomen on motion. Drawing pain in middle of spine; and opposite in posterior part of stomach; D. pain in a spot on touch. Stiffness. Pain between scapulæ when coughing. Sticking in loins midway between hypochondria and iliac crests in evening when playing the piano. Drawing pain in sacrum. Rheumatic pains in lumbar region.

Clinical.—Sometimes useful in early stages of locomotor ataxia.

Extremities.—Swelling of hands and feet. Motions; < hands; peculiar, almost convulsive, in upper, while the lower were nearly paralyzed. Thrown to and fro; with screams and cries. Trembling; of hands and feet; of one; with shuddering; as in chill, yet heat of skin; < hands, with movements as if she were afraid of falling, body bent backward. Twitching; of tendons; every five minutes; of hands and feet; of hands, feet and legs, < l. fingers; of legs and < arms; alternating with opisthotonus, and during the coma T. of limbs still alternated with spasmodic motions of hands and arms. Convulsions; alternating with stiffness, the C. sometimes caused by external impressions, such as touching skin.

Aching. Sensation as if joints were separated; in hands and legs; as if arms and legs were separated from the body. Tingling. Weakness. Little control over. Immobility; a kind of catalepsy. Falling asleep. Numbness of hands and feet. Paralysis.

Upper Extremities.—Arm. Trembling when eating; choreic T. Jerking; of muscles, then darting pain through forehead. Pain in l.; twinging, near external condyle of humerus; drawing, above r. elbow. Jerking twinging pain in muscles and tendons of back side of l. forearm, extending to index. Sticking in forearm, with rheumatic constrictive pain in deltoid.

Hand.—Trembling when eating; when he seizes anything. Motions of H. and arms as if spinning and weaving; M. as in chorea, with twitching of fingers; violent M. and subsultus tendinum. Grasped a glass convulsively after drinking though she wished to set it down. Tingling in back of l. Could not be closed to make a fist. Finger-nails purple, limbs cold.

Lower Extremities.—Redness and heat, R. < anterior part of thighs. Walking difficult; impossible. Bending when walking. Stumbles against a door whenever he goes through it. Swaying to either side or forward in evening when walking. Staggering; and falling to the right; after sunset, next day at 1 p.m. walked somewhat in a circle to the left; tendency to S. backward at 9.45 p.m.; and convulsive gait; with convulsive starting of lower limbs and backward flexure of spine; yet the limbs obey the will so readily that he feels as if he had none, they feel longer than they are, so that he thinks he has touched the floor when the foot is a span away, hence he always put the foot down too quickly. Convulsion of l., beginning with shocks, drawing the limb inward and upward. Weakness. Rigidity, so that on attempting to stand he fell over; spasmodic R. Paralysis; with coldness and with agitation of the rest of the body.

Thigh.—Paroxysmal jerking and drawing upward and inward of anterior muscles. Sudden shooting in outer part of r. in afternoon when walking, it felt numb on rubbing it. Drawing pain. Pain in muscles on outer side of r. hip-joint on walking.

Knees gave way and feet staggered. When placed on his legs he would kick them outward but could not stand, and they did not remain quiet a moment. Sticking on r. tibia. Pain in r. leg, < patella. Heaviness of legs when walking. Numbness of l. leg, with stiffness and with tickling creeping under cutis, > rubbing and stretching. Paralysis of legs. Rheumatic drawing in l. ankle in evening. Sudden sharp pain in r. heel. Feet and legs swollen, hard, skin tight. Feet weak. He cannot stand on his feet.

Skin.—Redness; first on upper part of body; of an old cicatrix on forehead; in patches of irregular shape on face; < face and trunk, with roughness; with heat and moisture; scarlatinous (Bell.); scarlet spots; erysipelalous, of face and upper part of body. > venesection; crimson; or crimson, > pressure, but returning rapidly. Copper color on l. knee; down to knees; on face and chest, and mottled; suddenly. When the copper-colored eruptions began to decline the alæ nasi and space around mouth and a spot on each temple were white. Of leaden hue, cold and clammy. Pale and cold.

Red rash; as in scarlet fever, but more shining; as in scarlatina simplex; : pressure, but returning immediately, on hands, arms, face, neck and back; as in scarlet fever, on face, neck and back. Scarlet efflorescence, brighter than in scarlatina; S. efflorescence, elevated and rough, with heat of skin. Itching eruption; with swelling and inflammation; E. resembling rubecula but more prominent, covering body. (Spots like flea-bites on arms.) Small, brilliant petechiæ, many stellated, covering face, neck and breast. Pimples covering body, with fever; P. like blotches on several parts of body and in palms, with stinging itching, < rubbing; on r. side of nose, painful to touch and occasional stinging in it, next day full of pus. Inflamed, painful pustules exuding acid water, on l. thigh. Boil in groin. Vesications after the violent symptoms had subsided; painful V., oozing hot, acid fluid, near l. calf and spreading over whole leg.

Formication in abdomen; in limbs; from l. side into thigh. Itching, < face.

Clinical.—Erysipelas of the head and face. Occasionally called for during the cure of abscesses, especially of l. hip; in this disease there may be most violent pain, which we do not often find in the Stram. patient. Scarlet fever, quite frequently indicated before the eruption appears, sometimes afterwards, particularly in the malignant type. Suppressed eruptions, with delirium, etc.

Sleep.—Sleepiness; in evening; at 9.30 p.m.; on waking; after the excitement, with depression of pulse and prostration; then coma; but she woke as soon as she fell asleep and began to prattle and laugh in a senseless manner. Narcotism, then wakefulness for twenty-four hours. Slumber, with rattling breathing, bloody foam at mouth, dark-brown face and death. Sleeps in the daytime and wakes with a pompous look. Falls asleep frequently, and on waking assumes a comically majestic appearance. Sleeps twenty-four hours. Wakes late. Deep sleep, with snoring; D. sleep, with difficult, deep breathing and snorting; with various dreams and apparitions; full of dreams, with an emission, then dizziness and vision as through a gauze.

Stupefied half slumber. Sleeplessness all night, with tossing about and screams; S., with walking about the room and hallucinations. Frequent waking; with sickness and vomiting. Restless sleep. Starting up in sleep; with rising up in bed, looking around vacantly and talking incoherently; waking with a start, as if dreaming. When slumbering he hears two persons talk, but does not know who they are. Dreams of different kinds; agreeable; wonderful; frightful; vivid, about things that have happened; wandering, indistinct; amorous.

Fever.—Coldness; from 6 till 7 P.M.; with cold sweat; with heat in head, during the hot stage cold feet, during the sweat cannot bear to be uncovered; then heat in face; sudden; shuddering, whenever he takes a dose; shaking, through whole body, with single jerks, partly of whole body, partly of single limbs, of elbows and knees; shivering, with uneasiness about throat; S., on chin. Coldness and pallor, except of head and face, which were red and hot. Cold face. Cold limbs; at night, with shuddering; and trunk; C. and heat alternately in limbs, which trembled; hands and feet, often bluish, also face; lower limbs; feet in morning, they are sensitive to least cold draught. Cold skin; with moisture; with clammy sweat, hands and feet livid.

Fever; in afternoon; in evening when walking, with thirst and burning above knee; on least motion, with sweat; with sweat, without thirst; with quick, small pulse and red face; with redness of skin, itching eruption over face and trunk, but feet and legs were cool and pale; he covers himself carefully during the heat, if he merely puts a finger out from under the covers the pains are very violent; then coldness and shivering, hands constantly cold, general chill, trembling and feeling as if cold water were poured down her back; dry; remittent typhoid, with pains beginning in l. ear and ending in l. side of chest, the pains < dry cough. Heat of face. Heat of head; as if fire mounted to it, also affecting stomach; then general coldness, then general heat with anguish, sleep during the heat, thirst after waking, stinging in palate until he drinks. Heat rising from abdomen, with anxiety, causing redness of face. Burning on dorsum of foot. Hot skin; and dry, scarlet; on face and upper limbs; on trunk, with sweat; < face and upper limbs, with congestion.

Sweat; at night; cold, clammy; cold, on whole body (Verat. a.); on head; on head all day; on forehead while rest of body was red, dry and hot; on face; on back; on limbs; on lower part of paralyzed lower limb; cold, on paralyzed limbs. Dryness of whole body.

Strophanthus Hispidus.

A tincture is made of the seeds of this plant, which belongs to that great order of cardiac poisons, namely, the Apocynaceae. It acts directly upon the cardiac muscle. Compare Apocynum can., and allies.

From a toxic dose, the heart, together with other muscles of the body, passes at the first onset from contraction to cadaveric rigidity, and its muscular fibre assumes an acid reaction. The action upon the heart is accompanied by an increase of blood-pressure, and in certain conditions by increase of urine and by lowering of the temperature. Face flushed, lips scarlet, eyes brilliant, temperature high, skin dry, pupils dilating and contracting alternately every few seconds, pulse 140, arteries distended, l. ventricle contracting with unusual vigor, aortic valves closing with a loud and distinct "tup," a slight mitral regurgitant murmur, loquacity, no micturition for ten hours. Purging and vomiting.

Clinical.—It has been found valuable for weak heart, the pulse becomes slower, stronger and more regular; it acts well in chronic nephritis, it increases the flow of urine and diminishes the dropsy, it, however, does not seem to act well when there is much œdema of the lungs. It acts best in functional disturbance of the heart, from alcohol, tobacco, tea.

Sulfur.

Pure sublimed Sulphur is triturated for use (a tincture, saturated solution with alcohol, represents the first centesimal dilution).

General Action.—A tissue remedy of widest range. Since Sulphur is an integral part of every form of protoplasm, it follows that all tissues become affected by its abnormal exhibition, and no particular limit or character can be assigned to it. Its action on the dermoid tissues is, however, very pronounced.

Allies.—Lyc., Puls., Phos., Rhus t., Calc. c., Nat. m., Sep., Aloe, Hep. s.

Generalities.—Emaciation (Iod., Nat. m.). Blood darker in color and richer in white corpuscles; the venous blood seemed partly melanotic, changed less in the air and in part did not become red, the arterial blood was redder and turbid, dependent on the dissolved coloring matter of the blood, the blood took up less oxygen and gave out less carbonic acid than before the use of the Sulphur, coagulum formed slowly, clot three per cent. larger than before; from large doses death of so many corpuscles that they cannot be eliminated, but if continued smaller doses are taken the blood is freed from blood-corpuscles which are dissolved; solid constituents of both serum and albumen diminished; solid constituents and blood-corpuscles diminished, it gave out more carbonic acid and took up more oxygen; diminution of solid constituents, of serum, albumen, fat, fibrin, blood-corpuscles and clot, in only two observations was there increase of fibrin, in a third increase of fat and clot, in a fourth of serum and albumen, in a fifth of serum and clot, in general every secretion and excretion is increased (Phos.; Calc. c.).

Stretching at night. Trembling; when walking after smoking a cigar, with weakness; in evening, with anxious sweat, then vomiting, with anxious urging to stool, then heaviness of head and weakness of arms; of l. scapula, arm and hand in forenoon. Starting in forenoon when awake, with shivering through whole body. Jerking here and there; J. in whole body after supper, with pain in back and r. side of abdomen; of muscles of face and limbs in morning, becoming a general convulsion, then consciousness returned slowly, as soon as reaction was established after a chill the spasm returned in a tonic form, first in r. side, then in front of body, then in back, finally jaws were set, muscles relaxed and the child died instantly.

Hysterical paroxysm, with choreic jerkings. Conclusions; tossing the body up high. Epileptic paroxysm after starting up or after running violently; E. paroxysm starting from back or arm, as a running like a mouse, drawing the mouth to right or left and moving about painfully in abdomen, then twisting l. arm, with retracted thumb, then trembling of r. arm, then the whole body was shaken up and down, with shortness of breath, which after the paroxysm was shorter, screaming during the paroxysm, but inability to speak.

Sticking, < morning and late in evening, > motion and sometimes pressure. Sudden tearing here and there, with jerking; frequent sudden T. in evening, in l. cheek, r. cervical muscles and r. tibia; intermittent sticking T., at one time through various parts of head, at another pain through bones of cheeks, in region of ear, lower jaw and other parts of face. Pinching here and there in muscles. Tearing scraping in middle of r. thigh and on vertex and in r. ulna and radius. Pains throughout body; in root of nose, between shoulders and all over back; occasional flying, in phalanges of fingers and in other parts of body. Pinching here and there in muscles. Bruised feeling in morning after rising; in morning after waking, < arms.

Drawing pain in lower incisors, thighs, l. fingers and below r. scapula; in abdomen and all limbs, lasting for hours in arms, for days in thighs; in upper jaw and limbs, alternately r. and l.; alternately in r. wrist and in forehead; in one part, then in another, < r. wrist and thumb, with weakness, the pain < motion; in forenoon, now in r. hip, now in l. forehead, now in l. occiput; at 8 A.M. in l. side of jaws, then in r. thigh, r. metacarpus and r. fingers, next evening alternately in r. and l. thigh, third afternoon in middle of l. thigh, then in r. forearm and r. thumb, then in l. zygoma towards l. parietal bone, then in r. molars and r. middle finger, fourth forenoon in l. great toe, then in r. upper molars and metacarpal bone of r. thumb, then in middle of internal aspect of l. thigh, then in first phalanx of r. index; in afternoon during rest, now in head of fibula, now in l. side of forehead, now in l. elbow, now in r. great toe. Sudden drawing in r. thumb and index, r. forearm and in top of l. ear towards occiput.

Contractive pains, < muscles of thighs, impeding walking, afterwards the pains were in the bones, < femora and r. tibia, head of r. tibia painful and intolerant of touch. Inclined to take cold. Sensitive to open air (Hep. s.). Feeling of illness; in morning. Discomfort; at noon; in evening; as if whole body were dislocated. Full feeling in body. Tightness in whole body in afternoon and evening, < about chest, as if externally, with anxiety, after lying down sweat and then relief. Tremulous sensation in morning; sensation as if everything on him trembled and throbbed at night when half awake. Throbbing in temples, on neck and about heart. Nervous feeling. Uneasiness (Rhus t., Puls.); the day before menses, with apprehension; in morning; at noon, with excitation of nervous system; in evening; in bed; with orgasm of blood; with pain in forehead and heat; in blood, with swollen veins on hands.

Weakness; all day; in morning; in morning, with swollen eyes and inclination to stretch (Rhus t.); in morning, with bruised feeling in limbs; on waking at 4 A.M., with tensive pain in l. loin; at noon; towards noon when walking; in afternoon; in afternoon, < sitting, with tensive headache and cramplike pressure in hollows of knees extending to malleoli; at 2 P.M., sleep disturbed by confused dreams; every day from 2 till 3 P.M., with sleepiness; in evening; in evening, with yawning; after waking; on waking from a dreamful sleep; after dinner; after dinner, > walking in open air, with fullness; after eating; after stool; from a short walk; when walking after dinner, with aching in stomach; when walking in open air, with eructations and nausea; when walking in open air, with paroxysms of dim vision, pressure and beating in head and nausea; after walking, with nausea and trembling of limbs; from riding in a carriage, afterwards he slept all day; from exercise during menses, with irritability; from slight movement, with loss of breath, constant distention of abdomen and frequent swelling of feet; > walking (Rhus t.); > walking in open air (Puls.); with aversion to everything, even to talking; with trembling of hands and feet; at night, as if he had ridden or swum far; on lying down, making him faint; faint-like, on appearance of menses, with vomiting of blood and black tasteless liquid.

Walking was irksome, heaviness of feet, with tension across chest. Faintness; in afternoon, with vertigo, vomiting and sweat; like a weakness of limbs. Weight in bones of arm and chest in forenoon. Want of life, like an internal coldness, heat alternating with chilliness, pale look, with blue rings around eyes, dread of heat in the cold and dread of cold in the heat. Falling asleep of arms, cervical muscles, scalp, nates and feet, < lying. Symptoms occur mostly during rest, > moving the affected part or walking (Rhus t., Puls.); S. occur when walking in open air, especially in head and stomach. Aggravation in l. half of body; A. from beer; when standing; of pains by cold, amelioration from external warmth. Amelioration after hard stool; after emission of flatus smelling of rotten eggs.

Clinical.—It is very frequently valuable in acute diseases when the carefully selected remedy fails to act on account, probably, of constitutional disease; a few doses of Sulphur will temporarily modify the condition so that the indicated remedy can antidote the acute trouble. Chorea. Neuralgia of various sorts, sometimes periodic. Chlorosis. Marasmus. General effects of the suppression of eruptions. Various forms of scrofulous diseases. It is peculiarly indicated for people who have very red lips and redness of the other orifices of the body, often with soreness and burning. It is particularly suited to people with light complexions. Frequently indicated for diseases which alternate with some phase of skin trouble, especially when there is a general disagreeable odor of the exhalations of the body, general aggravation from bathing and aversion to it. Suitable for people who have harsh, rough skins, whose hair is coarse, but who are weak and liable to eruptions. Lithemia, some of its various aspects, indicated by its numerous characteristic symptoms.

Mind.—Delirium, she destroys her things, throws them away, thinking that she has a superfluity of everything, and she wastes to a skeleton. Fancies that she has beautiful clothes, old rags look like fine things. Imagines that she has given injurious things to people from which they are going to die. Fancies that she is becoming emaciated. She talks nonsense. Excitement at night on going to bed; on violent motion, with passion; after tea; indolent, almost as after coffee. Earnest exaltation in forenoon. Agitation, with sore throat. Cheerful; in morning on rising, and clear, decided, but the confusion returns at 9 o'clock and is aggravated by earnest thought.

Ill humor (Calc. c., Lye., Ph. ac.); in morning after rising; in morning, with restlessness; < morning and evening, with lachrymose mood (Lyc., Nat. m.); at herself; and no desire to talk; and absorbed in himself; and faultfinding; with confusion of head as in outbreak of coryza; with dulness in head and bitter taste; and impetuosity; he answers no one and will tolerate no one about him, he cannot obtain quickly enough what he desires; and melancholy, discontentment with himself and all about him, which unfitted him for serious occupation, cheerfulness returned for a short time on satisfying his appetite, but in the evening he was absorbed in himself, could not command his thoughts to read and stared at the same page upward of two hours.

Out of sorts with everything in evening (Lyc., Puls.), for work, pleasure, talking or movement, uncomfortable and does not know what is the matter. Quarrelsome (Nux v.). Impatience; before urinating. Embittered mood, as if he had been insulted. Violence in a child. Vexatious and morbid ideas of the past associate themselves with indifferent things, with courage. Morbid ideas causing rancor (but also joyous thoughts and melodies) mostly from the past, < evening in bed, when they prevent sleep, with neglect of business. Obstinacy.

Anxiety; in evening; in evening in bed, at the full moon; in evening, preventing sleep (Lyc., Puls.); at night on waking, with heat and cramplike sensation; > drinking a few glasses of cold water; with heat of head and coldness of feet, he forgets what he wishes to do; with involuntary thin stool; (with feverish delirium, dyspnoea, burning in stomach, vomiting, twitching of whole body and death); as if he would die; about my health.

Pleasure in nothing. Low spirits; during the day, becomes lachrymose if one attempts to console her; in afternoon in open air; about her illness; and sighing, so that he could not speak a loud word; in attacks during the day, with desire to die; sudden, in evening, with disinclination to everything; sudden when walking in open air, which made her anxious, suspicious, peevish and lachrymose; alternating with cheerfulness. Despondency; and indifference. Complaining, moaning, wringing of hands, thirst and little appetite, though she swallows her food hastily. Discouraged; and weary of life.

Weeping mood; during the nightly cough, with restlessness; during the morning stool, with obstinacy; alternating with laughing. Disinclination to talk. Starting up even when his name is called. Fright on waking, with distress and horror of instant death. Fear that he would take cold in the open air. Timid. Haste when taking anything and when walking; H. during the day, with uneasiness and inability to steady himself. Inclined to philosophical and religious reveries. Aversion to business. Indolent; mornings, with pain in back and lower limbs, forcing her to sit down often; and irresolute; and immovable, without definite thought.

Distraction of mind; and awkwardness at his work. Forgetful; of proper names; in respect to well-known localities. Stupid; and soon fell asleep. Weak-minded and could not connect two thoughts. Mistakes as to time, thinks that it is earlier than it is. Thoughts of the business that had been accomplished thronged upon him in the evening. Words and sentences that he hears revolve involuntarily in his mind. Feels great need of rest of mind and is in constant motion.

Clinical.—The well-known disposition of the Sulphur patient is irritability, sometimes alternating with mental indolence. Melancholia, with sadness, absentmindedness, sometimes a sense of disgrace. Melancholia after labor. Religious melancholia, particularly associated with abdominal plethora.

Head.—Hung sideways after waking (in a child) and after raising it it fell to the other side, lips and face pale, eyes staring, then it sneezed and eyes were closed tightly for a moment and mucus ran from mouth, then quiet sleep. Moved constantly in bed, because every place seemed too hard. Sticking; and out at eyes; sometimes at night, with tearing in lower jaw or followed by bruised pain in side of head, sometimes > compression of head, at times forcing him to lie down. Thrust when coughing. Tearing more in afternoon than in forenoon, > laying it on the table, with weakness and thirstless heat; T. < sides and forehead; > moving head, pressure or free air, with drawing and sticking and ulcerating pain; extending into ear; as with a saw; as if skull would be torn open, at night.

Aching; in morning after rising; in morning on waking, < externally on vertex; morning, noon and evening on going to bed, with shivering and pain in limbs; in forenoon; every other day from 8 or 9 A.M. till going to sleep; at 10 A.M.; from 11 A.M. till noon, returning in evening over r. eye; about noon, with heat in it; in afternoon when walking, with weariness, changing in evening to toothache and sleepiness; towards evening; towards evening, with shooting in throat; in evening and till late at night; in evening, with coryza; in evening, with attacks of oppression; at night, disturbing sleep; at every step; on ascending steps; on moving head, with beating of brain against skull; on coughing and in abdomen; in middle, caused by coughing and sneezing; on pressure, for example, by a tight hat; after eating, with pressure in eyes; in the house, > uncovering head, with tightness of scalp; < stooping; < open air, > in the house; > shutting eyes and sitting still, with vertigo, afterwards > open air, in the afternoon the vertigo was worse, with nausea, twisting and turning in stomach, yawning, prostration, trembling in limbs and occasionally noises in head and ears, the vertigo > sitting still, < stooping or moving about; with nausea; with sensation as if head and ears were stuffed.

Jerking pain. Tensive pain. Hammering pain; on vivacious talking; after midnight, with pressure in stomach; as if brain beat against skull on nodding. Pain in morning, < vertex, as if eyes would be pressed down. Pain as from a cord around head, and as from a weight on top of brain; P. as if head were drawn forward and downward, < forenoon; as if screwed together in evening, with flying heat in face; as if beaten and torn on coughing; as if raw, with intolerance of touch; stupefying; so that eyes seem to close; as from incarceration of flatus. Compression in morning; as from a band at base of brain at 10 A.M., < towards 5 P.M.

Disturbance so that she thought she had lost her reason. Throbbing in morning; in all arteries at 2 A.M. Fulness, as if filled with blood (see Acon.); F. in afternoon, with heat. Seems distended, with loud noises in ears. Heaviness; when sitting, lying, moving and stooping; < motion; as if he would fall forward, with dulness, both > walking, but then sticking in head. Occasional creeping, < parietal and occipital regions. Sudden paroxysm when walking across the street, blackness before eyes, she walked backward and sat down suddenly and was carried to the house unconscious, then stiffness of joints. Empty feeling in morning. Stupefaction. Stupefied weakness when walking in open air, with gloomy ideas.

Confusion; in morning; in morning, and pressure in forehead till noon; in morning as soon as he rose, also lasting till noon; in morning on waking unusually early; in morning, > rising; in morning on waking, > discharge of flatus and going into open air; in forenoon; till noon; with pain in forehead as from alcoholic drink; at noon; in afternoon; in afternoon after sleep, > walking in open air; in afternoon, with roaring extending outward at l. ear and drawing pain on l. side of forehead, which soon alternated with cramplike pain in l. knee or l. wrist, or with shooting in root of r. great toe-nail when walking and frequent cramplike pain in l. calf; at 5 P.M.; at 5 P.M., < walking in open air, > sweat; at 5 P.M., with digging in l. side of forehead; at 7 P.M. in open air; in evening; in evening, with pressing in forehead; in evening, with waving; at night in bed, with heat and rush of blood; at night on waking; after walking in open air; on waking, with weight; after dinner, > walking in open air; during dinner, lasting till evening, with weakness; with aching in vertex; with pain in l. side; as from rush of blood, < ascending steps; as from insufficient sleep; intermittent; vacant, in morning on waking; like commencing vertigo, towards evening; amounting to stupefaction about 4 or 5 P.M., when walking in open air. Giddy confusion (Gels.); in morning on waking; about 11 A.M., with dim vision; at 2 P.M., with heat and redness of face and throbbing in arteries of head and neck, then sweat on face.

Rush of blood; during menses; during soft stool; when in bed, and he felt the beating in all arteries of head; after riding in a wagon; from gentle exercise, with burning and creeping in skin of face; and a pressure in it and out at eyes, and numbness before ears. Intoxicated in afternoon after a glass of wine.

Vertigo (Acon., Gels., Lyc., Puls.); in morning; in morning, with nosebleed; in morning soon after rising, till 5 P.M.; in morning on rising, with weakness (Bry., Lyc., Puls.); in morning, he falls back on the bed as soon as he attempts to stand; in forenoon; at 9 A.M.; at 11 A.M., with stupefaction and weakness, necessity to lie down till 3 A.M., in an uneasy slumber in which she heard everything; at noon when sitting; in afternoon; in evening when standing, with rush of blood to heart; at night on waking; at night when lying on back; at night during sweat, with nausea; on stooping; when walking; on walking in open air (Calc., Lyc.) after supper, she dared not stoop nor look down; when walking on an elevation in the open air, with inability to step firmly and obscuration of senses; on rising from stooping, with weight in head; when sitting, and reeling when standing; with sticking in head; with nausea; with sensation of a fog in head, making him sad, indefinite ideas, with irresolution; then shooting in anus; to falling forward on suddenly rising from a seat; even to falling down, when walking over running water, and all parts seem paralyzed; to falling sideways; to falling sideways when walking in open air, with nausea; sudden, during the day, < walking near a declivity; < the accustomed beer at night; in attacks when walking, with apprehension on looking in front of her and crawling ("Kriebelig"); preventing clear thought; as if he would faint in evening in bed; like obscuration before eyes, when walking, with reeling to the left; like a tingling and buzzing out at forehead, if she walks rapidly or moves her head suddenly.

Forehead.—Contraction. Stitches; and above it; in bone; above l. eye; in evening; when walking; in r. half, extending into orbit; in l. side at night before falling asleep, stretching to occiput, > pressure; extending outward every day from 11 A.M. till evening; extending outward all day on every step, and on loud talking and coughing necessity to wrinkle the forehead; extending outward so that she must hold it when coughing, and also on loud talking, < evening; flying, in l. supraorbital ridge in afternoon; digging, in a spot deep in r. side at night in bed. Tearing; in afternoon, extending into temple, with pain. Boring above root of nose; over l. eye. Digging at night. Pain; in bone; above brows; in r. side; during the day; in morning; in morning on waking and in occiput; in l. side in morning; in l. side in morning after waking, till noon; in l. side in morning, > rising; in bone in morning after waking, with boring in r. supraorbital ridge; at 6 A.M., > rising and washing; on both sides of sagittal suture at 8 A.M.; deep in l. side after 11 A.M., sometimes increasing to drawing throbbing pain; in sinciput in forenoon, with confusion; till noon, < above r. eye; on l. side till noon; about noon, < stooping, and in occiput; above l. eye in afternoon; in l. side of cerebrum in afternoon when driving; in bones towards evening; in evening; in l. side in evening; in bones in evening, and in pit of stomach; at 5 P.M. on waking, > evening after sneezing, the pain recurred next day at 3 P.M., the following day at 8 P.M., with flying shoots in l. orbit; in l. protuberance on waking before midnight; in l. side at night on waking; in bone at night after waking, with boring; during fever, > sweat, with restlessness; during menses, < afternoon; in l. side on ascending stairs; at every step, with sweat on forehead; after dinner, and in stomach; < motion; < forenoon; above eyes, with nausea after eating, then heaviness of head; extending across nasal and malar-bones; on l., then r. side, extending to mastoid process, in morning; sudden, in l. side; sudden, about r. supraorbital arch in forenoon; alternating with pains in joints, in afternoon; now deep in F., then in occiput, alternating with gonty pains through joints of limbs; now in F., now in occiput, in forenoon during rest, alternating with gonty pains in joints; in sinciput as from a band around forehead, with confusion; as from a board; as if screwed together, and over it; over eyes, as from stopped coryza every morning, with sneezing; jerking, above r. eye; stupefying, in afternoon; as after night-watching, changing after a few days to a glowing tearing in r. side of head and teeth, < cold water; contractive, in evening, and in temples. Drawing pain towards noon, which after a few minutes alternated with a similar pain in r. wrist; in l. side during rest, with a similar pain now in l. knee, now in l. outer malleolus, now in l. wrist; in r. side alternating with cramplike drawing pain in r. inner malleolus; sudden, frequent, alternately in r. and l. side and in r. parietal region; throbbing, deep in r. side. Sudden drawing above r. brow; frequent, deep in l. side; D. in F. and temples as if a worm were crawling through them. Tension. Pressure outward; in frontal and cheek-bones in morning on waking, with boring, and after midnight much pain. Weight on getting up, < open air and walking, afterwards pulsative pain. Vacancy in sinciput in evening. Confusion, and in temples. Sinciput confused; morning, noon and evening, and heavy; in morning after waking, with vacancy; in forenoon; in evening; in evening when lying; at night, with weight in it and frequent waking; on frequent waking from restless, dreamful sleep, with weight in it; and heavy; as if intoxicated, next day more on l. side.

Temples.—Jerking in r. near ear. Sticking; in r.; close to eyes on moving them or looking at anything; flying, in l. in afternoon. Tearing in l. in evening, with drawing; in l. T. and eye, with pressure; intermittent itching, in l. bone in afternoon when walking. Frequent pinching in brain from one T. to the other. Boring, and in ears. Pressure from one to the other in morning after rising. Aching in forenoon; at noon; in evening after reading; on reflection and mental work, with tension in brain; after dinner; periodical, then acute drawing pain; throbbing, in l. at 10 A.M., < walking, suddenly > 6 P.M.; throbbing, after walking, < ascending stairs; cramplike, in r. mastoid process; in morning. Cramplike tense pain below r. mastoid process; close to r. mastoid process in afternoon during rest, extending into deepest part of bone, then shooting in r. temple; frequently in muscles of mastoid processes during the day. Constriction mornings. Painful turning and crawling. Drawing, and in occiput; D. in l. at 10 A.M.; cramplike, below r. mastoid process. Tenderness.

Vertex.—Sticking. Tearing, > noon, returned in afternoon in open air, with burning as if raw; T. in evening as if hair would be torn out, it bristles on the most painful spots. Sensitiveness to touch; with boring beneath V.; in spots. Pain; in morning; in morning on waking; at noon, with burning; about noon; towards noon, < open air, increasing after dinner to heaviness, > evening; in spots in afternoon; in evening; at night, and in lower part of occiput, with pressure on eyes, which he must close, and with chilliness, not > covering, offensive sweat and necessity to walk up and down the room; superiorly on chewing, coughing and blowing nose; after dinner, > open air, with drawing in occiput, the pain in V. returned on entering the room, > sitting awhile; on r. side, with rigor; as from pressure on top of brain; throbbing, in morning; drawing burning, in bone from 1 till 2 A.M., < touch; feverish, several mornings and lasting twelve hours; like tingling, with pain beneath r. ribs from short cough. Intermittent pressure inward deep into brain, < late in evening and night in bed, obliging him to wrinkle the forehead and draw eyes together. Tingling superiorly. Heaviness. Confusion.

Sides.—Sticking in parietal and occipital bones when coughing; sudden, in r. half of head at night before sleep, with hot cheeks and ears. Thrusts in r. in evening when sitting. Pain in r. half of brain; in one side as if brain were torn or sore, on opening eyes after midday nap; sharp, beneath l. parietal bone after supper; screwing together, in l. Paroxysmal tension in l. parietal bone at 2 A.M., as if skin were too tight and covered with ulcers, with drawing pains in lower third of thigh.

Occiput.—Sticking in r. side, with burning; drawing S. in l. side after lying down. Aching in forenoon, with drawing pain; A. from noon on, a stupefying tingling in it on stepping; in evening; at night; at 2 A.M. on waking; < pressure; extending into nape in morning after rising, with heaviness; in l. side, as from congestion of blood, after waking; as from an ulcer on coughing; throbbing, in r. half, also at 5 A.M., with pain in l. loin, the former lasted half an hour, the latter > rising in bed; burning, beneath bone, > afternoon; intermittent burning, in a spot by nape, < scratching; tense, in l. side; drawing, in forenoon, extending to nape; drawing, when chewing. Drawing; and in nape. Weight in morning, with heat. Pulsation in l. side, changing to jerking.

Scalp.—Hair falls out (Lyc., Phos.); in morning on combing. Painful elevations on sinuciput and vertex, one between occiput and r. mastoid process particularly sensitive; E. on r. parietal region, sensitive to touch; painless E. on vertex. Pimples; on vertex; itching; inflamed; inflamed, on occiput. Painful pimples; on vertex; on middle of vertex; over r. parietal bone; on occiput; on vertex, then tender elevations in the same place. Pustules near nape; grainlike, on vertex, drying into honey-like scabs. Tender scabby elevations on vertex. Scabs; near nape; painful, on l. parietal bone. Scales; white, difficult to get away. Movements from nape over vertex to forehead. Tearing and drawing. Feeling in vertex during the day as if pulled by the hair though he had been bald there a long time. Aching above forehead in morning on waking, > forenoon; extending from vertex to forehead; on a spot on r. temple covered with a scab; on l. side as if suppurating, on touch. Sensitiveness; on scratching; on vertex. Throbbing. Creeping and tension; C. in temples. Itching; on occiput; near nape; in morning; on occiput in morning; on occiput and nape in morning after rising; with impatience.

Clinical.—Neuralgic headaches, with sense of congestion or tightness, < warmth. Congestive headaches, with heaviness; there are apt to be heavy pressure and heat on the vertex, associated with abdominal symptoms. Pulsating headache, < stooping and moving (Bry.). Tendency to hydrocephalus in children, with stupor, suppressed urine and diarrhoea. In hydrocephalus it is to be compared with Apis, especially in the retrocession of eruptions. Tubercular hydrocephalus. Meningitis, secondary stage. The fontanelles close very late in sickly, scrofulous children. Eruptions on the head, usually dry, bleeding easily, burning and sore, sometimes cracking; general relief from scratching. Falling of the hair, with great dryness and soreness of the scalp, excessive itching in the evening when warm in bed.

Eyes.—Redness; during the day, itching in evening; of white; with swelling and with pimples on lids. Surrounded by blue rings; and sunken. Purulent mucus. Matter in morning. White vesicle on the white, close to cornea. Trembling. Sticking in r.; burning, as from sand beneath l. lids (Nat. m.). Cutting in r.; jerking, in r. spreading to temple, renewed by touching r. side of tip of nose. Pain in l. as if rubbed against spiculae of glass and drawn in towards pupil, necessity to close eye, then burning in eye and lachrymation. Sensation of a foreign body in l. in forenoon; in r. in afternoon; in r. in evening. Feeling of sand in morning on waking, with raw pain on rubbing them; in r. at 3 P.M.

Sensitiveness. Sensation as before inflammation. Biting; evenings, with lachrymation. Smarting, with feeling as if they watered; S. in evening, the candle-light seemed to be a red ring, wherewith he could not see. Heaviness. Sensation of fullness of blood. Dryness (Lyc., Nat. m.); at 2 A.M. Itching; of l. in morning, < rubbing, and extending over face; of l. at noon, with lachrymation.

Burning; and easy fatigue when reading (Nat. m.); towards outer canthus; in morning (Zinc.); in morning after rising; in morning, with adhesion; in morning, > latter part of the day, with photophobia, but in evening he could not read long by lamplight without fatigue and lachrymation; after breakfast; in forenoon; in forenoon, with itching, then lachrymation; in l. in forenoon, with lachrymation; towards noon, < edges of lids; at noon; in evening; in l. in evening, then lachrymation; after getting up, < external canthus; intermittent, in r.

Lachrymation in morning (Puls.), with burning; in morning, then dryness; in open air; from the least light; acrid; feeling fatty. Pupils contracted; dilated from 3 till 4 P.M.; l. distorted. Shooting through middle of l. pupil deep into eye when reading.

Ball.—Jerking tearing in l. after dinner. Aching in evening, with weight and loss of vision; A. in l. in afternoon; on moving them; on walking in open air; and in brows. Dryness and sensation as if they rubbed against lids.

Lids.—Redness, and of conjunctiva; of palpebral conjunctiva, with a red, itching and burning spot on skin near l. outer canthus. Inflammation of lower. Swelling; with pain and lachrymation; of upper, with redness and burning pain; of upper, with dry matter in lashes. Pimple on upper. Stye on upper by inner canthus. Much mucus from Meibomian glands. Gum in lashes; in morning. Agglutination mornings (Puls., Rhus t.). Jerking; of lower; of l. lower; in evening; < afternoon; burning, in r. Frequent closure in morning after rising. Sticking in upper in evening; burning, as from sparks in l. upper. Prickling. Sudden tearing in l. upper in evening. Cutting-burning pain in borders after dinner, < external canthi. Smarting sore pain on inner side after midnight, then rubbing dryness on inner surfaces. Smarting as from dryness of margins; S. in evening and inclination to rub them, eyes can hardly bear the light. Aching; in upper; in evening. Edges sensitive in morning. Dryness of inner surface; rubbing, in borders of r. in morning after waking; rubbing like sand, in mucous surface in bed. Itching; on edges; edges of r.; during the day, with prickling and smarting; in morning, with smarting; after dinner, < r.; in afternoon, forcing him to rest them every moment, eyes can scarcely endure the light in the evening; of r., as if they would become inflamed. Burning externally; B. of edges; in upper; in morning, with redness, swelling and itching; in edges in morning; in morning after rising, < r.; in forenoon; in edges in forenoon; in edges in afternoon, with itching and redness, and the same on outside of nose; in afternoon, with lachrymation; with inflammation, redness and tension on motion; as from sparks in r. upper in evening; as from sparks, and they are drawn together. Heaviness in evening.

Canthi.—Redness of outer. Adhesion of external; A. in morning; with redness, inflammation and exudation. Pain in outer. Tickling in l. outer in afternoon after a glass of wine, increased to itching and preventing work in evening and felt in night on waking, next day T. at 4 P.M., then itching, extending in evening by candle-light to inner canthus and changing into shooting, preventing sleep till midnight, > cold compresses, the second morning afterwards the affected lid covered with a dry cake of mucus, upper lid felt stiff on first opening, on going out lachrymation. Itching in l. outer after walking in open air; I. in r., with shooting; in inner, with biting; in l. external in evening by candle-light and I. of upper lid, the I. increased in evening to burning, lids winked and light hurt the eyes, next morning lids stiff, lids and caruncula bright red, during the day I. on borders, in evening at sight of the candles photophobia and burning of edges of l. lids, lachrymation on reading or writing, with increase of pain, next day vision obscured by mucus, afterwards slighter blepharoblennorrhœa of r. eye. Itching biting in outer. Burning; in outer; towards noon; in outer in evening, with sensation of a foreign body between edges of lids towards outer canthi; in outer in evening, with sticking and dim vision; in outer after rising; in r. external, with sensation of a grain of sand in it; with itching and smarting.

Orbit.—Shooting in upper border of l. before going to sleep. Pain; drawing; cramplike, deep in r., extending into frontal sinus, then alternating with a similar pain in l.

Brow.—Tearing in l. in afternoon. Drawing pain in region of l. at night, with aching in l. ball as if they were swollen and pushed out. Drawing in l. in evening. Burning pain above and beneath it in afternoon.

Vision.—Dim; in forenoon; in forenoon, sometimes double, sight lost when sewing; in evening by candle-light, objects seemed enveloped in smoke; when reading; with weakness of eyes and confused dark spots floating before eyes. Objects seen more distant than they are. Intolerance of sunlight. Photophobia. Flickering; after breakfast, with a luminous appearance. Of dark specks (Phos.). Of black flies floating not far from eyes. Dazzled by looking long at an object. Of a white spot. Of lightnings at night on going to sleep. Illusions as if her skin were yellow. Blinded in morning.

Clinical.—Blepharitis, with itching and burning. Eczema of the lids. Styes and tarsal tumors. Ulcerations of the lids, which are very red and burning. Conjunctivitis, from foreign bodies, after Aconite. Catarrhal conjunctivitis. Trachoma, acute and chronic, with sharp pains like splinters. Pustular inflammation of conjunctiva and cornea, always with great photophobia, sharp pain, etc., < bathing; ulcers, abscesses. Keratitis, parenchymatosa. Kerato-iritis. Iritis, sometimes suppurative, often in rheumatics. Retinitis. Opacities of the vitreous. Asthenopia. In all the eye troubles of Sulphur there are photophobia, nightly aggravation, sharp, stinging pains, like splinters of glass, and great dread of having any water touch the eye and face. Cataract.

Ear.—Copious wax; < l.; and viscid, fluid. Sticking in l.; behind l. in evening; in r. concha after dinner; through r. external meatus towards evening in open air; as far as pharynx. Tearing in l., extending into head. Boring. < r., and in temples; in meatus. Gnawing in bones in front of l., also on swallowing; G. in l. external meatus, with crawling. Aching in l.; in l. about noon; in r. external meatus towards tympanum in afternoon and evening; on swallowing and sneezing; on cleaning; as if ulcerated, on swallowing; sore, in a spot in l. auricle; squeezing, close to meatus, in l., then in r. auricle. Sensitiveness in cavity of r. tympanum. Drawing in bones in front of l.; on swallowing; D. behind ear; in r. after lying down; in l., with eructations.

Sensation as if air were forced into them on blowing nose. Something seems to come before l., so that though he hears everything he cannot understand the human voice. Stopped sensation; on blowing nose. Tingling and pulsation; T. and deafness; at times in one, at times in the other, with difficult hearing. Tickling. Itching in l.; in l. external meatus, with sweat in it; then burning. Asleep sensation in outer.

Roaring; in evening in bed, with rush of blood to head; ringing, in head coming out at ears. Ringing; in morning in bed; during dinner, with deafness; when sitting; < lying down, with roaring as from wind; in evening humming or roaring in head. Cracking on chewing, and in joint of jaw; C. as if a string broke in them; like the bursting of bubbles. Noises; in r.; loud, with distention of head; like boiling water, with frequent painful drawing in r. ear. Fluttering; before l. at 5 P.M. Intolerance of noise. Hearing hypersensitive; to the crack of a whip, with swishing in ears; in one who hears with difficulty, so that playing the piano causes nausea. Difficult hearing in l. ear after dinner. Deafness.

Clinical.—Deafness, with a variety of inflammations in external and middle ear, and perhaps also in the internal ear.

Nose.—Inflammation; of wings, with swelling. Swelling; with pain and internal ulceration; of tip, with shining redness, whereby anterior angle of l. nostril felt thick, hard and painful to touch, afterwards on inside the swollen part a hard, transparent, bright yellow mass, detached with difficulty and pain. Redness of tip in evening, with itching and tickling; R. of r. nostril, with sensitiveness to touch, next day r. wing inflamed and painful to touch, < septum, afterwards branlike scales.

A kind of cramp. Tearing after dinner, transiently > pressure. Cutting in evening, with thin discharge. Smarting in forenoon, and in l. lid. Aching; at root; in bones; in a spot on l. nostril; in root during the day; in bones during the day; during the day, with fullness as if one of the bones were thickened and loose; during breakfast, extending into frontal sinus; in bones in forenoon; in nostrils towards noon; at noon; in root at noon; in bones towards noon and after dinner; in r. bones in evening; in root in evening; in tip on touch; on touch, < its l. outer edge, next morning tense sore pain in nose, < tip, feeling as if nose were swollen, inside covered with scabs; intermittent; intermittent, in bones; raw, on edge of r. nostril. Soreness; of mucous membrane; in a spot in l. nostril; in morning after rising, pain severe at noon and acrid flow from r. nostril; in evening, < septum, < touch; of mucous membrane on smoking.

Feeling during dinner and all the afternoon as if mucous membrane detached itself from the bone and rose as a blister, with frequent sneezing. Cracking in upper part, or feeling as of the bursting of a bubble. Rush of blood, < open air. Crawling as in coryza. Tickling; in l. nostril at 8 P.M., then discharge of bright, thickish blood containing many sulphates. Itching; of nostrils, with burning as if sore; on outside, < margins, with swollen feeling. Burning in septum in morning; intermittent, in l. wing in morning.

Dryness (Lyc., Nat. m.); towards tip; of borders of wings, with irritation of Schneiderian membrane as if coryza were coming on; in morning; in forenoon in open air, with feeling as if mucous membrane were swollen; in forenoon, with tension; in forenoon, with aching about root; in forenoon, < root, with aching; at noon; at noon, with stiffness; at noon, with escape of one or two drops of fluid and aching in nasal bones; in afternoon; in evening; in evening, with burning on outer borders of wings, which are sensitive to touch; dry feeling in evening though it is moist; in l. nostril after a glass of beer, with sensitiveness of mucous membrane on inspiring air of room; in upper part, with aching; with stiffness; with tension; alternating with watery discharge.

Constant desire to blow it though there was no mucus in forepart, and difficult discharge of viscid, long, narrow pieces. Stoppage; of r. nostril; and on blowing it discharge of clots of blood. Stopped sensation at root in morning, with catarrhal voice; in upper part in afternoon and evening, with fluent coryza, burning soreness, discharge of biting water and rough bass voice.

Sneezing; in evening and morning; in morning, with sensation as if a cold were coming on and frequent blowing out of mucus mixed with blood; at noon; in forenoon; in afternoon; preceded by nausea; always relieving head.

Coryza; with chilliness and cough; with rawness in chest, cough and much expectoration; with headache; sudden, at noon, during dinner; paroxysmal; dry, causing obscuration of head, < eating; stopped, during the day, with dry cough and stitches in r. side of abdomen. Fluent coryza; in morning; and on blowing nose bloody mucus; mucus must be drawn through nares. Discharge; from l. nostril at noon. Copious discharge in morning; in evening; with dryness of nose. Frequent blowing in morning; after dinner, with burning in septum. Blood-streaked mucus; in morning. Blowing out of thick mucus; in morning, with expectoration; in forenoon; in forenoon in open air, later in the room nose dry and its borders stiff, in afternoon profuse secretion; yellow, purulent. Watery discharge; from r. nostril; from l. nostril; at noon; after dinner; in evening; with dry cough, hoarseness and dryness of throat; trickling; dropping of yellow, glutinous strong-smelling liquid mornings and evenings, without coryza; burning; burning, at noon. Acrid, watery discharge; in evening; at one time, then dryness and stiffness, the next moment blowing out thick phlegm, then dryness.

bleeding; in morning on blowing; two days in succession at 3 P.M., then pain in nose on touch; third evening of menses; just before and after menses; on blowing; blowing out blood at night; clotted, always on blowing.

Intolerance of odors. Offensive odor of mucus on blowing nose (Puls.). Odor of old, offensive mucus (Puls.); of burnt horn; of sulphur; of soaked peas; of soapuds; of flowers; sharp biting, as from smoke; bad, to the dinner, which tastes well; like lime to food, but it has a good taste; blunted; lost.

Clinical.—Catarrhs of various sorts, according to the symptoms above.

Face.—Pale; and suffering as after long illness, with discomfort; and collapsed, expression anxious. Redness at 3 P.M.; after dinner, with sweat; in spots on r. cheek; on cheek-bones, with burning; dark, on walking in open air, with heat. Yellow. Dirty, earthy. Distorted, as from long suffering. Swelling in morning; S. of cheeks, with sticking and pain on touch; red, of cheeks. Roughness of cheeks, with heat and sensation as if they had been exposed to severe cold, then branlike desquamation. Looks ill; and has double rings around eyes. Twitching, at times on malar-bone, at times on chin.

Shooting in r. cheek-bone at 11.30 A.M.; in l. zygoma, with drawing. Tearing in r. half; in malar-bone and at other times in lower jaw, as if they would be torn out; in r. cheek in evening; flying, in cheeks. Pressure and burning in cheeks and cheek-bones. Painful pressure on malar-bone and beneath eye. Bruised pain in r. malar-bone, even at night. Drawing pain in skin of l.

side, above eye, on temples and on malar-bone as far as lobule of ear, < morning. Tension in skin around mouth in morning on waking; around mouth, with dryness and branlike desquamation; as if beginning to swell.

Jaws.—Glandular swelling of lower; painful S. of upper above gum; painful, on lower beneath gum; painless on lower, tender on chewing. Cracking in joint on chewing. Drawing jerking in l. lower. Sticking in lower, extending out of ear. Tearing in r. upper in evening; occasionally in l. lower during the day. Pain in l.; in l. lower in morning after waking, with swelling around a tooth, as if a gumboil would form; ulcerative, in l. upper. Cramplike pain in l. lower; in l. angle of lower. Drawing-tensive pain in r. Drawing in r. upper; in l. lower in morning after rising; in l. lower towards joint about noon; in l. lower in afternoon; in l. upper about 5 P.M., and in zygoma; spasmodic; sudden, in r. lower in evening.

Lips.—Swelling of lower (Hep.), with eruption on it; S. of upper; of upper in evening, with pain. Upper red and sensitive on its inner surface; red spot on upper; red itching point in middle of upper. Red itching elevation on upper. Elevated tetter in corners towards cheeks. Painful inflamed spot in red of upper, next day swollen and burning, third day changed into aphthæ. Cracks painful in middle of upper. Pimple; on lower; on margin of lower, with sticking on touch; painful to touch on upper. Painless elevation inside upper near r. corner, changing into a pedunculated wart, with three free apices. Aphthæ on r. side of lower; upper; burning, on upper; group of painful, grayish-white, on inside of l. lower, afterwards A. on r. upper. Scabby ulcer on margin of lower, with burning pain. Vesicles near l. corner; on upper; r. side of upper; middle of lower; that burst and let out acrid, yellowish fluid, on upper, with tension in skin around mouth, which was covered with branlike scales; filled with dark blood, on inside of lower, disappeared after dinner; white, transparent, in middle of lower, appearing next day like herpes labialis; painful, on l. side of upper; painful humid, on lower; painful group near r. corner, they burst and left round spots, which next day appeared lardaceous, then dried up and were covered with a scab. Trembling. Twitching. Soreness of l. corner. Sore pain in corners in afternoon. Pain in l. corner; in a spot in red of upper, next day a pustule there; on touch. Raw pain in l. corner. Tenderness of upper; after rising. Sensation of a fissure in red of lower, but there was none. Smarting in corners as if raw, < l.; burning, of lower. Sensation as if covered with salt. Swollen feeling in upper. Dryness; in morning, with tension; in morning mucous membrane in folds, whitish scales in corners; in morning on waking, and wrinkles; when speaking; and shrivelling; of upper, with sensitiveness; of red of lower, with scabs and tensile pain; upper lip and margins of nose dry, scaly, rough and burning. Burning; in upper; in upper in morning after rising; with sticking; as if raw.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia, involving especially r. side of face and head, < night. (Upper lip more affected.)

Mouth.—Teeth. Decayed, < molars. Looseness, with bleeding of gums; L. of molar, it seems too long and pains on touch and eating. Elongated. Brown mucus on them. Bleeding. Red, salt-sour water ex-uded from a l. lower molar. Sticking; in hollow, from 7 till 8 A.M. three mornings before menses; in second r. molar at 7.15 P.M.; < biting; through them from a cold drink; extending into ear, waking him at night; periodically, with jerking, also after midnight and in morning. Sticking burning extending into orbits and ear, with throbbing. Tearing in a lower incisor in forenoon on inspiring cold air; T. < cold water, at times > warmth, with drawing and often with jerking in tips; intermittent drawing, now r., now l. side, also at night on waking; boring, in a carious T. day and night, preventing sleep. Cutting in r. from a draught of cold air. Boring and throbbing; B. in a hollow T. in evening and till late at night, during wet weather; after eating, and externally on head; as with a hot iron. Digging in a r. molar, > strong pressure. Jerks through single; in hollow, after dinner. Aching in l. lower from 9 till 10 P.M.; in incisors at night; from slightest draught of air; in open air; in almost all during dinner; in molar on touch; renewed by cold rinsing of mouth; with pain in submaxillary glands; with swelling of cheek; with inflammatory swelling of gum near stump; in paroxysms, then burrowing, cold is tolerated better than warmth; as if they would be broken off, > in bed, with chilliness. Sensitiveness of tips of upper, < cold water, with shooting. Pain as if too long and tingling; incisors seem too long, with sensitiveness on pressure and in open air, when jerking and tearing extending into l. temple, which is painful to pressure. Drawing; in r. molars; lower incisors; upper, l., then r.; in forenoon; in crowns in evening; in incisors till 11 P.M., then sleepless till towards morning; in r. upper at night in bed; in open air; in molars, < inhaling cold air; with grumbling; in l. upper, with ulcerative pain in their gums; occasional, in morning; throbbing; in a l. lower after midnight, extending over whole lower jaw to temple and ear, lasting till rising next morning, afterwards < open air and extending over whole side of face, pain in spot on lower border of jaw, < touch. On edge; and painful when bitten upon. Loose feeling in evening; L. feeling on biting, and on eating paralyzed feeling.

Gum.—Swelling about old stumps; S., with throbbing pain; of r. lower, with sensitiveness. Inflammation, with burning and tearing spreading over head and waking him at 2 A.M., with sensation as if l. cheek were swollen, which was not the case. Painful abscess. Bleeding; on spitting. Aching in r. lower in morning on waking and after dinner, with sore pain; A. as if loose, and on inhaling air shooting into it; around a r. lower stump in evening, as if a parulis would form. Perineum.—Constriction. Sore pain at raphe. Itching, with soft stool; I., with shooting.

Stool.—Fluid; in morning; and copious; and frequent; frequent in evening, involuntary when sneezing or laughing (Aloe); frequent, afterwards hard and insufficient; twice a day; smelling of rotten eggs; light-colored and henteric, with nausea, griping and rumbling, till the third day when the diarrhoea became painless and almost involuntary, lasting till the seventh day, then symptoms in lungs and head; stool normal in morning on rising, then straining, fluid feces and raw pain in anus; last part; half fluid, half lumpy, mixed with gas and noisy flatus, in morning, afternoon and evening, always soon after eating, next day no stool. Semi-fluid; and frequent; at an unusual hour, and copious.

Diarrhoea; in morning on rising; after breakfast, then qualmsiness in abdomen; in evening; after dinner, though he had a normal stool in forenoon; with relief to abdomen; with tenesmus; copious; copious, at 3 P.M., though I had had the usual stool in morning, next day none; copious, dark gray, fetid, with the spasms; scanty, with tenesmus and burning in anus; yellowish-green, slimy; mixed with mucus and full of holes, morning, noon and evening; nearly black, viscid, greasy, urgent, smelling of sulphuretted hydrogen. Involuntary diarrhoea during emission of flatus (Aloe), and during the day two watery stools, with pinching in abdomen; I. and bilious, with sensation as if wind would pass; I., with anxiety, then sweat. Frequent diarrhoea; twice in morning; during the day, with burning in anus and gripes; and frothy, even at night, with tenesmus; offensive, two or three times daily; even to faintness, at first with heat and sweat, then with cold sweat on forehead and feet and white tongue. Alternating with constipation.

Soft and frequent in morning; S. and fetid; with flatus smelling like rotten eggs; and insufficient; soft-formed, difficult and frequent; soft-formed, scanty, after straining; solid-soft, copious. Pappy yellowish-green, copious fetid in morning, then feeling of perfect health; P., yellow, copious, after dinner, flatus smelling of sulphuretted hydrogen, next afternoon two fluid stools mixed with mucous flakes and one at night, with burning in anus, third day three fluid stools, then constipation for three days, then sudden urging and diarrhoea; P. and scanty after straining and cutting in anus, after the stool sensation as if mucous membrane were pressed out.

Hard; after rising, causing cutting in rectum; after rising, causing smarting sticking in rectum; after dinner, then soreness in anus; after straining, with rigor and cold feeling in limbs; with congestion to head; with evacuation of a tape-worm; soon followed by one of ordinary consistence; and difficult, only every two, three or four days; and difficult; and difficult, covered with blood, with soreness in anus; and black, crumbly; and lumpy, with burning in anus; and delayed, with pressure and burning in anus; and unsatisfactory. Scanty, hard; then burning and sore feeling in anus; causing burning shooting in anus; and delayed; and clawing, with sensation as if rectum would prolapse. First part hard, then loose, difficult; last part loose, causing cutting in rectum; and lumpy, with raw shooting pain in rectum, the last part soft and of the color and consistence of bird-lime, scanty.

Constipation; at times; for two days, then involuntary stool. Knotty; in morning; but not hard; mixed with mucus; and difficult; and insufficient; and insufficient, causing burning pain in rectum. Scanty; and unsatisfactory; in morning and afternoon; and half fluid. Difficult; on rising; and unsatisfactory; had to strain long, with aching in small of back.

Tough, gluey, fetid, so urgent that some escaped prematurely, yet not diarrhoea, after getting up, a similar stool two hours later. Slimy; without feces, frequent, mixed with red veins. Covered with mucus; and slipped out quickly. Bloody in evening. Light-colored. Sour-smelling. Containing undigested food. Copious; and frequent; and tough, smeary. Rapid; and almost involuntary. Unusually easy. Frequent; with mucus; twice in a day. Stool after dinner.

Clinical.—Dysentery, subacute, with burning, tenesmus, not violent, but persistent. Diarrhoea in great variety; stools are generally thin, watery, sometimes mucous, white or green, sometimes with bloody streaks, sometimes undigested, generally very fetid; nearly always < early in morning in bed; the necessity urgent and frequently without pain. In the chronic diarrhoea of scrofulous children we may find aversion to meat, tendency to stupor, with cold sweat, generally disagreeable odor of the body, with aversion to washing. Valuable for habitual constipation, especially when the rectum is irritable and dry, frequent ineffectual desire for stool in the rectum, with piles, soreness and burning at the anus, often with congestive headache, engorged liver, etc.

Urinary Organs.—Bladder. Sticking, or in hypogastrium; in region of neck in morning on urinating, with sticking through anus; flying, in region about 6 P.M., with soreness on pressure. Aching in region of neck at 11 A.M.; in region at 3 P.M. Dragging in morning after urinating. Pressure; soon after micturition, with sensation as if urine were retained by contraction of sphincter, and the same sensation in anus; as if too full, without call to urinate.

Urging; at night; in morning after rising, with cutting over symphysis pubis as in strangury; on waking after an emission, not > copious micturition, on account of irritation in orifice of urethra. Constant desire; with scanty urine; and a few drops passed involuntarily. Frequent urging; in afternoon and evening; with feeling of obstruction in sphincter of bladder; sudden.

Micturition when emitting flatus; on coughing; in a thin stream; in a weak stream; intermittent; by jerks; forcible. Dysuria. Frequent micturition; in forenoon; in afternoon; in evening; at night; at night, and copious; twice at night, and slow; always preceded by cutting in hypogastrium; with voluptuous pressure reaching as far as anus; of watery urine; and much at a time; and copious, pale and towards the end smelling mouldy; and scanty; and scanty, difficult, painful; of small quantities as clear as water.

Urethra.—Inflammation of orifice. Discharge of prostatic fluid; in long threads after micturition and stool. Sticking; in forepart; in morning; in morning on urinating; about noon; in afternoon; in front of it in evening when sitting; with tearing; with rigor; extending along it at 5.30 P.M.; sometimes in a spot, sometimes extending to pubes; to above pubes in evening on urinating; sudden, in orifice towards evening. Cutting before and during stool; C. as if the urine were acid at close of micturition and afterwards. Pain as in the beginning of gonorrhoea. Smarting in female. Constant urging to urinate. Itching in middle; in mouth; at mouth, as at beginning of gonorrhoea; sudden shooting, in navicular fossa in evening. Ticking in evening. Burning; at 10 P.M., > Canthar. in forepart when not urinating. Burning when urinating; in morning; in front part at night; in mouth.

Urine.—Copious; all day; in evening; in evening after beer; at night; at night, then symptoms diminished; after midnight; and reddish; and dark yellow; and bright yellow; of the color of sherry in morning, of the color of white wine in evening; with increase of water, urea, uric acids, mucus, inorganic salts and phosphates, but diminution of solid constituents, organic salts and extractives; with increase of water, solid matters, urea, uric acid, mucus, organic salts and extractives, but diminution of incinerated salts and phosphates. Scanty; after eating and of the color of dark sherry. Turbid; at night, and offensive; at night, and copious sediment. Fatty pellicle. Offensive (Sep., Benz. ac.); like sweaty feet. Smelt like chamomile tea. Bloody, slimy. Of the color of sherry. Dark. Dark brown. Red in evening, and copious sediment. Whitish. Pale, white-wine color, appearing almost like spastic urine, clear, sp. gr. diminished, reaction acid, increase of uric acid, earthy phosphates, sulphates, phosphates of soda, diminution of nitrate of urea and uroxanthin, afterwards little ammonia, later dark sherry-colored, sp. gr. and urea diminished, the earthy phosphates, sulphates and uric acid increased, afterwards chlorides decreased, later the uroxanthin abundant, urea diminished, later the morning urine was usually of a pale sherry color, that passed after dinner and in evening dark sherry-colored, for three days it contained free ammonia, on two days there were traces of iron. Increase of nitrogenous constituents, urea, uric acid and mucus, sometimes the stable salts, earthy phosphates, unstable salts and extractives were increased, sometimes diminished. Sediment reddish; white, mealy.

Clinical.—Catarrh of the bladder, burning micturition, urine contains mucus. Painful ineffectual efforts to urinate, with retention. Nocturnal enuresis. Haematuria. Chronic gonorrhoea, with burning and smarting during micturition. Chronic nephritis.

Sexual Organs.—Tingling, and in testicles. Resistance to complete emission of semen. Coldness in morning.

Glans.—Pustules. Redness of G. and inner surface of prepuce, with sore feeling, burning and smarting, with a pimple on glans, afterwards desquamation of skin and prepuce, the inflammation extended to pubes. Fetid smegma causing burning and itching (when a child there was often viscid fluid between foreskin and glans, causing itching and burning, and micturition was painful). Penis stiff and hard like leather, its inner surface shining and secreting a thin offensive ichor. Stitches in penis; in morning on urinating, < glans, as if urethra were pierced, at first the urine dribbles, then it is retained. Cramplike pain. Itching. Erections at night, with vivid, not lascivious, dreams. Phimosis, with oozing of offensive mucus under prepuce.

Prepuce.—Redness and burning; R. and swelling. Epididymis swollen. Hangs over glans and is divided into four or five lobes by furrows. Retracted, and penis cold, bluish. Cold, and glans. Itching at night, then voluptuous sensation.

Scrotum.—Itching; in morning on waking, and on inside of thighs; about noon, with tickling, itching and sore feeling at outer border of anus; towards evening; with sweat.

Testicles.—Hang down flabby. Relaxed in evening in bed, and scrotum. Sticking; in l. Pressure and tension in T. and spermatic cords. Drawing in r. T. and spermatic cord at 7 P.M.

Power increased; weakened. Impotency, with amorous fancies. Desire; in morning after waking, with erections at first strong, then weak, changing to a burning pain, gradually > emission; at night; for an emission, without erection; almost lost. Emissions at night; with voluptuous dreams; in midday sleep when sitting; in an old man; with burning pain in urethra; profuse, watery.

Female.—Bearing down. Feeling of weakness. Itching, with papules about them; I. on mons veneris, with moisture. Inflammation of one labia, with burning pain, < urinating. Pudenda, painless blisters externally; sore spot, and one on perineum; burning. Vagina, burning so that she could scarcely sit; itching; soreness during coition; biting discharge. Leucorrhœa two days before menses; profuse L.; causing soreness and burning pain; like nasal mucus, fourteen days after menses; thin, in morning after rising, preceded by griping in abdomen. Itching of clitoris. Almost daily bloody discharge from uterus for several weeks after return of long-suppressed menses. Contractive pain in region of uterus towards pudenda, as before menses, from morning till night.

Menses.—Too early; preceded by cutting downward in hypogastrium; and scanty; and profuse, with pain in abdomen and back, preceded by general chilliness. Too late (Nat. m., Puls., Sep., etc.); with constipation and distended abdomen; with sickness and oppression; lasting eight days, with pains the first days. Profuse, stopped immediately after flowing two days and a half; P. and long-lasting; with sour odor; and black, thick, acid; and black, clotted, sticky. Changed to a sulphur-colored discharge, and so it continued for at least three months, ever since for a week before each monthly illness she has this discharge, which smells and looks like sulphur, < purgatives (which do not act on the bowels), and the urine at the same time will smell of sulphur, the discharge leaves a yellow stain, with sulphur-like odor upon her linen.

Clinical.—Hydrocele. Pruritus of the vulva, with burning and stinging; with military eruption, < heat of bed. Prolapsus uteri, with aching across the sacrum, constipation. Various forms of uterine inflammations, called for by general indications. Suppressed menstruation, with congestive headache and cold feet. Scanty menstruation, with burning heat in hands and soles at night, weight on top of the head, etc. Dysmenorrhœa, pains running from the groins to the back. Anteversion, uterus presses on the bladder, < walking. Leucorrhœa, corrosive, yellow, menstrual flow corrosive (see Krees.).

Respiratory Organs.—Larynx. Swollen gland on thyroid cartilage, with pain on touch. Painful thrust when coughing. Drawing at times, with dryness. Swollen feeling. Tickling; and in bronchi. Crawling and talking causes cough. Sensation as if mucus stuck in glottis. Hoarseness; in morning; in forenoon; in forenoon, and speaking requires an effort; in afternoon; in evening; in attacks. Voice rough at noon; during the day, < evening, and toneless, with occasional cough. Voice deep. Voice lost. Rattling in bronchi, with shooting beneath l. lowest rib, towards back, < breathing deeply.

Cough; in morning; in forenoon; afternoon; afternoon, with shooting in chest; afternoon, > open air, < returning to the warm room; in evening; in evening, from irritation deep in air-passages; in evening in bed before menses, > rising; only at night; at night, then sleeplessness for a long time; woke him about midnight, > expectoration, recurred in morning on dressing; at 1 A.M., from irritation in larynx and trachea; from rawness in larynx (Phos., Puls.); from roughness in throat; on going to sleep, with heat in head and eyes and cold hands. Provocation to cough in two or three attacks with every breath, < afternoon; P. after eating, so violent that he cannot cough soon enough, it draws his chest together spasmodically and he retches; ineffectual desire, with blackness before eyes. Tickling C. at 6 P.M., > expectoration of tenacious mucus. Fatiguing C. during the day; in morning; at night. Sudden shaking C. after dinner. Paroxysmal, generally dry, waking him at midnight; sudden, at night, with contraction of air-passages, usually dry; barking, waking him at 2 A.M., from irritation in trachea, generally dry.

Dry cough; in morning; in morning in bed, from irritation in trachea; in morning after rising, from tickling in larynx; at noon; afternoon and evening. In evening before sleep, worse than during the day; in evening from tickling in throat; in evening and night, and towards morning, with expectoration and sensation as if bubbles burst internally; from 5 P.M. onward, next morning cough, with whitish mucous expectoration; at night; at night waking him; at night after going to bed, with expectoration of two lumps of albuminous-looking blue mucus; after dinner; from irritation in larynx; from constant irritation; with pain in r. hypochondrium; sudden, as if lungs would be torn out, with aggravated headache; convulsive, waking him in morning, leaving soreness in chest; spasmodic, at noon from fulness in the chest.

Short cough in evening when sitting asleep. Dry, short cough; sometimes during the day, sometimes cough with copious mucous expectoration; in morning; morning on waking; forenoon; noon; afternoon; evening; evening after lying down, causing heat, the cough woke her about 3 A.M.; after dinner; when walking in open air; < open air, > lying down, with sore burning in pharynx; with pain in sternum and sticking in chest; as from irritation in trachea; paroxysmal; fatiguing, in morning, with pain in chest.

Coughing up mucus; in morning; in morning on waking; from larynx in morning; morning and evening; afternoon; night; copious mucus in evening on going to bed and in night on waking; scanty mucus in afternoon, cough < entering a warm room and on smoking tobacco, > open air and drinking wine in evening, cough wakes her at night; sweetish plugs; yellowish globular mucus in morning, cough dry during the day. Coughing up thick mucus; in morning; in morning, with sore pain in chest; in forenoon; at noon; at night; at night, with soreness in trachea; with soreness or pressure upon chest, rattling in trachea and hoarseness; jelly-like.

Expectoration in morning; E. from chest tasting like old catarrh; of bloody saliva, with sweet taste in throat; of blood at night, with fatty, sweetish taste in mouth; jelly-like. Expectoration of mucus; in morning; without cough; thick, viscid, in morning; thick in evening.

Respiration.—Threatenings of asthma. Suffocation during the day; S., with constriction of chest; in paroxysms at night in sleep; threatened at night as soon as she fell asleep, and she started up with a scream, towards morning palpitation, then exhausting sweat. Arrested even when talking; during sleep, she must be awakened to avoid suffocation; paroxysmally, at night; paroxysmally, > forcible deep breathing; suddenly at night on turning to l. side, > sitting up. Dyspnoea; in evening in bed; on walking rapidly; several hours after eating, then yawning. Difficult; in forenoon; afternoon; at night when lying on back, with pressure and anxiety in chest, and general sweat; on bending forward; on pressure upon chest; more when sitting than when walking, with necessity to breathe deeply. Short, towards evening; S. from talking much; on walking in open air. Deep breathing impossible. Gasping on account of constriction of larynx, face hot and turgid, eyes projecting, veins of forehead and temples distended, speech difficult, shrill whistling on inspiration, < ascending stairs. Rapid during and after getting into bed. Excretion of carbonic acid increased. Expired air is hot.

Clinical.—Aphonia. Cough is usually dry day and night, < lying down, especially at night. Laryngeal and bronchial catarrh, with attacks of suffocation. Whooping cough (it is said to "kill" the disease if burned in the room or house). Chronic asthma, with suffocative fits in the forepart of the night, and with burning in the chest.

Chest.—A swollen gland on ensiform cartilage is painful to touch. Swelling of r. nipple in morning, with pain on touch and on deep breath, afterwards sensitiveness. Twitching in one breast, with swelling as if milk rushed into it. Cracking in sternum on motion. Mucus; obliging hacking. Rattling at night; R., > expectoration, with snoring.

Sticking; in l. side; in sternum; beneath sternum; under l. breast; in l. pleura; externally in r.; in walls, r., then l., then on r. side of abdomen; and in dorsal muscles; between l. fourth and fifth ribs in morning after waking; in r. side in forenoon; l. side in forenoon, < walking quickly and ascending stairs; l. pleura at 10 A.M.; under sternum at noon on full breathing; side in afternoon; under heart about 3 P.M.; in evening; r. ribs in evening; r. pleura in evening; under r. breast at 10 P.M.; in side at 10 P.M. and at night; in r. or in region of heart at night on motion when lying on back; in l. on breathing; beneath r. breast on coughing; in region of ensiform cartilage on coughing; pectoral muscles on moving arms; on moving chest forward and to the left, and on deep breathing; in bend of l. false ribs on movement of body and on deep breathing, > washing with cold water, with pain; l. intercostal muscles when walking and once on speaking, forcing him to hold his breath; in r. till dinner-time; in r. after dinner; in l. before sleep in l. ribs before sleep; in sternum, < touch; in l., transiently > deep breathing; S. or twinging in middle of sternum, more externally; in muscles, with drawing; extending to back; extending from r. side into scapula; in l., extending towards heart, taking away the breath, with thirst; in r., through stomach and pit of stomach; r. ribs, extending to shoulder, at night in bed; outward like blows, where mediasternum is attached to r. side of sternum, in direction of diaphragm, ending inside chest, on exertion of chest, > noon; shattering, in r.; in l. side towards heart, taking away her breath, at night, with thirst; in l. side, not affecting respiration; paroxysmal, in l. side during the day.

Cramp at times; C. in evening in a warm room, < motion, > lying down in bed, with difficult breathing and palpitation. Tearing in l. pectoralis major after dinner, < pressure. Cutting in middle, extending to pit of stomach; in l. lower ribs, with burning; deep in after walking in open air, with burning. Sticking gripping on last rib and above hips. Sudden pinching in r. half in afternoon, went off with a shoot towards front of chest. Shattering when coughing, and in abdomen.

Pain in sternum; in r. side; deep in r. side; in morning; in ribs, dorsal vertebrae and muscles in morning after rising, so that he could scarcely bend forward, > holding himself upright; beneath sternum towards noon; l. side at 6 P.M.; sides at 8 P.M.; on moving arm; after breakfast, with sore feeling; in sternum on walking; upper part of sternum on walking in open air, > continuing to walk; r. side on coughing, with soreness on touch; after a touch, < evening; under wall, < sneezing; r. ribs, < trouse; in a spot beneath r. wall near sternum, < deep breathing and bending forward; on and beneath sternum late in evening, < deep breathing, moving body and rough handling, with sore feeling; in sternum, with oppression of breath; sudden, in middle of sternum frequently during the day; periodical, posteriorly in r. lower part, proceeding from the inside.

Raging pain in middle of sternum frequently in afternoon. Pain deep in in evening as if some one would grasp it, twist it, lift it up, rub it to pieces or burst it. Squeezing pain in upper part after rising, < r. side. Bruised pain in upper part; in upper part on touch; under sternum on leaning forward, felt next morning on deep breathing, < forenoon, > afternoon; in l. pectoral muscles, < motion, breathing and touch, with drawing or tearing in l. shoulder and muscles of upper arm. Sore feeling; in a spot deep in centre all day, < movement and inspiration, > night. Rawness; in morning on waking. Lungs feel as if resting against back when coughing.

Pressure (Phos.). in morning, > rising; at 8 A.M., so that she could hardly breathe; in afternoon; declining on rumbling in abdomen; transversely across middle, as from swallowing too large a morsel. Oppression; all day, often obliged to rise hurriedly from a seat; in forenoon; from 9 A.M. till 3 P.M.; in afternoon; at 2 P.M., deep inspirations cause pain towards r. ninth rib; in evening; < moving at night, forced to sit up; with strained pain; of upper part, with sensitiveness. Constriction; in forenoon; on deep breathing; after rising; on motion; on walking; in a spot in sternum, rather externally, with burning; sticking, in pectoral muscles, with soreness on touch; spasmodic, beneath sternum when sitting.

Tension; in muscles after dinner; in muscles on breathing deeply, and contracted feeling in anterior wall of chest; on r. lower rib, > pressure, with throbbing; r. side and r. shoulder; externally, now below sternum, now under arms, now in back; chilly. Tightness; l. half; in morning fasting, > eating, the hindrance to breathing seemed to be in pit of stomach; in evening; after breakfast; after walking, often obliged to breathe deeply till evening; as if something had grown fast. Fulness before menses, forcing a deep breath; F., and at first insipid and clammy, but suddenly a sweetish taste, sensitiveness of uvula, tickling in throat, spitting of slimy fluid mixed with bright red blood, repeated several times (he had had something similar six or seven years previously). Heaviness; in l. side; towards evening, with fulness.

Anxiety (Phos.); in afternoon; so that he can hardly expand it during inspiration. Trembling in C. and pit of stomach towards noon, with throbbing. Throbbing deep in at night; T. in sternum as in an ulcer; crackling, in l. side when sitting and lying, > holding his breath. Sensation of mucus, after the raising of which respiration was freer. Rush of blood; in morning on waking; with qualms amounting to faintness, and trembling of r. arm. Heat; in morning on waking; deep in middle of r. clavicle, extending to sternum; in r. side, coming and going suddenly. Coldness, and in abdomen. Emptiness during dry cough. Weakness at night, < getting into bed so that he cannot lie long on one side and longs for morning; W. when talking (Phos., Stann.); on reading aloud; with difficulty in breathing.

Clinical.—Valuable in the later stage of pneumonia, when the inflammatory process fails to resolve, the lung continues dull and the cough dry, the patient begins to have fever at night, hot hands and feet and hot head; a few doses of Sulphur will then generally cause the cough to loosen and the hepatization to resolve. In hydrothorax it follows Bry. well. In the earliest stage of tuberculosis, need of fresh air, feet and head hot, hands and feet burn at night, palpitation, atonic dyspepsia, with need to eat at 11 A.M., etc.

Heart.—Sticking in præcordial region; after dinner. Strange motion in præcordial region. Pain in præcordial region towards evening. Sensation as if it had not room enough. Hollow sensation in præcordial region. Palpitation; every forenoon; at noon after a short walk, with trembling of hands; on lying down for midday nap; in evening; at night in bed; at night on turning in bed; at night on falling asleep; with the first movement of a child, with heat of face, then burning in abdomen; during stool; after walking in open air; at the moment of rising; after dinner; with anxiety as if he would faint; anxious. Rush of blood. Sudden beating in evening after turning in bed. Irregular action. Increased pulsations of aorta from heart to clavicle, with a purring noise, when he lay on l. side the pulsation was troublesome along back. Pulsations diminished in number.

Clinical.—It seems as though the blood rushed to the heart, causing a gasping and need of fresh air, heart feels too large. Sometimes useful in cardiac dropsies.

Pulse.—Rapid; in evening; and hard, full; and small, soft. Pulsation in l. carotid. Feeble and intermittent.

Neck.—Inflammation of a gland on nape close to hair, with itching. Painful swelling anteriorly and externally. Cracking in vertebræ; on bending head backward and pressing it upon the pillow; on bending head backward, with stiffness of nape. Drawing jerking in muscles. Sticking; in nape on stooping; in nape on sitting bent over, with tension. Tearing in l. side after waking before midnight, < moving head, > rest, with tension and feeling as if too short. Pain if she talks much; in r. side on bending head to right; rheumatic, in nape in morning. Bruised pain and tension in nape and between scapulae, which on moving head go to shoulder; tensive, in nape, extending to over eye, where it is a sticking. Drawing pain in r. side; in nape and scapulae. Drawing on l. side to shoulder; up nape. Stiffness; and paralytic sprained pain in nape.

Back.—Rumbling along inside of spine. Sticking at every breath; on walking; itching. Tearing; in evening in bed, and in knees and legs. Aching; in evening when driving; at night, with bruised sensation in small of back, preventing sleep (Rhus t.), with orgasm of blood; on stooping; < motion, lasting till night; sprained, on a false step; as after long stooping; tensive, in l. side on moving arm. Bruised feeling; in one spot; in muscles of spine. Drawing in spine extending upward, on stooping. Weariness in l. side on moving arm; W. in morning, as if he had not slept enough, with heaviness as if he had lain uncomfortably. Heaviness in morning on rising, and in lower limbs. Stiffness after sitting; on sitting a long time, > walking; as after taking cold, and in sides; now in back, now in hips, < turning over in bed, forced to hold his breath.

Scapulae.—Sticking in lower angle of l. in morning; between S. in evening, with tearing; in l. when leaning on l. arm; beneath S., taking away the breath and preventing stooping; in lower third of l. at night, preventing sleep, in morning it extended towards upper part of scapula and spread to muscles of nape and l. ear, < moving or turning neck, the pain was more drawing and tearing, > daytime, returned at night in warmth of bed; intermittent, along l. in morning; pulsative, undulating, in a spot below end of l. in afternoon, causing a jerk through whole body and forcing him to hold his breath (as when straining at stool), with sensitiveness to touch, movement and deep inspiration, the pain lasted all night and was felt in sleep next day, > lying on l. side, < turning in bed, next day he was often forced to stop speaking because the pain took away his breath. Tearing in l. when sitting; drawing, in r., < movement. Pain on coughing; beneath S. in evening. Sprained pain in r. on moving arm; between S. and in region of l. pelvis during rest, with painful jerking on motion. Drawing pain in r. in evening on going to sleep. Tension between S.; when lying and moving; and on side of neck; T. close to r., as if muscles were too short, at 7 P.M.

Lumbar Region.—Cracking extending to anus. Jerking in evening in bed. Stitches; in bones on expiration; transversely across; pulsating; taking away the breath till evening, with pain in head and nape, frequent alternations of chill and heat, with apprehension in pit of stomach; inward in l. sacro-iliac symphysis at 3 P.M. Tearing in l. on motion; sudden, in lumbar and sacral vertebræ in afternoon. Shooting cutting above anterior superior spinous process of r. ilium in afternoon during rest. Gnawing in a spot, after pressure upon it only bruised pain. Cramp pain in lumbar and sacral vertebræ towards evening, impeding every motion of body, > night, repeated the following evening, leaving stiffness, which made it difficult to lean forward and forced him to stretch. Sharp pain towards sacrum. Pain; in a spot in sacral region; in l.; above lumbar region; all day, < urinating; in region of r. sacro-iliac symphysis at 4 A.M., and in r. shoulder; in morning after waking; in morning when sitting; in forenoon when sitting; in forenoon, < walking; in afternoon; at 4 P.M., forcing him to bed; in evening; in evening after a short drive, < sitting down and rising again; at night; on waking, > rising; after long stooping; on rising from a seat; during stool; after dinner; above lumbar region when walking; in l. sacro-lumbar region, < turning in bed; < sitting down and rising up; < walking and standing; > walking, also returning when sitting; with hypochondriacal discomfort; so that she could not stand erect; across loins; occasionally extending up back and into chest, with shooting forward; extending towards middle of back and between scapulae; sudden; sudden, after getting up. Bruised pain (Rhus t.); in coccyx; all day; during the day on stooping and rising; in afternoon; in evening; < touch. Sprained pain in l. sacral region and hip when walking; extending across pelvis to l. trochanter when stepping and causing limping; sudden, and in lower part of back; sudden, on sneezing, then drawing pain close to spine extending into l. groin and testicles, < rising from a seat and walking; shooting, in sacro-lumbar region extending across pelvis to l. trochanter on stepping, causing limping. Tension; in l.; in l. sacral region and hip; at 2 A.M.; in evening; in l. loin and hip, then sudden cutting through r. knee from bend to patella, which soon alternated with a similar pain from bend of l. elbow to its apex, the pain in back > rising; on stooping, extending over abdomen to pit of stomach and to knee; in l. extending to region of l. great trochanter in morning on waking, > rising; in l. sacral region and hip and in pelvis, in bed, sometimes as if pelvic bones were separating; in l. sacro-lumbar region as if muscles were too short, it spread over l. side of pelvis to trochanter and involved abdominal muscles above crest of l. ilium, when lying on l. side, on turning it attacked the same parts on r. side. Burning pain near anus. Drawing pain. Drawing all day, < sitting; towards evening; at night; with weakness. Weight; in forenoon, < stooping. Bearing down extending into groins, during menses; B. down as if menses would come on. Lightness. Stiffness.

Clinical.—Spinal irritation, with suppression of the menses or hemorrhoids, with dry heat; also with weakness of the chest and stomach, and sleeplessness. Has been used for so-called congestions of the spinal cord.

Extremities.—Affection of all. Cracking of knees and elbows. Unsteadiness of joints. Trembling; < hands; of hands in afternoon, with unsteadiness of gait. Jerking of one hand and foot during the day; J., with clenched teeth and moaning, then slumber, then again J. and spasmodic drawing in limbs, then weakness.

Sticking in l. hip-joint and ball of l. hand during the day; in r. calf and r. upper arm in evening; thighs, r. hip and l. shoulder at night before sleep; in r. knee from standing, then in l. wrist; now in l. great toe, now in l. thumb. Tearing in wrists and ankles during rest, with stiffness; frequent T. during the day, with shooting in soles; sudden, in fingers and dorsa of feet; when walking T. and shooting in r. knee and tibia, then the pain jumped into l. and then into r.

humerus, and so on, changing all day. Cramplike pain in muscles of l. upper arm close to bend of elbow at noon, and after two hours alternating with similar pain in sinews of l. popliteal space. Gripping, now in l. shoulder, now in feet.

Pain in joints; in r. leg, r. shoulder and r. upper arm in morning; r. metatarsal bone in afternoon, then in r. elbow, then in r. wrist, then in r. metacarpal bone; after midnight; in bones on touch, as if flesh were loose; gouty, in joints in forenoon, alternating with cramplike pain in their voluntary muscles, the same in afternoon, the former pain < rest, the latter < moving. Dragging, almost like a drawing. Bruised feeling; all day, < upper, with heaviness; in morning; in morning on waking, with heaviness; in morning after waking; in morning after rising; at noon. Dislocation pain in forenoon, even on slight movement.

Drawing pain in evening; in afternoon during rest, now over l. inner ankle, now in r. shoulder-joint, now in r., now in l. wrist, often alternating with shooting in rectum; intermittent, in thigh during the day when walking, < one forenoon, when it was now in r., now in l., usually posteriorly, and at the same time paralytic pain in upper arms almost all day, and in upper part of trunk feeling as if I had taken cold; (tearing), < the feather bed; penetrating into marrow of bones (as from holding ice a long time) at night in bed, now in metacarpal bone of r. index, now in r. knee.

Drawing; here and there; in knees, arms and shoulders; l. hand and r. thigh; r. thigh, r. shoulder and up nape; r. calf, r. thigh and r. thumb; along r. radius and in outside of r. leg; r. metacarpal in afternoon, and in l. metatarsal bones; bones after dinner; in bones in evening, < forearm; occasionally in morning, < r. thigh; sometimes D., sometimes tearing, sometimes shooting, leaping from one side to the other; sudden, here and there; sudden, in l. thigh and l. third and fourth fingers; sudden, in r. fingers, l. great toes and r. tendo-achillis in afternoon, < inner surface of r. thigh; in r. forearm near elbow, like a breath over the part, causing paralytic feeling, next day similar drawing in tibia, with sensation in small of back as if a cool breath passed over it, a similar drawing near r. wrist and little finger and back of hand, the D. generally began at dorsal side of limbs, near joint and penetrated deeply.

Tension after a short walk, and in tendons of feet; in r. shoulder-joint in morning, with tearing on inside of l. thigh; as if too short, with necessity to stretch them; cramplike, on moving, now in posterior muscles of l. thigh, now in l. calf, now in other muscles of limbs. Desire to extend and flex hands and toes. Desire to stretch in night after waking. Waving sensation.

Weakness; all day, with heaviness; > walking, returned in the house; with trembling on motion; so that she could find no comfortable position in bed. Feeling as from long illness. Heaviness in bones of arms and legs; H. after dinner, < lower. Pressure as if they would fall asleep. Falling asleep on lying down; F. asleep, < pressure. Paralytic feeling on outside of l. leg and l. forearm. No sensation when sitting.

Clinical.—Synovitis, especially when there is considerable exudation, particularly in the knee. Rheumatic gout, especially beginning in the feet and extending upward, with burning heat in feet at night.

Upper Extremities.—Axilla. Swelling of glands, purulent; oozing in r. Sticking beneath r. Tearing in l. in afternoon when knitting or sewing.

Shoulder.—Tearing jerks in S. or elbows, extending through limbs, < joints, making him wrinkle his forehead and draw up his eyes. Sticking in evening; S. on motion, extending into chest; from joint into arm when lying upon it and on inspiration and expiration. Tearing in r.; in l. joint in morning after waking; in l. S. and in r. upper arm in morning in bed, > walking in open air, with shooting in l. shoulder; in r. till noon; in S. or S. joints, < night, at first <, then > moving arm, with gnawing or bruised pain and sticking, in joints, > motion; in r., > morning, leaving a weak paralytic feeling; in l., with drawing; in joint, extending into humerus; sudden, in l. S. and first joint of l. index about 5 P.M. Frequent cutting in r. in forenoon when walking. Pain in r. on breathing; rheumatic; rheumatic, in l.; as if dislocated in joint, < night when lying; attacks of shooting throbbing, in l. in morning in bed. Throbbing in bone of l. Drawing pain; in joint and arm; in r., > rubbing, alternating with scraping in fauces. Drawing in r. joint and thumb; in l. in evening, extending to elbow. Tension from r. towards back in morning, impeding movement of arm. Weight on walking in open air.

Arm.—Cramp after midnight. Shootings through it in evening. Tearing; in r., with paralysis; in arms and hands, with drawing; in bones of r. during the day, with gnawing. Sudden pinching. Pain < motion, especially stretching or raising it, with drawing; bruised P.; sprained, < raising it. Drawing in r. in forenoon; jerking, from one joint to another at night in bed, < joints. Weight in r. towards noon. Paralytic feeling in r. in morning on waking. Falling asleep; < work.

Upper Arm.—Shooting from r. deltoid to middle of upper arm; twinging S. in r. Tearing in l. in evening; on anterior surface of l. humerus; jerking, in r. in evening and in l. fingers; drawing, in r., < rest, > motion, alternating with paralytic feeling. Cutting at 3 A.M., darting from deltoid to middle of r. upper arm. Pain in humeri; jerking, in deltoid; cramplike, in flexors of l.; bruised, in l., with sensitiveness to pressure; drawing, in humeri after midnight; drawing, above r. elbow. Drawing in r. Weakness. Heaviness; in humerus; humerus, with tension. Paralytic feeling in evening and next morning on rising.

Elbow.—Tearing in and above r., > moving arm; T. extending into upper arm and forearm. Pain on motion; bruised, about r. on lifting arm and on clenching hand; burning, in skin of flexor surface of l. Painful drawing in nerves, extending to wrists; acute D. in r. Tension in tendons; T. in bend of r. on flexing and extending forearm. Paralyzed feeling in r. in afternoon.

Forearm.—Tearing in bones, sometimes > pressure and motion. Aching boring in bones, with rigor. Boring-squeezing pain in r. at 3 P.M. Sensitiveness of l. to touch and exertion. Burning pain below bend of elbow, and on touch it felt dead. Drawing in r. Tension in a spot on r. as if skin were raised by a needle, changing to itching after rubbing. Heaviness of r., with sensation of falling asleep. Paralytic pain in l. all day. L. felt paralyzed and insensible at night when lying on l. side, > rubbing.

Wrist.—Stitches outward through it. Tearing; in r. in forenoon. Sprained pain; in r., > violent motion. Pain in l.; in l. at 7.30 A.M.; in ulnar side of l. on touch. Sensitiveness in morning, < moving them, and in finger-joints. Drawing in r. Weakness of r., with feeling of dislocation. Stiffness, < morning, > during the day.

Hand.—Swelling; of veins. Smelling of sulphur; palms. Trembling of r. in morning; T. on writing; and < r. thumb. Involuntary grasping, < afternoon. Cramp in l. Sticking in l. palm about 10 P.M.; S., alternating with drawing; burning, suddenly on back. Tearing in knuckles; in joints and fingers of l. in evening on moving them; on radial side of l., extending to little finger; on back of r., at times in bones, at times in extensor tendons. Cramplike pain in l. metacarpus in evening in bed. Burning gnawing in l. beginning in articular end of radius and extending in bone to phalanx of index, late in evening, < touch, lasting till sleep, returning in morning, < after dinner, < touch, > evening by exercise. Drawing pain through metacarpal bone of l. index in forenoon. Tearing contraction in r. Tendons in palms above two first fingers seem short and hard, so that hands cannot be stretched out flat. Tenderness as on entering a warm room after hands have been chilled. Tremulous sensation. Anxiety, forced to grasp something. Weakness in morning after rising; W. of r., with tearing in thumb. Falling asleep after immersing in water, with crawling.

Fingers.—Swelling in morning; of three middle of both hands; of joints, with stiffness and redness as if swollen and with crawling. The lunula of thumb-nails almost gone. Semi-lunar furrow across thumb-nails near their roots, afterwards on l. little finger. Jerking; burning, in l. middle. Cramp in three middle; in l. ring in evening, extending along common extensor to elbow, with stiffness and coldness. Sticking in tips (Petrol.); on flexor surface of r. middle; in tips at night; through tip of l. little at night and in morning; tearing, above nail of l. ring, < evening; intermittent, in ungal phalanx of r. index, at the end of which an almost cartilaginous wart had existed for years, pain > next day; sudden, in middle joint of r. little at night; burning tearing, on back of middle. Tearing; in first joint of l. thumb; in second phalanx of l. little in morning; in l. joints in forenoon; on inside of phalanx of l. little in forenoon, < pressure; in r. ring and little in forenoon, then creeping in them; under nail of l. thumb at night in bed; in joints before going to sleep; in first joint of thumb, extending to middle joint and over half of back of hand. Pinching in ball of l. little, every five minutes when resting upon elbow, streaming into arm, with pressure and chilliness, during the day the pain changed to sticking, with chilliness and with feeling in all limbs as after hard work. Pain in joints; in tips in morning, as if nails had been cut too short; sprained, in first joint of thumb. Bruised feeling in metacarpal joint of r. thumb in morning; in middle joints of third and fourth during menses, with cramplike and swollen sensation. Swollen sensation. Painful contraction of last r. Drawing pain in single short jerks in afternoon; D. pain through first phalanx of l. index in evening. Drawing in thumb; sudden D. almost all the evening; semi-lunar painful D. in root of nail of r. little at night in bed. Sensation, < l. thumb, as if tendons were too short on extending them and grasping anything, causing a paralyzed sensation. Falling asleep of two last in evening in bed; when playing the piano, < l.; of little, with numbness. Deadness in forenoon; in morning, with wrinkled skin on tips. Numbness.

Lower Extremities.—Uncertain gait in afternoon, < ascending stairs. Tearing, forcing him to put them out of bed; T. in l., with drawing. Tearing thrusts in r. and in hip-joint in evening when walking, forced to stretch the limb and cannot sit upon a low seat without pain. Pain in r., > forenoon by walking. Bruised sensation after walking in open air; in evening, with drawing. Drawing pain; in morning and evening in bed; in muscles of r., so that he could scarcely move it. Tendons seem too short on standing. Uncasiness in evening till going to bed, so that she could not remain in the house. Tingling as from weariness. Weakness in morning, > rising, with heaviness; in evening; after dinner; after a short walk, with heaviness; in r. when walking, with anxiety in it; with pain as if there were no marrow in the bones; sudden, after a short walk, < legs. Heaviness; in morning in bed, with falling asleep; when walking; < night, with tension in knees and thighs. Falling asleep of l. evenings. Numbness of r. even when lying.

Hip.—Jerking deep in l., > motion; sudden cramp-like, painful, about joint. Sticking in l. joint at night before sleep; in l. joint at night, with weakness of l. foot; above l. extending into small of back, when coughing; in r. joint, extending through r. half of pelvis down r. femur, avoiding knee and appearing in foot, in morning, keeping him in bed, as it was difficult to move, then tenderness in these joints; in l. extending to upper third of thigh in evening, < rest, > motion and pressure. Pain in joint, inability to step, pain at night even on touch. Sprained pain in l. in morning on walking; in l. joint in forenoon on walking; in l. in forenoon when walking and standing; in r. joint on motion in bed, so that he cannot tread in the morning, pain even on touch; in l. when walking, and at head of l. fibula, causing limping. Bruised pain on motion and on touch; even on sitting, and in pubic region; in r. on sitting down and on moving body to one side. Tensive pain in joint on walking; drawing, in r. in afternoon, extending down thigh. Drawing pain in l.; in l. in afternoon, and in thigh. A kind of paralysis above nates.

Thigh.—Jerking, and in legs; J. as if in bones. Cramp in r. Sticking in l. T. and leg towards noon, < next day; above r. patella at 5 p.m. on walking; in l. in direction of crural nerve at night before sleep, < morning on waking, > rising, with weakness, at night traces of the pain; on inner side of l., > rubbing, with burning; sudden, in course of l. crural nerve in evening, > walking. Tearing in T. and legs at night in bed, coldness in bed; in T. and femora, often extending to knees, mostly > walking. Pain in middle of external aspect of r.; in r. nates; all night; in posterior muscles when sitting; in ischia after long sitting; crampy, in lower third of l. before going to sleep, with lassitude; in ischia as if weight of body were too great, in afternoon when sitting; as from a wound on inner side in evening; as if ischium were suppurating, preventing sitting and lying, even on touch, on rising from a seat thighs feel asleep, with pinching in ischii; sore, between nates. Soreness between T. < walking in open air; of nates and ischium after sitting long. Bruised pain; in anterior surface; in r. in morning on waking, with drawing; at night; outer side on touch; anterior surface of r. towards evening, < pressure, with drawing and tension, causing limping, > next forenoon when walking, returned at noon when sitting, then feeling in lower limbs as from a cold wind, pain < afternoon when sitting, > walking, returned in evening and disturbed sleep at night. Constriction in r. at 8 a.m., < walking; C. as from a band. Drawing pain; in tubera ischii, hip-joint and upper half of r. femur; in l. in evening; in evening when walking, next morning drawing pains when walking, < r. thigh, the pains lasted all the evening, even when sitting, and only once gave place to paralytic pain in l. forearm, next forenoon pain deep in r. thigh, < beginning to walk; in muscles of upper third of r. and in r. gluteal when walking, < stooping, afterwards in l. thigh; in r. in morning, < walking, alternating with similar pain in r. heel. Drawing in r.; on inside of l. during the day; in l. in morning after rising; in inside of r. in afternoon; in l. in afternoon; in l. when walking; in l. when sitting; r. during dinner, with tension, then in l.; < sitting; intermittent cramp-like, in muscles of anterior internal surface of r. at noon, then sudden aching tension in l. side of occiput; downward on inside of l. in forenoon; backward in l. in evening, < middle, returned in morning on waking, < beginning to walk, > sitting. Tension in r. down to knee; in r. in forenoon when walking; cramp-like, in forenoon, now in muscles of anterior internal aspect of l. thigh, now in l. calf. Weakness, and of legs.

Knee.—Cracking. Sticking; in r.; on outermost tip; in r. in morning on walking in open air, when sitting warmth and numbness (the pain was like that of a periostitis he had had three years before, from a fall), the pain > afternoon when walking, next morning on waking pain in lower part of knees, on walking two cracks in patella and boring, difficulty in ascending stairs; in r. in forenoon when standing; r., then l. at 11.30 p.m. when sitting, with horripilation on one side of chest; r., < standing; on slight motion (a cracking in it) and on ascending steps, > walking on a level; causing shivering and fright; burning, in bend of l. Tearing in l. about noon; in r. K. and ankle at 3 p.m.; in l. on walking; l. on stepping, > lying, with sprained feeling, both returning in morning; externally in l. patella, > continued walking; through K. and tibia, < evening, with drawing, she does not know where to lay the legs; extending to feet when walking and sitting; to toes, with heaviness of feet; from r. to crest of ilium, then general prostration. Pain on moving it; through r. at night in bed, with shooting under nail of r. great toe; as from stiffness on rising from a seat. Dislocation pain in l. when walking; in l. at every step, and in ankle. Sprained soreness on descending steps. Bruised pain on rising from a seat and on bending it. Cramp-like drawing pain from hollow through joint, alternately in r. and l., between 10 and 11 p.m. in bed, < r. Tension in hollows as if too short on stepping; T. on rising from a seat, < ascending steps; in r., so that he could not stretch leg; in hollow extending to feet, in bed, K. often spasmodically flexed and extended. Pressure on l. patella when sitting and walking. Sensation as if grasped by both hands in evening. Weakness; in morning in bed; < forenoon, and after ascending steps burning in joints; give way when walking. Stiffness; in hollows; < rising from a seat, with weight.

Leg.—Swelling of veins. Trembling, with weariness, sticking and tearing, when sitting more a tearing, when walking sticking and tension, during which the toes are cold. Inclination to cramp on stretching out foot. Shooting in l. tendo-achillis in afternoon; in l. T. A. near os calcis at 2 p.m. during rest; periodical, in T. A. Tearing in lower end of r. in forenoon, with burning; in r. towards ankle at noon; lower part of l. in afternoon; extending into middle of thighs; jerking, on inner side of r. Pain in r.; in r. after dinner; in r. at night, preventing lying on r. side; along bone of r. at night, preventing lying on r. side; in r. up to hip-joint in morning, < noon, especially in hip-joint; burning, in r.; paralytic, in l. Tension in r. in morning; in r. in afternoon when sitting, with burning; in r. when standing after dinner, with weight; in r. so that he could not lie on r. side; in l. tendo-achillis in evening, < morning, < rest, > walking. Weakness of l.; W. in morning, with heaviness; when sitting and standing, > walking; and heaviness. Heaviness at night in bed. Tearing feeling of weight and weariness in morning in bed. Feeling when lying as if he could not raise it, which was not the case. Feel asleep on rising, with burning crawling in them.

Tibia.—Sticking; in l. in evening. Painful twitching in direction of long muscles of l., making walking difficult. Tearing in l. at noon; in l. in afternoon; paroxysmal, in l. in evening when walking, with digging. Bruised pain in evening on touch, as if flesh were loose from bone; intermittent B. pain outside of l. in afternoon. Sore pain in a spot in middle of r. at noon, it gave place towards evening to pain in small of back. Drawing pain; in r., with prickling in legs; along periosteum of l. at 7 p.m. during rest, then stitches in back near l. scapula. Drawing.

Calc.—Swelling. Gurgling as from drops of water extending down l. Cramp in morning in bed; in forenoon on walking; in l. in evening in bed on stretching out legs; at night on stretching out legs; even when walking, when they are painful as if too short; when dancing; in r. on stretching out leg in bed. Cramp-like pain in lower part of l. between 7 and 8 p.m., on walking, with dislocation pain in l. ankle; C. pain in l. at every step, with pain in corns on l. foot. Sticking in r.; back and forth to toes in evening when standing and sitting, with tearing, the foot jerks inward, with tremulous sensation in whole body, heaviness and tearing in back, chilliness, with red cheeks, afterwards it affected pit of stomach, a tension and constriction under ribs, with oppressed respiration, and stitches in chest and upper abdomen. Boring in r. in evening, with burning. Pain on ascending steps. Drawing in l.; in muscles of r. at 6 p.m. when walking; alternately in C., tibiae and soles; gripping, when sitting, > walking. Tension; in r.; in r. in forenoon; on ascending stairs; in r. as if it were too short and made of wood in morning on walking, afterwards alternating with tension in l. occiput. Constriction. Tremulous sensation when standing. Weary pain at night in bed.

Ankle.—Cracking on motion. Swelling of malleoli, with sprained pain on motion. Turns when walking; < descending steps. Sticking beneath l. malleolus, < motion. Boring in r. inner malleolus at noon. Sprained pain in l. on standing and walking; over l. inner malleolus when walking. Drawing gnawing about l. in morning on waking. Burning gripping, the burning < rubbing. Pain on movement, > next morning by continued walking; squeezing, in l. at night before going to bed, giving place to shooting in

l. sole; in r. drawing, in a spot over r. internal malleolus at noon. Drawing in r. at 6 p.m.; cramplike, painful, from r. inner to outer. Tension in malleolus when walking. Weakness in l. at night, with numbness. Stiffness of malleoli.

Foot.—Swelling in warmth of bed; of r. when walking in open air. Sticking in r.; in ball of r.; in the sore foot at night, with tearing; sudden burning, on back of l.; pinching, in back of r., < motion. Tearing in r.; T. at night, with rigidity, preventing sleep; drawing, in r. metatarsus and toes at night. Shooting dislocation pain in metatarsal bone of r. great toe at 8 a.m. on every step up-stairs, and in afternoon when walking beneath l. outer malleolus. Cramplike pain in l. metatarsal bones, with ulcerative pain in l. sole; C. pain in l. metatarsal bones extending to sole and ankle after mid-night, then in r. Drawing pain in r. in morning on waking, slightly > rising. Drawing extending into hips, with cracking in joints on motion. Tension in r.; in hollow; in r. in morning; in r. after dinner; in r. on moving toes; in l. metatarsus and great toe, < touch or motion. Throbbing in hollow of l. in evening; as from the jumping of a mouse in outer border of r. Weariness. Heaviness; in morning in bed; < ankles; on walking in open air, > continued walking.

Heel.—Sticking in r.; sudden, on outside of l. bone. Tearing in r.; T. extending into thighs and hip-joints when standing, < knee, > walking. Cutting extending to hollow of foot. Pain in l. Drawing in outer part of l. in evening after lying down.

Sole.—Jerking, > motion. Cramp at every step. Soft, sensitive, painful on walking. Stitches; in l. Tearing in r. in evening, > rubbing. Pain; as if suppurating, when stepping on them; cramplike, extending to toes on walking. Tension in narrow part of r. at noon on walking; T. as if too short on stepping. Drawing pain in morning. Falling asleep of l. in evening. Numbness, > rubbing, with crawling.

Corns.—Inflammation, with pain. Sticking; in evening in bed; at night in bed. Pain; as from a tight shoe; as if boot pressed them in afternoon and alternations of drawing pain combined with stiffness, now in joints of l. great toe, now in r. ankle, now in ligamentous connection of r. ankle with metatarsus. Sticking burning.

Toes.—Swelling. Inflammation of great, with pain. Nails, < middle, thick, horny and misshapen. Hæmorrhage below nail of little. Cramp on stretching out feet; C. during menses, > violent pressure, with flexion and bruised pain. Sticking in l. great; forepart of l. great; middle and great; in great, now r., now l., in forenoon; in root of nail of r. great in evening, in bed; in tips when sitting and lying. Tearing in first joint of r. great. Cutting extending forward in l. great in morning in bed; extending forward along inner border of l. great in evening during rest. Pain in nail of great; in balls of l.; in a corn on r. little; on inside of nail of great, with soreness. Painful drawing in first joint of l. great during rest, then on motion cramplike pain, at one time in inner malleolus, then in lower part of calf, again in knee and great toe. Tension in l. great, and in its metatarsal bone, < walking.

Skin.—Groups of black points like comedones on forehead, but they cannot be squeezed out. Black comedones on nose, upper lip and chin. Hands hard and dry. Hang-nails. Increased excretion of carbonic acid. Smelt of sulphur; in morning. Cracked, < open air; C., < hands; hands, < about joints, with soreness; above roots of fingers; about knuckles of hands, with rawness and roughness. Rough and atra-bilious. Liver-spots on back and chest, with itching in evening. Blue spots about malleoli, with varices.

Redness of hands and fingers in evening, with swelling as if frozen, with tension on motion; red inflamed spot on dorsum of nose; R. on back of r. arm, with burning; R. spots on arms after washing with soap and water, with burning; R. spot on l. cheek near ala nasi, then itching and elevations, with redness and heat of cheeks, traces of a similar elevation on r. cheek, < dinner and evening after wine, afterwards desquamation in round scales, which were transparent in centre, the skin beneath the detached scale elevated, red and sensitive, afterwards new scales on the spots that had desquamated, the eruption always < alcoholic liquors; bluish-red spot suddenly on inside of l. index; red, dry, dirty, with an attempt at formation of vesicles, perhaps artificial eczema, then pityriasis, with much itching.

Eruption; burning itching; itching, on hand; painful, about chin. Tetter on nape. Erythema on back of l. hand; on outside of leg, with itching, < night in bed, after scratching soreness, after the erythema smarting, < heat of bed. Desquamation; on face; on fingers in round spots. A scaly eruption which had been driven away by external applications returned after scratching, with burning itching. Erysipelas of breast, inflammation, hardness and heat, with red rays extending from nipple and sticking in it. (Herpes circinatus on r. middle finger became more swollen and shining), the ducts of the affected sebaceous glands filled with the products of inflammation appear more plainly, while the whitish scaly vesicles are more easily washed off.

Rash over whole body, with itching sticking; R. on r. leg, preceded by fever, leg swollen, hot, red, painful, with blisters containing yellowish serum, after the blisters burst some places were covered with thin yellowish-brown scabs, others became superficial ulcers. Heat rash on neck; biting R. on face, arms and lower limbs; itching R. over whole body, then desquamation. Nettle-rash; with fever; on back of hand; over whole body, hands and feet; under hips. Chilblains on fingers, the itching < warmth. Elevations covering back; reddish, on trunk and limbs; red burning, in r. palm; hard, hot, on l. upper arm, with sticking in it; wrinkled, colored like liver-marks, with scales.

Pimples on forehead; face; r. cheek; nose and upper lip; chin, neck, shoulders and behind ears; nape; l. side of neck; upper arm and lower limbs; about malleoli; here and there, with scabby eruptions; beneath skin on dorsum of hands; in a group under skin on back of r. hand, at joint of middle finger; of the color of the skin on thighs and arms, afterwards some had a red areola and at their apices a vesicle filled with limpid fluid, afterwards desquamation in fine scales, < region of elbows, thighs, < inside and near knees, rough; irregularly shaped, on back of hands, < r. thumb, with itching, < forenoon. Furunculous pimples, < face, with red areola and itching; F. pimple on l. temple and r. mastoid process. Hard pimple on l. cheek; l. angle of jaw; red, painful, near l. angle of jaw. Inflamed pimple on forehead; above l. brow; side of forehead; face; r. whisker; cheek; r. cheek; nape; lumbar region; back of r. hand; r. index and middle fingers; l. index, middle and ring fingers; back of third joint of r. index, at the apex a vesicle filled with opaque fluid, changing to pus, and the pimple became painful; at division between nates, making walking difficult. Painful inflamed pimples behind ear; on nates. Red pimples on thighs and r. hand, then on l. upper arm; on back of r. hand, with itching; on nose, upper lip, chin and forearms, with itching, and at times burning after scratching; nose, cheek, forehead and chin, with pain. Pimples painful to touch on forehead. Painful pimples above brows; on r. ear; r. brow; l. side of nape superiorly; white, between toes. Itching pimples; below l. corner of mouth; on arm; outside of l. elbow; backs of hands; inside of thighs; thighs, with red spots; on forehead, on rubbing a sticking in them; back of r. hand, when scratched they excrete a clear fluid, with twitching and smarting between fingers; between l. thumb and index, with areola, a vesicle filled with clear fluid formed in the apex, which burned when scratched; on face, moist after scratching; P. on outside of l. elbow, itching in morning; P. behind r. ear, with itching in evening; P. on inside of l. knee and on elbow, itching after going to bed.

Pustules above l. brow; in r. brow; on forehead; dorsum of nose; cheek; which let out fluid when scratched, on back near loins; pulsating, on l. ala nasi; reddish, with rough areola near union of ring and little fingers, itching in the heat; red, on l. forearm, itching on touch; reddish itching, on r. thumb near metacarpus; itching, in bends of elbows; on back of hand, itching in warmth of bed. Pustules similar to itch in bends of elbows and on wrists; on dorsum of r. hand; anteriorly on l. thigh. Onychia at l. thumb-nail after a slight injury, pain extending to metacarpus, inflammation of first joint of thumb. Redness at tip of r. thumb, on side next index, back of thumb, bearing the nail, painful as if gathering, next day a whitish spot in centre of the redness, then a purulent deposit with a pale red areola imbedded in skin, afterwards the deposit became a brownish swelling, a transparent fluid had exuded beneath the pus and raised it up, but the pus gradually mingled with it, in the whole hand throbbing pain, < touch, ending with burning smarting, the bed of the nail was not involved.

Tongue.—White; and thick and denuded; and swollen, corrugated, and mouth; and eroded, dry; and denuded, and mouth and throat; T. and mouth, with much tenacious glairy mucus, white patches on throat; T. and mouth, and corrugated, dry, as far as lower lip, where there was a distinct line of demarcation; and mouth, afterwards the pellicles dropped, the mucous membrane beneath was bright red and very sensitive; and mouth and fauces, and covered with a white viscid secretion; covered with grayish-white crusts, tip and edges red. Dark. Very red, often bluish-red and shining. Swollen. Shrivelled, small. Phlyctenæ on back and on palatine arch. Denuded at tip and very red, parts of it coated white. Cast off its cuticle and was red, with prominent papillæ. (Dry). Insensible, dry in centre. Speech difficult; indistinct; short, abrupt, hoarse, with at times hoarse hacking cough; only whispering, could scarcely open the mouth, from which exuded aropy mucus. Speechless.

Mouth in General.—Swollen; palate and pharynx, and injected, ulcerated; M. and fauces S. and inflamed, corners of lips burnt, with burning in pharynx and œsophagus. Inflamed, and fauces and pharynx. Brown. Ashy-gray. Bleached. White and ragged. Coated white, and pharynx, swallowing difficult, voice without sound; coated white, and fauces, peeling off in parts, leaving a raw reddish-brown surface, < dorsum of tongue and end of uvula. Covered with a fuzzy membrane, and fauces. Shrivelled and dry, and fauces. Aphthæ. Covered with fungoid blackish red masses, and fauces. Vesicles on inside of l. cheek. Superficial ulceration, with discharge of bloody liquid. All parts touched by the acid from mouth as far as could be seen covered with crusts and exuding an offensive ichor, then aphthæ and gangrene. Brown, bloody liquid in it. Frothing, with constant retching. Black froth issued. Brownish mucus. Mucus often comes into it, which causes choking, hacking, obliged to swallow it constantly; stringy copper-colored mucus and froth from the dependent corner of mouth. Discharge of frothy, viscid, tenacious fluid, with retching caused by the fluid irritating the fauces, the fluid ejected was reddish-brown, contained shreds of mucous membrane and seemed to be a mixture of mucus and saliva, reaction on test paper was neutral.

Pain; and heat. Burning pain; and in throat, speaking difficult and painful; extending along œsophagus to stomach. Dryness. Salivation; with nausea and constriction in stomach and abdomen; with swelling of parotids and constipation; saltish, even in morning. Breath offensive. Taste bad; in morning after waking; insipid and pasty in morning, > rising; bitter like bile, to bread, bread causes pressure in stomach; lost.

Clinical.—Sore mouth, aphthæ occurring during protracted diseases, especially in children with marasmus, with salivation, sour vomiting, stools like chopped eggs.

Throat.—Swelling of submaxillary glands, with inflammation and at times sticking. Pain as if swollen in submaxillary gland, as far as into tongue, with burnt feeling in tongue. Painful swelling of l. parotid, with suppuration. Swelling; of uvula and root of palate; of fauces; of fauces, which is whitish-gray; near cricoid, with pain; as if there were a lump in it. Redness and sensitiveness; dark R. of pharynx. Tough mucus. Rattling of mucus, and in chest, with difficult respiration, restlessness, with pains in larynx and chest, then death. Hawking; of mucus; of tenacious masses of mucous membrane; with retching and vomiting of bloody, reddish-brown mucus, which was so acid that it burnt holes in the linen.

Sticking in l. side of pharynx on swallowing, also in evening, with pain externally on touch; paroxysmal, in T. and chest, stopping the breath, when standing and walking, > open air. Cutting in side on swallowing. Scraping. Raeness. Sensitiveness. Soreness in evening on swallowing, < l. side. Tenderness from pharynx down to epigastrium. Pain; in fauces; and as far as stomach, < swallowing, talking or turning body. Constriction; in pharynx; < r. side. Burning pain; in pharynx. Burning; in pharynx; fauces and gullet; and œsophagus to stomach, with coldness of rest of body. Dryness. Feeling of mucus. Acidity.

Esophagus. — Stricture; with frequent painful vomiting. Exfoliation of mucous membrane in the form of a tube, the cast was very offensive. Pain; on pressure; extending to umbilical and epigastric regions; burning, in upper part. Heat. Swallowing difficult; from swelling opposite cricoid cartilage extending down trachea and moving on deglutition; as from an obstruction in pit of throat; of fluid, causing pain and convulsive cough, sometimes the fluid returned through the mouth and nares; impossible. Spasmodic dysphagia.

Clinical.—Tonsillitis, with tenacious, gray yellowish exudation, difficult swallowing, salivation, extreme fetor of the mouth. Diphtheria; valuable in the worst forms, regurgitation of liquids through the nose; drowsiness; characterized by a great quantity of exudation; diphtheritic croup, with drowsiness.

Stomach.—Hunger; and yet she eats without appetite, discomfort in stomach after eating; great, but nausea after eating, so that he must stop eating before he is satisfied; distressing, but inability to retain any nourishment; ravenous, > eating, with rumbling and gurgling in abdomen; desire for fresh plums. Appetite lost; with discomfort. Aversion to eating, > towards evening.

Thirst; after vomiting; during menses, with dry tongue; with inability to drink; burning.

Eruclations. — Sour; when walking in open air. Bitter; after dinner; sour. Like onions. Empty; in morning after coughing, then bitter, slimy. Of food; after coughing. Of water; > dinner; sweetish; salt, before vomiting.

Hiccough; at night; when smoking; < after drinking, with vomiting.

Nausea; in morning, with oppression of chest; in mouth towards noon, though food and drink are relished; from slightest liquid, with retching; > eruclations; everything turns around in stomach and rises up, is obliged to swallow it; with constriction in stomach; feeling as if stomach were disordered; with chilliness; sudden, then vomiting of clear water; faintlike, with griping cutting and twisting in abdomen and labor-like pain as if everything would press out. Retching.

Vomiting; after eating; with purging; then shivering, then ineffectual retching; of all food; of all fluid as soon as taken; of clear water, then of food taken the previous evening, then continued nausea; the matter effervescing as soon as it came in contact with the dust; of scanty coffee-like liquid; of slimy substances like coffee-grounds; brown substances; serous liquid, with white flakes at night; glairy mucus mixed with shreds of coagulated membrane; of the color of porter and of acid reaction; a fluid of the consistence of treacle and color of carbonate of lime. Of blood; convulsive; and mucus; mucus and black fibres; mixed with sour-smelling liquid, pieces of membrane and curdled milk; and dark grumous and viscid matter, afterwards brighter-colored and mixed with patches of tough mucus; streaks of B., with pieces of membrane; in clots, with watery brownish-red liquid and pieces of membrane; mixed with black clots of B., with neuralgia, then thin black stools. Black; and glairy; and flocculent mass; violent, of fluid mixed with flakes. Causing distress. Of casts of œsophagus. An elongated false membrane, evidently made up of mucous membrane of œsophagus. A backish mass formed from mucous membrane of stomach (after a fit of suffocation). Mixed with blood at 3 P.M., with pain and anxiety, then V. of a wide membranous tube, a part seemed charred, in other parts it was tinged with bile, the branching of vessels could be seen, it was tenacious and probably a part of stomach, V. and anxiety continued, and at 8 P.M. a tube was cast up, consisting of mucous and nervous coats of œsophagus, a part charred, and transverse muscular fibres could be traced round one of its ends, then she was comparatively easy and swallowed with more facility, but œsophagus was painful.

Distention; of epigastric region, also with pain on touch. Contraction of epigastric region. Sticking. Cutting in epigastric region; near l. side of S., extending to back; extending to hypochondria; paroxysmal, in region when sitting and walking, with painful moving about in it. Clawing every evening, as after taking cold. Griping beneath pit, and on pressure upon stomach bruised pain in it. Cardialgia. Distress, < eating hastily or taking indigestible food.

Pain; in pit; in region; in epigastric region; epigastrium on touch; epigastric region after eating, < hard food, with sensitiveness of S.; epigastric region, > vomiting; epigastric region, with tension; epigastric region, with a round hard swelling as large as a child's head; with ineffectual inclination to eructate; with feeling as if a hard, bitter substance rose into chest, with frequent risings of mucus, which is afterwards felt only in throat; in pit, extending to shoulders; so that he must keep his body bent, supported by two persons; as if a stone rose up, then salivation. Sensitiveness; of epigastrium. Tightness as if it would burst, after eating. Constriction, and in abdomen; in pit; sudden anxious, in pit, preventing respiration. Heaviness in pit. Coldness; from every drink unless some spirit is mixed with it; and relaxed feeling, with loss of appetite. Burning; sudden.

Clinical.—Dyspepsia, with vomiting of food and drink and craving for stimulants. Vomiting of drunkards. Vomiting of pregnancy, with constant salivation, feeling of lump in throat, soreness in pit of stomach, great thirst, vomiting > drinking hot water. Vomiting of pregnancy, intolerance of the smell of coffee, vomiting when lying on r. side. A valuable remedy for the desire of alcoholic drinks. Valuable for dyspepsia from alcohol, with persistent sour breath; the patient is shriveled and cold, and cannot eat, liver is enlarged, chronic diarrœa, etc.

Abdomen.—Distended; and tense; with emission of flatus. Muscles hard and rigid, with pain on pressure. Retraction; with sensitiveness to touch; with emptiness on percussion; painful spasmodic. Spasms. Resonant, with tenderness. < between umbilicus and ensiform cartilage. Flatulence caused by milk. Short, abrupt, difficult emission of flatus. Rumbling after emission of flatus. Gurgling on moving body by breathing when lying.

Stitches during menses, and in vagina. Neuralgia. Griping; in evening; at night; at night, with cutting and urging to stool. Pain; on pressure; < epigastric region and back; after eating, then digging and uneasiness in it; > pressure; with dragging down of parietes; with "bilious" symptoms; as if in uterus, with burning; labor-like, extending into hips, then bruised sensation in small of back; bubbling, in r. side, extending almost to back. Anxiety in morning in bed. Weak feeling as if menses would come on. Relaxed feeling in intestines after stool.

Flank.—Jerking in l., with pressure outward as with a finger. Sticking in l.; in l. in evening on inspiration after lying down, then sticking in l. upper part of chest. Gripping in l. Burning in r., with hacking cough.

Hypochondria.—Distention of l. Sticking in hepatic region near stomach; in l. on leaning to r. side; in l., > pressure; in l., often with sticking in chest. Gripping during stool. Burning all day when sitting.

Umbilicus.—Protruded and abdomen for about an inch and a half above U. red, with pain on pressure upon umbilicus or reddened part. Rumbling in region in evening before lying down and next morning after rising; R. in region, with feeling as if stool would occur. Sticking in l. side, extending into abdomen. Cutting in region, worse when walking in open air than in the house; C. and moving about. Pressure. Sickly warmth or heartburn in region.

Hypogastrium.—Sticking in l. side on movement; S. in region of inguinal hernia. Tearing in l. groin when sitting. Cutting in region of cæcum. Pinching in r. groin. Sharp jerking, almost like intermittent jerking colic, rather superficial. Gripping before, during and after micturition; G. extending into lumbar region, causing cold sweat. Pain in r. groin as if a hernia protruded when walking and standing, so that he dared not cough or inspire, afterwards a hernia protruded at times, < talking, with pain. It returned on holding quietly, especially on sitting, and then he could breathe and cough without trouble. Forcing out in a hernia at abdominal ring, with pain in the ring even after reducing the hernia; F. in r. groin as if a hernia would occur, in morning on waking, > rising, frequently recurring; suddenly in r. groin as if a hernia would occur on rising from stool, not affected by cough or respiration. Throbbing in place of inguinal hernia.

Clinical.—Enlarged spleen, which is painful on coughing, with hæmorrhages in various parts. Sometimes indicated in inguinal hernia.

Rectum.—Hæmorrhoids, itching; H., with burning and sticking; with moisture and pain on touch. Pain as if it would be torn asunder during stool. Rush of blood. Sticking in anus before soft stool. Pressing in anus during and after pasty stool. Ineffectual desire for stool.

Stool.—Liquid, black, fetid, relieving the pain for a moment; partly L., partly solid, offensive, with much thin mucus and streaks of blood; (L., green). Diarrhœa; dysenteric; till evening, of only fermented mucus, with burning in rectum, flatulence and rumbling. Soft, then empty feeling in abdomen. Constipation; with pain in abdomen. Like sheep-dung. Hard and infrequent; H., delayed, painful; and bloody; in small connected black lumps mixed with blood, during menses, with sticking in anus so that she must stand up; first part, then soft; at first, and bloody, then soft, with burning in anus. As if chopped, saffron yellow, stringy and slimy. Yellowish-white. Colored with blood. Black, mixed with blood. Frequent, green, painful. Large, formed. The child's napkins when washed went into holes. Indolent. Omitted; in the primary action, and urine retained.

Clinical.—Diarrhœa, like chopped eggs, of yellow mucus, sometimes frothy, said to be < eating oysters; often indicated in children; the evacuations are extremely fetid, and there is a general sour odor over the whole body.

Urinary Organs.—Pain in bladder if the desire to urinate is not immediately satisfied. Pressure upon neck of bladder as if everything would force out, when standing, walking and sitting, obliging him to press thighs together, > coition. Frequent micturition of only a few drops. Obligated to rise at night to urinate. Constant desire, always before the last drops cutting in urethra, for seven days, afterwards there is every time a dragging in loins and groins. Frequent desire, with pain behind symphysis and on urinating cutting, the catheter met with an obstruction in region of neck of bladder, which was found to be a swollen and very sensitive prostate. Burning in urethra after coition. Burning in urethra during micturition, with diminished urine; with increased then diminished urine; with micturition only morning and evening.

Urine.—Increased. Diminished, thick. Suppressed. None passed in morning. Red and fiery; brownish-red. Like water; and soon desposits a thin mucous sediment. Becomes turbid when standing and desposits an earthy sediment. Has a fine pellicle on its surface and a bloody sediment. White sediment. An ounce of pale U., which had a powerful effect on litmus paper. Four ounces of clear amber-colored U., acid reaction, sp. gr. 1030, 1000 grains of it yielded 54 grains of solid residue, half of this residue was soluble in alcohol, the alcoholic solution showed free Sulphuric acid, the insoluble residue furnished 16.9 grains of sulphate of baryta. Albuminous and containing much Sulphuric acid; A., light brown, very acid, highest sp. gr. 1038, containing free Sulphuric acid, afterwards pale cylinders, with fatty degeneration, copious sediment of urate of ammonia, afterwards urine scanty, sp. gr. 1028, no chlorides; A., containing sulphates, pale cylinders, free blood-corpules and varying amounts of urates; and containing casts; and red, acid, sp. gr. 1020, containing Sulphur, on standing many pale or yellowish granular cylinders; with brownish-red sediment containing hæmatin, but no blood-corpules; and containing blood, with acute nephritis, in one case fibrinous casts and epithelia, and in the other cellular elements only, the albumen diminished from day to day, microscopical examination of kidneys after death showed a recent inflammatory process (granular opacity and fatty degeneration of epithelial elements, recent cleaving of the nuclei of interstitial tissue, especially along course of vessels).

Sexual Organs.—Warmth, and in scrotum. Itching pain in upper margin of glans. Erections during the day without amorous thoughts. Relaxation of scrotum. Emission without voluptuous sensation. Female.—Miscarriage. Discharge of coroding mucus; of bloody mucus, as if menses would come on. Burning leucorrhœa. Transparent or milk-like leucorrhœa without sensation. Menses too late; with pain in abdomen and small of back; too early.

Desire after menses; D. rather in external genitals, yet she was not much excited by coition. Aversion to coition after menses.

Respiratory Organs.—Rattling in trachea and bronchi. Sticking in air-passages. Bronchitis with prostration. Glossitis. Larynx, rattling of mucus; movements as in croup; sticking; constriction; sprained pain on talking and on external pressure; pain on touch; sensitiveness; pain, talking was irksome, as from immobility of parts. Hoarseness; with dryness and roughness in throat and larynx; and hollow voice, almost unintelligible; without sound. Voice croaking, almost unintelligible; low muttering; feeble; weak, croupy, then lost; lost.

Cough; caused by open air; on walking in open air; fatiguing; distressing, with whistling respiration and croupy voice; rattling, hoarse; rattling, shaking, interrupted; hacking. Dry C., afterwards loose with improvement; short D., with paroxysms of gasping; in paroxysms; also in morning after rising. Cough in morning with slimy expectoration; C. from irritation in fauces, with white frothy expectoration; paroxysmal, with copious expectoration, at times with vomiting, then diarrhoea, fever and night-sweats, pain in chest, offensive breath, percussion at apex of r. lung was dull, expiration prolonged, vesicular and hollow, and a peculiar purring over whole chest, gradual collapse and the patient died in slight delirium, the post mortem showed upper lobes of lungs adherent to œsophagus and an opening from œsophagus to a cavity which occupied nearly all of the upper and part of the middle lobes of r. lung, the cavity was filled with blackish-brown offensive fluid with lung tissue, pleura was almost gangrenous, etc.

Expectoration perpetual; copious; offensive. Hæmoptysis when walking slowly.

Respiration.—Suffocation; in spasms. Dyspnoea; at night, with cough; at night, with choking in larynx; and larynx moved up and down violently, child lay with head bent backward as in croup, lost consciousness and soon died; with distress and pain about region of stomach and r. lower ribs; with rattling in trachea; rattling; noisy; intermittent; and breathing irregular; causing anxiety. Stertor. Short; and difficult; and rapid. Rapid; with shooting in cervical muscles and movements in wings of nose; and heaving, with spasmodic motion of muscles of neck, and at each inspiration depression of lower jaw, so as to form a sort of gasping motion. Slow and weak. Moaning; and slow. Superficial and rattling.

Chest.—Moist râles. Rattling in evening in bed, with rapid pulse and short breath; R. in l. lung, then dulness with bronchial respiration and pneumonia; at base of lungs without dulness on percussion, with rapid pulse, cough, tenacious sputa, afterwards pallor with circumscribed redness of cheeks, next day oppression of chest, bronchial respiration, in r. side some râles, on l. side moist and rattling râles, respiration 40, headache, next day pallor, clammy sweat and death. Dulness at base of r. lung, then pneumonia, collapse and death. Painful spasms.

Stitches; in r. breast; in l. side of sternum by costal cartilage; in front of and beneath r. axilla; in front of l. axilla on putting down a heavy weight, then bruised pain over a large part of sternum; in r. costal region during menses, < inspiration; in l. side when walking, < inspiration and cough, > rest; deep in l.

side with arrest of breathing, then sensitiveness in a spot to left and above ensiform cartilage; in r. breast, extending deeper upon pressure; in sternum extending to other side of chest in evening on entering house; sudden, in l. upper part, extending into back; paroxysmal, in lower ribs, extending next day to tract of lumbar nerves, with hyperæsthesia of skin extending over whole body, with rest in no position; paroxysmal, in r. lower part, < deep inspiration, with pain near spine between fourth and tenth vertebræ and along axillary line from fifth to tenth intercostal space and at union of ribs with their cartilages, hyperæsthesia of skin between linea-axilla mammillaris.

Neuralgia in intercostal nerves, between r. tenth and sixth ribs, paroxysmal, from deep inspiration, < night. Cutting in front of l. axilla. Scraping deep in middle with burning and tearing. Pain along sternum; P. on inspiration; in middle of sternum, as from a thrust; acute drawing, in middle, preventing deep inspiration; pulsating bubbling, beneath l. ribs. Pressure on l. side and in pit of stomach; inward in r. ribs, worse at intervals. Drawing tension in l. side. Oppression; from catarrh in morning on waking, with irritation to cough without anything to be loosened, after several hours easy expectoration of mucus. Constriction. Fulness. Burning pain, extending down behind sternum, causing anxiety. Burning in l. side in attacks; B. in l. outer part, as from boiling water; worse at intervals. Weakness so that talking is difficult.

Heart.—Stitches through it, then sore pain. Pain in precordial region. Anxiety in precordial region extending over whole chest. Palpitation; when upper part of body is pressed forward resting upon arms, with inclination to take a deep breath. Beat of H. and arteries scarcely perceptible.

Pulse.—Rapid; and tense, full; and small; and feeble; and contracted; and intermittent. Slow; and large; and small; and feeble. Hard and full; H. and tense. Small; and thready, irregular, tremulous; and tremulous, with coldness; and weak; and weak, trembling; and scarcely perceptible, at times intermittent; and irregular; and irregular, scarcely perceptible; and contracted, irregular, almost convulsive and tremulous, sometimes rapid, sometimes intermittent. Thready; and almost imperceptible. Weak; in humeral arteries, could not be felt at wrists and temples.

Neck.—Swollen. Pain in l. side on pressure; as from a weight between side and l. shoulder. Drawing beneath r. ear.

Back.—Sticking in spine and l. side of nape. Pain; as if sore and beaten; drawing, on motion and on stooping. Stiffness in morning, > during the day on motion. Lumbar pain; bruised, when sitting and standing; on movement, like a soreness or like a spasmodic drawing; burning. Weakness in lumbar region and lower limbs so that he could scarcely stand alone.

Extremities.—Livid. Swelling of wrists and other large joints, with pain. Convulsive movements of arms and legs. (Twitching of tendons.) Inclination to cramps in hands and feet. Tearing during menses, < evening. Pain in joints during sleep. Sensitiveness.

Upper Extremities.—Pain as from an ulcer in l. axilla, extending into chest, < ascending stairs and walking, forcing her to sit down. L. axillary glands sensitive. Shoulder, jerking in r. on writing; stitches on raising arm; sticking tearing in l.; cutting, with burning, as if it would cut through; intermittent, tremulous sensation in l. Arm, stitches in joint; intermittent drawing and spasmodic constrictive, paralytic pain in r. when writing; heaviness. Tearing posteriorly beneath r. shoulder-joint and extending up about it. Cutting extending down l. arm. Tensive pain in elbows. Smarting as if bruised on outer side of l. elbow. Sudden bruised pain in l. ulna close to wrist every three seconds, extending up into arm. Drawing in wrists, with weariness.

Hand.—Jerking in metacarpal bone of r. index extending into arm; painful, in joint of metacarpal bone of thumb, extending into wrist and at times into arm. Tensive pain in r. metacarpus when walking in open air with arm hanging down, with heaviness as if blood accumulated in it. Painful beatings in metacarpal bone of r. index.

Fingers.—Stitches in middle of joints; burning or smarting S. on r. side of middle. Tearing in first joint of r. thumb; beneath nail of index, as in a whitlow, < cold water; jerking, extending from r. thumb to chest when sitting. Jerking pain in tips; through r. thumb, starting from tip. Burning stinging crawling as if asleep in tip of little and in a spot on middle.

Lower Extremities.—Staggering and falling in the street, then collapse. Stretching. Heaviness. R. inclined to numbness. Cramp in r. hip.

Thigh.—Sticking externally in middle of l. Tearing in varicose veins of T. and leg in morning in bed; T. up and down in l., > rubbing. Cutting. Intermittent pinching in a spot on inner side of l. Acute pain as from a blow obliquely above l. knee in wave-like intervals. Pain in l. near knee, feeling as if it would soon become cutting. Intermittent pressure on upper and inner part of r. Constriction low down, extending at intervals into leg. Spasmodic constrictive paralytic pain in r. T. and leg.

Knee.—Stitches like thrusts in middle of r. when sitting, then pain; pricking S. in hollow of l.; burning, in l. Painful jerks like thrusts in inner side of l. Burning pain in hollow of r. Painful weakness when standing, with jerking in them.

Prickling stitches in l. tendo-achillis. Pain in calves more when sitting than when walking. Crawling in l. tibia; in calves when walking, with cramp. Falling asleep of l. leg when sitting still, < walking. Intermittent pain like thrusts or jerks beneath l. outer malleolus. Stiffness of malleoli when walking. Stitches in a corn; burning S. in heels. Tearing in l. heel in morning on waking; T. in a corn, forcing him to draw up the foot. Bruised pain on l. sole, at first increasing, then jerking, then suddenly disappearing. Acute pressure in r. instep, increasing and decreasing. Falling asleep of l. foot in evening when sitting. Prickling stitches beneath great toe. Intermittent jerking gripping in toes.

Skin.—Jaundice. Pale, cold and covered with sweat. Livid, dry and desquamating in small scales. Bluish spots on forearms as from settling of blood. Lower lip, cheeks, back of hand and forearm swollen, red and painful, as after a scald, next day, cuticle of hands, etc., black, dry and rough, on third day the pellicles of tongue, lips and cheeks had fallen off, all mucous membranes of mouth bright red. Red patches on forearms, > pressure, but returning immediately on its removal. Eruption on head, face and nape; on hands and between fingers, itching < after midnight. Chilblains on fingers, with acute pain.

Pimples on forehead and side of nose. Burning-itching red spots on tibia with a pimple in the middle, after scratching the part swells, after the swelling ceases the itching begins again. Skin of l. side of face partially removed and the whole presented a white disorganized appearance, eyelids inflamed and swollen, l. eyeball involved, inside of lips white and swollen, white excoriated streaks on back of l. hand and between fingers, the white marks turned brown, pain in l. eye extending into head, bursting of cornea and discharge of aqueous humor and crystalline lens, towards the close of the fifth day a shivering fit, next morning acute pain in bend of r. arm where he had been bled, inflammation around the orifice, swelling of arm, afterwards febrile symptoms, difficult breathing and other signs of pulmonary inflammation, death on the thirteenth morning. Sloughs on r. buttock close to anus, a probe passed some distance into pelvic cavity and towards gluteal region. Dark red elevations on back of hand, with a scab, under which there seems to be matter. Boils on back. Ulcers on hands and feet.

Stitches in the scar of a burn; S. as from woolen clothing. Intermittent burning cutting crawling like a corrosive soreness. Corroding sensation in an ulcer. Itching, appearing in another spot on scratching.

Clinical.—Purpura hemorrhagica. Itching over whole body was cured by Sul. ac.

Sleep.—Yawning after dinner. Sleepiness; in morning after waking. Wakeful all night. Falls asleep late; and wakes easily; and sleeps uneasily, wakes often. Wide awake after two hours, as if he had slept enough. Wakes after midnight; with heat, dryness of throat, thirst, intolerance of being uncovered. Sleep light and seldom. Restless. Frequent starting from sound sleep. Jerking, causing starting up, and salivation; J. together of fingers and doubling up of them, so that he started up. Dreams unremembered; anxious, even to crying out; anxious, of fire, dead persons and danger; by a woman that she had coition twice, and orgasm twice; by a woman of desire for coition and on waking a tumultuous desire therefor, which was especially seated in the clitoris. Nightmare as if a weight were lying upon her or as if some one were holding her by the throat, she could not speak, she woke in perspiration, two days before menses.

Fever.—Chilliness; all day; in morning, > open air; external, with internal heat and prostration; alternating with heat. Shivering, with gooseflesh; internal, through trunk; down trunk, without chilliness. Cold skin; < limbs. Cold face and limbs; face and hands; limbs; limbs, and livid nails; limbs, and cyanotic; hands, with transient warmth of body; hands and feet; feet and forehead.

Heat; in evening after lying down; during or after dinner; with delirium and excitement; with small, rapid pulse; with small, rapid, hard pulse; with full, hard pulse, then fever with raving, then pulse soft and small, then rapid, skin covered with cold sweat; in attacks; dry, in evening after a journey of eight hours, till 8 P.M., with thirst, burning in eyes and once creeping chilliness; in skin; extending from throat along back; cool burning in l. cheek.

Sweat; during the day; in morning; on every motion; when sitting, < upper part of body; with scarcely perceptible pulse; sour, in morning, then hoarseness. Cold sweat; after taking anything warm, < face and forehead; and clammy; on forehead. Skin dry, forehead covered with drops of sweat. Skin hot and dry.

Clinical.—Typhoid fever, with phosphoric-acid symptoms of great drowsiness and slow answering, desire for stimulants, which give relief, vomiting of food, sour discharges. Typhoids, with hæmorrhages, rapid sinking, deathly paleness of the face, thick, soft pulse, sense of general trembling.

Sumbul.

A tincture is made of the dried root of Ferula Sumbul, Hooker fil.

General Action.—A feeble narcotic; used in Russia for a nervous stimulant, especially in low fevers, dysentery, delirium tremens, hysteria, et cætera.

Closely allied to Asafoetida and Moschus.

Generalities.—Emaciation. Strong odor of the medicine from the breath and skin, < palms, which felt sticky. Darting pains in l. lumbar region, in chest, sides and abdomen during the day. Bruised sensation in muscles, < l. triceps. Tingling. Throbbing in nape, abdomen and lumbar region. Clogged sensation, < head and stomach. Sensation as of cobwebs being moved over different parts, first of cerebellum and then over face. Sickness. It feels especially good to sit down. Weakness; in morning; in morning, with sleepiness; in evening, with stretching and yawning; from walking; from least exertion, < arms and hands, and chiefly l.; with trembling; with oppression; with listlessness; as from insufficient, unrefreshing sleep. Faintness; on hearing music, the loud notes jar in the head; with vertigo on stooping; tendency to, from stooping or excitement.

Mind.—Fit of hysterical laughter and tears. Nervous excitement in evening after listening to a disputation, with heat, < head. Excitability, easily depressed, easily aroused to passion, sensation as if least provocation would enrage, with mirth, with the excitability fulness in temples and forehead and cerebellum, < l. side, and pulsations below l. ear. Mirthful, smiling, disturbed by nothing; M., witty. Cheerful; and excited; and disposed for intellectual occupation, happy enthusiastic state as after performing a noble deed; and mirth, alternating with despondency as if ill-treated by every one. Vivacity, hastiness. Cannot feel compassion. Amorous. Fond of the society of women. Anxious. Easily frightened. Despairing. Melancholy, no desire for labor, even intellectual. Irritable; in afternoon and evening; in evening, from harsh music, and agitated. Restless when reading. Tranquil and indolent. Activity; anxious, with physical weakness. Intellect dull in morning, clear in evening. Thought disturbed in morning. Mistakes in writing and summing.

Head.—Aching; < 6 P.M., with tensive fulness. Constriction, < from forehead to occiput; numbing, in brain as if contracted, in morning. Confusion; during the day, but in afternoon he was more overwhelmed, with tendency to snore and he did so when awake; with contracted feeling in forehead; with contractive pain in l. half of forehead. Fulness. Affected by sunbeams, it feels full of blood, and in cerebellum heat, uneasiness and fulness extending to spinal cord. Uneasiness, < forehead and cerebellum, with heat, light and ebullition of blood. Ebullition of blood, with lightness and exalted feeling. Blood seems to circulate quickly, < l. side. Heaviness; with compression from one temple to the other and heat in forehead. Vertigo; in evening on stooping; on stooping; from using warm water; on rising from a seat and when lying.

Forehead.—Constriction of skin. Pain; over eyes; in l. eminence; after dinner; with heat; pushing, in a spot in l. eminence; tensive, in F. and over eyes at 6 P.M. and in evening, < l. temple. Constriction on rising. Confusion. Oppression. Fulness; and over eyes; and in cerebellum; in F. and occiput, with dullness. Heaviness.

Pain in temples; in l. Painful pulsation in l. temple at 7 P.M. Oppression in temples, < l., and over l. eye. Pressure in a spot on vertex. Weight extending from vertex to brows. Pain in occiput; from cerebellum to frontal region during menses. Painful uneasiness in l. cerebellum, with stiffness in adjoining muscles on moving head. Round sore elevations over l. parietal bone, painful on touch, dry, coming off in dry scabs, < in a line over ear.

Eyes.—Dull. Brilliant and face fresher. Sensitive to light; l. to artificial light. Seem too tight, with biting in lids and blinking. Sudden sensation of a foreign body in l., spreading over ball and obscuring vision, intolerance of light at 5 P.M., < 6 P.M., lachrymation, can be closed only half way, as if lids were swollen, and very painful when closed, so as to disturb sleep, woke next morning with pain in l. eye, pressure of closed lid was very painful, red streaks across cornea towards external canthus, inflammation of conjunctiva towards external canthus, sensation of a sharp body grating against ball when turned outward, pain in l. eye, < moving it. Biting in l. lids. Twitching in l. brow. Vision dim; dim transiently, with stupefying pressure in eyes; quivering; flickering, > eructations.

Ears.—Singing and hissing; S. (as of a kettle) in r. in evening.

Nose.—Swelling of l. ala. Ala sore, < morning and towards night. Picking. Teasing tickling. Itching inside tip; in evening; intermittent. Sneezing. Coryza; < morning; yellow; thick, bright yellow, gummy; tenacious yellow, < l. nostril, nose dry towards ala; thick whitish, in morning, with diminished smell; watery; watery, at 8 P.M.; watery, cold, with soreness about edges of nose. Stuffing; at root; in evening; > olfaction of Camphor; with diminished smell; extending down its chamber; in chambers extending towards throat, in morning; of yellow mucus, extending into throat; of thick yellow tenacious mucus; of yellow tenacious mucus on waking, < 9 A.M. Obstructing mucus in root extending into throat, so that he speaks through the nose. Bleeding. Smell lost.

Face.—Pale and thin. Cramplike pain in masseter muscles at noon and in afternoon, with stiffness on moving jaw and pain in meatus auditorius. Sensation of cobwebs moving over it at 10 P.M. in bed. Sensation as if skin were tight. Swelling of upper lip and of gum. Heat and dryness in lips and mouth.

Mouth.—Shooting in first l. lower molar in morning; in first l. upper molar, extending into cheek.

Tongue.—Elongated, red. Flabby, showing imprint of teeth, papillæ at apex enlarged. Papillæ red, enlarged in morning. Glazed. White, with brown crust at back; W. in morning, and elongated; in morning, brown in centre and at back; in morning, with brown crust in centre and at back. Coated white, rough; coated white, with brown crust at back, papillæ conicæ and filliforme enlarged; dirty white. Dirty brown at back in morning. Brown coat in morning on waking; B. coat, with rough feeling as if scraped; moist; moist in morning, but towards evening it became red and elongated and papillæ like deep red spots, with wedge-shaped brown crust at back. Heat, and in throat and stomach.

Salivation; in morning, with tenacious mucus in throat and constant want to swallow; thin; watery, and swallowing frequent. Watery saliva, with pressure in pit of stomach. (Saliva frothy and speech difficult on account of difficult motion of tongue.) Dryness, and in throat, without thirst. Hot breath; in evening; at times, and offensive; and balmy. Flat odor. Taste clammy; at noon, with eructations and taste of food (herring) many hours after eating; deficient T.; of horse-chestnuts at night; of bread at 7.30 P.M.; flat and heavy to food and beer. Want of relish; for animal food and stout.

Throat.—Mucus; obstructing; obstructing, sweetish. Tenacious mucus; in morning; hence it is convenient to keep the mouth constantly open; with erosion, heat and rawness; greenish; sweet; sweet, causing hawking, but without detaching it upward; thick, in T. and mouth on waking at 4 A.M., with constriction at top of gullet, constant swallowing, attempts to clear throat by sounds like croup, breathing impeded but better when lying on back, sensation of film around top of gullet, choking constriction, l. side of chest oppressed.

Stitches in fauces > swallowing saliva, with rawness and soreness. Snatching sensation. Scraping. Rawness in evening; towards night, with hoarseness; and soreness. Excoriated feeling in l. side of upper part of T. and back of mouth at noon; near l. tonsil at noon, < speaking. Tickling; at 6 P.M., inciting to cough; with harshness and roughness. Heat in evening. Constant swallowing. Dryness of œsophagus.

Clinical.—Spasm of pharyngeal muscles.

Stomach.—Appetite great; at 6 P.M.; for bread; and assimilation increased; A. variable, large at one meal, absent at the next; deficient, especially for animal food; lost; no desire for animal food or beer, little appetite at dinner. Thirst for stimulants; in evening, especially for wine; for wine, it tastes very agreeable, while stout tastes heavy and leaves a clammy insipid taste.

Eructations; at 4 and 10 P.M., after beer, with burning pyrosis and taste of beer, with rumbling and twisting in abdomen; with odor of musk; with taste of musk; tasting of bread at 7 P.M. Empty eructations; at 11 P.M.; before stool; with taste of last food (bread), also pyrosis. Pyrosis after stool at dinner. Hiccough, with cough. Nausea; in throat; all day; in throat from 3 till 5 P.M.; at 11 P.M., with oppression of forehead, < l. temple; with salivation. Bilious vomiting.

Shooting in cardiac end in evening; in cardiac end (l. hypochondrium). Cutting at 4 P.M. Pain in pit; in S. or intestines; in epigastric region; with rumbling; deep in pit, with anxiety and loud breathing, then rumbling, tensive, in cardiac end and through l.

breast. Emptiness, then bulimia. Heat rising into throat; pleasant warmth in S. and abdomen.

Abdomen.—Flabby, doughy. Hard, heavy. Distention; and heaviness; and sensitiveness deep in umbilical region, < retracting abdomen; extending to sternum, heaviness, with discomfort, < stooping or lifting leg. Rumbling; and gurgling. Bubbling. Emission of flatus; fetid; fetid, hot. Cutting. Pinching. Forcing-down pain, < l. side, with commotion and sickness. Sensation of diarrhoea. Dry heat, which flushes to skin. Bubbling in l. side. Intermittent pressure between stomach and navel, < pressure, fullness in epigastric region. Pain in umbilical region on gentle pressure, with drawing in of abdomen. Heat under umbilicus, rising into throat and head and flushing to the skin, which becomes moist. Shooting in r. hypochondrium; in evening when walking; tensive, in r. lower. Gnawing in r. hypochondrium; in evening. Gnawing in r. hypogastrum; in morning; in evening; < deep inspiration, with tensive pain. Throbbing pain in r. hypogastrum in evening. Twitching pain in l. iliac region. Sickly pain in l. iliac and inguinal regions before stool. Sensation in hypogastrum of approaching diarrhoea.

Rectum.—Sticking in lower part. Pain in morning, with uneasiness as if protruding. Sensation as if it protruded after stool and as if anus were not closed. Sensation of something moving in it at 8 P.M.; near anus at night, with biting. Inclination to stool; frequent; frequent ineffectual, to diarrhoea. Hæmorrhoids excited. Raw sensation in anus during stool. Uneasy dryness, with sensation as if not closed, painful when walking.

Stool.—Diarrhoea; with urging, burning and biting in anus and rectum, with painful tension extending to tip of penis, then drops of mucus from anus; fetid; scanty; scanty, then burning and cutting at anus and frequent chilliness through back, with weakness; consisting at last of bits of mucus, scanty, with urging and cutting in orifice of anus, constant sensation as if another stool would follow, with erection, dribbling of urine and almost involuntary contraction of levator and sphincter ani; then constipation. Soft; preceded by flatus; with straining; and scanty; and abundant, fetid; and small, delayed; and brown, with bitings in rectum; and sudden; and sudden, with rawness in anus; and long and thin, with great expulsive efforts, preceded by sickness, commotion of intestines and sickly pains in l. iliac and inguinal regions, with the stool sensation as if rectum protruded and as if anus were not closed.

Constipation; without desire, as from constriction of anus. Hard; in lumps; in pieces, slight; in pieces, preceded and followed by sweat and external heat, which soon changes to external coldness, with tremblings and cold sweat; (first part, then soft, copious, then blood). Scanty; and hard. Consisting almost only of empty urging, with much urine, then ineffectual urging to stool with emission of flatus. Large, fetid. Difficult, in pieces and gritty. Preceded by tremor, cold clammy sweat and forcing. Increased secretion of mucus in intestinal canal.

Clinical.—Has proved useful in chronic dysentery and diarrhoea.

Urinary Organs.—Frequent desire; in evening, with sensation as if bladder were nearly empty, and small emission; in small quantities; constant, and for stool. Ineffectual desire, then constant pressure and urine had to be forcibly restrained; frequent ineffectual efforts to urinate, with urging to stool, cutting in anus and coldness in back.

Urine.—Reddish-brown, with white cloud; R., with oily pellicle adhering to side of vessel, also with rosy sediment. Brownish-red, with light cloud at bottom. Yellowish-red, a floating cloud forms at the bottom, oily pellicle on surface; Y., with white floating shreds, which fall into a cloud at bottom, like white spots. Bright reddish-yellow, passes quickly, feels hot, after some time a white floating cloud could be seen at the bottom. Clear, with white floating particles; C., with white shreds, after standing pink tenacious sediment, oily pellicle; with white floating shreds, after some hours there forms at the bottom a white floating cloud, easily disturbed, in which the shreds appear like white spots; and scanty, deposits a rosy, tenacious sediment; and deposits a whitish tenacious sediment. Muddy, clear on surface, with oily pellicle. Increased. Diminished; and of strong ammoniacal odor; and turbid, micturition frequent. Sediment whitish, and covered with an oily pellicle; reddish-brown, with oily pellicle; rosy, with rosy coating.

Genital Organs.—Itching, with increased desire. Heat at 6 P.M., at 8 P.M. chiefly in perineum, between thighs and penis. Penis and lining of prepuce painful and irritable, tingling in glans, l. scrotum hot and inflamed, skin excoriated in places, leaving a bright red surface, in l. testis shooting, heat and burning pain, erythema of l. side of scrotum exactly to raphe and of glans and lining of prepuce, smegma behind glans near frænum, next day burning tingling in glans, prepuce and glans moist, with watery, saltish-smelling fluid, excoriation of l. scrotum, end of prepuce thickened, phimosis, whitish, curdy matter between glans and prepuce, which are bluish red and swollen, l. testis dark red, excoriated, third day shooting in end of penis, greenish yellow pus from the excoriated scrotum, voluptuous itching, tickling in prepuce, fourth day want of desire, aqueous discharge from glans, in evening intermittent itching in end of prepuce (biting, stinging, pleasurable sensation), fifth day phimosis, constriction of prepuce a little above end (which is swollen), retaining drops of urine, afterwards tickling in end of prepuce, afterwards itching tingling in prepuce, itching in prepuce at night and in morning, afterwards tickling in lining membrane of prepuce, tingling in end of prepuce. Soreness of end of penis from friction of clothes in walking. Intermittent tingling in glans. Frequent erections. Itching of prepuce. L. testis suspended. Aching in l. testis. Sensation of flabbiness and rawness in l. scrotum in morning. Shooting in l. spermatic cord when walking. Tensive pulsation in l. spermatic cord when walking. Desire; absent (since l. scrotum healed), as from physical weakness, erections few and without pleasure.

Female.—White leucorrhœa, < after sitting. Menses retarded; too early, scanty and of short duration.

Respiratory Organs.—Increased mucus. Tickling in windpipe. Hoarseness; at 8 A.M.; after 9 A.M.; on rising, and bass voice. Voice obstructed by mucus in throat. Cough in morning; in evening; from tickling in throat; and hicough; in series, from 10 to 11 A.M.; two or three single C. in succession; dry; ejects sweet mucus into mouth. Hacking cough; in morning; in morning, excited by speaking and tickling in throat; in the daytime from irritation in throat as from air ascending spirally, also morning, noon and evening; from tickling in throat; from tickling in larynx, < morning; shaking; which detaches sweet mucus into mouth.

Chest.—Shrill, whiffing, jerking tubular sound anteriorly under l. clavicle on inspiration, the jerks perceptible throughout inspiration but the shrill, tubular whiffing only at beginning of inspiration. Lancinations in l. breast, < deep inspiration, with biting pain. Prickings in r.; under ribs; externally in a line with nipples; under l. ribs in evening; in a spot below l. breast in evening; in l. pectoral muscle on moving arm. Darting under lower sternum. Pain like a knife under l. ribs; in sides; in r. at noon; darting through after meals, > towards night; below l. breast, darting through side of chest, also slightly in r. chest, < inspiration. Pain under l. axilla in a line with nipple in evening; through l. side, < moving l. arm or leaning forward; paroxysmal, under sternum; bruised, in l. clavicle in evening, < moving arm.

Tensive pain below l. axilla; and near nipple, in a line with it externally; under l. ribs, in a line with nipple, at 9 A.M., < inspiration; in l. breast in evening; like a string pulling in r. breast. Tightness under l. breast; in l. breast and between it and sternum in morning, < inspiration; under l. breast, < inspiration; in l. side on blowing nose; with diminished mucus. Oppression of l., as if it were difficult to force the blood through the lung, < stooping. Uneasiness in l. lung.

Clinical.—Asthma.

Heart.—Sinking, and it beats softly, as if in water. Palpitation; at 9 P.M.; after running up-stairs; P. after beer, < paying attention to it; from least exertion; with flushes of heat. Jerkings in evening; intermittent J., worse during the flush of heat and after drinking stout, with palpitation.

Pulse.—Rapid; in afternoon; in evening, and strong; and full. Compressible during a chill. Irregular; in morning, and rapid; in evening, and full, compressible; and strong; and strong, compressible; and rapid; now rapid, now slow, and narrow, compressible and weak, slow, with occasional quick, full beats, compressible; and slow, compressible, afterwards rapid, then sweat in morning, then pulse narrow; and weak, low.

Neck.—Shooting from l. muscles up to temple. Tensive pain in muscles along l. shoulder over upper edge of scapula. Pulsation in nape and between scapulae, with heat. Uneasiness in nape and spinal cord, < l. side, < heat, especially of sun, with sensation of swelling, prickings and throbbings as if about to inflame; U. in nape, < l. side, extending in a less degree down spine to sacrum, with trembling heat. Stiffness extending towards ears and temples; S. in muscles of neck and back on rotating head, with pain.

Back.—Posteriorly over l. scapula an indistinct mixed murmur and purring sound similar to that which is supposed to depend on muscular contraction and often associated with rheumatism, and laterally on a line with l. nipple, when the inspiratory inflation is about half completed two respiratory jerks, and the same below l. nipple over the seat of pain. Pain in l. loin; in lumbar region in evening; tensive, near l.

side of top of sacrum when walking. Throbbing in l. side of sacrum; in sacrum at 6 P.M., with shooting.

Extremities.—Uneasiness, > motion in open air, with vibrations along nerves. Fulness of hands and feet. Dry, tremulous tingling in palms and feet. Weakness, < l. arm and leg.

Upper Extremities.—Strap falls over l. shoulder as if it were emaciated. Uneasiness in l. shoulder above superior edge of scapula, with tensive pain.

Arm.—Pain down l. and in knuckle of l. index; in belly of l. biceps when extended or touched. Bruised feeling; in muscles, < l. triceps; down l. Weakness of l.; of l. with numbness and heaviness; inside of l. and in triceps, with beaten sensation. Loss of elasticity of vessels of l. Numbness down r. to thumb; tingling pricking, from slightest cold or from resting it on anything.

Weakness of forearms. Hands red and their veins distended, < l.; on depressing hands. Fingers swollen. Shooting from back of l. ring F. to wrist (along ulnar nerve), at 10 P.M.; wiry, laterally up l. and in joints of second and fourth. Lateral surfaces of F. sore.

Lower Extremities.—Pain in knee, with stiffness of leg; (P. as if internal ligaments and coverings of r. knee were loosened in morning on stepping). Rheumatic pain externally from r. knee to ankle when walking. Legs felt as if they were not his own and he could not trust himself to walk. Weakness of legs in morning on waking, with heaviness; W. of feet, with unsteadiness on walking. Trembling of feet.

Skin.—Pale, cold, dry, with empty vessels, then clammy sweat; intermittent pallor in afternoon. Red spots on scapula, with itching and bleeding when scratched; smooth R. spots on face, < forehead. Skin peels off nose in dry patches. Soreness between l. fingers when rubbed. Itching; on upper inner part of thighs; on nose in morning; in military spot on back at 10 P.M., < r. scapula and hip; between r. thumb and index, where there is a red spot, that reappears after pressure and obliges scratching, afterwards another red itching spot.

Sleep.—Sleepiness in afternoon and at 6 P.M., with protracted sleep at night (till 1 A.M.); in evening after a walk; in the cold; without thought. Sleep at night long and sound, next day sleepiness and especially weakness in feet. Sleep prolonged in morning; with vivid dreams, also with difficult rousing from suddenly falling asleep again; in a half-waking sleep, with vivid dream of having risen and dressed, dream influenced by occurrences in the next room. Wakeful at night, but soon fell asleep again.

Dreams.—Many. Of falling from a height. Of personal diseases and injuries. Agreeable. Vivid; and agreeable, of recent events. Amorous in morning. Of coition, with profuse sudden emission and waking on r. side; of C.; with profuse sudden ejaculation and waking, then in morning dulness over eyes and in forehead and difficulty in retaining or collecting ideas.

Fever.—Coldness; during the day; in morning; in morning, flushing heat after dinner; in morning, < hands and feet, those of l. side feel icy and numb; sensitiveness to cold air, < a draught; with dry white shrunken skin; external, in morning, hands and lumbar region cold; creeping, < region of lumbar vertebrae, thence extending upward and downward, fingers cool and backs of hands shrivelled. Shivering; in back in morning, with cold hands.

Coldness occasionally above l. zygoma, as from the trickling of a drop of water. Coldness in back; internally; deep in spine; in lumbar region; frequently in spine, with sensation as if soft stool would follow; over lumbar region, as from cold air, also in morning; creeping, with nausea, salivation, inclination to urinate, pressure in stomach and rumbling in abdomen. Chilliness extending to upper arms, with cold skin. Cold hands; in morning; in morning, and clammy; and fingers; with flushes of heat and red hands, veins painfully distended; internally, and feet, fingers seem cold when put against the warm cheeks.

Heat; in afternoon, with easy sweat; at 8 P.M. when walking slowly, with sweat; in evening, with sweat; in evening, then sweat; at night in bed, with sweat; after least exertion; when walking after warm drinks, < tea, with sweat; during and after walking, with sweat, the heat rises to head and l. side of nape, causing faintness and vertigo, < rising from a seat, moving quickly, or after a little wine, running up-stairs, looking steadily at any object not directly before eyes, hands feel cool, with heat in head, face, < l. cheek, and neck, throbbings on l. side of neck, heat increases the symptoms; then sweat, < palms and face.

Nervous heat. Dry heat, or clammy sweat; D. tremulous, when walking, then sweat, hands cold; tingling, in skin; tingling, in skin, in hands and feet, with sweat. Heat in flushes; in evening; in evening, then sweat; during and after walking, with sweat; with sweat; with trembling; then sweat; ascending to throat, mouth and head; coming from back; welling from lumbar region over whole body in evening, in the sunbeams, when walking and during and after mesmerizing, with beatings of the heart. Dry H. in flushes in evening; with trembling, then sweat; D. in flushes, from within to surface, < exertion, heat in skin, which is ruddy and becomes moist.

Heat near surface; of skin; of skin, < hands (which are ruddy and veins distended), and in feet; rising to head; head and face in evening, then sweat; in face; l. side and cheek; face, hands and feet; nape; l. side of nape, with throbbing; along cervical spinal cord, with uneasiness; flushing, in back; trembling, along nerves of back and neck during the day, with feeling of insecurity and want of confidence in self-control over movements; tingling, in feet and palms, heat in flushes to the skin; as if hot water flowed through different parts, at one time in spine, < lumbar region, at another in abdomen, thence it extended into stomach and dorsal vertebrae, at times pressure deep in navel, at times higher up, with almost constant urging to stool.

Sweat; in flushes; greasy; with the odor of musk; cold, clammy; clammy, at 6 P.M., and flies continually settle on the skin; on l. cheek in evening. Skin dry.

Tabacum.

A tincture is made of the dried leaves of Havana tobacco.

General Action.—A powerful depressant, causing nausea and vomiting, feeble heart and pulse, low temperature, vertigo, delirium and collapse. It produces also violent gastro-enteritis. In some cases convulsions, of spinal origin, as well as a tetanic rigidity.

It may cause long-continued spasms of arterioles (Ergot), with persistent coldness of the surface. Its long-continued use favors degeneration of nerve tissue, as witnessed in atrophy of the optic nerve and general muscular paralysis (Phos.). Palpitation is a frequent and persistent symptom.

Alies.—Arsen., Lobelia, Verat. alb., Phosphorus, Coccul.

Generalities.—Emaciation; < back and cheeks. Marasmus. Consumption. Gout. Appearance parched. Muscles rigid. Flaccid, pallid. Collapse, with cold sweat (Verat. alb.). Hands doubled into a fist and drawn tightly across chest, fingers could not be stretched nor arm moved, muscles of chest and arms felt hard, with vibrating contractions of different fibres. Walks bent double, pressing hand over spine and groaning at every step. Chloro-anæmia in children. Congestion to head and chest. Blood deteriorated; red corpuscles diminished; thin, with passive congestions; thin, red corpuscles scattered, non-confluent and crenated.

Trembling; of tongue and limbs; of head and hands; head and hands after dinner, with mirth as in intoxication; and when he walked his legs seemed bowed, he had lost the full use of lower limbs and climbed into bed with difficulty, while in bed continual movement of muscles of arms and legs and sometimes facial muscles moved involuntarily; convulsive; hysterical, from conversation, rapid walking or violent motion of attendants, with twitching of all flexors, apprehension of some rapidly approaching physical catastrophe, the result of which would be death, he would clutch the arm of any bystander and beseech him to save his life, to relieve him from the præcordial distress and threatening suffocation.

Cramp. Twitching; of single muscles; in whole body, with pulsation in head and palpitation; of tendo-achillis and other muscles, < night, with restlessness and sleeplessness; of all muscles, with appearance of frightful pain, constantly placed his hand on his abdomen and tore at his penis; at night preventing sleep, and something seemed to draw l. shoulder down irresistibly.

Convulsions; of eyelids and masseter muscles, inability to open mouth; of arms, then of legs, afterwards of whole body, then prostration; and limbs forcibly contracted against body; and head drawn back, nape rigid; with copious dark greenish-brown diarrhœa; with rattling; with bending forward of body and stretching of limbs and subdued cries on account of pain in stomach; with rigidity of limbs, contractions of abdominal muscles, bending backward of body, distended bloodvessels on head; and sank to the floor, I noticed two short inspirations and all was ended, he was lying on l. side, mouth wide open, tongue protruding, lips, tongue and inside of mouth dark blue, eyes open, pupils contracted, general appearance of a man who had been struck dead suddenly, petechiæ all over body, with ecchymoses in places, rigor mortis very great; tetanic, < back; clonic. < limbs, teeth grit together, hands clenched, legs rapidly flexed and extended. Epilepsy. Spasmodic attack in morning, constant necessity to stretch and yawn, with rolling sensation through chest, abdomen and calves, then leaden heaviness of feet.

Neuralgia, universal, < night; different N., as of N. pudendas ext., waking him at 4 a.m., with painful erections and strangury, > about noon after watery micturition six or eight times, neuralgia of plexus cœliacus, with sour eructations, of fifth l. intercostal nerve, of r. plexus brachialis, as soon as one neuralgia ceases another starts up. Pain during low barometer and during a wind, > hot applications to stomach, lying on back and strict diet; drawing P. over whole body. Drawing in l. lower limb, between shoulders and beneath sternum.

Feeling as if blood circulated rapidly and violently. Shuddering through whole body, then nausea and violent vomiting, with from 1 till 4 a.m. convulsions of arms, lower limbs and in muscles of back. Restlessness; requiring continual change of place (Ars.); with pain and anxious perspiration. Hyperæsthesia of different nervous branches. Feeling of increased vigor in muscles, with disinclination for movement.

Weakness (Ars., Phos.); in morning after interrupted, restless sleep; greater in forenoon than in afternoon; towards evening, and on moving a part shivering and coldness between shoulders, with dizziness and stitches in temples, forehead and vertex; all night; of muscles, with flabbiness; of voluntary muscles, with vertigo on motion; with smarting and warm palms; and motionless, apparently insensible. Inclination to lie down, but when he goes to bed he cannot close his eyes to sleep. Loss of co-ordination of antagonistic muscles, so that when standing knees gave way and on sitting down I fell with my full weight upon the chair, unable to draw my clothes on my limbs without supporting myself, at times gait slow and shuffling, difficulty in ascending stairs, especially if the steps were high, such an ascent caused anxiety and dread of falling backward, so that I went bent forward, with attacks of vertigo on walking in open air, < looking upward suddenly, with weakness and at times nose-bleed. Disturbance of motility.

Faintness; sudden. Paralysis. Hemiplegia. Numbness; < l. limb and tip of tongue; beginning in tips of fingers, toes and tongue; of feet, gradually working up and causing paralysis of whole system; in one hand, gradually losing the use of it, then in the other, and in feet, slowly working towards the vitals, became helpless and for weeks before he died he could not swallow even liquids. Loss of sensation, voluntary motion and respiration. Aggravation on l. side; A. from great heat, great cold and especially in stormy weather; from walking, riding in a carriage, and jar of a railway train. Amelioration in open air; A. from vomiting.

Clinical.—Effects of sunstroke.

Mind.—Delirium, with vomiting and diarrhœa; quiet D. murruring to himself; mania-a-potn, sleepless, excitable, talkative and fantastic imagination, pulse soft, full, 85, look wild, skin cold and moist, tongue coated, moist, constipation, hearing excellent (had been hard of hearing), spoke rapidly and distinctly (had talked with difficulty for years, probably from partial paralysis of tongue); delirium tremens, tossing about the bed, with hallucinations of snakes, lions, bears, etc., thought he saw his father's head cut off and the blood running from the body, during these wild paroxysms he tried to get out of bed, it taking several men to hold him, he lolled like a dog and then tried to set an imaginary dog trot or some like imaginary animal, snapped at the attendants, drank eagerly.

then he had beautiful visions, saw a beautiful lake, said he would drown himself in that lake and attempted to get out of bed, on being prevented from rising he tried to choke himself and made himself black in the face before his hands could be loosened, begged some one take him out-doors and shoot him, but while under the influence of Belladonna catalepsy, eyes staring, eyeballs could be touched without his winking, afterwards no recollection of what happened on the first day, though he was rational till 4 P.M., urine high-colored, strong-smelling, passed by a catheter, stool omitted, would not eat, but drank eagerly, weak, dizzy on becoming erect.

Nervous excitability; with irregular action of muscles, < lids, mouth and upper limbs, then ease and contentment. Joyful and talkative; J. and lively; and danced about on one leg for joy. Singing all day. Laughter without cause. Agitation. Silly. Misanthropic. Taciturn. Morose. Despondent; > vomiting after dinner, with nausea; and irresolute, weak and incapacitated for business; and nervous; and fearful of death, yet attempting suicide; and apprehensive of sudden death. Apprehensive towards evening; A. of immediate death; and insensible. Nervous and timid; N. on smoking, and shaking. Timid, startled or trembling at any ordinary noise, afraid to be alone at night, aspect haggard, wild. Anxiety; in afternoon, with uneasiness; afternoons, > weeping; at night on being alone; when walking; with restless manner and frightened look; as if she dreaded death, two days at 4 P.M. Indifferent, would not answer, immovable. Indolent. Aversion to moving about. Psychological uneasiness. Cowardly, inactive.

Copious flow of ideas, often lasting all night, during which I would conceive and elaborate about twenty undertakings, of which probably not one would ever come to light, leaving me in the morning worn out and sick. Difficulty of concentration (Phos.). Confusion of ideas; and lack of words to express them. Inability to grasp an idea, which is crowded out by other thoughts, > vomiting after dinner, with heaviness and dulness of head. Unintelligible answers. Inferior intelligence in children. Dulness. Sluggishness. Loss of power. Memory failed. Inability to move or speak after waking suddenly about midnight, with cold sweat, then insensibility, then loss of memory, > pouring a bucket of water on his head, then vivid recollection of a variety of ideas and events which appeared to have passed through his mind and occupied him during his supposed insensibility.

Stupor; then wild intoxication, started up in bed, with ridiculous, foolish talking, with convulsive movements and spasm of facial muscles. Sopor, with half-closed eyes, staring, pupils dilated, trembling of limbs, rapid respiration, violent beating of heart and carotids, thirst, sweat and cold limbs. Insensible and dumb. Coma; then he was aroused by pain, made automatic movements, arose, walked a few steps as if intoxicated, threw himself upon the bed and tossed about; but when aroused by loud calls and vigorous shaking he clutched his forehead, crying "Oh, my head! oh, my head!" stared wildly about, conduct and appearance as in delirium tremens. Unconsciousness; with the appearance of sleep; without apparent respiration; and falling to the ground; screamed out that the smokers must go out of the room, though no one was smoking, that the fumes took away his breath, etc., then he became quiet and talked incessantly and irrationally, with staring eyes; spoke of his past life.

Head.—Trembling when reading. Thrown back, almost opisthotonos. Stitches deep in, extending towards vertex. Aching; and in eyes; in afternoon < above r. eye; after dinner, < forehead, < motion; suddenly when urinating, then vomiting; > open air; as if something in it were shaking in morning, on moving, > rest. Compression, < occiput. Heaviness; after dinner; on stooping; and it sinks forward. Oppression as if the world rested upon him, with weakness. Confusion; with pressure at root of nose and stopped sensation in ears. Congestion; and flushing heat. Sensation of rush of blood. Rising sensation like an aura. Shocks, then sensation of rush of blood. Apoplexy.

Vertigo; on motion; on attempting to rise; when standing and sitting; on entering the house after walking, with nausea and inclination to cruminate, the nausea < a warm room, so that she must go into open air, where she vomits the food eaten at noon; with reeling; with no steadiness of body; with weakness; with nausea; with pain in forehead and temples; with bruised sensation in head; with fulness of head; with pain deep in orbits and weakness of eyes; with colic; everything seemed to move from r. to l. or from above downward or the reverse; amounting to unconsciousness; paroxysmal; in attacks, preceded by pinching headache, compressed feeling as if the world rested upon him, disordered vision, everything around him seemed to move in all directions, after the attacks great weakness.

Forehead.—Contraction in muscles. Stitches extending to occiput, > open air, returned if he stood still, > lying down. Pain; deep in; above eyes; above eyes, with flickering vision, < walking; above eyes, with heat of head; and at root of nose; drawing, in l. half of forehead and through l. eye; as if brain were compressed, < bending head towards painful side. Sensation as if brain were pressed backward.

Temples.—Stitches in l.; sore S.; alternating with pressure; drawing, extending from l. over forehead to vertex. Tearing in muscles. Pain. Compression towards evening. Contraction. Throbbing.

Vertex.—Stitches. Pain; on waking, lasting nearly all day, and in temples; after eating; at times with stitches; as from a board.

Sides.—Stitches in l.; in parietal bone, extending towards occiput, on walking rapidly. Pain in r. during dinner; in bones in morning on waking, > rising; when pressing on r. bone; as if broken.

Pain in occiput; extending to temple. Giddiness in occiput. Hair falls out on combing. Fornication above l. temple. Itching.

Clinical.—Neuralgic headaches, sensation of sudden blows, as if struck by a hammer. Persistent headache, from one temple to the other, involving the orbits, or with shooting in left eye, > cold.

Eyes.—Surrounded by dark redness. Sparkling. Lost their brilliancy. Listless and heavy. Sunken; and seeming small. Turned upward. Staring. Haggard. Red; and pain in base of orbits; and cornea vascular and semiopaque; cornea, with photophobia. Cornea dim, covered with mucus. Exophthalmus from weakness of recti muscles. Sticking in l. Pain; on looking intently, with flickering; < moving them; in r. extending into occiput; as after long weeping. Tension from l. into upper jaw, with drawing. Feeling as if a hair were in r. towards evening. Burning; in evening when reading; in l., with sensation of coldness.

Lachrymation; with heat of eyes; on looking intently; with contraction of lids. Irregular irritation of retina, sometimes central scotoma, with improved vision in the dark, diminished extent of accommodation, at times increased intraocular pressure.

Optic Nerve.—Brilliant white, areas enlarged and their outlines clearly defined. Atrophy, the inner (apparent) half white and non-vasenlar, the outer red and vascular; white or gray atrophy (in a few cases bluish-white), beginning at outer part of disc, usually with sharply defined margin and with diminishing size of retinal vessels, in a few cases signs of congestion, in two cases neuritis with indistinct outline of disc, in some cases centre of disc depressed and atrophied, l. eye affected first and more than r. in nearly every case, vision failed suddenly in a few, rapidly in many, in others the progress of the disease was fitful, some had flashes of light, others fog, but most simply indistinct vision, as the atrophy advanced the pupils were dilated and insensible, in a few cases divergence of eyes (compare Phosph.). Disc too large and irregularly circular, the tissue of tendinous whiteness; congested, swollen and hazy. Vision failed, first in r. eye, it began as if a drop of water were before the eye, this increased in size, also floating muscæ before each, discs pale, the r. only on yellow-spot side.

Ball.—Pressure. Digging-drawing pains, < motion, and in temples, with distended vessels and throbbing in them. Heat.

Pupil.—Dilated; and sluggish; and insensible; irregularly; l., and not circular, r. contracted, both insensible. Contracted; and sluggish; and insensible.

Lids.—Closed; and photophobia. Granular. Squinting when trying to read. Twitching of l. upper. Contraction, with biting in balls. In persistent motion, half voluntary. Numbness of orbicular oris. Itching in r. inner canthus, with burning after rubbing.

Injection of conjunctiva. Sensation of a foreign body in conjunctiva. Sticking in upper part of orbit; extending from r. outer to inner margin of brow, into orbit. Heat in orbits.

Vision.—Dim; as from mucus; and glimmering, with pains through temples, can see better on a cloudy day and nearly as well as ever when it begins to grow dark, if he sees a distant team coming towards him it looks like two; suddenly when walking, as if a lot of gnats came before the sight. Presbyopia increased. Imperfect, so that he could not see small objects. Failing, < a bright light, especially for distant vision, optic discs pale at their temporal portion. Failed, could not find suitable glasses, l. pupil larger than r., optic discs pale, < yellow-spot side, retina dim around discs. Blind; on looking at a white object; almost; almost, towards evening, < rubbing eyes. Flickering. Amblyopia, with intolerance of light, especially blue, vision < pressure on balls. Double, < stimulants, with black dots filling field of vision, insufficiency of internal recti, double V. for distant objects, cannot diverge both eyes, discs pale, partly atrophied. Of black points; black spots; things looked black, slight hypermetropia, but sight not improved by glasses, discs pale at their temporal portion, the physiological cup very large in each, and in one eye spontaneous pulsation of the vein.

Ears.—Redness and burning. Stitches; in l.; during music; < open air; in lobule of r., with tearing; behind r., with hard, red swelling. Tearing in r.; in front of and beneath r.; jerklike, in r., and in front of it externally. Gnawing in r. Pain; within on touching outer ear. Tickling. Stopped sensation; < r. Sensitive to slightest noise; to music and loud talking. Hearing dull. Ringing. Humming < loud noises or going into open air. Roaring; < morning; and rushing. Noises.

Nose.—Ulceration. Inflammation of wings, with erosion and pustules. Pressure in Schneiderian membrane, with fornication. Burning under it as from fluent coryza; sudden B. in l. nostril. Dryness; and in throat, < evening and at bedtime. Stoppage. Crawling in nostrils. Constant desire to sneeze. Sneezing several times, then head felt easier. Catarrh dry; C. spreading to throat, where there was a raw feeling; fluent; fluent, with acute smell. Constant discharge of watery mucus. Bleeding; and from lungs; black, from l. nostril; thick, dark, tenacious. Smell acute; in morning; for tobacco and cologne water; diminished; weak, but very sensitive to the odor of wine, so that from an empty wineglass standing in the room she became almost befogged.

Face.—Pale; and collapsed, covered with cold sweat (Verat. alb.); and contracted; and drawn; eyes sunken, surrounded by blue rings; and emaciated, stupid looking; suddenly, and lips livid, all indications of syncope; and red alternately. Pale gray; dullish gray, a chlorotic tinge with the color belonging to certain cachexias. Dirty hue. Bluish and drawn. Violet. Livid. Yellowish, resembling the carcinomatous physiognomy. Cheek sallow and sunken. Red and swollen; red spots; circumscribed redness of cheeks, < l.; dark red; brownish red. Reddish brown. Sunken. Pinched and contorted. Drawn. Muscles of l. side contracted as in apoplexy. Anæmic or cachectic look. Expression altered; indicating exhaustion; stupid; austere, gloomy, as if indifferent to everything on account of being discouraged. Dead feeling through the middle.

Jaws.—Dropped. Contraction. Sticking in joints on laughing; drawing pain in angles of lower. Painful drawing in r. side of lower.

Lips.—Cancer. Eruption in corners. Pale. Livid. Drawn back showing the teeth, which were covered with dark sordes. Cracked, painful. Upper rough, dry and burning. Upper feels elongated.

Mouth.—Teeth. Dirty and stained. Caries. Chattering in evening from cold. Sticking in hollow when biting on it; tearing, about r. lower. Tearing in evening, and in bones of face; drawing, in upper, extending towards forehead. Drawing in upper. > pressure on cheeks. Throbbing in hollow. Aching; sudden, with heat of face and vertigo; and enamel altered in structure and color, fangs denuded of their periosteum, rough at the extremities, the fangs of the color of horn, porous, differing from the usual dense substance which envelops them. Uneasiness about the crowns, gradually extending to the fangs, teeth tender to touch and if bitten on a sudden pain, afterwards jumping pain at bottom of the alveolar process, aggravations of symptoms from sudden changes of temperature, alcoholic stimulants or anything that accelerated the circulation, sometimes if there were a space (from previous extraction) between the affected teeth a sensation as if electric shocks passed continuously from tooth to tooth.

Gums.—Pale and parched. Drawing.

Tongue.—Cracked. Coated; brown-yellow, smooth, papillae prominent. Yellowish, not coated. Dry; and lips; and white; and dark red; and coated with a blackish-brown crust. Trembling; and whitish, not coated. Swollen glands under it, painful to external touch. Stitches. Feels swollen, so that his words run into each other. When reading he cannot articulate, he reads very slowly. Speech difficult; and unintelligible; faltering and mind uncertain; low, broken, complaints of exhaustion, confusion of head and a mouldy taste of tobacco; want of power.

Mouth full of white tenacious mucus which must be expectorated frequently; yellowish mucus. Frothing. Ulceration. Hyperemia of M. and pharynx, pharynx covered with granulations, with dryness and varnished appearance. Burning, and in throat. Salivation. Watery saliva running constantly from mouth. Dryness.

Taste.—Bad. As of burnt milk. Sour; to everything. Bitter; in morning. Insipid in morning. Flat slimy in morning. To water as if it were mixed with wine. As if back of tongue were filled with settlements of his pipe, mixed itself up with his food and drink. Of rancid oil; > during a meal, after a few weeks a yellowish spot like dried lichen on edge of the tongue, on sucking it it seemed as if the bad taste came from this spot, soon a similar spot on arches of palate.

Throat.—Tensive pain in submaxillary gland, with feeling as if swollen and as if lower jaw had lost its mobility. Fauces red; F. and roof of mouth red and dry. Uvula œdematous. Tonsils enlarged. Catarrhal inflammation of tonsils. Hawking of mucus; (gray). Tenacious mucus. Choking.

Angina. Seraping; in afternoon; with rawness; in T. and larynx, with pressure; in pharynx, with biting; in pharynx, with rawness; in pharynx, with burning. Scratching and irritation to cough. Pressure as if something were sticking in it. Pain in pharynx on swallowing. Soreness in r. side of pharynx when not swallowing. Nocturnal attacks of tightness, with palpitation and neuralgic pains in neck. Crawling, with pain on swallowing. Tickling and rawness; T. rising up and provoking cough. Dryness; and irritation. Heat in pharynx; in pharynx after swallowing; stinging, in pharynx; burning-scraping, in T. and œsophagus, extending to stomach. Periodic sensation of a plug in œsophagus, with constant pressure. Pain in lower part of œsophagus on swallowing food. Swallowing difficult; painful, owing to spasms of throat; impossible; impossible, except when the article was placed low in throat.

Stomach.—Appetite immediately after vomiting; A., but cannot eat; ravenous; paroxysms of canine; incessant, if she eats nothing she is nauseated; for alcoholic drinks; craving for stimulants and narcotics; little; bad in morning; lost; lost, and food at noon disgusts her. Thirst; in evening; < night; frequent, for small quantities of water; almost none; none, water will not go down. Aversion to drinking water.

Eructations; loud, all day, < eating; empty; empty, after eating; sour; sour, hot in morning; of food; tasting of food. Hiccough; spasmodic; Nausea; in morning on rising; in morning on hawking up mucus, with insipid taste in mouth; on motion; with irrational talking; with stitches in l. temple; with salivation; with relaxed sensation in stomach; with sensation of a hard substance in stomach; with coldness in stomach; with twisting movement in pit of stomach, lachrymation and salivation; with gripping in abdomen; with pain in hypogastrium; then apprehension of misfortune, with oppression of chest, > weeping; paroxysmal, as in seasickness, with vertigo and cold sweat; amounting almost to faintness, > open air; sudden; rising up from pit of stomach. Retching.

Vomiting; nearly all night; on motion; and diarrhoea. Violent; from irritation in larynx; with diarrhoea, anxiety and weakness; of blood, then of mucus three times. Spasmodic. Easy, of sour liquid; of sour liquid, with mucus, then great relief; sour and slimy in morning, with considerable effort. Watery, sometimes insipid, sometimes bitter, in morning, even before breakfast; of water, with which it becomes green and yellow before the eyes; of a mass of liquid in one long stream. Of whitish mucus. Of blood. Of food.

Placed his hands on pit of stomach and often drew up his legs as from pain in abdomen. Distention of epigastrium. Stitches in pit; above pit, > rest; in pit, extending to back. Cramp. Pain; in pit; in epigastric region; in pit during and after dinner; in region of cardiac orifice when eating; after eating, then vomiting; in pit on pressure; in epigastric region on pressure; in pit, < night, at times with pulsation and anxiety; spasmodic, in region of cardiac orifice; in morning, as if he had swallowed something too large, he can hardly eat breakfast on account of pain as if the bolus were forced through too small an opening, and when the food is in the stomach it causes bursting pain, fluids cause pain, warm drinks cause less suffering than cold while swallowing, but they alleviate the burning pain in stomach, and on full inspiration sticking—extending from epigastrium to spine, with feeling as if it would be relieved by eructation, but it is not.

Gastrodynia. Gastralgia. Cardialgia. Clawing after eating. Pinching after eating, then diarrhoea, which occurred habitually three or four times a day. Constriction after eating. Shocks in epigastrium; at night and before breakfast; on going to sleep, but after awhile in the daytime, with sweat. Feeling as if it would turn over. Dyspepsia; with nervous palpitation and acidity, hypochondriasis and epigastric sinking. Oppression of pit. Discomfort. Inclination to eructate. Heartburn; rising into throat. Burning; in epigastric region. Coldness, and along spine. Sinking at pit; at epigastrium; sudden, at pit, with faintness. Weakness; after vomiting. Faintness from fasting a short time.

Clinical.—Persistent nausea and vomiting of pregnancy, with deadly nausea, pale face, coldness in the stomach, gall-stone colic. Gastralgia, starting from the cardiac end of the stomach, pains extending into l. arm. Seasickness.

Abdomen.—Distended; and hard, tense, painful to touch; and heaviness. Retracted. Violent contractions of muscles. Flatulence. Rumbling; in afternoon when walking; on deep breathing, with gurgling; with gurgling and gripping; with general coldness. Movements as before diarrhoea. Sudden stitches.

Tearing at night. Gripping; and pinching; then clawing in stomach. Pain; in morning; in evening, with movements of flatus, then diarrhœa, with tenesmus; with constipation; with diarrhœa; then cramp in stomach, nausea and salivation; as from a purge, towards evening; burning, < epigastrium. Heat. Sensitiveness on waking after midnight, > soft stool, the same symptoms at 4 A.M.; S. to touch of clothes, and < pit of stomach and hepatic region. Shocks at night on getting into a drowse, afterwards in the daytime, with epigastric sinking, costiveness and dyspepsia.

Hypochondria.—Liver enlarged. Liver inflamed. Stitches; in hepatic region; in hepatic region towards evening; in liver, < breathing; in hepatic region, > stooping, preventing stretching; in liver extending towards pit of stomach, when walking; burning, externally in l. Lancinations, abdomen felt large, painful, insensible to touch, difficulty in articulating from numbness of tongue and muscles of cheeks and lower jaw, which were agitated when I tried to speak, then on eating soup sudden piercing pain in stomach, threw myself back in my chair, pale, covered with cold sweat, breathless, > hot cloths, pain returned on attempting to eat, vomiting (after taking warm water and tickling uvula) of food and bitter fluid, which relieved by causing sweat, the paroxysms always > sweat, tongue furred. Pain; on pressure in hepatic region, extending to pit of stomach; paroxysmal, in l. below heart, < motion, > slight pressure; as if a round weight were lying in r., with pain on touch.

Umbilicus.—Painful retraction, < stooping; cramp-like R., with pain in region. Tearing in region as from a bruise every afternoon, spreading over abdomen and concentrating in spine, > night. Cutting in region. Pain in region, with digging; cramp-like P. in region.

Sticking in r. flank. Pressure in upper A. Rumbling, with inclination to stool; R. in transverse colon. Pain in hypogastrium, > emission of flatus; P. in hypogastrium, with looseness; with general chilliness. Weakness in r. groin.

Clinical.—Strangulated hernia.

Rectum and Anus.—Hæmorrhoids. Sore pain in A. during diarrhœa. Straining in A. during stool, with burning. Burning pain in A. after stool. Itching in A. Desire for stool with frequent pinching in rectum. Frequent urging in morning. Frequent U. but always scanty stool preceded and followed by sore pain in abdomen; ineffectual U., afterwards hard delayed stool. Paralysis of rectum and bladder.

Stool.—Resembling those of cholera. Watery, offensive, then tenesmus; W., urgent, painless, five or six times every morning; frequent involuntary and unconscious evacuation of bloody and W. fæces and watery urine. Diarrhœa; about 2 A.M.; after eating, with emission of flatus; with gripping, then constipation, then vomiting of much brownish fluid mixed with tobacco; afterwards stools like sheep-dung; copious; serous; green, slimy, with tenesmus; involuntary; frequent; frequent in morning, the first generally about 4 A.M.; five times at night, with burning and tenesmus in anus; in sudden attacks, with cutting in lower part of hypogastrium, as from incarcerated flatus, > expelling it per rectum, but soon returning, at the same time faint feeling with nausea, then sudden urging, stool profuse, gushing, fluid, offensive, with faintness and giddiness, perhaps three or four attacks in one day, then constipation for a week or more, then stools natural for a long time, once or twice dysenteric diarrhœa, with tenesmus for two or three days. Soft; with tenesmus and pain in small of back; with straining and pressure as if fæces were retained; twice at night; and frequent, then internal sensitiveness in abdomen; and small, frequent, then straining. Pasty, frequent; P., copious, often slimy, with emission of flatus; and yellow-green, almost involuntary, then tenesmus.

Constipation; changing at times to diarrhœa. Hard and delayed; and dark. Irregular. Indolent, with at times diarrhœa, with weakness of sphincter ani. Black, fetid. Diminished. Frequent. Involuntary, and micturition.

Clinical.—Cholera infantum, with icy coldness of the extremities, feeble, irregular pulse, deathly nausea and vomiting, > uncovering (Secale).

Urinary Organs.—Frequent desire; constant; D. waking him at night, and on rising he fell in a fainting fit, then coldness, weakness and cold sweat, pulse slow and small. Frequent micturition, at times involuntary dribbling; F. at night, almost involuntary; urine pale, copious; F. and copious, once involuntary at night.

Urethra.—Inflammation of orifice, with agglutination. Discharge of prostatic fluid. Prickling during micturition. Itching before urinating. Burning-itching pain after urinating. Burning when urinating; B. and tickling, then emission at night.

Urine.—Dark red, smelling of tobacco. Copious; and pale; and yellowish-red; and deep yellowish-brown; and red, offensive, ammoniacal. Scanty, dark, sp. gr. 1025, acid reaction; deposits urates and mucus; diminished, with increase of free acid, uric acid, phosphoric acid and sulphuric acid and diminution of urea and chlorine. Suppressed. Albuminuria.

Clinical.—Renal colic.

Sexual Organs.—Flabby. Varicocele. Crawling in glans. Erections towards morning; many E. without voluptuous sensations; no E. or desire. Impotency. Emissions; at night; at night without waking. Discharge from vagina of a few drops like meat-water fourteen days after menses. Menses deranged; profuse.

Clinical.—Hyperæsthesia and neuralgia of glans penis.

Respiratory Organs.—Irritation in upper part of trachea, then expectoration. Larynx, constriction; burning, with almost constant cough; tickling, with alteration of voice. Voice hoarse; weak; weak and low.

Cough, with emaciation and weakness; C. and hic-cough at the same time, as if she would suffocate; tickling; whooping, day and night, intermitting only during a meal; with dry sputa. Dry cough; all the morning, with stitching in pit of stomach; towards evening; and short; in violent fits from irritation in throat and larynx, < night. Hæmoptysis, cough with expectoration of blood and mucus.

Respiration.—Asphyxia and syncope. Suffocative feeling; in attacks: in paroxysms, from which he frequently woke in anxiety; in nightly attacks, causing him to spring out of bed in anguish, > smoking and slow walking. Stertorous; and the cheeks flopping with each expiration. Difficult; on ascending; on ascending stairs or an eminence, with palpitation and distress in cardiac region; and rapid; and sighing; with long sighs; and moaning, deep; suddenly; with sibilant râles. Sighing and irregular. Moaning. Short. Prolonged. Rapid; and short, at times slow and deep, apparently omitting at times. Slow; and thorax scarcely expanded; interrupted by continual yawning; and spasmodic, deep; and stertorous. Feeble. (Easier when bending towards l. side and pressing.) Increase of carbonic acid expired. Decrease of aqueous vapor expired.

Chest.—Various diseases. Pulmonary phthisis. Lungs flaccid and tendency to marasmus. Angina pectoris. Stitches; in sternum; beneath l. ribs; in r. side; in r. side on talking; on deep breathing; beneath sternum on deep breathing; on breathing, and in side, with weakness of head as if intoxicated and flickering vision; near r. axilla, > inspiration; beneath sternum, with impossibility to breathe deeply; in middle, extending to sternum; backward through it, < deep breathing; burning, beneath l. breast; sore, in r. side, < rest. Cutting in intercostal muscles from front towards back on deep breathing, < touch.

Pain; beneath sternum; with anxiety; in l. side, < præcordial region; behind sternum and rather to l. side, usually in afternoon, sometimes interfering with sleep, > before morning, with oppression; flitting; in sides alternating with sore throat; sudden, with gasping for breath and sensation as if a crowbar were pressed tightly from r. breast to l. and twisted in a knot round the heart, which stopped for a minute and then leaped like a dozen frogs, afterwards the heart missed every fourth beat, frequent recurrence of the attacks; sudden, as if squeezed in a vise, in evening when smoking, with insensible pulse. Soreness during rest; sore pain in r. female breast, with feeling as if the nipple were bitten off.

Constriction; across upper front part, with dyspnoea and disposition to inspire fully, with darting pain from heart to vertex; and inability to breathe deeply, with anxiety, inability to rid herself of the thought that some misfortune would happen to her. Tightness on breathing deeply; T. during dinner, with stitches beneath r. short ribs. Oppression, > deep breathing; O. in female breast. Anxiety beginning in C. and præcordial region. Heaviness of sternum. Shocks in C. and region of heart at night but afterwards in the daytime, with rush of blood to head, causing unconsciousness.

Clinical.—Asthma.

Heart.—Systolic murmur in aortic arch and in large vessels. Sounds muffled and almost running into each other; sounds inaudible and its movement scarcely felt. Disease. Pain in region, < night, with intermission of pulse and heart's action; P. in region, with soreness and inability to lie long on l. side; sudden, in region in morning, with transverse constriction in upper part of chest, inability to walk or speak, pulse insensible, hands cold. Præcordial oppression; in paroxysms, < night, with palpitation and pain between shoulders. Præcordial anxiety suddenly in evening, then sleeplessness and springing from bed. Disturbance.

Palpitation (Thea, Spig.); all night; when lying on l. side; < lying on l. side, with trembling of heart; with bruit in carotids; with pain in cardiac region; with tightness of throat; in attacks in evening or night, with pain and constriction of chest; in attacks at night, with oppression and pain about shoulders. Beating violently, so that he must give up active exercise. Action weak; and intermittent; and slow, intermittent. Beating irregularly, with slight anæmic murmur. Movements like the purring tremor which is likely to accompany aortic regurgitation. Paralysis.

Clinical.—Angina pectoris, pains radiate from centre of sternum, with cold extremities, pinched features, suffocation. Dilatation of the heart, with feeble irregular pulse, chest pains, extending down the left arm, clammy sweat, etc.

Pulse.—Rapid; and full; and full, hard; and small; and small, hard; and small, irregular; and soft; and feeble. Slow; and full; and full, large, movement increases the beats more than in a healthy state; and small; and intermittent; and intermittent, scarcely perceptible, also small. Violent. Strong in temporal arteries. Intermittent; and small; and irregular, rapid, then slow. Weak and small; with cold clammy sweat; W., soft and full; W. and irritable. Imperceptible; at wrist, action of heart scarcely perceptible.

Neck.—Neuralgia, with tightness of throat. Pain in nape, with heaviness, so that he must remove the neckerchief. Tension in skin of r. side, with burning. Stiffness so that she could not turn head to r. side.

Back.—Morbid feeling in different parts of spine, if affected in region of seventh cervical vertebra he felt depression and paralyzed sensation of forearms and hands, with compression of manubrium sterni, difficulty in swallowing and shrill paroxysmal cough, if the upper part of spine was painful there was only palpitation, if the part corresponding to the twelfth dorsal vertebra became painful there were compression of stomach, loss of appetite and vomiting, when the central sensations moved to the lower part of spine the gastric symptoms changed to eccentric disturbances of sacral region, as cramps or spasms of sphincter ani and emissions, then debility, unhappy looks and dejection, at times the whole spine was affected, then all the symptoms appeared simultaneously, causing unsteady action of lower limbs and difficulty in stepping over objects, sudden vertigo when walking, at times the central pain moved to l. hemisphere of brain, causing double vision. Tenderness of spine, < cervical and lumbar regions. Stiffness of spine and lower limbs. Pain in middle of spine in morning, with general bruised feeling, < upper limbs. Stitches in r. scapula. Burning beneath scapula.

Lumbar Region.—Pain in region of kidneys; before urinating; P. on rising from a seat and on beginning to walk, > walking; < sitting and lying; beating, in region of sacrum in evening. Constriction, < after stool. Feeling as if some one were blowing on the spine.

Extremities.—Relaxed; and paralyzed; and outstretched, powerless, trembling and twitching. Trembling; of hands and feet, with weakness of them. Cataleptic condition of arms and legs. Pain in all. Feeling as if fingers were longer when smoking tobacco in a pipe, if he continues smoking he feels as if he had lost the use of his legs from the knees downward, and if he smokes half a cigar in-doors his calves feel as if they did not belong to him and were dropping away. Weakness; trembling. Stiffness.

Upper Extremities.—Stitches in l. shoulder, with drawing. Pulsation beneath r. shoulder.

Arm.—Bound over chest. Spasmodic contractions, and in hands. Trembling, and in hands. Pain on raising it; P. in l., with weakness; drawing, in a spot as if an ulcer would form on l. Tension in l., < elbow. Constant inclination to stretch. Easy fatigue from holding a book, at times with stitches in fingers, < thumbs. R. seemed paralyzed, as with cramp.

Tearing in tendons of l. forearm towards hand and then in elbow. Sprained pain in r. forearm, < elbow, with stitches on exertion. Sticking in elbow, so that he could not stretch the arm quickly. Drawing pain on turning elbow.

Hands.—Joined and rigidly contracted. Trembling. Sticking in r., with tearing. Drawing, paralytic, spasmodic pain in r., extending to elbow. Drawing in l., then general paralysis. Seem paralyzed and cold, then burning and fuzziness in tip of fingers and difficult mobility, with general coldness.

Fingers.—Swollen. Cramp; in morning on washing; in three first l., with fornication. Twitching of one. Tearing in little.

Lower Extremities.—Walking about as if intoxicated. Tottering; in morning after rising. Gait of an old man. Shuffling gait. Drawing. Uneasiness. Loss of control. Weakness; or paralysis, with loss of sensation and weakness of all special senses. Sticking in and above l. gluteal muscles; in r. hip towards evening. Pain in hips and knees; in r. gluteal muscles on pressure; in gluteal and femoral muscles, and tension as after a long walk.

Knee.—Cracking when walking. Tottered, and he seemed scarcely able to support his emaciated body. Cramp. Stitches in hollows; S. on bending, pressure in them during rest.

Tearing down l. calf; externally on l. tibia. Tension in legs when walking. Paralyzed feeling below knee, as if asleep. Pain in l. ankle. Foot, shaking; jerking tearing on back of l. Paralyzed feeling in r., weak as if paralyzed, could scarcely ascend stairs. Cramp from toes into knee. Acute pain in balls of l. toes, so that he could not step as usual.

Skin.—Grayish, a medium between the pallor of chlorosis and of other cachexie. Pallid and appeared anæmic. Livid, covered with cold sweat. Jaundice. Red spots on r. shoulder, with burning on touch. Inflammation from slightest wound. Red itching eruption on back. Gritty elevations on cheeks beneath eyes, perceptible only on touch. Pimples; on forehead, with itching, transiently > rubbing; itching, on chest; itching, on back, small of back and fingers. Pustules on nape and upper limbs. Itching blisters filled with yellow liquid, with red areola, with sore pain on touch.

Trembling sensation as if it were being torn. Formication from l. knee to toes. Itching of whole skin; here and there; with turgescence and sweat; on face in evening; on arm and neck; r. hypochondrium; thighs.

Sleep.—Yawning; after dinner; after dinner, with sleepiness. Sleepiness; in forenoon; towards evening; > open air; with heat and restlessness. Sleeping after dinner, could not arouse herself till after palpitation. Deep sleep, then sweat. Heavy sleep, with irregular rattling respiration, from which he could not be awakened, face and back covered with cold sweat, eyes staring, features drawn. Stupefying, unrefreshing sleep. Cannot be awakened in the morning.

Sleeplessness; first part of night; > smoking. Could not fall asleep in the evening, could not wake in the morning. Sleep light, often interrupted, sometimes by cough and colic. Frequent waking. Wakes before midnight, but soon falls asleep again. Starting on falling asleep; with shock through epigastrium and sometimes through chest. Restless sleep; with coldness; with frequent waking on account of pain in l. wrist and ankle; with anxious dreams; with constant nightmare.

Dreams.—Uneasy. Frightful. Anxious, of fire. Of snakes, apprehension of death, etc. Painful, that a tooth had fallen out. Nightmare, dream that she wished to talk and could not on account of her large tongue, which extended out of her mouth and up to her nose, she tried to cry out and could not, wept and was inconsolable, at last woke in anxiety.

Fever.—Chilliness; from 5 till 7 P.M., with thirst about 6; with cold sweat; with rush of heat, without thirst. Internal, with hot face, now cold, now warm, sweaty hands, without thirst. Shaking C. in evening; in evening in bed; in evening, with inclination to stretch. Shivering; nearly all day; all day, with pain between shoulders; all day, with shaking, and towards evening sweat in palms; in morning in open air; in afternoon after eating, alternating with heat, during the coldness sweat under arms; in evening; in open air; with yawning and stretching of arms; with flushes of heat; internal, with bruised sensation, heat and disinclination to work. Gooseflesh all day.

Coldness of skin; of skin, < limbs; of nose, with moisture; of limbs, with blue color; limbs; hands, with warmth of body; l. hand, with heat of r.; from knees to toes, with burning in thighs and much heat; legs, with heat of body; feet; feet all night; suddenly creeping along back in evening when drinking beer and smoking, with general weakness, then pain on lower part of frontal bone, when undressing shaking chill, then dry heat, then sweat, then vivid dreams, from which I woke with sweat, exhaustion and confusion of head, and in morning on rising pain in frontal region as from pressure downward in skull, headache > horizontal position, with thirst, coated tongue and loss of appetite, on attempting to walk pain in loins and nape, gait slow and anxious, with vertigo and pressing headache, l. foot often failed to make a step, headache > afternoon by bleeding from l. nostril, < evening on making visits, concentrated in l. side, > going to bed, vivid dreams, headache returned in morning.

Heat; with restlessness; with intoxication; dry; flushing, after vomiting. Orgasm of blood. Symptoms similar to intermittent fever on ceasing to smoke. Dry heat of skin. Heat of head; and face; mounting suddenly; then fornication, loss of appetite, sticking in ears, then coldness and shivering. H. of face, with redness; rising into it; r. cheek, while l. was pale; l. cheek towards evening, with redness, without thirst. In palms. In knee, and on touch feeling as if pins were in it. On side of sole, < towards evening.

Tanacetum.

A tincture is made of the fresh leaves and flowers of the tansy.

Compare other composite, Cina and Absinth.

Generalities.—Trembling. Remarkable gestures, stretched, drew up the feet, stood on his head, said, "Let me do as I wish, I cannot do anything else," so he drew up his legs and when the muscles would draw them no farther he pulled them up with his hands and then suddenly stretched them.

Convulsions; during pregnancy; with frothing at mouth, labored respiration and irregular pulse; with features horribly distorted, unconsciousness and inability to swallow; then vomiting, then catalepsy; every five or ten minutes, head thrown back, respiration suspended, arms raised and rigidly extended, fingers contracted, in about half a minute a tremulous motion, sometimes shaking the room, with faint and imperfect attempts at inspiration, the time from the beginning of the convulsion to the first full inspiration varied from a minute to a minute and a half, occasionally the tongue was wounded by the teeth, after a convulsion face pallid and livid, pulse slow and weak, often after a convulsion the head was drawn slowly backward and eyelids opened wide, between the convulsions the limbs were mostly relaxed but jaws were clenched; supposed to be epileptic, in which the shoulder was dislocated; tonic contraction of flexors, forearms drawn forcibly against chest, face congested and livid, foamy saliva ejected from mouth, eyes wide open; clonic; sudden, clonic, with trembling of arms, which were thrown forward of and at right angles with the body, wrists bent at right angles, forearms supinated, tips of fingers nearly in contact, fingers straight and slightly bent at metacarpal joints, muscles of respiration strongly affected, air forced from chest slowly but steadily and hissed as it escaped from the lips, between the spasms muscles were flexible except jaws, which were rigidly closed the first hour, but afterwards rigid during the spasms and relaxed between them, the spasms more frequent as the patient grew weaker.

Rheumatic symptoms. Sensation approaching a thrill through the whole body. Weariness. Numbness, with sensation as if arms and legs were suddenly swelling. Paralysis of all voluntary motion, including muscles of deglutition.

Clinical.—Chorea, with strange gesticulations. Affections from worms, with twitchings in sleep and wakening from fright.

Mind.—Exhilaration. Shrieked and fell senseless to the ground, > vomiting. Nervous. Indifference to my questions and incoherence in her replies. Dulness of all senses. Impossible to fix my attention and it seemed as if my reason would leave me. Confusion. Mind fatigued after least mental exertion. Intellect feeble, with tendency to stupor. Coma. Unconsciousness; partial.

Head.—Agonizing pain. Fulness; and pain; with frontal pain; and in face. Heavy aching. Condition similar to apoplexy. Vertigo. Frontal pain, with cutting in temples. Occipito-frontal pain.

Eyes.—Inward strabismus of r. Sclerotics injected, eyes open and brilliant, pupils dilated and immovable. Sclerotic coat so congested that it was dark purple, glassy, and so swollen that the cornea seemed depressed. Slow lateral motion of balls. Aching in balls. Pupils dilated; contracted; contracted, then dilated. Lids agglutinated in morning.

Ears.—Stitches in middle. Sensation as if something closed them suddenly. Ringing. Roaring.

Nose and Face.—Coryza. Nostrils dry. Face red; and eyes; cheeks bright red. Face dusky. Features fixed, giving an expression of deep solemnity. Lips and nose drawn to r. side.

Mouth and Throat.—Tongue feels rough and is coated white. Frothing at mouth. Mouth blood-stained. Taste flat, insipid. Mucus in fauces and larynx, disturbing respiration. Feeling in throat as if I would cough, without ability to cough. Tickling in fauces and larynx causing constant inclination to cough, but no cough. Throat rough. Inability to swallow.

Stomach.—Thirst. Eructations tasting of the oil; flatulent, tasting of tansy; of sour air at night. Nausea; with faintness. Vomiting. Drawing cutting in epigastrium. Weight. Burning; and in abdomen.

Abdomen.—Rumbling. Pain; mostly in region of small intestines, from small doses it is cutting stitching, from large doses heavy pains, with frequent cutting, < night, and especially after midnight. In morning, feeling as if full of limpid secretions from taking a cathartic. Warmth over it. Dull pain in r. hypochondrium, sharp in l. Umbilical region, sticking; frequent pains through the day, < 4 A.M. Cutting at umbilicus, then papeseent stools. Drawing pain in l. groin.

Stool and Urine.—Diarrhoea, then constipation; D. twice; twice and sensation as if he would have more. Stool omitted. Constant desire to urinate; with heavy pain in small of back (secondary). Frequent micturition. Obligated to rise to urinate, urine smelled of tansy. Urine scalding; U. fetid; high-colored, afterwards light-colored; copious, high-colored, smelling of the drug; suppressed, then copious.

Clinical.—Many cases of dysentery.

Sexual Organs.—Inflammation of vaginal walls of labia, ending in abscess of one labia. Menses profuse (after a suppression of several days), with labor-like pains. Abortion in the early months of pregnancy; A. prevented. At full term a child was born, not larger than a rat, and lived three weeks.

Clinical.—Dysmenorrhœa, with bearing-down pains, tenderness, drawing in the groins.

Respiratory Organs and Chest.—Voice sounded strange to his own ears. Breathing oppressed; and hurried, stertorous, obstructed by frothy mucus in air-passages and blown from between lips in expiration, breath smelled of tansy; but not stertorous, blowing mucus and saliva from fauces and mouth, this respiration most marked after each spasm, but sometimes not unlike that of sound sleep. Moaning and distressed appearance. Desire to draw a full breath, which did not relieve the oppression of chest. Pain in l. side.

Heart and Pulse.—Feeble action of heart and all the signs of impending dissolution. Pulse rapid; and forcible; and full, forcible; and feeble; and small, feeble. Pulse slow; 60, with a peculiar measured beat. Pulse full and incompressible. P. irregular. Pulseless.

Back and Extremities.—Backache; in lumbar region. Lumbago in evening. Extremities, prickling, with flashes of heat; intermittent prickling, and along spine; pain; cold numbness creeping over them, increasing almost to paralysis. Lameness of l. wrist in morning, with soreness. Weakness of legs, with general prostration. Unsteadiness of step, with indescribable feeling worse than pain.

Skin, Sleep and Fever.—Eruption like variola. Drowsy. Chill, then heat. Skin cold and moist; cold, < towards* extremities. Heat; of skin. Cold, clammy sweat.

Taraxacum.

A tincture is made of the entire fresh plant of the Dandelion.

Allies.—Chel., Puls. (Hydrast.).

Generalities.—Inner feeling as if very sick, all limbs painful on touch or when in an uncomfortable position. Restlessness and discomfort. Weakness, so that he wished to lie or sit, when he was semi-conscious, as on falling asleep. Most symptoms appear when sitting and disappear when walking.

Mind.—Talkative. Inclined to laugh. Religious, happy, contented. Ill humor in morning and disinclined to any occupation or to talking. Gloomy when unoccupied, does not know what to do, cannot make up his mind to do anything. Irresolute and dreading work, though it progresses well as soon as he undertakes it.

Head.—Pain extending outward; burning P., extending upward. Sensation composed of pressure and itching. Constriction of brain from all sides. Heaviness, with redness of face. Vertigo on walking in open air, with dulness of head; V. on walking in open air, head fell now to r., now to l.; on walking in open air, with insecure step, as if he would fall forward.

Forehead.—Sticking; externally in l. side; tearing, in l. Pain; in forehead of head, extending outward towards forehead; crawling, as from something alive, extending from the middle of it on walking in open air; drawing, on bone when standing. Stupefying pain, as after intoxication; S. pain when sitting, so that he lost his senses when reading and did not know where he was, > open air, with nausea. Contraction above nose, with whirling, at another time painless sensation as if brain were distended here and there.

Temples.—Stitches in l. when sitting, > standing; in l. when walking in open air, > standing. Pain in r. Drawing pain; in l. when sitting, > walking and standing.

Sticking in l. side. Tearing in occiput when walking, > standing still; externally when walking; sticking, behind r. ear. Heaviness in occiput, > stooping, < rising and holding head erect; H. deep down, with pressure. Pimple above r. temple, painful on touch. Anterior part of scalp tense, as if tight over vertex.

Eyes.—Hard mucus, more in morning than during the day. Sticking in r. A kind of ophthalmia, eyes cannot endure light and constantly water, with pressure on r. upper lid. Ball, burning sticking in l. towards external canthus; burning in l.; burning in r. towards inner canthus; sticking burning pain in l. Pupils dilated; contracted. Lids agglutinated in morning. Sticking burning in lids. Pressure as from sand in r.

inner canthus, with feeling as if lid were swollen there.

Ears.—Sticking extending outward in r. and always again inward; S. behind ear, with tearing down side of neck; itching burning, in r. Tearing in outer meatus and sharp pressure behind ramus of lower jaw. Drawing pain in outer. Pressure inward in l. Chirping in l. like grasshoppers. (Hearing difficult as from stoppage of ear, in evening.)

Nose and Face.—Sneezing when walking in open air. Bleeding from l. nostril at noon, before dinner. Sticking in cheek. Sharp pressure in r. cheek. Crack in middle of upper lip. Pustule in r. corner of lips.

Mouth.—Sour-tasting blood flowed from r. hollow teeth. Pain like blows in incisors, < crowns. Drawing pain in r. hollow teeth, extending into cheek and to brow. Teeth on edge when chewing food. Tongue covered with a white film, with raw sensation in it, afterwards the film comes off in pieces, leaving dark red and sensitive spots; coated white, gradually peeling off in spots; coated white; coated yellowish-brown at back; brown in morning on waking, and dry; burning stitches in l. side. Salivation, with feeling as if larynx were compressed; sour-tasting S. Taste bitter before eating; bitter, rising from œsophagus into mouth (Chel., Puls.); sour to meat, especially to gravy from roast meat, when it touches tip of tongue; salty-sour to butter when it touches tip of tongue; none to tobacco-smoke, it causes burning in throat, almost like heartburn, and takes away the breath, > drinking.

Throat.—Hawking up of sour mucus that sets the teeth on edge. Acute pain in lower part of parotid and in cervical muscles and extending from sternum to mastoid process, on moving jaws and neck. Tickling irritation to hacking cough in region of pit of throat, he always had a few minutes' warning of the paroxysm, but was never able to suppress it. Dryness, with a ring of inflammation around isthmus faucium; D. in fauces, with bitter mucus, making the voice husky; D. with stitches. Swallowing difficult, as from a swelling. Sharp pressure on anterior wall of œsophagus and larynx, provoking cough, > swallowing.

Stomach.—Bitter eructations and hiccough; empty E., < drinking. Nausea; in œsophagus; when sitting, > standing, with anxiety; as from fat, > open air, with stupefying pain in forehead. Tension in pit when stooping, with pressure in ensiform cartilage. Stitches in r. side of diaphragm when lying on that side. Tensive pain in region of diaphragm during violent inspiration.

Abdomen.—Rumbling and movements. Gripping; then emission of flatus. Stitches partly in l. hypochondrium, sometimes in l. or r. side of abdomen, sometimes in hypogastrium; in side; l. side; tense, in r. side; itching, in r. muscles. Pain in l. side. Rumbling in umbilical region towards l. side. Boring outward in umbilical region, extending towards r. side. Sudden persistent motion as if bubbles formed and burst in hypogastrium. Burning stitches in l. hypogastrium, extending towards genitals. Sprained sensation in l. groin on walking, > standing and touch. Painless bubbling in muscles of l. hypogastrium.

Clinical.—This is a remedy for bilious diarrhoea, chilliness after eating or drinking, pain and soreness over the liver, bitter taste, mapped tongue.

Stool and Urine.—Stool difficult, not hard. Stool pasty and early, then ineffectual urging. Constipation. Pressure to urinate, without pain; frequent desire to urinate and copious urine, afterwards frequent desire and scanty discharge. Urine high-colored and diminished.

Sexual Organs.—Boring in glans. Long-continued erections. Tickling on prepuce. Stitch in l. testicle; burning, in r. Emission every other night.

Chest.—Twitching in r. costal muscles; l. costal muscles. Stitches in sternum; side; on last l. rib; beneath r. axilla; in region of sixth rib; in r. side when walking; beneath last l. rib, towards back, on every breath; in r. side, > violent inspiration and expiration, on pressure it returned more violently and extended over a larger space; in l., extending towards back; extending inward during inspiration when standing. Boring in r. breast, < walking, with digging. Boring-sticking drawing in scapular end of r. clavicle. Pressure beneath l. axilla; beneath l. ribs; outward against r. ribs, from hepatic region into chest, during expiration while standing; burning, in sternum, worse during expiration than inspiration.

Heart and Pulse.—Uneasy sinking in præcordia. Pulse rapid, full, soft.

Neck.—Twitching in l. lower part; behind l. ear. Sticking in nape; in l. side when standing, > sitting down; boring, outward in l.

Back.—Sticking in spine towards r. side when lying, especially in small of back, with difficult breathing; tensive, towards r. side; outward in r. scapula. Vibration in r. scapula, with quivering (see Chel.). Pressure in sacrum; when standing; outward in l. loin. Painless creeping in sacrum.

Extremities.—Easy motion, but it seems to him as if motor power were restrained. Twitching on top of l. shoulder. Throbbing on l. shoulder; with general chilliness. Stitch on outer side of l. arm. Pain on inner side of l. arm.

Upper Arm.—Twitching; in outer part of l. Sticking on inner side of l.; S. posteriorly, > rubbing; intermittent, on outer side of middle of r. during rest. Pain like electric shocks on outer side of l. Pain in muscles of l. Intermittent throbbing.

Stitches in r. elbow; in l. forearm; r. forearm, > touch. Twitching in muscles of l. forearm. Pain on inner side of r. forearm. Frequent drawing pains in forearms. Tearing drawing in l. wrist, extending to three last fingers. Sticking in l. fourth finger. Pain in three last r. fingers; burning, in l. third and fourth.

Lower Extremities.—Twitching in upper part; in l. gluteals extending downward. Sticking in l.; boring, on inner side when sitting; pinching, high up on forepart, as if beaten, more on touch than when walking. Pressure on inner side of r. when sitting and standing.

Knee.—Sticking; drawing, on outer side of r. Tearing on outer tendon in hollow when sitting. Sharp pressure on outer side on bending leg. Burning pain in forepart of r.; in l. patella.

Leg.—Stitches in r. calf; upward on outer side of l. leg when standing; drawing, upward in r. when standing, > sitting; throbbing, in r. calf just beneath hollow of knee; burning, in calf when standing. Tearing on outer margin of l. when standing. Gnawing in r. when standing. Pain in l. calf; jerking, in r. calf, suddenly > touch; drawing, when sitting and walking; burning, in lower part of r.; burning, on outer side of r. Burning on forepart of tibia. Weakness, < ascending steps; W. of r. when walking, yet the muscles seem tenser than in l.

Ankle.—Stitch in r. inner malleolus when sitting; itching, in inner M. Tearing drawing in l.

Foot.—Stitches extending from dorsum into sole; on dorsum of l. extending towards great toe; in r. sole, extending outward, when sitting; itching, in r. sole. Boring in r. sole; burning, in l. sole, extending towards little toe. Pressure on back of r. when sitting. Drawing pain on back of r. when standing; on back of l. when standing. Burning pain on r. sole towards outer side; in r. sole towards toes when sitting. Burning drawing on back of l.

Toes.—Stitches in r. great, towards second toe; tearing S.; burning, in r. great when walking. Pulling from little toe up tibia, when sitting.

Skin.—Rash on upper part of body, with tingling and itching, scratching temporarily relieved the itching, but caused more eruption and redness, face red in patches and swollen, on forearms and hands lichen and urticaria, the lichen was purple, thicker about wrists and bindings of elbows, where it was in patches on an inflamed base, the papillæ were covered with a brownish crust as if blood had hardened, the urticaria was principally on the front of the arms, < scratching, coming and going two or three times a day, worse in morning, chest and waist were thickly covered and very red. Pimple in middle of l. brow, painful on touch; itching, on hands, < sides of fingers and backs of hands. Pustules on r. wing of nose; on upper part of l. cheek, with red areola and gnawing on touch. Itching vesicles on back of foot.

Itching on l. gluteals; on fourth toes; suddenly below chin; on l. calf in evening on lying down, not > scratching, then redness and moisture; on back of r. foot, > scratching; corrosive, on l. thigh; voluptuous, in perineum, then biting pain; tickling, in perineum, between anus and pudendum.

Sleep.—Yawning when sitting. Sleepiness during the day when reading, > moving about; overpowering, after eating, on waking necessity to urinate, with burning before and after micturition. He fell asleep when listening to scientific conversation and immediately had vivid dreams. Restless nights. Frequent waking as if he had slept enough; F. waking and tossing about. Dreams vivid, unremembered; and anxious; D. of quarrels; voluptuous.

Fever.—Chilliness; after eating, < drinking; with headache; shaking, on walking in open air. Finger-tips cold. Heat; without thirst; suddenly when walking in open air, without thirst; in face, with redness; in attacks in toes, < back of r. great toe; in r. forearm. Sweat; in evening on falling asleep, lasting all night; as soon as he fell asleep, waking him, with heat, < checks; on waking, causing itching biting; between toes, < r.

Clinical.—During a fever great restlessness, with tearing pains in the legs, intolerable while at rest, constant muttering delirium, violent tearing in the occiput, chilliness after eating or drinking, mapped tongue.

Tarentula.

The live Spanish spider is triturated with sugar of milk.

General Action.—(The remarkable nervous symptoms require confirmation.)

Generalities.—Yelled and fell down, was carried to the house in agony, smarting pain, hot and cold, starting from the bite to small of back and then returning to the bite, this alternating pain lasted all night. Falling suddenly as if struck by apoplexy, then shortness of breath, blackness of face, hands, etc., he revived as he heard music, sighed, moved first his feet, then hands and rest of body, and on being raised to his feet danced vigorously, sighed deeply, rolled upon the ground, kicked vigorously, the dance was repeated for three days and he was restored by the perspiration thus induced, but each year, about the time of the bite, pain reappeared in the affected part, with the above symptoms in less intensity, again > music and dancing.

Stretched upon the ground and seemed about to expire, when he heard the music he got up as quick as lightning, seemed awakened by a frightful vision, stared wildly about, still moving every joint, when I stopped playing he fell down in an instant and cried, every part was distorted, he scraped the earth with his hands, on hearing the music again he arose as before and danced wildly, keeping perfect time but jumping and running to and fro, making comical postures, somewhat like Chinese dances, and everything he did was very wild. Twitching, < arms, alternating with opisthotonos. Convulsions; and sub-sultus in all limbs, penis erect, abdominal muscles contracted and rigid.

Pain and swelling; P. immediately in bitten part, he fell to the ground, with coldness of body, bristling of hair, tension of trunk, weakness of legs, sighing, complaints, said that he was suffocating, wished to cry out but could not, on hearing music the next morning he began to dance, was bathed in sweat, was sleepless for a week, drank pure wine, had no stool for four days, desired nothing, wished to be bathed with water, liked a red color, pursued anything blue, tore it to pieces and trampled it under foot, at night he held his heels in his hands to scratch them, in which manner he could sleep a little, ate little or nothing, but dancing for almost a week, he was cured by sweat and music.

A few hours after the bite, anguish of heart, dejection, difficulty in breathing, they complain in a mournful voice, roll their eyes, when asked where they suffer they do not reply or place the hand upon the heart, the symptoms vary according to the variety of Tarentula, the temperament of the patient and the degree of summer heat, the T. in northern Apulia are fiercer and the symptoms severer, the patients are charmed by various colors, green, blue, etc., rarely by dark colors, at the sight of an annoying color anguish of heart and renewal of symptoms, the T. subalbida causes slight pain followed by itching, sharp pain in abdomen and diarrhoea, the T. stellata causes severer pain and itching, stupor, heaviness and pain in head, general trembling, etc., the T. uvea causes, besides the above symptoms, swelling, great pain in the bitten part, spasm, chill, cold sweat of whole body, aphonia, nausea, tension of trunk and chest, distention of abdomen, etc., in general, after the severer symptoms have declined, there is a peculiar melancholy, a bending forward of neck, sometimes > music or dancing, desperation, they court dissolution, otherwise virtuous women sigh deeply, howl, make indecent gestures, expose their sexual organs, etc., others like to whip buttocks, feet, back, etc., others have great desire to run.

Restlessness, mist keep in motion though walking aggravates the symptoms. Weakness; so that he could hardly be moved from side to side, with constriction of chest and anguish of heart. When urged to dance she replied with tears that she could not on account of pain in joints of feet and weakness. Return of all symptoms every year at the time of the bite, all symptoms > dancing. Aggravation of all symptoms from drinking two fluid ounces of whisky.

Clinical.—The Spanish Tarentula has been used very largely for hysteria, characterized by most violent alternations of moods, especially with sudden, stealthy and destructive impulses; its curative powers in these and other forms of mental disturbance rest upon a very slender basis, for it is probable that most of the mental symptoms attributed to the bite of this spider are purely imaginary. Hystero-epilepsy, with wild shrieks. Hysteria, with constant movement of the extremities, especially of the hands. Paralysis agitans. Chorea, especially of the extremities. Nocturnal chorea in children. General hyperaesthesia.

Mind.—Agitation. Melancholy, anguish, restlessness, peevishness, haste in whatever I undertook from fear that something would prevent my finishing it, I would start up and hastily change my position through fear that something would fall on me, when walking I would stop short or suddenly throw my head to one side through fear of striking it against an imaginary object which appeared to be suspended a few inches above my head, fear of impending calamity, desire to be alone, with fear of being alone even during daylight, frightful images as soon as the eyes closed, with inability to sleep.

Head, etc.—Headache. Weakness of head. Eyes glaring, red. Eyes inflamed, conjunctiva injected, r. pupil dilated, l. contracted, vision lost in r. eye, objects seen in l. eye appeared bright red. Roaring and rumbling in ears, with dulness of hearing. Profuse hemorrhage of black blood from nose, each drop coagulated and sank at once like a bullet to the bottom of a vessel partly filled with water, and formed a large black clot. Face pale, earthy, in strong contrast with the nearly purple neck. Countenance expressive of terror.

Mouth, Throat and Stomach.—Tongue moist. Tongue coated dark-brown, edges and tip fiery red. Said that her tongue was drawn backward, so that she could not speak. Swelling of external throat. Throbbing pain in submaxillary and cervical glands, with occasional stinging. Fauces swollen, purplish, swallowing difficult, as from partial paralysis. Swallowing painful. Appetite lost. Thirst; burning, with internal heat; burning, with constant desire for large quantities of cold water. Vomiting, with incessant paroxysms of cough and scanty expectoration of mucus; V. of everything taken into stomach soon after eating, preceded by burning pain in stomach and œsophagus, which the V. relieved.

Abdomen, Stool and Urine.—Colic, then fever, then fatal symptoms. Stools three or four times daily, dark, fetid, partly-formed, difficult, containing much mucus followed by smarting and burning at anus, stools always immediately on having head washed. Urine scanty, high-colored, passed with difficulty, a dense precipitate after standing.

Sexual Organs.—Clinical.—Dysmenorrhœa, with extremely sensitive ovaries. It has been used in various forms of disease of the sexual organs of women; chronic vaginitis, granular; induration of the cervix and body of uterus; cancerous ulceration of the os, with induration; subinvolution, with leucorrhœa, burning, smarting pain in the coccyx, > standing, uterine neuralgias, extending to the sacrum and spine, with convulsive movement. Intense pruritus of the vulva. Nymphomania. "Fidgets" in the legs, associated with menstrual irregularities.

Respiratory Organs and Chest.—Aphonia. Breathing difficult; with peculiar incessant sighing; B. short and hurried, < attempting to lie down. Pain at base of lungs when coughing or inhaling. Constriction of chest. Chest expands with difficulty.

Heart and Pulse.—Anguish of heart; preventing lying down, did not go to bed nor sleep for four nights. Painful throbbing in carotids, > nosebleed, with fulness of head, < region of medulla oblongata. Pulse irregular.

Neck and Extremities.—Neck felt sore. Trembling of knees when standing, the joints felt stiff and sore. Knuckles and toes pain so that he cannot bear the lightest weight of linen. Legs and lower joints gradually became numb and insensible to pinching, in the bitten part there was a reddish and almost livid tumor of the size of a lentil.

Clinical.—Spinal irritability, the slightest touch causes spasmodic pains in chest. Multiple sclerosis, with trembling, intense pain at night.

Skin.—Inflammation of the bitten toe; I. of the scratch, with burning and itching in it, axillary, submaxillary and cervical glands swollen and sensitive to touch, nearly purple swelling of throat in a line from chin to sternum and in a line from occipital protuberance to scapulae, the swelling > profuse nosebleed. Each year pain in the toes from the reopened wound, they were inflamed and a thin ichor exuded from the nails, deeply corroding the neighboring parts.

Inflamed pimple, with scarlet areola, with a red erysipelatous line from it marking the course of the spider after biting, the pimple and erysipelatous inflamed areola spread, chills followed by fever generally supervene on second or third day, with thirst, anxiety, restlessness, headache, delirium, sweat and retention of urine, the pimple becomes a hard painful abscess, ending in mortification of the integuments over it and having several small openings, discharging a thick sanious matter, containing pieces of mortified cellular tissue, fasciae and tendons, the openings run into each other and form large cavities, now the fever becomes intermittent with evening paroxysms, accompanied by diarrhoea and prostration.

Felt a prick as from an ant or fly, with pain in joint of I. ring finger (from bite on I. forearm), next day the affected part was red and had a golden areola, on the third day the areola was swollen, with continuance of the pain, a black scab formed again and again, till on the fifteenth day the yellow circle reappeared. Burning on scalp, then vesicles resembling crusta lactea, five ulcers on different parts of scalp, which discharged thin greenish, offensive, ichorous pus, vesicles on different parts of body, soon becoming pustular and turning to ulcers.

Sleep and Fever.—Irresistible sleepiness. Sleeplessness. Chills spreading from lumbar region over whole body, < slightest cold draught and artificial heat. Cold sweat.

Clinical.—Intermittent fever, with chorea-like convulsions.

Tarentula Cubensis.

The live Cuban spider is irritated in a bottle and the virus diluted with alcohol.

Clinical.—This spider has been used for various forms of unhealthy or malignant suppuration, especially carbuncles, with burning stinging pain; with great weakness and diarrhoea; with most terrible pains; bubo; diphtheria. In all these diseases there is usually a purplish hue with burning stinging pains (compare with Lach.).

Tartaric Acid.

Pure Tartaric acid is triturated for use.

Compare other organic acids, Acetic, Citric, etc.

Convulsions. Bruised sensation, < lower limbs. Weakness; in evening, can scarcely drag himself along. Amelioration in open air. Vertigo. Face suddenly became red, he exclaimed that he was poisoned and then was speechless. Lips dry; lips brown and blackish at their inner edge; burning; (burning on upper, at a spot where a pimple had been cured). Teeth set on edge. Tongue brown and dry. Taste pasty in morning, > eating. Burning in throat and stomach. Thirst. Eructations. Nausea. Vomiting; dark green. Pinching in abdomen; below navel, with emission of flatus and cold feeling in abdomen. Pain in umbilical region. Many stools at night. Fæces of the color of coffee-grounds. Hoarseness, with scraping in larynx. Respiration difficult and slow; accelerated, then laborious and slow. Heart's action weak. Pulse feeble. Sharp pain in loins. Tearing in soles near heels, preventing setting feet on ground, after luncheon. Paralysis of thighs and legs. Yawning; and stretching. Coldness in evening in bed.

Tellurium.

Pure metallic Tellurium is triturated.

General Action.—See symptoms of spine and skin.

Allies.—Ars., Rhus t., Cepa.

Generalities.—Pains over whole body, < limbs and scapulae, < r. side, < waking; fugitive and indistinct P., "first r., then l." Restless (Ars., Rhus t.). Weakness, then sharp, quick pains in elbows, ankles and various parts. Heaviness in morning after deep sleep and bad dreams, with dulness.

Mind.—Forgets and neglects much, it is too much trouble to observe and write down the symptoms, when thinking of any business he forgets everything else. Quiet.

Head.—Aching; in afternoon, < l. side, and at 6 P.M., < forepart; towards evening; < vertex. Brain felt bruised on every movement. Dulness. Heavy, full and sleepy. Sudden rush of blood when sitting quietly working, with head bent forward, almost twice daily, now in morning, now in afternoon, with reddening of face. Every evening on getting to sleep, vertigo as if he were waited and drawn forth quickly in the direction of his legs, always waking him.

Forehead.—Stitches anteriorly, pressure above eyes as after lack of sleep. Linear pain behind l. brow. Congestive pain in F. and temples in morning on waking, < stooping, when there was weight, > lying. Pressure outward deep in a long line above eyes, < r. side. Pain in a spot in l. sinciput, pressing like a hazelnut, at night and through next morning.

Tensive pain externally in l. half in morning when lying on l. side. Pressure upon a spot behind vertex. Occiput, pain in r. side; confusion at sides and < towards back part; numbness, and in nape.

Eyes.—Red, dropsical, biting, itching swelling of l. upper lid towards inner angle, secreting some fluid, then a scab, globe reddened. Itching of l. upper lid towards inner canthus towards evening, with pressure as if a hair had grown in the wrong direction.

Clinical.—Eczema impetiginoides of the lids and conjunctiva. Scrofulous ophthalmia.

Ears.—Sudden obstruction in forenoon and at 10 P.M., < l. Air catches itself in l. Eustachian tube; on taking a pinch of snuff and on eructation of wind. Itching within, with thin wax. Itching of l., with burning and swelling and with aching and throbbing in external meatus, then discharge from ear, copious, watery, smelling like fish-pickle, acrid, causing vesicles wherever it touched ear or neck, the inflammation of ear generally was not vesicular, ear was bluish-red and appeared infiltrated with water.

Clinical.—Eczema of the external ear, with itching and swelling and painful throbbing, discharge smelling like old fish-brine, vesicular eruption externally. Numerous cases of otorrhœa have been cured. Deafness.

Nose.—Obstruction of r. nostril; of l. in forenoon, slime running off posteriorly. Sudden dryness (as from sudden stoppage of fluent coryza or as from an abortive attempt to sneeze) in r. side of N. and fauces between 4 and 5 P.M., then painful heat in r. eye, with lachrymation. Fluent coryza when walking in clear air (from 11 A.M. till noon), > stay in open air, with hoarseness and lachrymation (Allium cep.), short cough and pressure under sternum; C., with thick mucus. Thick slime on waking, he had breathed through the mouth at night, nose sometimes stopped. Dry coryza, worse at irregular intervals.

Face and Mouth.—Distortion of l. facial muscles when speaking, l. angle of mouth drawn to the left and upward. Burning in lips in afternoon after being in cold air in the forenoon; in middle of upper in afternoon. Pain in l. teeth, which had been filled with lead. Garlicky breath. Mouth and pharynx cool as after peppermint, < drawing in air. Taste metallic, earthy.

Throat.—In morning much slime from posterior nares tasting salt, like smoked herring. The slime in posterior nares has been deposited as a yellow-reddish resin, which is hawked out in morning. Suffocative feeling in upper part. Scratching; < towards evening. Soreness in evening on empty swallowing; < l. side; prickly, in fauces on swallowing, < r. side. Pressure in tonsils. Dryness at 5 P.M.; in fauces towards evening; in fauces, < r. side; in fauces, > eating or drinking, with pain; in fauces in morning, < l. side, > walking in open air from 11 A.M. till noon, then pain in r. side extending into ear, < empty swallowing, stoppage of r. ear, the D. always felt morning and evening; prickly, in fauces in morning, < l. side, > after breakfast; painful, in back part, as from sudden stoppage of fluent coryza or as from an abortive attempt to sneeze, in morning. Itching in fauces above larynx, with burning, as if he had scalded himself. Feels fauces and pharynx, and at times has a sensation as if round waves pushed against pharynx below. Swallowing painful.

Stomach.—Sudden desire for apples at 11.30 P.M. on going to sleep, making him wide awake. Good appetite, with desire for beer, later both ceased. No desire to smoke in evening. Eructations tasting of the food. Nausea before evening meal, > eating, with headache; N., caused by vertigo, and after eating rice vomiting; N. with frequent pulse. Contracting sensation in epigastrium as if it folded together, then pain in l. side, with soreness. Empty and weak feeling, yet no appetite. Discomfort, something comes up to pharynx, as if a wet eructation would occur, but nothing comes up, then difficult retching, then accumulation of water in mouth, then retching, then yawning. Heartburn in epigastrium and on both sides of it, as after spirituous drinks.

Abdomen.—Pinching at 8 A.M., and stool, first thick, then diarrhœic; P. at 10 P.M., > emission of flatus. Spasmodic pain as from incarcerated flatus, < afternoon, one day at 6 P.M. while eating, with urging to stool, then copious stool, then only feeling of flatulence, the pain returned four days afterwards between 3 and 4 P.M., > copious stools. Full after supper, but not bloated. Warmth as after spirituous drinks.

Fulness in region of upper A. and liver. Pressure of incarcerated flatus in l. hypochondrium after breakfast, then in r. Burning in hepatic region as if blistered inside, in forenoon when sitting, then heavy pressure. Gnawing rubbing pain in r. side, < low in back. Pain anteriorly on sides and above pubic region; in l. flank, within crest of ilium. Numbness of walls began below umbilicus on each side, extended around and upward to ribs while lying on sofa after supper.

Rectum and Stool.—Blind hæmorrhoids. Itching in anus; in rectum after stool. Diarrhœa, then urging, with burning in rectum, then stronger retraction of abdomen. Constipation; with much wind. Stool only every other day and difficult. Stool omitted for two days, then one not hard, composed of crumbs enveloped in brown-reddish slime, next day the first part was similar, but the last part softer.

Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Urine dark; deep red, scanty, acid, sp. gr. 1030, abundant coloring matter, hydrochloric acid caused striking change of color. Erections all night. Sexual desire and power increased; desire powerful, then extinct.

Respiratory Organs.—Hoarseness in morning after rising. In larynx a sensation between roughness and pressure, generally provoking cough, gradually passing into tickling. Cough, with pressure under sternum. Easy expectoration of white mucus.

Chest.—Stitches, < l. side; above l. rib. Drawing cutting in l. nipple and around it, extending towards scapula. Pain in clavicle; in middle of sternum; above first l. rib. Oppression. Feeling in middle lobe of r. lung as if a fluid wanted to discharge itself (pressing downward) in afternoon. Bubbling in middle lobe of r. lung, < afternoon. Undulatory throbbing as from wind-balls under r. ribs, somewhat towards epigastrium, when lying on l. side. flatus does not pass off as freely in the morning as usual, and the hitherto rather diarrhœic stool intermits, flatus becomes stinking.

Heart.—Palpitation, with throbbing through whole body and fulness of pulse, then sweat.

Neck.—Sharp pain extending into ear when lying on l. ear.

Back.—Spine sensitive from last cervical to about fifth dorsal vertebra, with dread of having the part touched or approached (compare Chin. s.), the dread was greater than the actual sensibility, from these vertebrae a peculiar irritation radiated into neck and shoulders and to sternum, this sensation < fatigue, but only partially > repose.

Drawing and pressure in r., then l. scapula. Pain between scapulae; in region of kidneys, extending downward and towards abdomen, < night, with soreness and weight, the pains < next morning, especially the soreness; P. in sacrum, < stooping or rising from sitting or lying, it passes down r. thigh in direction of sciatic nerve, it is almost impossible for him to press at stool, sometimes on moving the pain in sacrum and sacral ligaments is like a stab; P. in os sacrum as if beaten in morning, < stooping, not > rising again, extending after a time into renal region, > walking in open air, returning when sitting, returning next day when standing in a stooping posture, > walking, < lying on back, but when lying on l. side it is worse towards the right, on third day the pain in sacrum and leg > motion in open air, < pressing at stool, and when coughing and laughing the pain extends from sacral plexus through large foramen ischiaticum along great sciatic nerve into thigh, < r. side.

Extremities.—Sprained and bruised sensation in knees, hips, elbows and shoulder-joint on returning from a walk after supper. Sensation of an internal tumor at anterior margin of l. axilla, with pain on pressure and motion. Sometimes tearing towards elbow and in palm towards thumb-joint. Drawing cramplike pain in l. supinator longus, just below bend of elbow. Heaviness of l. forearm and hand about 10 P.M., with numbness. Pain through metacarpal bone of r. fourth finger. Drawing in r. hand, afterwards involving forearm. Sensation as if skin of hands and fingers, < r., were contracted, with sensation as if ends of fingers were dead. Rheumatic pain in r. little finger (except last joint), < strong pressure or movement. Pain in first phalanx of l. little finger as if he had fallen upon it, with pain on motion.

Lower Extremities.—Burning aching anteriorly at outside of r. knee. Knees and legs, < r., feel tired, all the evening drawing in r. leg posteriorly from posterior spinous process to calf, < kneeholder and after lying down (11.30), so as to prevent sleep and obliging him to turn frequently, the sleep is very good, with amelioration of all pain. Pain in r. metatarsal bone as if pressed.

Clinical.—Sciatica, < lying down at night, straining at stool, coughing or laughing, < r. side.

Skin.—Red points shining through the skin of l. hand, sometimes with itching, with itching of feet, < l., after several days similar points on calves and then extending up thighs, the itching < where the skin perspires most, after a few days similar pimples on epigastrium, the points more visible on rubbing, from epigastrium the eruption extends towards l. nipple, then turns towards l. axilla, at the same time itching in various parts of back, a spot on r. side of forehead is sore on pressure, as if bruised, now itching on posterior and superior parts of head.

Pimples on face; small, red, sharply defined, with vesicles upon them, on lower limbs, then also on upper, < l. side, they began on outside of calves and then on inside of forearms, above wrists, and spread from that point, with itching, < night after going to bed; red itching P. on abdomen, inside of thighs and perineum, the itching < cold weather.

Vesicles in a cluster on an inflamed base, on forehead, above r. external canthus, they dried into thin scales and spread, with itching and pricking, afterwards the herpetic spot was circular, about half an inch in diameter, consisting of an elevated ring of vesicles, some larger than others, on an inflamed base, enclosing a depressed area of red skin, which desquamated but contained no vesicles, it itched and had successive crops of thin white scales, one evening the stinging was very annoying when sitting still, wandering all over body, a similar herpetic spot midway between l. ribs and crest of ilium, with itching, which changed into smarting on rubbing, with indications of another spot just above it, afterwards itching vesicles on a slightly inflamed base, falling off in white scales, on scalp, < occiput, in border of hair on nape, and posteriorly on ears; the spot on forehead is breaking up now, but just above it is a similar smaller one, afterwards the spot on forehead is red.

Sticking pricking in various parts, < rest. Pricking itching at scrotum in afternoon, < r. side, then high up on inside of l. thigh, then low on r. side of abdomen, then on l. side, then between buttocks.

Clinical.—Herpes circinatus. Eczema.

Sleep.—Sleepy in evening, went to sleep while sitting. The sleepy, heavy condition which he had before the proving vanished, and instead thereof a restlessness on going to bed. Waking about 4 A.M., with sweat. Nightmare. Dream of smoking cigars, which he never does.

Fever.—Internal chilliness, with shudderings. Skin hot and dry, with bruised sensation, as if he had taken cold. Sweat; when sitting writing; offensive; of offensive Tellurium odor at night (from taking cold); offensive, on feet, < toes.

Terebinthina.

One part of oil of turpentine is dissolved in 99 parts of alcohol.

General Action.—It inflames the kidneys and urinary tract, causing profuse hæmorrhage from the kidneys as well as strangury; it irritates the bronchial and intestinal mucous membrane, causing cough and loose, bloody evacuations, with marked tympanitis. It has caused hæmorrhages from the lungs and uterus (as well as from the kidneys and bowels).

Alies.—Secale c., Carbo v., Canth., Erigeron, Phos.

Generalities.—Swayed backward and forward when dressing and undressing, though his feet were far apart. Relaxation of muscles. Occasional subsultus. Opisthotonos at intervals of ten or fifteen minutes. Convulsions (Secale c.); when she heard water poured out or when water was offered to her, or if a looking-glass was presented to her she suddenly jumped to her feet, muscles of body were rigid, spine stiff, but arms, hands and face were convulsed, groaned, and on being approached she attempted to scratch and bite the person coming near her, eyes wide open, look savage, the attacks lasted from two to five minutes, then she gradually relaxed all muscles and lay down, the spasms were preceded by strangury, no urine all day.

Symptoms resembling those of malignant cholera (Secale c.). Neuralgia in various parts, < one or other lower limb. Mucous membranes dry. Weakness; through the day; with inability to walk, staggering and falling; so that when limbs were raised they fell heavily back by their own weight. Faint. Stiffness of whole body; of muscles, he walks slowly and bent over. Inability to ride horseback.

Mind.—Excitement. Anxiety; with weakness on going to bed. Facility of thought. Dulness, inability to fix attention. Stupefaction. Coma. Insensibility.

Head.—Tearing; extending towards r. side; intermittent, till evening. Achång; with colic; intermittent, with nausea. Dulness. Fulness in evening; F. and pressure, so that he constantly cried out "My head! my head!" and apoplexy was apprehended. Intoxication; and sometimes a kind of trance; drenched in sweat all night and stupid, woke next morning weak and with head bewildered, staggering about when undertaking to stand still, > profuse discharge of urine, which smelled of violets. Vertigo; with dulness of head and sick feeling in whole body; with nausea and diminished appetite; sudden, even to falling, with blackness before eyes.

Forehead.—Sticking. Tearing extending out towards r. ear, which is hot, while l. ear is cold to touch. Heavy pain over l. eye when sitting and during mental work. Drawing in bones of F. and r. half of face in evening.

Sticking in r. mastoid process. Intermittent smarting tickling pain in l. temple in evening in bed, > rubbing.

Eyes.—Sunken; and surrounded by dark rings. Pupils contracted. Vision of black, floating points and spots when walking in open air, > looking at a distance, with vertigo.

Clinical.—Ciliary neuralgia over r. eye (Cedron). Epileptitis, with intense pain in eye and side of the head. Rheumatic iritis, with intense pain, especially with burning in the kidneys, dark urine. Adhesions of the iris. Anblyopia from alcohol.

Ears and Nose.—Ringing and singing before ears, like the striking of a clock. Coryza, peculiar, watery, at times from one nostril, at times from both, without the usual accompanying symptoms. Nosebleed.

Clinical.—Deafness, with discharges from l. ear.

Face.—Pale; and anxious, shrunken. Red. Anxious. Sensation of spasm beginning under chin and extending to cheek-bones, with nervous drawings in cheeks, without visible contraction of face, then supra-orbital pain as if bruised. Herpes of lips. Lips could scarcely be moved.

Mouth and Throat.—Drawing in teeth. Burning in tip of tongue, with prominent papillæ. Agreeable coolness in M. Breath cold (Secale c., Carbo v.). Scraping in throat; in evening, provoking hacking cough; in pharynx and in stomach, with warmth. No power over deglutition.

Stomach.—Hunger and thirst; sudden H. for rue on bread and butter (of which he had already eaten freely) in evening during enjoyable mental work; H. diminished; lost. Thirst. Rancid eructations. Nausea; in morning; from meat; with eructations and griping beneath stomach-pit; with inability to vomit owing to weakness. Vomiting; of mucus; of yellowish mucus.

Rumbling in S. and abdomen after dinner, with pain extending into side. Symptoms of gastro-enteritis. Inflammation of S. and intestines, so that slight touch of abdomen, especially epigastric region, could not be endured. Pain; in a spot in pit, > stooping, lying and deep breathing; in evening when lying on l. side, preventing sleep, > emission of flatus while lying on r. side; becoming nausea, > eructations; in pit after eating, as if food had been swallowed too hastily. In pit sensation as if he had swallowed a ball. In pit pressure as from without. In pit sensation between pain and burning. Heat; in epigastric region.

Abdomen.—Distention (Carbo v.); after food which was relished; with constipation; obliging him to rest. Meteorismus. Rumbling; in morning, with gurgling; and gurgling, then colic in evening; and griping and thin stool. Griping. Colic; with violent movements in abdomen; with heaviness and emission of flatus; bending the patient up; extending into legs. Feeling as before violent purging. Irritation. Sensation as if intestines were drawn back to spine. Heaviness after midday nap. Coldness as if naked, after dinner.

Cutting in upper. Pressure beneath diaphragm, extending from l. to r. side, after eating. Sticking in l. side after stool, with griping. Tearing cutting in l. side in evening when lying on r. side, then also on r. side. Umbilical region retracted, cold, as if a cold round plate were pressed against it, when lying after dinner.

Hypochondria.—Jerking sticking in l. in evening when urinating. Cutting in l. when sitting, > motion, with pain. Griping. Pressure in l., with drawing; burning P. Burning in r.

Hypogastrium.—Swelling of inguinal glands when sitting in evening, with pain. Movement as if a hernia would protrude in groin, < sitting with legs outstretched. Cramp, now in r., now in l. groin, > walking, with dragging and pressure outward. Tearing in symphysis pubis. Cutting; with distention of some parts as if a hernia would protrude. Feeling as if pubes were suddenly forced asunder. Drawing in groins and thighs. Cutting drawing in r. groin; from ring into r. testicle, > stooping. Dragging in r. groin, with cutting.

Clinical.—Abdominal dropsy. It has proved valuable in pelvic peritonitis, especially when complicated with bladder troubles and with excessive tympanitis.

Anus.—Burning; when standing; after stool; and tickling; and crawling and sensation as if worms crept out; itching, after stool, as from blind hemorrhoids. Urging; ineffectual.

Stool.—Diarrhœa; yellow, with discharge of tape-worm, also round worms; greenish-yellow, frequent, with discharge of tape-worm. Pasty, with colic and burning in anus. Constipation. Hard, scanty; H. and dark chestnut-brown. Diminished (two instead of one). Two in evening.

Clinical.—Diarrhœa, with red, sore, shining tongue.

Urinary Organs.—Bladder. Movement in region during stool, as if B. were suddenly distended and bent forward. Inflammation. Twinging and cutting alternating with a similar pain above navel, > walking in open air, < rest. Spasmodic pain when sitting. Burning, and when urinating, also in urethra. Frequent desire, with scanty urine each time.

Strangury, bloody urine, then soreness of bladder (Canth.); S., bloody urine and total suppression of urine. Dysuria. Incontinence of urine. Difficult micturition. Urethritis, with painful erections (Canth.). Burning in urethra; when urinating.

Urine.—Bloody (Canth., Phos., Erigeron); and scanty. Scanty; and red, sometimes bloody, or else copious and light-colored. Copious. Suppressed (effects from use for stone). Smelling of violets: has a wine color and deposits a thick, slimy, whitish-yellow sediment. Contains sugar. Clear, but on standing becomes turbid, with reddish-white sediment. Slimy sediment.

Clinical.—Inflamed kidneys, with dull pain and burning, pain extends to the bladder, strangury, bloody urine; particularly useful when this condition follows any acute disease. Congestion of the kidneys, with great quantity of blood in the urine. Acute cystitis, with burning pain in region of kidney. Dysuria and constant tenesmus.

Sexual Organs.—Drawing in l. testicle when sitting; spasmodic, in l. extending along l. spermatic cord. Burning posteriorly in r. testicle. Emission at night. Tearing in mons veneris. Menstruation delayed and scanty.

Respiratory Organs.—Dryness. Prickling in trachea as in commencing bronchitis. Voice gone. Cough as from a foreign substance in trachea, with cramp in larynx as in whooping cough, inspiration in six or seven catches, the cramp became so violent that he could scarcely inspire, then scraping in throat. (Aggravation of short, dry cough, especially when lying after eating.) Expectoration streaked with blood. Breathing difficult; and lungs seem overdistended. Breathing stertorous. B. short; and hurried, anxious. Increase of respiratory movements.

Clinical.—Hæmoptysis relieving the congestion of the lungs. Capillary bronchitis, especially with scanty, bloody urine.

Chest.—Spastic contraction of muscles of C. and neck in evening. Mucous râles in lungs, with minute crepitation. Pain behind sternum; itching, in l. pectoralis major. Soreness in lower part. Burning along sternum, gradually extending over C. and disappearing, with stitches at nipples (after warm drinks).

Heart.—Oppression of præcordial region. Warmth in evening when sitting, forcing her to yawn much, with collection of water in mouth. Palpitation; in evening.

Pulse.—Rapid; and respiration; and full; and hard; and hard, small; small, compressible, and almost imperceptible; and small, irregular; and small, weak; and weak. Scarcely perceptible; and steady (Carbo v., Secale c.). Weak, irregular and intermittent in evening.

Neck.—Gradual painful drawing up nape into occiput and then to forehead.

Back.—Pain; extending up to between shoulders and there becoming a throbbing; drawing, when sitting, < evening. Drawing in dorsal and lumbar muscles, with heaviness and indolence on moving in open air. Pain in lumbar and hypogastric regions, with warmth, then sensitiveness to pressure. Kidney region painful in morning when sitting; P. and heavy; and diabetes, and died dropsical; l. Burning drawing pain in kidney region. Drawing in r. kidney extending into r. hip. Drawing pain in small of back.

Extremities.—Acute pain in all joints. Heaviness. Partial loss of use of r. arm and l. leg. But little use of r. arm, she could advance it from the body but a short distance, she could raise shoulder-blade and bend elbow, but the hand fell with a jerk into the position in which she wished to place it. Sprained pain in muscles of l. upper arm. Drawing in humeri in morning. Trembling of hands. Fingers insensible and asleep in evening.

Lower Extremities.—Tottering. She limped with

l. foot and dragged the leg in walking, ankle was stiff. Drawing along thighs; in outer side of r., as if in fascia lata; along course of large vessels; with colic as if menses would appear, though she had them eight days previously; in r. hip-joint, with tearing. Drawing paralytic pain in l. thigh. Feet were placed far apart when standing or walking. Pain in feet.

Skin.—Rubefaction and sometimes vesicles. Livid spots on back and abdomen. Scarlet eruption. Nettle-rash. Eruption, sudden, erythematous, papular, often vesicular, analogous to that caused by certain forms of sea-food. Exanthema like scarlet rash on affected knee, extending to ankle, then on chest and r. foot, gradually extending over largest part of body.

Warmth in bend of elbow (from local applications), with itching, redness and distention of vessels of corium, sticking, sensitiveness to touch, which especially caused sticking, the breath from the mouth was felt more acutely there than elsewhere and caused burning, the reddened cutis was swollen and numb when brushed with a feather or finger, burning stinging extending over inner half of joint to olecranon process, pulsative burning, with pressure and tension over the red surface and sometimes deep pulsation, at times stitches over the whole surface, at other times only in spots in the reddened place, smarting soreness, red spots on the margin of diffused redness, swelling of hair-follicles, burning, < inner side of joint, pressure caused pain, then aggravation of the burning, pain in inner half of joint on putting arm down, afterwards appearance similar to extravasation of blood, spots incompletely raised by exudation, sore pain on touch, desquamation.

Sensitiveness of limbs, < lower, with at times acute pains following the large nerves. Burning itching on r. groin.

Clinical.—Bed-sores in paralytics. Purpura hæmorrhagica. Urticaria.

Sleep.—Sleepiness; in evening; but the day nap did not interfere with his night's rest. Sleeplessness and excitement; S. for two hours at night, with tossing about. Restless sleep and frequent waking. Awoke alarmed, but unable to cry out. Nightmare waking him as soon as he fell asleep. Anxious dreams.

Fever.—Coldness; causing tossing about the bed; of skin; of limbs. Heat; with sweat of lower limbs, < the affected one and along the nerve affected; of trunk; of skin; of skin, with sweat. Sweat; cold and clammy over whole body; on lower limbs in evening in bed.

Clinical.—Typhoid fever, with hæmorrhage from the bowels, bloody albuminous urine, excessive tympanitis.

Thallium.

The pure metal is triturated.

Emaciation. Hyperæmia, < application to conjunctiva, with swelling and excessive secretion. Trembling; and chorea-like movements. Pains < lower limbs, with lassitude. Conjunctivitis, with much mucus (and perhaps disturbance of vision). Ptyalism. Appetite lost. Nausea. Vomiting. Laminations following each other with the rapidity of electric shocks, in stomach and bowels. Abdomen retracted. Pain in intestinal canal. Diarrhœa and even bloody stools. Constipation. Respiration slow and difficult. Pulse slow. Paralysis of lower limbs. (Compare Plumbum, to which it is closely allied physically.)

Clinical.—It has relieved the violent pains of locomotor ataxia.

Thea.

A tincture is made of Pekœ-tea (Camellia Thea, Link).

Generalities.—Loss of weight diminished. Lean; and pale. Trembling. Convulsions, < limbs. Epilepsy. Twitching like the sensation caused by electric sparks, in different parts, < forearms, hands and finger-joints. Agitation; first in limbs, extending from muscles to nervous centres. Inclination to lie down. Weakness; for two hours after breakfast; < every meal; with pain in small of back; as if knees would not support body. Sinking, craving, fluttering feeling. Faintness; which vexed him; becoming a cramplike pain after every meal, reaching into throat and often waking her at night. Incapable of muscular action. Symptoms of paralysis, numbness of limbs and partial loss of use of limbs. If wine or beer were drunk after the tea the sleeplessness and malaise were not felt, but if strong beer were drunk before the tea it diminished the frequency of the pulse and caused comfort and buoyancy of mind and body. Aggravation in afternoon; A. if I drank it fasting. Feeling of great ease.

Mind.—Delirium; and unconsciousness, ecstasy, he laughs and talks in rhyme; delirium tremens, wandering about the house, imagining that evil spirits and people were seeking to harm her, sleeplessness, twitching of face and limbs, later wandering about the wharves and attempting to drown herself. Agreeable exhilaration of mind and body, contentment, placidity, increase of intellectual and physical vigor, without noticeable reaction. Temporary exaltation, greater confidence in himself. Excitement from animated conversation and intense thinking, then refreshing sleep; E., with clearness of intellect; then debilitating influence upon nervous system and lumbar portion of spinal marrow. Cordiality, brilliancy of intellect, conversation fluent, interesting, witty, then the opposite state, with irritability, sensitiveness and quarrelsome mood.

Sensation as if impelled to commit suicide, to jump out of the window, to put her baby into the boiler with the clothes, to cut its throat when cutting the bread, to throw it down stairs. Nervousness at the sound of the night-bell; N., > beer, with want of confidence. Anguish. Terror. Fright at night, sinister thoughts, invincible propensity to analyze his life, to look at it on the dark side and to resolve it into its most hopeless realities. Anxiety. Apprehension of something dreadful about to happen, fear of sudden death, would never go out alone, at times impulse to commit some horrible crime, to murder her children, so that she trembled for their safety. Weeps easily. Peevish; and taciturn; and disinclined to write or think; and averse to everything and to fatigue. Averse to movement; to conversation. Sadness in some, cheerfulness in others. Gloomy, heavy and dizzy in forehead.

Aptitude for study increased, more capable of sustained attention. Greater power of receiving impressions, it disposes to pensive meditation, causes activity of ideas, attention is easily fixed, sensation of health and gayety, but after an hour nervous troubles, such as yawning, irritability, pains in epigastrium, palpitation, trembling of limbs and sadness, with these symptoms insupportable insomnia, with excitation, then lassitude and headache. Ideas dull and confused. Memory weak; lost. Incapable of any occupation. Insensibility in evening.

Head.—Aching; in morning and evening, often with nausea; with throbbing of carotids; or backache, Sick headache; every week, with soreness of head, then weakness; < during menses, pain begins in l. ovary and stomach and passes to head, throbbing shooting through temples, extending down nose, with acuteness of smell, vomiting of bile when the pain is at its height, exertion causes vomiting during the headache. Congestion; with fulness, < over eyes. Vertigo; with darkness before eyes; sudden, as if about to lose consciousness in evening when walking in open air.

Frontal pain. Frontal heaviness, < walking, with vertigo; < walking, with compression. Vertigo in vertex, with heat and pulsation. On both sides of base of cerebellum and in nape, neuralgic pain like a cold flat-iron between skin and skull, extending over cranium and over forehead to eyes. Sharp twitching pain in r. occipital protuberance, with feeling of damp coldness, afterwards the pain extends to nape, r. shoulder and r. arm, > application of hand or warm cloth. Sudden tensive pain in occiput, almost in nape. Scalp painful to touch; on vertex.

NOTE.—Tea is one of the most fruitful causes of "sick-headache."

Eyes.—Glittering. Dryness from mental exercise during a sleepless night, then neuralgia of them. Pupils dilated. Vision dim. Vision of sparks; flashing, fiery lines darting from eyes and radiating outward from axis of vision.

Ears.—Neuralgic pain in cartilages, with coldness, the pains extending to molars and cheek-bones. Ringing. Roaring. Hallucinations of hearing, for five nights he thought he heard the door-bell, it often woke him with a start.

Nose.—Soreness of internal edge. Constant desire to pick it. Dryness. Sensation at root as if epistaxis would occur.

Face.—Pale; with circumscribed redness; and lips; and cheeks easily flushed. Red; cheeks. Wild and distressed expression.

Mouth.—Teeth diseased. Tongue pale; T. red, with white slime; stinging as from blisters, with pain as if scalded, and on top red spots and white blisters. Scraping of soft palate. Dryness and sensitiveness. Salivation, with hunger, afterwards dryness of mouth, scanty viscid saliva, with satiety and a little thirst. Offensive breath in morning on waking. Filled with viscid saliva after drinking. Taste bitter. Taste of tea extending from throat to stomach.

Throat.—Diphtheritic soreness. Painless swelling of mucous membrane of pharynx. Dryness. Un-easiness as from a foreign body in pharynx.

Stomach.—Appetite great, with faintness at the dinner-hour; great, but easily satisfied, then satiety. Craving for acids; especially lemons. Longing for tea, which removed the goneness and gave vigor for a short time, often loathed the tea, but could not resist it, thirsty, but could not bear cold water, every mouthful affected her head like a shock. Lost; with craving at pit of stomach. Loathing of food till noon, then she eats sparingly. Dislikes cold water. Lack of thirst.

Exhausting eructations. Nausea; in pit of stomach; > diarrhœa, with general discomfort and sweat; > a glass of sherry or beer, with weakness and irregular pulse; with discomfort in stomach; with salivation, weak feeling in stomach, which seems to hang in his body like an empty bag. Vomiting; of bile; of the meal which she had lately taken. Spasms from slight exertions. Pyrosis. Pain in epigastrium; < eating, > before breakfast, and in umbilical region; cramplike and pressing, after every meal, reaching into throat and often waking her at night. Sensitiveness of epigastrium; with feeling as if caved in. Tickling in pit, causing dry cough, which shakes the whole digestive organization, bringing on neuralgic head symptoms. Heartburn. Burning in region of pylorus.

Emptiness; in epigastrium; in pit after eating, with pain; with craving; with craving and with fluttering in l. side; with excitability and constriction, preventing deep breathing; with oppression, benumbed feeling and with tossing about, groans at every breath, occasionally rubbing her stomach violently.

Abdomen.—Borborygm, and < epigastric region. Relaxation of fibres of intestines. Paroxysmal stitches below ribs, extending from r. towards l. side, after luncheon. Liability to hernia. Cutting above umbilicus, extending to pit of stomach, there becoming intense and radiating thence over chest, causing sick faint feeling, sometimes three or four pains in quick succession, but oftener one long slow pain every four or five minutes, then spasmodic belching, pain < towards morning, then frequent watery stools, with flatus and pain, then nervous depression, the least thought of any exertion seemed overpowering, heavy sleep the second night and exhaustion, < next morning, eyes sunken, face pallid, tremor of hands, even on lifting a small vial, all movements slow, halting, feeling in brain that everything must stop.

Rectum and Stool.—Tumefaction of lower end of R., with itching. Diarrhœa frequent; chronic D., < beer, > port wine. Constipation. Stool hard in part, the rest scarcely formed; S. irregular and costive; S. scanty; frequent.

Urinary Organs.—Pain in vesical region, with tenderness and frequent desire to urinate, scanty discharge, biting and smarting after urinating. Urine diminished. Urea increased. Urine decreased, contains less water, solids, urea, uric acid, oxalic acid, sulph. acid, sulph. of potash, chlorine, chloride of sodium, phosphate of magnesia and salts by incineration, but more ammonia, muriate of ammonia, potash, chloride of potassium, phos. acid, phosphate of soda, phosphate of lime, volatile salts and extractives.

Genital Organs.—Erections. Excitement. Soreness of r. ovary. Menses only once in seven weeks, scanty, with cramplike, bearing-down pain, generally has nosebleed before menses (it is not quite evident that tea caused these symptoms, but it undoubtedly aggravated them).

Respiratory Organs.—Symptoms of swelling of mucous lining of R. and digestive tracts. Scraping in larynx. Constriction of larynx, with dry hacking cough. Hoarseness, almost aphonia. Cough, with bloody expectoration; dry C. during one day. Suffocation. Apparent asphyxia every five or six minutes. Gasping. Respiration irregular and oppressed. Respiration increased; in frequency and amplitude. Breathless at least attempt to walk; on ascending stairs, with palpitation.

Chest.—Oppression; and anxiety. Constriction. Tightness across upper part, obliging her to sit up in bed. Fulness in clavicles, with feeling of suffocation; F. about clavicles, with fluttering in l. side.

Heart.—Sibilant râle. Spasmodic pain in region; with feeling as if continually falling into deliquium. Anguish in region. Anxious oppression. Præcordial anxiety after tea at supper, with a sleepless night, but if excited by lively conversation or by continued thinking the anxiety disappeared and he had a refreshing sleep. Uneasiness. Præcordial distress as if about to faint. Tearing in tendinous aponeurosis on vertex. Jerking constriction at beginning of dinner. Compression on occiput, with crawling. Pain as if tense. Sensitive to touch on vertex, and shinning; sensitive where cool air was felt on forehead by an open window after dinner. Biting and corroding smarting on r. side in evening; corroding biting on occiput, with sensation as if something were crawling in the hair. Itching on occiput.

Clinical.—Neuralgic headache in the occiput, extreme soreness and screaming, cannot sleep nor chew. Violent neuralgic headache, as though a nail were driven in. Neuralgia of the head and face, with stabbing, unendurable pains; neuralgia of the head and face from tea-drinking. Neuralgia at night, extending from vertex over the whole head.

Eyes.—Congestion of r. White of E., is blood-red; white of l. near cornea red in morning; white of E. red and inflamed, with biting and pressure as from sand. Much gum. Sticking in morning in sharp air; S. in a bright light. Boring above r. inner canthus. Pressure. Dryness; of r., and in margin of lower lid a burning spot as if a sty would form. Burning; in r.; in morning; in morning on rising; at 10 A.M.; at 2 P.M., and in lids; in evening; in evening, with stinging and with injection of cornea; in evening, < inner canthi; after dinner; during headache, with pain from the light; in r. during headache, > washing with cold water; with heaviness of lids and heat in r. ear; in l. near internal canthus, compelling him to rub it; as if room were smoky. Sensitiveness; of r. in morning. Weakness; when reading; < writing; with pressure as from sand.

Lachrymation of l. eye; L. in the air; of l. eye when walking in open air; when walking against the wind. Pupils dilated; in evening. Pupils contracted.

Balls.—Sticking in l. Tearing in l.; drawing T. in evening. Pain in r.; leaving sensitiveness to touch, the pain returned next morning on waking. Burning pain on upper surface of l. in evening, < touch.

Lids.—Swelling of upper. Red pimple on margin of lower. Agglutination; on waking. Quivering of upper; l. lower; r. Closed. Inability to open on waking, they were painful and closed involuntarily. Cutting in upper. Feeling as if swollen and as if a foreign body were in eyes. Burning; in evening, with dim vision; in edges in evening, with stinging (even the smoke of tobacco burns in the nose).

Canthi.—Hardened mucus in inner. Sticking in r. outer, with dryness, as from sand; S. in l. inner, with moisture which obscures vision; intermittent, in r. inner, piercing deeply. Feeling as of sand in r. inner till bedtime, and pain on moving lid. Biting in r. at 5 P.M., with swimming of objects. Burning; in outer; in l. outer in forenoon; in outer after rising; in l. outer, with dryness. Burning pressure in l. outer.

Orbits.—Pressing in lower border of r., then sensitiveness to touch and to closing of eye. Drawing pain in bottom of r. in morning. Tension in bottom of l.; at 7.30 P.M.; in l. in morning after waking, with pressure, then in r. Tearing in l. brow, > touch. Roots of hair of l. brow sensitive to touch.

Vision.—Shortsighted. Dim; when writing; in open air, with confusion of heart; with pressure in eyes as if they would be pressed out of head or as if they were swollen; with musæ volitantes. Failed when reading. Dark with the eye that is not inflamed; D. when reading, with sensation about eyes as if he had not slept enough. Trembling of objects after eating. Luminous disc like a firefly hovering before eyes on entering a dark room; < twilight, in the room, afterwards this circle, which followed the movements of eyeball and hovered at various distances, now before one, now before both eyes, became more elliptical, had a dark violet or blackish nucleus in the centre. On going to dinner, sudden sparkling, and black shining, swimming points, disappearing first in r. eye.

Clinical.—Ciliary neuralgia, pain extends over the face and head, with great soreness, cannot lie on the face nor chew. Kerato-iritis, with excessive photophobia, opacity, etc. Episcleritis, with great soreness and violent pain. Iritis, especially syphilitic, with gummata on the iris, severe nocturnal pain.

Ears.—Quivering extending to l. corner of mouth. (Wax increased.) Sticking in r.; in r. meatus; in r. meatus, with twitching; in r., with ringing; outward from r. and under lobule; from depth of r. through external meatus; squeezing, in l. when sitting after dinner; from external meatus to internal, compelling him to hold his breath, at night as he entered the house from the cold air, leaving ear sensitive, less severe attack next morning, with sensation as if free access of air were prevented, after dinner feeling as if external meatus were filled with water, as when one dips his head under the surface, afterwards the earache threatened to return when he thought of it, afterwards slight sticking in l. ear.

Tearing in evening in bed till midnight, with hammering and with micturition every half hour and with cold feet as far as knees; T. in l. concha, then in l. eye, ending with a darting stitch through middle of ball. Pinching in r. Cramplike pain in r.; in r. outer; in r. external meatus, < drawing scalp down from highest point of skull; cramp in middle like an aching and compression, then a stitch like lightning, frequently in evening. Pain behind l.; in meatus at noon; burning, behind r.

Sensation as if something were squeezed out. Compression in outer meatus. Tension in lower part of outer, as if a band were pulling downward. Drawing behind r., with constriction in ear; D. behind r. after dinner, with stitches in mastoid processes. Heat in r. Stoppage; with tension; of l. morning and noon, with diminished hearing; of r. in morning, with fullness and sneezing, which returned in evening, then itching in nostrils towards point of nose, then thin mucus.

Ringing; during the day; sudden, in r. after dinner, suddenly changing after a few hours to buzzing and groaning, then gradually changing to a noise as of a spurting liquid, which lasted most of the night. Creaking like the turning of a wooden screw, < empty swallowing, with sticking; C. like the turning of a wooden screw on swallowing, with dryness in r. outer canthus as from sand. Buzzing. Roaring; in l.; early in bed; at noon, with buzzing; in afternoon on entering house, with painful thumping; in l., with creaking when swallowing saliva; in r., with boiling; like a draught through a stove.

Clinical.—Polypi of the ear, with otorrhœa, easy bleeding, shooting pains. Otorrhœa smelling of putrid meat.

Nose.—Ulceration half an inch within, where there is a scab (Aur., Nit. ac.). Swelling of l. wing, with induration and tensive pain. Red itching spot, sore to touch, in fissure of r. wing. Feeling of soreness or ulceration in r. nostril, < pressure on ala. Stitches in l. wing. Painful pressure at root. Pain at root at noon, with warmth, as if cold would set in. Tension above r. wing, > rubbing. Crawling as in coryza. Sensation of dry catarrh in upper part, < evening. Stoppage; with nasal voice; in morning and blowing out of blood all day, with frontal pain. Burning, with swollen feeling and with sensitiveness of septum, on which are vesicles; B. in lower border of r. nostril at noon, with sensitiveness to touch.

Dryness; in evening, and in frontal sinuses; at noon, > open air, returning in the house, moist after smoking a cigar; on smoking a cigar; with tickling; in r. nostril extending into frontal sinuses, with burning; and sensitiveness, this sensation gradually extended to frontal sinuses and eyes became sensitive, amelioration in afternoon, two days afterwards on rising the same feeling in l. nostril and r. frontal sinus; D. and pressure in nose and frontal sinuses in forenoon, catarrhal flow for an hour at noon, then pressure on root of nose and copious mucus, afterwards the pressure drew off towards ears, causing tension and stoppage of ears, next day D. and tension in nose, with swollen feeling in whole mucous membrane.

Sneezing; in morning, ending with dulness in head; in morning on waking, with tickling in nose and burning in eyes, as if catarrh were coming on; in morning, and stoppage of r. nostril alternating with running, this catarrh lasted two hours, then ceased suddenly, returned in evening and again ceased suddenly; at noon; in evening and morning; in evening, with tickling in nose; after dinner, without catarrh; caused by vapor rising from stomach into nose; with stoppage of r. nostril and internal chilliness of feet; with obstruction in nose and roughness in throat, symptoms < evening, with aching in forehead and weight and pressure in eyes, then a restless night, on waking next morning throat was obstructed with phlegm, and after hawking larynx and trachea were painful, then malaise and ill humor, aching in forehead, burning in eyes, obstruction of nose, hoarseness, he felt better at noon when walking in open air, but aggravation when at rest, much flowing from nose, feet cold, general ill feeling sent him to bed early, it was long before he could get warm, dulness of head, cough, stoppage of nose, next morning uneasiness and weakness, at noon dulness and buzzing in head, dry cough, amelioration in evening, febrile symptoms at night, > after midnight, sweat towards morning.

Coryza all day; at night, with cough; with headache; sudden; intermittent; dry, in open air, becoming fluent by sneezing. Fluent coryza; in morning; towards evening, with hoarseness; disturbing nights' rest; in the house. Blowing out thick mucus at noon. Mucus mixed with clotted blood. Bleeding; in morning on blowing, on rising; in afternoon, relieving the head; in evening; on blowing; < becoming heated. Smell and taste dull.

Clinical.—Nasal catarrh, with quantities of thick, green mucus, pus and blood that seem to come from the frontal sinuses. Painful scabs in the nostrils. Warts on the nose.

Face.—Wan. Pale and earthy. Red in afternoon, and limbs cool. Bloated and sickly-looking. Sunken. Swelling of a gland on l. cheek. Twitching extending towards zygomata, with crawling. Jerking sticking in muscles of cheek when walking in open air. Burning tearing in periosteum of l. side during dinner. Cramp-like pain in r. cheek when the part is at rest. Boring in l. malar-bone, > touch. Drawing pain between mouth and nose, as if periosteum were tense, with pain like a saddle over nasal bones. In r. half from temple to teeth drawing, sometimes darting pain, then sensitiveness of whole face. Crawling drawing in zygomata; in l. zygoma, then dulness, appeared again next day, then on r. side. Crawling in zygomata and l. upper jaw, with drawing. Sensation as if a spot under r. nostril would become indurated. Burrowing itching in l. malar-bone.

Jaws.—Cracking on yawning. Stitches in l. lower; in lower coming out of ear; between l. ear and zygomatic arch as if jaw had been suddenly dislocated in evening and morning when chewing; boring, in l. lower; drawing, in angle of l. lower, > touch. Tearings in l. upper extending towards eye; in lower in region of joints, uniting at chin and disappearing together; drawing, in r. lower in evening; paroxysmal drawing, in l. upper; in single jerks from angle to os hyoides, deep in integuments. Gnawing boring in l. upper. Drawing in r. upper in morning; in l. upper at 1 P.M.; l. upper at 5 P.M. Stiffness of l. masseter muscles, painful on opening jaws.

Lips.—Red itching elevation on upper in forenoon. Itching tubercle on upper near r. corner. Itching pimples on margin of upper towards middle. On edge of upper, dark red burning spots, on which elevations developed, dried up and fell off, then new spots ran the same course. Redness of upper in morning, with burning. Upper swollen and burning. Twitching of upper; of upper near corner. (Stitches.) Cutting in l. side of upper; upward through l. half of lower. Sensitiveness of upper. Burning, and in palate. Dryness without thirst. Itching in inner side of upper.

Mouth.—Teeth. Loose in morning. Sticking in incisor; jumping, in l. lower hollow. Tearing in l. in afternoon; sudden, in first l. lower molar, suddenly extending over whole lower jaw. Digging in two r. upper hollow molars, with burning pain, pain > Merc. sol., returning in a warm room, > cold water and > inhaling air at an open window, later D. in these teeth > cold water, < warm soup and tobacco-smoke. Pain in hollow on blowing nose; as from touch upon a nerve from evening till midnight, with intermittent jerking; jerking, in hollow in morning; like a hacking or sharp throbbing in the gum; in first l. lower molar as if split asunder, after every cup of tea, afterwards extending over upper and lower jaw; sore, beneath last r.; corroding, in hollow, affecting whole side of head, < cold (drinks or air) and chewing. Drawing in lower incisors; wandering D. in hollow; sharp, extending upward, < eating.

Gums.—Swollen and painfully sore; swelling of G. and tongue, with pain when she takes anything hard into her mouth or eats. Jerking sticking in r. upper at 4.30 p.m. during siesta. Sticking jerking through G. of last lower molars. G. of molars sensitive to noon; l. lower sensitive to touch.

Tongue.—White blister on side close to root, painfully sore; white V. returned, with burning, < after warm food. Coated; and half dry; white; white, with rough, scraping sensation, with a painful white blister in front of the middle. Sticking beneath r. side, < swallowing. Cutting in tip and on its under surface. Tip painful to touch. Sore. Roughness, and of hard palate and throat. Dryness; at tip. Burning.

Mouth filled with blisters, as if burnt, with thirst at night. Sticking from r. velum palati into internal ear at night. Soreness of palate; about hard palate, as if burnt and covered with vesicles. On swallowing saliva, sore pain in palate as if air penetrated a wound, extending towards l. ear internally. Pressure in curtain of palate, with heaviness. Dryness; of palate; of palate, without thirst; of palate, with inclination to cough; with thirst and loss of appetite; of back part, with thirst. Bloody saliva. Frequent spitting of saliva and mucus, with hollowness at stomach and insipid taste. Salivation; in morning; after breakfast, with weakness of stomach; in evening; with drawing in r. masseter; with swelling of salivary glands; sweet; acid-tasting; acid, at 6 p.m.; insipid, at night; metallic-tasting, with swelling of salivary glands.

Taste.—Bitter; in morning; at night; to bread. Bitter sharp after food, < root of tongue and in fauces, at noon, even an unpleasant after-taste to black coffee. Bitter mucous. Bitter sharp salt, < about root of tongue. Sweetish salt, < back part of mouth and root of tongue. As if food were salted too little. Sharp. Sweetish; slimy, after eating; insipid, in evening. Resinous, constrictive. Nauseous; after eating. Bad in morning. Unpleasant after eating ices. Insipid; with sensation as if stomach were disordered. (Mouldy when smoking tobacco.) Dull; in afternoon.

Clinical.—Violent toothache from decayed teeth, particularly useful when the teeth decay next the gums, with retraction of the gums, leaving a healthy crown; teeth extremely sensitive to cold water. Aphthous sore mouth.

Throat.—Swelling; of tonsils; of tonsils, and pain inducing frequent swallowing. Uvula seemed thickened in afternoon. Tonsils red; in afternoon. Rising of a nauseating rancid vapor, perceptible to smell. Mucus in fauces which cannot be hawked up; M. when eating, which she must hawk up or else she cannot swallow the food. Hawking, with cough; H. with soreness of throat; and hacking. Hawking up mucus; of a sharp resinous taste; blood-red, from fauces; tough; thick, in morning; thick tenacious, from larynx in morning; tough white, at night.

Sticking; in pit; beneath larynx; in r. side of fauces, suddenly extending into ear, with sensation in ear on opening and closing mouth as of an opening through which air could penetrate. Scraping; after eating ices; with inclination to cough. Roughness: in morning; in morning, < breakfast, with deep voice and inclination to hawk; till afternoon; in evening; then feeling of a painless tumor; as from snuff. Pain on swallowing; in back part on swallowing; in r. side of pharynx, extending to ear, impeding swallowing.

Soreness like a swelling from taking cold. Sensation in r. side as if about to inflame, and during the day stinging on swallowing.

Sensation as if he could not swallow on account of mucus and as if oesophagus were contracted, and after hawking the throat feels rough. Burning forcing him to hawk. Dryness; of pharynx; in evening; of fauces at night; and constriction; with salivation, hawking and spitting of white tough mucus. Inclination to swallow. Swallowing painful; difficult, without apparent cause in throat.

Stomach.—Appetite. Great; towards evening; at dinner; without thirst. A., but does not relish food, and after eating anxiety and palpitation. Little. Lost; in evening. Aversion to dinner; to meat. Tobacco-smoke is not as agreeable as at other times, in evening.

Eruptions; when smoking; foul, late in evening; rancid; as of rancid grease; tasting of food when eating; of food, tasting of the drug all the afternoon; (bitter after eating). Empty eructations; all day; in afternoon; during a walk, with emission of flatus. Hiccough after eating, then pressure in pit of stomach, then flatulence and eructations.

Nausea; at 10 A.M., with rapid pulse; at night, with pain in stomach and vomituration; all night, with retching of only mucus; after the customary smoke, with sweat, both > stool; when walking in open air, with vertigo, heat in face, anxious sweat, could scarcely get his breath, heaviness of legs so that he staggered; (from all food); in pit of stomach; in epigastric region; mounting from abdomen; with apprehension mounting from pit of stomach and back again; with dulness of head; with salivation; with chill. Vomiting, then shaking chill, with heaviness of limbs and tearing in occiput; V. of sourish-tasting liquid and food.

Swelling of region, > emissions of flatus. Stitches in pit; on l. side near pit; outward on l. side near pit; gnawing, in bed, > rising. Tearing in pit on bending body to r. side. Cutting on l. side near pit. Cramp, < towards evening. Pinching in forenoon; frequently in epigastric region during dinner. Boring above pit.

Pain; in epigastrium towards r. hypochondrium in morning, < rest; in forenoon; in pit at night; after roast meat eaten in evening; after eating; in pit after eating; in pit after eating, so that he cannot bear his hand upon it; in pit after eating, on moving body and feeling of epigastric region; extending into fauces; in pit and chest, impeding respiration; spasmodic, in pit; on r. side near pit, as from a foreign body. < morning, with stitches. Soreness of pit; in region on pressure, < evening. Constriction in forenoon, then eructation. Feeling as if deranged, with pressure over pit, which impeded respiration. Throbbing as in an artery, in middle of pit. Uneasiness: in region, with eructations of the drug.

Heartburn; in afternoon; at 7 p.m.; on stooping; intermittent, after dinner. Burning in region: B. in morning; in forenoon; in forenoon, with pressing; in afternoon; in afternoon, with pressing; from 4 till 6 P.M.; in evening; in evening on eating fish, with pressing; after dinner; after dinner, with pressing; after dinner till evening and again in the night; after supper, with pressing and occasional constriction; < movement and speaking.

Abdomen.—Distention; in afternoon; in afternoon, with rumbling and colic; after eating; after eating, with stitches, pressure, dragging and emission of flatus; after dinner, with griping; after dinner, embarrassing respiration; > eructations; with colic and constipation; flatulent. Rumbling; after breakfast, with cutting; in afternoon, with emission of flatus; in afternoon and evening, with gurgling, sticking and shifting of flatus; at night, with grumbling; with rolling; with shifting of flatus and with sticking in all parts of body. Gurgling. Flatulence at night. Emission of flatus; towards morning; at night; with moisture; noiseless; odorless; loud, inodorous.

Occasional sticking. Paroxysmal tearing upward, beginning in r. groin. Griping; in evening, with emission of flatus; with pinching now here, now there. Colic; in forenoon when walking in open air; at noon; at noon, so that he could scarcely stand straight, < driving, headache and chilliness, the C. > copious liquid stool and emission of flatus. C. < again towards evening; in evening; at 7 P.M., with movements, as before diarrhoea, violent diarrhoea at 8.30, then sensitiveness of abdomen; at night; < from morning till noon, > dinner, returned in evening till midnight, with pressure in hypogastrum; with diarrhoea; disturbing sleep; sudden, during dinner; sudden, in evening, as if all bowels were pulled towards a point behind umbilicus, > liquid stools and emission of flatus, with distention of abdomen, headache and rapid pulse. Sprained pain in muscles on bending backward. Sensation of something alive. Sensation as if a child's knee were pushed out against anterior walls in morning. Tension. Burning compression transversely across, externally. Incommoded by supper, which was eaten with a hearty appetite. (Burning, still more in chest, hypochondria and pit of stomach, all of which parts are externally hot.)

Hypochondria.—Jerkings in l. towards epigastrium. Stitches deep in; in r. in evening, < respiration; in hepatic region when sitting; in liver when walking; drawing, in liver. Sticking in splenic region; during a meal; when sitting after dinner; < dinner and supper; with pale look; then soreness; deep, in forenoon. Cutting in side above liver on inspiration when walking, > pressure and standing still. Pressure as from a stone on lower part of liver when walking. Sensation of something alive moving in r.; in l. in bed. (Burning, < hepatic region.)

Upper A.—Cutting from the spine outward. Constrictive cramp. Colic in small intestines.

Sides.—Stitches in l. making walking difficult; in r. when lying on r. side, > pressure, returning on walking in open air. Cutting deep in l.; in l., with griping. Pinching in l. Pain in l. muscles as if a hook were drawn upward. Pain in r., > pressure, returning on deep inspiration or forcible expiration. Fullness in r., in lumbar region, making breathing difficult, at 2 or 3 A.M. in bed.

Umbilical Region.—Cutting above umbilicus extending into small of back. Pinching. Griping; above umbilicus; at 2 P.M., with wandering; drawing towards r. groin, causing there intermittent pressing, > open air. Constriction.

Hypogastrium.—Swelling of inguinal glands; of groin; S., with frequent urging to urinate; with sensitiveness to pressure and to jar of foot on the ground; with constrictive pains like cramps. Rumbling in r. after stool. Sticking in inguinal glands; on r. side of pelvis near linea alba; in r. groin and between sacrum and anus; in l. iliac region all day; in groin frequently during the day, with feeling as if inguinal glands were swollen; deep in r. groin in forenoon when walking in the street; in r. groin when coughing; from groin down through thigh when sitting; throbbing, in r. groin. Cutting; in r. iliac region. Boring inward in region of r. iliac bone; attacks of B., with painful drawing up of testes and occasional urging to stool. Pain, < above symphysis pubis; in r. iliac region when walking in the room; flatulent, before stool, < towards sides; as from a foreign body in r. side of pelvis, near linea alba. Movement as of something living (Croc.), like a pushing of muscles by the arm of a child, without pain. Sudden bounding as of something alive in r. iliac region. Pressure outward; inward in r. groin. Bruised feeling over crest of r. ilium on touch. Drawing pain in groin on standing and walking; D. pain from inguinal glands to knees, < when going to sleep, then heaviness of limbs. Drawing in r. groin; l. groin at noon; in l. side, with pain on touch; from crest of r. iliac bone to upper part of thigh. Tension; in forenoon (with empty stomach), < deep inspiration, with occasional sticking. Constriction. Fatigue in groins; in groins, changing to drawing pain extending to glans.

Rectum.—Stitches after stool; S. < evening; occasional; upward; extending into urethra beneath frenum; burning, when not at stool. Cutting. Jerklike constriction and tearing upward, and in anus. Boring outward as from a worm, after stool. Pain during stool, so that she must desist. Itching after stool. Urging, with erections; frequent ineffectual U.; ineffectual, with itching in anus extending into urethra; ineffectual, afterwards loose stool, next day loose stool, third day no stool.

Anus.—Swelling of hæmorrhoidal veins; with urging to stool and itching and burning in anus. Protrusion of hæmorrhoidal vessels in afternoon when walking, with sticking in them. (Red painless pimples like figwarts.) Moisture. Discharge of bloody slime by day and night. Sticking; at 1 P.M. when sitting; in evening; > walking in open air; extending into region of l. iliac bone in morning; alternating with burning in prepuce, also in morning after walking. Hæmorrhoidal pressure; at 11 A.M.; in evening when sitting; in evening, with burning; when seated; on touch. Soreness in morning; after a slimy discharge, as if skin were cracked. Constriction with almost every stool. Squeezing in hæmorrhoids; S. in hæmorrhoidal vessels in forenoon; in forenoon, with pressing. Sensation of alternate congestion and emptiness in hæmorrhoidal vessels.

Burning; in hæmorrhoidal vessels; in morning; in forenoon; at noon, with soreness; after a loose stool; after stool, with drawing inward; after a hard, scanty stool, with pressing; after stool, then discharge of mucus, with stitches in rectum in direction of a line from anus to small of back, as the stitches ceased the itching and burning returned. Biting. Itching; in hæmorrhoids, with squeezing; in hæmorrhoidal vessels in fore- noon, with dragging; in hæmorrhoidal vessels in forenoon when walking; with burning; at 10 A.M.; in evening, with pressing; in evening, with burning; after dinner; < morning; < evening, with burning and tenesmus; < evening after stool, with burning; with sweat; passing into burning after a hard stool.

Clinical.—Warts about anus. Fistula. Piles.

Perineum.—R. side of raphe prominent and felt thickened. Clammy moisture in sulcus between nates. Stitches extending outward, > retracting anus. Cutting extending into urethra. Soreness; a sore painful spot in sulcus between nates, not far from anus. Burning pain, raphe prominent, and an inch from anus a tubercle, which became moist and smarted on walking. Burning in fossa between nates when walking. Itching in forenoon when seated.

Clinical.—Excessive perspiration on perineum.

Stool.—Liquid; and copious; and scanty; half liquid, scanty, with sensation as if rectum were inactive. Diarrhœa; in evening; nearly watery, painless; with pain; scanty, with urging, then feeling of inactivity of rectum. Soft; and copious; and frequent, also copious. Papescent, three times in one day, next day no stool; every day after dinner, with emission of flatus; and scanty; and scanty, after dinner; and fetid, twice in one day; and copious, frequent, affording great relief.

Constipation; with shifting of flatulence; next day copious fluid stools in morning and after dinner; for eight days, then copious hard stool; for several days, after a profuse nocturnal emission. Hard; after much straining, then pain in anus, with borborygmus, after three hours a more liquid stool, then burning in anus; and delayed; in large brown balls covered with streaks of blood; and difficult, then the opposite, secondary action. Hard and unsatisfactory, with tenesmus; H. and U., with copious, inodorous flatus; afterwards another papescent one; then itching and burning in anus. Unsatisfactory; after much straining. Copious. Large, hard at first, then papescent, clayish and fetid. Scanty; with griping. Frequent; and normal. Ending with discharge of mucus, also itching and burning. Violent, with bellyache and burning in anus, that night another stool with borborygmi.

Clinical.—Chronic diarrhœa. Stools forcible, pale, copious, greasy, expelled with gurgling, like water from a bung-hole, < after breakfast; particularly diarrhœa after vaccination.

Urinary Organs.—Bladder. Seemed larger. Sticking from neck towards urethra. Cutting in afternoon; C. in region, < walking. Attacks of boring in region, with painful drawing up of testes. Sensitiveness in region, with inflated feeling and frequent urging. Urging; all day; all night, and much light-colored urine; hasty, with copious urine. Frequent urging, even when there was but little in bladder; with copious urine; then copious watery urine, even at night.

Dribbling from urethra (not bladder) after urinating. Micturition stops five or six times before bladder is emptied. Frequent micturition; at night; at night, with itching in urethra; at night, with hasty, incessant urging; at night, urine copious, straw-yellow; at night, urine copious, and after micturition renewed urging and discharge of a few drops; and copious; of limpid urine; every minute, obliged to press, urine passes only by paroxysms, when there is burning pain in urethra. Micturition infrequent.

Urethra.—Orifice closed by a slimy fluid consisting of serous liquid and a bump of mucus, which could be drawn out into threads, in morning, after removing this liquid burning on urinating. Discharge of prostatic fluid, which can be drawn out into threads, in morning after waking. Mucous discharge from female. Sticking; in evening; in fossa navicularis at 4 P.M.; at night, with frequent erections, so that he could not sleep; with urging to urinate; in anterior end when not urinating; in forepart, penis being relaxed; extending forward, > while urinating; sudden, from bulbos almost to middle of it, forcing him to bend over, towards noon when walking in open air; jerking cutting, when not urinating; burning, near meatus when not urinating; tearing, in forepart. Tearing like lightning, hither and thither in afternoon when sitting, with stitches in anus. Cutting in perineal portion; C. when urinating; drawing, when walking. Attacks of sticking beating in fossa navicularis. Sensation as if a few drops ran down it after urinating; sensation of moisture running forward in it, < evening; sensation as if a drop of viscid fluid pressed forward at 4.45 P.M. when sitting. Jerking voluptuous formation in fossa navicularis; in forepart at 9 A.M. when walking in the street, penis being relaxed. Itching; when urinating; voluptuous, in forepart after dinner, with relaxed penis; voluptuous, in forepart, penis being relaxed, with sensation as if a few drops would flow out. Burning; in forepart; towards bulbos; in orifice in evening; after rising; after a pollution, when not urinating; after micturition, and in fundus of bladder; after micturition in morning, with stitches from urethra to anus, pressing in region of neck of bladder and urging; in forepart, with sticking; then voluptuous feeling, < after micturition. Burning during micturition; after dinner; in navicular fossa (Petrosel.); and afterwards; with dark urine; with red urine; with gleet discharge, the stream small and split, next day the discharge was yellow, the symptoms were those of gonorrhœa.

Urine.—Watery, after standing it becomes cloudy. Red; and deposits a thick brick-dust sediment. Of penetrating odor. Copious; in afternoon, and limpid; at night; in evening and night, yellowish wine-colored; with stitches in l. testicle. Scanty, dark, burning; S., soon becomes turbid and deposits a clayey sediment. None all day, next day scanty, dark red, afterwards copious. Turbid, deposits a sediment; flocky, mucous sediment.

Clinical.—Dysuria. High-colored, strong smelling urine. Gonorrhœa, with thin, greenish discharge and scalding during micturition. Repressed gonorrhœa, especially with rheumatism or inflamed prostate.

Sexual Organs.—Sticking in condylomata. Sweat on waking; S. on male. Flat dirty ulcer on corona glandis, with burning pain, surrounded by redness, with sticking. (Degeneration of epididymus like varicocele.)

Glans.—Moisture. Secreted thin mucus. Covered with greenish-yellow, ill-smelling secretion, and on dorsum, near hinder border, four tubercles with a vesicle on the summit, and in sulcus near attachment of foreskin an eroded spot surrounded by a red circle, vesicles broke and left painless erosions surrounded by a red margin and yielding the secretion, then red, sensitive granular elevations, afterwards sebaceous glands of prepuce un- flamed. Depressed vesicle, with stinging when urinating. Smooth red excrescences behind G. under prepuce, with crawling. Red at aperture of urethra, next day bruised pain in l. testicle, afterwards eroded spot in middle of furrow of glans discharging puslike fluid, aggravation from wine, inner surface of prepuce sore in spots, inflamed at frænulum, glans sensitive and painful when walking. Red spots, with inflammation of inner surface of foreskin, next day burning on glans, red eroded spots exuding a thin yellowish, ill-smelling secretion on furrow behind corona, afterwards the spots ran together and were covered with granular elevations, feeling as if glans were ulcerating, afterwards the furrow as far as frænulum was sore and covered with papillæ, then reddish excrescences on hinder parts of glans and inner surface of prepuce full of granular tubercles, sebaceous glans of prepuce swollen. Stitches; in tip when not urinating, < pressure; near urethra, with desire to urinate, urine passed guttatum, stitches intermittent during micturition; burning; burning, in penis extending to testicles and umbilical region, < sitting, > walking. Painful jerking in penis, with sensation as if a viscid liquid exuded from urethra, which was not the case. Jerking pain in penis. Bruised sensation when sitting. Sensitiveness; on waking; with swelling of sebaceous glands; with darting stitches through it. Excoriated feeling near frænulum; on touch. Painful throbbing at base. Intermittent burning between glans and prepuce. Itching; when walking; in G. and prepuce, alternating with stitches in anus; sticking, in side; burning, in tip when urinating; tickling, between G. and prepuce.

Erections in morning when half awake; in morning on waking, with strong desire, but no emission, which was not usually the case; in afternoon; long-continued at night.

Prepuce.—Red growth like condylomata on inner surface. Swelling. Red itching spot on inner surface. Red gritty spot on outer surface, becomes an ulcer covered with a scab, with itching and sometimes with burning pain. On inner surface moist tetter, depressed in middle, painful to touch. Stitches on inner surface. Burning on inner surface; B. Alternating with stitches in anus. Biting in morning after walking; B., and on upper surface of glans. Itching; on inner surface; in afternoon, with biting.

Scrotum.—Sweat; in morning on waking, and on perineum and inner surface of thighs; on one half. Moist pimple. Sticking; burning, extending through S. and spermatic cord. Bruised sensation in r. side. Corroding aching of r. half. Itching on l. in evening; l. and crawling, with burning pain after rubbing.

Testicles.—L. drawn up against abdomen, with swelling of inguinal glands. Stitches. Bruised tearing sideways in r. Pain as if they would be crushed when sitting, < walking. Compression. Drawing; in l.; in l., with weight in it, also > walking in open air. Feeling as if they moved, > walking in open air.

Excitement at noon, especially tickling in prepuce and glans. Desire great; lost. Emission towards morning; at night; at night, whereupon he woke; at night, with pain in orifice of urethra as if too tight.

Female.—Cramplike pain on rising from a seat, and in perineum; C. pain extending into hypogastrium. Pain like a pressure and contraction when sitting. Biting during and after micturition, < urethra, with itching. Labæ, swelling, with burning pain when walking and on touch; (whitish ulcer on inner surface of majora, at first sore on touch, then itching). Pudenda, sticking on walking far; pain as if sore and biting, also < during micturition; itching when walking. Burning in vagina when walking and sitting, with biting. Leucorrhœa; yellow-green.

Menses.—Scanty and early; D. and delayed. Lasted only one day; and scanty; and consisted of a clot of black blood, next time lasted only one day and consisted of three clots of black blood, third time lasted a day and a night. Weak.

Clinical.—Secondary syphilis; roseola, iritis, with condylomata, etc. Chancroidal ulcers on the genitals. Epithelioma of the vagina and uterus. Uterine polypi, with terrible pain. Ovaritis, l. Chronic ovaritis following gonorrhœa. Prolapsus, < driving, with great pain in the back. Condylomata. Vagina extremely sensitive in coition (Kreos., Sulph.).

Respiratory Organs.—Larynx. Mucus at night, and in trachea. Constriction and burning; C. in region of os hyoides after eating ices. Pressure. Voice rough. Voice deep and hoarse in morning on waking. Hoarseness during the lecture, with inclination to hawk; H., with violent cough and stitches in l. breast and l. scapula; as from constriction in pharynx.

Trachea.—Sticking in region of pit of throat on breathing; in l. side below larynx, < swallowing. Scraping causing cough.

Cough.—In morning on rising, > noon, with roughness in throat; C., with oppression of chest; inclination to, with burning in l. side of throat near larynx, which afterwards extended towards l. ear, with more soreness; as from pungent food, in morning on rising. Dry; in evening; > wine and beer, with constriction in spots on thorax and corresponding parts of lungs, compelling deep inspirations; interrupted, when sitting smoking a cigar. Hacking dry; in morning; in morning on waking; in afternoon and evening; in evening, from tobacco-smoke; after dinner; two hours after dinner; from tension, now in l. chest, now in l. hypocondrium. Dry, short, barking in morning. Short interrupted, convulsive at night and on waking, from irritation in larynx and leaving dryness in it. Coughing up mucus; in morning and evening; when eating and after eating; tough M.; thick M. in morning; tickling in forenoon; thick, at night; tenacious, towards noon, irritation to vomit and retching, then illness and weakness and return of headache.

Expectoration of thick mucus; of mucus in morning after rising, leaving sensitiveness in larynx; of tough mucus in morning; of blood when waking.

Respiration.—Breathlessness when walking in afternoon, with heat and weight on chest, dry cough and sticking in head. Difficult; in evening, with pressing in chest towards back; before bedtime, with pressure on chest, delaying sleep; on going to bed, with pressing on chest and sticking in side; on ascending stairs; < ascending stairs, with weak feeling in chest and pressure under sternum; with anxiety; also with great desire for water; almost panting. Short at night, necessity to breathe deeply; S. on walking; with weight on chest. Hurried at night. Necessity for frequent deep breathing.

Clinical.—Polypi of the vocal cords. Cough in the morning after rising and during the day, sometimes in evening after lying down; immediately after eating.

Chest.—Stitches in side; l.; l. lung; under sternum; region of r. fifth rib; in r. fourth rib near sternum; on side near middle of sternum; in lower half of side; on r. side near lower part of middle of sternum; under mamma, not affected by respiration; in l. often during the day; in r. lower part at 6 A.M.; in l. in forenoon; on r. side near sternum at noon, > deep inspiration, returned on expiration; lower part of r. lung at 3 P.M. after sneezing; lower part of r. lung from 3 till 11 P.M., < sneezing, deep breathing and coughing; at 4 P.M. after sneezing; in l. side often in evening; in l. side in evening, < inspiration; low down in l. side in evening when going home; in l. during inspiration and expiration; now in r., now in l.; double, in breast; like lightning transversely through it; in sides extending to axilla; backward through upper part of l. breast, then twitching feeling; forward through lower part of lungs, with bruised sensation in chest, dulness of head, sadness and discouragement; sudden, backward, in r. half in forenoon, next day in l. half; periodical, deep in l. pectoralis major; intermittent, inward, from l. axilla; throbbing, in l.; crawling, in r.

Cutting in different directions; upward on r. side near sternum; upward through middle to pit of throat, often during the day; from sternum to r. elbow; under sternum, embarrassing respiration. Pinching in region of fifth and sixth ribs. Knocking under sternum extending to sacrum, when lying on back. Claving in sternum at 2 P.M. Cramplike pain under sternum (< deep inspiration), and in inguinal region. Tearing drawing in region of l. fifth and sixth ribs when standing and sitting, > moving and deep inspiration.

Pain in l. side; at r. lower part; under sternum; under l. short ribs; in l. side, < region of fifth rib; in r. side in afternoon, accompanied in evening by sticking, which extended into small of back; in middle of sternum at 6 P.M.; in l. side in evening, > stool; in upper part, < pressure; in r. side, < deep breathing and bending; in lower lobe of l. lung, < deep breathing; in middle, with sticking on deep inspiration; in a spot under sternum, gradually extending to scorbiculus, in afternoon and evening; in middle up to throat, causing difficult respiration; crawling, in a spot in l. side of sternum, leaving soreness.

Sensitiveness of spots. Sore pain in region of ribs on touch. Internal smarting as if sore, < dry cough. Scraping causing cough. Sprained sensation in l. side close to pit of stomach. Bruised sensation in afternoon; under r. arm; under sternum, with fullness; with oppression under sternum. Sticking beating in middle of r. side.

Feeling in spots as if chest from without and corresponding parts of lungs from within were constricted, < rest, causing deep sighs. Constriction of lower part as from a bandage, at noon; C. in lower half, with compression. Compression when laughing, with shortness of breath; C. backward when sitting, < stretching body. Oppression: of lower part; with pain on inspiration; with inclination to cough; at noon before dinner, with difficult respiration and pain in anterior surface of stomach on deep inspiration as from external pressure; as from internal adhesion. Sensation as if distended from within.

Tightness obliging deep breathing. Tension on deep inspiration; T. from first false rib to l. axilla, < raising arm; in lungs, becoming sticking on deep inspiration. Pressure; after eating; on sternum, not affecting respiration; in middle when sitting, not impeding respiration; with cramplike constriction; in attacks about axilla; from within towards nipple. All diameters seem shorter. Want of pliability and sufficiency of inspired air. Heat; under sternum. Weakness.

Heart.—Sticking in region. Tearing in region extending into l. scapula, in open air. Twitching pain under it. Pain; in forenoon, with tension; in a spot in evening; in a spot in region on touch. Palpitation: visible, without anxiety. Pulsation imperceptible at night, then trembling of it and anxiety.

Pulse.—Rapid; during the access of heat, and full; and full, hard, also in evening. Feverish in evening, with headache. Slow, weak.

Neck.—Swelling; of glands; of glands, with pain so that he could not lie down at night. Vessels distended and blue. Creaking in vertebrae on certain movements of head. Sticking over joint of atlas in evening; in muscles on motion; pinching, in r. side, > moving it. Tearing in nape; in tendinous expansion on r. side; in nape, extending into shoulder; intermittent sticking, in r. muscles in evening, extending to scapula; digging, in r. muscles, extending to scapula, in evening, > touch, with roaring in l. ear and creaking on swallowing saliva. Sticking cutting in l. side as far as ear in morning.

Pain in nape; in l. side as from a hard bed; in nape close to occiput, as from a hard bed, during the day this spread over r. side of back as if muscles were sprained, < bending head forward and raising r. arm, in the evening the pain moved more into region of r. shoulder and neck, next day on bending head forward pain as if muscles were too short, with roaring and boiling in r. ear, afterwards the pain was a sort of tumultuous digging, as if muscles had been crushed and as if a gathering were taking place in subcutaneous and intermuscular areolar tissue, < sweat. Sensation in nape as if beaten to pieces.

Pressing and drawing pain upward in r. side. Drawing in nape in evening, with sticking from nape to r. ear and shoulder; D. in l. side in evening before sleep and next day till afternoon; in l. side on waking; painful, in l. side close to occiput alternating with a similar pain in r. frontal eminence, at 11:30. Tension in l. side; in r. side and in small of back; in l. side, darting to occiput and scapula, preventing turning of head, afterwards < morning; drawing, in nape, < l. side. Stiffness of l. side; of nape in afternoon; of nape and l. side extending into ear, ear aching rest, not impeding movement. Uneasiness or intermittent pinching in muscles, nape and in chest, with nausea.

Back.—Stitches; (extending upward through chest); from spine through upper abdomen to pit of stomach. Cutting from spine to pit of stomach. Dislocated feeling in middle of spine, < sudden bending to right. Boring in a spot. Pain in spots when sitting; P. as from long stooping, in evening after lying down. Bruised feeling. Drawing pain when sitting. Drawing along spine and calves, with weakness in feet. Soreness; in middle. Pulsation in spine when sitting. Heaviness and tension. Stiffness in spine as after standing bent a long time.

through chest to edge of middle of sternum. Pressing between; on waking. Bruised pain. Constriction between S., hindering respiration and motion of arms. Drawing between.

Lumbar Region.—Twitching in l. at 2 P.M. Sticking between coccyx and anus at 7 P.M. when walking; close to spine when standing and leaning sideways; in l. side of vertebræ when walking, not affected by sitting; from l. side of sacrum into l. testicle; from sacral bones into side of pelvis; jerklie burning, in r. side close to sacrum, > violent rubbing. Cutting when walking. Sudden cramplike pain in sacrum if he moves his feet after standing long in one spot, he threatens to fall. Pain; in renal region; in sacrum on stooping; in vertebræ on leaning forward in sitting; in sacrum and lower half of spine, < bending body; in a spot in sacrum when lying, > motion. Bruised sensation, and in feet; in region and sacrum in morning after rising, < standing or turning trunk, > walking. Tensive pain in sacrum. Pressure outward in l. when sitting. Drawing pain in l. Drawing in sacrum; towards nates in morning on rising; in forenoon, with pressing; at noon; in muscles at noon when walking; < sitting; painful, in sacrum, coccyx and thighs, which after sitting long prevented his standing erect. Burning, then frequent burning micturition, next day the B. in renal region increased and was accompanied by drawing along ureter to vesica. Weakness when sitting, with pain in coccyx.

Extremities.—Trembling of hand and foot. Stretching; and uneasiness. Cracking in elbows, knees and ankles on stretching limbs. Sticking in shoulders and r. knee; in sole and metacarpus; in external malleolus, hip-joint, middle metacarpal bone, on inner edge of foot, in heel; in joints, with tearing; drawing, in r. foot to elbow and in r. thigh to knee. Tearing in l. upper arm, then in l. leg; in a spot in middle of r. thigh and in l. upper arm, < muscles; in outside of r. ankle, then in l. elbow, then drawing in inner side of l. upper thigh, then T. in second joint of r. thumb. Bruised sensation; in shoulders and thighs, with weariness; at times in shoulders, at times in thighs.

Drawing pains in hands and feet. Drawing; in joints of hands and feet; in inner surface of r. thigh, in r. knee, r. calf, bend of elbow, in popliteal spaces, < l.; hands and feet, then in forearm; l. calf, then from r. elbow to wrist; l. ankle, then in r. ulna, then on radial side of r. upper arm; r. leg, < outside towards ankle, and in r. hand, < thumb, at noon; in evening, < upper arm and forearm near wrist, with bruised sensation and dullness; during rest, < inner surface of upper part of l. thigh and forearm; < r. forearm, < movement; from r. wrist to tips of fingers and from r. calf to malleoli, with sensation as if that foot were lame, then drawing from r. elbow to wrist, then paralytic feeling in thighs; now here, now there; sudden; occasional; in slow accesses, in r. arm and thigh at 10 A.M.; painful, in second joint of l. thumb in morning during rest, the same in course of forenoon in almost all finger-joints during rest, for an instant in inner side of l. foot as far as sole, suddenly on inner side of l. metatarsus.

Tension now here, now there in extensor muscles of E. and nates, then heat in evening. Sticking beating in r. hand extending to tips of fingers and in anterior part of r. foot, in morning in bed. Weariness; in afternoon when sitting. Stiffness and heaviness. Falling asleep of arms and legs at night on waking.

Upper Extremities.—Axilla. Stitches in r. Drawing from l. to elbow; paroxysmal laming, in r.

Shoulder.—Swelling of r., with elevation and with inability to tie his cravat behind or hang his watch-chain around his neck. Cracking in joint on bending arm backward and inability to move arm on account of pain as if dislocated. Stitches; in joint; in r. deltoid when walking in open air; > walking in open air; in r. near clavicle, with tearing; drawing, in r. joint and in bend of elbow. Tearing in l.; in l. at night; in l., at times going to r. and nape. Cutting in r. joint. Pressings on r. Bruised pain in joints and upper arms. Drawing in r.; in l. in morning after rising, > afternoon; at night, and in upper arm, preventing his lying on that side, > next morning by warm wrappings, leaving a lame feeling in arm, at 9.30 A.M. attacks of tearing, returning in evening, and in r. arm, < forearm, a condition bordering on paralysis, with coldness; laming, in r. S. and thumb at 5 P.M., then tearing in palm near wrist; laming, in l. in evening, with tearing, next day in r. Throbbing in joint.

Arm.—Jerking during the day. Trembling after writing, with drawing pain.. Raging pain from 3 A.M. till rising at 6 A.M. Burrowing drawing pain in periosteum of bone, extending to fingers, with pressure outward, and on deep pressure upon periosteum pain as if flesh were loosened from bone. Drawing in l.; in r. in afternoon; in bones. Tension in extensors of r. when writing. Weakness, with frequent tearing in them. Difficult to move, as if joints were dry. Paralytic feeling as if he had carried a weight.

Upper Arm.—Twitching in muscles of r.; pulse-like, in r. in afternoon and evening, < r. deltoid. Stitches in r., > touch. Tearing in anterior tuberosity of l. humerus, < motion, increased to burning pain by touch; drawing, in r., also in morning, also in forenoon. Pain and weakness; P. now in r., now in l.; on pressure, as if flesh were loosened from humerus. Bruised pain; after dinner. Paralytic pain in muscles of middle of l. Drawing in l. in evening; intermittent, painful, in outer surface near olecranon. Heaviness from middle of l. to fingers.

Elbow.—Stitches; in r.; in l. several times during the day; < outer side of l., > touch; drawing from r. to wrist in evening in a crowded theatre. Drawing tearing from l. to two middle fingers. Boring. Pain in bone of l.; bruised, as if crushed and limp, and in wrists. Soreness in bend of r. in forenoon on extending it. Pain as after a knock, in prominences of r. Drawing in r. in forenoon. Tension in bend of r. when writing. Throbbing in l. during the day, in evening drawing in arm extending into fingers.

Forearm.—Sticking near elbow; in r. to finger-joints; in posterior surface of l. ulna near elbow an hour after dinner; intermittent tearing, on outer side of r.; tearing, from l. elbow to fingers, so that they were suddenly flexed; burning, above r. wrist. Tearing in bones of l. F. and wrist. Sticking tearing where l. ulna joins carpus; on inner side of l. from hand to elbow. Quick drawing boring through F. and metacarpal bone of index. Sore pain on r. Drawing pain in l.; in inner side of l. in forenoon, < rest. Drawing in r.; in inner side of l. in morning, and in r. fingers; along r. radius and into little finger at noon; sticking, on inner surface of l. towards wrist. Burning pain in muscles on moving hand quickly and strongly. Paralytic burning in muscles, extending to tips of fingers, > rest. Coughing and gurgling as if single drops of blood rolled over each other. Debility of r. in forenoon, > writing, with lameness and with trembling of r. hand, in which the veins swelled. Heaviness. Stiffness of l. as far as fingers.

Wrist.—Stitches in r.; in l. extending to tip of index; inward crosswise where radius and carpus unite, during rest. Tearing in l.; in r. carpus. Pain in r. as if dislocated. Crushing pain in inner side of l., in head of radius, in evening, with swelling and pain on touch. Paralytic feeling.

Hand.—Trembling when writing. Sticking in metacarpus; in middle bone of l.; in metacarpal bone of little finger; in l. palm in evening. Tearing; in r. metacarpus; in metacarpal bone of index; in metacarpal bone of little finger; in l. in evening; in dorsum of l. at noon when writing; paroxysms of T. and sticking, so violent in middle of r. elbow when writing that he had to give it up, in afternoon when driving in a carriage T. in l. forearm, < anterior tuberosity of humerus, that region becoming sensitive to touch, with pricking in l. hand, amelioration from sweat in evening in a crowded theatre. Cramplike pressure in l. between little and ring fingers on their inner sides, with heat of l. fingers, but coldness of l. metacarpus and r. hand. Tension in r., < thumb; in extensors of r. Dry feeling. Stiff and tired on motion.

Fingers.—Redness of balls of index, with swelling; of distal phalanges of three l. middle, with swelling and with stinging extending into tips at 5 p.m. Twitching in r. middle. Sticking; in tip of r. third; in r. thumb; nail of l. thumb; first joints; metacarpal joints of thumb and index; l. ring at 10 a.m.; tips of three l. middle in afternoon; above middle joint of middle, < bending finger; outward in third phalanx of index; drawing, in r. index and middle. Tearing in r. little; sticking, in little. Drawing pain in l. middle in afternoon. Drawing; in thumbs; in little; l. thumb; dorsum of r. ring; first joint of r. index; third joint of r. ring; r. thumb in morning on rising; l. index at 11 a.m.; l. thumb at 11 a.m.; r. index at 10.30 a.m., > movement; in first joint of r. thumb at noon, so that it was not easily moved; in r. at 4 p.m., then in r. elbow; in first joint of r. thumb at 7 p.m., > motion; > walking in open air, with pressure in l. upper arm; occasional, in r. thumb; intermittent painful, in l. thumb at 10 a.m.; sudden, in l. thumb and r. little in forenoon, > during touch; in thumbs extending into wrists. (Numbness.) Crawling in tips of three l. middle as if asleep.

Lower Extremities.—Staggering when walking in the air; S. after stooping. Burning stitches extending thence in every direction. Pain in l. in bed; drawing tense, in r. at night, with heaviness and difficult motion. Weariness, < legs. Stiffness when walking, with heaviness.

Thigh.—Quivering above l. knee. Sticking high up on it; in l. as far as knee; in external tuberosity of l. when walking; paroxysmal, in l. acetabulum down to calf, deep in bone, when walking in the street; drawing, in head of l. femur. Tearing in r.; in r. hip-joint; posteriorly from r. ischium to popliteal space. Cramplike pain above l. knee when sitting. Pain as if dislocated in r. T. and leg on being carried forward when walking; in hip-joints and knees, < walking in open air. Pain in hip; anteriorly in lower third of r.; in l., as if it would break in evening on walking; circumscribed, in inner side, as after a long walk; as if beaten, above middle on walking in open air. Scraping soreness in inner side of r. Drawing; in inner side of l. upper, in r. hip and r. knee; through outer surface in afternoon; in evening; in hips, inward and downward towards genitals; in upper part of l., making walking difficult; through T. to head and thence to pit of stomach, with blackness before eyes and nausea; painful, extending from bend to internal surface of r. during rest. Tension in outside of r. extending into knee, < walking and bending; in hip-joint extending to groin and posteriorly to hollow of knee, < walking, > standing. Painful lacity in hip-joints as if the capsules were weak, as if they could not support the body when standing, > walking, with general weakness. Paroxysms of weakness in inner muscles. T. and leg fell asleep when sitting.

Knee.—Involuntary motion (with pain). Cracking. Sticking in l.; on outside of l.; in l. in morning in bed; on inner side of l. when standing; when walking; in l. patella on ascending stairs; on beginning to walk, < rising from a seat; in r. coming from popliteal space; in hollow, impeding stretching of leg; burning-biting, anteriorly in l.; burning-biting, near inner hamstring. Tearing in l.; in r. popliteal space on bending body to the right; in l. extending to middle of calf when sitting; drawing, in r. at 5 p.m. Pinching near and beneath r. patella on bending and stretching leg. Gnawing in patellæ and heels, latter < walking. Pain; in r. in forenoon when sitting, then coldness in K., then pressing and tension in heart, then coldness again in K.; throbbing, on outer side when sitting, < walking; bruised, on walking in evening, the weight of body seemed too great. Pressing on inner side of r.; P. inward on inner side when sitting. Drawing in r. Tension in r. popliteal space in afternoon; in K. and heels in evening, < rising after sitting long, afterwards only on walking. Strong extension impossible on account of a painful obstacle in popliteal spaces. Weakness; lasting longest in l.

Leg.—(Shaft of tibia swollen.) Sticking beneath knee; under r. knee; in r. tendo-achillis; in tendo-achillis above heel; in bones from tarsus to knee. Tearing; in r. tendo-achillis; downward in r. tibia all day; downward in l.; in r. shin-bone from knee down and from tarsus to knee. Intermittent pinching in calves; periodical, in middle of l. calf, as from pressure of a convex button. Pain in r.; in r. at night, so that he must lie on l. side; in r. twice during the day, felt next morning after rising, and a spot next to tibia, near a varicose dilatation, smarted as if sore, was red and sensitive to touch, pain again as if sore on its upper surface in evening. Burning pain on inner side of r. in afternoon; sticking, in external tuberosity of l. tibia, beginning when sitting, < pressure. Bruised pain; in r. shin-bone. Drawing pain in l. shin-bone at 9 p.m.; paroxysmal, downward in r. Drawing in r.; in r. calf all day. Tension in flexor surface of r.; in r. in forenoon, > dinner, with pain in skin as if ulcerated; in r. at noon when walking; in r., with weight; like weariness. Pressure outward in tibia. Weakness; of l. when sitting, changing into cutting in muscles of calf when walking, which returned paroxysmally when sitting. Heaviness; of r. in evening, with burning; of l., with burning on inner surface.

Ankle.—Stitches in l.; in r. malleolus; like bites of insects in bend; burning, near r. outer malleolus during rest. Tearing inside r. in afternoon; sticking, in r. in forenoon when walking. Pain as from a false step, in r. outer malleolus on walking. Numbness pain in r. inner malleolus. Drawing pains below r. inner malleolus at 5 P.M.; sharp, in l. inner malleolus, gradually extending into calf. Tension in r. when walking. Compression in region of l. malleoli.

Foot.—Back of F. and toes swollen, red, painful as if numb, with tension on motion. Red spot on dorsum, impeding walking. Jerking up (with pain); clawing J. in soles as after a long walk. Stitches in l. sole near great toe; in middle metatarsal bones; in heels; l. heel and great toe; heel and ball of r. foot in evening; outward in middle of sole; tearing, in a corn. Tearing in r.; outer border of r. sole; r. metatarsal bones; r. middle metatarsal bone. Cutting in the joint on back of l. when walking, then warmth. Pinching in dorsum of l.; intermittent P. near metatarsal bone of little toe. Ulcerative pain in soles on stepping. Drawing in r. heel at 10 A.M. Weakness; of l. when sitting; of l. sole when sitting; when walking; of l. on going out; of l. when walking in the room, with falling asleep of it; with lameness; of r. sole as after a long journey and as if bruised, when sitting and walking. Heaviness of r.; H. in evening, with tension, so that walking was painful; and coldness. Falling asleep of l., > walking in open air; of l. sole when sitting. Pain in heel as if asleep in morning on rising. Feeling of paralysis in l. in afternoon when sitting.

Toes.—Shining, red, swollen, itching, and after rubbing burning. Stitches in l. great; and fourth and little; l. fourth, l. sole and r. thigh; noon and evening on bending body to l. side; superficial, in tips of fourth and little; tearing, in sides of nails. Tearing in r. great, and in tarsus; in l. little. Pain in r. middle; drawing, in great on waking. Drawing in great; l. great; in all, extending into leg; cramplike, in distal phalanx of r. great, less when walking than when sitting, with warmth; painful, in r. great towards evening. Feeling in little as if skin were pulled in spots.

Clinical.—Sciatica of l. side from fright. Toe-nails crumble, are very brittle.

Skin.—Wartlike excrescences on back of r. hand, on chin and other places; on hands, in shape of a truncated cone, smooth, in epidermis, later the largest were rough and split, the larger ones became depressed in centre. Warts on hands; on backs of hands and fingers, the old horny ones were painful on touch and washing, with red areola, afterwards there were four sets, the oldest still with red areola, the next rough and irregular, the smaller ones of the second crop smooth and shaped like truncated cones and the third crop very small, old ones less painful and the areola paler on appearance of menses.

Blue about clavicles. Red streak on forehead over root of nose. Red mottled spot on l. forearm; on back of r. foot. Red itching spots on inside of r. arm near wrist in evening; round, on inside of l. forearm, with white vesicles raised upon it, which burst, poured out a clear lymph and left a yellowish crust. Eruption on an inflamed surface on l. side of chin; scabby E. on cheek, not far from corner of mouth. Blotch with red areola on dorsum of r. foot, making walking in boots difficult, changing to a dark red elevation with a lighter areola, later another blotch in the still existing red spot, impeding walking.

Tenderness of l. ovary, with pain and swelling. (Aching distress at mouth of womb.)* Menses that had just ceased returned, bright-colored, soreness and bearing down in l. side preceding the flow and partially ceasing with it; M. copious, bright red, not coagulating easily (in a woman who thought she had passed the climacteric, as there had been no discharge for over a year), it stopped as suddenly as it began, no pain, only faintness and confused feeling in head.

Clinical.—Uterine hæmorrhage, bright red, partly thin, partly clotted; the uterus is soft and spongy, and suffers from passive congestion. Uterine hæmorrhage, with pain extending down to the knees. In the uterine region soreness, especially on l. side, with ovarian irritability, bearing-down pain, the pains often shoot down the legs. It has proved curative in amenorrhœa. At the period sharp pains from hip to hip, followed by expulsive pains. Numerous cases of menorrhœgia. Left ovarian neuralgia, with habitual profuse menstruation, which is followed by brownish and yellowish leucorrhœa. Membranous dysmenorrhœa, lacerating pains shooting down the leg. Chronic uterine hæmorrhage, with persistent oozing of dark blood, with black clots. It is especially suited to the climacteric period and to tall, slim women, with clear, white skin. Pain in l. mammary region in intermenstrual period; ovarian congestion, with burning pains.

Chest.—Spasmodic tearing at top of l. side and passing to sixth or seventh rib, at 3 P.M. when standing and reading, < breathing. Pain in l. infraclavicular region in morning; drawing, in l. inframammary region, waking me at 3 A.M., > turning on back from r. side. Aching, burning distress in sternum and under it in stomach, with neuralgic pains. Oppression along median line. Constriction, with pain. Heat and pressure.

Heart.—Sudden flying pain from it to stomach, arresting breathing.

Back.—Pain; extending to extreme end of spine; in lumbar region; in region of r. kidney, < sitting still, next day in region of l. kidney, > moving about, with heat, fulness, soreness on deep pressure (but it relieved the pain), with uneasiness in l. thigh, frequent desire to urinate, stream very small, the following day it requires considerable effort of will to empty the bladder, which is done slowly, pain and soreness in l. loin continue; heavy, in lumbar region, in bed with uneasiness about bladder (had had no desire to urinate on going to bed), woke early in morning with distended feeling in bladder, micturition slow and difficult, urine scarcely colored, pain in B. < next night, < lying on face, > lying on r. side; bearing down, in sacral region as in dysmenorrhœa, changing to l. ovarian region and gradually extending through hip.

Extremities.—Cutting in bones of r. hand and foot. Frequent rheumatic symptoms in arms, fingers and legs. Pain in shoulder-joints; rheumatic, in muscles of r. shoulder. Intermittent numb tingling sensation in r. arm and hand every day. Pain in r. elbow, < motion. Stitching along metacarpal bone of r. index. Rheumatic drawing pain in finger-joints, < second joint of r. index, all the afternoon. Pain in l. knee when walking, increasing to cramp, obliging me to lean upon the arm of a friend, the pain, with occasional cramps, lasted all the evening, < raising foot so as to press upon toes. Cramplike stiffness in l. leg, < raising foot so as to press upon toes. Feet swollen; in morning.

Skin.—The scalp one filthy mass of inflammation, two-thirds of the hair came out, the rest matted together, with oozing of watery serum from scalp. eruption like rubeola on neck and chest, gradually extending to feet, thickest on chest and joints. itching < night, rubbing any part brought out the eruption, on face and neck it was in patches like ringworm, but not vesicular. Boils on nape. Congested feeling.

Sleep.—Difficult falling asleep and then unpleasant dreams. Restless night; with fever; with troubled dreams. Gloomy and disappointing dreams. Sexual dreams; without emission; and disgusting, in which I was a principal actor, waking me, arose and urinated with difficulty and tenesmus.

Fever.—Chills running up and down back. Heat at night. Internal heat; with vertigo; < eyes, which are inflamed and sensitive to light, eyeball sore to touch; intermittent, < eyes. Burning in face and scalp. Skin dry; at night; and hot.

Uva-Ursi.

A tincture is made of the fresh leaves of Arctostaphylos Uva-ursi, Spr.

Headache. Vertigo. Flushing of face. Urinary troubles. Burning after discharge of slimy urine. Involuntary micturition. Green urine. Bloody urine. Pulse varied slightly in number of beats; slightly accelerated and soft; slightly accelerated, afterwards harder; slightly accelerated and fuller, afterwards slower, weak and flowing; rose one beat, then smaller, slightly slower; slower, with at first small increase in fullness, then it was smaller; irregular and small.

Clinical.—Cystitis. Frequent urging, with severe spasm of the bladder, burning and tearing pain; urine contains blood and tough mucus, which can be rolled out of the vessel in large masses. Uterine inertia during labor. Uterine hæmorrhage (said to be quite equal to Ergot).

Valeriana.

A tincture is made of the dried root of Valeriana officinalis, L.

General Action.—A “nervine” to be compared with Ignatia, Moschus, and especially Pulsatilla.

Generalities.—Twitching superficially in various parts of muscles. Tremulousness, with rest nowhere, as when expecting a joyful event. Drawing like transient jerks now here, now there (Puls.). Smarting pressure as if excoriated or sticking as with a hard blunt tool, in small spots; in region of shoulder and in other places. Malaise. Discomfort. Weakness in morning; in evening, with drowsiness; < lower limbs. Aggravation at noon and first part of afternoon and evening and the hours before midnight; of abdominal symptoms in evening (Puls.).

Clinical.—Hysteria, with dread of being left alone; over-excitability, especial dread of the dark or being left alone, very restless and excitable. Globus hystericus, with sensation of something warm rising from stomach into throat. Neuralgia.

Mind.—Joyfulness; all day; in evening, and greater activity; as after drinking coffee, he comprehended everything more easily than before; almost amounting to mischievousness. Delirium, attempted to get out of the window, threatened and vociferated violently, complained that he could not see, recognized no one, imagined himself away from home and beset with all sorts of dangers, from which he attempted to escape, but he was unable to walk without staggering. Agitation. Fear in evening when sitting in the dark (imagined some one might hurt him). Anxious; and hypochondriac, as if objects around him were estranged from him, the room appears desolate, he does not feel at home and is impelled to leave the room. Peevish. Irritation of nerves in forenoon, though he appears more cheerful and vigorous than before, his eyes, arms and knees feel weak. (Seriousness.) Great flow of ideas, confused, faint recollections of former thoughts and actions, chasing each other so rapidly that he became stupefied, he felt like one dreaming. Disinclination for mental work.

Head.—Stitches. Aching; in one or another part; at 11 P.M., < over orbits; at night. Excited feeling as after intoxication. Symptoms of congestion of brain, pain extending from r. frontal region over whole head, sometimes to eyes, making them sensitive to slight effort, sometimes to r. angle of lower jaw and causing an asleep sensation. Heaviness. Rush of blood; with fullness, < under vertex. Confusion; changing to drawing pain, < forehead. Stupid feeling when stooping; sudden stupefaction when standing, causing him to stagger and almost fall to one side. Vertigo on stooping, sensation as if everything were turning around with her, with intoxicated feeling.

Forehead.—Intermittent sticking deep in middle. Pain; in r. side; above r. brow; alternating with darting sticking, < over orbits, as if it would pierce the eyes from within outward; in l. half, with drawing together; above r. orbit, ending in heaviness; in r. side, periodically extending to l. side; extending from r. side over whole head, > sound sleep at night, returned next morning; extending to vertex, < towards eyes, so that moderate exertion of eyes caused pain in balls; over eyes, as if balls would be pressed out, at 1 P.M., an hour after dinner, < moving them. Constrictive drawing transversely across F. Numb tension behind eminence. Confusion in sinciput.

Temple, jerking in r.; intermittent pressure inward in r.; heaviness. Vertex, sticking at 10 P.M.; pain; P. below bone; contractive stupefying P. as from a blow, extending over head, lasting longest at V. Drawing pain in r. side at 5 P.M. from a current of air; D. pain in r. side, with flushes of heat over cheeks, later the pain extends as an aching into r. orbit. Pressure and drawing penetrating into side of occiput. Internal hammering in occiput in evening when half asleep, so that he forcibly turned his head to and fro.

Clinical.—Violent headache, appearing in jerks, with faintness.

Eyes.—Shining. Smarting as from smoke at 3 P.M.; burning S. at 10 A.M. Pressure in morning after rising, margins of lids seem swollen and sore, < region of l. inner canthus, they look red; P. as from a styne in r. at noon. Pupils dilated at 9 A.M.; D. even when approached by a lighted candle. Tearing in r. ball. Pain in lids from 1 till 2 P.M., with swelling. Stitches in inner canthus at 11 A.M. Painful drawing around orbits, < towards side, < stooping. Vision very distinct for distant objects. V. dim in morning, with pain in eyes as if he had not slept enough. Scintillations before eyes. Lights before eyes at 10 P.M., the closed and dark room seemed filled with the light of twilight, so that he imagined he distinguished objects, with a sensation as if he felt that things were near him even when not looking at them, and on looking he saw that the things were really there.

Ears and Nose.—Jerking in r. meatus auditorius. Crampy drawing in l. ear. Ringing in ears in evening in bed, he imagines that he hears the clock strike, at 10 P.M. sneezing.

Face.—Injected. Twitching sensation beneath skin of l. cheek, transiently > moving hand over it; crampy. T. in region of l. malar-bone. Crampy drawing in r. malar bone. Dartings as of electricity in r. ramus of jaw. Pressure almost like a darting in r. side of lower lip and in gum of r. canine tooth.

Clinical.—Trismus from decayed tooth, with the characteristic symptom of a thread hanging down the esophagus, which cannot be got rid of.

Mouth.—Toothache; shooting; drawing backward in lower and forward in upper. Constriction of tongue. Dryness of tip of tongue in morning, without thirst. Gradually increasing sticking in region of velum pendulum palati, with, towards the end, bitter taste and salivation inducing cough. Dryness, and in pharynx, then salivation. Offensive salivation. Taste flat, slimy in morning after waking (Puls.); T. and smell of fetid tallow at noon, before dinner; bitter on tip of tongue when licking lips a quarter of an hour after eating meat and vegetables.

Throat.—Scraping; with ineffectual desire to hawk.

Spasmodic constriction of pharynx. Dryness; of pharynx.

Stomach.—Appetite great; violent at dinner, causing nausea; little for dinner; although he is indifferent when thinking of eating, yet he eats much with relish at noon; lost; lost for supper. Disgust for food, from large doses. Aversion to tobacco, in a great smoker. Thirst; till noon.

Eruptions; of rancid fluid, not rising into mouth (heartburn), at 4 P.M.; empty; empty before a meal; tasting of Hepar sul. in morning after waking; offensive; insipid; warm, from epigastric region, arresting breathing. Nausea; in morning on rising, > eating and open air; with salivation; with faintness, lips white, body icy cold, then vomiting of bile and mucus, with shaking chill; as if a thread were hanging in the throat, gradually rising from umbilical region to fauces and causing salivation. Vomiting; nightly.

Rumbling and grumbling. Intermittent sticking on l. side and over pit of stomach, in region of costal cartilage. Shooting cutting from pit to umbilical region. Pressure in pit; in epigastric region; with heaviness; sudden transient, in pit, with gurgling in abdomen. Fulness; in epigastric region; in epigastric region, < region of cardia, with pressure; changing to ravenous hunger; F. and peculiar scraping irritation in S. and abdomen, causing nausea, rising through œsophagus and arresting breathing. Heaviness in epigastric region. Weakness. Heat; in pit; epigastric region; epigastric region, with cramps.

Clinical.—Gastralgia, with great tympanitis, and putrid eructation.

Abdomen.—Distention; causing restlessness at night. Hardness. Rumbling and gurgling; R. < umbilical region, with motions and cutting. Offensive flatus. (When emitting flatus the baby cries and presses, occasionally he passes a little blood by the rectum.) Cutting, then diarrhœa twice; C. on retracting it, with pinching. Pain; in various parts in evening, at one time in umbilical region for an hour; in muscles as if bruised or as from a cold, < inspiration. Burrowing. Feeling as if it would be distended, even to bursting. Inclination to retract, he does it even involuntarily (alternate action).

Rumbling in small intestines, with gurgling and cutting, then after half an hour normal stool; R. in upper abdomen. Upper A. and hepatic region painful to touch at 11 P.M. Hypochondrium, stitches in l.; painful jerks in r.; (pressing in l. in morning in bed, on coughing or deep breathing it became a cutting, possibly from a cold). Sudden pain as from subcutaneous ulceration in l. side, two days in succession at 10 P.M. Cutting in umbilical region.

Hypogastrium.—Pinching in evening in bed. Crampy pain in l. side at 11 P.M. when sitting. Sprained pain in l. side at 7 P.M. when sitting. Twisting, with nausea, as if menses would come on. Bruised pain, < parts covering os pubis, increasing in paroxysms, as a painful pressure or drawing. Drawing pain from 10 till 11 P.M.; in r. inguinal glands on crossing thighs, the place is painful to touch; in l. iliac region, as if bruised at 2 P.M., spreading to middle of abdomen, then rumbling in bowels.

Rectum and Anus.—Stitches in R. when standing. Boring in R. at 10 P.M.; in l. side of sphincter at 1 P.M. when standing. Tearing in anus at 2 P.M. on moving a little when sitting. Tenesmus in A. as if diarrhœa would set in on rising from stool, disappears gradually, returns in a few hours forcing him to stool, when he has a natural evacuation.

Stool.—Diarrhœa; twice in evening, with tickling in anus; violent, in morning; (the baby has had frequent loose S., has now many more, looser and watery discharges, in which solid particles like curdled milk float). Pasty; and greenish, with blood. Frequent; with effort.

Urinary Organs.—Clawing in region of bladder in evening. Constant desire to urinate, which he insisted upon doing through the window. Frequent micturition. When urinating the baby presses very hard, causing the dark red rectum to protrude, when a few drops of blood fall out. Urine dark brown; dark red in morning, but became clear on standing; contained brownish flakes; smells of the drug; seems to contain bile. Copious urine; and high-colored, also of strong odor; and on standing a sediment of brown flakes. Turbid urine; in morning, depositing a whitish sediment; depositing a slimy white sediment; and dark red, depositing a vermilion red sediment; and brownish, with brick-dust sediment. Sediment in urine; turbid; mealy; white in morning; copious, the upper part of which is pale, the lower turbid and reddish.

Sexual Organs.—Frequent erections in morning, next day creeping and drawing in penis as if asleep. Tensive gurgling pain in r. testicle at 5 P.M. when sitting.

Respiratory Organs and Chest.—Dry cough. Hacking cough. Difficult breathing after breakfast, with anxiety in chest. Stitches in chest at 5 P.M. during a horseback ride; sudden S. outward in C. and region of liver at 2 P.M.; in region of last true ribs at 8 P.M., when standing, with pressure outward; outward below l. axilla during inspiration, < deep inspiration, and on pressure a sore pain. Jerks like electric shocks below axilla. Twitching pain in C. Pressure across lower half of C. at 10 P.M. when walking, with oppression of breath. Oppression in region of r. lower true rib.

Heart and Pulse.—Sudden stitches in region of H. during inspiration, when sitting erect or standing, > stooping. Palpitation. Pulse rapid; with rush of blood to head, feeling of fulness and warmth in face; and irregular, tense; and irregular, tremulous; and in the first quarter of an hour full and vigorous, in the second the diastole is shorter, the whole body agreeably warm, and a tremulous anxiety seems to come out of abdomen; 78, the beats of heart scarcely felt (86); 60 in one minute, 90 the next, and weak and small, in forenoon; slow, then rapid. Pulse small.

Neck and Back.—Piercing drawing from nape to occiput at 11 A.M. on bending head backward, with pressure. Drawing pain in back. Rheumatic pain in scapulae. Stitches in kidney region when sitting down. Strained pain above l. hip, worse when standing, and especially when sitting, than when walking. Bubbling pressure above anus, in region of os coccygis, at 9 A.M. Drawing transversely across lumbar region in evening in bed.

Extremities.—Bruised pain. Drawing, slow, painful, in bones when sitting quietly, with jerking; painful D. in muscles from l. shoulder to fingers, with single stitches, a sort of tearing, the tearing returned after a second dose. > walking (Puls., Rhus t.), after a stitch in knee (so that she could scarcely walk), then pain which moved from knee to toes and back again (less when walking than when sitting), finally felt in r. foot; sudden crampy D. in muscles just above bend of elbow at noon, and in outer muscles of thigh. Paralytic pain in knees, elbows and shoulder-joints on ceasing to walk. Paralytic numbness. Stiffness in elbows and knees at 5 p.m. after walking a little, with weariness.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the limbs; sciatica, < sitting, > walking.

Upper Extremities.—Crampy jerking shooting through humerus. Stinging in region of posterior border of deltoid at 11 p.m. Crampy drawing downward in region of r. biceps when writing. Drawing pain downward in l. deltoid and bend of elbows when laying arm on the table and bending it, if the arm hangs down the drawing changes into heaviness in fingers as if they were turgid with blood. Pressure as with tip of finger in region of head of humerus. (Tearing in elbow.) Bruised pain in bends of elbows from 7 till 9 A.M. when writing, afterwards extending as a drawing pain along biceps. Stitches below tip of elbow at 6 p.m. Tearing upward in inner side of forearm at 4 p.m. Tremor of hands when writing at 10 A.M., with heat and redness of cheeks and warmth of rest of body. Sudden jerks in hands, then pain on touch. Crampy jerks through thumb, as from electricity. Stitches in bones of middle phalanges of fingers at 11 p.m.

Lower Extremities.—Thigh. Jerking in muscles of r. hip. Darts as of electric sparks in middle of l. when standing, then bruised pain. Crampy tearing (jerking) in outer side of hip-bone, extending into hip, in afternoon. Crampy pain in front part extending to groin at 10 p.m. Clawing pain above bend of r. knee at 4 p.m. on beginning to walk, < a false step. Bruised pain from middle of r. along outer side to knee, in afternoon when riding in a carriage, < jolting. Burning pain in l. hip at 11 p.m. in bed. Intermittent pressure transversely across above l. knee, afterwards descending to knee. Paralytic pain from r. ischiatic region and great trochanter down to patella, so that walking was difficult. Drawing downward in outer side in morning on extending the limb sideways.

Knee.—Tearing in bends from 11 till 12 p.m. when sitting or standing. Pain in patella. Tensive pain from bend through calf at 1 p.m. when sitting. Weakness in bends of K. and ankles in morning after rising, with bruised pain transversely across thighs and in small of back.

Leg.—Stitches in front region of tuberosity of fibula at 11 A.M. Throving pain in outer side of calf at 5 p.m. when sitting. Tearing in l. calf at 4 p.m., when laying r. limb across l.; pulsative, in r. calf in afternoon when sitting. Drawing along tendo-achillis towards heel when sitting, > rising, with weak feeling. Bruised pain anteriorly in middle of tibia as if fibrillæ had been broken, when walking. Pressure as with tip of finger on l. side below l. knee. Lassitude when standing, with heaviness; L. in calves in afternoon when standing, with tension. Heaviness in calves, when walking she feels as if she could not get along.

Ankle.—Sticking over l. malleolus in region of tendo-achillis at 1 o'clock. Sprained pain in r. after running upstairs, < standing, > walking; sudden, in r. outer malleolus, more when standing than when walking. Bruised pain in l. in afternoon when the carriage jolted. Drawing in tarsal joints when sitting at 4 p.m.

Foot.—Jerking as from electricity in inner border of r. Tearing in balls of soles in afternoon, then warmth. Pain in heels; when sitting, < r.; when sitting, with stinging.

Toes.—Tearing in dorsum from 11 till 12 p.m., < great. Pain in tips in evening. Heaviness in tips of three middle at 4 p.m., with drawing pain, feeling of subcutaneous ulceration and cooling sensation as from a current of air through soles to calves.

Skin.—Eruption first red and confluent, then white, hard, elevated pimples, on arm and chest. Pimples and white vesicles on an elevated red border, painful to touch, in white of upper lip and on cheek. Smarting as if excoriated in outer side of l. knee; S. as if excoriated in spots that could be covered with the tip of finger. Itching in axilla at 3 p.m.

Sleep.—Yawning, with stretching of limbs; Y., with chilliness. Sleepiness; irresistible; then profound sleep for two hours, on waking the headache had disappeared. Sleeplessness. Unusually wide awake in evening and restless at night, sleep only towards morning, when he had vivid dreams. Restless sleep; disturbed by cramp-like pain in stomach. Sleep disturbed by vivid dreams, by confused dreams, tired in morning; by dreams partly voluptuous, partly anxious, for instance, that he was driving through deep water. Many dreams.

Fever.—Chilliness; tremulous, at 11 A.M.; intermittent, in evening; in thrills creeping downward over whole body; in upper half of head at 5 p.m., when pressing the hat firmly on the head; in region of hip, as if cold water were poured over her, with warmth of rest of body. Shuddering in paroxysms from nape downward.

Heat; all day, < motion, with sweat on face, forehead, etc., pulse strong and rapid; in forenoon, with sweat on slightest motion; during dinner, with sweat in hair on forehead; as soon as he begins to walk, < face, with sweat; with uneasiness. Dry heat; in evening when sitting. Heat of skin. Heat in head on stooping; of cheeks at noon in open air, with redness of them, after fifteen minutes general sweat, < face; in flushes over cheeks in evening, with dry feeling in tongue, without thirst. Synochus. Sweat; at night; with the odor of the drug; on forehead about noon, after dinner the eyes feel weak as after revelry; in hair of forehead about noon, with stiffness of loins, pulse being 90.

Veratrum Album.

A tincture is made of the dried root.

General Action.—It produces profound prostration, weak heart, cold skin, with cold sweat and collapse. Most violent vomiting and purging, with terrible colic and at times cramps. Muscular spasms, rigid contraction of muscles, even tetanic.

Alties.—Colchicum, Iris v., Secale c., Acon., Ars., Cupr., Zinc., Rhus t.

Generalities.—Activity on diminution of pains and emotional disturbances, with mobility. Movements slow. Muscles relaxed. Trembling. Convulsive movements of face and limbs. Spasms; epileptic. Cholera. New attack of gout. Stitches here and there; S. in r. cheek and r. chest, with salivation; in part S. here and there, in part sticking colic, with peppery biting in throat. Pain in sides, breasts and thighs. Bruised pain in bones; in muscular parts, with pressure. Drawing pain in head and sacrum. Itching sensation in bones. Distress from open air, as after acute illness. Restlessness; undertakes several things, but is soon weary and accomplishes nothing. Desire to lie down.

Weakness; in morning; in morning, with shivering; in morning, with sleepiness, preventing rising; after breakfast, with sleepiness; in forenoon, > a glass of wine, with dizziness and inability to work; in afternoon and evening, then fatiguing, dreamy sleep; in evening, on account of mental excitement; in evening, all work, especially mental, is irksome, with uneasiness, heaviness of head, which is painful, then stupid sleep; on going to stool; after a short walk, with indisposition; < breakfast, with heaviness of limbs; with sinking down; with disinclination to work; then twisting in abdomen and back, > stool; as from too great heat in the air; paralytic; rapid, inviting sleep in forenoon; in attacks when walking; as if he had walked too far; as if he had not slept enough, head stupid, on attempting to rise he sank back in bed in a dreamy half sleep, with sweat and apprehension (Acon.).

Faintness; at noon for three days, with pallor, twitching in cheeks and sparks before l. eye, then vomiting of white froth. All symptoms except weakness > lying, they return on rising; all except headache > sitting.

Clinical.—Rheumatic pains, like electric jerks, < heat of the bed, > walking about. Attacks of sudden faintness. Violent tonic spasms, palms and soles drawn inward. General tetanic rigidity of muscles, face drawn and pinched, tendency to cramp, especially in the calves, etc. Tendency to collapse, with cold sweat.

Mind.—Raging, with heat of body. Delirium; with general coldness, open eyes, with cheerful, at times laughing expression, he prattles about religious subjects, about vows to be performed, prays, believes that he is not in his own house. Beside himself, groans and does not know how to calm himself. Cursing and howling all night, and complaining of being stupid, with headache and salivation.

Inconsolable over a fancied misfortune, runs about the room howling and screaming, looking upon the ground, or sits brooding in the corner, wailing and weeping in an inconsolable manner, < evening, sleeps only till 2 o'clock. Despair. Despondency and discouragement, with weeping and inclination to hang the head. Melancholia, with chilliness as if dashed with cold water, with frequent nausea. Fear; (ending with eructations). Anxiety; in morning; all night; in evening and after dinner; (in evening in bed till almost midnight, with waking sopor, and drawing movement in abdomen, which causes roaring in head); if he stands, with cold sweat on forehead and vomiting; during stool, with fear of apoplexy; caused by crawling in fingers; taking away the breath; as if he had committed a crime. Anguish.

Ill humor; in forenoon, with no inclination to work; at every work that does not go to suit him, with impatience and weakness; at every interruption at work; with anxiety, palpitation and rapid audible respiration. Tacturn; he speaks in a low weak voice; (and rages and tears his clothes); says nothing except when excited to do so, and then he scolds. (Cannot endure to have any one speak to him.) Seeks out faults in others and taunts them with them. (Talkative.) Inclination to work. Indifference all day, so that he often rubs his forehead in order to collect his thoughts. Sensation as if gradually nearing his end, though with tranquillity.

Oversensitiveness, increased mental power. When he has nothing to do he seems dazed, cannot think easily, is quiet and absorbed in himself. Conscious only as in a dream. Waking sopor, one eye is open, the other closed or half open, frequent starting up as if frightened. Unconsciousness. (Does not recognize his relatives.) Loss of ideas; of memory.

Clinical.—Raging delirium, sometimes with rapid talking, at other times refusal to talk; sometimes with rage and swearing, tearing clothes. Hallucinations of physical diseases; of having committed crime, obscene delirium. In delirium he tries to get out of bed. Melancholia, hangs his head and wants to be alone. Delirium after severe illness; people crowd about her. Despairing melancholia after great disappointments or religious excitement.

Head.—Sticking, and in r. shoulder. Aching; < walking, even to reeling, > sitting; > appearance of menses; with vomiting of green mucus; with nausea, colic and pain in back; with buzzing in front of forehead; with heat in eyes; with painful inflammation of eyes, preventing sleep at night; with stiffness; with toothache; with flow of urine; (tearing?) during menstruation (which had not occurred for six weeks), < morning, > evening, with nausea; paroxysmal bruised, here and there in brain, with pressure; as if brain were broken; tense; constrictive; with constrictive pain in œsophagus; throbbing; intermittent throbbing; stupefying.

(Shattering, with jerking in l. arm and paleness of fingers.) Confusion; in forenoon, with heaviness, emptiness, peevishness and disinclination to do anything; < sitting erect and standing, > stooping and lying on back, with tensive pressure now in temples, now in vertex, and contracted pupils; with nausea; with heaviness and with difficulty in talking as if he could not think of the words; dizzy. Heaviness. Rush of blood on stooping. Vertigo; in morning; in morning on rising; towards noon before menses, and sweat at night; when walking; < rising from a seat, with pressure in vertex, pain in arms, vanishing of vision and creeping coldness through arms; and intoxication; with aversion to food; as if nothing were firm in his head.

Forehead.—Stitches in l. side; single, even when sitting. Pinching. Pain in sinuciput; and heat and heaviness; throbbing, over l. eye. Tension, and in occiput; in sinuciput; in head between temples.

Temples.—Sticking. Pain extending to forehead. < bending forward, > bending backward and pressure, recurring on rising up. (Sensation of a drop of water, not cool, running down.)

Cutting in vertex. Pressing on vertex in morning after waking; pain like a flattening pressure on l., which on movement becomes a throbbing. Pain in one side, with pain in stomach. Sticking in occiput, neck and r. shoulder in morning on waking. < motion, with tearing; S. deep in occiput, with tension. Sudden pain in O. Tearing and tension in O. and nape. Crawling and bristling sensation in r. side as if a bunch of hair were electrified, with shivering under scalp. Itching biting stitch in scalp. (Itching.)

Clinical.—Persistent vertigo, with cold sweat on the forehead, with great weakness. Neuralgic headaches, especially characterized by feeling of ice on vertex. Neuralgia in the head in convulsive shocks immediately on raising the head, with vomiting, > pressure on vertex.

Eyes.—Surrounded by black rings; by blue rings, and looked dull. Distorted, protruding. Turned upward so that only whites could be seen. Staring. Without lustre. Redness of white of r. Inflammation; of r.; of r., with febrile heat; with tearing. Blueness of l., with frequent eructations. Pain; and he moved the hands over head; with loss of appetite and inflamed appearance of blood (buffy coat). Heat; < open air, with sticking; with lachrymation, cutting and dry sensation. Weak sensation. Seem watery, as if covered with albumen. Lachrymation; with redness of eyes, as in cornea.

Pupils contracted; with compressing pain in eyes; then dilated, with weakness and sleepiness, even when walking; dilated at 7 p.m., with weak vision. Balls rotated. Paroxysmal pain as if beaten in r. ball at outer canthus, > pressure. Sticking in canthi.

Lids.—Agglutination on rising. Sticking in upper by outer canthus. Dryness (Arsen., Zinc.); after mid-day nap, then lachrymation; < after sleep, painful as if rubbed sore, are stiff and agglutinated; of upper, as if salt were between it and ball at noon after dinner. Burning. Sticking itching internally. Paralysis.

Vision.—Double. Of sparks; and black spots on rising from a seat, forcing him to sit or lie. Shining spots flit before eyes. Blindness.

Clinical.—Hemeralopia preceding menstruation, with other Veratrum symptoms.

Ears.—Stitches deep in l.; behind l. E. and jav. (Tearing in lobule.) Pain in external meatus; P. in r. in morning. Sensation as if a membrane were stretched over it. Alternations in r. of heat and sensation of a cold breath. Hearing diminished; one or other ear seems stopped. Ringing. Whistling in r. preceded by dulness of hearing, once after the W. the hearing was clear, after two minutes it was dull again. Roaring on rising from a seat, with rushing in them and bright fire before eyes; R. during menses, with pain in limbs and thirst; like a storm.

Nose.—Sensation as if ulcerated internally. Compression in bones, with pressure inward. Sharp burning in l. nostril. Dryness as from dust; D. and heat. Sneezing. Catarrh; then gelatinous mucus in fauces and throat, with membranes of yellow-brown mucus. Bleeding; from r. nostril; (at night in sleep); before menses. Smell of dung in nose.

Face.—Sunken, and expression anxious (Ars.). Pale (Ars.); and lips; with frequent stools (Ars.); alternating suddenly with redness and heat. Red and hot; red, with great thirst and flow of urine. Bluish (Cupr.); towards end of menses, with grinding of teeth. Dark, with anxious expression. Swelling. Drawing and tense pains in r. side and r. ear. (Jerking pinching in muscular parts.)

Jaws.—Closed. Stitches in r. frequently during the day; in joints on opening them, so that he cannot draw down jaw as usual. Sore pain in forepart of lower. Bruised feeling in muscles of lower when eating, so that he must stop chewing. Pressure in muscles of l. as from a dull point of wood. Stiffness of muscles.

Lips.—Cracked. Painful pimple on margin of red near corner, < touch. Vesicles in l. corner. Lips and mouth dry in evening.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia, drawing tearing pains, with pinched features, cold extremities, cold sweat, nausea and vomiting.

Mouth.—Teeth. Loose. Grating. Boring in upper incisors. Aching, with inflammation of tonsils and weakness; A., then swollen red face; then when chewing ending in drawing streaming into roots, even when something soft was taken between teeth; in l. upper molars as if filled with lead. Acutely affected by cold wind. Swelling of gum and lower jaw.

Tongue.—Swelling. Coldness (Cupr., Camph.). Burning; and in oesophagus; with stinging; in tip and in mouth, with sticking and coolness; and in throat and stomach, with coldness in mouth as from peppermint; sharp, on tip. Dryness (Nux mos., Rhus t.). Inability to talk. Stammering.

Inflammation of mouth. Frothing. Mucus running out towards noon; tenacious M. in mouth and palate, < drinking water; much M., and in fauces and throat, expectoration of large lumps of M. without cough, next day M. in mouth and throat after eating, and in evening constant spitting of M. after a glass of wine, with cold hands. Pain, then inflammation, then red swollen tongue, preceded by nausea. Dryness, and of palate, with thirst for water (Acon., Ars., Nux mos.); D. in morning after rising, only slightly > rinsing, with stickiness; with stickiness, without special thirst. Burning; posteriorly and in fauces. Numbness of palate as if covered with the skin of a plum. Seemed sore.

Salivation; running from mouth like waterbrash; tenacious; alternating with dryness and stickiness of mouth; with acrid, salt taste and heat in palm and pit of stomach. Tasteless saliva, with tastelessness in mouth. Salt saliva. Taste and coolness in M. and throat as from peppermint; biting T. in throat as from peppermint, with heat rising from oesophagus into mouth, with nausea; pasty; as of dung; putrid, herby, almost like pestwursel; (sour, with watery salivation); diminished.

Throat.—Swelling of l. submaxillary glands, with internal soreness, < l. side, and with choking and constriction during and after swallowing. Pinching in submaxillary glands. Swelling; of tonsils, with redness of pharynx. Tenacious mucus. Scraping; burning. Pain; and in oesophagus, with burning stinging in pharynx. Drawing pain, with thirst and colic. Roughness. Paroxysmal constriction and choking as from unripe pears. Dryness; in pharynx; in fauces, with heat and secretion of mucus; not > drinking. Burning; in pharynx; in fauces.

Oesophagus.—Swelling. Distention, with feeling as if he would suffocate. Contraction as from pressure of a swelling. Coldness comes up into it (also a spot far back on palate is cold), then warm, sweetish, salt, slimy liquid rises like waterbrash, then coldness returns. Burning. Swallowing impossible.

Clinical.—Neuralgic toothache, pulsating, driving to madness, teeth feel heavy, as if filled with lead.

Stomach.—Hunger violent; H. in stomach, with undisturbed appetite; with thirst and profuse urine; ravenous, without thirst. Appetite for fruit; with aversion to warm food. Longing for only cold food, herring, sardines; for acids; for gherkins; for citric acid. Little appetite, and nausea when eating. Appetite lost. Thirst (Bry.); in afternoon and evening; during sweat; for cold drinks.

Eructations; after breakfast, with shivering and weakness; after eating, with pressure in stomach and tension in upper abdomen; bitter; sour; qualmish, with terrific cough; (tasting of food); violent, mostly of air. Empty eructations; after eating; in evening after lying down, then scraping, scratching in larynx, almost as after heartburn. Waterbrash choking him. Efforts to eructate. Hiccough; in morning during the customary smoke.

Nausea; in pit of stomach; from breakfast, > meat at noon; after dinner; while eating, with hunger and pressure in epigastric region; after eating a little, with pressure and heaviness in stomach; with bilious taste; with salivation and closure of jaws; with great thirst and flow of urine; with frothing from mouth; with weakness; with red sweaty face; with crawling in stomach.

Vomiting (Acon., Cupr.); and diarrhoea ten times, with pale, sunken face, covered with cold sweat; with purging, then unconsciousness; with exhaustion as if thighs would separate from hip-joints; with sinking of strength and pulse; with heat of body; forcible; violent, of slimy acid liquid with food, with painful distortion of face; of food; of food, with green mucus; of food, with mucus and green substances; green (Merc. c.); bloody; black bloody, frequent V. and stools; paroxysmal, sour-smelling, > drinking cold milk, then chill in bed; of bile, then of tenacious mucus; of froth, then of yellowish-green, sour-smelling mucus; (black). Vomiting of mucus (Cupr., Sec. c.); with cold sweat; with weakness; green; green, then of froth; green, then chilliness; dark green (Sec. c.), with diarrhoea, and yet appetite and thirst; bloody, with cold sweat; white, at night; white, with good appetite; tenacious, at night; bitter, sour, brown M. and food in evening two hours after coffee; and of bile, then of black bile, at last of blood.

Painful distention of pit. Fulness after eating a little. Cramp, with burning pressure in pit and in middle of chest, and with eructations after breakfast. Pinching in pit, < walking. Cardialgia. Pain; in epigastric region and side; after dinner; acute, in epigastrium; extending into sternum, hypochondria and to ilia; as from ravenous hunger; pressing and drawing in pit. Burning; in region of pit; in epigastrium and along œsophagus; like heartburn, in evening, and in chest, with cold shivering over back. Heaviness after breakfast, and in chest. (Sensation of weakness, with internal coldness in epigastric region and pressure.)

Clinical.—Craving juicy things. Most violent retching and vomiting, of food, or of whatever is taken into the stomach; the ejecta are always very profuse, and the vomiting is attended with cold sweat, great prostration, burning in the stomach and great sensitiveness to touch. The violent retching and vomiting is the most characteristic feature of the Veratrum patient, unlike Arsenic and Cuprum; the ejecta are profuse, though many of the other symptoms correspond. Vomiting of great quantities of blood, at times even bright red, usually dark and thick. A few cases of dyspepsia from chewing tobacco, without vomiting or diarrhoea.

Abdomen.—Distention; with colic and emission of flatus; flatulent, with colic as from constipation and uneasiness. Rumbling; with nausea in it, a sensation as if diarrhoea would come on, without desire for stool; with diuresis; and unusual troubles with a hernia. Flatulence in evening; after dinner. Emission of flatus; noisy, at night; unnoticed after dinner, with thin stool, then acid diarrhoea, with tenesmus. Twitching, with not disagreeable warmth of chest.

Stitches extending through abdominal ring along spermatic cord when coughing. Cutting; here and there; early in morning, with diarrhoea. Gripping; drawing, then emission of flatus and tenacious stool. Pain (Colch., Coloc.); nightly, with sleeplessness; with feeling as if intestines were twisted into a knot; with thirst and increased urine; from back towards navel; flatulent, here and there, the longer delayed the emission of flatus the more difficult it is to pass (Coloc.); sudden (gripping?) in morning in bed, then desire for stool, stool grey yellowish-green, pasty, the last part consisted of mucus, the desire lasted after the stool, then almost clear mucus, then feeling above pubes as if beaten and an unsetled feeling in pit of stomach. Drawing pain in evening when walking; D. as from a purge. Bruised feeling because flatus refuses to pass.

Sticking in region of spleen when walking after a moderate meal. Pain in hypochondria and chest from non-emission of flatus; tensive P. as from flatulence in hypochondria. Warmth in upper abdomen; extending over chest to throat. Urging to stool in upper A., but stool follows with difficulty or not at all from inactivity of rectum.

Umbilical Region.—Cutting, with thirst and increased urine. Gripping at times above, at times below navel, in afternoon soon after eating, which while standing changes to another place than when walking, and the reverse. Pain; before pains in back; as from flatus.

Hypogastrium.—Indications of protrusion of inguinal hernia. Symptoms as if a hernia would protrude. Cutting sticking soon after eating. Deep drawing tearing, mostly above pubis. Pain in groin; in caecal region as from spasmodic incarcerated flatus; bruised, in public region in morning, with sensation in l. groin as if a hernia would form, < sitting. Sensation of impending faintness before stool.

Clinical.—The whole abdomen is usually swollen and very sensitive. It is adapted to the most terrible attacks of colic, the pain begins in the stomach, radiates upward to the shoulders and then involves the whole abdomen, associated with retching, vomiting, purging, coldness, cold sweat, etc.

Rectum and Anus.—Blind hæmorrhoids; with pressure towards anus. Tenesmus. Burning in anus during stool. (Sore pain in anus.)

Stool.—Diarrhoea; in evening; with profuse sweat; with desire for eating and, drinking; with pain during and after stool; frequent and painful (Ars.); passed unnoticed with emission of flatus (Aloe); watery, involuntary. Soft, sudden; S., scanty, brownish-yellow. Constipation; on account of hardness and large size of stool (compare Iris v.); with heat and pain in head. Dry. Copious. Frequent, with shivering. Acid. Bloody. First part large, the latter consisting of thin strings of faeces of normal consistence. Indolent. Evacuations suppressed.

Clinical.—Diarrhoea, < night, by drinking, after fruit (China), associated with terrible colic, cold sweat on the forehead, feeble pulse; stools very profuse, watery, with flakes, sometimes blackish, followed by great emptiness and weakness in the abdomen; the evacuations are often accompanied by violent vomiting. Frequently called for in worst cases of cholera morbus and true cholera. Chronic constipation, evacuations black, hard, large, with faintness, cold sweat, etc.

Urinary Organs.—Pain in bladder and on urinating burning. Tenesmus. Frequent desire, urine retained at first, then watery urine with smarting in forepart of meatus. Dysuria. Involuntary micturition. Difficult micturition of pale watery urine in a weak stream. Stitching in orifice of urethra after urinating. Pinching in urethra when not urinating. Pain as if contracted behind glans, with ineffectual desire since bladder was empty. Burning in forepart of urethra when urinating. Diuresis; with constipation; with coryza. Urine colorless like water; scanty, yellow, turbid, even when passed; burning; acrid.

Clinical.—Dysuria, with burning. Suppression of urine (Straun.). Green urine.

Sexual Organs.—Sensitiveness. Stiffness of penis. Excoriation of prepuce. Drawing pain in testicles. Pimples on r. labia before menses. Abortion. Irrestrainable flooding. Menses too early; M. profuse; M. that had been suppressed for many years reappeared; that had been suppressed a long time returned at the full moon.

Clinical.—Dysmenorrhœa, with vomiting, abdominal weakness; sexual mania precedes the menses. Puerperal mania. Suppressed menses, with cold sweat, vomiting and diarrhœa. Uterus enlarged and inflamed, very sensitive, could not tolerate the least touch, with diarrhœa and coldness. Endometritis, with great agony.

Respiratory Organs.—Constriction of larynx; spasmodic, with contracted pupils; spasmodic, with attacks of suffocation and protruding eyes; suffocative. Tickling low down in air-tubes, provoking cough, with slight expectoration; without expectoration. Loss of voice.

Cough.—Hollow, in long shocks, with cutting in abdomen; deep H., always in three or four shocks, which seem to come from abdomen, in evening. Violent, in evening, with salivation. Dry; with tickling in pharynx; then expectoration; violent, at night and in morning; biting, < evening, with shivering; hacking, from tickling in lowest part of sternum; hoarse, at night; almost D., with pain in side and head. With much expectoration, blueness of face and involuntary micturition.

Respiration.—Suffocative. Difficult. Short on slightest motion, a kind of oppression of chest (Ferr., Phos.). Weak, interrupted. Stopped; for several minutes at times, was spasmodic and rattling.

Clinical.—Bronchitis, especially of old people, rattling of mucus, with inability to expectorate, great prostration, cold sweat (Ant. tart.). Violent fits of coughing, followed by eruptions of gas, the cough seems to start from the abdomen, which has to be held when coughing, < in a warm room. Suffocative spasms, with cough from constriction of the larynx or chest. Whooping cough. Cough < in a warm room, eating or drinking and cold water, from crying. Every attack of whooping cough is followed by great exhaustion and cold sweat; attacks sometimes accompanied by vomiting and diarrhœa.

Chest.—Catarrh without involuntary cough, tenacious mucus must be raised by hawking. Spasmodic contraction of l. intercostal muscles, impeding respiration. Stitches in r. side; near nipples, which at last itch; paroxysmal, in r. side, taking away the breath, during the day. Cutting. Pinching in region of sternum, more after drinking than after eating. Gripping in r. side. Pain; in ribs; in region of sternum; in region of sternum after eating and drinking; beneath ribs, < expiration; with dry cough; in l. side, with cough, weakness and difficult respiration; in l. side, then in back; beneath last r. ribs, ending with a stitch, < inspiration; stinging-throbbing, in a spot in l.

Tightness even when sitting (Phos., Ferr., Ars.), with difficult respiration and headache; T. when standing; when walking, with fulness, so that breath fails; he cannot inspire sufficient air on account of contraction of air-passages by tenacious, firm mucus. Constriction; periodical cramplike, in l. side. Oppressor when coughing; O. after burning in throat and gnawing in stomach; frequent, < morning on rising, with pain in side on breathing. Pressure; painful rhythmic, on upper part of sternum; pulsatile, as with a dull point in region of l. rib, and on touch pain as if suppurating. Fulness forcing him to eructate. Cold drawing at times, with sensitiveness to cold air. Tickling in middle of sternum as if it would provoke cough.

Heart.—Cutting burning in præcordial region at night. Paroxysmal anxiety, then violent beating and warmth. Violent beating. Palpitation, with anxiety and rapid, audible respiration (Acon.).

Clinical.—Cardiac debility, with very weak pulse; any exertion brings on irregular action of the heart and thready pulse; the face is flushed when lying, and on rising suddenly it becomes very pale, with cold sweat, faintness, etc. (Compare other plants of same family, Convallaria, Strophanthus, etc.)

Pulse.—Rapid. Slow; and almost lost; and small, tense. Small, irregular, at times intermittent. Imperceptible.

Neck.—Bent, with pain on motion, less on pressure, with tension and tearing in r. side. Sticking in vertebrae; in neck and r. shoulder, with stiffness of nape. Pain in nape and shoulders in morning on waking; in nape in morning, with stiffness of shoulder; in l. side, with drawing; rheumatic, in nape, extending to sacrum, < going to stool; as if skin were excoriated. Tension in nape; and shoulders and between scapulae, < motion, with sticking. Stiffness in nape; painful, in nape during the headache; rheumatic, in nape, causing vertigo, < moving. Heaviness in nape, cervical muscles no longer support the head. Muscles of nape seem paralyzed.

Back.—Sticking and burning; burning S., with tension in small of back. Pain in B. and shoulder, with sticking and tension; P. in spine when walking, then drawing pressure as if bruised, > pressure; as if broken, in morning on stooping and on rising up. Painful stiffness. Scapulae, pain extending over back, with diuresis, thirst and constipation; pain between S. even when sitting, on turning it becomes a tugging; bruised pain. Stitches in sacrum on stooping; intermittent, in coccyx when standing, rather itching than sticking. Pain in loins; in sacrum when standing; in sacrum when walking upon a level; in loins, with arthritic tearing in lower limbs; tensive and pinching, in loins and above hips at noon when walking and standing; tensive, in small of back; bruised, in l. side of sacrum on stooping and on rising; bruised and paralytic, in joints of sacrum and knee on moving after rising from a seat.

Extremities.—Nails blue on account of coldness (Nux v.). Stretching. Painful lameness. Trembling, with anxiety at heart and inclination to faint. (Twitching, with sweat, then vertigo and much drinking.) Tearing in extensor muscles when sitting. Electric shocks in knee and elbow, then bruised pain. Pain as from fatigue; (as if the bed were hard, in those upon which he lies); arthritic, in deltoid, upper arm and knee. Drawing pain; when walking, > night by continuing to walk. Spasmodic drawing above joints on moving. Weakness. Stiffness, < forenoon and after standing; S. and insensibility. Falling asleep; of arms and feet even when lying. Paralysis.

Upper Extremities.—Sticking in r. axilla extending to elbow. Pain in r. axilla.

Shoulder.—Sticking in l. joint; in r., with tensive pain, the S. extends to back, impeding movement, the pain > pressure, < hawking and coughing, even respiration is painful, after removal of pressure there is burning in skin. A single cutting on it. Pain; in r. joint; during rainy weather, and in arms, all symptoms > warm weather and a dose of Rhus; extending to head like lightning, then loss of vision.

Arm.—Trembling on taking hold of anything. (Twitching.) Pain as if beaten in r. after a little effort; paralytic, with difficulty in raising them. Sensation as if too full and swollen. Weakness, and of hands. Stiffness in muscles of l., with drawing; S. of muscles of l., with numbness and pain. Numbness of r.; with heaviness. Paralytic feeling in r.

Upper Arm.—Smarting on inner side as from sore flesh. Pain in muscles of r.; in muscles of l. then r.; paralytic bruised, in l. on stretching it; drawing downward, in middle of l. humerus, as if sore from lying on it.

Drawing pain in bend of elbow on flexing it, it seems swollen so that it cannot be completely flexed, with paralytic feeling in arm. Pain in middle of l. forearm as if bones were pressed together. Jerking in r. wrist and towards elbow. Hands fall asleep. Crawling in hands as if falling asleep.

Fingers.—Pain in bones of second phalanges on grasping anything; P. in thumb-joint as if dislocated; tense, in middle on motion; burning-itching, in first phalanx of little, as if it had been frozen. Rigid, insensible. Falling asleep.

Lower Extremities.—Tottering gait. Heaviness. Lameness in r. hip, then also in l., so that walking was difficult.

Thigh.—Rhythmical twitching in large external muscle when sitting and standing, recurred after walking. Cramplike pain in T. or calf if he supports himself less upon that foot when standing. Pain as if broken when sitting; rheumatic drawing P. in muscles when standing. Cramplike drawing in upper gluteals when standing. Weakness, and in knees; and in hips, with aching as if lame.

Knee.—Cracking. Painful jerking in r. Raised high up every quarter or half hour in afternoon, > evening on lying down. (Sticking, and in ankle.) Single cutting. Bruised pain on descending stairs. Spasmodic drawing pain from hollow of r. into thigh when standing. Drawing at times when standing, walking or sitting. Tension in hollow when standing and walking. Cold sore sensation externally. Heaviness of K. and feet when walking, with clumsiness.

Leg.—Cramp in calves (Cupr., Rhus l.); in outer part of calves in evening after walking and jumping. Tearing in muscles of l.; extending downward in tibia. Pain, and in ankles; in bone below knee as if broken when stepping upon it; in calves and tibia as if they would break down. Crawling, a painful surging. Heaviness; in morning, as if paralysis impended. Stiffness in calf, with drawing; S. in r. calf, with pain.

Ankle.—Sprained pain in evening when walking, when previously while sitting the soles had been stretched backward, so that they rested upon backs of toes. Pressure in r.; P. as if bones were pressed.

Foot.—Sudden swelling. Jerking in the weak foot when standing. Cramp. Sticking in a corn on l. when sitting. Cramplike pain on stretching it. Pain in corns; sore, in corn on raising foot, so that he stood only on the toes, in evening; in r. as if a plug were pushed upward on tarsal and metatarsal bone of little toe; as from fatigue, as if stones were tied upon them, < knees, > motion. Painful drawing transversely through joints when sitting. Burning itching deep internally under l. heel.

Toes.—Stinging in r. when standing; in great; in r. great, with burning. Tensive pain in external tendons on walking.

Skin.—Whole body pale. Desquamation. Red eruption about mouth and on chin; copper red, about mouth and chin. Red spots on nose, next day vesicles close together on nose. Rash on cheeks, with pain in face; rash (only about joints?) itching when warm, after scratching burning and hives as from stinging nettles. Painful tetter in various places; (dry T. between thumb and index). Red pimples on back of fingers, between second and third joints; painful P. on lower jaw, and on touch constricting pain, changing to a pustule, with inflamed areola. Eruption like the itch. Burning blisters like anthrax on l. thigh, elevated pustules with depressed tips, with dark red swollen areola, with tensive pain when walking, next day burning sticking when walking.

Stinging on throat and chest, > stroking (with redness and elevations like urticaria, which is noticed only on touch). Tension on forehead, with feeling as if it were difficult to move and a pressure. Sensitiveness, pain in every part on which he lies. Crawling on hands and fingers.

Itching on forehead; hollows of knees; great toe; (face); (here and there); shoulders, back, face, arms and fingers, with burning and shivering; palmar surface of l. middle finger and ball of thumb, with biting and stinging; legs, on rubbing painful pimples in skin; arms and legs, as if eruption would appear; as if pimples would appear here and there on face and behind ears, with sore sensation behind ears. Corroding itching; on inner side of wrist. Biting itching, with crawling, beneath lobule of r. ear; in calves when standing. Crawling itching on various parts of face, rather biting than stinging, then red pimples with hard, red, elevated margins, then brown tips, filled with yellow pus, when fully developed sore to touch.

Sleep.—Yawning; in morning; in morning, with stretching, with weakness and bruised feeling in joints as if he had not slept enough; after midday nap, with stretching; in evening; in evening, with stretching, weariness and sleepiness; with lachrymation; causing roaring in ears. Sleepiness at noon, so that the head nods, and when making an effort to talk the lids close and thoughts vanish; S. < afternoon; with starting up preventing sleep, then febrile attack. Falls asleep in afternoon when reading; when sitting, with partial consciousness. Sleeps with arms over head. Sleep heavy, dreamy; S. long, interrupted; stupefied; stupefying, a waking sopor; (too sound).

Sleeplessness; till midnight from mental activity, with heat and tossing about; with constant moving, after a while knees began to be cold, at 10 o'clock drawing in legs, then cold creeping as from snow-water, from knees to feet, with restlessness till 3 o'clock, only two hours of restless sleep in morning. Late falling asleep; on account of cold feet. Restless sleep; from 12 till 3 o'clock, then pain in shoulder. Whining in sleep. Sleep interrupted by anxiety and emotional disturbances, with complaints that the blood burns in the veins, < head, and of a spasm rising from chest to throat, with special heat of head and hands, the heat and anxiety > open air, then yawning. Frequent waking, with pain in forehead and temples and heaviness of head; (waking at night, with chillily trembling of r. arm).

Dreams; confused; indistinct, and waking early; of hunting; quarrelsome; frightful, then vomiting of tenacious green mucus; vivid, of robbers, he woke in fright and then believed that the dream was a reality; that he was violently pursued; anxious, for instance, that a dog was biting him and he could not get away; fatiguing, of climbing, jumping, fear of being pursued by armed men, then weakness in morning on waking, with heaviness of head and limbs; heavy (of difficult pushing through a narrow, low, dark cleft in a rock), with anxiety and sweat.

Fever.—Chilliness; in morning when dressing; in morning, with thirst, and weakness of limbs, < thighs; with rigidity; creeping; running from head to toes, with thirst; alternating with heat and sweat; alternations of C. and heat, with vertigo, anxiety and nausea. Shivering; all day, with smarting in skin; all day, with drawing pain in neck and back; in morning; afternoon; evening; before vomiting; after drinking, with gooseflesh; from every draught of air, with painful drawing through back, shoulders and arms; with redness and heat of face; with horripilation, for example, in face; waking from sleep, with cold feet and drawing up of legs; in back and arms; in back and arms, with warmth of lower limbs; over back, shoulders and arms all day; in limbs, < shoulders and arms, as if cold air streamed through the bones.

Cold skin (Camph., Sec. c.). Coldness of head; then heat; < sinicupit, in vertex and feet; creeping, < vertex; with heat of it and with sensitiveness of hair; as from a cold wind through it. Face cold, distorted, deathlike (Camph.). Coldness over back (Sec. c.); then heat in it; alternating with heat in it; extending into arms several times; creeping. Cold limbs; upper; with drawing pain in them; arms on raising them. Cold hands (China, Ipec., etc.); before vomiting, after vomiting hot hands with orgasm of blood. Cold hands and feet after breakfast; in evening; preventing sleep till 3 A.M. Cold feet, with hot red cheeks and contracted pupils; (cold feet in afternoon when walking in melting snow, with moist feeling in them, in evening cramplike pain in them when walking); as if cold water ran about in them, with trembling; soles in evening in bed, forcing him to rise and walk about; to knees, as from a cold wind, waking him after midnight, > rubbing long.

Heat; every day; daily before midnight; in evening in bed, with sweat; then sweat, the room seemed obscure, could not tolerate the daylight nor hold up his head, but was forced to press it against the chest; with pale face and sweat; internal, yet he refuses drink. (Burning in skin beneath sweat.) Heat of head; sinicupit, changing to warm then cold sweat on forehead. Heat of face; on and above red of upper lip; in morning in bed; (with redness and constant laughing); and of hands, with redness of face, indifferent mood, caring only for the things just about him, and tendency to start; and in eyes, as from hot steam, with redness of cheeks. Heat in region of scapulae; H. streaming up back into occiput; in back as if sweat would break out in evening when walking slowly in open air. Hands hot, afterwards cold. Heat extending into tips of fingers and toes, with crawling. Burning in malleoli; in tibiae in evening as if he had come from too great cold.

Sweat in evening when he wishes to sleep; at night; towards morning; in morning, < face, face inclined to sweat even during the day; in sleep; on motion. Cold sweat (Ant. t., Ars., China, Ip., Sec. c.); on forehead; on forehead with the evacuation; on forehead on rising from a seat; on head and chest. Sour sweat. Of bitter odor towards morning. Sweat on hands; (face and axillae when walking).

Clinical.—It has been prescribed for congestive chills, which commence with coldness in the abdomen, cold breath, terrible vomiting and diarrhoea, with cold sweat, threatening collapse.

Veratrum Viride.

A tincture is made of the fresh root.

General Action.—It is a powerful respiratory poison, producing asphyxia; it paralyzes the heart and vasomotor centres and causes a low temperature (cold sweat and collapse). In large doses it produces convulsions. It excites vomiting, but not purging unless given in toxic doses.

Allics.—Bell., Hyos., Coccul., Ferr., Phos.

Generalities.—Tremor. Inability to control voluntary muscles. Spasm, with shrieks, body bent backward, arm rigid and thrown over head, face dark blue, breathing suspended, spasm repeated. Pains flying about in temple and l. trochanter major; in second joint of r. index, then in r. angle of lower jaw, then in l. heel, then in middle of l. neck, then in r. heel and l. knee; in l. humerus just above elbow, soon changing to region of l. nipple, then to middle of l. humerus, then to l. shoulder-joint, > 9 P.M. by eating; in different parts between 5 and 6 P.M., in l. chest, r. shoulder over clavicle, in head of l. tibia and three or four inches above the same, in tendons of r. popliteal space, in outside of r. arm and l. ulna, r. wrist, head of l. radius, back of first joint of l. middle finger and second phalanx of l. great toe. Distress.

Clothes would not fit me, seemed as if they scratched me somewhere and I could not relieve myself, constant twitching of different parts from trying to relieve the rubbing sensation; < sitting. Obligated to grasp the rails for support when walking. Muscular action interrupted after walking or jumping. Weakness; at 1 P.M., with trembling; with heavy pain in head; sudden. Faintness; on rising suddenly from reclining, with pallor. Stiffness of voluntary muscles, < temporal and extensors of head. Aggravation in morning on waking; in afternoon and evening. Amelioration from hot, strong coffee.

Clinical.—Inflammatory rheumatism. Effects of sunstroke. Most violent convulsions; epilepsy; hysteria; hystero-epilepsy; chorea, with violent congestion. Threatening tetanus. Has been used for poisoning by opium.

Mind.—Delirious; and quarrelsome, striking and kicking with r. hand and foot (Hyosc.), at times these movements appeared involuntary, the delirium became happy and comical. Fear of death. Thought it probable that I should die, but was not alarmed. Depression and prostration. Stupor when not vomiting. Lethargy between the vomiting spells, with slow and difficult respiration. Unconsciousness.

Clinical.—Furious delirium, with screaming, howling and striking. Delirium, with incessant muttering, dilated pupils, red streak down the tongue, etc.

Head.—Aching; at 4 P.M.; with full, heavy feeling in eyes; (with vomiting every ten or fifteen minutes); which stopped at temples and took a diagonal course across head; (central congestive), < noise and motion; heavy, with occasional painful throbbing in temples; heavy, at 7 P.M., with weakness, < lower limbs. Confusion; in afternoon and evening. Fulness in morning, with heaviness; (F. and congested feeling, with pain in forehead and nausea). Queer feeling. Vertigo; in morning on rising (Phos.); in morning, > closing eyes and resting head, with photophobia (Bell.); on rising from bed, with vomiting (Coecul.); on rising from a seat or bed; with nausea (Coecul.); with nausea, then heat of surface; in attacks, with nausea and pain in bowels.

Forehead.—Aching; over eyes; over r. eye; in morning on waking, > stool; at 6 P.M., with cold hands and feet, skin of head hot and moist; with contractive pain in skin of forehead; with vomiting and hiccup; with cold hands and feet; extending on l. side to occiput, all day after 1 P.M., < lying, especially lying on occiput; numb, constricted, pressing back to ears, sensation as if membrana tympani would break; drawing, at 2 P.M. Sharp drawing over l. eye, with contracted feeling in skin of forehead. Indescribable sensation rising towards crown and grasping, as it were, vertex and occiput, at night after a short sleep. Heaviness; over l. eye at 2 P.M. on stooping.

Neuralgic pains in temples; in r. temple close to eye at 10 A.M. Pain in r. temple and over r. eye and in r. malar-bone just under eye; in r. mastoid process; in l. side of head; at junction of l. parietal and temporal bones in forenoon; in l. side extending backward; in l. side back to temple; in l. side to temple in forenoon; in occiput.

Clinical.—Intense congestive headache, with throbbing stupefaction, double vision, numbness of the limbs, nausea, vomiting, etc. Cerebral apoplexy. Indicated in cerebral hyperæmia. Cerebro-spinal meningitis.

Eyes.—Glassy. Shooting in l., stopping suddenly. Pain in r.; in l. when riding in an omnibus; with cold feet. Lachrymation; with full feeling in lids as if he had cried much. Pupils dilated (Bell., etc.). Heaviness of lids, with soreness and sleepiness. Aching in upper part of r. orbit; over r. eye gradually extending to forehead. Dim vision; on becoming erect, with partial syncope; < while vomiting; (with green circles around gaslight). Vision impaired; dazzling; unsteady; of a green circle around candle (Phos.), which, as vertigo came on and I closed eyes, turned to red. Blindness if he attempted to walk, with faintness.

Ears.—Fulness in l., with audible beating in carotid. Ringing in r. at 2 P.M., moving quickly makes me deaf. Humming, with sensitiveness to noise, ears feel cold, with spells of deafness. (Noise.)

Clinical.—Acute inflammation in the middle ear (Ferr. phos.).

Nose.—Pinched and blue at 2 P.M. Catarrh and sneezing. Profuse mucus at 2 P.M., next day at 1 P.M.

Face.—Flushed (Bell.). Pale; with cadaverous look; and gray. Blue; and hippocratic. Sunken. Stinging in r. jugum malar at night. Lips and mouth dry all day; lips dry, with thick mucus in mouth. Jaws rigid. Pain in r. angle of lower jaw.

Mouth.—Tongue feels scalded; feels scalded, red in centre, coated yellow at base; feels scalded, with red streak in centre, coated yellow; coated yellow along centre in morning; (coated yellow, < along base and centre); red on edges, grayish from tip half way back, black part gray, with red spots of the size of a pin's head, strawberry tongue; bleached; bleached at centre and tip in morning, with red edges; white in centre, bright red at tip and edges. Speech lost; almost lost. Burning, and in throat; acrid B. Salivation; at 2 P.M., next day at 1 P.M. Taste flat in morning; flat, bitter in morning; bitterish, reminding one of the odor of spermatie fluid; (bitter to food); like lime-water to water.

Clinical.—The dry, red stripe through the centre of the tongue, especially when associated with a bloated, livid face, seems quite characteristic.

Throat.—Submaxillary glands swollen, sore to touch. Burning; and in œsophagus and stomach. Dryness causing short, dry cough; D. and heat in T. and fauces, which finally reached stomach. Numbness of fauces. Symptoms of globus hystericus. Inability to swallow. Sensation of a ball in œsophagus; rising as far as top of sternum, as from a gradual tonic contraction of stomach. Burning pain along œsophagus, with inclination to swallow.

Clinical.—Acute inflammation of the œsophagus, with fiery burning pains.

Stomach.—Ravenous appetite in morning on waking; at noon. Aversion to food, and after eating a little supper dyspepsia, partially > a glass of whisky. Thirst in morning after rising, with nausea; T. temporarily > drinking a little. Eructations of wind; acrid, sour E. Hiccough; with spasms of upper part of œsophagus at 2 P.M., next day at 1 P.M.; with salivation and discharge of mucus from stomach and nose. Nausea; > eating; > empty eructations; with desire for stool; with desire for stool, some wind passed but not much faeces; with drawing pain in lower part of chest. Retching; with pain; ineffectual.

Vomiting; in morning on rising; with cold sweat (Verat. alb.); with running from nose and eyes; with salivation and sweat; with collapse; with pain and weakness; without effort or nausea; without nausea, but with a sense of rising in œsophagus, which might be compared to the rumination of animals, feeling as if muscular fibres of stomach contracted gradually and steadily upon its contents until they were expelled, the diaphragm and abdominal muscles remaining inactive; of bile; of bile and then of mucus and dark blood, then retching, moaning and fear of death, > Ars.; white, ropy mucus; thick, glairy mucus and water; dinner, then thick, glairy mucus; food, mucus, etc.; food and contents of stomach, then glairy mucus; (food if ever so little is taken).

Spasm, and in respiratory organs. Cramp as if muscles were contracting, > bending forward, then pain in abdomen as if retracted. Twisting tearing, < motion. Neuralgic pains in cardiac portion at 7 P.M. Excruciating pain in lower part, with feeling as if the warm tea, etc., that I took to provoke vomiting went under the pain increasing the constriction; sharp P. in epigastric and umbilical regions at 11 A.M., passing down to pubes; sharp flying, in epigastric and umbilical regions in evening. Pain in epigastrum; at 9 P.M. Feeling in epigastrum as if a full dose of calomel were operating. Distress; in epigastrum, with sickness. Tightness. Feeling as if slowly contract-and forcing contents into œsophagus, causing sensation of a ball rising to top of sternum. Sensation of waves rising into chest at night on waking. Uneasiness; in epigastrium. Dyspepsia. Glow.

Abdomen.—Flatulence. Gripping, with pain over epigastrium. Pain; in morning; at 2 and 6 P.M.; with flatulence; running down into scrotum; in region of gall-bladder at 8 P.M., next day at 8 A.M. Soreness across A.

Umbilical Region.—Cutting at 10 A.M., with rumbling in bowels and soft stool, at 4 P.M. pain and rumbling, at 5 P.M., with neuralgic pain in l. groin, at 8 P.M. pain in umbilicus, next day by spells shooting at 8 A.M. and noon, at 1 P.M. distress in U. region with desire for stool, at 10 P.M. mushy stool, then aching in rectum. Neuralgia in r. side passing to groin in evening. Pain; below navel; at 10 A.M., with heavy pain in region of gall-bladder; at 2 P.M.; drawing, at 11 A.M. and noon.

Hypogastrium.—(Cutting.) Pain; just above pelvis all day, with soreness.

Clinical.—Acute pelvic cellulitis and peritonitis.

Rectum and Anus.—Aching in R. after stool. Tenesmus at 6.30 A.M., waking him, soft stool, stringy and doughy, and at 7.30 stool of same consistence but with less tenesmus; sudden T. at 1 P.M. when riding, doubling me up, then an offensive, forcible, watery stool in one gush, then ineffectual desire and all the afternoon pain in abdomen. (Frequent desire preceded and followed by cutting in rectum); ineffectual D., with weakness and faintness. Crawling as of a worm in anus.

Stool.—Diarrhœa copious, offensive, with pale face, preceded by tenesmus and burning in anus; frequent D., with tenesmus, felt better after each stool; frequent, with tenesmus and burning, tenesmus > stool, next day constipation. Soft, frequent; S., large, bright-colored, prompt and sooner after rising than usual; S. and stringy, but seemed to stick in sphincter; alternately S. and hard every two hours, the soft one was doughy, stringy and large, the hard one was of medium size and followed by pain. Copious, free, light-colored. Doughy and hard to expel, twice in one day, tenesmus with the second one.

Urinary and Genital Organs.—Smarting in urethra on urinating. Urine very clear; U. increased; scanty; turbid, dark, with reddish sediment, covered with a scum. Painful testicles; l.; in morning, < l.; in evening; < l., sometimes shooting up cord into abdomen.

Clinical.—Rigid os during labor, with full bounding pulse, congested head, etc. Pelvic congestions, with tenderness, fever, etc. Puerperal fever, puerperal convulsions. Suppressed menses of plethoric women, with intense congestion of the head, sometimes with opisthotonos. Dysmenorrhœa, with most violent suffering, congested head or convulsions.

Respiratory Organs.—Tickling spasmodic cough in evening, coming from just above sternum. Breathing difficult (Ferr., etc.); convulsive, almost to suffocation (Verat. alb., Ferr., Phos.); B. heavy, almost stertorous; slow; short. Asphyxiated feeling when retching.

Clinical.—Bronchitis, with great dyspnoea, livid face, sometimes with cold extremities, irregular heart, cold sweat. Pneumonia; pulse full, hard, great difficulty of breathing, with throbbing headache, livid face, dry tongue, etc. Intense pulmonary congestion, with great arterial excitement, dyspnoea; it is generally indicated before hepatization has taken place. Occasionally useful in pleurisy.

Chest.—Feeling of dislocation in l. side in afternoon when walking (r., l.). Pain; below l. nipple; (in region of heart); about l. nipple in afternoon; most severe over front, with occasional twitchings in small intestines; burning, under sternum, in region of heart, at 2, 3 and 6 P.M. Constriction after vomiting, with anguish. Stricture. (Oppression.) Congestion of blood in lungs. Throbbing in r. side.

Heart.—Neuralgic pain in region and cardiac portion at 5 P.M. Pricking in region at noon and at 3 P.M. Hot pain in region at 3 P.M. Burning distress in region at 1 P.M. Action slow; (and weak).

Clinical.—Pericarditis and endocarditis. Hypertrophy. Valvular insufficiency.

Pulse.—Rapid on least exertion; R., full and strong; and irregular; and feeble; then slow. Slow; with sinking sensation about heart; and full, intermitting every sixth or seventh beat; and small, creeping; and weak; and weak, soft; and weak, small, soft. (Throbbing in carotids.) Soft; and irregular. Scarcely perceptible. Imperceptible.

Neck.—Pain in middle of l. side; in N. and arms; nape and arms, almost impossible to hold head up at 1 P.M.; at 2 P.M., < motion; at 4 P.M., and in arms; in r. sterno-mastoid near process in evening; in r. side about middle of sterno-mastoid, then itching in corresponding place on l. side. Feeling as if cords of nape were loose.

Back.—Pain. Weakness. Thrilling quivering about an inch to left of dorsal vertebrae, four inches below scapula in evening, on rising from reclining it changed into aching, later crawling with the thrilling. Pain in r. side of seventh vertebra; on r. side of dorsal spine; in l. scapula; in r. scapula in afternoon and evening; in bone of r. scapula, with darting from r. clavicle to scapula; in r. side of sacrum where it unites with pelvis.

Extremities.—Hands and feet shrivelled, as if they had been long in water. Cramplike sensation in gastrocnemii, with inability to exert them, repeated next day in G. and muscles of forearm, later sometimes calf, sometimes forearm and sometimes extensors of knees were affected.

Pain in condyles of legs and arms; middle of r. tibia and r. shoulder; l. instep and top of l. shoulder above clavicle and in l. heel; knees and elbow, generally about condyles; back part of second joint of r. middle finger and in second phalanx of r. great toe; l. elbow, lower third of l. tibia, < inner malleolus; knees, l. tibia above inner malleolus, above l. elbow and l. trochanter major; r. trochanter major, external condyle of l. humerus, l. radius and ulna, middle of r. tibia, l. ankle internally and externally; outside of middle of l. leg, in l. radius below elbow, in middle of l. femur, in outside muscles, and in l. trochanter; joints, < l. outer ankle; in forenoon in l. inner malleolus, l. great trochanter, l. shoulder and inner condyle of l. tibia; middle of r. tibia, then in muscles of l. thigh and in muscles above ridge of l. scapula; above l. elbow, rose to middle of humerus, then to shoulder-joint, then went to l. instep and outside of l. ankle, then to r. ankle; r. knee, about inner condyle of femur, soon extended to inner middle of thigh, wandered to front of thigh and above knee, then aching in inner condyle of l. femur, also inner condyle of l. humerus and l. instep, then settles in outside of r.

ankle; radial condyle of l. humerus and outer side of l. ankle, with shuddering; joints in morning on waking, till he fell asleep again, with shuddering, without chilliness, next morning woke with the shuddering and with throbbing aching in r. knee on which he was lying.

Thrilling aching in l. radius below elbow, then in inner condyle of r. femur, then in outer condyle of l. femur. Drawing pains in calves and r. elbow in evening. Feeling of clumsiness. Weakness; and stiffness; of gastrocnemii, then of all muscles of forearm.

Upper Extremities.—L. shoulder painful; in forenoon; towards back before going to bed; in upper part at night after going to bed; on top, in muscles above scapular ridge at night. Thrilling or shuddering in region of l. shoulder. Pain in arms at 11 A.M.; arms on holding something in hand; inner condyle of l. humerus; outer condyle of l. humerus in forenoon; outer condyle of l. humerus at night; humerus above elbow at night; at end of r. elbow; r. elbow, going to scapula, when riding in an omnibus; carpal end of r. ulna; middle of l. ulna in morning; r. ulna, two inches above wrist, and in third phalanx of r. index, in forenoon; r. pisiform bone in morning; second phalanx of r. thumb in afternoon and evening; sudden, in first joint of r. ring finger at night before going to bed; pulsating, in first joint of r. middle finger.

Knee.—Sprained pain at inner condyle of l. femur when walking, with pain in second phalanx of l. great toe. Pain in tendons about popliteal space, then in l. instep and in middle of r. tibia; in r. knee, l. inner malleolus, etc., in morning; in r. K. and ankle in morning on waking; sometimes simultaneous, sometimes alternate, at night. Throbbing aching on going to bed; in r., on which he was lying, in morning on waking, > turning on l. side and rubbing, it then appeared in l. knee, then in r., > dressing, then returned, pains are apt to come when the limb is in a constrained position.

Leg.—Cramps; in calves in morning, waking him; tendency to C. on touch or motion. Spasmodic contraction of muscles. Pain in head of l. fibula; and inner condyle of l. tibia; P. about middle of l. tibia; lower third of l. tibia; top of lower third of l. tibia, then in lower part of l. calf; r. tibia and ankle in afternoon; about middle of l. tibia when sitting; back of r. leg, two or three inches above ankle, < moving great toe. Drawing in r. calf when walking. Paralyzed sensation in extensors of feet.

Dislocated feeling in r. ankle on walking. Sharp pain about middle of l. instep towards inside. Aching inside in bend of l. foot at 9 P.M. when eating; r. side of l. sole at night when lying on r. side; in l. instep on stretching foot; second phalanx of l. great toe.

Skin.—Mortification of arm (after compound fracture of humerus). Peculiar sensation. Itching below r. corner of mouth; in malar prominence; line between r. ala nasi and face; first joint of l. thumb, l. ala nasi, l. cartilage of nose, lip under l. ala nasi, in l. ear; r. mastoid process and middle of inside of l. thigh; l. malar prominence in morning; middle of l. brow on going to bed; l. malar prominence, with crawling. Itching at night in r. malar region; about middle of l. sterno-mastoid; on back of first joint of l. index and in corresponding joint of next finger. Itching at night in bed, r. brow, r. ala nasi and l. malar prominence; about line of ala nasi and cheek; l. malar prominence, orifice of l. ear and l. groin; r., then l. ala nasi; r. ala nasi, then stinging in r. jugum of malar, > rubbing, then l. in l. ala nasi; r. ala nasi when lying on r. side, changing to l. ala when he turned to l. side.

Clinical.—Erysipelas; sometimes in the first stage of phlegmonous E. Erysipelas of the head and face, with the peculiar tongue, delirium, etc.

Sleep.—Sleepiness. Little sleep; with restlessness. Restless, with frightful dreams of people drowning. Dreaming much; D. of water; of water, fishing, etc.; frightful, of being on the water; odd, in which the Atlantic figured largely; in which he was continually provoked and baffled.

Fever.—Chilliness, in morning after rising; with sweat; with cold sweat on limbs. Agues. Shuddering; towards morning; and hands and feet cold and numb, a cold numb feeling crept up arms and legs, finally the whole body felt as if enveloped in cold damp clothing and I became prostrate; on waking S. in r., then l. shoulder, then in chest extending into abdomen. Cold skin; with clammy sweat. Cold limbs; as far as knees and elbows; hands and feet; covered with clammy sweat.

Heat of body, with cold sweat on forehead; H. of skin, then dizziness, nausea and coldness; (burning in head, with flushed face). Sweat; with weakness; cold; cold, on hands and face; cold, clammy, on brow.

Verbascum.

A tincture is made of the fresh plant, Verbascum Thapsus, L. (the mullein).

Generalities.—Narcotic effects. Sinking sensation.

Mind.—Excited fantasies, especially of a sensual nature. Joyfulness, with laughter. Fretfulness, with inclination to work and satisfaction in having people about him and in talking with them. Anxiety all day, > towards evening. Depression all day, all his efforts and hopes seem unavailing. Disinclination for work. Indifference. Distraction. Memory diminished. When writing, tendency to omit words or insert wrong ones in their places, or to leave out letters in well-known words.

Head.—Beumbing pain, rather external, < forehead; stupefying P., < sides of forehead. Tingling when walking. Confusion: with confined sensation: as if everything would press out at forehead. Heaviness; with vertigo, somewhat pleasurable. Vertigo in attack, when head is supported by pressure on l. cheek; sudden V., as from pressure upon middle of head.

Forehead.—Sticking outward in l. eminence; intermittent S. in l. side; intermittent, deep between l. eminence and parietal eminence. Prickling in l. sinus. Slow hammering in l. eminence. Pain; < over r. eye; sharp, in r. eminence: extending outward, > stooping; intermittent P. and beating near l. eminence; stupefying, deep in r. eminence on going from the cold into warmth; more pressing than tearing above l. orbit. Pressure outward, < between brows; benumbing P. inward in l. side of bone. Benumbing drawing in l. eminence in a draught of air.

Temples.—Sticking jerking externally in l., then r. Benumbing stitches above r.; deep in r. when eating, < pressure, after a few hours it extended like a tearing into r. upper teeth. Sensation as if pinched together with pincers; in articular eminences of bone. Prickling in l., with burning. Pain in r.; in articular eminence of bone in front of l. ear; in articular eminence of bone, < biting teeth together. Pressure forward in l.

Vertex.—Pressing pain on it. Tension in l. side, gradually becoming a sharp pressure, at the same time l. ramus of lower jaw seems pressed against upper.

Sides.—Sticking extending forward through l. hemisphere of brain; intermittent S. behind l. eminence. Tearing in r. half of brain. Pain extending outward in r. half of brain; jerking P. in l. half of brain; benumbing, in l. and in l. cheek.

Occiput.—Sticking in l. side. Pain; in r. protuberance.

Eyes.—Heat, with contracted sensation in orbits. Pupils dilated. Dimness of vision, watery, increase of shortsightedness, objects seem indistinct and enlarged.

Ears.—Tearing stitch in l. when eating; in front of l., extending downward. Tearing in r.; in l., extending inward, with drawing. Sensation as if l. would be drawn inward. Sudden pressure behind r., with stitches. Feeling of deafness in l. Stopped sensation in l., then r.; in ears, nose and larynx when reading aloud, not affecting hearing.

Clinical.—Deafness; feeling as though the ears were stopped (this very ancient use of the mullein has been lately revived in the local use of "mullein oil." See current literature).

Nose.—Coryza, with watery, bland discharge. Thick tenacious mucus in posterior nares, causing constant inclination to hawk, could raise but little.

Face.—Pallid. Sticking in l. zygomatic arch; intermittent, in l. zygomatic process. Pressure on r. malar-bone; on l. zygomatic arch as far as ear, during the day, in evening before going to bed and in morning on waking, < pressure; benumbing, intermittent, on upper margin of l. zygomatic process (compare Plat.). Tension in integuments of chin, masseter muscles and throat, but jaws can be moved easily; in l. zygomatic process, articular elevation of temporal bone and frontal eminence on going into open air and in a draught of air. Pinching on r. side of lower jaw. Pressure in l. joint of jaw, involving whole cheek, becoming on pressure a benumbing tension.

Clinical.—Facial neuralgia; the pains tend to recur periodically, they feel like the crushing of tongs, benumbing, sometimes lightning-like, particularly beginning in the malar-bone and articulation of jaw, < change of temperature, pressure, or any motion of the muscles of the face. Infraorbital and supraorbital neuralgia.

Mouth.—Tearing in r. large lower molars; intermittent, in l. small lower molars. Tongue brown at root in morning on rising and in forenoon; brown at root in forenoon, with flat, nauseous taste; coated brownish-yellow in morning, with flat taste and offensive breath; brownish-yellow after dinner, coated with tenacious mucus. (Collection of salt water.) Flat taste some time after a meal.

Stomach.—Hunger without appetite through the day, nothing is relished, yet he wishes to eat. Unquenchable thirst. Eructations of tasteless liquid; empty E.; bitter, qualmish. Hiccough. Pressure. Emptiness in pit, which disappeared with rumbling below l. ribs.

Abdomen.—Tympanitic, then rumbling beneath l. ribs, which caused loud eructations. Tearing sticking extending downward; intermittent S. in back part between r. loin and spine. Gripping as from incarcerated flatus; cutting G., with eructations; cutting G. here and there, rising towards ribs, where it becomes seated. Pain extending low down, causing spasmodic contraction of sphincter ani and desire for stool. Rumbling in l. hypochondrium, with gurgling. Sticking deep in l. side where ribs cease. Sticking pinching beneath r. hypochondrium. Umbilical region, stitches round to back and in dorsal vertebrae, on deep inspiration and on stooping; intermittent stitches in r. side; intermittent stitches in l. side above navel; intermittent stitches in l. side beneath navel, < bending forward after eating; sensation as if intestines were adherent to wall and were being torn away, < pressure; pressure as from a stone, < stooping; constriction. Gurgling in hypogastrium. Sticking deep in r. side above pubis.

Stool.—Soft; with straining. Scanty and like sheep-dung, with pressure. Thick, pasty, nearly black. Omitted.

Urinary Organs.—Frequent micturition, copious, afterwards scanty. Frequent desire, with scanty discharge; with copious discharge.

Clinical.—Constant dribbling of urine. Nocturnal enuresis.

Sexual Organs.—Desire, with lascivious fancies. Emissions at night; without lascivious dream; in morning after waking and falling asleep again, with erratic dreams.

Respiratory Organs.—Hoarseness on reading aloud.

Chest.—Sticking in l. in middle axillary line; in next to last rib where it passes into the cartilage, > pressure, but returning; beneath l. nipple on inspiration, whereby another deep inspiration was caused; intermittent, near l. side of ensiform cartilage; benumbing, taking away the breath, in region of first and second costal cartilages. Intermittent, benumbing cutting near l. side of ensiform cartilage, below last ribs. Sharp pressure beneath l. nipple. Pain and oppression, with disinclination to frequent breathing. Tension in evening as soon as he lay down, with stitches in region of heart.

Clinical.—A popular remedy for asthma and chronic coughs.

Pulse.—Reduced in number, and especially in force. Back.—Sticking in last dorsal vertebra on sitting bent over; intermittent, in l. scapula.

Extremities.—Stretching. Pain on top of shoulder, pressing rather than tearing, > motion. Cramplike pressure at l. elbow, extending into forearm. Tearing downward in shaft of l. ulna. Tensive pain in l. wrist. Stitches like a sprain (or paralysis) where carpal bone of thumb articulates with radius. Sticking in external condyle of palm; between metacarpal bones of r. thumb and index; tearing, in palm. Cramplike pressure now in r., now in l. metacarpus on moving arm. Pain on back of r. hand, pressing rather than tearing. Bruised pain on outer side of metacarpal bones of little fingers on touch. Sticking in proximal phalanx of l. thumb; tearing, through l. little finger; intermittent, in middle joint of index; intermittent, in distal phalanx of index, on motion the pain extended into proximal joint. Cramplike pressure in proximal phalanx of r. thumb, > motion. Paralytic drawing in l. index. Paralytic pain in l. fingers, < metacarpal joints. Insensibility of thumb (from application of juice).

Lower Extremities.—Tottering in open air. Weariness. Heaviness on ascending and descending stairs. Stitches above l. patella on stepping. Cramplike pain in muscles of r. thigh when walking in open air; in muscles above r. knee when sitting and standing. Drawing pressing from middle of r. thigh to knee when sitting. Paralytic pain on inner side of r. thigh when leg is drawn up in sitting, on treading sticking extending towards knee. Knees tremble. Sudden pain through r. knee when standing, sitting and walking. Leg, tearing downward; cramplike pressure on l. near ankle. Weakness in bone of r. when riding r. thigh over l. Intermittent sticking in metatarsal bones of l. great and adjacent toes during rest. Cramplike pressure in r. sole when standing, > walking.

Skin.—Pimple in front of r. ear, with stinging on touch; red, near thyroid cartilage, painful on pressure. Tingling and pricking almost like nettles (from the leaves). Itching, crawling tickling on side of l. middle finger. Itching on forearm.

Sleep.—Yawning and stretching. Sleepiness; in morning after rising, with indolence; irresistible, after dinner. Restless sleep. Sleep only till 4 A.M., filled with dreams of war and corpses, several nights.

Fever.—Coldness over whole body, perceptible externally on hands and feet; cold limbs. Shivering, < from one shoulder to thigh, as if cold water were poured over it.

Vespa.

A tincture is made of live wasps (Vespa crabro).

Generalities.—Trembling, quaking, with chattering of teeth. Nervo-muscular excitement. Stinging piercing deeply, as if a hook were pulled out; sudden S. and burning in cheek waking me at 4 A.M. (after a sting on cheek), with soreness and smarting along lymphatics into neck, cheek swollen and red, maxillary joint stiff and painful, sore feeling ran along gums to tonsil, relief from bathing, two hours later suddenly aroused by suffocation, difficulty in swallowing and renewal of former distress, the symptoms returned in paroxysms, submaxillary and cervical glands of the side became swollen and tender, pains about wound became more constant, were throbbing, smarting and burning, but there was a periodicity about the stinging for more than a month, though the wound suppurated and discharged freely, slight rigors and febrile conditions, < evening.

Sudden tearing. Cutting like electric shocks through all joints, arm, head and face swollen, eyes red and twitching, red lines along absorbents, itching over whole body, insensibility, vomiting, pulse slow, heart's action scarcely perceptible. Pain after sting in region of brows, with inflammation and mortification. Feeling as if dying, at night. Distress. Weakness; with entresis somni, heat especially overpowers him. Faintness; all day, with trembling and nausea.

Mind.—Anxiety. Low-spirited. Insensibility. Unconsciousness, with inability to move.

Eyes.—Injection of r. conjunctiva. Itching of r. lid in evening, with swelling, afterwards pain in lid and ball, erysipelatous inflammation of lid, whole side of face painful and swollen, almost complete chemosis of conjunctiva, it being raised up on the sclerotic membrane, more than half over eye to border of cornea, as if fatty matter were under it, caused by effusion of lymph, an abscess opened upon inside of upper lid about its centre, later the chemosis became reddish.

Clinical.—Inflammation of r. eye, with baggy swelling of conjunctiva.

Ears and Face.—Sticking deep in r. ear. Face livid. Purulent catarrh of middle ears. Face smooth, dark red, bloated. Anxious expression. Face and eyes œdematous, F., mouth and throat appeared as in severe cyananche (after a sting on tongue).

Mouth.—Tongue swollen and tense, swelling below chin, between that and hyoid bone, pain in a point in middle line, three-quarters of an inch from apex; swollen, red, rounded, filled the mouth, immovable, could not speak, only mumbled, swallowing was painful and difficult. Swelling of palate, with inflammation, so preventing respiration that he died; S. of mouth and throat, with burning pain, nausea, vertigo, after two hours fever, delirium, face, neck, arms and chest swollen and shining red, respiration impeded, swallowing difficult, pulse 126, heart's action irregular and tumultuous, cured by Camph. Peculiar taste, a combination of palatal and nasal sensation, as when a nest of wasps is disturbed, < heat.

Throat.—Swelling. Soreness. Heat. Difficulty in swallowing.

Stomach and Abdomen.—Hunger. Thirst. Eructations. Nausea; in evening after coming indoors, with weight in stomach; with faint feeling and trembling. Vomiting, with swelling of head. Cold feeling in stomach. Heat in S. Uneasiness in abdomen.

Urinary and Sexual Organs.—Clinical.—Burning micturition, in women. Valuable in affections of l. ovary, with tenderness, frequent micturition, pain in sacrum, extending up back.

Respiratory Organs.—Hoarseness. Voice lost. Spasm of glottis (after application of diluted ammonia to tongue), face pale, drops of sweat on forehead, arms thrown out to gasp for air, he got out of bed, sank back on bed, face livid, breath and pulse stopped. Dyspnoea. Respiration hurried.

Pulse.—Rapid and small; R. and feeble; R., with violent beating of carotids.

Neck, Back and Extremities.—Pain in l. side of neck, waking her at night, preventing her from turning it to l. side, felt least when lying on back, best on r. side. Pain; in afternoon, > stretching body and throwing stomach forward; cramplike, and in abdomen, doubling him up. Sensitiveness of region. Indigestion, food lies heavy. Goneness.

Abdomen.—Rumbling and darting pains. Darting pains, which settle about navel. Flying pains. Bearing-down pains as during menstruation, with heavy pain over pubes; B. down pain, with drawing pains in anterior muscles of thighs and occasional shooting in ovarian regions. Sensitiveness to pressure, < about umbilicus. Pressure of flatus in l. side. Throbbing pain under l. floating ribs from 11 P.M. till 3 A.M., > hard pressure and walking about the room. Throbbing in l. hypochondrium when lying on l. side. Sticking in spleen in evening, > walking about the room, with sensation as if hot fluid ran through its vessels. Pain in region of spleen causing faintness, > sweat. Crampling pain in hypogastrum during menstruation; sudden C. pain; as before menstruation, < night.

Rectum.—Hæmorrhage of dark red blood during and after stool. Inactivity, no inclination for stool.

Stool.—Watery, profuse, frequent, at menstrual period, with chills and cold sweat rolling off forehead. Constipation; with tenesmus, when bowels moved pain in l. orbital region; desire, with much straining; alternating with diarrhoea. Hard, large, with cutting in rectum and anus; H., large, painful and so difficult that mechanical assistance was necessary; scanty, in balls, difficult; and scanty, with hæmorrhage, with constriction of rectum and anus; and long, large, difficult, having a desire to evacuate, but on attempting feels as if nothing were there, stool slow and only after long straining. Large, difficult, with urging. Irregular. Omitted two days, then hard, with blood and soreness of anus.

Urinary Organs.—Sensation after micturition as if urine continued to flow. Copious urine; in morning, clear, watery, sp. gr. 1019, frequent micturition; every hour in afternoon and evening; at night, and pale, sp. gr. 1021; every hour or two during menses, and clear, light-colored; and watery; in afternoon, watery, clear, micturition frequent. Light-colored urine.

Clinical.—Spasmodic dysuria.

Sexual Organs.—Pain in r. side of epididymis, with swelling; of l. side of E. and l. testicle, with swelling. Emission without dream.

Female.—Leucorrhœa; thick, white and copious; thin, yellowish-white after menses; thin, colorless, except with every stool, when it was thick, white, inodorous, blood-streaked; causing redness, smarting and itching of genitals. Sudden pain in womb and hypogastrium before menstruation. Pain in ovarian region. Congested feeling in pelvic organs, as before menses. Bearing-down pains in pelvic region, with uneasiness; B. down as before menses; as during menses, with heavy aching in sacral region and over pubes; as during menses, with drawing pains in anterior muscles of thighs, every day after 3 P.M., with occasional shooting over ovaries, later the same pains, with nervousness, could not sit or lie still on account of the pains. Menstrual pain, with feeling as if the breath would leave her body and heart would cease to beat. Menses too early, profuse and offensive; too late, scanty, thin, light-colored, lasting but a few hours, with lightness of head, faintness on attempting to sit up; looks like jelly; stains permanently; ceased for several hours, then four large clots of the color of raw beef, and as solid as liver; for two days flow like normal M., but with cramping pain and nervousness.

Clinical.—Dysmenorrhœa, excruciating colic through the uterus and lower part of the abdomen, just preceding menstruation. It is very valuable for after-pains. The uterine pains are like those of Sepia, extending around the pelvis to the uterine region, with sensation of emptiness and goneness, but they are much more violent and become cramplike, sometimes extending down thighs. Membranous dysmenorrhœa. Cramps in the calves always between the menses, < just before the period, with scanty, delayed menstruation, dysmenorrhœa, etc.

Respiratory Organs, Chest and Heart.—Hoarse. Suffocating spells at night. Shooting over l. sixth rib near sternum. In lungs sensation as if muscles of chest failed to act, causing dyspnoea. Heart's action increased.

Neck.—Stiffness, with pain in occiput; S. in nape, with sore feeling.

Back.—Pain as if it would break during menses. Lame and bruised feeling in muscles. Wandering, tired pains in muscles, < l. side. Tired, bruised pain in muscles from point of scapula to wing of ilium, on both sides of spine, > firm pressure. Pain in lumbar region; between l. floating ribs and wing of ilium, > pressure, but must keep moving; in kidney region, < working in laboratory, > pressing across back with arms crossed; in l. loin and l. hypochondrium, causing faintness, > warm sweat though the night was cool; throbbing, in l. loin, < lying down, > walking with cane pressed across back; in back, loins and hypogastrum as if menses were coming on, < early part of evening and in a close room, > open air and moving about.

Extremities.—Pain in r. shoulder. Soreness of l. shoulder in region of subclavian muscle, < rest and wet weather, > motion, with lameness. Pain in l. biceps. Numbness of l. arm and hand. Buzzing feeling in hands as if they would burst. Swelling of fingers, < washing in cold water, with numbness. Weakness of lower, with heaviness. Feeling in feet as from the starting of circulation after constriction is removed.

Sleep and Fever.—Sleepy after dinner. Sleep restless and unrefreshing; R. and disturbed; disturbed by slight noise. Disagreeable dreams. Chill from 8 till 10 A.M. or 12 M., then headache.

Viburnum Prunifolium.

"A tincture is made of the fresh, ripe fruit." (The bark is official in the allopathic pharmacopœias).

Before she had swallowed the third dose she fell and had to be carried to the bed, her throat became dry, complained of loss of vision, partial loss of speech and general relaxation of system.

Clinical.—Valuable in many cases of threatening miscarriage; it checks the flow. Supposed to be a uterine tonic.

Vinca.

A tincture is made of the fresh plant. Vinca minor, L., the lesser Periwinkle.

Arthritic tearing in bones. Tremulous feeling in all vessels; T. feeling, < upper limbs, with tendency to start, < exerting the mind. Empty feeling in various parts. Weakness. Most symptoms > moving in open air. Sadness, with fear of death. Lachrymose. Peevish and quarrelsome, soon followed by repentance. Headache. Pressure externally upon head. Vertigo, with flickering before eyes. Dulness of inciput, < stooping when writing, with slow pressure towards eyes and dimness of eyes. Sticking in l. temple, extending towards malar-bone. Pressure in temples. Tearing in vertex, with hammering outward. Matting of the hair. Moist eruption on scalp, with vermin, especially itching at night, with burning after scratching. Corrosive itching of scalp. Itching biting on scalp, < vertex.

Itching of eyelids, with burning and redness. On getting snuff into the eye there was so little secretion that he was obliged to wash it out. Vision obscured when reading, also at times when walking. Ringing and whistling in ears, with feeling of a cold wind, < l. ear. Tip of nose red from slightest cause. Eruption on septum, discharging a moisture which formed a light brown scab, the skin was dirty white, elevated, with a red areola. Dryness in nose, extending into frontal sinus, with heat. Itching in nose. Stoppage of nose, < one nostril, with discharge of much mucus through posterior nares. Nosebleed. Swelling of face, with papules. Pallor. Tearing in malar-bones. Swelling of upper lip and of corner of mouth. Itching of upper lip. Lips dry.

Toothache; tearing, > warmth of bed. Aphthæ in mouth. Salivation. Insipid taste; to all food. Hawking through the day. Ulcers in the throat (?). Sore throat, with difficulty in swallowing. Sensation of something sticking low down in œsophagus, which provokes swallowing. Hunger alternating with loss of appetite before the hunger has been satisfied. Little thirst. Empty eructations after beer, generally < taking liquids; violent empty E. Nausea; after coffee. Violent, copious vomiting of bitter, yellowish-green liquid. Gastric disturbances. Emptiness in stomach. Flatulence. Abdomen full, tense, but painless; A. distended after stool. Rumbling, with gurgling and emission of offensive flatus. Gripping. Urging to stool.

Stool first hard, then soft. Stool exhausting, with burning in anus. Urine diminished. Urine pale. Excessive menstruation, with weakness.

Hoarseness. Tenacious mucus in trachea. Spasmodic cough, with little tickling in larynx. Rapid respiration. Stitches on sternum; in chest, with pains and dyspnoea. Pressure on sternum, with empty feeling in chest. Painful tension in cervical muscles, with stiffness and weight. Tearing in limbs. Inclination to stretch limbs. Swelling of first joints of fingers; with stiffness of them and with burning pain in nails. Cramplike drawing in upper arm and tips of fingers; in feet and toes. Itching moist spots on upper part of r. ankle. Burning in the ulcers like bed-sores on l. nates. Sensitiveness of skin, with redness and soreness, even from slight rubbing. Corrosive itching. Yawning. Sleepless and restless at night. Lascivious dreams. Sudden paroxysms of shivering. Heat, with full, hard pulse; H. in scalp, with prickling; in cheeks, without redness.

Clinical.—Eczema of scalp and face, with offensive odor. Eczema matting the hair together. Bald spots sometimes become covered with very fuzzy hair. Crusta lactea. Menorrhagia, continuous flow, particularly at the climacteric. It is especially useful for hemorrhages after the climacteric. Hæmorrhages from fibroid tumors.

Viola Tricolor.

A tincture is made of the whole plant in flower (Pansy).

Generalities.—Feeling as if he had not slept enough in forenoon when sitting. Exhaustion.

Clinical.—General aggravation in winter and cold air.

Mind.—Hasty in his actions as if impelled by anxiety, yet feeling of prostration. Sad about his domestic relations. Disobedient. Dulness in afternoon and evening, with disinclination to talk, which was almost impossible.

Head.—Tearing, with heat in face and thirst. Pain in brain; P., with pressure in forehead; in brain extending outward through forehead. Confusion; with pressure in frontal bones; with pressure in forehead, and when walking the brain shakes, with heaviness, as if a stone were in it, which extended forward into head. Heaviness, with pressure towards forehead; H. as if a weight pressed it forward, > stooping, < rising. Vertigo when walking, with reeling.

Forehead.—Burning stitch in bone. Pain above r. eye, > pressure; extending from root of nose into brain, > open air; wavelike. Tensive drawing externally in l. side, extending into cervical muscles. Tingling when sitting still.

Tearing stitch externally in l. temple. Pressure outward in temples. Pain in l. temple near eye; burning, on r. side of vertex when sitting; bruised, in parietal bone on touch. Pressure outward in r. side of head. Sticking in l. side of occiput; tensive in r. muscles of occiput.

Clinical.—Eczema of scalp, with swollen cervical glands. In crusta lactea it is similar to Vinca (but Viola has urine like cat's urine). By some considered nearly specific in eczema of the scalp, especially with matted hair.

Eyes.—Itching-cutting stitches outward in r. Biting in l. as if sweat were in it. Pupils contracted. Tensive stitch in l. ball, persistent on motion. Sensation of a hard body between balls and upper lids. Lids pressed together and difficult to open. Hardened matter in canthi. Vision obscured, especially distant objects.

Clinical.—Scrofulous ophthalmia, with crusta lactea.

Ears, Nose and Face.—Itching stitches behind l. ear. Pressure inward upon drum of ear. Itching pressure towards l. side of nose. Drawing tension in l. cheek, in front of ear. Drawing pain from l. side of lower jaw into r. side of head.

Mouth and Throat.—Tongue white. Tongue covered with bitter mucus. Salivation, with dry sensation in mouth. Sore throat in evening.

Stomach.—Loss of appetite and taste. Empty eructations. Nausea and retching. Sticking in diaphragm during inspiration and expiration. Constriction in pit on inspiration.

Abdomen.—Rumbling and emission of flatus. Stitches like lightning in r. side of A. and chest when walking; gripping S. when walking, so that he must stand still. Gripping. Cutting; with urging to stool; with howling and screaming, then sleep at noon, the pain returned on waking, then emission of flatus and stool with mucus in large pieces. Sticking in upper A. during inspiration and expiration; S. externally in umbilical region. Sticking cutting in hypochondrium on inspiration while sitting bent over. Stitches in l. groin when sitting and on rising up; jerklike, in forepart of hypogastrium when sitting, > standing up, leaving burning. Pinching crawling in r. side of pelvis when sitting.

Rectum and Stool.—Excessive urging to stool, which is normal. Stool soft; soft, preceded by flatulence; hard; as if chopped.

Urinary Organs.—Tenesmus. Urging; frequent, with copious urine; frequent, with scanty urine. Frequent copious micturition, can scarcely hold the urine. Stitch in urethra when not urinating. Urine copious, burning; scanty; turbid; offensive; smelling like cat's urine.

Clinical.—Incontinence of urine at night, in children, the urine smelling like cat's urine.

Sexual Organs.—Erection in morning. Penis, jerking, tending to make it stiff, in morning on waking; stitch in back; itching biting in skin; pain extending to glans. Burning in glans. Swelling of prepuce. Voluptuous itching of prepuce when standing, with erection. Itching sticking of scrotum. Emission, with lascivious dream. Stitch on r. side of mons veneris. Leucorrhœa.

Chest.—Twitching of r. pectoral muscles. Sticking on l. true ribs; in l. side during inspiration and expiration while walking; in r. side when walking; when standing; in r. side, < inspiration and expiration; in upper part of sternum, < expiration; itching, in r. pectoral muscles. Cutting on r. side, < moving trunk and arm, bruised pain on pressure.

Heart and Pulse.—Anxiety in H. in wavelike throbbing when lying. Oppression in region of H. on bending forward while sitting, with stitches. Pulse rapid.

Neck and Back.—Swelling of cervical glands. Cramplike drawing in cervical muscles, which suddenly drew the head backward. Sticking in l. scapula. Pinching contraction between scapulae, with coldness.

Upper Extremities.—Sticking in r. axilla; cutting, in axilla, with itching; in l. shoulder joint, > motion; in l. elbow; contractive, in l. forearm near bend of elbow, when walking; in l. ring finger during rest.

Lower Extremities.—Stitches in l. gluteals when lying. Thighs feel bruised in morning on waking. Tearing bubbling in internal and upper part of thigh when sitting. Drawing in r. thigh when standing. Itching stitch in l. knee; in r. patella when lying, > motion, returning on sitting. Twitching in r. calf towards inner side; feeling of T. in l. calf. Sticking in r. tibia when walking. Pressing-out pain in r. tibia when walking and sitting, < standing. Drawing along calf and thigh when walking, with giving way of knees. Tensive sticking in middle of r. foot when walking. Tearing in heel beneath inner malleolus, > motion, leaving burning. Pain in r. sole; in r. sole when sitting; in r. sole when walking, < joints. Pressing burning in l. great toe.

Skin.—Thick and hard on face. Eruption over face (except eyelids) and behind ears, with burning itching, < night, a thick, hard scab formed, cracked here and there, from which a tenacious yellow pus exuded and hardened into a substance like gum. Pimple beneath l. zygoma, with pain on touch; itching P. on last joint of index. Nettle-rash over whole body, with stinging biting. Hives on l. cheek, with itching, not < scratching.

Burning stitches on l. thigh; on upper abdomen when walking. Itching stitches below r. external malleolus; on r. side of abdomen, > touch. Cutting and crawling, with cramplike pain in skin between scapulae. Itching on r. wing of nose; on r. scapula; inner upper part of r. thigh; anteriorly above l. knee; on l. inner malleolus; on ball of r. great toe when standing, < sitting; of dorsal muscles, > scratching; between scrotum and thigh when sitting, > scratching; sticking in l. brow, > rubbing.

Clinical.—Impetigo, groups of pustules, followed by scabs, on chin and upper lip.

Sleep.—Sleepiness in afternoon; in afternoon, with falling of eyelids; irresistible, in afternoon. Frequent waking. Restless. The child twitches the hands and closes in the thumb, with general dry heat and redness of face. Falls asleep late on account of numerous thoughts, in morning he wakes early, lies upon the unaccustomed side and cannot arouse himself on account of weakness. Amorous dreams. Vivid dreams.

Fever.—Chilliness in cold, open air; creeping, in forenoon, with vertigo and pulling asunder sensation in middle of brain. Heat without thirst; H. after eating, < face, with sweat, oppression of chest, with anxiety, driving him about; in scalp above forehead; in skin of temple by r. eye; in side of face on which he was not lying in evening; suddenly in face when sitting, without thirst. Sweat at night.

Vipera.

The fresh poison of the German viper (adder) is triturated with sugar of milk.

Compare other serpent venoms.

Generalities.—Œdema; with coma. Swelling, < lips and eyelids; of whole r. side of body; of lymphatics extending from the bite, with inflammation; with insensibility. Bitten part swollen; with blackness, hardness and spots; with inflammation; with œdema, redness and heat, parts hard and tender, with tensive pain; with pain, then numbness and rigidity, afterwards supuration successively of finger, forearm and axilla; and of mouth and abdomen (he sucked the wound), with general weakness, hands black and cold, bloody vomiting and diarrhœa. Swelling of face after bite on cheek, parts about the bite livid, next day diffuse cellular inflammation extended from the wound to neck and sternum and opposite side of face.

Swelling of bitten tongue, he fell to the ground in asphyxia, respiration and pulse stopped, face purple, the circumference of neck exceeded that of head; tongue blue, immovable, protruding, with constant dribbling of saliva, S. of submaxillary and parotid glands, gasping for air, pallor, anxious expression; and vessels on under surface gorged with blood, face pale, cold sweat on forehead, pulse quick and irregular, bloody salivation, T. felt benumbed, later it appeared almost square, under surface nearly black, inability to articulate, difficulty in swallowing, the S. extended to r. nipple and had a crackling or emphysematous feel, as if air were extravasated in cellular membrane.

Swelling of the bitten limb; with darkness; with dark redness; covered with phlyctenules; with ecchymoses, and at the place of the bite ulcers exuding sanious liquid; at anniversary of the bite, with development of spots and malaise; like phlegmonous erysipelas, with ecchymoses around the bite; doughy, temperature elevated, cutaneous veins looked like red stripes, pain on motion; painful œdema every year at the first hot weather, with colic and retching, digestion disturbed, somnolence, gums fungoid, skin icteric, chilliness, physical and intellectual weariness.

Swelling of arm, shoulder, chest and back of side bitten, with inflammation; S. of hand, arm and r. side of trunk, with pain causing repeated fainting; of the bitten arm, almost purple, with anxiety, headache, vomiting and shivering, in a few hours bulla on a red base over the wound, afterwards similar bullæ all over body, even on face, the intermediate spaces red and swollen, when ruptured much turbid serum escaped, the eruption lasted from May to November, every May afterwards lassitude, anxiety, nausea, headache, etc., then after six or eight days the white cicatrix became red and painful, then tingling and swelling of arm, then bullæ lasting five or six weeks.

Swelling of arm and hand, gradually extended over chest, with nausea and vomiting, arm hot, livid, covered with black and dark red spots, skin tense, the livid red color > pressure, but the spots of ecchymoses were not affected thereby, at the bite phlyctenular blisters with reddish serum, also phlyctenule on back of hand, cephalalgia, vertigo, rapid pulse, pale tongue, hand began to diminish in size, but shoulder was large, covered with black mottled spots, l. scapular region and part of r. livid red, with spots of ecchymoses, the redness and spots extended over anterior part of chest, r. breast œdematous, hard and ecchymosed (the trouble in breast was apparently caused by a blow), afterwards the ecchymoses and infiltration spread over nates, scleroticæ yellow.

Swelling of arm to shoulder, with vomiting and diarrhoea of bilious and sour liquid, then of substances smelling like broth, thirst, pulse scarcely perceptible, skin pale and covered with clammy sweat, tongue and affected arm oedematous as far as elbow, the latter colorless and insensible, delirium at times, next day skin hot and dry, axillary glands swollen and sensitive, swelling extending along spine to r. hip, afterwards bluish redness of the swelling, the places upon which he lay were bluish-black, skin over swollen parts insensible.

Swelling of the bitten hand; with stitches; with stitches on motion; with tingling pain and coolness, gangrene threatened, temperature of arm low, S. extended to axilla; extending finally to hypogastrium; and wrist, burning pain when bitten, soon extending to middle of elbow and thence to axilla, diminishing in the wound as it extended, when the pain reached axilla there were constriction and heat in head, throat and r. side of tongue.

Swelling of the bitten finger; and of hand, with stupefaction; with heat and contraction, the contraction soon affected arm, and arm was swollen, < about joints; extending to shoulders and chest, with uneasiness, vomiting and sleeplessness; oedematous, and of forearm; slight, white, back of hand swollen, red lines reaching to elbow, forearm tender, next day arm swollen and ecchymosed, axillary glands swollen and inflamed, that evening ecchymoses extended down side to crest of ilium, afterwards hardness of forearm and elbow, with stiffness and pain on bending elbow; head hanging down, tongue protruding, face and lids swollen, oedema of submucous tissue of mouth and pharynx, ptyalism, vomiting, pain at pit of stomach, pain in r. axilla, in a few hours arm was swollen, axillary glands inflamed and painful, next morning back and inner part of arm ecchymosed, the finger (bitten part) was the last to become painful and swell.

Oedematous swelling of arm (after bite on index), tongue furred, pulse rapid and irregular, oppression at præcordia, hurried respiration, depression of nervous energy, red lines in absorbent glands, which were tender and enlarged. Arm and hand swollen, grayish-yellow, the bitten finger bluish-black, the wound surrounded by blisters, scarification over the wound caused oozing of black blood.

Swelling of the bitten thumb, and hand and forearm, shiny, tense, elastic, not pitting on pressure, peculiar redness of arm, red line of absorbents along arm to axilla, thence it separated into three lines which spread over chest, from elbow to axilla they appeared inflamed, in patches, fingers swollen and immovable, bursting sensation in hand and arm, smarting in axilla, pain on pressure in axillary glands and along absorbents, pulse weak and sluggish. Bitten thumb black, hand swollen and spotted, next day arm covered with spots, above elbow sores filled with liquid.

Swelling of bitten limbs as far as abdomen, with feverish coldness of the limbs; as far as A., blue and yellow; as far as A., and black; S., with black spots, the S. extended to abdomen, then syncope and death; up to knee and soon to abdomen, green, red and yellow; to knee, immovable and insensible, the bitten spot dark blue; and covered with bluish-red spots (after bite on toe); and hard, insensible, with inflammation of superficial veins (after bite on toe). Swelling of the bitten leg, with yellow color; as far as abdomen, bluish-brown, with blackish spots about the bite.

Swelling of the bitten foot, with chronic suppuration; dorsum and whole toe, with blue color; with pain as if blown up with air, with two bluish-yellow stripes gradually extending along leg to thigh and abdomen; becomes indurated and bluish-red; as far as knee, hard and bluish-red, S. remained for years; pain in the wound, afterwards foot was inflamed and swollen as far as knee, later paralysis of foot so that he was unable to ride horseback; and leg and abdomen, with almost black color; as far as abdomen, grayish-yellow, covered with blisters, after fourteen years the knee was still stiff and leg drawn backward; and leg and thigh, with redness, veins and superficial lymphatics swollen, bluish-red above popliteal space, rest of body oedematous, < upper lids and tongue, which he could scarcely move, pulse small, rapid, respiration difficult, prostration, anxiety, pressure in præcordial region, nausea, the wound became bluish-red, comatose, afterwards tongue, < tip, was denuded and blisters formed, lymphatic vessels and glands, < popliteal space, were hard and painful.

Swelling of the toes to near knee, with a red circle around the wound, the wound was filled with a drop of lymph, which was no sooner wiped off than it was succeeded by another.

Black blood flows from a wound near the bite, cellular tissue green and blue. Apparent modification of the functions of the blood, fibrin is altered, globules less able to perform their functions, with tendency to hæmoptysis, especially epistaxis, imperfect coagulation. Ecchymoses in endocardium and pericardium, lungs hyperæmic, mucous membrane covered with ecchymoses, the tissue oedematous, mucous membrane of intestines ecchymosed, blood did not coagulate. Persons become prematurely old, development of children is arrested. Falling down when standing. Cramps, < flexor muscles. Subsultus tendinum. Spasms; with raging pains in head, jaws and abdomen. Epilepsy. Collapse.

Sticking in the bitten part; on every change of weather, with tearing; extending through whole body; then leaden gray color and swelling. Appearance as of a nettle-sting, then creeping up arm, veins distended, with feeling as if they would burst; piercing tip of thumb, then spreading over arm, then sensation of a flame flickering through arm. Sticking in knee and head on every change of weather, with tearing.

Pain. Pain in the bitten part; extending through whole body; returned every year; with stitches in finger-tips; and sinking down in a faint, with heat and shivering shooting through body for half an hour, when he was first able to call for help, relief from vomiting of bile, thirst, cold, clammy sweat, features drawn, eyes protruding, staring, color dark yellow, pulse slow, hard and full, jaws spasmodically closed, talking and swallowing difficult; burning.

Smarting in the bitten thumb, with burning, then white color, with lividity of forearm (intermittent at first), stiffness, swelling of arm, next morning the part looks sloughy and inflamed, lividity begins on posterior aspect of thumb, becomes bluish on inner side of dorsum of hand, gradually assumes the appearance of ecchymoses as it approaches the forearm, ecchymoses of arm, bright red in places, in others blue and black, every where tinged with livid spots, pain on pressing the thumb, soreness of the limb.

Disease of the bitten leg, painful, at times spotted yellow, at times spotted blue, after various remedies these disappeared and attacked the eyes, after long suffering she became blind for two years, then eyes improved, but there were pains in various parts of abdomen and limbs, at last she became almost numb. Feeling as if the poison extended from the bite on thumb to shoulder and then to abdomen. Sensitive to every change of weather. Malaise every year, with pain in the bitten arm and lassitude. Chronic cachexia. Restlessness. Periodic symptoms, with tendency of cachectic symptoms to return.

Weakness; every year at the anniversary of the bite, with indigestion; with swelling of bloodvessels; with stammering of a few unintelligible words and sleepiness; so that he fainted every time he raised his head; so that he fainted every time he rose. Faintness; with warmth in head; with flow of white saliva from mouth; with vomiting of black blood, then bloody stools; with falling to the ground, vomiting, lying as if paralyzed and unconscious, involuntary stools and urine, then death in half an hour, without swelling or spasms; alternating with anxiety and restlessness.

White, tremulous; W. in middle, moist on edges, with thirst; coated white. Dry. Replies difficult, in a deep voice. Speech inarticulate; and thick; lost on account of weakness.

Throat.—Swelling like a goitre. Closure so that she could swallow only water and milk, afterwards biting in fauces, the swelling of which became blackish. Pain; with difficulty in swallowing, viscid mucus adheres to pharynx.

Stomach.—Appetite lost. Thirst; just before death, with hunger; with the heat; with moist tongue; for cold drinks. Nausea; with shuddering; with attack of faintness. Retching; with suffocative sensation.

Vomiting; after milk; of all food and drink; with weakness; with faintness; with erysipelas; with shivering and thirst; with coldness of body; with distention; with colic; with colic and thirst; with purging and urinating; with diarrhoea; with diarrhoea and weak irregular pulse; spasmodic; of blood; bilious; of mucous and bilious matter; bitter yellow fluid; green substances; green liquid; viscid greenish fluid, in color and taste like inspissated bile, then bilious diarrhoea.

Cardialgia. Pain; in epigastrium; in epigastrium. < pressure; in epigastric or umbilical region, with anxiety and vomiting, thirst though he cannot tolerate much liquid, bloody and mucous vomiting, bloody diarrhoea; excruciating, in pit and in abdomen: sudden, in pit, with thirst. Uneasiness in epigastrium. Digestion slow.

Abdomen.—Tense, pressure causes distention of facial muscles. Swelling, with raging pains and spasms even to faintness, and after drinking milk vomiting of a mass of round worms, then freedom from worm troubles which he had before. Sudden flatulent distention, with colic, pain in back and vomiting. Rumbling. Cutting. Gripping. Pain; and in back: with diarrhoea: with stupelying headache, vomiting, and with swelling and blueness of the foot; in umbilical region. < pressure. Hypochondria tense; H. sore.

Rectum.—Discharge of black coagulated blood; of blood just before death. Pain and tenesmus. Urging to pass stool and urine; desire for stool, with coldness to touch.

Stool.—Diarrhoea; frequent: bilious. Fetid; and black. Bloody; in masses of dark offensive blood, apparently from scarification of tongue. Copious. Numerous, with urging, shivering and thirst. Involuntary; and frequent, mixed with blood and mucus; and involuntary micturition.

Clinical.—After diarrhoea, greenish and bloody, most violent pain in the enlarged liver, with jaundice and fever, pain extending from the liver to the shoulder and down to the hip; Vipera immediately removed the pain in the shoulder and reduced the liver to its normal size.

Urinary Organs.—Ineffectual desire. Strangury. Involuntary micturition. Frequent watery micturition. Urine increased; suppressed; dark yellow, as in jaundice.

Respiration.—Suffocation. Dyspnoea; with sticking in heart. Anxious; as in croup, threatening asphyxia. Oppressed and short. Ceased suddenly, heart stopped, face became livid, etc., tracheotomy was performed, blood drawn from arm flowed scantily, was dark, mixed with bright streaks.

Chest.—Veins of C. and abdomen thick and hard. Swelling, with difficult breathing; S. as far as umbilicus after bite on face. Oedema of lungs before death. Double pneumonia. Pain; in l. side; over four or five r. ribs on pressure; flying. Oppression, with anxiety; O., with precordial anxiety; with violent efforts to breathe and swallow.

Heart.—Sticking; with cold sweat and faintness; with weakness, difficulty in breathing and cold sweat. Pain, with faintness. Dragging pain so that he tears his clothes, becomes faint and sinks down with weakness, with distress in abdomen, violent vomiting ten times, pallor, coldness of body, blueness and blackness of the bitten finger. Anxiety; at the same time for four years, with soreness of the bitten foot and paralysis of r. arm. Action slow. Action feeble; and no pulsation in radial or carotid arteries, but that in crural was very strong.

Clinical.—Vipera is a very valuable remedy for varicose veins and for acute phlebitis, the vein is swollen, bordered by an area of inflammation, which is very sensitive to touch, but particularly with the sensation, on letting the leg hang down, as if it would burst from the fulness of the veins. A gold-beater, who had used his r. hand for years in his business, found that the veins of the whole arm had become excessively swollen and painful; he could no longer use his arm or permit it to hang down, but he carried it in a short sling, and when sitting had to rest it on a table or something high, on account of the bursting feeling on letting it hang down; immediately cured by Vipera.

Pulse.—Rapid; with unquenchable thirst; R. and feverish; and full and strong in the healthy arm, but small and low in the wounded arm; and soft; and thready; and small; and small, scarcely perceptible; and small, with chilliness and cold sweat; and small, contracted, irregular; and small, intermittent, irregular, contracted, with fever; and small, hard, heart's action tremulous, with oppression of precordium; and low, interrupted. Slow, febrile; S. and weak; S., full and hard, with stiffness, coldness and sweat. Febrile. Small; and contracted; and intermittent. Intermittent and thready. Irregular. Weak, with sopor; W., with violent pains; and intermittent; and irregular. Scarcely perceptible.

Back.—Sticking in kidneys. Pain in loins.

Extremities.—Swelling; and red, covered with yellow spots; and blue and black. Livid spots on the bitten limb every year at the time of the bite. Yellowish, livid, mottled. Yellowish-green, with livid spots. Erysipelatous inflammation. Painful trembling. Pain; < touch; alternating with pains in abdomen. Benumbed. Relaxed.

Clinical.—Bursting feeling in limbs, in three cases neurasthenia, an old sprain and varicose veins.

Upper Extremities.—Paralysis after a bite on foot. Pain in shoulders; in arm extending to chest. Arm swollen; and of a sickly color; and reddish-blue; and livid red; and red, covered with spots, soft; and painful. Arm deep red. Paralysis of r. arm recurring for years after a bite on foot. Forearm yellow. Swelling of the hand not bitten; S. of hand, not pitting on pressure, with pain as if it would burst, with pain on touch; and stiffness. Hands violet-colored, covered with phlyctenules. Skin of hand dead and detached in large plates, subjacent tissues livid. The bitten finger bluish-black. Stitches in finger-tips after bite on arm. Tearing from bitten fingers to chest, with uneasiness, vomiting and sleeplessness.

Lower Extremities.—Shuffling gait caused by paralysis. Convulsive movements. Cramps. Weakness. Feeling as if something moved up along thigh (after bite on ankle). Tension in knees and ankles. Knees stiff. Leg swollen, cold and insensible; swollen as if puffed up with air, and painful. Paralysis of leg, with feeling as if dead. Foot swollen and blue. Dragging of foot. Foot seemed shortened, so that he limped. Paralysis of foot, with shuffling gait; P., then ulcers.

Pus sometimes at the point of the bite. Ulcers. Blisters; about the bite, bursting and leaving ulceration, muscles were laid bare, were dark red, dry, looked like smoked meat, insensible to touch, the sore was offensive. Gangrenous spots; on limbs; G. slough at the bite. Gangrene of foot, with swelling extending to knee. Crawling in soles, then also in palms.

Sleep.—Disposed to yawn. Sleepiness; and heaviness; with inability to sleep and also constant necessity to change the position. Sleeplessness; from pain. Night restless.

Fever.—Chilliness; with sweat; with cold sweat; with rigidity and clammy sweat; then fever. Temperature diminished, resists cold badly. Shivering; with flushes of heat; with thirst. Coldness of head and upper limbs; of finger.

Heat; in morning, with thirst, restlessness and moderate pains; towards evening; at night, with delirium; then shivering. Fever of irregular type; intermittent F. Hot skin; and dry. Heat shooting through body when bitten. Burning in the bitten foot; spreading from the bitten part through the whole limb; extending from the bitten spot on arm to chest; B. running up arm; rising from heel to tongue; on chest and abdomen, with longing for cold applications though skin was cold to touch; of fingers (from rubbing a stick with which a snake had been bruised), with swelling.

Sweat; after vomiting; after chamomile tea, except over the bitten limb from abdomen to toes; cold; cold, clammy. Skin dry.

Viscum Album.

A tincture is made of the fresh berries and leaves of the mistletoe.

A kind of aura epileptica, feeling as if he must fall, a glow rising from the feet to the head, feeling as if he were on fire, with pallor of face. Paralysis of every muscle, except of those of the eye. Inability to speak or swallow, and death from starvation. Frequent recurrence of the symptoms during two years. Inclined to be violent. Spectral illusions. Insensibility. Stupor, then insensibility, lying motionless with closed eyes, but easily aroused by a loud noise and then answered any question, but when she relapsed into her former condition there was a slight disposition to stertor. Giddiness. Conjunctiva injected. Pupils dilated and fixed; contracted and at first insensible. Face red. Lips livid. Alimentary canal paralyzed. Constipation. Breathing slow and stertorous. Pulse quick, small and irregular; slow, full and bounding. Sensation as if a spider were crawling over dorsum of l., then of r. hand. Sudden pain from within outward in r. foot, compelling him to take off his boot, as it felt too tight. Drowsiness. Skin warm and moist.

Clinical.—Deafness in l. ear. Numerous cases of retained placenta. Metrorrhagia, partly bright, partly clotted and dark, with dull headache, stitches in the temples, numbness of the extremities, blue rings around the eyes, sunken eye. It causes uterine contractions and stops hæmorrhages. Chronic endometritis (granular endometritis), characterized by enlargement, either subinvolution, alveolar hyperplasia or hypertrophy. A case of whooping cough was cured in two days. Several cases of sciatica. Chorea from fright.

Wyethia.

A tincture is made of the fresh root of Wyethia helenioides, Nutt.

Weak as after a severe illness; W., nervous, uneasy, apprehensive of some calamity. Unable to make much exertion, the least exercise causes sweat. Aggravation in afternoon. Headache; over r. eye, sharp at first, then fulness. Rush of blood to head. Dizziness. Itching in r. ear. Mouth feels as if it had been scalded. Increased flow of tough, ropy saliva. Dryness of fauces, constant desire to clear throat by hemming (Argent. nit.); pricking D. in posterior nares, sensation as if something were in nasal passages, no relief from an effort to clear them through throat. Throat feels swollen, epiglottis dry and burning, constant desire to swallow saliva to relieve the dryness, yet no relief, swallowing difficult. Uvula feels elongated. Heat in œsophagus and stomach, < eating.

Belching of wind alternating with hiccup. Nausea and vomiting. Weight in stomach as from indigestible food. Pain and bearing down in r. side. Sharp, deep-seated pain below r. ribs, then soreness. Itching in anus. Dark brown diarrhoea. Stool dark brown, small, looked burned; dark, regular, soft (previously light-colored, irregular and constipated). Constipation, with hæmorrhoids. Leucorrhœa. Pain in l. ovary, shooting down to knee. Menses appear for the first time in over a year, since birth of last child, purple, scanty, painful. Burning in bronchial tubes. Dry, hacking cough from tickling in epiglottis. Pulse slow. Pain in back extending to extreme point of spine. Pain in r. arm, with stiffness of wrist and hand. Cold sweat over whole body, coming and going by flashes.

Clinical.—Pricking, dry sensation in posterior nares; granular appearance of pharynx. Chronic pharyngitis, dryness, with constant desire to clear the throat, tendency to atrophy of the mucous membrane. Pharynx dark red, sensitive; also soreness of the muscles of the palate, following severe influenza. Granular sore throat, with burning and enlarged follicles, frequent inclination to clear the throat. Tendency to get hoarse from talking or singing (Phos.), the throat is hot and dry (Bell.). Dry asthma.

Xanthoxylum.

A tincture is made of the fresh bark of the prickly ash, Xanthoxylum fraxineum, Willd.

Generalities.—Sharp shooting pain. Neuralgic pain in r. side. Aching all over; in side; in l. side under l. scapula and l. hip. Indescribable sensation at 4 p.m., thought I was dying, whole body seemed falling to pieces, could not walk straight, the atmosphere seemed blue, light flashed before my eyes, body seemed elastic and as if on the stretch, tongue seemed to alternately expand and contract, distant ringing in l. ear, could not eat but craved ice-water, which relieved the nausea, l. leg heavy, on lying down pain in sacral region, amelioration at 10 p.m.

Malaise; in morning on rising. Thrill over whole body. Sensation in bed as if I were sunken deep, on sitting up sensation as if floating. Restless, felt rather easier lying. Weakness; in morning on waking. Inability to walk straight or talk straight. Falling asleep of l. side if I sat still any time. Numbness of whole body in morning on waking; in morning on rising; of l. side in morning on rising; of l. side from head to foot, affecting half of nose. Aggravation at night and in morning. Amelioration from vomiting; A after lunch; after eating, but was tired and ached all over.

Mind.—Nervous, frightened feeling. Feeling as if something would happen. Depression; in morning on waking, with languor. Felt as if I would rather die than live. Felt as though I would like to take enough to kill myself, during the headache. Indifference and malaise. No life nor ambition to do anything. Stupid feeling after supper.

Head.—Aching; in morning, with sleepiness; and dulness; and weight in it, intolerance of motion or shock, every step sends a shock to head; throbbing; delaying sleep, with bright star-shaped spots dancing up and down on shutting eyes. Fulness. Felt large; with intolerance of light. Tightness, with pain increasing over eyes. Dull, heavy feeling. Soreness to touch. Throbbing, and in neck. Feeling as if dropping to pieces, fear that something would happen. Feeling of looseness or quivering in brain on shaking head. Vertigo; in morning on rising; when walking; on lifting head; with black spots dancing before eyes; as if falling forward, in morning on attempting to rise, everything became black, with nausea preventing me from eating breakfast, vomiting of the coffee and toast that I had succeeded in eating.

Forehead.—Aching; in a spot over nose; over r. eye; > open air and cool water; in upper part, < r. side, pain extends to base of brain, with soreness; extending into orbits; waking her at 4 a.m.; throbbing, over r. eye, with nausea; burning, < sudden motion of head, extending to vertex and into orbits, with heaviness in eyelids and bright spots before eyes.

Temples.—Pain; with feeling as if top of head were lifted off; intermittent darting, in l.; sudden screwing P. through T., spreading over head, at 6 p.m., with heavy pressure on vertex, after the pain has lasted an hour blur before eyes, as if looking through a blue lace veil, dizziness and nausea, at 9 p.m. loud noise in l. ear (like a windmill?), the pain prevented sleep till 12.30, awakened at 4 a.m. by nausea, attempted to rise, but was so giddy that I pitched forward, the dizziness > lying down, but not the nausea.

Weight on vertex. Pain in vertex; in upper part of cranium, with flashes of throblike pain as if the top of head would be taken off; in l. side of head and in l. elbow; in occiput, with bewildered sensation. Tightening of scalp, with heavy pain in temples, afterwards increase of head difficulties, with heat and quiet menstrual flow (two days too early).

Eyes.—Bloodshot, with red margins, feeling as if full of sand; B. and heavy, with red burning lids; B. and sensitive to light, bright images before eyes, dilated pupils. Heavy grinding pain in l. Motion is painful if much out of field of vision, and eyes are sore on pressure. Pain in r. lid. Vision of blue sparks. Things looked far away.

Ears.—Pain in r. or in jaw-socket, he does not know whether it is ear or tooth that aches; darting, under and back of r. Sensitive. Ringing; in r. Roaring. Noise in r. like a valve opening and shutting.

Nose.—Dryness. R. nostril seems filled up. Catarrhal symptoms, watering of eyes and nose. Discharge of mucus, with congested feeling as if about to bleed; D. of dry and bloody scales of mucus. Bleeding.

Face.—Flushed; but body cold. Pain in lower jaw and l. side.

Clinical.—Neuralgia of the face, of l. lower jaw.

Mouth.—Tongue coated; white; whitish-yellow. Burning and dry feeling in M. and tongue. Peppery taste; extending to stomach.

Throat.—Aching; in r. side; on touch; and it tired me to talk. Feeling as if in a vise in morning on rising. Soreness of r. side; S., with expectoration of tough mucus. Feeling of enlargement. Feeling of a bunch in l. side when swallowing after dinner, on going to bed it shifted to r. side. Dryness and hoarseness; D., and it was a great exertion to talk. Burning in œsophagus, with stinging.

Stomach.—Loss of appetite; with great thirst, craved coffee and lemonade. Thirst for large quantities at a time. Empty eructations, with slight taste of ingesta. Nausea; at the smell of breakfast; > a glass of ice-water; with frequent chills; with headache; with oppression of stomach. Fulness or pressure at epigastrium. Faintness as if fasting, but I did not care to eat more than a few mouthfuls, which nauseated me.

Abdomen.—Rumbling, with soreness on pressure. Flatulence. Gripping at 7 a.m., soon after waking, with brown diarrhoea mixed with mucus, next morning G. on waking, continued at intervals through the day, with indifference and malaise; G. and pain, then watery diarrhoea, fever and chill (the diarrhoea could not be reproduced by large doses). Boring deep in r. hypochondrium, > hot compresses, steady pressure and constant motion, < lying or sitting. Pain in r. side below ribs. Dragging in lower part of pelvis and back.

Rectum and Stool.—Stinging in r. after stool, with burning and hæmorrhage as from hæmorrhoids. Urging, stool large, dark brown, rather loose, causing excoriation and pain. Stools watery, small, dark, offensive, frequent, followed by burning pain in rectum and anus; loose S., then burning and smarting. Constipation in morning, stool after supper, next day three S., on third day S. before and after breakfast. Slight S., twice in one day.

Urine.—Profuse; slightly increased, sp. gr. varied from 1015 to 1019. Scanty and high-colored at night and next morning; S., high-colored, sp. gr. 1025, micturition frequent. Thirty oz. in twenty-four hours, sp. gr. 1030, reaction acid. High-colored.

Sexual Organs.—Leucorrhœa milky, white; whitish after menses. Shooting from region of r. ovary to hip, thigh and back, causing me to walk the floor and hold my breath, with gushing milk-white leucorrhœa, ceasing suddenly. Cutting in r. ovarian region, extending down thigh and over hip, in morning on waking, could find no position comfortable. Sudden sharp pain in region of r. ovary, which later radiated down thigh and across to l. hip, > lying down and drawing up legs. Pain in ovaries > drawing up knees and by heat; in l., extending down thigh; in l. during menses, sudden, gradually increasing and dying away as it came.

Menses profuse; and too early; and early, preceded by leucorrhœa; and too early, bright red, slight dysmenorrhœa, > walking and hot applications, very nervous, easily startled and hysterical. Menses too early and painful; too early, with intermittent cramp-like pain in head and abdomen, inability to lie still, hungry, but food nauseated, drank much, urine profuse, l. side numb, nape lame, eye twitched, pupils dilated, face flushed, blue light before eyes, chill, nausea, when vomiting it seemed as if stomach rose and fell, pulse rapid, restless night, sleep at intervals, next day awoke with pain in r. ovarian region, frontal headache, head light, l. side numb, l. foot went to sleep, menses profuse.

Clinical.—Amenorrhœa from getting her feet wet, scanty, high-colored urine, nausea at the sight of food, complete discouragement. After-pains. Ovarian neuralgia, with violent pains in the loins and lower part of the abdomen, < l. side, extending down the thigh. Neuralgic dysmenorrhœa, pains going down the anterior portions of the thighs, mostly left-sided. Neuralgic dysmenorrhœa, with neuralgic headaches, especially over l. eye, congestion of head and eyes, photophobia, great bearing down in the abdomen, pains in the back and down the legs, menses very scanty, thick, almost black.

Respiratory Organs.—Vocal cords affected. Hoarseness; in open air; with frequent necessity to clear the throat. Aphonia. Cough in open air; C. < cold draught, > warm room; hacking; hacking, without expectoration, sometimes from tickling in throat, again deep in bronchi; spasmodic, voiceless, stifled, about every twenty minutes, with scraping, even sore feeling under sternum, during each attack in evening sharp pain in lower part of r. lung. Suffocated sensation waking him at night. Dyspnoea, with increased action of heart; D., with cutting in lower part of r. lung. Every inspiration an exertion and unsatisfactory, as deep breathing caused pain in lower part of r. lung and in heart. Could not get air enough into lungs. Desire to take long breaths; and deep.

Chest.—Shooting in r. side like pleuritic pains, occasionally extending to scapula, constant desire to take a long breath. Pain in lower part of r. lung on deep inspiration or coughing. Strained pain on deep inspiration, < waking in night and turning in bed. Constriction as from running or as from weight on lungs. Tightening, with inclination to gape.

Heart.—Intermittent cutting in region passing through body antero-posteriorly, making me hold my breath and turn pale even to lips, < inspiration, after each attack was thirsty, flushed and exhausted. Pain in region starting me out of a sound sleep, apex beat to be seen and felt over large area, with suffocating feeling, had to sit up in bed and turn one way and then another, with cough without expectoration, three attacks at night, once almost unconscious from the tremulous beating of heart, pulse rapid, temperature high, slept hardly at all.

Pulse.—Rapid; and feeble, irregular. Slow; and soft. Throbbing in carotids.

Neck.—Pain in nape; in nape, > pressing head backward, with stiffness; in neck and r. shoulder, extending down back, inability to turn head to l.; rheumatic, in nape, > pressing head backward; drawing, in nape, extending down r. scapula. Tired feeling in nape. Stiffness.

Back.—Twitching of muscles. Pain, < cervical region and upper part of sacral region; in spine. Muscles tired. Coccyx seemed elongated, sensitive to pressure and aching, could not sit except on a cushion.

Extremities.—Heavy to lift. Joints seemed loosened. Pain in r. arm; inside r. just above elbow; in r. beginning just above elbow. Arms better from being twisted. Arms felt as if I had carried a weight. Numbness of l. shoulder and arm. Pain in elbows; in l. elbow, passing to palm, then to shoulder; in l. knee and l. elbow extending to hand, then in l. side and top of l. foot; in wrist extending to thumb; sudden cramplike, in wrists and knees, ending in a steady ache; flashing, in r. thumb, extending to hand.

Lower Extremities.—Inability to walk straight. Weakness. Pain; in l. thigh; in knee. Twitching in l. knee and trembling in r. Pain in r. leg in morning; flash of pain in r. calf. Legs weak; and feet. Pain in r. ankle; in l. heel; shooting from feet to knees. It seemed as if the floor were cotton-wool.

Skin.—Blotches on face, with boils.

Sleep.—Gaping. Drowsiness; all the morning; in evening. Sleep from 4 till 7 P.M. and then from 10 P.M. till 7 A.M. Slept hard all night; hard and heavy, dreamed of flying about over tops of houses; heavy, with constant dreams. Frequent waking. Sleep restless, frightful dreams of being killed or burned. Night restless, although very sleepy, constantly twisted and turned, and when I did sleep dreamed of being chased and when overtaken and about to be killed I could not make a sound to call for help. Dream of suffocation, waking me. Dream that my throat grew up, I woke in fright about 2 A.M., with shaking, and l. arm felt like lead and was numb, the position may have caused the numbness.

Fever.—Temperature low. Chilliness; frequently, with pain in limbs; in feet in morning on rising. Temperature high. Heat; in all veins, with desire to be bled, flash of heat from head to foot; in flashes; in flushes over face and head.

Zincum.

Pure metallic zinc is triturated for use.

General Action.—Zinc produces a marked derangement of the whole cerebro-spinal system; delirium, spasms, violent neuralgias, tremblings, extreme hyperæsthesia and paralysis. There seems no doubt that it affects not only the meninges of the brain and cord, but also the nerve-structure itself. Its action on mucous membranes is particularly seen in the eye, gastrointestinal canal and bronchi. Its action on the blood is well established; marked anæmia (deficiency of red corpuscles) with profound prostration results. Its action on the skin is shown in the eczematous eruptions which it produces.

Alles.—Plumb., Puls., Argent., Stram., Bell.

Generalities.—Emaciation; with feeble appearance, face wrinkled and bluish. Paleness of mucous surfaces, with disappearance of subcutaneous cellular tissue and atrophy of muscular system, < r. side. Twitching of various muscles (Hyosc., Bell.); of body and face. Trembling after every excitement (Arg. nit., Stram.). Stretching of body and limbs, with pale, sunken face.

Sticking here and there in evening; tearing S. above l. eye and at the same time in umbilical region. Sticking cutting in r. side. Pain between skin and flesh; P. in l. groin, near l. side of navel, in l. chest and l. side of head; in abdomen, head and eyes in evening on lying down; in whole body, > rest; cramplike, here and there in muscles; cramplike, off and on all day.

Next after lung and digestive disturbances, and the so-called night-blindness, there appears after ten to twelve years' work, in the smelters, a peculiar affection, pain in back, sensitiveness of soles, formation of lower limbs, numbness and coldness in the same, sensation of a band around abdomen and occasionally pain in muscles of lower half of body from crampy twitchings in them, sense of touch diminished, reflex excitability increased, but muscular sensibility weakened, so that there is staggering on closing eyes, and in the dark control of muscular power ceases, muscles remain well nourished and strong for a long time, but at each intentional movement diffused muscular tremor (Arg. nit.), later the gait becomes stiff, spasmodic, trembling and uncertain, the step is made on the full sole, finally weakness of lower and sometimes of upper extremities.

Pressing asunder upon walls of trunk, without trace of flatulence, caused by the nerves, < r. side. Swollen sensation. Sensation of trembling without trembling. Discomfort. Throbbing through whole body. Muscular soreness; towards evening, with malaise. Dulness like slight nausea two hours after dinner, with tremulous feeling in chest, pain in forehead and inability to understand what he was reading. Unfitted for work (after vomiting), feels best when lying with eyes closed. Increase of vigor at first when walking, with lightness, afterwards weakness.

Weakness; all day, with sleepiness, aversion to noise, yet difficult hearing, a dreamy condition as after a sleepless night, with shivering and cold creeping; in morning on waking; in morning, < lower limbs, with indolence; in evening; < r. side; < after dinner, at times with tremulousness and heaviness of head; with aching in lumbar region; with pains in limbs; with sensation as if beaten; sudden, faintlike, when standing; dizzy, nauseating, as after smoking too strong tobacco, on remaining up long in evening.

Faintness; then prostration and numbness. Necessity to lie down during the day. Heaviness in morning; in morning in bed, with weariness in lower limbs. Numbness on lying down, with fear of apoplexy. Decrease of sensibility to touch, but tickling was more quickly responded to than in the normal state. Inability to move head or limbs every morning on waking, with sensibility to contact over whole surface, after an hour staggering with tendency to fall to the left. Aggravation from wine though symptoms seem to have been > camphor; A. from wine and Nux vom., especially uneasiness at night and constipation. Most symptoms appear after dinner and towards evening (Puls.); appear when sitting and during rest, less during motion and in open air (Puls.). Amelioration in morning; A. on waking; from sweat.

Clinical.—Occasionally useful in locomotor ataxia with trembling, unsteadiness of the extremities and lightning-like pains. Epilepsy, especially in young children. Physical exhaustion, with acute sensitiveness of all cutaneous nerves and muscular unsteadiness. Very marked relief from discharges and appearance of eruptions (compare Sul.). The Zinc patients are always relieved of their chest symptoms by expectoration, of pains by menstruation, of head symptoms by the re-appearance of alvine evacuations or of eruptions, etc., etc. Varicose veins, particularly of the lower extremities; extremely valuable, especially in the subacute or chronic condition which underlies and determines the development of this disease; it works well when associated with Puls.; the two drugs should never be given together, but consecutively; Zinc. follows Puls., acting better after Puls. has relieved some of the acute symptoms; neither of these drugs, however, is often indicated in acute phlebitis (see Vipera). Convulsions from suppression of menses, suppression of eruptions, from fright, etc. Chorea, with incessant movements, mostly twitching, especially during sleep, the feet particularly affected. Anemia of teething children.

Mind.—Illusion when holding head down as if she had a goitre which she could not see over. Very happy at times. Lively and excited. Joyful, < towards evening, and excited. Laughs excessively over a trifle, and is just as easily vexed. Loquacity. Easily offended. Anger causing weakness; easily excited to A., but quiet. Wishes that he could get hold of some one on whom he could vent his anger. Impatient. Ill humor; in morning; at noon, > evening, and terrified; in afternoon, and disgusted with everything; during menses, and lachrymose; when obliged to speak; at much talking of other people, and impatient; < evening, and sullen mood; and frightened easily; and indolence, later liveliness and joyfulness; so that he whined, with pain in vertex.

Anxiety; during menses; on account of thieves or horrible apparitions when awake; as if he had done evil; restless, in morning. Apprehension and ennui, she seeks society; A. > evening, with lachrymose mood; as if he had committed a crime. Despondent. Sadness. Hypochondriac mood three hours after dinner, with pressure under short ribs, < r., with aversion to work and general discomfort, without trace of flatulence or of overloading stomach. Sensitive to noise. Talking and listening were distressing. Dread of work. Indolence after dinner, with sleepiness. Variable mood, sad at noon, in evening contented and happy. Alternately irritable, easily frightened, wrathful and despondent. Quiet thoughts of death in afternoon, with weakness. Indifferent.

Imaginative powers excited. Dulness and thought- lessness. Forgetful. Mental operations difficult. Difficulty in grasping ideas and in co-ordinating thoughts. Ideas disconnected. Answers slow and as if in bad temper. Uses wrong words when talking. Omits letters in writing. Inability to fix the attention when reading and writing.

Clinical.—Delirium, with subsultus tendinum, coldness of extremities and trembling of hands. Melancholia. The mental condition is generally lethargic, stupid, and is associated with tendency to convulsions, sometimes with feeling of paralysis, so that the extremities have to be rubbed. It is said that a suicidal tendency or fear that one is to be arrested on account of crime is a marked indication for the drug in mental alienation. It is sometimes indicated in general paresis.

Head.—Tearing in brain; T. from morning till after lying down in evening, < r. frontal region, with throbbing; during and after dinner, with sticking in it, cutting in abdomen and yawning; sticking, and in eyes. Raging here and there. Aching; at night; after a glass of accustomed wine, and in eyes; > open air; > washing with cold water; with shivering; in brain, almost driving one mad, then vomiting of bile and trembling; congestive, mostly frontal and temporal, with beating in forehead and temples, < stooping and exposure to the heat of the sun; gnawing, especially in forehead, < over r. eye, on stooping this gnawing and heaviness became a beating headache; stupefying, obliged to lie down; stupefying, as from coal-gas, all the morning. Tingling when speaking loud, with resounding. Throbbing felt with pulse-beat. Oppression. Heaviness as if it would fall down. Fulness and heat. Inability to support it in evening. Weak feeling, < eyes. Dulness; in morning on waking; in forenoon, with pain in forehead and eyes and sleepiness; on waking; after dinner. Paroxysms of dizzy stupefaction, < afternoon and evening, with blackness before eyes and general weakness. Intoxication.

Vertigo; in morning, with headache; in morning, with heaviness and confusion of head as from loss of sleep; from morning till noon; at noon, with stunned feeling; after dinner; on sitting up in bed; when sitting and standing, > walking; after rising from stooping, with buzzing in head; with flushing heat; with weakness of head and abdomen so that she must lie down; so that he could not stand; in attacks, preceded by sharp pressure at root of nose and sensation of drawing together of eyes as by a cord, followed by nausea, faintness and trembling of hands; as if he would fall over, when standing, < occiput, not affecting eyes; as if he saw through a mist, after eating; as if he would have apoplexy, with anxiety and fear of falling headlong; as if head moved up and down in morning on waking, with similar floating of the images of his fancy, with semi-consciousness.

Forehead.—Pulsation perceptible to hand. Sticking, with drawing in it, and pain as if vertex were split in two; S., with tearing as if head would burst; tearing, in skin above l. brow; boring, above r. eminence. Tearing; in forehead; in l. eminence; in l. eminence after dinner; in sinciput after dinner, with throbbing; in forehead during supper, with crawling; in r. eminence, extending to orbit and upper lid; sticking, towards noon, with ineffectual inclination to sneeze. Sharp pain in a spot in evening; S. pain in morning on waking, becoming a pressure in temples. Pain; in sinciput; in r. eminence; l. side; every morning; in sinciput, at noon and in evening, with dulness; in l. eminence after dinner; in sinciput after dinner, with dulness extending into eyes; < stooping or mental work; with dulness, rendering thought difficult; with impatience; across sinuses, with sensibility of cartilages of ear and nose; sudden, after ascending stairs, settling in r. frontal region; sudden, above r. eye, with pressure downward in lids; throbbing, in l. region, then in r. Pressure upon a spot in middle at times. Sensitiveness. Sensation as if air forced itself too sensitively into sinuses. Drawing and throbbing. Tension; in sinciput. Dulness, with pinching in root of nose; D., with constriction in bone beneath and in front of r. ear; in sinciput, with heaviness. Heaviness; in evening during menses, with feeling as if head would be drawn backward.

Temples.—Sticking in l.; above r. at night, with tearing; inward suddenly in r.; intermittent, in r. Tearing; in r.; in r. or also just above it; after dinner, with stitches in r. ear; intermittent pinching; sticking; jerking, above l. Pinching in l. Pain; in l.; and in r. eye; in l., < moving or jarring head, not noticed when the mind is occupied with something else, with feeling as if the pulse beat against a tender place; alternately in T. and occiput. Cramplike pressure inward. Tightness.

Vertex.—Burning stitches in middle. Tearing in V. and above forehead; in V. and l. parietal bone; behind V.; drawing, in attacks, and more in forehead. Ulcerative pain on touch in evening.

Sides.—Tearing on r. near vertex; in r. half; in l. anterior half, above forehead; in r. and in teeth in afternoon; in r. after dinner, with sticking; drawing, in l. half. Boring in l. parietal bone; in r. side and occiput in evening; in r. parietal bone in evening when standing, with sensation of bursting; in r., with pain; drawing, in l. after dinner. Pain in l. half; temporary sharp, in l. Screwing-together pain in evening. Throbbing pain in r. in evening; in r., with twinging.

Occiput.—Sticking in a spot on O. Tearing in sides; in r. side when laughing; in r. side, with stitches on vertex. Gnawing in upper part; in r. protuberance, as by a mouse. Pain; in r. side; after walking in open air; extending to eyes; raging like the beating of waves in a spot in r. side in evening, with heat extending over vertex. Bruised pain. Pressing-asunder pain in r. side; in l. close to vertebrae. Drawing in l. side; D., with gnawing in forehead as from worms; dizzy, deep in r. side when sitting. Heaviness and dulness. Vertigo as if he would fall to the left when walking; V. in evening when sitting and smoking as usual, with desire for stool.

Scalp.—Falling of hair. Itching pimples. Itching moist eruption on and above temples. Suppurating pain on one side. Pain on touching hair on vertex. Sore feeling in a spot on r. side; S. feeling, not affected by touch. Drawing on vertex; S. feels drawn together to one spot. Sensation as if hair bristled, < above l. ear. Sore itching in a spot in middle.

Clinical.—Neuralgic headaches, the result of brain fog, sometimes with blurring of one half of the vision, photophobia, vertigo, etc. Headaches extending from the forehead to the vertex and occiput, > hard pressure on sides of head, sometimes a feeling of a heavy weight on the top of the head, always < stimulants. Occipital headache, with feeling of a heavy weight dragging the occiput downward, sometimes associated with a heavy weight on the vertex, scalp sore, photophobia, restlessness, aggravation from alcoholic stimulants. Violent headaches in school children who are overtaxed, with soft pulse; some cases have been cured when there seemed to be decided symptoms of beginning meningitis. Hydrocephalus; a very valuable remedy in different forms, following infantile cholera or even idiopathic and apparently tubercular; the general indications are roaring in the head, starting in fright, base of the head hot, photophobia, tremulousness of the muscles, constant motion of the feet, sometimes curative even after convulsions have set in; (the late Dr. Duffham usually advised low triturations in these conditions); many brilliant cures are reported. Meningitis consequent upon suppressed exanthemata or during teething, always characterized by the peculiar hyperaesthesia of all the special senses, trembling, twitchings, squinting, and even convulsions.

Eyes.—Inflammation during menses. Turned outward. Moisture during the day, agglutination in morning. Stitch in l.; cutting, in r. Tearing in l. Pain as from sand, < evening and night, with lachrymation, even upper lid towards inner canthus was red and swollen, with inflammation and redness of r. conjunctiva, suppuration in inner canthus. Pain; in l. in evening; in l. when walking in open air; in l., with uneasiness in it, often with weakness of head; tense, in r., like rheumatism; as if pressed inward. Pressure; towards evening.

Burning in afternoon; in E. and lids in morning and evening, with dryness and pressure; with biting, photophobia and lachrymation (< evening), with agglutination in morning; pressing when reading, < l. lid. Biting in l., > rubbing; sore, towards evening, < r.; pricking, in lower part of l. and below it, upon cheek. Feeling as if she had wept much. Constantly affected. Weak, sick feeling. Tickling as from dust in r. Itching; of l., > rubbing.

Lachrymation in morning on waking, also in open air. Twitching in l. ball. Dry feeling in ball. Sticking in r. ball. Aching in balls. Pupils alternately dilated and contracted, but usually dilated. Lid, twitching of l. lower; falling of upper and œdema of lower; sticking in r. lower and l. upper; pressure on margin of l. lower, near inner canthus; burning of l. as if too dry; sore feeling on r. upper; itching on margin of l. upper; paralysis of upper. Canthi, agglutination of inner in morning, with pressing sore feeling (Puls.); sore feeling in inner, (Puls.); soreness in outer, with biting pain; itching in inner with sticking and with cloudy vision; painful pressure in r. inner, with redness of conjunctiva; biting in r. inner, > rubbing. Jerking in l. brow. Sticking tearing in and above l. brow. Bruised sensation in orbit and bones of face.

Vision.—Dim; in morning after waking. Photophobia; with dim, watery eyes. Flickering. Objects appear elongated and at times double. Diplopia, < l. eye, then strabismus. Vanishing, with absence of mind; V. after dinner and when writing, with lachrymation and burning. Of fiery flakes floating in circles on looking at the sky. Of yellow, blue and green rings, with suffering look and sleepiness.

Clinical.—Pterygium, smarting, lachrymation, itching and burning, all the symptoms worse in inner canthus, etc. Catarrhal conjunctivitis, worse in inner canthus. Note the marked affinity of Zinc for the inner, and of Graph. for the outer canthi. It has been found useful in blurred vision, associated with the severe headaches of brain fog, neuralgic pain extending from over the eye to the occiput.

Ears.—Wax in l. increased, thin and impeding hearing, the beating of the pulse is distinct and causes roaring in ear. Discharge from l.; offensive from l.; purulent from l., orifices swollen and hot, with left-sided headache. Stitches; in r.; with itching; in l., close to lobule, with tearing; cutting-tearing, near r. drum. Tearing; in bone in front of l.; at times with itching, or in morning with crawling, or in evening with burning. Cramp in lobule of l.; in lobule of l. extending into neck, on boring finger into ear. Jerking pain from mouth along Eustachian tube; pinching J. Pain; bruised, in bone beneath and in front of r. on touch. Pinching drawing behind l. extending into lower jaw. Tickling in l., not > rubbing. Itching in r., > boring into it; in l., with feeling on putting finger into it as if fleas were jumping about.

Ringling; in r. at night. Crash as of the breaking of a pane of glass on falling asleep. Cracking after breakfast, with beating. Whizzing, and in evening pulsation; W. in front of r. Noises. Roaring. Hearing lost.

Nose.—Swelling on r. side; of l. wing, with pain. Sticking in septum on touch. Tearing externally on r. side; jerking, in r. side. Cutting on inner margin of l. wing. Cutting crawling in evening, then sneezing. Pinching in root, extending into eye; in root, with stitches in jaws. Throbbing pain in root, with full sensation. Sore feeling high up, and in r. nostril tearing. Pressure upon root as if it would be pressed into head, < noon. Drawing in r. nostril after dinner, with tearing. Tickling in mucous membrane, with irritation as if it would provoke sneezing. Itching in r. nostril; in l., then sneezing, then bleeding, > cold water. Stuffed feeling. Stoppage; with apprehension and oppression; with mucus in larynx and posterior nares and nasal speech.

Sneezing; in morning and afternoon; after a meal. Increased discharge of mucus, without coryza. Feeling of coryza, with sore sensitiveness of nostrils. Coryza, with irritation of nasal mucous membrane, impeding respiration; C., with stoppage of nose, but running from nose; sudden, in evening after lying down; dry all day, with pain in back, < sitting. Fluent coryza, afterwards dry; F. towards evening, with pressure in r. tonsil on swallowing and yawning; with raw throat; with crawling in nose and frequent sneezing; alternating with dry, < evening. Blowing out of blood. Bleeding after dinner on blowing, then stupefaction in forehead as from apoplexy, with swimming of objects before eyes.

Face.—Pale. Earthy. Cachectic look, bluish-white. Swelling of l. cheek, with itching. Expression vacant and apathetic or irritable; morose and gloomy, even in morning. Flushed. Cadaverous, pinched. Twitching, with nausea and vomiting; T. of musculi risores, with constant inclination to laugh. Jerklike stitches; sudden S. from r. zygoma to upper margin of orbit, deep in bone, in evening, then sensitiveness of the spot; tearing, in chin and on throat, passing into one another. Tearing in l. cheek; in malar-bone extending into upper jaw; in r. malar-bone, with bruised pain on pressure. Sticking in joint of jaw, beneath and in front of l. ear, on moving jaw backward and biting strongly and on pressing finger on joint. Cramplike tearing here and there in lower jaw, < chin. Pain in jaw, near l. wing of nose.

Lips.—Swelling; of upper. Thick glutinous moisture. Pimples on upper; yellowish-white itching, on lower; flat red, painful to touch in middle of upper. Water-blisters or suppurating pimples in upper. Ulcers in corners; yellow, inside lower. Upper sore, ulcerating in middle. Twitching in l. side of upper. Dry; and cracked. Sticking in upper. Pain, a jerking tearing in r. side of upper. Tensive smarting on lower; burning S. on inner surface of lower. Burning in r. corner.

Mouth.—Teeth. Bleeding, and of gums. Water seemed to come from last r. lower molar, and on touch of tongue sticking in it. Sticking in roots of l. upper canine and in adjacent incisors; in l. lower molars in evening; in l. T. and jaw, extending into neck; jerking, in l. lower molars, also in evening, waking him suddenly. Picking, with prickling and with drawing pains in jaws. Tearing in l. upper molars; in roots of r. upper; in last l. lower molars in evening; in hollow molar, < pressure, on sucking it blood comes; l. lower, < incisors, with drawing; last l. molars, then in cheek extending to temple and forehead; extending from root of a r. upper towards temple in evening after lying down; jerking, in last r. lower molar. Pain in hollow before menses. Jerking; in r. lower molars in evening after lying down till sleep; intermittent, in l. Drawing in roots of incisors; in r. lower molars; l. upper incisors; upper incisors towards noon, with sore feeling on gums; in roots of upper incisors and at the same time in pharynx, extending into cervical muscles; now in r., now in l. last lower molars; sharp jerking, in two last molars; sharp jerklike, suddenly in all incisors; throbbing, in last molars, alternately r. and l. Throbbing pain in hollow after eating or after becoming heated or getting cold. Sensitiveness of upper molars, with drawing sore pain in a l. lower molar, which protrudes from its socket and is loose, with swelling on l. submaxillary gland. Painful burning in incisors, with biting on lower surface of tongue. Feeling as if on edge. Seemed blunted, but on separating molars sensation of softness and agglutination.

Gum.—Bleeding; on slightest touch. Swelling; sore painful. White. White pellicles. The ulcer on the root of a bad tooth is sensitive to touch, with elongated feeling in tooth, when pressing upon it blood comes. Pain when chewing, and in palate; P. on inner side as if sore, as if separated from teeth. Biting on inner surface, with itching.

Tongue.—Blisters; painful on eating. Swelling of l. side preventing talking. Whitish; covered with white mucus; coated white as from cheese, in morning, with icy coldness; coated yellowish-white, < towards root. Dirty moist. Painful as if sore. Dry.

Inflammation of palate. Swelling of palate behind incisors, with pain. Yellow ulcer on inside of l. cheek, painful, < morning. Pain posteriorly on palate and on velum palati, < yawning. Sticking biting on palate close to and in roots of incisors. Crawling as from large bubbles on inside of cheeks. Salivation; with crawling on inside of cheeks; with nausea; with metallic taste; with metallic taste and stitches in tip of tongue; sour-bitter. Fetid breath.

Taste.—Metallic. Coppery. Clammy. Salt, with dryness in throat. As after eating raw peas. Of bad cheese in forepart of mouth, > swallowing, to which he was impelled by mucus in throat. Bitter. Bitter slimy in morning on waking. Sweet beneath forepart of tongue; as of a sweetish powder in throat; and flat. Of blood, and a disagreeable sweetness rising from stomach; of B., with dryness in throat and soreness rising from chest.

Clinical.—Difficult dentition; the child is weak, cold, pulse soft, bores the head into the pillow, tends to squint, cries out in sleep, and particularly has restless feet.

Throat.—Twitching of l. sterno-cleido-mastoid muscle. Swelling of submaxillary glands; of tonsils, with ulceration; of tonsils, with pain, < swallowing. Inflammation, and on pharynx and tonsils round, sharply-defined ulcers, with red, everted edges, they gradually coalesced and were filled with yellowish-white matter. Lumps of white mucus pass through posterior nares into mouth without hawking. Greenish mucus seated low down is expectorated, with sore pain in upper part of chest. Rising of hot vapor. Something like blood with sweetish taste comes into it in evening after lying down.

Jerking tearing in pharynx extending into l. cervical muscles. Pain, and at angle of jaw and in laryngeal region; in tonsils on swallowing in evening and night; on swallowing, with swelling externally and in tonsils; as from internal swelling, also on empty swallowing. Tearing drawing posteriorly on sides of pharynx, more when not swallowing than on empty swallowing. Sore pain, with fulness in œsophagus; anxious sore feeling, < night; cramplike retching soreness, rather externally in muscles, on swallowing even drink. Soreness on swallowing. Biting scraping posteriorly in fauces. Rawness; in evening, with hacking cough; so that she could scarcely breathe, with hoarseness; scraping in pharynx towards evening.

Constriction on swallowing, with desire to swallow frequently; C. and spasm. Choking sensation in r. side when not swallowing. Pressure from pharynx down into abdomen, as if a hard body were opposing from below; spasmodic P. upward in pit or upper part of œsophagus. Sensation of mucus posteriorly in pharynx, with inclination to hawk. Food seems to stick in pharynx after dinner. Dryness; posteriorly in fauces in morning on waking and afterwards, with thirst; in morning when walking, with rawness, hawking of mucus and sore pain low down in throat, then raising of black clotted blood, then all day sweet taste, dryness in throat and bloody saliva; in evening; after dinner; < morning or after dinner, and in larynx, at times > food, with rawness, often forcing him to hawk or cough; with mucus in larynx and constant inclination to hawk up tenacious mucus, which soon collects again. Burning; like heartburn, even on swallowing. Dysphagia. Constriction in œsophagus during deglutition, with spasm.

Clinical.—Globus hystericus, rising from the pit of the stomach.

Stomach.—Appetite. Ravenous; at noon and in evening, but after eating distended feeling; in evening. Insatiability, but no relish for food. Desire to eat in pharynx, even after a meal, after satisfying it overloaded feeling in stomach and pressure in head. Haste in eating. Dinner better relished than usual. Desire for salt and salty things. Diminished; at noon; at dinner; and capricious, at times lost. Dinner is not relished, with pain in stomach as from fasting. Lost; in morning and evening; and almost no taste; with disgust at the sight of food. Aversion to the sweetness of sugar; to food, with colic; to fish; to meat and warm cooked food; to veal in evening, the morsels swelled up in her mouth; to wine and brandy, which they took to excite their appetites.

Thirst; from morning till evening; in afternoon; in afternoon during menses; in afternoon, with heat in palm; in evening till lying down, with heat; during dinner or afterwards; with hasty drinking, which was very refreshing; for beer in evening; burning.

Eruptions; after beef-tea; during breakfast, tasting of it; tasting of milk in afternoon; tasting of the meat eaten; at night of the food eaten at noon; loud, with at times rapid, with at times weak, slow pulse; sweetish; acrid, after sweets, causing scraping in larynx like heartburn; qualmish, an hour and a half after a moderate dinner, with burning in stomach. Pyrosis. Sour E.; after food; after breakfast of bread and milk. Empty E.; in evening or forenoon; with pressure upon chest; then tasting of the fat eaten; bitter; sour after drinking or after dinner; the gas of which burned in the daylight with a pale flame, indicating the presence of hydrogen. Bitter E.; after supper; of yellow water and bile after eating, then vomiting. Ineffectual efforts to eructate, with pressure in middle of spine; I., then empty eructations with relief.

Hiccough; in evening or after breakfast; > eructations of bile.

Nausea; through the day; in morning; in morning, > rising; during breakfast; after breakfast and dinner; after midday nap, obliged to spit much; after supper; after dinner and supper, > emission of flatus, with distention of stomach and inclination to eructate; after stooping, with shuddering on washing and while sitting down; < a sip of wine, with headache; with chilliness; with shivering; with sweat; with trembling and weariness; with general sick feeling; with sick feeling in head and chest; with stomachache as from emptiness; with colic; with eructations and salivation; with risings as in vomiting on attempting to hawk; in stomach-pit, with tense sensation above navel; so that he must sit down, but inability to vomit, with eructations and desire for stool.

Retching; with sour taste and sour water in mouth; of bloody mucus.

Vomiting; of thin liquid; of food immediately after swallowing it; of mucus; of water and mucus; of mucus, then bile; acrid, of contents of stomach, causing burning where it touched the face, while drinking, without nausea, afterwards rawness of throat; regularly three or four times a day, with acid reaction, smelling of rancid oil, besides the remains of food butyric acid and lactic acid and a large number of sarcinae and cryptogams; bilious; easy, of watery bile, then relief; of bitter, yellow, bilious water; of bitter, slimy liquid and at last food, with shocks of coughing, warmth < abdomen, sweat, chilliness over arms, shuddering, empty eructations, hiccough, rumbling and griping in abdomen, the nausea > sitting bent over, the nausea and vomiting returned on sitting erect, on moving and on pressure upon abdomen.

Gurgling at noon and in evening when yawning, with rumbling. Movements at noon, with coldness. Dilated as far as navel, its peristaltic movements at times appreciable through abdominal wall, pylorus hypertrophied, sunken and movable, forming a tumor sensible to touch, sometimes to r., sometimes to l. of umbilicus, at last under r. false ribs another hard, slightly indented tumor, painful when pressed, the size was variable, it disappeared under prolonged pressure of fingers, it was most evident during the violent gastric crisis, it was caused by contractions of the hypertrophied muscle resting upon a solid surface formed by the increased mass of the liver. Fulness, with heaving.

Sticking in diaphragm; in diaphragm and between shoulders; in and beneath pit, with tearing; from both sides towards each other, with S. in middle of sternum. Pinching in pit. Gripping deep in region of pit, < deep breathing. Cramplike pain; in pit; in pit and chest; pit and epigastric region. Sharp pain, and in pit.

Pain; in pit; in epigastrum; epigastrum and r. side of umbilicus; in region and in abdomen in morning; in morning after rising, then sticking in precordial region; at noon, with coldness in it; in evening after eating; in pit in evening, with burning soreness on pressure; on pressure; in pit during inspiration, the breath was held back, after dinner; in epigastric region, with fulness; in pit extending to chest, > eructations; in diaphragm and between shoulders, extending to sacrum; in epigastric region, causing excitement and spasmodic pressure; heavy.

Cramplike dragging in pit and epigastric region. Drawing in and beneath pit. Constriction from both sides, with anxiety and heat over whole body. Compression in morning fasting. Oppression; in pit; sudden, in epigastric region during menses, with tightness so that everything must be loosened. Screwing-together sensation in pit. Discomfort after a meal; D. in cardiac orifice extending to oesophagus. Sinking for hours after eating acids. Emptiness in S. and abdomen, with hunger two hours after dinner; E., with nausea. Burning; in epigastric region; in upper part when fasting. Acidity. Digestion difficult.

Clinical.—Gastric derangement, < alcoholic stimulants, especially flatulence, with much rumbling in abdomen (see Arg. nit.). Atonic dyspepsia, feeling as if the stomach were collapsed; (note a goneness in the stomach in the later part of the forenoon, similar to Sul.).

Abdomen.—Distention; in evening on going to bed without supper; towards evening, with pressure and odorless flatus; after eating; with stitches. Gurgling. Rumbling in morning; in morning, with rolling; in morning in bed, with grumbling and flatulent pain; after milk, with cutting and emissions of flatus; < evening, with movements and emissions of flatus, or with cutting in hypogastrum after dinner; with dragging pains; with gurgling, then painful retracting and urging to stool. Flatulence; which presses out the hæmorrhoids, which are then painful, < lying. Emission of flatus; hot in evening; offensive; hot, offensive, passes often after dinner till midnight; offensive, noisy in evening, without flatulent troubles in abdomen, the first emissions were odorless.

Sticking after normal stool; after supper, > rest, and in middle of spine; intermittent; every seven days or once in three weeks; into scrotum; burning. Cutting all night; C., then leucorrhœa and yawning. Gripping; here and there; at various times (also in sides of A. and about navel), sometimes when yawning, or after breakfast, or with cutting after dinner; in evening, with diarrhœa; anteriorly in evening, with emission of flatus; after soup, < upper; with tendency to diarrhœa; or cutting, sometimes in morning, often followed by soft or diarrhœa-like stools; as far as stomach, where it is a constriction, obliging her to bend up, in evening; tensive, on a jar or on retracting abdomen, then sticking towards pit of stomach.

Twisting in morning in bed before emission of flatus. Rachialgia, with exhaustion caused by want of sleep and anorexia.

Pain; at night, and in lumbar region, with stitches in l. side and drawing pain in lower limbs; after a light meal, with tympanitis; after dinner and supper, changing to sticking while walking, > emission of flatus; after copious stool; with every stool and emission of flatus; at times with nausea and running of water from mouth, often with offensive mucus, which took away her appetite; then cramplike feeling in bladder; waking her at night, then thick leucorrhœa; so that he rolled on the floor; as if diarrhœa would come on. Flatulent pain; in evening, < hypogastrum; after dinner, < movement. Flatulent, throbbing pain, extending towards chest. Acute drawing extending into urethra, with crawling. Constriction even when lying after midnight, < rising; C. taking away the breath. Uneasiness. Heaviness. Internal coldness. Empty feeling, with discharge of flatus.

Upper.—Distention from pit of stomach to below navel, with pain in it and with sensitiveness of r. upper lid. Gurgling, and in lower; in upper after eating, with pain. Gripping tearing in U. and in side of chest after dinner, < walking and standing, > rest of body and mind. Gripping during dinner; in evening, with emission of flatus and itching over hips. Cutting; when eating. Sharp pain between pit of stomach and navel, < retracting abdomen, but > the eructations caused thereby. Biting. Throbbing in skin beneath pit of stomach.

Hypochondria.—Cramplike pain alternating with oppression of chest and difficult breathing. Pain as from flatulence, and in sides of abdomen and in back, even in morning in bed, < walking, somewhat > stool, renewed by walking. Heaviness; and in loins, with pain, then prostration.

Heptic Region.—Liver voluminous. Sticking in r. side and middle; in H. region and r. hip; during sour eructations and on inspiration; sometimes also in hip, or with burning or biting externally, at times also in evening or after dinner; jerking, after supper. Intermittent tearing. Pinching; as from incarcerated flatus, < motion, and in r. side of abdomen. Pinching gripping in a spot. Pain in a spot; P., with jerklike tearing drawing.

Region of Spleen.—Sticking; in evening when walking and standing; with pain; deep, < pressure. Intermittent pinching. Slow pulsating sore feeling. Pressure.

Sides.—Rumbling in l. in evening; in r., then croaking. Stitches in r.; in l. flank in morning after waking; sudden, in l. at night, < breathing and pressure. Tension. Tensive colic in l., > eructations.

Umbilical Region.—Stitches as from an internal ulcer in a spot in r. side above navel, < touch and motion; cutting S. transversely across; tearing. Tearing from one side to the other below navel till evening. Cutting transversely below navel. Sticking gripping; gripping as from flatus, when walking. Pain; and below navel; in middle of abdomen after a moderate supper; in middle of abdomen, with cramplike drawing; as from an internal induration in a spot beneath navel, < pressure and retracting abdomen.

Hypogastrum.—Protrusion of inguinal hernia. Jerking from groin towards penis. Stitches; in l.; above groin; near genitals, then tearing drawing in root of penis; cutting, in l. after emission of flatus; downward through r. ilium on bending over, with a hard abdomen. Tearing low down in r. side, extending into groin; deep in l. side, beginning in region of hip. Pinching in r. groin and flank as in retention of urine, renewed by rising from a seat. Pain in pubic region; P. close to r. hip; after a dry stool; > normal stool; in groin and pubic region, with drawing; intermittent, on rising; jerking, in r. groin. Prickling in l. groin at night, alternating with drawing, disturbing sleep. Bruised sensation in r. side. Drawing pain in l. groin when sitting. Drawing in l. groin. Screwing-together sensation in l. groin, extending into chest. Constriction in l. side on walking and on pressure, > sitting after dinner. Pressing feeling low down, extending to beginning of urethra, with crawling. A hernia presses down forcibly. Painful retching in l. groin as if a hernia would occur. Feeling as if an inguinal gland were swollen.

Clinical.—It has been used for flatulent colic, for lead colic, neuralgia of the bowels, with retraction of the abdomen (Plumb.), etc. Enlargement of the liver, with flatulent dyspepsia, etc. Enlarged, indurated liver, which is sore. Reflex symptoms from floating kidney.

Rectum.—Jerking stitches extending into root of penis. Cutting and smarting. Boring extending into abdomen, with pressing, so that she could not sit down. Drawing pain extending into abdomen. Soreness. Itching. Heaviness when standing, > emission of flatus. Feeling as if pressed by flatus, though none passes; feeling as if flatus pressed against coccyx, by which it was retained, in evening. Tenesmus. Desire for stool in morning and after eating; D. for stool, with movement in abdomen; long, then difficult, soft stool; ineffectual.

Anus.—Discharge of blood. Protrusion of hæmorrhoids, with smarting pain. Stitches; crawling, in morning; burning, in evening when walking; twinging, like lightning into rectum. Tearing. Jerklike cutting. Burning soreness in evening. Crawling pressure. Crawling; sore. Itching; in evening; after soft stool; with oozing of corrosive moisture; ending in pain. Burning; during stool; after stool.

Stool.—Diarrhœa; at night, with gripping and tenesmus; with emission of flatus; then no stool for three days; frequent, then leucorrhœa; involuntary, in morning on waking; brown; brown, gushing, flatulent, preceded and followed by gripping; yellowish, gushing; pasty, with straining after stool; offensive, alternating with constipation; bilious, then no stool for twenty-four hours; bilious, then great relief. Soft, twice at night; S. after dinner, with cessation of pain in abdomen; S. several times a day, enveloped in bright red frothy blood, preceded by colic; and difficult, with emission of prostatic fluid.

Constipation; but some desire for stool. Hard, small (Plumb.), with pressure and rumbling in abdomen; H. often crumbling, with pressure and clawing in anus; and unsatisfactory, only every two or three days; in morning, another after dinner soft, accompanied and followed by vertigo and roaring in head; and scanty in evening, then several small soft ones; and difficult; with blood; then renewed urging; at first, then liquid; first part, last part easy, soft. Large in size, with great effort of abdominal muscles. Tenacious, light yellow, with sticking in anus. Scanty, tenacious, then straining and heat in anus. Light-colored, the first part large and hard, the last soft. Profuse. Normal, four times a day, with gripping in abdomen. Intermittent.

Clinical.—Cholera infantum with green mucous discharges, sometimes with tenesmus (Merc. dulc.), with boring of the head into the pillow, restless extremities. Sudden cessation of diarrhœa followed by the cerebral symptoms above noted. Involuntary stools and urine. It has been used for chronic dysentery with the particularly marked symptoms of Zinc.

Urinary Organs.—Pressure upon bladder, but not to urinate. Urging to urinate, urine copious; U. after micturition every evening on lying down, but only three or four drops pass; frequent at night, with scanty discharge. Micturition slow and in a thin stream; dribbling, every evening; involuntary, on blowing nose (after a difficult stool); frequent after midnight, urine light yellow, not very copious; frequent, urine rather increased, watery or lemon-colored.

Urethra.—Emission of prostatic fluid. Flow of blood; after painful micturition. Stitches through U.; in orifice; twinging backward like lightning. Cutting in orifice in evening when sitting; tearing, in middle extending forward. Sore pain in forepart when not urinating. Drawing and tearing in forepart; acute D. in forepart and in penis. Biting in orifice after micturition; in forepart when not urinating, with tearing. Itching. Burning before and during micturition; after micturition; when urinating during menses; tearing B.

Urine.—Increased in evening; at night. Scanty; in evening and morning, and pale; after dinner; and high-colored; and nearly blood-red; and becomes turbid like clay-water. Reddish. Very yellow, deposits white flakes. That passed at night is very turbid in morning. Dark and turbid; with copious sediment of urate of ammonia, with a few crystals of oxalate of lime and a few cells of renal epithelium, at times a pellicle after standing, urine clearer on boiling, odor after standing from previous evening (in a corked bottle) sickening, wheylike, reaction acid, sugar present; turbid when it left the urethra except towards the end of micturition. Sediment flocculent; mealy in that passed at night.

Clinical.—Hysterical retention of urine. Paralysis of the bladder. Can urinate only when sitting. Occasionally useful for symptoms occurring during albuminuria, with œdema, irregular heart, spasmodic breathing and hæmorrhages.

Sexual Organs.—Falling of hair. Tearing in tip of glans. Painful jerking in root of penis. Penis sensitive when walking, as if the shirt rubbed it. Itching of end of penis in morning on waking. Erections, with pain; strong E.; strong, with pain in abdomen. Scrotum shrivelled; and neighboring parts; with shivering in it; sore red pimple at the root of a hair; stitches extending into glans; pain in r. side, < touch; sore sensation, and in contiguous parts of thigh; itching every evening not > scratching.

Stitches in l. testicle during rest. Drawing pain in testicles; prickling, < sitting and stooping. Drawing up of r. or l. testicle, with pain and swelling; D. in testicles extending along spermatic cords; in l., then r. T.; in l., at times extending along spermatic cord, with prickling pressure. Testicles feel sore and bruised. Desire in the company of women and discharge of semen too soon; D., but difficult seminal discharge. Emissions at night without lascivious dreams.

Female.—Pudenda, varices; pressure, and on rectum; pressure towards P., with cutting about navel; sticking biting during menses, with itching and swollen feeling. Discharge of bloody mucus causing itching on pudenda, after menses. Leucorrhœa; < every stool; thick, > morning and evening, also before and during menses; acrid, with burning in pudenda; slimy, with gripping in upper abdomen. Lochia suppressed and milk diminished. Menses too early; and profuse, lasting three days; delayed; and profuse, < night and walking, with cutting and drawing in abdomen and small of back; discharged in large clots, < walking; only three days; termination prolonged; returned (after a suppression of three months) with alternations of paleness and redness of face. Excitement at night without lascivious dreams.

Clinical.—Seminal emissions, with hypochondriasis, general irritability and depression. Neuralgia of the testicles, < walking. Irregular menstruation. Sometimes vicarious menstruation, hemorrhage from the urethra, or bowels, or lungs, with the general Zinc symptoms. Neuralgia of left ovary, preceding menses, > the flow. Pruritus of the vulva. Unnatural sexual excitement in women. All the symptoms of derangement of the female organs are associated with the general restlessness, depression, tendency to coldness, spinal tenderness and especially the restless feet of Zinc.

Respiratory Organs.—Tickling in region of larynx; from mucus; on it, with sticking in it. Voice weak when talking loud. Hoarseness, with burning in trachea; H. as if chest were filled with mucus.

Cough; with oppression; with stitches in head; preventing sleep all night, with sticking in chest and thirst; violent; tickling, fatiguing, < night; suffocative, a tickling irritation takes away the breath; short, from tickling beneath sternum. Dry cough; morning and evening, before and during menses, with bloody expectoration and with burning and sore pain in chest; in evening, > lying down, with heaviness on chest; from tickling in larynx; waking her at night during menses; with stitches in chest, feeling as if it would burst, difficulty in breathing and talking; and spasmodic; and hacking. Cough and expectoration; incessant tendency to; day and night. E. thick, purulent; E. of tenacious mucus like old catarrh, then sensation as if chest were hollow and cold; bloody E. Expectoration of much mucus of milky color; constant, of metallic-tasting mucus.

Asthma and other chest troubles. Croupy condition, with symptoms of paralysis of cervical muscles. Respiration oppressed; < l. lung; heavy and deep. R. and chest unusually free and easy.

Clinical.—Spasmodic cough, sometimes whooping cough, particularly in children; said to be characteristic when during the spasms of cough the child grasps the genitals. Bronchitis, with easy, profuse, frothy expectoration, < night, lying down, must sit up. Asthmatic expectoration, with constriction of the chest. Asthma.

Chest.—Mucus loosened by hawking. Angina. Stitches in r.; in l.; deep in r.; in sternum; in upper part of l.; in l. clavicle; beneath r. nipple; beneath l. mamma; on r. short ribs; in l. mamma in morning; above heart in evening; in l. in evening when standing, with bruised pain; in region of l. ribs opposite pit of stomach in evening, with ulcerative pain; in side at night; beneath sternum when eating; when walking in open air, extending to l. side of neck, with difficult breathing; in l. side on moving arm; in a spot on deep breathing; in middle during and after inspiration, with tightness; in r. side, at times on turning body to r., or after dinner, followed by pressure, or alternating with stitches in r. flank and side of abdomen; in middle of sternum at times on stooping, at times followed by pressure deep internally extending into throat; in r. side, < violent expiration; in l., < breathing, > stretching; in a spot in l., with feeling as if corroded and bruised; beneath r. axilla, with tension; in r. side, with tension and bruised pain; in l., with pain; in l., with pain in l. nipple; in side, then cough, with expectoration of bloody mucus; in upper part of sternum extending into l. loin in morning, with fear of stooping; pleuritic, beneath heart in evening; tearing, beneath axilla, then sore feeling.

Tearing above pit of stomach; beneath l. axilla; in r.; in lower part of l.; in r. upper ribs, almost in the back; sticking, in l. Cramp extending to stomach and abdomen from 7 till 8 P.M. Pinching in forepart of r., then stitches in r. hypochondrium, extending to præcordial region, with long-remaining bruised pain in the part; intermittent, in morning, with nausea; intermittent, with twinging. Sharp pain near r. axilla.

Pain; in l., then in r.; in r. mamma; beneath l. nipple; here and there, or in l. side; in l. nipple, with sensitiveness; in l. ribs, with sensitiveness to touch; as if blood forced its way into the finest vessels in lungs, < r. Sore pain in l. pectoral muscles; about r. nipple. Bruised pain when riding in a carriage; internally in a spot in upper part. Roughness at night, with rawness, heat and sweat. Rheumatic drawing beneath clavicle near shoulder-joint; sharp D. about l. nipple, with sore pain on touch, which soon became a pulsation. Painful throbbing by l. axilla at noon. Anxiety; > evening, with headache.

Oppression; in morning. Tightness beneath sternum in evening; T. in evening, with sticking and pressure in middle of sternum, with small, rapid pulse. Constriction; with pain as if cut to pieces; as by a band, on walking in open air. Pressure; on l. clavicle; here and there upon C. and back; upon r. end of l. clavicle in morning; upon upper part of sternum or upon lower part of chest after eating; outward, intermittent, here and there in l., with drawing tension; as if a foreign substance were rising into throat; as from rheumatism and incarcerated flatus. Tensive pain; in l. clavicle, with drawing. Distended feeling in l. mamma. Burning in side; in l. side and l. scapula; in a spot in r. side, near pit of stomach, and above l. nipple; in sternum, with weakness; on r., as if in skin, extending to back. Affection of l. lung. Symptoms < motion, when she lifts or takes hold of anything.

Clinical.—The chest feels as if oppressed with quantities of mucus. Intercoastal neuralgia.

Heart.—First sound hoarse and prolonged. Stitches at apex; in præcordial region, with tension; S., < violent expiration. Cramplike feeling, and in lungs. Pain at apex; in region, with external swelling and tenderness; sharp at apex. Pressure, heaviness and spasmodic tension. Præcordial anxiety towards evening. Palpitation; and a stitch with every beat of the heart.

Pulse.—Rapid in evening, at times with heat; R., wiry and irregular; and full, and tense, irregular, hard. Slow and intermittent; S. and feeble; and compressible. Hard; and small. Irregular.

Neck.—Stitches in muscles. Tearing in r. side posteriorly; and below jaw and behind and beneath ear;

T. in l. side in morning, > pressure; in l. side, extending behind ear; sticking, posteriorly and inferiorly in a spot in r. side. Pinching on sides near trunk. Pain in N. and small of back as if beaten and wearied; P. in muscles at night, even during sleep, as if head had been in an uncomfortable position; in nape as if it could not support the head when sitting and writing. Cramp-like drawing in r. side on holding head erect; down cervical muscles when chewing. Pressure as with a finger on r. side when talking. Tension in l. side; T. in anterior muscles; in r. side, with drawing. Weariness in nape in evening when writing. Stiffness in cervical and upper dorsal muscles every morning, with pain; S. in side in morning in bed, with pain extending to shoulder; cramplike, in l. side.

Back.—Sticking when sitting and walking. Pinching in spots, with burning pain. Bruised pain when walking in open air, with weakness. Pain < sitting. Burning drawing pain in morning during sleep, with sensation of falling asleep in shoulder-joint, disturbing sleep, > waking. Tensive, rheumatic pain in spine. Drawing and burning. Sticking in middle when standing. Pain in r. side near middle of spine. Burning pressure upon spine above small of back.

Scapulae.—Stitches beneath r.; close to upper part of r., < during eructations; on inner margin of r., with pressure; extending into l.; from r. to l.; beneath l.; extending into l. chest; in margin of l. extending towards axilla, with rising of heat to head; jerking, beneath and near l. Tearing between S.; in r.; burning, between r. and spine. Sharp pain close to r. Pain beneath l.; between S.; in upper dorsal muscles every night, < movement, with stiffness; between S., extending to sacrum. Throbbing under lower third of l. Tensive pain between S. Tension beneath r., extending down back and towards axilla; as from an adhesive plaster near inner margin of r. Tensive pressure upon a spot by border of r.

Lumbar Region.—Cracking when walking. In kidney region, stitches; r.; l. when standing and walking, with bruised pain; after dinner or in evening, at times extending towards chest; intermittent, in l. Tearing in region of r. kidney, at times sticking; cutting, at times in r. kidney region, at times drawing pressure; intermittent, in region of l. kidney; sticking, in sacrum. Cutting extending into calves and feet on motion. Pinching in kidney region. Pain; in spine; above r. hip; in kidney region; in region of l. kidney, at times pinching; at night on turning over in bed; on stooping; on walking and sitting down; when walking, often forcing him to stand still, > continuing to walk; in region of l. kidney on touch; < lying on back, > lying on side; with languor; sore, in region of l. kidney; tensive, rheumatic, and in shoulder; paralytic, when lying in an uncomfortable position, < rising from a seat and beginning to walk. Screwed-in sensation in evening on rising from a seat. Drawing just above r. nates; in spine and lumbar region like painful weakness, when sitting and stooping. Dragging in coccyx, at times pinching. Pressure upon lower part of spine. Weakness when walking; all day when walking, and in hollows of knees; on beginning to walk, and in lower limbs; when sitting, with tension in it and abdomen. Paralyzed feeling extending to hips and afterwards to l. side.

Clinical.—Spinal irritation; the whole spine is sensitive, especially the last dorsal vertebra, the symptoms < sitting still and stimulants. Muscular rheumatism of the lumbar region, extending to the hips and thighs, < rising from a chair, stooping, etc.

Extremities.—Trembling; with twitching of muscles of thighs. Cramp. Sticking in joints; S. in all, extending into tips of fingers when sitting, < after heat, with tearing. Tearing; in bones of l. forearm, then in knee; after physical effort; drawing in middle of almost all bones, so that they had no steadiness. Aching. Darting pain through all joints, < ankles, knees and elbows, with numbness of adjacent parts and an exhausted paralyzed sensation in muscles of upper arms and thighs, < r. Bruised feeling, < lower; B. in morning on waking, with weariness. Drawing; here and there, ending in slow stitches. Weakness; of hands and feet during menses; sudden, at noon, more when standing than when sitting, with trembling and ravenous hunger. Heaviness on walking in open air. Stiffness; with soreness; of joints, with lancinations transversely across above joints, pressure upon joints caused soreness and pricking.

Upper Extremities.—Axilla. Stitches in l. and down forepart of chest arresting the breathing, in evening. Tearing extending into l.; sticking, in r. Sore feeling in a spot.

Shoulder.—Jerking in r., then bruised pain in l. scapula. Stitches in l.; beneath r. after dinner. Tearing; deep in r.; upon l., about beginning of neck; deep in the bone of the joint upon which she was lying in evening; on r., > scratching, with pressure in middle of upper arm; in joints, with tension; sticking, on top of r. Tearing arthritic pain extending to fingers. Heaviness on waking, with pressure. Falling asleep of joint.

Arm.—Twitching, and of hands. Tearing, and in hands. Bruised pain, < morning and evening; B. pain in l., he is unable to raise it on account of pain in deltoid. Inclination to stretch; I. to move himself with his arms. Weakness and tension; W., with pain in wrist as if wrenched. R. fails at times to respond to her demand.

Upper Arm.—Sticking in r. in morning when dressing; in anterior surface of l. after dinner, with burning. Tearing near l. shoulder; close to elbows; in anterior surface of l. near elbow and in r. near shoulder; in deltoids extending down upper arms; intermittent, in middle of inner side of l. Pain in r.; rheumatic, in deltoids, < raising arm. Bruised pain in r. humerus; in l. deltoid. Drawing in l. close to elbow; acute rheumatic, in deltoids from top of shoulders down arms, < raising arms. Rheumatic tension in head of l. humerus. Bubbling in l.

Elbow.—Sticking in r. in evening when yawning, with tension. Tearing in bends; in r. in morning, > rubbing; up and down in l., in a spot of a hand's breadth. Rheumatic pressure. Rheumatic drawing. Relaxed sensation in r. Heaviness as if paralyzed in bend of l.

Forearm.—Tearing in l., < upper part; bubbling, in muscles on inner side of r., not far from elbow. Cramplike drawing, or in fingers. Drawing pain as if in bone. Bruised pain on touch and on turning arm, at times with tearing in thick part of it. Rheumatic tension above l. wrist.

Wrist.—Tearing; in r.; in region of pisiform bone; in middle of r., then towards back of fingers; in r., with painful drawing; in bend of l., with tearing stitches on back of l. hand; extending to first phalanx of thumb when riding in a carriage. Burning pain in r., and in ball of hand. Drawing pain in r. as if sprained. Rheumatic drawing in r. Tension in r. as if muscles were too short.

Hand.—Trembling; when writing, with weakness (China, Phos.); during menses; more when resting it quietly upon the table than when leaning upon elbow. Tearing in r. just beneath wrist; in r. palm near fingers; in metacarpal bones of index fingers; on back of r. fourth and fifth metacarpal bones and in wrist; in back of l., at times alternating with tearing on r. hand; sticking, in r., in bend of wrist and in palm near little finger; tensive, in r. palm. Pinching or sticking in ball of l. above little finger. Pressure on ball of l. Tearing drawing in palm between l. thumb and index. Tension in metacarpal bone of little finger extending towards wrist. Rigidity, < r.; of back when playing the piano, with feeling of cramp in extensor muscles of thumb. Asleep in morning on waking. Paralysis of r., it was blue, cadaverous, heavy, insensible, with small, thready, scarcely perceptible pulse.

Fingers.—Jerking in first joints of r. Stitches; through first phalanx of l. thumb; tearing; tearing, in middle joints of three last fingers of both hands; cutting, in tips of thumbs. Tearing in first joints and phalanges; in tips of index, middle and little fingers; in r. thumb and above it and in two adjacent fingers; beneath nail of r. thumb; in l. thumb towards tip, with painful throbbing, falling asleep and numb sensation and externally perceptible heat; sticking, in last joint of r. thumb; jerking, from first joints of l. towards tips in evening; drawing, in r. thumb. Pain in middle joint of r. index and at intervals in its first phalanx. Tearing drawing in last phalanges of l. middle and ring fingers. Drawing pain in tips, extending up arms (though the passes were downward). Throbbing in thumb, with crawling and internal heat.

Lower Extremities.—Rheumatic drawing in r. Tensive pain in l. Discomfort in morning in bed when bent. Feeling of congestion of blood in l., < leg. Uneasiness at night. Difficult to use and control. Weakness of l. in evening; in evening, with pain in them and sensitiveness to every draught through the room; on rising from a seat, < calves; attacks of tremulous, > walking, with paleness of face; paralytic W. and heaviness in afternoon on beginning to walk, > continuing to walk. Heaviness; and tearing; during menses, with drawing about knees as if they would be twisted around.

Hip.—Tearing in l.; anteriorly on crest of ilium when sitting; drawing, posteriorly on l., with burning. Pain posteriorly in l. Bruised pain in joint, with tension and pain on motion; B. pain in l. extending to middle of thigh when walking and standing, > sitting, with pinching, heat and sensitiveness in it and with weakness of lower limb; in joint, as if flesh were loosened from bone.

Thigh.—Varices extending to labiæ. Stitches in middle; about great trochanter; on posterior surface in evening when yawning; tearing, when walking and lying. Tearing beneath hips and posteriorly on r. hip; < thick portion; on inner side of l., > motion; on outer side of femur, extending from hip to middle of thigh while sitting; drawing, in articular extremity to l. and beneath hip. Jerking pain on inner side. Bruised pain in gluteals and posterior femoral muscles; on anterior surface of l., with soreness on pressure. Paralytic pain in r., first in upper part, then extending towards knee, in evening when standing, > sitting. Drawing sore pain on outer muscles. Drawing pain on inner side of r.; intermittent D. pain in evening. Drawing posteriorly, with pressing, so that he could not sit down, > walking; rheumatic D. Feeling in bend when walking as if muscles were too short. Heaviness of r. when walking, with lameness; H. in l. femur above knee in evening, with paralytic pain.

Knee.—Stitches; on inner side of r. during rest; like a flea-bite on inner side of r. Tearing on outer side of l. patella; in bends in morning, < walking, > sitting, with bruised pain; in r., > rubbing; in bone of l. with contraction; and outer margin of bend, extending into calf; in l. extending to middle of thigh; extending upward and downward in l., with gnawing; in l. or also extending upward, with bruised pain. Pain, and in ankles; in r. patella in evening and then in l. and in heel; in a dream, and almost immovable, and on waking unusually early they were painful as after fatigue, < rest; gradually increasing and decreasing. Boring in evening, < r.; in l., with gnawing in it and tension in upper part of calf, renewed after sitting down. Burrowing. Bruised feeling. Drawing pain at night. Rheumatic drawing in r. and downward in tibia. Tensive pain in r. when walking; in hollows when walking in open air. Beating when sitting after a long walk. Crawling in l. Stiffness.

Leg.—Edema. Cramp in morning in bed, drawing it up. Stitch above r. foot when running. Tearing in l. between tibia and ankle; in forepart of r. beneath knee, then bruised pain; drawing, in tendines-achilles and about inner malleoli; pulsating, in tendines-achilles. Drawing pain in evening. Drawing in r. tendo-achillis. Pressure on inner side of l. below calf, then tearing; alternating P. and drawing in bones of r. Weakness, < walking. Stiffness so that she could not walk. Falling asleep of r. at night.

Tibia.—Sticking; when walking. Tearing on r.; in lower end of r.; to back of foot. Burning pain. Drawing pain in r. Rheumatic drawing in r., with tension. Tension and pressure; T. beneath r. knee, then burning.

Calf.—Jerking in l. Cramp; threatens on turning over. Tearing; extending to malleoli. Cramplike pain in l. C. and foot; in l. at night. Drawing down; D. and tension. Stiffness when walking, with tightness.

Ankle.—Swelling about malleoli of a formerly diseased foot. Tearing in r. outer malleolus; > rubbing; T. in bend and on margin and back of l. foot; beneath r. inner malleolus extending to heel in evening when sitting. Sprained pain; on moving foot. Pain beneath outer malleolus. Rheumatic tension in l. during rest.

Foot.—Trembling; on raising them while sitting; with difficulty in raising them and frequent stumbling. Nervous movement for hours after retiring and in sleep. Stitches in ball; burning, here and there in bone on back. Tearing on outer margin of r. towards toes, > rubbing; on back of l., > walking, with crawling on it and numbness of soles; on margin of r., with tension; drawing, in r., extending into malleoli, with heaviness during rest. Pain in outer margin of r. as if bones would break when walking, on raising foot, also on holding it sideways and resting it upon tip. Tension in r., downward on heel, as if foot had been sprained or as if muscles were too short. Drawing in bones of l. Weakness in morning in bed, > rising and walking; in evening during menses, with soft stool. Paralyzed feeling in r. Falling asleep towards evening.

Heel.—Stitches. Tearing and pain, the feet seem beaten from the body. Boring after drinking wine. Ulcerative pain, worse when walking than when sitting.

Sole.—Tearing; sticking, and in bend of joints of r. little toe. Ulcerative pain in morning, with burning. Pain on stepping upon them, they seem swollen, with feeling as if scratched by a toothed instrument. Tension in r. as if tendons were too short in evening when stepping.

Toes.—Sticking in ball of great during rest, with burning, as after freezing; prickling, in l. great; pulsating, in tip of r. great; crawling, as after falling asleep in bend of first joint of l. great, on inner side. Tearing in lower part of two first r.; in r. little in evening; in r. great, with jerking tearing in outer side of l. calf; sticking, in first joints of r. great; sticking, in bends of first joints of first two r.; drawing, and in forepart of foot. Sprained pain in bends of first joints. Ulcerative pain in r. great in evening; in nail of great on touch. Pain as if sore from walking; tearing sore pain in tip of great beneath nail. Feeling as if blistered.

Clinical.—Sciatica, with restlessness of the feet, the pain extending the whole length of the leg, < night and walking.

Skin.—Erysipelatous inflammation of tendo-achillis, with painful swelling. Inflamed swelling on foot. Red swelling, hard, painful, on l. wing of nose, painful to pressure. Red round spots on hands and fingers. Bunion on little toe and ball of foot, with stinging when walking. Chilblains on hands. Rash in bend of elbow; itching, in hollows of knees and bends of elbows. Eruption between scapulae, with itching in evening; E. of crust on face; on r. hand, with painful fissures. Cracks on hands from slight cold, with pain; painful burning C. between two fingers of l. hand. Roughness of back of r. hand, < catching cold and cold weather, with irritation when rubbed that goes through the whole body and with discharging vesicles.

Pimples on face; beneath skin of bend of last joint of ring finger; on forehead, back and third l. toe, with sore pain on touch; on r. side of neck, with ulcerative pain on pressure; red, on chest and face; on forearm, itching by day. Itching pimples in middle of chin; on back of hand; on thighs, calves and about knees, > scratching.

Red spot on leg becoming covered with a scab, with itching. Itching pustules beneath chin. White pimples with moisture, on upper lip, chin and forehead after drinking wine. Protuse bleeding of a slight injury. Ulcerative blisters as after a burn on back of r. foot. Boils on shoulders; on l. upper arm; on back, between scapulae and in other parts; red, finally dark blue, with hard areola, containing dark pus, on l. side of pubic region.

Tearing sticking above l. eyebrow. Formication; through all limbs; on calves extending to toes; > rubbing; with here and there oscillatory movements.

Biting and burning pain in an ulcer; B. on back of r. hand, extending above wrist, as if an eruption would appear.
